spe·cif·ic (spī-sīf'īk) adj. Abbr. specif., sp. 1. Explicitly set forth; definite. See Synonyms at explicit. 2. Relating to, characterizing, or distinguishing a species.

3. Special, distinctive, or unique: specific qualities and attributes. 4. a. Intended for, applying to, or acting on a particular thing: a specific remedy for warts.

b. Concerned particularly with the subject specified. Often used in combination: “age-specific voting patterns” (A. Dianne Schmidley).

5. a. Designating a disease produced by a particular microorganism or condition. b. Having a remedial influence or effect on a particular disease.

6. Immunology. Having an affinity limited to a particular antibody or antigen. 7. a. Designating a customs charge levied on merchandise by unit or weight rather than according to value.

b. Designating a commodity rate applicable to the transportation of a single commodity between named points. — n. 1. a. Something particularly fitted to a use or purpose. b. A remedy intended for a particular ailment or disorder.

2. a. A distinguishing quality or attribute. b. specifics. Distinct items or details; particulars. [Late Latin specificus : Latin speciēs, kind, species; see SPECIES + Latin -ficus, -fic.]

—spe·cif'i·cal·ly adv. —spec'i·fic'i·ty (spēs'ə-fīs'ī-tē) n.

spec·i·fi·ca·tion (spēs'ə-fī-kā'shən) n. Abbr. spec. 1. The act of specifying.

2. a. specifications. A detailed, exact statement of particulars, especially a statement prescribing materials, dimensions, and quality of work for something to be built, installed, or manufactured. b. A single item or article that has been specified.

3. An exact written description of an invention by an applicant for a patent.

specific epithet (spī-sīf'īk ēp'ə-thēt') n. The uncapitalized Latin adjective or noun that follows a capitalized genus name in binomial nomenclature and serves to distinguish a species from others in the same genus, as saccharum in Acer saccharum (sugar maple). Also called trivial name specific gravity (spī-sīf'īk grāv'ī-tē) n. Abbr. sg, sp gr The ratio of the mass of a solid or liquid to the mass of an equal volume of distilled water at 4°C (39°F) or of a gas to an equal volume of air or hydrogen under prescribed conditions of temperature and pressure.

specific heat (spī-sīf'īk hēt) n. Abbr. sp ht 1. The ratio of the amount of heat required to raise the temperature of a unit mass of a substance by one unit of temperature to the amount of heat required to raise the temperature of a similar mass of a reference material, usually water, by the same amount. 2. The amount of heat, measured in calories, required to raise the temperature of one gram of a substance by one Celsius degree.

specific impulse (spī-sīf'ik ĭm'pūls') n. A performance measure for rocket propellants that is equal to units of thrust per unit weight of propellant consumed per unit time. Also called specific thrust specific performance (spī-sīf'ik pər-fôr'məns) n. Law. The performance of a contract as specified in its terms.

specific resistance (spī-sīf'ik rī-zīs'təns) n. Electricity. Electrical resistivity.

specific thrust (spī-sīf'ik thrüst) n. See specific impulse.

spec·i·fy (spēs'ə-fī') v. tr. spec·i·fied, spec·i·fy·ing, spec·i·fies. 1. To state explicitly or in detail: specified the amount needed. 2. To include in a specification. 3. To state as a condition: specified that they be included in the will. [Middle English specifien, from Old French specifier, from Late Latin specificāre, from specificus, specific. See SPECIFIC.] —spec'i-fi'er n.

spec·i·men (spēs'ə-mən) n. Abbr. sp. 1. An individual, an item, or a part representative of a class, genus, or whole. See Synonyms at example. 2. A sample, as of tissue, blood, or urine, used for analysis and diagnosis. 3. Informal. An individual; a person: a disagreeable specimen. [Latin, example, from specere, to look at. See spek- in Appendix.]

spe·ci·ous (spē'shəs) adj. 1. Having the ring of truth or plausibility but actually fallacious: a specious argument. 2. Deceptively attractive. [Middle English, attractive, from Latin speciōsus, from speciēs, appearance, from specere, to look at. See spek- in Appendix.] —spe'ci·ous·ly adv. —spe'ci·os'i·ty (-shē-ōs'ī-tē), spe'ci·ous·ness (-shəs-nīs) n.

USAGE NOTE: A specious argument is not simply a false one but one that has the ring of truth. Those aware of the specialized use of the word may therefore sense a certain contradiction in hearing an argument described as obviously specious or specious on the face of things; if the fallaciousness is apparent, the argument was probably not plausible-sounding to begin with.

speck (spĕk) n. 1. A small spot, mark, or discoloration. 2. A tiny amount; a bit: not a speck of truth in her story. — v. tr. specked, speck·ing, specks. To mark with specks. [Middle English specke, from Old English specca.]

speck·le (spĕk'ləl) n. A speck or small spot, especially a natural dot of color on skin, plumage, or foliage. [Middle English spakle.] —speck'le v.

speck·led (spĕk'əld) adj. 1. Dotted or covered with speckles, especially flecked with small spots of contrasting color. 2. Of a mixed character; motley.

speckled trout (spĕk'əld trout) n. See brook trout.

specs also specks (spĕks) pl.n. Informal. Eyeglasses; spectacles.

spec·ta·cle (spĕk'tə-kəl) n. 1. a. Something that can be seen or viewed, especially something of a remarkable or impressive nature. b. A public performance or display, especially one on a large or lavish scale. c. A regrettable public display, as of bad behavior: drank too much and made a spectacle of himself.

2. spectacles. a. A pair of eyeglasses. b. Something resembling eyeglasses in shape or suggesting them in function. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin spectāculum, from spectāre, to watch, frequentative of specere, to look at. See spek- in Appendix.]

spec·ta·cled (spĕk'tə-kəld) adj. 1. Wearing spectacles. 2. Having markings suggesting spectacles. Used of animals.

spec·tac·u·lar (spĕk-tāk'yə-lər) adj. Of the nature of a spectacle; impressive or sensational. — n. Something that is spectacular, as: a. A single dramatic production of unusual length or lavishness. b. An elaborate display.

—spec·tac'·u·lar'i·ty (-lār'ī-tē) n. —spec·tac'·u·lar·ly adv.

spec·tate (spĕk'tāt) v. intr. spec·tat·ed, spec·tat·ing, spec·tates. Sports. To attend (a horserace or other sporting event, for example) as a spectator. [Back-formation from SPECTATOR.]

spec·ta·tor (spĕk'tā'tər) n. An observer of an event. [Latin spectātor, from spectāre, to watch. See SPECTACLE.] —spec'ta·to'ri·al (-tə-tōr'ē-əl, -tōr'-) adj.
—spec'ta·tor·ship' n.

spec·ter (spĕk'tər) n. 1. A ghostly apparition; a phantom. 2. A haunting or disturbing image or prospect: the terrible specter of nuclear war. [French spectre, from Latin spectrum, appearance, apparition. See SPECTRUM.]

spec·ti·no·my·cin (spĕk'tə-nō-mī'sīn) n. A broad-spectrum antibiotic, $C_{14}H_{24}N_2O_7$, obtained from a species of gram-negative bacteria (Streptomyces spectabilis) or produced synthetically, used especially in the treatment of penicillin-resistant gonorrhea. [New Latin : spect(abilis), species name (from Latin, visible, from spectāre, to watch); see SPECTACLE + (ACT)INOMYCIN.]

spec·tra (spĕk'trə) n. A plural of spectrum.

spec·tral (spĕk'trəl) adj. 1. Of or resembling a specter; ghostly. 2. Of, relating to, or produced by a spectrum. —spec·tral'i·ty (-trāl'ī-tē), spec'tral·ness (-trəl-nīs) n. —spec'tral·ly adv.

spectral line (spĕk'trəl līn) n. An isolated bright or dark line in a spectrum produced by emission or absorption of light of a single wavelength.

spec·tre (spĕk'tər) n. Chiefly British. Variant of specter.

spec·trin (spĕk'trīn) n. A protein of high molecular weight that is a major component of the membrane of red blood cells. [SPECT(E)R (so called because a red blood cell without hemoglobin is called a ghost) + -IN.]

spectro- pref. Spectrum: spectrograph. [From SPECTRUM.]

spec·tro·gram (spĕk'trə-grām') n. A graphic or photographic representation of a spectrum.

spec·tro·graph (spĕk'trə-grăf') n. 1. A spectroscope equipped to photograph or otherwise record spectra. 2. A spectrogram. —spec'tro-graph'ic adj.

—spec'tro-graph'i-cal-ly adv. —spec-trog'ra-phy (-trŏg'rə-fē) n.

spec·tro·he·li·o·gram (spĕk'trō-hē'lē-ə-grăm') n. A photograph of the sun taken in a narrow wavelength band centered on a selected wavelength.

spec·tro·he·li·o·graph (spĕk'trō-hē'lē-ə-grăf') n. An instrument used to make spectroheliograms. —spec'tro·he'li·o·graph'ic adj.

—spec'tro·he'li·og'ra-phy (-ŏg'rə-fē) n.

spec·tro·he·li·o·scope (spĕk'trō-hē'lē-ə-skŏp') n. An instrument used to observe solar radiation directly. —spec'tro·he'li·o·scop'ic (-skŏp'ĭk) adj.

spec·trom·e·ter (spĕk-trŏm'ĭ-tər) n. A spectroscope equipped with scales for measuring wavelengths or indexes of refraction. —spec'tro·met'ric (-trə-mĕt'rĭk) adj. —spec·trom'e·try n.

spec·tro·pho·tom·e·ter (spĕk'trō-fŏ-tŏm'ĭ-tər) n. Physics. An instrument used to determine the intensity of various wavelengths in a spectrum of light.

—spec'tro·pho'to·met'ric (-fŏ'tə-mĕt'rĭk) adj. —spec'tro·pho·tom'e·try n.

spec·tro·scope (spĕk'trə-skŏp') n. An instrument for producing and observing spectra. —spec'tro·scop'ic (-skŏp'ĭk), spec'tro·scop'i·cal (-ĭ-kəl) adj.

—spec'tro·scop'i·cal-ly adv.

spectroscopic analysis (spĕk'trə-skŏp'ĭk ə-năl'ĭ-sĭs) n. Analysis of a spectrum to determine characteristics of its source; for example, analysis of the optical spectrum of an incandescent body to determine its composition or motion.

spectroscopic binary (spĕk'trə-skŏp'ĭk bĭ'nə-rē) n. A binary star system that is identified by periodically shifting lines in its spectrum.

spec·tros·co·py (spĕk-trŏs'kə-pē) n. pl. spec·tros·co·pies. Study of spectra, especially experimental observation of optical spectra. —spec·tros'co·pist n.

spec·trum (spĕk'trəm) n. pl. spec·tra (-trə) or spec·trums. 1. Physics. The distribution of a characteristic of a physical system or phenomenon, especially:
a. The distribution of energy emitted by a radiant source, as by an incandescent body, arranged in order of wavelengths. b. The distribution of atomic or subatomic particles in a system, as in a magnetically resolved molecular beam, arranged in order of masses. 2. A graphic or photographic representation of such a distribution. 3. a. A range of values of a quantity or set of related quantities. b. A broad sequence or range of related qualities, ideas, or activities: the whole spectrum of 20th-century thought. [Latin, appearance, from specere, to look at. See spek- in Appendix.]

spec·u·la (spĕk'yə-lə) n. A plural of speculum.

spec·u·lar (spĕk'yə-lər) adj. Of, resembling, or produced by a mirror or speculum. —spec'u·lar-ly adv.

spec·u·late (spĕk'yə-lāt') v. spec·u·lat·ed, spec·u·lat·ing, spec·u·lates.

— v. intr. 1. To meditate on a subject; reflect. 2. To engage in a course of reasoning often based on inconclusive evidence. See Synonyms at conjecture. See Synonyms at think. 3. To engage in the buying or selling of a commodity with an element of risk on the chance of profit. — v. tr. To assume to be true without conclusive evidence: speculated that high cholesterol was a contributing factor to the patient's health problems. [Latin speculārī, speculāt-, to observe, from specula, watchtower, from specere, to look at. See spek- in Appendix.]

spec·u·la·tion (spĕk'yə-lā'shən) n. Abbr. spec. 1. a. Contemplation or consideration of a subject; meditation. b. A conclusion, an opinion, or a theory reached by conjecture. c. Reasoning based on inconclusive evidence; conjecture or supposition. 2. a. Engagement in risky business transactions on the chance of quick or considerable profit. b. A commercial or financial transaction involving speculation.

spec·u·la·tive (spĕk'yə-lə-tīv, -lā'-) adj. 1. Of, characterized by, or based upon contemplative speculation. See Synonyms at theoretical. 2. a. Given to conjecture or speculation. b. Marked by inquisitive interest: raised a speculative eyebrow. 3. a. Engaging in, given to, or involving financial speculation: speculative brokers; speculative stocks. b. Spent in speculation: speculative funds. c. Involving chance; risky: speculative business enterprises. —spec'u·la·tive·ly adv. —spec'u·la·tive·ness n.

spec·u·la·tor (spĕk'yə-lā'tər) n. One that speculates: a commodities speculator; a speculator regarding the future turn of events.

spec·u·lum (spĕk'yə-ləm) n. pl. spec·u·la (-lə) or spec·u·lums. 1. A mirror or polished metal plate used as a reflector in optical instruments. 2. An instrument for dilating the opening of a body cavity for medical examination. 3. Zoology. a. A bright, often iridescent patch of color on the wings of certain birds, especially ducks. b. A transparent spot in the wings of some butterflies or moths. [Middle English, surgical speculum, from Latin, mirror, from specere, to look at. See spek- in Appendix.]

sped (spĕd) v. A past tense and a past participle of speed.

speech (spĕch) n. 1. a. The faculty or act of speaking. b. The faculty or act of expressing or describing thoughts, feelings, or perceptions by the articulation of words. 2. Something spoken; an utterance. 3. Vocal communication; conversation. 4. a. A talk or public address: "The best impromptu speeches are the ones written well in advance" (Ruth Gordon). b. A printed copy of such an address. 5. One's habitual manner or style of speaking. 6. The language or dialect of a nation or region: American speech. 7. The sounding of a musical instrument. 8. The study of oral communication, speech sounds, and vocal physiology. 9. Archaic. Rumor. [Middle English speche, from Old English spræc, spræc.] speech community (spēch kə-myōō'nī-tē) n. A group of speakers, whether located in one area or scattered, who recognize the same language or dialect of a language as a standard.

speech-i-fy (spē'chə-fī') v. intr. speech-i-fied, speech-i-fy-ing, speech-i-fies. To give a speech: "In Washington, cabinet secretaries pose and speechify" (Jonathan Alter). —speech/i-fi'er n.

speech-less (spēch'lis) adj. 1. Lacking the faculty of speech. 2. Temporarily unable to speak, as through astonishment. See Synonyms at dumb.

3. Refraining from speech; silent. 4. Unexpressed or inexpressible in words: speechless admiration. —speech/less-ly adv. —speech/less-ness n.

speech-mak-er (spēch'mā'kər) n. One who makes a speech. —speech/mak'ing n.

speech pathology (spēch pǎ-thōl'ə-jē) n. The study of speech defects and disorders such as stuttering and dysphasia. —speech pathologist n.

speech therapy (spēch thēr'ə-pē) n. Treatment of speech defects and disorders, especially through use of exercises and audio-visual aids that develop new speech habits. —speech therapist n.

speech-writ-er (spēch'ri'tər) n. One who writes speeches for others, especially as a profession. —speech/writ'ing n.

speed (spēd) n. 1. Physics. The rate or a measure of the rate of motion, especially: a. Distance traveled divided by the time of travel. b. The limit of this quotient as the time of travel becomes vanishingly small; the first derivative of distance with respect to time. c. The magnitude of a velocity. 2. Swiftness of action. 3. a. The act of moving rapidly. b. The state of being in rapid motion; rapidity. 4. A transmission gear or set of gears in a motor vehicle. 5. a. A numerical expression of the sensitivity of a photographic film, plate, or paper to light. b. The capacity of a lens to accumulate light at an appropriate aperture. c. The length of time required or permitted for a camera shutter to open and admit light. 6. Slang. Amphetamine. 7. Slang. One that suits or appeals to a person's inclinations, skills, or character: Living in a large city is not my speed.

8. Archaic. Prosperity; luck. — v. sped (spēd) or speed-ed, speed-ing, speeds. — v. tr. 1. To cause to go, move, or proceed quickly; hasten. 2. To increase the speed or rate of; accelerate: speed up a car; sped production. 3. To wish Godspeed to. 4. To further, promote, or expedite (a legal action, for example). 5. Archaic. To help to succeed or prosper; aid. — v. intr. 1. a. To go, move, or proceed quickly: sped to the rescue. b. To drive at a speed exceeding a legal limit: was speeding on the freeway. 2. To pass quickly: The days sped by. The months have sped along. 3. To move, work, or happen at a faster rate; accelerate: His pulse speeded up. 4. Archaic. a. To prove successful; prosper. b. To get along in a specified manner; fare. —idiom. up to speed. 1. a. Operating at maximum speed. b. Producing something or performing at an acceptable rate or level. 2. Informal. Fully informed of or conversant with: I'm not up to speed on these issues yet. [Middle English spede, from Old English spēd, success, swiftness. See spē- in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: speed, hurry, hasten, quicken, accelerate, precipitate. These verbs mean to proceed or cause to proceed rapidly or more rapidly. Speed refers to swift motion or action: The train sped through the countryside. Postal workers labored overtime to speed delivery of the Christmas mail. Hurry implies a markedly faster rate than usual, often with concomitant confusion or commotion: If you don't hurry, you'll miss the plane. Don't let anyone hurry you into making a decision you'll regret later. Hasten suggests urgency and often eager or rash swiftness: I hasten to respond to your invitation. Put the hot broth in the refrigerator for an hour to hasten cooling. Quicken and especially accelerate refer to increase in rate of activity, growth, or progress: The dancer's breathing quickened as she approached the end of her solo. The runner quickened his pace as he drew near to the finish line. Despite efforts to eradicate it, corruption persists, though it doesn't accelerate. Heat greatly accelerates the deterioration of perishable foods. Precipitate implies suddenness or impetuosity that often causes something to happen abruptly or prematurely: The mere mention of the issue precipitated an outburst of indignation during the meeting. See also Synonyms at haste

WORD HISTORY: The fable of the tortoise and the hare teaches us that speed does not always spell success. Historically in English, however, it does: the Old English word spēd, from which our word speed is descended, originally meant “prosperity, successful outcome, ability, or quickness.” A corresponding verb, spēdan, in Modern English the verb speed, meant “to succeed, prosper, or achieve a goal”; and an adjective, spēdig, the ancestor of our word speedy, meant “wealthy, powerful.” Except for archaic uses the words today relate only to the general sense of “velocity.” The meaning “success” is retained chiefly in the compound God-speed, a noun formed from the phrase meaning “God prosper you.”

speed·ball (spēd'ból') n. 1. Sports. A game resembling soccer but differing mainly in that a ball caught on the fly may be passed with the hands and points may be scored by a forward pass over the goal line. 2. Slang. An intravenous dose of cocaine mixed with heroin or an amphetamine.

speed·boat (spēd'bōt') n. Nautical. A fast motorboat.

speed·boat·ing (spēd'bō'tīng) n. Nautical. The act or sport of operating a speedboat. —speed/boat'er n.

speed brake (spēd brāk) n. A flap on an aircraft for decreasing speed while in flight in preparation for landing.

- speed bump (spēd būmp) n. An artificial ridge set crosswise into the surface of a street, parking lot, or driveway to make the operators of vehicles decrease speed.
- speed·er (spē'dər) n. One that speeds, especially a driver who exceeds a legal or safe speed.
- speed freak (spēd frēk) n. Slang. A habitual user of stimulant drugs, especially amphetamines or methamphetamine.
- speed·ing (spē'dĩng) adj. Moving with speed. — n. The act or an instance of driving especially a motor vehicle faster than is allowed by law.
- speed limit (spēd lĩm'ĩt) n. The maximum speed legally permitted on a given stretch of road.
- speed·om·e·ter (spĩ-dõm'ĩ-tər, spē-) n. 1. An instrument for indicating speed. 2. a. An instrument for indicating distance traveled as well as rate of speed. b. An odometer.
- speed-read (spēd'rēd') v. speed--read (-rēd'), speed--read·ing, speed·reads. — v. tr. To read (a book, newspaper, or magazine, for example) by means of speed-reading. — v. intr. To practice or engage in speed-reading. —speed'/read'er n.
- speed-read·ing (spēd'rē'dĩng) n. A method of reading rapidly by assimilating several words or phrases at a glance or by skimming.
- speed shop (spēd shõp) n. Slang. An automotive shop that caters to hot rodders.
- speed skate (spēd skāt) n. Sports. An ice skate for racing, fitted with a long blade that extends beyond the heel and toe of the sole of the boot. Also called rac·ing skate
- speed skat·ing (spēd skā'tĩng) n. Sports. Competitive racing on speed skates, usually around an oval course. —speed skater n.
- speed·ster (spēd'stər) n. 1. One who drives very fast. 2. A fast car.
- speed trap (spēd trãp) n. Police officers or electronic devices concealed and deployed on a stretch of road to catch speeding drivers.
- speed·up (spēd'ũp') n. 1. An increase in speed; acceleration. 2. A required acceleration of work or production without an increase in pay.
- speed walking (spēd wõ'kĩng) n. Sports. See race walking.
- speed·way (spēd'wā') n. 1. Sports. A course for automobile or motorcycle racing. 2. A road designed for fast-moving traffic; an expressway.
- Speed·way (spēd'wā') A town of central Indiana west of Indianapolis. It is the site of the annual Indianapolis 500 auto race. Population, 12,641.
- speed·well (spēd'wě'l') n. Any of various plants of the genus Veronica, having opposite leaves and clusters of small, usually blue flowers.
- speed·writ·ing (spēd'wĩ'tĩng) n. A form of shorthand that uses letters of the alphabet instead of symbols. —speed'/writ'er n.

speed·y (spē'dē) adj. speed·i·er, speed·i·est. 1. Characterized by rapid motion; swift. 2. Accomplished or arrived at without delay; prompt. See Synonyms at fast¹. —speed'i·ly adv. —speed'i·ness n.

Speer (spîr, shpâr), Albert. 1905-1981. German architect and Nazi politician. He was Hitler's personal architect (1934-1945) and minister of armaments (1942-1945).

speiss (spîs) n. An arsenic compound or a mixture of arsenic compounds resulting from the smelting of iron, cobalt, nickel, and copper ores. [German Speise, food, speiss, from Middle High German spîse, food, from Old High German spîsa, probably from Medieval Latin spēnsa, storehouse, or spēsa, provisions both from Latin expēnsa (pecūnia), (money) paid out. See EXPENSE.]

Speke (spēk), John Hanning. 1827-1864. British explorer in Africa. He and Sir Richard Burton were the first Europeans to explore Lake Tanganyika (1858).

spe·le·ol·o·gy (spē'lē-ōl'ə-jē) n. 1. The scientific study of caves.

2. Exploration of caves. [French spéléologie: Latin spēlēum, cave (from Greek spēlaion) + -logie, -logy.] —spe'le·o·log'i·cal (ə-lōj'ī-kəl) adj.

—spe'le·ol'o·gist n.

spell¹ (spĕl) v. spelled or spelt (spĕlt), spell·ing, spells. — v. tr. 1. To name or write in order the letters constituting (a word or part of a word). 2. To constitute the letters of (a word): These letters spell animal. 3. To add up to; signify: Their unwise investment could spell financial ruin. — v. intr. To form words by means of letters. —phrasal verbs. spell down. To defeat in a spelling bee. spell out. 2. To make perfectly clear and understandable: asked him to spell out his objectives. 3. To read slowly and laboriously. 4. To puzzle out; comprehend by study. [Middle English spellen, to read letter by letter, from Old French espeller (of Germanic origin), and from Old English spellian, to tell (from spell, discourse).]

spell² (spĕl) n. 1. a. A word or formula believed to have magic power. b. A bewitched state; a trance. 2. A compelling attraction; charm or fascination: the spell of the theater. — v. tr. spelled, spell·ing, spells. To put (someone) under a spell; bewitch. [Middle English, discourse, from Old English.]

spell³ (spĕl) n. 1. A short, indefinite period of time. 2. Informal. A period of weather of a particular kind: a dry spell. 3. a. One's turn at work. b. A period of work; a shift. 4. Australian. A period of rest. 5. Informal. A period of physical or mental disorder or distress: a dizzy spell. 6. Informal. A short distance. — v. spelled, spell·ing, spells. — v. tr. 1. To relieve (someone) from work temporarily by taking a turn. 2. To allow to rest a while. — v. intr. 1. To take turns working. 2. Australian. To rest for a time from an activity. [From Middle English spelen, to spare, from Old English spellian, to represent, substitute for.]

spell·bind (spĕl'bind') v. tr. spell·bound (-bound'), spell·bind·ing, spell·binds. To hold under or as if under a spell; enchant or fascinate. [Back-formation from SPELLBOUND.] —spell'bind'ing·ly adv.

spell·bind·er (spĕl'bīn'dər) n. One that holds others spellbound, especially an enthralling speaker or a particularly interesting book.

spell·bound (spĕl'bound') v. Past tense of spellbind. — adj. Entranced by or as if by a spell; fascinated.

spell·down (spĕl'doun') n. See spelling bee.

spell·er (spĕl'ər) n. 1. One who spells words: students who are good spellers.
2. An elementary textbook containing exercises that teach spelling.

spell·ing (spĕl'ing) n. Abbr. sp. 1. a. The forming of words with letters in an accepted order; orthography. b. The art or study of orthography. 2. The way in which a word is spelled.

spelling bee (spĕl'ing bē) n. A contest in which competitors are eliminated as they fail to spell a given word correctly. Also called spelledown Spell·man (spĕl'mən), Francis Joseph. 1889-1967. American prelate who was appointed archbishop of New York in 1939 and cardinal in 1946.

spelt¹ (spĕlt) n. A hardy wheat grown mostly in Europe. [Middle English, from Old English, from Late Latin spelta, probably of Germanic origin; akin to Middle Dutch spelte, wheat.]

spelt² (spĕlt) v. A past tense and a past participle of spell¹.

spel·ter (spĕl'tər) n. Zinc, especially in the form of ingots, slabs, or plates. [Probably of Dutch or Low German origin.]

spe·lunk·er (spī-lŭng'kər, spē'lŭng'-) n. One who explores and studies caves chiefly as a hobby. [From obsolete spelunk, cave, from Middle English, from Old French spelunque, from Latin spēlunca, from Greek spēlunx.] —spe'lunk'ing n.

Spe·mann (shpā'män'), Hans. 1869-1941. German zoologist and physiologist. He won a 1935 Nobel Prize for his discovery of the organizer effect in embryonic development.

spen·cer¹ (spĕn'sər) n. Nautical. A trysail. [Perhaps from the name Spencer.]

spen·cer² (spĕn'sər) n. 1. A short double-breasted overcoat worn by men in the early 19th century. 2. A close-fitting, waist-length jacket worn by women. [After George John Spencer, Second Earl Spencer (1758-1834).]

Spen·cer (spĕn'sər), Herbert. 1820-1903. British philosopher who attempted to apply the theory of evolution to philosophy and ethics in his series Synthetic Philosophy (1855-1893).

Spen·cer (spĕn'sər), Lilly Martin. 1822-1902. British-born American genre painter whose works often depict women in homemaking tasks such as food preparation and child care.

Spencer Gulf (spĕn'sər gŭlf) An inlet of the Indian Ocean off south-central Australia between the Eyre and Yorke peninsulas. It was discovered in 1802.

Spence-ri-an¹ (spĕn-sîr'ĕ-ən) adj. Of or relating to Herbert Spencer or his philosophy. — n. A follower of Herbert Spencer.

Spence-ri-an² (spĕn-sîr'ĕ-ən) adj. Of or relating to an ornate style of writing employing rounded letters slanted to the right. [After Platt Rogers Spencer (1800-1864), American handwriting expert.]

Spencer-ism (spĕn'sə-rîz'əm) also Spence-ri-an-ism (spĕn-sîr'ĕ-ə-nîz'əm) n. The system of logical positivism developed by Herbert Spencer, setting forth the idea that evolution is the passage from the simple, indefinite, and incoherent to the complex, definite, and coherent.

spend (spĕnd) v. spent (spĕnt), spend-ing, spends. — v. tr. 1. To use up or put out; expend: spent an hour each day exercising. 2. To pay out (money). 3. To wear out; exhaust: The storm finally spent itself. 4. To pass (time) in a specified manner or place: spent their vacation in Paris. 5. a. To throw away; squander: spent all their creative resources on futile projects. b. To give up (one's time or efforts, for example) to a cause; sacrifice. — v. intr. 1. To pay out or expend money. 2. To be exhausted or consumed. [Middle English spenden, partly from Old English -spendan (from Latin expēdere, to expend); see EXPEND, and partly from Old French despendre, to weigh out; see DISPENSE.] — spend/a-ble adj. — spend'er n.

SYNONYMS: spend, disburse, expend. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to pay or give out money or an equivalent in return for something”: spent five dollars for a movie ticket; disbursing funds from the corporate account; expending energy on a project.

ANTONYM: save

Spender (spĕn'dər), Sir Stephen Harold. 1909-1995. British writer whose poetry reflects personal emotional responses to social and political injustices. His works include the collection The Still Center (1939) and Generous Days (1971).

spending money (spĕn'dîng mŭn'ĕ) n. Cash for small personal needs.

spend-thrift (spĕnd'thrîft') n. One who spends money recklessly or wastefully. — adj. Wasteful or extravagant: spendthrift bureaucrats. [SPEND + THRIFT, accumulated wealth (obsolete).]

Spengler (spĕng'lər, -glər, shpĕng'-), Oswald. 1880-1936. German philosopher who argued that civilizations and cultures are subject to the same cycle of growth and decay as human beings. His major work is The Decline of the West (1918-1922).

Spenser (spĕn'sər), Edmund. 1552?-1599. English poet known chiefly for his allegorical epic romance The Faerie Queene (1590-1596). His other works include the pastoral Sheperdes Calendar (1579) and the lyrical marriage poem Epithalamion (1595). — Spense-ri-an (spĕn-sîr'ĕ-ən) adj.

Spenserian sonnet (spĕn-sîr'ĕ-ən sŏn'it) n. A sonnet form composed of three quatrains and a couplet in iambic pentameter with the rhyme scheme abab bcbc cdcd ee.

Spenserian stanza (spĕn-sîr'ĕ-ən stăn'zə) n. A stanza consisting of eight lines of iambic pentameter and a final alexandrine, rhymed ababbcbcc, first used by Edmund Spenser in The Faerie Queene.

spent (spĕnt) v. Past tense and past participle of spend. — adj. 1. Used up; consumed: a spent youth. 2. Having come to an end; passed: a spent era of opulence. 3. Depleted of energy, force, or strength; exhausted: At the end of the hot day the spent workers slept under a shady tree. 4. Nautical. Of or relating to a vessel at the end of a voyage, with fuel, stores, and water consumed and cargo discharged.

sperm¹ (spûrm) n. pl. sperm or sperms. 1. A male gamete or reproductive cell; a spermatozoon. 2. Semen. [Middle English sperme, semen, from Old French esperme, from Late Latin sperma, from Greek. See sper- in Appendix.] —sperm'ous adj.

sperm² (spûrm) n. A substance, such as spermaceti, associated with the sperm whale. [Short for SPERMACETI.]

sperm- pref. Variant of spermi-.

-sperm suff. Seed: endosperm. [Greek -spermos, from sperma, seed. See SPERM¹.]

sperma- pref. Variant of spermi-.

sper·ma·ce·ti (spûr'mă-sĕ'tĕ, -sĕt'ĕ) n. pl. sper·ma·ce·tis. A white, waxy substance consisting of various esters of fatty acids, obtained from the head of the sperm whale or another cetacean and used for making candles, ointments, and cosmetics. [Middle English, from Medieval Latin spermacētī: Late Latin sperma, semen; see SPERM¹ + Latin cētī, genitive of cētus, whale; see CETUS.]

sper·ma·go·ni·um also sper·mo·go·ni·um (spûr'mă-gŏ'nĕ-əm) *n. pl. sper·ma·go·ni·a (-nĕ-ə). Botany. A cup-shaped cavity or receptacle in which the spermatia of certain lichens and fungi are produced. [New Latin: sperma, sperm; see SPERM¹ + -gonium, seed, cell (from Greek gonos, seed); see GONO-.]*

sper·ma·ry (spûr'mă-rĕ) n. pl. sper·ma·ries. An organ or a gland in which male gametes are formed, especially in invertebrate animals. [New Latin spermārium, from Late Latin sperma, semen. See SPERM¹.]

spermat- pref. Variant of spermato-.

sper·ma·tan·gi·um (spûr'mă-tănjĕ-əm) *n. pl. sper·ma·tan·gi·a (-jĕ-ə). A structure that produces spermatia in red algae. [New Latin: SPERMAT(IUM) + -angium, vessel (from Greek angeion).]*

sper·ma·the·ca (spûr'mă-thĕ'kə) n. A receptacle in the reproductive tracts of certain female invertebrates, especially insects, in which spermatozoa are received and stored until needed to fertilize the ova. [Late Latin sperma, semen; see SPERM¹ + THECA.] —sper'ma·the'cal adj.

sper·ma·ti·a (spər-mā'shē-ə, -shə) n. Plural of spermatium.

sper·mat·ic (spər-măt'ĭk) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or resembling sperm: a spermatonic substance; a spermatonic filament. 2. Containing, conveying, or producing sperm: the spermatonic duct. 3. Of or relating to a spermary.

spermatonic cord (spər-măt'ĭk kōrd) n. A cordlike structure, consisting of the vas deferens and its accompanying arteries, veins, nerves, and lymphatic vessels, that passes from the abdominal cavity through the inguinal canal down into the scrotum to the back of the testicle.

sper·ma·tid (spûr'mə-tĭd) n. Any of the four haploid cells formed by meiosis in a male organism that develop into spermatozoa without further division.

sper·ma·ti·um (spər-mā'shē-əm, -shəm) n. pl. sper·ma·ti·a (-shē-ə, -shə). A nonmotile cell in red algae and certain lichens and fungi that functions as a male gamete. [New Latin, from Greek spermaton, diminutive of sperma, spermat-, semen. See SPERM¹.] —sper·ma'tial (-shəl) adj.

spermat- or spermat- pref. 1. Seed: spermatophyte. 2. a. Sperm: spermatonic. b. Spermatozoon: spermatophore. [Greek, from sperma, spermat-, seed. See SPERM¹.]

sper·mat·o·cide (spər-măt'ə-sĭd', spûr'mə-tə-) n. See spermiocide.

—sper·mat'ō·cid'al (-sĭd'l) adj.

sper·mat·o·cyte (spər-măt'ə-sīt', spûr'mə-tə-) n. A diploid cell that undergoes meiosis to form four spermatids. A primary spermatocyte divides into two secondary spermatocytes, which in turn divide to form the spermatids.

sper·mat·o·gen·e·sis (spər-măt'ə-jĕn'ĭ-sĭs, spûr'mə-tə-) n. Formation and development of spermatozoa by meiosis and spermiogenesis.

—sper·mat'ō·ge·net'ic (-jə-nĕt'ĭk), sper·mat'ō·gen'ic (-jĕn'ĭk) adj.

sper·mat·o·go·ni·um (spər-măt'ə-gō'nĕ-əm, spûr'mə-tə-) n. pl.

sper·mat·o·go·ni·a (-nĕ-ə). Any of the cells of the gonads in male organisms that are the progenitors of spermatocytes. [New Latin : SPERMATO- + -gonium, seed; see SPERMAGONIUM.] —sper·mat'ō·go'ni·al (-nĕ-əl) adj.

sper·mat·o·phore (spər-măt'ə-fôr', -fôr', spûr'mə-tə-) n. A capsule or compact mass of spermatozoa extruded by the males of certain invertebrates and primitive vertebrates and directly transferred to the reproductive parts of the female. —sper'ma·toph'ō·ral (spûr'mə-tōf'ər-əl) adj.

sper·mat·o·phyte (spər-măt'ə-fīt', spûr'mə-tə-) n. A seed-bearing plant, such as a conifer or a flowering plant. —sper·mat'ō·phyt'ic (-fīt'ĭk) adj.

sper·mat·or·rhe·a also sper·mat·or·rhoe·a (spər-măt'ə-rĕ'ə, spûr'mə-tə-) n. Involuntary discharge of semen without orgasm.

sper·mat·o·zo·a (spər-măt'ə-zō'ə, spûr'mə-tə-) n. Plural of spermatozoon.

sper·mat·o·zo·id (spər-măt'ə-zō'ĭd, spûr'mə-tə-) n. A ciliated male gamete produced in an antheridium. [SPERMATOZO(ON) + -ID.]

sper·mat·o·zo·on (spər-măt'ə-zō'ŏn', -ən, spûr'mə-tə-) n. pl.

sper·mat·o·zo·a (-zō'ə). The mature fertilizing gamete of a male organism, usually consisting of a round or cylindrical nucleated cell, a short neck, and a thin, motile tail. Also called sperm cell, zoosperm. —sper·mat'·o·zo'al (-zō'əl), sper·mat'·o·zo'an (-zō'ən), sper·mat'·o·zo'ic (-zō'ik) adj.

spermi- or sperma- or spermo- or sperm- pref. 1. Seed: spermophile.

2. Sperm: spermine. [Greek spermo-, sperm-, from sperma, seed. See SPERM¹.]

sper·mi·cide (spûr'mī-sīd') n. An agent that kills spermatozoa, especially one used as a contraceptive. Also called spermatocide —sper'mi·cid'al (-sīd'l) adj.

sper·mi·dine (spûr'mī-dēn') n. A polyamine compound, C₇H₁₉N₃, found in ribosomes and living tissues and having various metabolic functions. It was originally isolated from semen. [SPERM(I)- + -ID(E) + -INE².]

sper·mine (spûr'mēn') n. A crystalline polyamine compound, C₁₀H₂₆N₄, present in ribosomes and found widely in living tissues along with spermidine. It was originally isolated from semen.

sper·mi·o·gen·e·sis (spûr'mē-ō-jěn'ī-sīs) n. Transformation of a spermatid into a spermatozoon. [New Latin spermiium, spermatozoon (probably from Late Latin sperma, semen); see SPERM¹ + -GENESIS.] —sper'mi·o·gen·et'ic (-jə-nēt'ik) adj.

spermo- pref. Variant of spermi-.

sper·mo·go·ni·um (spûr'mə-gō'nē-əm) n. Botany. Variant of spermagonium.

sperm oil (spûrm oil) n. A yellow, waxy oil obtained from the head of the sperm whale and used as an industrial lubricant.

sperm·o·phile (spûr'mə-fīl') n. The ground squirrel.

sperm whale (spûrm hwāl) n. Any of several large, toothed whales of the family Physeteridae, especially Physeter catodon or P. macrocephalus, of tropical and temperate oceans, whose massive head has a cavity containing sperm oil and spermaceti and whose long intestines often contain ambergris. Also called cachalot

Sper·ry (spër'ē), Elmer Ambrose. 1860-1930. American engineer and inventor of numerous electrical devices, including the gyrocompass, a nonmagnetic navigational aid (1910).

Sper·ry (spër'ē), Roger Wolcott. Born 1913. American neurobiologist. He shared a 1981 Nobel Prize for studies of the organization and functioning of the brain.

sper·ry·lite (spër'ī-līt') n. A white crystalline platinum mineral, essentially PtAs₂. [After Francis L. Sperry, 19th-century Canadian chemist.]

spes·sar·tite (spës'ər-tīt') also spes·sar·tine (-tēn') n. A red to brownish-red mineral of the garnet group, Mn₃Al₂(SiO₄)₃. [French, after Spessart, a hilly area of central Germany.]

spew (spyōō) v. spewed, spew-ing, spews. — v. tr. 1. To send or force out in or as if in a stream; eject forcefully or in large amounts: a volcano that spewed molten lava; spewed invective at his opponent. 2. To vomit or otherwise cast out through the mouth. — v. intr. 1. To flow or gush forth: Water was spewing from the hydrant. 2. To vomit. — n. Something spewed. [Middle English spewen, from Old English spīwan.] —spew'er n.

Spey·er (spīr, spī'ər, shpī'ər) also Spies (spīrz) A city of southwest West Germany on the Rhine River. It became a free imperial city in 1111. Population, 43,748.

SPF also spf abbr. Sun protection factor.

sp gr abbr. Specific gravity.

sphag-num (sfäg'nəm) n. Any of various pale or ashy mosses of the genus Sphagnum, the decomposed remains of which form peat. [New Latin, from Latin sphagnos, a kind of moss, from Greek, a kind of shrub.] —sphag'nous adj.

sphal-er-ite (sfäl'ə-rīt') n. The primary ore of zinc, occurring in usually yellow-brown or brownish-black crystals or cleavage masses, essentially ZnS with some cadmium, iron, and manganese. Also called blende, zinc blende. [Greek sphaleros, slippery, deceitful (from sphallein, to trip, from its being easily mistaken for galena) + -ITE¹.]

sphen- pref. Variant of spheno-.

sphene (sfēn) n. A titanium accessory mineral in some granite and metamorphic rocks, CaTiSiO₅, occurring in usually small brown or yellow crystals and sometimes used as a gemstone. Also called titanite [French sphène, from Greek sphēn, wedge.]

sphē-nic (sfē'nīk) adj. Shaped like a wedge.

spheno- or sphen- pref. Wedge; wedge-shaped: sphenodon. [Greek sphēno-, from sphēn, wedge.]

sphē-no-don (sfē'nə-dŏn', sfēn'ə-) n. See tuatara.

sphē-no-gram (sfē'nə-grām', sfēn'ə-) n. A cuneiform character.

sphē-noid (sfē'noid') n. The sphenoid bone. — adj. 1. Wedge-shaped.

2. Of or relating to the sphenoid bone. —sphē-noi'dal (-noid'l) adj.

sphenoid bone (sfē'noid' bŏn) n. A compound bone with winglike processes, situated at the base of the skull.

spher- pref. Variant of sphero-.

spher-al (sfīr'əl) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or having the shape of a sphere; spherical. 2. Symmetrical.

sphere (sfīr) n. 1. Mathematics. A three-dimensional surface, all points of which are equidistant from a fixed point. 2. A spherical object or figure. 3. A celestial body, such as a planet or star. 4. The sky, appearing as a hemisphere to an observer: the sphere of the heavens. 5. Any of a series of concentric, transparent, revolving globes that together were once thought to contain the moon, sun, planets, and stars. 6. The extent of a person's knowledge, interests, or social position. 7. An area of power, control, or influence; domain. See Synonyms at field. — v. tr. sphered, spher-ing, spheres. 1. To form into a sphere. 2. To put in or within a sphere. 3. To surround or encompass. [Middle English spere, from Old French espere, from Latin sphaera, from Greek sphaira.] —spher-ic/i-ty (sfîr-îs'î-tē) n.

sphere of influence (sfîr üv ïn'flōō-əns) n. pl. spheres of influence. A territorial area over which political or economic influence is wielded by one nation.

spher-i-cal (sfîr'î-kəl, sfēr'-) also spher-ic (-îk) adj. 1. a. Having the shape of a sphere; globular. b. Having a shape approximating that of a sphere. 2. Of or relating to a sphere. 3. Of or relating to celestial bodies. —spher'i-cal-ly adv. —spher'i-cal-ness n.

spherical aberration (sfîr'î-kəl äb'ə-rā'shən) n. A blurred image that occurs when light from the margin of a lens or mirror with a spherical surface comes to a shorter focus than light from the central portion.

spherical angle (sfîr'î-kəl äng'gəl) n. Mathematics. The angle formed at the intersection of the arcs of two great circles.

spher-i-cal-co-or-di-nate system (sfîr'î-kəl-kō-ôr'dn-ît sîs'təm, -āt', sfēr'-) n. Mathematics. A three-dimensional system for locating points in space by means of a radius vector and two angles measured from the center of a sphere with respect to two arbitrary, fixed, perpendicular directions.

spherical excess (sfîr'î-kəl îk-sēs') n. Mathematics. The difference between the sum of the angles of a spherical triangle and the sum of the angles of a plane triangle.

spherical geometry (sfîr'î-kəl jē-ōm'î-trē) n. Mathematics. The geometry of circles, angles, and figures on the surface of a sphere.

spherical polygon (sfîr'î-kəl pöl'ē-gōn') n. A part of a spherical surface that is bounded by arcs of three or more great circles.

spherical triangle (sfîr'î-kəl trî'äng'gəl) n. A triangle the three sides of which are arcs of great circles.

spherical trigonometry (sfîr'î-kəl trîg'ə-nōm'î-trē) n. Mathematics. The modified form of trigonometry applied to spherical triangles.

spher-ics¹ (sfîr'îks, sfēr'-) n. (used with a sing. verb). Mathematics. 1. Spherical geometry. 2. Spherical trigonometry.

spher-ics² (sfîr'îks, sfēr'-) n. Variant of sferics.

sphero- or spher- pref. Sphere: spherometer. [Latin sphaero-, from Greek sphairo-, from sphaira, sphere.]

spher-oid (sfîr'oid', sfēr'-) n. A body that is shaped like a sphere but is not perfectly round, especially an ellipsoid that is generated by revolving an ellipse around one of its axes. —spheroid (-oid/əl), spheroidal (-oi/dīk) adj.

—spheroidal adv. —spheroidal (-dis/i-tē) n.

spherometer (sfī-rōm'ī-tər) n. An instrument for measuring the curvature of a surface, as of a sphere or cylinder.

spheroplast (sfīr'ə-plāst', sfēr'-) n. A bacterial cell whose cell wall is absent or deficient, causing it to have a spherical form.

spherule (sfīr'ōol, -yōol, sfēr'-) n. A miniature sphere; a globule. [Late Latin sphaerula, diminutive of Latin sphaera, ball. See SPHERE.] —spherular (sfīr'yə-lər, sfēr'-) adj.

spherulite (sfīr'yə-līt', -ə-līt', sfēr'-) n. A small, usually spheroid body consisting of radiating crystals, found in obsidian and other glassy lava rocks.

—spherulitic (-līt'ik) adj.

spherical (sfīr'ē) adj. spherical, spherical. 1. Of or relating to the celestial spheres. 2. Resembling a celestial body.

sphincter (sfīngk'tər) n. A ringlike muscle that normally maintains constriction of a body passage or orifice and that relaxes as required by normal physiological functioning. [Late Latin sphinctēr, from Greek sphinktēr, from sphingein, to bind tight.] —sphincteral adj.

sphinges (sfīn'jēz') n. A plural of sphinx.

sphingid (sfīn'jīd) n. A moth of the family Sphingidae; a hawk moth. — adj. Of or belonging to the family Sphingidae. [From New Latin Sphingidae, family name, from Sphinx, type genus, from Latin, sphinx. See SPHINX.]

sphingosine (sfīng'gə-sēn') n. A basic, long-chain, unsaturated amino alcohol, C₁₈H₃₇NO₂, found combined with lipids in the brain and in nerve tissue.

[Greek sphingos, genitive of sphinx, sphinx + -INE².]

sphinx (sfīngks) n. pl. sphinxes or sphinges (sfīn'jēz'). 1. Mythology. A figure in Egyptian myth having the body of a lion and the head of a man, ram, or hawk. 2. Greek Mythology. A winged creature having the head of a woman and the body of a lion, noted for killing those who could not answer its riddle. 3. A puzzling or mysterious person. [Middle English Spynx, from Latin Sphinx, from Greek.]

sphinx moth (sfīngks mōth) n. See hawk moth.

sphragistics (sfrə-jīs'tiks) n. (used with a sing. verb). The study of seals and signets. [French sphragistique, from Late Greek sphragistikos, of seals, from Greek sphragistos, stamped, sealed, from sphragis, seal.]

sp ht abbr. Specific heat.

sphygm- pref. Variant of sphygmo-.

sphygm- (sfīg'mik) adj. Physiology. Of or relating to the pulse.

sphygmo- or sphygm- pref. Pulse: sphygmograph. [Greek sphugmo-, from sphugmos, pulsation, from sphuzein, sphug-, to throb.]

sphyg·mo·gram (sfīg'mə-grām') n. The record or tracing produced by a sphygmograph.

sphyg·mo·graph (sfīg'mə-grāf') n. An instrument for graphically recording the form, strength, and variations of the arterial pulse. —sphyg'mo·graph'ic adj. —sphyg·mog'ra·phy (-mög'rə-fē) n.

sphyg·moid (sfīg'moid') adj. Physiology. Resembling a pulse.

sphyg·mo·ma·nom·e·ter (sfīg'mō-mə-nōm'ī-tər) also sphyg·mom·e·ter (sfīg-mōm'ī-tər) n. An instrument for measuring blood pressure in the arteries, especially one consisting of a pressure gauge and a rubber cuff that wraps around the upper arm and inflates to constrict the arteries.

—sphyg'mo·man'o·met'ric (-mān'ə-mēt'rik) adj.

—sphyg'mo·man'o·met'ri·cal·ly adv. —sphyg'mo·ma·nom'e·try n.

spic also spick (spīk) n. Offensive Slang. Used as a disparaging term for a Hispanic person. [Alteration of obsolete spig, a Mexican, short for spiggoty, perhaps from an accented pronunciation of (No) speak the (English).] spi·ca (spī'kə) *n. pl. spi·cae (-kē, -sē) or spi·cas. A bandage applied in overlapping opposite spirals to immobilize a digit or limb. [Latin spīca, ear of grain (from its shape).]*

Spi·ca (spī'kə) n. A spectroscopic binary star, 245 light-years from Earth, one of the brightest stars in the sky and the brightest star in the constellation Virgo. [Latin Spīca, from spīca, ear of grain.]

spi·cae (spī'kē, -sē) n. A plural of spica.

spic·and·span (spīk'ən-spän') adj. Variant of spick·and·span.

spi·cate (spī'kāt') adj. Borne in or forming a spike. [Latin spīcātus, from spīca, ear of grain.]

spic·ca·to (spī-kä'tō) Music. n. pl. spic·ca·tos. A technique of bowing in which the bow is made to bounce slightly from the string. — adj. Of or employing spiccato. [Italian, past participle of spiccare, to separate : s-, from (from Latin ex-); see EX- + piccare, to pierce, impale (from Vulgar Latin piccāre*); see *PICK*¹.]

spice (spīs) n. 1. a. Any of various pungent, aromatic plant substances, such as cinnamon or nutmeg, used to flavor foods or beverages. b. These substances considered as a group. 2. Something that adds zest or flavor. 3. A pungent aroma; a perfume. — v. tr. spiced, spic·ing, spic·es. 1. To season with spices. 2. To add zest or flavor to. [Middle English, from Old French espice, from Late Latin speciēs, wares, spices, from Latin, kind. See SPECIES.]

spice·ber·ry (spīs'bēr'ē) n. 1. An eastern Asian shrub (Ardisia crenata) having numerous, long-lasting, coral-red fleshy fruit. 2. Coralberry.

spice·bush (spīs'boōsh') n. An aromatic deciduous shrub (Lindera benzoin) of eastern North America, having clusters of early-blooming small yellow flowers.

spicebush swallowtail (spīs'böōsh' swōl'ō-tāl') n. A large swallowtail (Papilio troilus) of eastern North America that feeds on spicebushes, having dark forewings with yellow marginal spots and bluish-green hindwings.

Spice Islands (spīs ī'lændz) See Moluccas.

spic-er-y (spī'sə-rē) n. pl. spic-er-ies. 1. Spices considered as a group. 2. The aromatic or pungent quality of spices. 3. Archaic. A place where spices are stored.

spick (spīk) n. Offensive Slang. Variant of spic.

spick-and-span also spic-and-span (spīk'ən-spän') adj. 1. Immaculately clean; spotless. See Synonyms at neat¹. 2. Brand-new; fresh. [Short for obsolete spick and span-new : spick, spike (variant of SPIKE¹) + SPAN-NEW.]

spic-u-la¹ (spīk'yə-lə) n. Plural of spiculum.

spic-u-la² (spīk'yə-lə) n. Variant of spicule.

spic-u-lae (spīk'yə-lē) n. A plural of spicule.

spic-u-la-tion (spīk'yə-lā'shən) n. Formation into a spicule or spicules.

spic-ule (spīk'yōōl) also spic-u-la (-yə-lə) n. pl. spic-ules also spic-u-lae (-yə-lē). A small needlelike structure or part, such as one of the silicate or calcium carbonate processes supporting the soft tissue of certain invertebrates, especially sponges. [Latin spiculum. See SPICULUM.] —spic'u-lar (-yə-lər), spic'u-late (-yə-līt, -lāt') adj.

spic-u-lum (spīk'yə-ləm) n. pl. spic-u-la (-lə). A spicule or similar needlelike structure, such as a spine of an echinoderm or a capulatory organ in a nematode. [Latin spiculum, diminutive of spīca, point, ear of grain.]

spic-y (spī'sē) adj. spic-i-er, spic-i-est. 1. Having the flavor, aroma, or quality of spice. 2. Piquant; zesty: a spicy tomato sauce. 3. High-spirited; lively.

4. Slightly scandalous; risqué: a spicy Hollywood romance. —spic'i-ly adv.

—spic'i-ness n.

spi-der (spī'dər) n. 1. Any of numerous arachnids of the order Araneae, having a body divided into a cephalothorax bearing eight legs, two poison fangs, and two feelers and an unsegmented abdomen bearing several spinnerets that produce the silk used to make nests, cocoons, or webs for trapping insects. 2. One that resembles a spider, as in appearance, character, or movement. 3. New England & Upper Northern U.S. & South Atlantic U.S. See frying pan. See Regional note at frying pan. 4. A trivet. [Middle English spither, from Old English spīthra. See (s)pen- in Appendix.]

spider crab (spī'dər krāb) n. Any of various crabs, such as those of the genera Libinia and Macrocheira, having long legs and a relatively small triangular body.

spider flower (spī'dər flou'ər) n. See cleome.

spider lily (spī'dər līl'ē) n. 1. Any of various bulbous, lilylike tropical American plants of the genus Hymenocallis, having narrow leaves and umbels of white flowers. 2. See crinum.

spider mite (spī'dər mīt) n. See red spider.

spider monkey (spī'dər mŭng'kē) n. Any of several tropical American monkeys of the genus Ateles, having long legs and a long prehensile tail and lacking a thumb.

spi·der·wort (spī'dər-wŭrt', -wōrt') n. Any of various New World herbs of the genus Tradescantia, especially T. virginiana, having three-petaled blue or purple flowers with six hairy stamens. [Probably from its thin, hairy stamens.]

spi·der·y (spī'də-rē) adj. 1. a. Resembling a spider in form, characteristics, or behavior. b. Resembling a spider's web; very fine: spidery handwriting.

2. Infested with spiders.

spied (spīd) v. Past tense and past participle of spy.

spie·gel (spē'gəl) n. Spiegeleisen. [Short for SPIEGELEISEN.]

spie·gel·ei·sen (spē'gə-lī'zən) n. An alloy of iron containing approximately 15 percent manganese and small quantities of carbon and silicon, used in the Bessemer process. [German : Spiegel, mirror (from Middle High German spiegel, from Old High German spiagal, from Latin speculum); see SPECULUM + Eisen, iron (from Middle High German isen, from Old High German isan); see eis- in Appendix.]

spiel (spēl, shpēl) Informal. n. A lengthy, usually extravagant speech or argument intended to persuade: "I made my spiel about how I could add to this company" (Carl Icahn). — v. spieled, spiel-ing, spiels. — v. intr. tr. To talk or say (something) at length or extravagantly. [German, play, or Yiddish shpil both from Middle High German spil, from Old High German.] — spiel'er n.

Spiel·berg (spēl'bŭrg'), Steven. Born 1946. American film director whose works include Raiders of the Lost Ark (1981) and E.T. (1982).

spies (spīz) n. Plural of spy. — v. Third person singular present tense of spy.

spiff (spīf) Informal. v. tr. spiffed, spiff-ing, spiffs. To make attractive, stylish, or up-to-date: spiffed up the the old storefront. — n. Attractiveness or charm in appearance, dress, or manners: "He may need more than spiff to get him through the bad patches ahead" (James Wolcott). [Possibly from dialectal spiff, well-dressed.]

spiff·y (spīf'ē) Informal. adj. spiff-i-er, spiff-i-est. Smart in appearance or dress; stylish. — v. tr. spiff-ied, spiff-y-ing, spiff-ies. To make attractive, stylish, or up-to-date: spiffying up my wardrobe. [Possibly from dialectal spiff, dandified.] — spiff'i-ly adv. — spiff'i-ness n.

spig·ot (spīg'ət) n. 1. A faucet. 2. A wooden faucet placed in the bung hole of a cask. 3. The vent plug of a cask. [Middle English, perhaps from Old French espigot*, diminutive of Old Provençal espiga, ear of grain, from Latin spīca.]

spike¹ (spīk) n. 1. a. A long, thick, sharp-pointed piece of wood or metal. b. A heavy nail. 2. A sharp-pointed projection along the top of a fence or wall.

3. a. One of several sharp metal projections set in the sole or in the sole and heel of an athletic shoe for grip. b. A pair of athletic shoes having such projections.

4. spikes. A pair of spike heels. 5. An unbranched antler of a young deer. 6. A young mackerel of small size, usually 15 centimeters (6 inches) or less in length. 7. A sharp rise followed by a sharp decline in a graph or in the tracing of a scientific instrument. 8. a. Sports. The act of driving a volleyball at a sharp angle into the opponent's court by jumping near the net and hitting the ball down hard from above. b. Football. The act of slamming the ball to the ground after succeeding in an important play, as after scoring a touchdown. — v. tr. spiked, spik-ing, spikes. 1. To secure or provide with a spike. 2. To impale, pierce, or injure with a spike. 3. Informal. To put an end to; block: spike a rumor. 4. Informal. To add alcoholic liquor to: The punch was spiked with rum. 5. Sports. To drive (a ball) in a spike. 6. To render (a muzzleloading gun) useless by driving a spike into the vent. [Middle English, from Old Norse spīk.]

—spiked adj.

spike² (spīk) n. 1. An ear of grain, as of wheat. 2. Botany. A usually elongated, unbranched inflorescence with stalkless flowers arranged along an axis. [Middle English, from Latin spīca.]

spike heel (spīk hēl) n. 1. A very thin high heel used on a woman's shoe. 2. A woman's shoe with a very thin high heel.

spike lavender (spīk lāv'ən-dər) n. An aromatic Mediterranean plant (Lavandula latifolia) of the mint family, yielding an oil similar to that of true lavender.

spike-let (spīk'līt) n. A small or secondary spike, characteristic of grasses and sedges, having a varying number of reduced flowers each subtended by one or two scalelike bracts.

spike-nard (spīk'närd') n. 1. An aromatic perennial herb (Nardostachys jatamansi) of the Himalaya Mountains, having rose-purple flowers. Also called nard. 2. An ointment of antiquity, probably prepared from this aromatic plant of India. 3. A North American plant (Aralia racemosa) having small greenish flowers, aromatic roots, and bipinnately compound leaves. [Middle English, from Anglo-Norman, from Medieval Latin spīca nardī: Latin spīca, spike, ear + Latin nardī, genitive of nardus, nard.]

spik-y (spī'kē) adj. spik-i-er, spik-i-est. 1. Having one or more projecting sharp points. 2. Grouchy or cross in temperament. —spik'i-ly adv.

—spik'i-ness n.

spile (spīl) n. 1. A post used as a foundation; a pile. 2. A wooden plug; a bung. 3. A spigot used in taking sap from a tree. — v. tr. spiled, spil-ing, spiles. To support, plug, or tap with a spile. [Dutch spijl, wooden pin, from Middle Dutch spīle.]

spill¹ (spīl) v. spilled or spilt (spīlt), spill-ing, spills. — v. tr. 1. To cause or allow (a substance) to run or fall out of a container. 2. To scatter (objects) from containment: spilled the armload of books on the desk. 3. To shed (blood).

4. Nautical. a. To relieve the pressure of wind on (a sail). b. To cause or allow (wind) to be lost from a sail. 5. To cause to fall: The rider was spilled by his horse.
6. Informal. To disclose (something previously unknown); divulge: The witness spilled all the details about the suspect. — v. intr. 1. To run or fall out of a container or containment. 2. To come to the ground suddenly and involuntarily.
3. To pour out or spread beyond limits: Fans spilled onto the playing field. — n.
1. The act of spilling. 2. An amount spilled. 3. A fall, as from a horse. 4. A spillway. [Middle English spillen, to shed blood, to spill, from Old English spillan, to kill.] —spill'er n.

WORD HISTORY: One is not supposed to cry over spilled milk, but at one time the word spill was associated with many tears. Old English spillan, the ancestor of Modern English spill, had meanings such as “to destroy, mutilate, kill.” The hints of its future life in connection with substances falling out of containers, often wastefully, were contained in the senses “to waste” and “to shed blood.” But many people, castles, and fortunes were “spilled” before people started spilling milk, at least judging from the recorded evidence. Spill is first recorded in the sense “to cause a substance to fall out of a container” in a work composed in the 14th century. Since then, much water, milk, and gravy have been spilled, while most of the senses having to do with destruction and bloodshed have become obsolete or archaic.

spill² (spɪl) n. 1. A piece of wood or rolled paper used to light a fire. 2. A small peg or rod, especially one used as a plug; a spile. [Middle English spille.]

spill·age (spɪl'ɪj) n. 1. The act of spilling. 2. An amount spilled.

Spil·lane (spə-lān'), Mickey. Born 1918. American writer known for his violent detective novels that feature the hard-boiled detective Mike Hammer.

spill·back (spɪl'bæk') n. Arrested traffic flow in which vehicles that are stopped partway through an intersection because of a blockage ahead prevent crossing traffic from moving.

spil·li·kin (spɪl'i-kɪn) n. Games. 1. spillikins. (used with a sing. verb). The game of jackstraws. 2. One of the straws used in playing jackstraws. [Probably alteration of Flemish spelleken, diminutive of spelle, pin, from Middle Flemish, ultimately from Medieval Latin spīnula, diminutive of Latin spīna, thorn.]

spill·o·ver (spɪl'ō'vər) n. 1. The act or an instance of spilling over. 2. An amount or a quantity spilled over. 3. A side effect arising from or as if from an unpredicted source: The income from their garage sale was a spillover from their habit of not throwing anything away.

spill·way (spɪl'wā') n. A channel for an overflow of water, as from a reservoir.

spilt (spɪlt) v. A past tense and a past participle of spill¹.

spilth (spɪlth) n. 1. The act of spilling. 2. An amount spilled. [From SPILL¹.]

spin (spɪn) v. spun (spʊn), spin-ning, spins. — v. tr. 1. a. To draw out and twist (fibers) into thread. b. To form (thread or yarn) in this manner. 2. To form (a web or cocoon, for example) by extruding viscous filaments. 3. To make or produce by or as if by drawing out and twisting. 4. a. To tell, especially imaginatively: spun tales for the children. b. To prolong or extend: spin out a visit with an old friend. 5. To cause to rotate swiftly; twirl. 6. To shape or manufacture by a twirling or rotating process. 7. Slang. To play (a phonograph record or records), especially as a disc jockey. — v. intr. 1. To make thread or yarn by drawing out and twisting fibers. 2. To extrude viscous filaments, forming a web or cocoon. 3. To rotate rapidly; whirl. See Synonyms at turn. 4. To seem to be whirling, as from dizziness; reel: My head spun after doing a cartwheel. 5. To ride or drive rapidly. 6. To fish with a light rod, lure, and line and a reel with a stationary spool. — n. 1. The act of spinning. 2. A swift whirling motion. 3. A state of mental confusion. 4. Informal. A short drive in a vehicle: took a spin in the new car. 5. The flight condition of an aircraft in a nose-down, spiraling, stalled descent. 6. a. The distinctive complex of connotations or implications inherent in a point of view: “Dryden... was adept at putting spin on an apparently neutral recital of facts” (Robert M. Adams). b. Distinctive character; style: an innovative chef who puts a new spin on traditional fare. c. Slang. Interpretation, especially of a politician’s words, promulgated to sway public opinion. 7. Physics. a. The intrinsic angular momentum of a subatomic particle. Also called spin angular momentum b. The total angular momentum of an atomic nucleus. c. A quantum number expressing spin angular momentum.

—phrasal verbs. spin off. To derive (a company or product, for example) from something larger. spin out. To rotate out of control, as a skidding car leaving a roadway. —idiom. spin (one’s) wheels. Informal. To expend effort with no result. [Middle English spinnen, from Old English spinnan. See (s)pen- in Appendix.]

spi-na bif-i-da (spī'nə bɪf'ɪ-də) n. A congenital defect in which the spinal column is imperfectly closed so that part of the meninges or spinal cord protrudes, often resulting in hydrocephalus and other neurological disorders. Also called schistorrhachis [New Latin spīna bifida : Latin spīna, spine + Latin bifida, feminine of bifidus, split in two.]

spin-ach (spɪn'ɪtʃ) n. 1. A widely cultivated southwest Asian plant (Spinacia oleracea) having succulent, edible leaves. 2. The leaves of this plant, eaten as a vegetable. [Middle English, from Old French espinache, from Medieval Latin spināchium, from Arabic 'isfānāḥ, from Persian aspanākh.]

spi-nal (spī'nəl) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or situated near the spine or spinal cord; vertebral: spinal injury. 2. Resembling a spine or spinous part. — n. An anesthetic injected into the spinal cord to induce partial or complete anesthesia.

—spi'nal-ly adv.

spinal anesthesia (spī'nəl ăn'īs-thē'zhə) n. Partial or complete anesthesia produced by injecting an anesthetic into the spinal canal.

spinal canal (spī'nəl kə-nāl') n. The passage formed by successive openings in the articulated vertebrae through which the spinal cord and its membranes pass. Also called vertebral canal spinal column (spī'nəl kōl'əm) n. The series of articulated vertebrae, separated by intervertebral disks and held together by muscles and tendons, that extends from the cranium to the coccyx or the end of the tail, encasing the spinal cord and forming the supporting axis of the body; the spine. Also called vertebral column spinal cord (spī'nəl kōrd) n. The thick, whitish cord of nerve tissue that extends from the medulla oblongata down through the spinal column and from which the spinal nerves branch off to various parts of the body.

spinal ganglion (spī'nəl gāng'glē-ən) n. Any of the sensory ganglia situated on the dorsal root of each spinal nerve.

spinal meningitis (spī'nəl mēn'īn-jī'tīs) n. Inflammation of the membranes enclosing the spinal cord, especially a usually fatal form that affects infants and young children and is caused by a strain of gram-negative bacteria (Hemophilus influenzae) formerly thought to cause influenza.

spinal nerve (spī'nəl nûrv) n. Any of the nerves that arise in pairs from the spinal cord. There are 31 pairs of spinal nerves in the human body.

spin angular momentum (spīn ăng'gyə-lər mō-mēn'təm) n. Physics. See spin (n., sense 7a).

spin control (spīn kən-trōl') n. Slang. Efforts made especially by politicians to ensure a favorable interpretation of their words and actions: "Frequently events matter less than... spin control—who in which campaign can explain why something doesn't mean what it seems" (Edward M. Kennedy).

spin-dle (spīn'dl) n. 1. a. A rod or pin, tapered at the ends, on which fibers are spun by hand into thread and then wound. b. A similar rod or pin used for spinning on a spinning wheel. c. A pin or rod holding a bobbin or spool on which thread is wound on an automated spinning machine. 2. Any of various mechanical parts that revolve or serve as axes for larger revolving parts, as in a lock, an axle, a phonograph turntable, or a lathe. 3. Any of various long, thin, stationary rods, as: a. A spike on which papers may be impaled. b. A baluster. 4. Biology. The spindle-shaped achromatic structure, composed of microtubules, along which the chromosomes are distributed in mitosis and meiosis. 5. Coastal New Jersey. See dragonfly. See Regional note at dragonfly. — v. spin-dled, spin-dling, spin-dles. — v. tr. To impale or perforate on a spindle: Do not fold, spindle, or mutilate this card. — v. intr. To grow into a thin, elongated, or weak form. [Middle English spindel, alteration of Old English spinel. See (s)pen- in Appendix.]

spindle cell (spɪnˈdl sɛl) n. A spindle-shaped cell characteristic of certain tumors.

spindle fiber (spɪnˈdl fɪˈbər) n. One of a network of achromatic filaments that extend inward from the poles of a dividing cell, forming a spindle-shaped figure.

spindle tree (spɪnˈdl trē) n. Any of various shrubs or trees of the genus Euonymus, having brightly colored, arillate seeds and small, greenish or purplish axillary flowers. [So called because the wood is often used to make spindles.]

spin-dling (spɪndˈlɪŋ) adj. Spindly.

spin-dly (spɪndˈlē) adj. spin-dli-er, spin-dli-est. Slender and elongated, especially in a way that suggests weakness.

spin-doc-tor (spɪnˈdɒkˈtər) n. Slang. A representative for a person, especially a politician, who publicizes favorable interpretations of that person's words or actions: "Some inconspicuous remark... could come back to haunt either candidate; the pundits' and spin-doctors' remarks could change public perceptions of the debate" (Newsweek).

spin-drift (spɪnˈdrɪft) n. Windblown sea spray. Also called spoon-drift [Variant of Scots spenedrift : spene (variant of obsolete spoon, to run before the wind) + DRIFT.]

spine (spɪn) n. 1. The spinal column of a vertebrate. 2. Zoology. Any of various pointed projections, processes, or appendages of animals. 3. Botany. A strong, sharp-pointed, usually woody outgrowth from a stem or leaf; a thorn.

4. Something that resembles or suggests a backbone, as: a. The hinged back of a book. b. The crest of a ridge. 5. Strength of character; courage or willpower.

[Middle English, from Old French espine, from Latin spīna.]

spi-nel also spi-nelle (spɪˈnɛl) n. A hard, variously colored mineral with composition $MgAl_2O_4$, with iron, zinc, or manganese sometimes partly or wholly replacing magnesium. The red variety is valued as a gem and is sometimes confused with ruby. [Italian spinella, diminutive of spina, thorn (from its sharply pointed crystals), from Latin spīna.]

spine-less (spɪnˈlɪs) adj. 1. Lacking courage or willpower. 2. Biology.

a. Having no spiny processes. b. Lacking a spinal column; invertebrate.

—spine/less-ly adv. —spine/less-ness n.

spi-nelle (spɪˈnɛl) n. Variant of spinel.

spi-nes-cent (spɪˈnɛsˈɛnt) adj. Biology. 1. Having a spine or spines.

2. Terminating in a spine. [Late Latin spīnēscēns, spīnēscēt- present participle of spīnēscere, to become thorny, from Latin spīna, thorn.] —spi-nes/cence n.

spin-et (spɪnˈɪt) n. Music. 1. a. A small, compact upright piano. b. A small, compact upright electronic organ. 2. A small harpsichord with a single keyboard.

[Obsolete French espinette, from Italian spinetta, perhaps diminutive of

spīna, thorn (presumably so called because the strings of the original instrument were plucked with quills). See SPINEL.]

Spin-garn (spīn'gärn') , Joel Elias. 1875-1939. American poet and critic. He was a founder (1909) and president (1930-1939) of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

spi-nif-er-ous (spī-nīf'ər-əs) adj. Biology. Spine-bearing; spiny. [From Late Latin spīnifer : Latin spīna, thorn + Latin -fer, -fer.]

spi-ni-fex (spī'nə-fěks') n. Any of various clump-forming, perennial Australian grasses, chiefly of the genus Triodia, growing in arid regions and having awl-shaped, pointed leaves. [New Latin Spīnifex, former genus name : Latin spīna, thorn + Latin -fex; see dhē- in Appendix.]

spin-na-ker (spīn'ə-kər) n. Nautical. A large triangular sail set on a spar that swings out opposite the mainsail, used on racing yachts when running before the wind. [Origin unknown.]

spin-ner (spīn'ər) n. 1. One that spins: a spinner of flax; a spinner of tall tales. 2. A fishing lure that rotates rapidly. 3. A fairing fitted over the hub of the propeller in some aircraft. 4. Games. A device consisting of a dial and an arrow that is spun to indicate the next move in some board games.

spin-ner-et (spīn'ə-rět') n. 1. Any of various tubular structures from which spiders and certain insect larvae, such as silkworms, secrete the silk threads from which they form webs or cocoons. 2. A device for making rayon, nylon, and other synthetic fibers, consisting of a plate pierced with holes through which plastic material is extruded in filaments.

spin-ney (spīn'ē) n. pl. spin-neys. Chiefly British. A small grove; a copse. [Obsolete French espinoi, from Old French espinei, thorny place, from Vulgar Latin spīnēta*, pl. of Latin spīnētum, thorn hedge, from spīna, thorn.]

spin-ning (spīn'ɪŋ) n. 1. The process of making fibrous material into yarn or thread. 2. The act of fishing with a light rod, lure, and line and a reel with a stationary spool.

spinning frame (spīn'ɪŋ frām) n. A machine that draws and twists fibers into yarn and winds it on spindles.

spinning jenny (spīn'ɪŋ jěn'ē) n. An early form of spinning machine having several spindles.

spinning wheel (spīn'ɪŋ hwēl) n. An apparatus for making yarn or thread, consisting of a foot-driven or hand-driven wheel and a single spindle.

spi-no-cer-e-bel-lar (spī'nō-sēr'ə-běl'ər) adj. Of, relating to, or involving both the spinal cord and the cerebellum: spinocerebellar degeneration.

spin-off or spin-off (spīn'ôf', -ôf') n. 1. a. A divestiture by a corporation of a division or subsidiary by issuing to stockholders shares in a new company set up to continue the operations of the division or subsidiary. b. The new company formed by such a divestiture. 2. Something, such as a product, that is derived from something larger and more or less unrelated; a byproduct. 3. Something derived from an earlier work, such as a television show starring a character who had a popular minor role in another show.

spi-nose (spī'nōs') adj. Bearing spines; spiny: a spinose plant. [Latin spīnōsus, from spīna, thorn.] —spi-nose'ly adv. —spi-nos'i-ty (-nōs'ī-tē) n.

spi-nous (spī'nəs) adj. 1. Resembling a spine or thorn. 2. Having spines or similar projections; spiny.

spinous process (spī'nəs prōs'ēs') n. The long rearward projection from the arch of a vertebra that provides a point of attachment for muscles and ligaments.

spin-out (spīn'out') n. An instance of spinning out: a motorist who was injured in a spinout.

Spi-no-za (spī-nō'zə), Baruch or Benedict. 1632-1677. Dutch philosopher and theologian whose controversial pantheistic doctrine advocated an intellectual love of God. His best-known work is Ethics (1677).

Spi-no-zism (spī-nō'zīz'əm) n. Philosophy. A monistic approach to philosophy in which all reality is held to consist of one substance, usually termed God or Nature, of which minds and bodies are both attributes. [After Baruch SPINOZA.] —Spi-no'zist adj., n. —Spi-no-zis'tic adj.

spin-ster (spīn'stər) n. 1. A woman who has remained single beyond the conventional age for marrying. 2. A single woman. 3. A person whose occupation is spinning. [Middle English spinnestere, female spinner of thread : spinnen, to spin; see SPIN + -estere, -ster, -ster.] —spin'ster-hood' n. —spin'ster-ish, spin'ster-ly adj.

spin-thar-i-scope (spīn-thār'ī-skōp') n. A device for observing individual scintillations produced by ionizing radiation, as one consisting of a tube with a magnifying lens at one end and a phosphorescent screen and speck of radioactive salt at the other. [Greek spintharis, spark + -SCOPE.] —spin-thar'i-scop'ic (-skōp'ik) adj.

spin-the-bot-tle (spīn'thə-bōt'l) n. Games. A game in which players take turns spinning a bottle and kissing the person it points toward when it comes to rest.

spin-to (spīn'tō) adj. Music. Of, relating to, or being a lyric operatic voice with some attributes of the dramatic voice: a spinto soprano. [Italian, past participle of spingere, to push, from Vulgar Latin expingere* : Latin ex-, ex- + Latin pangere, to fasten; see IMPINGE.] —spin'to n.

spi-nule (spīn'yōōl) n. A small spine or thorn. [Latin spīnula, diminutive of spīna, thorn.]

spi-nu-lose (spīn'yə-lōs') also spi-nu-lous (spī'nyə-ləs) adj. 1. Having spinules; minutely spiny. 2. Shaped like a spinule.

spin wave (spɪn wāv) n. Physics. A wave propagated through a crystal lattice as a result of shifts in atomic magnetic fields associated with the spin angular momentum of electrons in the lattice.

spin-y (spɪ'nē) adj. spin-i-er, spin-i-est. 1. Bearing or covered with spines, thorns, or similar stiff projections. 2. Shaped like a spine. 3. Difficult; troublesome. —spin/i-ness n.

spiny anteater (spɪ'nē ănt'ē'tər) n. See echidna.

spin-y-finned (spɪ'nē-fɪnd') adj. Having fins supported by sharp, spiny, inflexible rays. Used of a fish.

spin-y-head-ed worm (spɪ'nē-hĕd'ɪd wûrm) n. Any of various worms of the phylum Acanthocephala that live parasitically in the intestines of vertebrates and are characterized by a cylindrical, retractile proboscis that bears many rows of hooked spines. Also called acanthocephalan spiny lobster (spɪ'nē löb'stər) n. Any of various edible marine decapod crustaceans of the family Palinuridae, having a spiny carapace and lacking the large pincers characteristic of true lobsters. Also called crayfish, langouste, rock lobster, sea crayfish.

spin-y-rayed (spɪ'nē-rād') adj. Spiny-finned.

spir-a-cle (spɪr'ə-kəl, spɪr'ə-) n. 1. Zoology. A respiratory aperture, especially:
a. Any of several tracheal openings in the exoskeleton of an insect or a spider.
b. A small respiratory opening behind the eye of certain fishes, such as sharks, rays, and skates. c. The blowhole of a cetacean. 2. An aperture or opening through which air is admitted and expelled. [Middle English, from Latin spirāculum, from spirāre, to breathe.] —spi-rac/u-lar (spɪ-rāk'yə-lər, spɪ-) adj.

spi-rae-a (spɪ-rē'ə) n. Variant of spirea.

spi-ral (spɪ'rəl) n. 1. a. A curve on a plane that winds around a fixed center point at a continuously increasing or decreasing distance from the point. b. A three-dimensional curve that turns around an axis at a constant or continuously varying distance while moving parallel to the axis; a helix. c. Something having the form of such a curve: a spiral of black smoke. 2. Printing. A spiral binding. 3. The course or flight path of an object rotating on its longitudinal axis. 4. A continuously accelerating increase or decrease: the wage-price spiral. — adj.

1. Of or resembling a spiral. 2. Circling around a center at a continuously increasing or decreasing distance. 3. Coiling around an axis in a constantly changing series of planes; helical. 4. Printing. Relating to or having a spiral binding: a spiral notebook. — v. spi-raled also spi-ralled, spi-ral-ing also spi-ral-ling, spi-rals also spi-rals. — v. intr. 1. To take a spiral form or course. 2. To rise or fall with steady acceleration. — v. tr. To cause to take a spiral form or course. [Medieval Latin spirālis, of a spiral, from Latin spira, coil. See SPIRE.] —spi-ral/i-ty (spɪ-räl'i-tē) n. —spi-ral-ly adv.

spiral binding (spī'rəl bīn'dīng) n. Printing. A binding for notebooks and booklets in which a cylindrical spiral of wire or plastic is passed through a row of punched holes at the edge of a tablet. — spi'ral-bound' (spī'rəl-bound') adj.

spiral galaxy (spī'rəl gāl'ək-sē) n. A galaxy having a spiral structure.

spi-rant (spī'rənt) Linguistics. n. See fricative. — adj. Fricative. [Latin spīrāns, spīrant- present participle of spīrāre, to breathe.]

spire¹ (spīr) n. 1. A top part or point that tapers upward; a pinnacle. 2. A structure or formation, such as a steeple, that tapers to a point at the top. 3. A slender, tapering part, such as a newly sprouting blade of grass. — v. spired, spir-ing, spires. — v. tr. To furnish with a spire. — v. intr. To rise and taper steeply. [Middle English, from Old English spīr.]

spire² (spīr) n. 1. a. A spiral. b. A single turn of a spiral; a whorl. 2. The area farthest from the aperture and nearest the apex on a coiled gastropod shell. [Latin spīra, coil, from Greek speira.]

spi-re-a also spi-rae-a (spī-rē'ə) n. 1. Any of various shrubs of the genus Spiraea of the rose family, having clusters of small white or pink flowers and including the bridal wreath, hardhack, and meadowsweet. 2. See astilbe. [Latin spiraea, meadowsweet, from Greek speiraia, privet, from speira, coil.]

spi-reme (spī'rēm') also spi-rem (-rēm') n. Biology. 1. The tangle of filaments that appears at the beginning of the prophase portion of meiosis or mitosis. 2. Any of these filaments. [German Spirem, from Greek speirēma, coil, from speirasthai, to be coiled around, from speira, coil.]

Spires (spīrz) See Speyer.

spi-rif-er-ous (spī-rif'ər-əs) adj. Having a spiral structure or spiral parts. [Probably from New Latin spīrifer: Latin spīra, coil; see SPIRE² + Latin -fer, -fer.]

spi-ril-lum (spī-rīl'əm) n. pl. spi-ril-la (-rīl'ə). 1. Any of various aerobic bacteria of the genus Spirillum, having an elongated spiral form and bearing a tuft of flagella. 2. Any of various other spiral-shaped microorganisms. [New Latin Spīrillum, genus name, diminutive of Latin spīra, coil. See SPIRE².]

spir-it (spīr'it) n. 1. a. The vital principle or animating force within living beings. b. Incorporeal consciousness. 2. The soul, considered as departing from the body of a person at death. 3. Spirit. The Holy Spirit. 4. Spirit. Christian Science. God. 5. A supernatural being, as: a. An angel or a demon. b. A being inhabiting or embodying a particular place, object, or natural phenomenon. c. A fairy or sprite. 6. a. The part of a human being associated with the mind, will, and feelings: Though unable to join us today, they are with us in spirit. b. The essential nature of a person or group. 7. A person as characterized by a stated quality: He is a proud spirit. 8. a. An inclination or a tendency of a specified kind: Her actions show a generous spirit. b. A causative, activating, or essential principle: The couple's engagement was announced in a joyous spirit. 9. spirits. A mood or an emotional state: The guests were in high spirits. His sour spirits put a damper on the gathering. 10. A particular mood or an emotional state characterized by vigor and animation: sang with spirit. 11. Strong loyalty or dedication: team spirit. 12. The predominant mood of an occasion or a period: “The spirit of 1776 is not dead” (Thomas Jefferson). 13. The actual though unstated sense or significance of something: the spirit of the law. 14. Often spirits. (used with a sing. verb). An alcohol solution of an essential or volatile substance. 15. spirits. An alcoholic beverage, especially distilled liquor. — v. tr. spir·it·ed, spir·it·ing, spir·its. 1. To carry off mysteriously or secretly: The documents had been spirited away. 2. To impart courage, animation, or determination to; inspire. [Middle English, from Old French esprit, from Latin spīritus, breath, from spīrāre, to breathe.]

spir·it·ed (spīr'ī-tīd) adj. 1. Full of or characterized by animation, vigor, or courage: a spirited debate. 2. Having a specified mood or nature. Often used in combination: high-spirited; low-spirited. —spir'it·ed·ly adv.

—spir'it·ed·ness n.

spir·it·ism (spīr'ī-tīz'əm) n. 1. The belief that the dead communicate with the living; spiritualism. 2. The practices or doctrines of those holding such a belief.

—spir'it·ist n. —spir'it·is'tic adj.

spirit lamp (spīr'īt lāmp) n. A lamp that burns alcohol or other liquid fuel.

spir·it·less (spīr'īt-līs) adj. Lacking energy or enthusiasm; listless.

—spir'it·less·ly adv. —spir'it·less·ness n.

spirit level (spīr'īt lēv'əl) n. See level (n., sense 7a).

spirit of turpentine (spīr'īt ūv tūr'pən-tīn') n. See turpentine (n., sense 1).

spirit of wine (spīr'īt ūv wīn) n. Rectified ethyl alcohol.

spir·it·ous (spīr'ī-təs) adj. 1. Spirituous. 2. Archaic. Highly refined; pure.

spirit rap·ping (spīr'īt rāp'ing) n. Communication by knocking or rapping, believed to be produced by spirits of the dead, as at a séance.

spir·i·tu·al (spīr'ī-chōō-əl) adj. 1. Of, relating to, consisting of, or having the nature of spirit; not tangible or material. See Synonyms at immaterial. 2. Of, concerned with, or affecting the soul. 3. Of, from, or relating to God; deific.

4. Of or belonging to a church or religion; sacred. 5. Relating to or having the nature of spirits or a spirit; supernatural. — n. 1. Music. a. A religious folk song of American Black origin. b. A work composed in imitation of such a song.

2. Often spirituals. Religious, spiritual, or ecclesiastical matters. [Middle English, from Old French spirituel, from Latin spīrituālis, of breathing, spiritual, from spīritus, breath. See SPIRIT.] —spir'·i·tu·al·ly adv. —spir'·i·tu·al·ness n.

spiritual bouquet (spīr'ī-chōō-əl bō-kā') n. Roman Catholic Church. A card sent by a person indicating that certain devotional acts will be undertaken on behalf of another person, as in honor of a special occasion or in memoriam.

spir·i·tu·al·ism (spīr'ī-chōō-ə-līz'əm) n. 1. a. The belief that the dead communicate with the living, as through a medium. b. The practices or doctrines of those holding such a belief. 2. A philosophy, doctrine, or religion emphasizing the spiritual aspect of being. —spir'ī-tu·al·ist n. —spir'ī-tu·al·is'tic adj.

spir·i·tu·al·i·ty (spīr'ī-chōō-āl'ī-tē) n. pl. spir·i·tu·al·i·ties. 1. The state, quality, manner, or fact of being spiritual. 2. The clergy. 3. Often spiritualities. Something, such as property or revenue, that belongs to the church or to a cleric.

spir·i·tu·al·ize (spīr'ī-chōō-ə-līz') v. tr. spir·i·tu·al·ized, spir·i·tu·al·iz·ing, spir·i·tu·al·iz·es. 1. To impart a spiritual nature to. 2. To invest with or treat as having a spiritual sense or meaning. —spir'ī-tu·al·i·za'tion (-ə-lī-zā'shən) n. —spir'ī-tu·al·iz'er n.

spir·i·tu·al·ty (spīr'ī-chōō-əl-tē) n. pl. spir·i·tu·al·ties. Property or revenue belonging to the church or to a cleric; spirituality.

spir·i·tu·el also spir·i·tu·elle (spīr'ī-chōō-ěl', spē'rē-tōō-ěl', -tü-) adj. Having or evidencing a refined mind and wit. [French, from Old French, spiritual. See SPIRITUAL.]

spir·i·tu·ous (spīr'ī-chōō-əs) adj. 1. Having the nature of or containing alcohol; alcoholic. 2. Distilled. Used of an alcoholic beverage. —spir'ī-tu·os'ī·ty (-ōs'ī-tē), spir'ī-tu·ous·ness (-əs-nīs) n.

spiro- pref. Respiration: spirometer. [From Latin spīrāre, to breathe.]

spi·ro·chete (spī'rə-kēt') n. Any of various slender, spiral, motile bacteria of the order Spirochaetales, many of which are pathogenic, causing syphilis, relapsing fever, yaws, and other diseases. [New Latin Spīrochaeta, genus name : Latin spīra, coil; see SPIRE² + New Latin chaeta, bristle, hair; see CHAETA.]

—spi'ro·chet'al (-kēt'l) adj.

spi·ro·che·to·sis (spī'rə-kē-tō'sīs) n. pl. spi·ro·che·to·ses (-sēz). Any of various diseases, such as syphilis, caused by infection with spirochetes.

spi·ro·graph (spī'rə-grāf') n. An instrument for registering the depth and rapidity of respiratory movements. —spi'ro·graph'ic adj.

—spi'ro·graph'ī·cal·ly adv. —spi·rog'ra·phy (spī-rōg'rə-fē) n.

spi·ro·gy·ra (spī'rə-jī'rə) n. Any of various filamentous freshwater green algae of the genus Spirogyra, having chloroplasts in spirally twisted bands. [New Latin Spīrogyra, genus name : Latin spīra, coil; see SPIRE² + Greek gyros, ring.]

spi·roid (spī'roid') adj. Resembling a spiral.

spi·rom·e·ter (spī-rōm'ī-tər) n. An instrument for measuring the volume of air entering and leaving the lungs. —spi'ro·met'ric (-rə-mēt'rīk) adj.

—spi·rom'e·try n.

spi·ro·no·lac·tone (spī'rə-nō-lāk'tōn, spī-rō'-, spī-rōn'ə-) n. A steroid derivative, C₂₄H₃₂O₄S, that blocks the action of aldosterone, used as a diuretic in the treatment of hypertension. [Alteration of spiro lactone : Latin spīra, coil; see SPIRAL + LACTONE.]

spi-ro-plas-ma (spī'rə-plāz'mə) n. Any of numerous bacteria of the genus Spiroplasma that vary in form, lack flagella, and are associated with various plant diseases. These bacteria and the related mycoplasma are the only bacteria without cell walls. [New Latin Spīroplasma, genus name : Latin spīra, coil; see SPIRE² + PLASMA.]

spirt (spûrt) n. & v. Chiefly British. Variant of spurt.

spir-u-la (spīr'yə-lə, spīr'ə-) n. pl. spir-u-lae (-lē'). A small cephalopod mollusk of the genus Spirula, having a spirally coiled, partitioned internal shell. [Late Latin spīrula, twisted cake, diminutive of Latin spīra, coil. See SPIRE².]

spit¹ (spīt) n. 1. Saliva, especially when expectorated; spittle. 2. The act of expectorating. 3. Something, such as the frothy secretion of spittle bugs, that resembles expectorated saliva. 4. A brief, scattered fall of rain or snow.

5. Informal. The perfect likeness: He's the spit and image of his father. — v.

spat (spät) or spit, spit-ting, spits. — v. tr. 1. To eject from the mouth: spat out the watermelon seeds. 2. To eject as if from the mouth: a fire spitting sparks.

3. To emit suddenly and forcefully: spat out an insult. — v. intr. 1. To eject matter from the mouth; expectorate. 2. To express contempt or animosity by or as if by ejecting matter from the mouth. 3. To make a hissing or sputtering noise.

4. To rain or snow in light, scattered drops or flakes. — phrasal verb. spit up. To vomit. [Middle English, from spitten, to spit, from Old English spittan, ultimately of imitative origin.]

spit² (spīt) n. 1. A slender, pointed rod on which meat is impaled for broiling.

2. A narrow point of land extending into a body of water. — v. tr. spit-ted, spit-ting, spits. To impale on or as if on a spit. [Middle English, from Old English spitu.]

spit-al (spīt'l) n. Archaic. A hospital, especially one for patients with contagious diseases. [Middle English spitel, short for hospital. See HOSPITAL.]

spit and polish (spīt ənd pōl'ish) n. Attention to appearance and order, as in a military unit. — spit'-and-pol'ish (spīt'n-pōl'ish) adj.

spit-ball (spīt'bōl') n. 1. A piece of paper chewed and shaped into a lump for use as a projectile. 2. Baseball. An illegal pitch in which a foreign substance, such as saliva, is applied to the ball before it is thrown. In this sense, also called spitter spit curl (spīt kûrl) n. A spiral curl of hair pressed flat against the cheek, temple, or forehead. [From the use of saliva to fix the curl.]

spite (spīt) n. 1. Malicious ill will prompting an urge to hurt or humiliate.

2. An instance of malicious feeling. — v. tr. spit-ed, spit-ing, spites.

1. a. To show spite toward. b. To vent spite on. 2. a. To fill with spite. b. To annoy: He did it just to spite her. — idiom. in spite of. Not stopped by; regardless of: They kept going in spite of their fears. [Middle English, short for despit.

See DESPITE.]

spite·ful (spīt'fəl) adj. Filled with, prompted by, or showing spite; malicious.
—spite/ful·ly adv. —spite/ful·ness n.

spit·fire (spīt'fīr') n. A quick-tempered or highly excitable person.

Spit·head (spīt'hēd') A channel off southern England between Portsmouth and the Isle of Wight. It connects with the Solent on the west and was formerly used as a rendezvous for the British fleet.

Spits·ber·gen (spīts'bûr'gən) An island of Norway in Svalbard in the Arctic Ocean east of northern Greenland. Discovered by Willem Barents in 1596, the island became part of Norway in 1925.

Spit·te·ler (shpīt'l-ər, shpīt'lər, spīt'-), Carl. 1845-1924. Swiss writer known especially for his epic Olympian Spring (1910). He won the 1919 Nobel Prize for literature.

spit·ter (spīt'ər) n. 1. One that spits: a spitter of invective. 2. Baseball. See spit·ball (n., sense 2).

spit·ting cobra (spīt'īng kō'brə) n. See ringhals.

spitting image (spīt'īng ĭm'ij) n. A perfect likeness or counterpart. [Alteration of spit and image, from spit, an exact likeness, as in the very spit of. See SPIT¹.]

spit·tle (spīt'l) n. 1. Spit; saliva. 2. The frothy liquid secreted by spittlebugs. [Middle English spitel, alteration (influenced by spit, spit), of spatel, from Old English spāt.]

spit·tle·bug (spīt'l-būg') n. Any of various leaping, homopterous insects of the family Cercopidae, the nymphs of which form frothy masses of liquid on plant stems. Also called froghopper, spittle insect.

spit·toon (spī-tōon') n. A bowl-shaped, usually metal vessel, often with a funnel-shaped cover, into which tobacco chewers periodically spit. [SPIT¹ + -oon as in BALLOON.]

spitz (spīts) n. A dog belonging to any of several northern breeds, such as the Pomeranian or Samoyed, characterized by a long, thick, usually white coat, pointed muzzle and ears, and a tail curled over the back. [German Spitz, from spitz, pointed, from Middle High German spiz, from Old High German spizzi.]

spiv (spīv) n. Chiefly British. 1. One, usually unemployed, who lives by one's wits. 2. One who shirks work or responsibility; a slacker. [Dialectal spif, dandified, dandy.]

splanch·nic (splängk'nīk) adj. Of or relating to the viscera; visceral: a splanchnic nerve. [New Latin splanchnicus, from Greek splanchnikos, from splanchna, inward parts.]

splanch·nol·o·gy (splängk-nōl'ə-jē) n. 1. The scientific study of the viscera and its organs. 2. The characteristics and structure of the visceral system of an animal. [New Latin splanchno-, of viscera (from Greek splanchna, viscera) + - LOGY.]

splanchnopleure (splängk'nə-plōor') n. A layer of embryonic cells formed in vertebrates by association of part of the mesoderm with the endoderm and developing into the wall of the viscera. [New Latin splanchnopleura : splanchno-, of viscera; see SPLANCHNOLOGY + Greek pleura, side.] —splanchnopleuric adj.

splash (splăsh) v. splashed, splash-ing, splash-es. — v. tr. 1. To propel or scatter (a fluid) about in flying masses. 2. To scatter fluid onto in flying masses; wet, stain, or soil with flying fluid. 3. To cause (something) to scatter fluid in flying masses: splashed their hands in the water. 4. To make (one's way) with or by scattering of fluid. 5. To apply patches or spots of a contrasting, usually bright, color to: a floral pattern that was splashed with pink; moonlight splashing the deserted courtyard. 6. To display or publicize very noticeably: Their engagement was splashed all over the tabloids. — v. intr. 1. a. To cause a fluid to scatter in flying masses: splashed about in the swimming pool. b. To fall into or move through fluid with this effect: We splashed through the waves. 2. a. To move, spill, or fly about in scattered masses: Whipped cream splashed onto the counter. b. To produce a sound or sight associated with this effect. — n. 1. The act or sound of splashing: went for a splash in the lake; heard the splash of the fish being thrown back. 2. a. A flying mass of fluid. b. A small amount, especially of a fluid: a splash of liqueur on the cake. 3. A marking produced by or as if by scattered fluid: a splash of light. 4. A great though often short-lived impression; a stir: a publicity splash. —phrasal verb. splash down. To land in water. Used of a spacecraft or missile. [Probably alteration of PLASH.] —splash'er n.

splash-board (splăsh'bôrd', -bôrd') n. 1. A structure that protects the upper part of a vehicle from splashes of mud. 2. Nautical. A screen on a boat to keep water from splashing onto the deck. 3. A board for closing a spillway or sluice.

splash-down (splăsh'doun') n. The landing of a spacecraft or missile in water.

splash-guard (splăsh'gärd') n. See mudguard.

splash-y (splăsh'ē) adj. splash-i-er, splash-i-est. 1. Making or likely to make splashes. 2. Covered with splashes of color. 3. Showy; ostentatious. See Synonyms at showy. —splash'i-ly adv. —splash'i-ness n.

splat¹ (splät) n. A slat of wood, as one in the middle of a chair back. [Perhaps from Middle English splatten, to split open, perhaps from Medieval Latin splattäre, of Low German origin.]

splat² (splät) n. A smacking or splashing noise. — adv. With a smacking or splashing noise: landed splat on the floor. [Imitative.]

splat-ter (splät'tər) v. splat-tered, splat-ter-ing, splat-ters. — v. tr. To spatter (something), especially to soil with splashes of liquid. — v. intr. To spatter, especially to move or fall so as to cause splashes. — n. A splash of liquid. [Perhaps blend of SPLASH, and SPATTER.]

splay (splā) adj. 1. Spread or turned out. 2. Clumsy or clumsily formed; awkward. — n. Architecture. An oblique angle or bevel given to the sides of an opening in a wall so that the opening is wider on one side of the wall than on the other. — v. splayed, splay-ing, splays. — v. tr. 1. To spread (the limbs, for example) out or apart, especially clumsily. 2. To make slanting or sloping; bevel. 3. To dislocate (a bone). Used of an animal. — v. intr. 1. To be spread out or apart. 2. To slant or slope. [From Middle English splayen, to spread out, short for displayen. See DISPLAY.]

splay-foot (splā'fōōt') n. 1. A physical deformity characterized by abnormally flat and turned-out feet. 2. A foot so affected. — splay-foot'ed adj.

spleen (splēn) n. 1. a. A large, highly vascular lymphoid organ, lying in the human body to the left of the stomach below the diaphragm, serving to store blood, disintegrate old blood cells, filter foreign substances from the blood, and produce lymphocytes. b. A homologous organ or tissue in other vertebrates. 2. Obsolete. This organ conceived as the seat of emotions or passions. 3. Ill temper: vent one's spleen. 4. Archaic. Melancholy. 5. Obsolete. A whim; a caprice. [Middle English splen, from Old French esplen, from Latin splēn, from Greek.] — spleen'y adj.

spleen-ful (splēn'fəl) adj. Affected by or filled with spleen; irritable.

spleen-wort (splēn'wūrt', -wōrt') n. Any of numerous widely distributed evergreen ferns of the genus Asplenium, having undivided to featherlike fronds and oblong to linear sori located on the small veins. [So called because it was thought to cure spleen disorders.]

splen- pref. Variant of spleno-.

splen-dent (splēn'dənt) adj. 1. Shining or lustrous; brilliant. 2. Admired by many; illustrious. [Middle English, from Old French esplendent, from Latin splendēns, splendent- present participle of splendēre, to shine.]

splen-did (splēn'dīd) adj. 1. Brilliant with light or color; radiant: a splendid field of poppies. 2. Imposing by reason of showiness or grandeur; magnificent: splendid costumes. 3. Admired by many; illustrious: splendid achievements. 4. Admirable for boldness or purity; surpassing: splendid character. 5. Very good or satisfying; praiseworthy: a splendid performance in the examinations. [Latin splendidus, from splendēre, to shine.] — splen'did-ly adv. — splen'did-ness n.

splen-dif-er-ous (splēn-dīf'ər-əs) adj. Splendid: "The working genius of American design has been... a refining of utilitarian purity into a kind of splendiferous native simplicity" (Jay Cocks). [Middle English, from Medieval Latin splendiferus, from Late Latin splendōrifer: Latin splendor, splendor; see SPLENDOR + Latin -fer, -fer.]

splen·dor (splĕn'dər) n. 1. Great light or luster; brilliance. 2. a. Magnificent appearance or display; grandeur. b. Something grand or magnificent. 3. Great fame; glory. [Middle English splendoure, from Old French splendour, from Latin splendor, from splendēre, to shine.] —splen'dor-ous, splen'drous (splĕn'drəs) adj.

splen·dour (splĕn'dər) n. Chiefly British. Variant of splendor.

sple·nec·to·my (splī-nĕk'tə-mĕ) n. pl. sple·nec·to·mies. Surgical removal of the spleen. —sple·nec'to·mize' (-mīz') v.

sple·net·ic (splī-nĕt'ĭk) also sple·net·i·cal (-ĭ-kəl) adj. 1. Of or relating to the spleen. 2. Affected or marked by ill humor or irritability. — n. A person regarded as irritable. [Late Latin splēnēticus, from Latin splēn, spleen. See SPLEEN.] —sple·net'i·cal·ly adv.

splen·ic (splĕn'ĭk) adj. Of, in, near, or relating to the spleen.

sple·ni·us (splĕ'nĕ-əs) n. pl. sple·ni·i (-nĕ-ĭ'). Either of two muscles of the back of the neck, extending from the upper vertebrae to the base of the skull, that rotate and extend the head and neck. [New Latin splēnius, from Latin splēnium, patch, plaster (from its shape), from Greek splēnion, from splēn, spleen.]

—sple'ni·al (-nĕ-əl) adj.

spleno- or splen- pref. Spleen: splenomegaly. [Greek splēno-, from splēn, spleen.]

sple·no·meg·a·ly (splĕ'nō-mĕg'ə-lĕ, splĕn'ō-) n. pl. sple·no·meg·a·lies. Enlargement of the spleen.

splice (splīs) v. tr. spliced, splic·ing, splic·es. 1. a. To join (film, for example) at the ends. b. To join (ropes, for example) by interweaving strands. 2. To join (pieces of wood) by overlapping and binding at the ends. 3. To join together or insert (segments of DNA or RNA) so as to form new genetic combinations or alter a genetic structure. 4. Slang. To join in marriage: They went to Las Vegas to get spliced. — n. 1. A joining by splicing. 2. A place where parts have been spliced. [Obsolete Dutch splissen, from Middle Dutch.] —splic'er n.

spline (splīn) n. 1. a. Any of a series of projections on a shaft that fit into slots on a corresponding shaft, enabling both to rotate together. b. The groove or slot for such a projection. 2. A flexible piece of wood, hard rubber, or metal used in drawing curves. 3. A wooden or metal strip; a slat. [Origin unknown.]

splint (splĭnt) n. 1. A thin piece split off from a larger piece; a splinter. 2. a. A rigid device used to prevent motion of a joint or of the ends of a fractured bone. b. A dental appliance put on the teeth to protect them from grinding or from moving out of place. 3. A thin, flexible wooden strip, such as one used in the making of baskets or chair bottoms. 4. A plate or strip of metal. 5. A bony enlargement of the cannon bone or splint bone of a horse. — v. tr. splint·ed, splint·ing, splints. To support or restrict with or as if with a splint. [Middle English, from Middle Dutch, or Middle Low German splinte.]

splint bone (splɪnt bōn) n. Either of two small metacarpal or metatarsal bones in horses or related animals.

splin·ter (splɪn'tər) n. 1. A sharp, slender piece, as of wood, bone, glass, or metal, split or broken off from a main body. 2. A splinter group. — v.

splin·tered, splin·ter·ing, splin·ters. — v. intr. To split or break into sharp, slender pieces; form splinters. See Synonyms at break. — v. tr. To cause to splinter. [Middle English, from Middle Dutch.] —splin'ter·y adj.

splinter group (splɪn'tər grōp) n. A group, such as a religious sect or political faction, that has broken away from a parent group.

split (splɪt) v. split, split·ting, splits. — v. tr. 1. To divide from end to end or along the grain by or as if by a sharp blow. See Synonyms at tear¹. 2. a. To break, burst, or rip apart with force; rend. See Synonyms at break. b. To affect with force in a way that suggests tearing apart: A lightning bolt split the night sky. 3. To separate (people or groups, for example); disunite. 4. To divide and share: split a dessert. 5. To divide, as for convenience or proper ordering: split the project up into stages. 6. To separate (leather, for example) into layers. 7. To mark (a vote or ballot) in favor of candidates from different parties. 8. To divide (stock) by issuing multiples of the existing stock with a corresponding reduction in the price of each share, so that the total value of the stock is unchanged. 9. Sports. To win half the games of (a series or double-header). 10. Slang. To depart from; leave: They split Miami when the hurricane was forecast. — v. intr. 1. To become separated into parts, especially to undergo lengthwise division. 2. To become broken or ripped apart, especially from internal pressure. 3. To become or admit of being divided: Let's split up into teams. This poem doesn't split up into stanzas very well. 4. Informal. To become divided or part company as a result of discord or disagreement: She split with the regular party organization. They split up after a year of marriage. 5. To divide or share something with others. 6. Slang. To depart; leave: All the older kids have split to go dancing. — n. 1. The act of splitting or the result of it. 2. A breach or rupture in a group. 3. A splinter. 4. Something divided and portioned out; a share. 5. A strip of flexible wood used for making baskets. 6. a. A bottle of an alcoholic or carbonated beverage half the usual size. b. A drink of half the usual quantity. c. A half pint. 7. A dessert of sliced fruit, ice cream, and toppings. 8. Often splits. Sports. An acrobatic feat in which the legs are stretched out straight in opposite directions at right angles to the trunk. 9. Sports. An arrangement of bowling pins left standing after a bowl, in which two or more pins remain standing with one or more pins between them knocked down. 10. A single thickness of a split hide. — adj. 1. Having been divided or separated. 2. Fissured longitudinally; cleft. 3. a. Quoted in 16ths rather than in 8ths. Used of stocks. b. Having been split. Used of stocks. —idiom. split hairs. To see or make trivial distinctions; quibble. [Dutch splitten, from Middle Dutch.] —split'ter n.

Split (splīt) A city of southwest Croatia on the Dalmatian coast of the Adriatic Sea. Founded as a Roman colony, it later grew around a palace built by Diocletian in the early fourth century A.D. Population, 193,600.

split-brain (splīt'brān') adj. Of, relating to, or subjected to surgical separation of the hemispheres of the brain by severing the corpus callosum: split-brain operation to prevent epileptic seizures.

split infinitive (splīt ĩn-fĭn'ĭ-tĭv) n. Grammar. An infinitive verb form with an element, usually an adverb, interposed between to and the verb form, as in to boldly go.

USAGE NOTE: The split infinitive has been present in English ever since the 14th century, but it was not until the 19th century that grammarians first labeled and condemned the usage. In the 20th century many linguists and writers have rallied to its defense. H.W. Fowler chided that class of people “who would as soon be caught putting their knives in their mouths as splitting an infinitive,” but whose aversion springs only “from tame acceptance of the misinterpreted opinion of others.” No plausible rationale has ever been advanced for the rule, though it may arise from a hazy notion that because the Latin infinitive is a single word, the equivalent English construction must be treated as if it were indivisible. Still, many people who dislike the construction avoid it without difficulty. The sense of the sentence To better understand the miners' plight, he went to live in their district is just as easily expressed by To understand the miners' plight better, he went to live in their district. In some cases avoidance of the split infinitive may result in a stylistic improvement. The sentence We are seeking a plan to gradually, systematically, and economically relieve the burden becomes clearer if the adverbs are placed at the end: We are seeking a plan to relieve the burden on our employees gradually, systematically, and economically. (In an earlier survey the example having the split infinitive was accepted by only 23 percent of the Usage Panel.) But in other cases the effort to avoid a split infinitive may have unfortunate consequences. In The tenant coalition is planning to aggressively seek cooperative ownership of the apartments the city acquired, any attempt to reposition the adverb aggressively would create an ambiguity. In We intend to use every political favor we are owed to soundly defeat this bill and its riders, any other position will create an unnatural rhythm. In We expect our output to more than double in a year, the phrase more than is intrinsic to the sense of the infinitive phrase, though the split infinitive could be avoided by use of another phrase, such as to increase by more than 100 percent. In this example the split infinitive is accepted by 87 percent of the Usage Panel. • Excessive zeal in avoiding the split infinitive may result in an unnecessarily awkward placement of adverbs in constructions involving the auxiliary verbs be and have. When we read sentences like I want this clearly to be understood, we may suspect that the placement of clearly is the result of an effort to avoid the construction to be clearly understood, under the misapprehension that the latter involves a split infinitive. By the same token, there are no grounds for objecting to the position of the adverb in the sentence He is committed to laboriously assembling all of the facts of the case. What is “split” here is not an infinitive but a prepositional phrase.

split-level (splīt'lev'əl) adj. Having the floor levels of adjoining rooms separated by about half a story: a split-level ranch house. —split'-level n.

split personality (splīt pûr'sə-năl'ī-tē) n. See multiple personality.

split rail (splīt rāl) n. A fence rail split lengthwise from a log. —split'-rail' (splīt'rāl') adj.

split second (splīt sĕk'ənd) n. An instant; a flash. [Short for split second hands, a stopwatch with two second hands, one beneath the other, one of which may be stopped independently of the other.]

split shift (splīt shĭft) n. A working shift divided into two or more periods of time, such as morning and evening, with a break of several hours between them.

split ticket (splīt tĭk'it) n. 1. A ballot cast for candidates of two or more political parties. 2. A ticket that includes the names of candidates from more than one party.

split-ting (splīt'ing) adj. Very severe: a splitting headache.

plotch (splöch) n. An irregularly shaped spot, stain, or colored or discolored area: “spectacular plotches of color and beauty in the blossoms” (Wendy Lyon Moonan). — v. tr. plotched, plotch-ing, plotch-es. To mark with plotches or a plotch. [Perhaps blend of SPOT, BLOT¹, and BOTCH.]

—plotch'i-ness n. —plotch'y adj.

splurge (splûrj) v. splurged, splurg-ing, splurg-es. — v. intr. 1. To indulge in an extravagant expense or luxury. 2. To be showy or ostentatious. — v. tr. To spend extravagantly or wastefully. — n. 1. An extravagant display. 2. An expensive indulgence; a spree. [Perhaps blend of SPLASH, and SURGE.]

—splurg'y adj.

splut-ter (splüt'tər) v. splut-tered, splut-ter-ing, splut-ters. — v. intr.

1. To make a spitting sound. 2. To speak incoherently, as when confused or angry. — v. tr. To utter or express hastily and incoherently. — n. A spluttering noise. [Perhaps alteration of SPUTTER.] —splut'ter-er n. —splut'ter-y adj.

Spock (spök), Benjamin McLane. Born 1903. American pediatrician, educator, and writer. His book Baby and Child Care, originally published in 1946, had a great influence on child-rearing.

Spode (spōd) A trademark used for a brand of fine china and earthenware.

Spode, Josiah. 1754-1827. British potter. In 1800 he founded a pottery that became famous for its bone china.

spod·u·mene (spøj'ə-mēn') n. A greenish to pinkish or lilac mineral, $\text{LiAlSi}_2\text{O}_6$, used as a source of lithium and in transparent varieties as a gemstone. [French spodumène, from German Spodumen, from Greek spodoumenos, present participle of spodousthai, to be burned to ashes, from spodos, wood ashes (because the mineral becomes ash gray when exposed to air).]

spoil (spoil) v. spoiled or spoilt (spoilt), spoiling, spoils. — v. tr. 1. a. To impair the value or quality of. See Synonyms at injure. b. To damage irreparably; ruin. 2. To impair the completeness, perfection, or unity of; flaw grievously: spoiled the party. 3. To do harm to the character, nature, or attitude of by oversolicitude, overindulgence, or excessive praise. See Synonyms at pamper.

4. Archaic. a. To plunder; despoil. b. To take by force. — v. intr. 1. To become unfit for use or consumption, as from decay. Used especially of perishables, such as food. See Synonyms at decay. 2. To pillage. — n. 1. spoils. a. Goods or property seized from a victim after a conflict, especially after a military victory. b. Incidental benefits reaped by a winner, especially political patronage enjoyed by a successful party or candidate. 2. An object of plunder; prey. 3. Refuse material removed from an excavation. 4. Archaic. The act of plundering; spoliation. — phrasal verb. spoil for. To be eager for: spoiling for a fight. [Middle English spoilien, to plunder, from Old French espoillier, from Latin spoliāre, from spolium, booty.]

spoil·age (spoi'lij) n. 1. a. The process of becoming spoiled. b. The condition of being spoiled. 2. a. Something that has been spoiled. b. The degree to which something has been spoiled.

spoil·er (spoi'lər) n. 1. One who seizes spoils or booty. 2. Something that causes spoilage. 3. a. A long, narrow hinged plate on the upper surface of an airplane wing that reduces lift and increases drag when raised. b. An air deflector mounted usually at the rear of an automobile to reduce lift at high speeds. 4. A candidate for office whose chances of winning are slight but who may get enough votes to prevent one of the leading candidates from winning.

spoil·sport (spoil'spôrt', -spôrt') n. One who mars the pleasure of others.

spoils system (spoilz sîs'təm) n. The postelection practice of rewarding loyal supporters of the winning candidates and party with appointive public offices.

spoilt (spoilt) v. A past tense and a past participle of spoil.

Spokane (spō-kān') A city of eastern Washington near the Idaho border on the falls of the Spokane River, about 193 km (120 mi) long. Settled on the site of a trading fort established in 1810, Spokane is a trade and processing center in an agricultural, lumbering, and mining region. Population, 177,196.

spoke¹ (spök) n. 1. One of the rods or braces connecting the hub and rim of a wheel. 2. Nautical. One of the handles projecting from the rim of a ship's steering wheel. 3. A rod or stick that may be inserted into a wheel to prevent it from turning. 4. A rung of a ladder. — v. tr. spoked, spok·ing, spokes. 1. To equip with spokes. 2. To impede (a wheel) by inserting a rod. [Middle English, from Old English spāca.]

spoke² (spōk) v. 1. Past tense of speak. 2. Archaic. A past participle of speak.

spo-ken (spō'kən) v. Past participle of speak. — adj. 1. Expressed orally; uttered: spoken words. 2. Speaking or using speech in a specified manner or voice. Often used in combination: soft-spoken; plainspoken.

spoke-shave (spōk'shāv') n. A drawknife of a design originally used for shaping spokes, now used for making a variety of rounded edges.

spokes-man (spōks'mən) n. A man who speaks on behalf of another or others. See Usage Note at man. [Probably spoke, past participle of SPEAK + MAN.]

spokes-per-son (spōks'pûr'sən) n. A spokesman or a spokeswoman. See Usage Note at man.

spokes-wom-an (spōks'wōm'ən) n. A woman who speaks on behalf of another or others. See Usage Note at man.

spo-li-a-tion (spō'lē-ā'shən) n. 1. The act of despoiling or plundering.

2. Seizure of neutral vessels at sea by a belligerent power in time of war. 3. Law. Intentional alteration or destruction of a document. [Middle English spoliacioun, from Anglo-Norman spoliacioun, from Latin spoliātiō, spoliātiōn-, from spoliātus, past participle of spoliāre, to despoil. See SPOIL.] — spo'li-a'tor n.

spon-da-ic (spōn-dā'ik) adj. Of, relating to, or consisting of spondees. [French spondaique, from Late Latin spondaicus, alteration of spondiacus, from Greek spondeiakos, from spondeios, spondee. See SPONDEE.]

spon-dee (spōn'dē') n. A metrical foot consisting of two long or stressed syllables. [Middle English sponde, from Old French spondee, from Latin spondēum, from neuter of spondēus, of libations, spondaic, from Greek spondeios, from spondē, libation (from its use in songs performed at libations). See spend- in Appendix.]

spon-dy-li-tis (spōn'dl-ī'tis) n. Inflammation of the vertebrae. [Greek spondulos, vertebra + -ITIS.]

spon-dy-lo-sis (spōn'dl-ō'sis) n. Degeneration of the spinal column, especially a fusion and immobilization of the vertebral bones. [Greek spondulos, vertebra + -OSIS.]

sponge (spūnj) n. 1. a. Any of numerous aquatic, chiefly marine invertebrate animals of the phylum Porifera, characteristically having a porous skeleton composed of fibrous material or siliceous or calcareous spicules and often forming irregularly shaped colonies attached to an underwater surface. b. The light, fibrous, flexible, absorbent skeleton of certain of these organisms, used for bathing, cleaning, and other purposes. 2. Porous plastics, rubber, cellulose, or other material, similar in absorbency to this skeleton and used for the same purposes. 3. A gauze pad used to absorb blood and other fluids, as in surgery or the dressing of a wound. 4. A small absorbent contraceptive pad that contains a spermicide and is placed against the cervix of the uterus before sexual intercourse.

5. Dough that has been or is being leavened. 6. A light cake, such as sponge cake. 7. A sponge bath. 8. One who habitually depends on others for one's own maintenance. 9. a. Informal. A glutton. b. Slang. A drunkard. — v. sponged, spong-ing, spong-es. — v. tr. 1. To moisten, wipe, or clean with or as if with a sponge: sponge off the table. 2. To wipe out; erase. 3. To absorb with or as if with a sponge: sponge up the mess. 4. Informal. To obtain free: sponge a meal. — v. intr. 1. To fish for sponges. 2. Informal. To live by relying on the generosity of others: sponged off her parents. [Middle English, from Old English, from Latin spongia, from Greek, from spongos.]

sponge bath (spünj bäth) n. A bath in which the bather is washed with a wet sponge or washcloth without being immersed.

sponge cake (spünj kāk) n. A very light, porous cake made of flour, sugar, beaten eggs, and flavoring and containing no shortening.

sponge mushroom (spünj mŭsh'rōom') n. The morel.

spong-er (spün'jər) n. 1. One that gathers sponges. 2. Informal. A person who sponges on others; a parasite.

sponge rubber (spünj rŭb'ər) n. A soft, porous rubber used in toys, cushions, gaskets, and weather stripping and as a vibration dampener.

spon-gin (spün'jĭn) n. A horny, sulfur-containing protein related to keratin that forms the skeletal structure of certain classes of sponges.

spon-gi-o-blast (spün'jĭ-ə-bläst') n. Any of the embryonic epithelial cells that give rise to the neuroglia. [Latin spongia, sponge; see SPONGE + -BLAST.]

spon-gi-o-cyte (spün'jĕ-ə-sīt') n. Any of the cells of the neuroglia. [Latin spongia, sponge; see SPONGE + -CYTE.]

spon-go-coel (spöng'gə-sēl') n. Zoology. The central cavity of a sponge, which opens to the outside by way of the osculum. [Greek spongo-, sponge (from spongos) + -COEL.]

spong-y (spün'jĕ) adj. spong-i-er, spong-i-est. Resembling a sponge in elasticity, absorbency, or porousness. — spong-i-ness n.

spongy mesophyll (spün'jĕ mĕz'ə-fĭl') n. A leaf tissue consisting of loosely arranged, chloroplast-bearing, usually lobed cells. Also called spongy parenchyma spon-son (spön'sən) n. 1. Nautical. Any of several structures that project from the side of a boat or ship, especially a gun platform. 2. A short, curved, air-filled projection on the hull of a seaplane, imparting stability in the water. [Perhaps alteration of EXPANSION.]

spon-sor (spön'sər) n. 1. One who assumes responsibility for another person or a group during a period of instruction, apprenticeship, or probation. 2. One who vouches for the suitability of a candidate for admission. 3. A legislator who proposes and urges adoption of a bill. 4. One who presents a candidate for baptism or confirmation; a godparent. 5. One that finances a project or an event carried out by another person or group, especially a business enterprise that pays for radio or television programming in return for advertising time. — v. tr.

spón-sored, spón-sor-ing, spón-sors. To act as a sponsor for. [Late Latin spōnsor, sponsor in baptism, from Latin, surety, from spōnsus, past participle of spondēre, to pledge. See spend- in Appendix.] —spón-so/ri-al (-sôr'ē-əl, -sôr'-) adj. —spón/sor-ship n.

spón-ta-ne-i-ty (spōn'tā-nē'ī-tē, -nā'-) n. pl. spón-ta-ne-i-ties. 1. The quality or condition of being spontaneous. 2. Spontaneous behavior, impulse, or movement.

spón-ta-ne-ous (spōn-tā'nē-əs) adj. 1. Happening or arising without apparent external cause; self-generated. 2. Arising from a natural inclination or impulse and not from external incitement or constraint. 3. Unconstrained and unstudied in manner or behavior. 4. Growing without cultivation or human labor; indigenous. [From Late Latin spontāneus, of one's own accord, from Latin sponte. See (s)pen- in Appendix.] —spón-ta/ne-ous-ly adv.

—spón-ta/ne-ous-ness n.

SYNONYMS: spontaneous, impulsive, instinctive, involuntary, automatic. These adjectives mean acting, reacting, or happening without apparent forethought, prompting, or planning. Spontaneous applies to what arises naturally rather than resulting from external constraint or stimulus: The two suddenly embraced in a spontaneous gesture of affection. “The highest and best form of efficiency is the spontaneous cooperation of a free people” (Woodrow Wilson). Impulsive refers to the operation of a sudden urge or feeling not governed by reason: Letting her friend borrow her car was an impulsive act that she immediately regretted. Instinctive implies behavior prompted by instinct as a natural consequence of membership in a species: “Nor is head-hunting, body-snatching, or killing for food instinctive or natural” (Bronislaw Malinowski). The term also applies to what reflects or comes about as a result of a natural inclination or innate impulse: Offering to help the accident victims seems as instinctive as breathing. Involuntary refers to what is not subject to the control of the will: “It [becoming a hero] was involuntary. They sank my boat” (John F. Kennedy). Automatic suggests the unthinking, unfeeling functioning of a machine; it implies an unvarying mechanical response or reaction: She accepted the subpoena with an automatic “thank you.”

spontaneous abortion (spōn-tā'nē-əs ə-bôr'shən) n. See miscarriage (n., sense 1).

spontaneous combustion (spōn-tā'nē-əs kəm-büs'chən) n. Ignition of a substance, such as oily rags or hay, caused by a localized heat-increasing reaction between the oxidant and the fuel and not involving addition of heat from an outside source.

spontaneous generation (spŏn-tā'nē-əs jĕn'ə-rā'shən) n. See abiogenesis.

spoon (spŏn-tōon') n. A short pike carried by infantry officers in the 18th century. [French sponton, from Italian spuntone : s-, intensive pref.; see SFORZANDO + puntone, kind of weapon, augmentative of punto, point (from Latin punctum, from neuter past participle of pungere, to pierce, prick); see peuk- in Appendix.]

spoo (spōof) n. 1. Nonsense; tomfoolery. 2. A hoax. 3. A gentle satirical imitation; a light parody. — v. tr. spooed, spooing, spooes. 1. To deceive. 2. To do a spoo of of; satirize gently. [Origin unknown.]

WORD HISTORY: When a comedian spoofs a television show or someone watches such a spoo, one is indebted to Arthur Roberts (1852-1933), a British comedian who invented a game called Spoof, which involved trickery and nonsense. The first recorded reference to the game in 1884 refers to its revival. It was not long before the word spoo took on the general sense “nonsense, trickery,” first recorded in 1889. The verb spoo is first recorded in 1889 as well, in the sense “to deceive.” These senses are less widely used now than the noun sense “a light parody or satirical imitation,” first recorded in 1958, and the verb sense “to satirize gently,” first recorded in 1927. In the 1969 American Heritage Dictionary the Usage Panel found both usages acceptable in writing at all levels, which seems the obvious finding since these senses had come to be so important to the use of the term.

spook (spōok) n. 1. Informal. A ghost; a specter. 2. Slang. A secret agent; a spy. — v. spooked, spooking, spooks. Informal. — v. tr. 1. To haunt. 2. To frighten, especially to startle and cause nervous activity in (an animal or animals). — v. intr. To become frightened and nervous. Used especially of animals. [Dutch, from Middle Dutch spoo.]

spooky (spōok'kē) adj. spookier, spookiest. Informal. 1. Suggestive of ghosts or a ghost; eerie. 2. Easily startled; skittish. — spookily adv. — spookiness n.

spool (spōol) n. 1. a. A cylinder of wood, plastic, cardboard, or other material on which wire, thread, or string is wound. b. The amount of wire, thread, or string wound on such a cylinder. c. Something similar to such a cylinder in shape or function. 2. A reel for magnetic tape. — v. tr. intr. spooled, spooling, spools. To wind or be wound on or off a spool. [Middle English spole, from Old North French espole, and from Middle Dutch Middle Low German spoele (Old North French, from Middle Dutch).]

spooling (spōol'ling) n. Computer Science. The temporary storage of information that occurs while that information awaits further processing. [From the acronym spool, or simultaneous peripheral operations on line.] spoon (spōon) n. 1. A utensil consisting of a small, shallow bowl on a handle, used in preparing, serving, or eating food. 2. Something similar to this utensil or its bowl, as: a. A shiny, curved, metallic fishing lure. b. A paddle or an oar with a curved blade. 3. Sports. The three wood golf club. — v. spooned, spoon-ing, spoons. — v. tr. 1. To lift, scoop up, or carry with or as if with a spoon. 2. Sports & Games. To shove or scoop (a ball) into the air. — v. intr.

1. To fish with a spoon lure. 2. Sports & Games. To give a ball an upward scoop. 3. Informal. To engage in amorous behavior, such as kissing or caressing. [Middle English, from Old English spōn, chip of wood.] — spoon'able adj.

spoon-bill (spōon'bil') n. 1. a. Any of several long-legged wading birds similar to the ibis but having a long, flat bill with a broadly spatulate tip. b. Any of various broad-billed ducks, such as the shoveler. 2. See paddlefish.

spoon bread (spōon brēd) n. Chiefly Southern U.S. A soft, light bread made with cornmeal, eggs, butter, and milk, baked in a bowl.

spoon-drift (spōon'drift') n. See spindrift. [Obsolete spoon, to run before the wind + DRIFT.]

spoon-er-ism (spōō'nə-rīz'əm) n. A transposition of sounds of two or more words, especially a ludicrous one, such as Let me sew you to your sheet for Let me show you to your seat. [After William Archibald Spooner (1844-1930), British cleric and scholar.]

spoon-ey (spōō'nē) adj. Variant of spoony.

spoon-feed (spōon'fēd') v. tr. spoon--fed (-fēd'), spoon--feed-ing, spoon--feeds. 1. To feed (another) with a spoon. 2. To treat (another) in a way that discourages independent thought or action, as by overindulgence. 3. a. To provide (another) with knowledge or information in an oversimplified way. b. To provide (knowledge or information) in an oversimplified way.

spoon-ful (spōon'fōol') n. pl. spoon·fuls. The amount that a spoon holds.

spoon-y also spoon-ey (spōō'nē) adj. spoon-i-er, spoon-i-est. 1. Enamored in a silly or sentimental way. 2. Feebly sentimental; gushy.

spoor (spoōr) n. The track or trail of an animal, especially a wild animal. — v. tr. intr. spooed, spoor-ing, spoors. To track (an animal) by following its spoor or to engage in such tracking. [Afrikaans, from Middle Dutch. See spērə in Appendix.]

spor- pref. Variant of sporo-.

Spor-a-des (spôr'ə-dēz', spô-ră'thēs) Two island groups of Greece in the Aegean Sea, consisting of the Northern Sporades off the central mainland and the Southern Sporades off the coast of Turkey.

spo-rad-ic (spə-răd'ik, spô-) also spo-rad-i-cal (-i-kəl) adj. 1. Occurring at irregular intervals; having no pattern or order in time. See Synonyms at peri-odic. 2. Appearing singly or at widely scattered localities, as a plant or disease. 3. Isolated; unique: a sporadic example. [Medieval Latin sporadicus, scattered, from Greek sporadikos, from sporas, sporad-. See sper- in Appendix.]

—spo·rad'i·cal·ly adv. —spo·rad'i·cal·ness n.

spo·ran·gi·a (spə-răn'jē-ə) n. Plural of sporangium.

spo·ran·gi·o·phore (spə-răn'jē-ə-fôr', -fôr') n. 1. A specialized branch bearing one or more sporangia. 2. A stalk of a sporangium. [SPORANGI(UM) + -PHORE.] spo·ran·gi·um (spə-răn'jē-əm) n. pl. spo·ran·gi·a (-jē-ə). A single-celled or many-celled structure in which spores are produced, as in fungi, algae, mosses, and ferns. Also called spore case [New Latin : SPOR(O)- + Greek angeion, vessel; see ANGIO-.] —spo·ran'gi·al (-jē-əl) adj.

spore (spôr, spôr) n. 1. A small, usually single-celled reproductive body that is highly resistant to desiccation and heat and is capable of growing into a new organism, produced especially by certain bacteria, fungi, algae, and nonflowering plants. 2. A dormant, nonreproductive body formed by certain bacteria in response to adverse environmental conditions. — v. intr. spored, spor-ing, spores. To produce spores. [Greek spora, seed. See sper- in Appendix.]

—spo·ra'ceous (spə-ră'shəs, spô-, spō-) adj.

spore case (spôr kās) n. See sporangium.

spore·ling (spôr'līng, spôr'-) n. A young plant produced by a germinated spore.

spore mother cell (spôr mŭth'ər sĕl) n. A cell that undergoes meiosis and usually produces four spores.

spo·ri·cide (spôr'ī-sīd', spôr'-) n. An agent used to kill spores.

—spo'ri·cid'al (-sīd'l) adj.

spo·rif·er·ous (spə-rīf'ər-əs, spô-, spō-) adj. Producing spores.

Spork (spôrĕk) A trademark used for a plastic eating utensil having a spoonlike bowl and tines.

sporo- or spor- pref. Spore: sporocyte. [Greek, from spora, seed. See sper- in Appendix.]

spo·ro·carp (spôr'ə-kărp', spôr'-) n. 1. A multicellular structure in which spores are formed, especially in red algae and certain fungi and slime molds. 2. A receptacle containing sporangia, as in the pepperwort.

spo·ro·cyst (spôr'ə-sīst', spôr'-) n. 1. A resting cell that produces asexual plant spores. 2. a. A protective case or cyst in which sporozoites develop and from which they are transferred to different hosts. b. A sporozoite enclosed in such a case; an encysted sporozoan. 3. A saclike larval stage in many trematode worms.

spo·ro·cyte (spôr'ə-sīt', spôr'-) n. A cell that produces haploid spores during meiosis.

spo-ro-gen-e-sis (spôr'ə-jě'n'ĩ-sĩs, spôr'-) n. 1. Production or formation of spores. 2. Reproduction by means of spores. —spo'ro-gen'ic (-jě'n'ik), spo-ro-g'e-nous (spə-rŏj'ə-nəs, spô-, spō-) adj.

spo-ro-g'o-ny (spə-rŏg'ə-nē, spô-, spō-) n. Reproduction by multiple fission of a spore or zygote, characteristic of many sporozoans. Sporogony results in the production of sporozoites. —spo'ro-gon'ic (spôr'ə-gŏn'ik, spôr'-), spo-ro-g'o-nous (spə-rŏg'ə-nəs, spô-, spō-) adj.

spo-ront (spôr'ŏnt, spôr'-) n. An organism or a cell produced by sporogony, especially in the life cycle of various parasitic microorganisms.

spo-ro-phore (spôr'ə-fŏr', spôr'ə-fŏr') n. A spore-bearing structure, especially in fungi.

spo-ro-phyll (spôr'ə-fil', spôr'-) n. A leaf or leaflike organ that bears spores.

spo-ro-phyte (spôr'ə-fit', spôr'-) n. The spore-producing phase in the life cycle of a plant that exhibits alternation of generations. —spo'ro-phyt'ic (-fit'ik) adj.

spo-ro-plasm (spôr'ə-plăz'am, spôr'-) n. An infective mass of protoplasm within a spore that is injected into a host cell by various parasitic microorganisms.

spo-ro-pol-len-in (spôr'ə-pŏl'ə-nĩn, spôr'-) n. A polymer that constitutes the outer wall of spores and pollen grains.

spo-ro-tri-cho-sis (spôr'ə-trĩ-kŏ'sĩs, spôr'-) n. A chronic infectious disease of domestic mammals and human beings, characterized by nodules or ulcers in the lymph nodes and skin and caused by a saprophytic or parasitic fungus of the genus Sporothrix, especially S. schenckii, commonly found in soil and wood.

-sporous suff. Having a specified number or kind of spores: heterosporous.

spo-ro-zo-an (spôr'ə-zŏ'an, spôr'-) n. Any of numerous parasitic protozoans of the class Sporozoa, most of which reproduce sexually and asexually in alternate generations by means of spores. They are frequently transmitted by bloodsucking insects to different hosts, where they cause many serious diseases, such as malaria and coccidiosis. [From New Latin Sporozoa, class name : SPORO- + -zoa, pl. of -zoon, -zoon.] —spo'ro-zo'an adj.

spo-ro-zo-ite (spôr'ə-zŏ'it', spôr'-) n. Any of the minute undeveloped sporozoans produced by multiple fission of a zygote or spore, especially at the stage just before it infects a new host cell. [SPOROZO(AN) + -ITE¹.]

spor-ran (spôr'an, spŏr'-) n. A leather or fur pouch worn at the front of the kilt in the traditional dress of men of the Scottish Highlands. [Scottish Gaelic sporan, from Middle Irish sparán, possibly from Late Latin bursa, bag. See BURSA.]

sport (spŏrt, spŏrt) n. 1. An activity involving physical exertion and skill that is governed by a set of rules or customs and often undertaken competitively. 2. An active pastime; recreation. 3. a. Mockery; jest: He made sport of his own looks. b. An object of mockery, jest, or play: treated our interests as sport. c. A joking mood or attitude: She made the remark in sport. 4. a. One known for the manner of one's acceptance of rules, especially of a game, or of a difficult situation: a poor sport. b. Informal. One who accepts rules or difficult situations well.

c. Informal. A pleasant companion: was a real sport during the trip. 5. Informal.

a. A person who lives a jolly, extravagant life. b. A gambler at sporting events.

6. Biology. An organism that shows a marked change from the normal type or parent stock, typically as a result of mutation. 7. Maine. See summercater. See Regional note at summercater. 8. Obsolete. Amorous dalliance; lovemaking.

— v. sport-ed, sport-ing, sports. — v. intr. 1. To play or frolic. 2. To joke or trifle. 3. Biology. To mutate. — v. tr. To display or show off: "His shoes sported elevated heels" (Truman Capote). — adj. or sports 1. Of, relating to, or appropriate for sports: sport fishing; sports equipment. 2. Designed or appropriate for outdoor or informal wear: a sport shirt. [Middle English sporte, short for disporte, from Old French desport, pleasure, from desporter, to divert. See DIS-PORT.] —sport'ful adj. —sport'ful-ly adv. —sport'ful-ness n.

sport-ing (spôr'tĭng, spôr'(-)) adj. 1. Used in or appropriate for sports: sporting goods. 2. Characterized by sportsmanship. 3. Of or associated with gambling. —sport'ing-ly adv.

sporting chance (spôr'tĭng chāns) n. Informal. A fair chance for success.

spor-tive (spôr'tĭv, spôr'(-)) adj. 1. Playful; frolicsome. 2. Relating to or interested in sports. 3. Archaic. Amorous or wanton. —spor'tive-ly adv. —spor'tive-ness n.

sports car (spôrts kär, spôrts) n. An automobile equipped for racing, especially an aerodynamically shaped one-passenger or two-passenger vehicle having a low center of gravity and steering and suspension designed for precise control at high speeds.

sports-cast (spôrts'kăst', spôrts'(-)) n. A radio or television broadcast of a sports event or of sports news. [SPORTS + (BROAD)CAST.] —sports'cast'er n.

sports-man (spôrts'mən, spôrts'(-)) n. 1. A man who is active in sports. 2. A person whose conduct and attitude exhibit sportsmanship. —sports'-man-like', sports'man-ly adj.

sports-man-ship (spôrts'mən-shĭp', spôrts'(-)) n. 1. The fact or practice of participating in sports or a sport. 2. Conduct and attitude considered as befitting participants in sports, especially fair play, courtesy, striving spirit, and grace in losing.

sports massage (spôrts mə-sāzh') n. A system of massage, originally designed for athletes, that focuses on specific areas of the body, such as a knee or shoulder, that have been stressed or injured.

sports medicine (spôrts mĕd'ĭ-sĭn) n. The branch of medicine that deals with injuries or illnesses resulting from participation in sports and athletic activities.

sports-wear (spôrts/'wâr', spôrts'-) n. Clothes designed for comfort and casual wear.

sports-woman (spôrts/'wôom'ən, spôrts'-) n. 1. A woman who is active in sports. 2. A woman whose conduct and attitude exhibit sportsmanship.

sports-writer (spôrts/'rī'tər, spôrts'-) n. A person who writes about sports, especially for a newspaper or magazine.

sport-y (spôr'tē, spōr'-) adj. sport-i-er, sport-i-est. 1. Appropriate for sport or participation in sports. 2. Exhibiting sportsmanship; sporting. 3. Flashy; jazzy. —sport'i-ly adv. —sport'i-ness n.

spor-u-late (spôr/'yə-lāt', spōr'-) v. intr. spor-u-lat-ed, spor-u-lat-ing, spor-u-lates. To produce or release spores. [From New Latin sporula, small spore, diminutive of spora, spore, from Greek, seed. See SPORE.] —spor'u-la-tion n.

spot (spõt) n. 1. A place of relatively small and definite limits. 2. a. A mark on a surface differing sharply in color from its surroundings. b. A stain or blot. 3. Games. a. A mark or pip on a playing card; a spade, club, diamond, or heart. b. A playing card with a specified number of such marks on it indicating its value. 4. Informal. A piece of paper money worth a specified number of dollars. 5. a. A location; a locale. b. A point of interest: There are a lot of spots to visit in the old city. c. A position or an item in an ordered arrangement. 6. Informal. A situation, especially a troublesome one. 7. A flaw in one's reputation or character. 8. A short presentation or commercial on television or radio between major programs: a news spot. 9. Informal. A spotlight. 10. pl. spot or spots. A small croaker (Leiostomus xanthurus) of North American Atlantic waters, having a dark mark above each pectoral fin and valued as a food and sport fish. 11. Chiefly British. A small amount; a bit. — v. spot-ted, spot-ting, spots. — v. tr. 1. To cause a spot or spots to appear on, especially: a. To soil with spots. b. To decorate with spots; dot. 2. To harm; besmirch. 3. To place in a particular location; situate precisely. 4. To detect or discern, especially visually; spy. 5. To remove spots from, as in a laundry. 6. Sports. To yield a favorable scoring margin to: spotted their opponents 11 points. — v. intr. 1. To become marked with spots. 2. To cause a discoloration or make a stain. 3. To locate targets from the air during combat or training missions. — adj. 1. Made, paid, or delivered immediately: a spot sale. 2. Of, relating to, or being a market in which payment or delivery is immediate: the spot market in oil. 3. Involving random or selective instances or actions: a spot investigation. 4. Presented between major radio or television programs: a spot announcement. —idioms. in spots. Now and then; here and there; occasionally. on the spot. 2. Without delay; at once. 3. At the scene of action. 4. Under pressure or attention; in a pressed position. [Middle English, from Old English.] —spot'ta-ble adj.

spot check (spöt chĕk) n. An inspection or investigation that is carried out at random or limited to a few instances.

spot-check (spöt'chĕk') v. tr. intr. spot-checked, spot-check-ing, spot-checks. To subject to or make a spot check.

spot-less (spöt'lis) adj. 1. Perfectly clean. See Synonyms at clean. 2. Free from blemish; impeccable. —spot/less-ly adv. —spot/less-ness n.

spot-light (spöt'lit') n. 1. a. A strong beam of light that illuminates only a small area, used especially to center attention on a stage performer. b. A lamp that produces such a light. 2. Public notoriety or prominence: She was in the spotlight after she won the marathon. 3. An artificial source of light with a strongly focused beam, as on an automobile. — v. tr. spot-light-ed or spot-lit (-lit), spot-light-ing, spot-lights. 1. To illuminate with a spotlight. 2. To focus attention on.

spot price (spöt prīs) n. The market price of a commodity.

Spots-wood (spöts'wōōd'), Alexander. 1676-1740. English colonial administrator who served as royal governor of Virginia (1710-1722).

Spot-syl-va-nia (spöt'səl-vān'yə) A village of northeast Virginia southwest of Fredericksburg. It was the site of a major but inconclusive Civil War battle (May 8-21, 1864).

spot-ted (spöt'id) adj. Marked or stained with or as if with spots: a spotted fabric; our spotted honor.

spotted cranesbill (spöt'id krānz'bīl') n. See wild geranium.

spotted fever (spöt'id fē'vər) n. 1. Any of various often fatal infectious diseases, such as typhus and Rocky Mountain spotted fever, characterized by skin eruptions and caused by rickettsia that are transmitted by ticks and mites. 2. An epidemic form of cerebrospinal meningitis.

spotted salamander (spöt'id sāl'ə-măn'dər) n. A common salamander (Ambystoma maculatum) of North America, having a black and yellow body with two rows of yellow spots along the back.

spotted sandpiper (spöt'id sänd'pī'pər) n. A small brownish-gray North American shore bird (Actitis macularia) that in summer acquires white underparts with many small black spots. Also called peetweet spot-ter (spöt'ər) n. 1. One that applies spots. 2. One that looks for, locates, and reports something, as: a. A military or civil defense lookout. b. Informal. A person hired to detect dishonest acts by employees, as in a bank. 3. Sports. a. One who identifies players on the field, as for a radio or television announcer. b. One who is responsible for watching and guarding a performer during practice to prevent injury, as in gymnastics or water-skiing. 4. One employed by a dry cleaner to remove spots.

spot-ty (spöt'tē) adj. spot-ti-er, spot-ti-est. 1. Lacking consistency; uneven. 2. Having or marked with spots; spotted. —spot/ti-ly adv. —spot/ti-ness n.

spot weld·ing (spõt wĕl'dĩng) n. Welding of overlapping pieces of metal at small points by application of great pressure and electric current. —spot'-weld' (spõt'wĕld') v. —spot'-weld'er n.

spou·sal (spou'zəl, -səl) adj. 1. Of or relating to marriage; nuptial. 2. Of or relating to a spouse. — n. Marriage; nuptials. Often used in the plural. [From Middle English spousaille, marriage, from Old French espousaille, from Latin spōnsālia, betrothal, from neuter pl. of spōnsālis, of marriage, from spōnsus, past participle of spōndēre, to pledge. See SPOUSE.]

spousal equivalent or spouse equivalent (spou'zəl ĭ-kwĭv'ə-lənt) adj. One who cohabits and shares responsibility for common welfare with a nonrelative especially of the same sex in an exclusive relationship that one intends to maintain indefinitely: health insurance for spousal equivalents. —spousal equivalence, spousal equivalency n. —spousal equivalent adj.

spouse (spous, spouz) n. A marriage partner; a husband or wife. — v. tr.

spoused, spous·ing, spous·es (spouz, spous). Archaic. To marry; wed. [Middle English, from Old French spous, from Latin spōnsus, from past participle of spōndēre, to pledge. See spend- in Appendix.]

spout (spout) v. spout·ed, spout·ing, spouts. — v. intr. 1. To gush forth in a rapid stream or in spurts. 2. To discharge a liquid or other substance continuously or in spurts. 3. Informal. To speak volubly and tediously. — v. tr. 1. To cause to flow or spurt out. 2. To utter volubly and tediously. 3. Chiefly British. To pawn. — n. 1. A tube, mouth, or pipe through which liquid is released or discharged. 2. A continuous stream of liquid. 3. The burst of spray from the blowhole of a whale. 4. Chiefly British. A pawnshop. [Middle English spouten, ultimately of imitative origin.] —spout'er n.

spout·ing (spou'tĩng) n. Chiefly Pennsylvania & Chiefly New Jersey. See gutter (n., sense 2). See Regional note at gutter.

spp. abbr. Species (plural).

S.P.Q.R. or SPQR abbr. Latin. Senatus Populusque Romanus (the Senate and the people of Rome).

spr. abbr. Spring.

sprach·ge·fühl (shprākH'gə-fül') n. A feeling for language; an ear for the idiomatically correct or appropriate. [German : Sprache, language (from Middle High German sprāche, from Old High German sprāhha) + Gefühl, feeling (from fühlen, to feel, from Middle High German vuelen, from Old High German vuolen); see pōl- in Appendix.]

sprag (spräg) n. 1. a. A piece of wood or metal wedged beneath a wheel or between spokes to keep a vehicle from rolling. b. A pointed stake lowered at an angle into the ground from a vehicle to prevent movement. 2. A prop to support a mine roof. [Perhaps of Scandinavian origin.]

Sprague (sprāg), Frank Julian. 1857-1934. American engineer and inventor. He developed the first electric trolley system (1887) and made advances in electric elevator design.

sprain (sprān) n. 1. A painful wrenching or laceration of the ligaments of a joint. 2. The condition resulting from a sprain. — v. tr. sprained, sprain-ing, sprains. To cause a sprain to (a joint or ligament). [Origin unknown.]

sprang (spräng) v. A past tense of spring.

sprat (sprät) n. 1. A small marine food fish (Clupea sprattus) of northeast Atlantic waters that is eaten fresh or smoked and is often canned in oil as a sardine. Also called brisling. 2. Any of various other similar fishes, such as a young herring. [Middle English sprot, spratte, from Old English sprot.]

sprawl (sprôl) v. sprawled, sprawl-ing, sprawls. — v. intr. 1. To sit or lie with the body and limbs spread out awkwardly. 2. To spread out in a straggling or disordered fashion: untidy tenements sprawling toward the river. — v. tr. To cause to spread out in a straggling or disordered fashion. — n. 1. A sprawling position or posture. 2. Haphazard growth or extension outward, especially that resulting from real estate development on the outskirts of a city: urban sprawl. [Middle English sprawlen, from Old English sprēawlian, to writhe. See sper- in Appendix.] — sprawl'er n.

spray¹ (sprā) n. 1. Water or other liquid moving in a mass of dispersed droplets, as from a wave. 2. a. A fine jet of liquid discharged from a pressurized container. b. A pressurized container; an atomizer. c. Any of numerous commercial products, including paints, cosmetics, and insecticides, that are dispensed from containers in this manner. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: spray paint; a spray can. — v. sprayed, spray-ing, sprays. — v. tr. 1. To disperse (a liquid) in a mass or jet of droplets. 2. To apply a spray to (a surface). — v. intr. 1. To discharge sprays of liquid. 2. To move in the form of a spray. [From obsolete spray, to sprinkle, from Middle Dutch sprayen.] — spray'er n.

spray² (sprā) n. 1. A small branch bearing buds, flowers, or berries. 2. Something, such as a decorative motif, that resembles such a branch. [Middle English, from Old English spræg*.]

spread (sprēd) v. spread, spread-ing, spreads. — v. tr. 1. To open to a fuller extent or width; stretch: spread out the tablecloth; a bird spreading its wings. 2. To make wider the gap between; move farther apart: spread her fingers. 3. a. To distribute over a surface in a layer: spread varnish on the steps. b. To cover with a layer: spread a cracker with butter. 4. a. To distribute widely: The tornado spread destruction. b. To make a wide or extensive arrangement of: We spread the bicycle parts out on the floor. c. To exhibit or display the full extent of: the scene that was spread before us. 5. To cause to become widely seen or known; scatter or disseminate: spread the news; spread the beam of the flashlight. 6. a. To prepare (a table) for eating; set. b. To arrange (food or a meal) on a table. 7. To flatten (a rivet end, for example) by pounding. — v. intr. 1. To be extended or enlarged. 2. To become distributed or widely dispersed. 3. To increase in range of occurrence; become known or prevalent over a wide area: The word spread fast. 4. To be exhibited, displayed, or visible in broad or full extent: the vista spread seemingly to infinity. 5. To become or admit of being distributed in a layer. 6. To become separated; be forced farther apart. — n. 1. a. The act of spreading. b. Dissemination, as of news; diffusion. 2. a. An open area of land; an expanse. b. A ranch, a farm, or an estate. 3. The extent or limit to which something is or can be spread; range. 4. A cloth covering for a bed, table, or other piece of furniture. 5. Informal. An abundant meal laid out on a table. 6. A food to be spread on bread or crackers. 7. a. Two facing pages of a magazine or newspaper, often with related matter extending across the fold. b. A story or advertisement running across two or more columns of a magazine or newspaper. 8. A difference, as between two figures or totals. 9. a. A position taken in two or more options or futures contracts in order to profit from a change in their relative prices. b. The difference between the price asked and bid for a particular security. [Middle English spređen, from Old English -sprædan; see sper- in Appendix, as in tōspræden, to spread out.] — spread'a-bil'i-ty n.

—spread'a-ble adj. —spread'a-bly adv.

spread eagle (sprɛd ē'gəl) n. 1. a. The figure of an eagle with wings and legs spread. b. The emblem on the obverse of the Great Seal of the United States.

2. A posture or design resembling such an emblem or figure.

spread-eagle (sprɛd'ē'gəl) adj. 1. Positioned with the arms and legs stretched out. 2. Informal. Full of patriotic or jingoistic rhetoric. — v. spread-ea-gled, spread-ea-gling, spread-ea-gles. — v. tr. To place in a spread-eagle position, especially as a means of punishment. — v. intr. 1. To assume a spread-eagle position. 2. To make a grandiloquent, patriotic speech.

spread-er (sprɛd'ər) n. One that spreads, as: a. A butter knife. b. A farm or garden implement for scattering fertilizer or seed. c. A device, such as a bar, for keeping wires or stays apart.

spreading factor (sprɛd'ɪŋ fäktər) n. See hyaluronidase.

spread-sheet (sprɛd'shēt') n. Computer Science. 1. An accounting or book-keeping program for a computer. 2. The display, with multiple columns and rows, that such a program allows to be printed.

sprech-stim-me (shprɛkH'shtīm'ə) n. A form of dramatic declamation between singing and speaking, in which the speaker uses lilt and rhythm but not precise pitches. [German : sprechen, to speak (from Middle High German sprēchen, from Old High German sprehhan) + Stimme, voice (from Middle High German stimme, from Old High German stimma).]

spree (sprē) n. 1. A carefree, lively outing. 2. A drinking bout.

3. Overindulgence in an activity. See Synonyms at binge. [Perhaps alteration of Scots spreath, cattle raid, from Irish and Scottish Gaelic spréidh, spré, cattle, wealth, from Middle Irish preit, preid, booty, ultimately from Latin praeda. See ghend- in Appendix.]

WORD HISTORY: A spending spree seems a far cry from a cattle raid, yet etymologists have suggested that the word spree comes from the Scots word spreath, “cattle raid.” The word spree is first recorded in a poem in Scots dialect in 1804 in the sense of “a lively outing.” This sense is closely connected with a sense recorded soon afterward (in 1811), “a drinking bout,” while the familiar sense “an overindulgence in an activity,” as in a spending spree, is recorded in 1849. Scots and Irish dialect also have a sense “a fight,” which may help connect the word and the sense “lively outing” with the Scots word spreath, meaning variously, “booty,” “cattle taken as spoils,” “a herd of cattle taken in a raid,” and “cattle raid.” The Scots word comes from Irish and Scottish Gaelic spréidh, “cattle,” which in turn ultimately comes from Latin praeda, “booty.” This last link reveals both the importance of the Latin language to Gaelic and a connection between cattle and plunder in earlier Irish and Scottish societies.

Spree (sprā, shprā) A river, about 402 km (250 mi) long, of eastern Germany rising near the Czechoslovakian border and flowing generally north to the Havel River at Berlin.

sprī-er (sprī'ər) adj. A comparative of spry.

sprī-est (sprī'ĭst) adj. A superlative of spry.

sprig (sprĭg) n. 1. a. A small shoot or twig of a plant. b. An ornament in this shape. 2. A small brad without a head. 3. A young, immature person. — v. tr.

sprigged, sprig-ging, sprigs. 1. To decorate with a design of sprigs. 2. To remove a sprig or sprigs from (a bush or tree). 3. To fasten with a small headless brad. [Middle English sprigge, alteration of spring, from Old English, source of water.] —sprig'ger n.

spright (sprīt) n. Variant of sprite.

spright-ful (sprīt'fʊl) adj. Full of life; sprightly.

spright-ly (sprīt'lē) adj. spright-li-er, spright-li-est. Full of spirit and vitality; lively; brisk. — adv. In a lively, animated manner. —spright/li-ness n.

sprig-tail (sprĭg'tāl') n. 1. See pintail. 2. See ruddy duck.

spring (sprĭng) v. sprang (sprāŋg) or sprung (sprūŋg), sprung, spring-ing, springs. — v. intr. 1. To move upward or forward in a single quick motion or a series of such motions; leap. 2. To move suddenly on or as if on a spring: The door sprang shut. The emergency room team sprang into action. 3. To appear or come into being quickly: New businesses were springing up rapidly. 4. To issue or emerge suddenly: A cry sprang from her lips. A thought springs to mind. 5. To extend or curve upward, as an arch. 6. To arise from a source; develop. See Synonyms at stem¹. 7. To become warped, split, or cracked. Used of wood. 8. To move out of place; come loose, as parts of a mechanism. 9. Slang. To pay another's expenses: He said he would spring for the dinner. — v. tr. 1. To cause to leap, dart, or come forth suddenly. 2. To jump over; vault. 3. To release from a checked or inoperative position; actuate: spring a trap. 4. a. To cause to warp, split, or crack, as a mast. b. To bend by force. 5. To present or disclose unexpectedly or suddenly: "He sprung on the world this novel approach to political journalism" (Curtis Wilkie). 6. Slang. To cause to be released from prison or other confinement. — n. Abbr. spr. 1. An elastic device, such as a coil of wire, that regains its original shape after being compressed or extended. 2. An actuating force or factor; a motive. 3. a. Elasticity; resilience. b. Energetic bounce: a spring to one's step. 4. The act or an instance of jumping or leaping. 5. A usually rapid return to normal shape after removal of stress; recoil. 6. A small stream of water flowing naturally from the earth. 7. A source, an origin, or a beginning. 8. a. The season of the year, occurring between winter and summer, during which the weather becomes warmer and plants revive, extending in the Northern Hemisphere from the vernal equinox to the summer solstice and popularly considered to comprise March, April, and May. b. A time of growth and renewal. 9. A warping, bending, or cracking, as that caused by excessive force. 10. Architecture. The point at which an arch or a vault rises from its support. — adj. 1. Of or acting like a spring; resilient. 2. Having or supported by springs: a spring mattress. 3. a. Of, having to do with, occurring in, or appropriate to the season of spring: spring showers; spring planting. b. Grown during the season of spring: spring crops. [Middle English springen, from Old English springan. N., Middle English springe from Old English spring, wellspring.]

spring beauty (sprɪŋ byō'tē) n. Any of various succulent, spring-flowering plants of the genus Claytonia, especially C. virginica, of eastern North America, having narrow leaves and racemes of white or pinkish flowers.

spring-board (sprɪŋ'bôrd', -bôrd') n. 1. Sports. a. A flexible board mounted on a fulcrum with one end secured, used by gymnasts to gain momentum, as in vaulting. b. See diving board. 2. Something that helps to launch a career or an activity.

spring-bok (sprɪŋ'bök') also spring-buck (-bük') n. pl. springbok or spring-boks also springbuck or spring-bucks. A small brown and white gazelle (Antidorcas marsupialis) of southern Africa, noted for its habit of repeatedly leaping high into the air when startled. [Afrikaans : spring, to leap up (from Middle Dutch springhen) + bok, male deer (from Middle Dutch boc).]

spring break (sprɪŋ brāk) n. A period of recess, usually lasting one week, during the spring term at school.

spring-buck (sprɪŋg'bük') n. Variant of springbok.

spring chicken (sprɪŋg tʃɪk'ən) n. 1. A young chicken, especially one from two to ten months old, having tender meat. 2. Slang. A young person.

spring-clean-ing (sprɪŋg'klē'nɪŋ) n. A thorough cleaning, especially of a residence when winter is over.

Spring-dale (sprɪŋg'dāl') A city of northwest Arkansas north of Fayetteville. It is a trade, processing, and shipping center. Population, 29,941.

springe (sprɪŋj) n. 1. A device for snaring small game, made by attaching a noose to a branch under tension. 2. A trap or snare. [Middle English, branch, spring. See SPRING.]

spring-er (sprɪŋg'ər) n. 1. A springer spaniel. 2. Western U.S. A cow about to give birth. 3. Architecture. The bottom stone of an arch resting on the impost.

springer spaniel (sprɪŋg'ər spæn'yəl) n. A dog of either of two breeds of spaniels, the English springer spaniel or the Welsh springer spaniel.

spring fever (sprɪŋg fē'vər) n. A feeling of languor or yearning brought on by the coming of spring.

Spring-field (sprɪŋg'fēld') 1. The capital of Illinois, in the central part of the state. It became the state capital in 1837 and is the site of Abraham Lincoln's grave. Population, 105,227. 2. A city of southwest Massachusetts on the Connecticut River near the Connecticut border. Settled in 1636, it is an important manufacturing center. Population, 156,983. 3. A city of southwest Missouri south-southwest of Kansas City. In a resort area of the Ozark Plateau, it is a trade, shipping, and manufacturing hub. Population, 140,494. 4. A township of northeast New Jersey, a mainly residential suburb of Newark. Population, 15,740. 5. A city of west-central Ohio west of Columbus. It grew as a trade and manufacturing center after the completion of the National Road (1838) and the coming of the railroad (mid-1800's). Population, 70,487. 6. A city of west-central Oregon east of Eugene. Near the foothills of the Cascade Range, it is a processing center. Population, 44,683. 7. A community of southeast Pennsylvania, a suburb of Philadelphia. Population, 24,160.

Springfield rifle (sprɪŋg'fēld' rī'fəl) n. A magazine-fed breechloading bolt-action .30-caliber rifle used by the U.S. Army especially in World War I. [After Springfield, Massachusetts.]

spring-form pan (sprɪŋg'fôrm' pän) n. A cake pan having an upright rim that can be unclamped and detached from the bottom of the pan.

spring-halt (sprɪŋg'hôlt') n. See stringhalt. [Alteration of STRINGHALT.]

spring-hare (sprɪŋg'hâr') n. A burrowing nocturnal rodent (Pedetes capensis) of southern Africa, having long powerful hind legs with which it leaps like a kangaroo. [Partial translation of Afrikaans springhaas: spring, to leap up; see SPRING-BOK + haas, hare.]

spring-head (sprɪŋg'hɛd') n. A fountainhead; a source: a society that was the springhead of Western legal thought.

spring-house (sprɪŋg'hous') n. A small storehouse constructed over a spring and used to keep food cool.

spring-let (sprɪŋg'lɪt) n. A small spring of water; a rill.

spring-load-ed (sprɪŋg'lō'dɪd) adj. Secured or loaded by means of a spring.

spring lock (sprɪŋg lɔk) n. A lock in which the bolt shoots automatically by means of a spring.

spring peeper (sprɪŋg pē'pɛr) n. A small, brownish tree frog (Hyla crucifer) of eastern North America, having a characteristic shrill, high-pitched call.

spring roll (sprɪŋg rɔl) n. See egg roll. [Translation of Chinese (Mandarin) chūn juǎn.]

spring-tail (sprɪŋg'tāl') n. Any of various small wingless insects of the order Collembola, having abdominal appendages that act as springs to catapult them through the air. Also called collembolan spring-tide (sprɪŋg'tɪd') n. Springtime.

spring tide (sprɪŋg tɪd) n. 1. The exceptionally high and low tides that occur at the time of the new moon or the full moon when the sun, moon, and earth are approximately aligned. 2. A great flood or rush, as of emotion.

spring-time (sprɪŋg'tɪm') n. The season of spring.

Spring Valley (sprɪŋg vāl'ē) 1. An unincorporated community of southwest California, a residential suburb within the confines of San Diego. Population, 40,191. 2. A village of southeast New York near the New Jersey border west-northwest of White Plains. Mainly residential, it is also a summer resort. Population, 21,802.

spring-wood (sprɪŋg'wōd') n. Young, usually soft wood that lies directly beneath the bark and develops in early spring.

spring-y (sprɪŋg'ē) adj. spring-i-er, spring-i-est. 1. Marked by resilience; elastic. See Synonyms at flexible. 2. Abounding in freshwater springs.

—spring'i-ly adv. —spring'i-ness n.

sprin-kle (sprɪŋg'kəl) v. sprin-kled, sprin-king, sprin-kles. — v. tr. 1. To scatter in drops or particles: sprinkled sugar on the cereal. 2. To scatter drops or particles on. 3. To intersperse with something as if by scattering: sprinkled his speech with quotations. 4. To distribute or intersperse at random. — v. intr.

1. To scatter something in drops or particles. 2. To fall or rain in small or infrequent drops. — n. 1. The act of sprinkling. 2. A light rainfall. 3. A small amount; a sprinkling. 4. sprinkles. Small particles of candy sprinkled on ice cream as a topping. [Middle English sprenklen, perhaps of Middle Dutch or Middle Low German origin.]

sprin-kler (sprɪŋg'klər) n. 1. One that sprinkles, especially: a. An outlet on a sprinkler system. b. A device with perforations through which water issues from a hose to sprinkle a lawn. 2. A sprinkler system. — v. tr. sprin-klered, sprin-klér-ing, sprin-klers. To equip with a sprinkler system.

sprinkler system (sprɪŋg'klər sɪs'təm) n. A fire-extinguishing system consisting of a network of overhead pipes that release water automatically when a predetermined temperature has been reached.

sprin-kling (sprɪŋg'klɪŋ) n. 1. A small amount or quantity; a modicum. 2. A small quantity scattered or sparsely distributed.

sprint (sprɪnt) n. 1. Sports. A short race at top speed. 2. A burst of speed or activity. — v. intr. sprint-ed, sprint-ing, sprints. To run or move at top speed for a brief period. [Possibly alteration of Middle English sprenten, to spring up, of Scandinavian origin; akin to Swedish dialectal sprinta, Old Norse spretta, to jump.] — sprint'er n.

sprit (sprɪt) n. Nautical. 1. A pole that extends diagonally across a fore-and-aft sail from the lower part of the mast to the peak of the sail. 2. A bowsprit. [Middle English, from Old English sprēot, pole. See sper- in Appendix.]

sprite also spright (sprɪt) n. 1. A small or elusive supernatural being; an elf or a pixy. 2. An elflike person. 3. A specter or ghost. 4. Archaic. A soul. [Middle English spreit, from Old French esprit, from Latin spīritus. See SPIRIT.]

sprit-sail (sprɪt'səl, -sāl') n. Nautical. A sail extended by a sprit.

spritz (sprɪts, shprɪts) v. tr. spritzed, spritz-ing, spritz-es. To squirt or spray (something) quickly. — n. A quick squirt or spray, as of carbonated water. [Pennsylvania Dutch schpritze, from Middle High German sprützen, to spray. See sper- in Appendix.]

spritz-er (sprɪt'sər, shprɪt'-) n. A drink made of wine and carbonated water. [German, from spritzen, to spray, from Middle High German sprützen. See sper- in Appendix.]

sprock-et (sprɒk'ɪt) n. 1. Any of various toothlike projections arranged on a wheel rim to engage the links of a chain. 2. A cylinder with a toothed rim that engages in the perforations of photographic or movie film to pull it through a camera or projector. [Origin unknown.]

sprocket wheel (sprɒk'ɪt hwəl) n. A wheel rimmed with toothlike projections, used to engage the links of a chain in a pulley or drive system.

sprout (spraut) v. sprout-ed, sprout-ing, sprouts. — v. intr. 1. To begin to grow; give off shoots or buds. 2. To emerge and develop rapidly. — v. tr. To cause to come forth and grow. — n. 1. Young plant growth, such as a bud or shoot. 2. Something resembling or suggestive of a sprout, as in rapid growth: “a tall blond sprout of a boy” (Anne Tyler). 3. sprouts. Brussels sprouts. [Middle English spruten, from Old English sprūtan. See sper- in Appendix.]

Spru-ance (sprū'əns), Raymond Ames. 1886-1969. American naval officer who was a commander in the Battle of Midway (1942) and commander in chief of the U.S. Pacific fleet (1945-1946).

spruce¹ (sprōōs) n. 1. a. Any of various coniferous evergreen trees of the genus Picea, having needlelike foliage, drooping cones, and soft wood often used for paper pulp. b. Any of various similar or related trees. c. The wood of any of these trees. 2. Color. A grayish green to dark greenish black. [Short for obsolete Spruce fir, Prussian fir, from Middle English spruce, Prussia, alteration of Pruce, from Anglo-Norman Pruz, from Medieval Latin Prussia.]

spruce² (sprōōs) adj. spruc-er, spruc-est. Neat, trim, and smart in appearance. See Synonyms at neat¹. — v. spruced, spruc-ing, spruc-es. — v. tr. To make neat and trim: spruced up the chairs with new slipcovers. — v. intr. To make oneself neat and smart in appearance: He was sprucing for the school dance. [Perhaps from obsolete spruce leather, Prussian leather, from Middle English spruce, Prussia. See SPRUCE¹.] — spruce/ly adv. — spruce/ness n.

spruce budworm (sprōōs būd'wŭrm') n. The highly destructive larva of a tortricid moth (Choristoneura fumiferana) of the northern United States and southern Canada that feeds on the needles, buds, and branch tips of spruce, fir, and other forest conifers.

spruce grouse (sprōōs grous) n. A grouse (Canachites canadensis) that is dark gray barred with black, found in swampy forests of northern North America, and popular as a game bird.

spruce pine (sprōōs pīn) n. See scrub pine (n., sense 1).

sprue (sprōō) n. A chronic, chiefly tropical disease characterized by diarrhea, emaciation, and anemia, caused by defective absorption of nutrients from the intestinal tract. [Dutch spruw, from Middle Dutch sprouwe.]

sprung (sprŭng) v. A past tense and the past participle of sprung.

sprung rhythm (sprŭng rĭth'əm) n. A poetic rhythm designed to imitate the rhythm of speech, in which each foot has one stressed syllable, either standing alone or followed by a varying number of unstressed syllables. [Coined by Gerard Manley HOPKINS.]

spry (sprĭ) adj. sprĭ-er (sprĭ'ər) or spry-er, sprĭ-est (sprĭ'ĭst) or spry-est. Lively, active, and brisk; vigorous. See Synonyms at nimble. [Perhaps of Scandinavian origin; akin to Swedish dialectal sprygg, brisk.] — spry/ly adv. — spry/ness n.

s.p.s. abbr. Latin. Sine prole superstite (without surviving issue).

spt. abbr. Seaport.

spud (spŭd) n. 1. Slang. A potato. 2. A sharp spadelike tool used for rooting or digging out weeds. — v. tr. spud-ded, spud-ding, spuds. 1. To remove with a sharp spadelike tool. 2. To begin drilling operations on: spud an oil well. [Middle English spudde, short knife.]

spue (spyōō) v. & n. Obsolete. Variant of spew.

spume (spyōōm) n. Foam or froth on a liquid, as on the sea. — v. intr.

spumed, spum-ing, spumes. To froth or foam. [Middle English, from Old French espume, from Latin spūma.] —spu'mous, spum'y adj.

spu·mo·ni or spu·mo·ne (spōō-mō'nē) n. An Italian ice cream having layers of different colors or flavors and often containing fruits and nuts. [Italian, augmentative of spuma, foam, from Latin spūma.]

spun (spŭn) v. Past tense and past participle of spin.

spun glass (spŭn glās) n. 1. See fiberglass. 2. Fine blown glass having delicate threading or filigree.

spunk (spŭngk) n. 1. Informal. Spirit; pluck. 2. Punk, touchwood, or other tinder. [Scottish Gaelic spong, tinder, from Latin spongia, sponge. See SPONGE.]

spunk-y (spŭng'kē) adj. spunk-i·er, spunk-i·est. Informal. Spirited; plucky. —spunk'i·ly adv. —spunk'i·ness n.

spun silk (spŭn sĭlk) n. A yarn made from short-fibered silk and silk waste.

spun sugar (spŭn shōōg'ər) n. See cotton candy.

spun yarn (spŭn yārŋ) n. Nautical. A lightweight line made of several rope yarns loosely wound together, used for seizings on board ship.

spur (spŭr) n. 1. A short spike or spiked wheel that attaches to the heel of a rider's boot and is used to urge a horse forward. 2. Something that serves as a goad or an incentive. 3. A spurlike attachment or projection, as: a. A spinelike process on the leg of some birds. b. A climbing iron; a crampon. c. A gaff attached to the leg of a gamecock. d. A short or stunted branch of a tree. e. A bony outgrowth or protuberance. 4. A lateral ridge projecting from a mountain or mountain range. 5. An oblique reinforcing prop or stay of timber or masonry. 6. Botany. A tubular or saclike extension of the corolla or calyx of a flower, as in a columbine or larkspur. 7. An ergot growing on rye. 8. A spur track. — v. spurred, spur-ring, spurs. — v. tr. 1. To urge (a horse) on by the use of spurs. 2. To incite or stimulate: "A business tax cut is needed to spur industrial investment" (New York Times). — v. intr. 1. To ride quickly by spurring a horse. 2. To proceed in haste. [Middle English spure, from Old English spura. See spērə- in Appendix.]

spurge (spŭrj) n. Any of various plants of the genus Euphorbia, characteristically having milky juice and small unisexual flowers that are surrounded by a cuplike structure composed of fused bracts. [Middle English, from Old French espurge, from espurgier, to purge (from its use as a purgative), from Latin expŭrgāre. See EXPURGATE.]

spur gear (spŭr gĭr) n. A gear with teeth radially arrayed on the rim parallel to its axis.

spurge laurel (spŭrj lôr'əl) n. A low-growing, evergreen Eurasian shrub (Daphne laureola) having glossy leaves and small yellowish-green flowers.

spu·ri·ous (spyōōr'ē-əs) adj. 1. Lacking authenticity or validity in essence or origin; not genuine; false. 2. Of illegitimate birth. 3. Botany. Similar in appearance but unlike in structure or function. Used of plant parts. [From Late Latin spurius, from Latin, illegitimate, probably of Etruscan origin.] —spu'ri·ous·ly adv. —spu'ri·ous·ness n.

spurious wing (spyōōr'ē-əs wɪŋ) n. See alula.

spurn (spûrn) v. spurned, spurn·ing, spurns. — v. tr. 1. To reject disdainfully or contemptuously; scorn. See Synonyms at refuse¹. 2. To kick at or tread on disdainfully. — v. intr. To reject something contemptuously. — n. 1. A contemptuous rejection. 2. Archaic. A kick. [Middle English spurnen, from Old English spurnan. See spērə- in Appendix.] —spurn'er n.

spur-of-the-moment (spûr'əv-thə-mō'mənt) adj. Occurring or made hastily on impulse: a spur-of-the-moment choice.

spurred (spûrd) adj. 1. Wearing spurs: Spurred riders sat astride sleek mares. 2. Having spurs or a spur: spurred flowers; spurred boots.

spur·ry also spur·rey (spûr'ē, spŭr'ē) n. pl. spur·ries also spur·reys. Any of several weedy, low-growing herbs of the genera Spergula or Spergularia, especially Spergula arvensis native to Europe, having linear whorled leaves and small white flowers. [Dutch spurrie, from Middle Dutch speurie, probably from Medieval Latin spergula, probably from Latin spargere, to scatter.]

spur shoot (spûr shōōt) n. A slow-growing, much reduced, short shoot, as in the ginkgo, larch, and cedar.

spurt (spûrt) n. 1. A sudden forcible gush or jet. 2. A sudden short burst, as of energy or activity. — v. spurt·ed, spurt·ing, spurts. — v. intr. 1. To gush forth suddenly in a jet. 2. To make a brief intense effort. — v. tr. To force out in a sudden jet. [Origin unknown.]

spur track (spûr trāk) n. A short side track that connects with the main track of a railroad system.

spu·ta (spyōō'tə) n. Plural of sputum.

sput·nik (spōōt'nĭk, spŭt'-, spōōt'nyĭk) n. Any of a series of Soviet satellites sent into Earth orbit, especially the first, launched October 4, 1957. [Russian sputnik (zemlyi), fellow traveler (of Earth) : so-, s-, together; see ksun in Appendix + put', path, way; see pent- in Appendix + -nik, n. suff.] sput·ter (spŭt'ər) v. sput·tered, sput·ter·ing, sput·ters. — v. intr. 1. To spit out or spray particles of saliva or food from the mouth in noisy bursts. 2. To spit out words or sounds in an excited or confused manner. 3. To make sporadic spitting or popping sounds: The fire sputtered and died. 4. Physics. To cause the atoms of a solid to be removed from the surface by bombardment with atoms in a discharge tube. — v. tr. 1. To eject in short bursts with spitting or popping sounds. 2. To utter in an excited or confused manner. 3. Physics. To coat (a solid surface) with metal atoms by sputtering. — n. 1. The act or sound of sputtering. 2. Matter emitted in sputtering. 3. Excited or confused utterance. [Probably of Low German origin; akin to Dutch sputteren.] —sput/ter-er n.

—sput/ter-y adj.

spu·tum (spyōō/'təm) n. pl. spu·ta (-tə). Matter coughed up and usually ejected from the mouth, including saliva, foreign material, and substances such as mucus or phlegm, from the respiratory tract. [Latin spūtum, from neuter past participle of spuere, to spit.]

Spuy·ten Duy·vil Creek (spīt/'n dī/'vəl krēk) A narrow channel in southeast New York separating northern Manhattan Island from the mainland and linking the Harlem and Hudson rivers.

spy (spī) n. pl. spies (spīz). 1. An agent employed by a state to obtain secret information, especially of a military nature, concerning its potential or actual enemies. 2. One employed by a company to obtain confidential information about its competitors. 3. One who secretly keeps watch on another or others. 4. An act of spying. — v. spied (spīd), spy·ing, spies (spīz). — v. tr. 1. To observe secretly with hostile intent. 2. To discover by close observation. 3. To catch sight of: spied the ship on the horizon. 4. To investigate intensively. — v. intr. 1. To engage in espionage. 2. To seek or observe something secretly and closely. 3. To make a careful investigation: spying into other people's activities. [Middle English spie, from Old French espie, from espier, to watch, of Germanic origin. See spek- in Appendix.]

spy·glass (spī/'gläs') n. 1. A small telescope. 2. A pair of binoculars. Often used in the plural.

spy·mas·ter (spī/'mäs'tər) n. One who directs clandestine intelligence activities.

Spy·ri (spîr/'ē, shpîr/'ē), Johanna. 1827?-1901. Swiss writer whose best-known children's story is Heidi (1880).

sq. abbr. 1. Squadron. 2. Square.

squab (skwōb) n. 1. A young, newly hatched, or unfledged pigeon. 2. a. A soft, thick cushion, as for a couch. b. A couch. — adj. Young and undeveloped; newly hatched or unfledged: a squab chick. [Probably of Scandinavian origin.]

squab·ble (skwōb/'əl) v. intr. squab·bled, squab·bling, squab·bles. To engage in a disagreeable argument, usually over a trivial matter; wrangle. See Synonyms at argue. — n. A noisy quarrel, usually about a trivial matter. [Probably of Scandinavian origin; akin to Swedish dialectal squabb, fat flesh.]

—squab'bler n.

squad (skwōd) n. 1. A small group of people organized in a common endeavor or activity. 2. The smallest tactical unit of military personnel. 3. A small unit of police officers. 4. Sports. An athletic team. [Obsolete French esquade, from Old French escadre, from Old Spanish escuadra, and Old Italian squadra both from Vulgar Latin exquadra*, square. See SQUARE.]

squad car (skwöd kär) n. A police automobile connected by radio with headquarters. Also called cruiser, patrol car, prowl car.

squad-ron (skwöd'rən) n. Abbr. sq. 1. A naval unit consisting of two or more divisions of a fleet. 2. An armored cavalry unit subordinate to a regiment and consisting of two or more troops. 3. A basic tactical air force unit, subordinate to a group and consisting of two or more flights. 4. An organized multitude: "Squadrons of flies like particles of dust danced up and down" (T.E. Lawrence). [Italian squadrone, augmentative of squadra, squad. See SQUAD.] squad room (skwöd rōom) n. 1. A room in a police station where officers assemble, as for assignment or briefing. 2. A room in a barracks in which a number of troops are lodged.

squa-lene (skwā'lēn') n. A colorless unsaturated aliphatic hydrocarbon, C₃₀H₅₀, found especially in human sebum and in the liver oil of sharks, that is an intermediate in the biosynthesis of cholesterol and is used in biochemical research. [New Latin Squalus, shark genus (from its occurrence in the liver oil of sharks) (from Latin squalus, a sea fish) + -ENE.]

squal-id (skwōl'id) adj. 1. Dirty and wretched, as from poverty or lack of care. See Synonyms at dirty. 2. Morally repulsive; sordid: "the squalid atmosphere of intrigue, betrayal, and counterbetrayal" (W. Bruce Lincoln). [Latin squālidus, from squālēre, to be filthy, from squālus, filthy.] —squal'id-ly adv.

—squal'id-ness, squa-lid'i-ty (skwō-lid'ī-tē) n.

squall¹ (skwōl) n. A loud, harsh cry. — v. intr. squalled, squall-ing, squalls. To scream or cry loudly and harshly. [Probably of Scandinavian origin; akin to Old Norse skvala, to squeal.] —squall'er n.

squall² (skwōl) n. 1. A brief, sudden, violent windstorm, often accompanied by rain or snow. 2. Informal. A brief commotion. — v. intr. squalled, squall-ing, squalls. To blow strongly for a brief period. [Probably of Scandinavian origin.]

squall line (skwōl līn) n. A line of thunderstorms preceding a cold front.

squall-y (skwō'lē) adj. squall-i-er, squall-i-est. 1. Characterized by gusts of wind. 2. Informal. Marked by commotion or disturbance.

squal-or (skwōl'ər) n. A filthy and wretched condition or quality. [Latin squālor, from squālēre, to be filthy. See SQUALID.]

squa-ma (skwā'mə, skwä'-) n. pl. squa-mae (-mē'). 1. A scale or scalelike structure. 2. A thin platelike mass, as of bone. [Latin squāma.] —squa'mate' (-māt') adj.

squa-ma-tion (skwə-mā'shən) n. 1. The condition of being scaly. 2. An arrangement of scales, as on a fish.

squa-mi-form (skwā'mə-fōrm') adj. Having the shape of scales or a scale.

squa·mo·sal (skwə-mō'səl) adj. Of or relating to the thin, platelike part of the human temporal bone or to a corresponding part in other vertebrates. — n. A squamosal bone. [From Latin squāmōsus, squamous. See SQUAMOUS.]

squa·mous (skwā'məs, skwä'-) also squa·mose (-mōs') adj. 1. Covered with or formed of scales; scaly. 2. Resembling a scale or scales; thin and flat like a scale: the squamous cells of the cervix. 3. Of or relating to the thin, platelike part of the temporal bone. [Latin squāmōsus, from squāma, scale.] —squa'mous-ly adv. —squa'mous-ness n.

squamous cell carcinoma (skwā'məs sĕl kār'sə-nō'mə) n. A carcinoma that arises from squamous epithelium and is the most common form of skin cancer. Also called cancroid squamous epithelium (skwā'məs ĕp'ə-thĕ'lĕ-əm) n. Epithelium consisting of one or more cell layers, the most superficial of which is composed of flat, scalelike or platelike cells.

squa·mule (skwā'myool, skwä'-) n. A small, loosely attached thallus lobe of certain lichens. [Latin squāmula, diminutive of squāma, scale.]

squa·mu·lose (skwā'myə-lōs', skwä'-) adj. 1. Having or consisting of minute scales. 2. Having a thallus consisting of numerous squamules. Used of certain lichens. [Latin squāmula, diminutive of squāma, scale + -OSE¹.]

squan·der (skwŏn'dər) v. tr. squan·dered, squan·der·ing, squan·ders.

1. To spend wastefully or extravagantly; dissipate. See Synonyms at waste.

2. Obsolete. To scatter. — n. Extravagant expenditure; prodigality. [Origin unknown.] —squan'der·er n. —squan'der·ing·ly adv.

Squan·to (skwŏn'tō), Died 1622. Native American who helped the English colonists in Massachusetts develop agricultural techniques and served as an interpreter between the colonists and the Wampanoag.

square (skwâr) n. Abbr. sq. 1. A plane figure having four equal sides.

2. Something having an equal-sided rectangular form: a square of cloth. 3. A T-shaped or L-shaped instrument for drawing or testing right angles.

4. Mathematics. The product obtained when a number or quantity is multiplied by itself. 5. Games. Any of the quadrilateral spaces on a board, as in chess.

6. a. An open, usually four-sided area at the intersection of two or more streets, often planted with grass and trees for use as a park. b. A rectangular space enclosed by streets and occupied by buildings; a block. 7. Slang. A person who is regarded as dull, rigidly conventional, and out of touch with current trends. — adj. squar·er, squar·est. 1. Having four equal sides and four right angles.

2. Forming a right angle. 3. a. Expressed in units measuring area: square feet.

b. Having a specified length in each of two equal dimensions. 4. Nautical. Set at right angles to the mast and keel. Used of the yards of a square-rigged ship.

5. Approximately rectangular and equilateral in cross section: a square house.

6. Characterized by blocklike solidity or sturdiness. 7. Honest; direct: a square answer. 8. Just; equitable: a square deal. 9. Having been paid up; settled.

10. Sports. Even; tied. 11. Slang. Rigidly conventional; dull. — v. squared, squaring, squares. — v. tr. 1. To cut to a square or rectangular shape. 2. To test for conformity to a desired plane, straight line, or right angle. 3. To mark into squares. Often used with off. 4. a. To bring into conformity or agreement: She could not square the request with her principles. b. To bring (oneself) into a better position or relation: He tried to square himself with his parents. 5. To set straight or at approximate right angles: square one's cap. 6. To bring into balance; settle: square a debt. 7. Sports. To even the score of: to square a game.

8. Mathematics. a. To raise (a number or quantity) to the second power. b. To find a square equal in area to (the area of a given figure). 9. Informal. To bribe or fix: a party in litigation that tried to square the judge. — v. intr. 1. Mathematics. To be at right angles. 2. To agree or conform: a story that doesn't square with the facts. — adv. 1. Mathematics. At right angles. 2. In a square shape. 3. In a solid manner; firmly. 4. Directly; straight: ran square into each other. 5. In an honest, straightforward manner. —phrasal verbs. square away.

1. Nautical. To square the yards of a sailing vessel. 2. To put away or in order. square off. To assume a fighting stance; prepare to fight. square up. To settle a bill or debt. —idioms. on the square. 1. Mathematics. At right angles.

2. Honestly and openly: has always dealt on the square. out of square.

3. Mathematics. Not at exact right angles. 4. Not in agreement. square peg in a round hole. Informal. A misfit. [Middle English, from Old French esquarre, from Vulgar Latin exquadra*, from exquadrāre*, to square : Latin ex-, ex- + quadrāre, to square (from quadrūm, a square); see k^wetwer- in Appendix.]

—square/ly adv. —square/ness n. —squar'er n.

square bracket (skwâr bräk'it) n. See bracket (n., sense 4a).

square dance (skwâr dāns) n. 1. A dance in which sets of four couples form squares. 2. Any of various similar group dances of rural origin. —square/dance' (skwâr'dāns') v. —square dancer n. —square danc'ing n.

square knot (skwâr nŏt) n. A common double knot in which the loose ends are parallel to the standing parts, most often used to join the ends of two cords or lines.

square matrix (skwâr mǎ'trīks) n. Mathematics. A matrix with equal numbers of rows and columns.

square meal (skwâr mēl) n. A substantial, nourishing meal.

square measure (skwâr mēzh'ər) n. A system of units used in measuring area.

square one (skwâr wŭn) n. Informal. The starting point. [Alluding to board games with numbered squares in which a penalized player may have to return to the starting point.]

square-rigged (skwâr'rigd') adj. Nautical. Fitted with square sails as the principal sails.

square-rig-ger (skwâr'rig'ər) n. Nautical. A square-rigged vessel.

square root (skwâr rōōt) n. Mathematics. A divisor of a quantity that when squared gives the quantity.

square sail (skwâr sāl) n. Nautical. A four-sided sail extended by a yard suspended horizontally across the mast.

square shooter (skwâr shōō'tər) n. Informal. One who is honest, forthright, and fair.

square-tail (skwâr'tāl') n. See brook trout.

squar-ish (skwâr'ish) adj. Somewhat or almost square. —squar'ish-ly adv.
—squar'ish-ness n.

squar-rose (skwār'ōs', skwār'-) adj. 1. Biology. Having rough or spreading scalelike processes. 2. Botany. Spreading or recurved at the tip: squarrose bracts. [Latin squarrōsus, scabby.]

squash¹ (skwōsh, skwōsh) n. 1. Any of various tendril-bearing plants of the genus Cucurbita, having fleshy edible fruit with a leathery rind and unisexual flowers. 2. The fruit of any of these plants, eaten as a vegetable. [From alteration of Narragansett askútasquash.]

squash² (skwōsh, skwōsh) v. squashed, squash-ing, squash-es. — v. tr. 1. To beat, squeeze, or press into a pulp or a flattened mass; crush. See Synonyms at crush. 2. To put down or suppress; quash: squash a revolt. 3. To silence or fluster, as with crushing words: squash a heckler. — v. intr. 1. To become crushed, flattened, or pulpy, as by pressure or impact. 2. To move with a splashing or sucking sound, as when walking through boggy ground. — n. 1. a. The act or sound of squashing. b. The fact or condition of being squashed. 2. A crushed or crowded mass: a squash of people. 3. Sports. A racket game played in a closed walled court with a rubber ball. 4. Chiefly British. A citrus-based soft drink. — adv. With a squashing sound. [Middle English squachen, from Old French esquasser, from Vulgar Latin exquassāre*: Latin ex-, intensive pref.; see EX- + Latin quassāre, to shatter, frequentative of quātere, to shake; see kwēt- in Appendix.] —squash'er n.

squash bug (skwōsh būg) n. A blackish North American insect (Anasa tristis) that is destructive to squash, pumpkins, and other crops.

squash-y (skwōsh'yē, skwō'shē) adj. squash-i-er, squash-i-est. 1. Easily squashed. 2. Overripe and soft; pulpy. 3. Boggy; marshy: squashy ground. —squash'i-ly adv. —squash'i-ness n.

squat (skwōt) v. squat-ted, squat-ting, squats. — v. intr. 1. To sit in a crouching position with knees bent and the hams resting on or near the heels. 2. To crouch down, as an animal does. 3. To settle on unoccupied land without legal claim. 4. To occupy a given piece of public land in order to acquire title to it.

— v. tr. 1. To put (oneself) into a crouching posture. 2. To occupy as a squatter.
— adj. squat·ter, squat·test. 1. Short and thick; low and broad. 2. Crouched in a squatting position. — n. 1. The act of squatting. 2. A squatting or crouching posture. 3. Sports. A lift or a weightlifting exercise in which one squats and stands while holding a weighted barbell supported by the back of the shoulders. 4. The place occupied by a squatter. 5. The lair of an animal such as a hare. [Middle English squatten, from Old French esquatir, to crush : es-, intensive pref. (from Latin ex-); see EX- + quatir, to press flat (from Vulgar Latin coāctīre*, from Latin coāctus, past participle of cōgere, to compress : co-, co- + agere, to drive); see ag- in Appendix.] —squat'er n.

squaw (skwô) n. Offensive. 1. A Native American woman, especially a wife. 2. A woman or wife. [Massachusetts squa, younger woman.]

squaw·fish (skwô'fish') n. pl. squawfish or squaw·fish·es. Any of several large cyprinid freshwater fishes of the genus Ptychocheilus, of western North America.

squawk (skwôk) v. squawked, squawk·ing, squawks. — v. intr. 1. To utter a harsh scream; screech. 2. Informal. To complain or protest noisily or peevishly. — v. tr. To utter with or as if with a squawk. — n. 1. A loud screech. 2. A noisy complaint. [Imitative.] —squawk'er n.

squawk box (skwôk böks) n. Informal. The speaker on an intercom or a public-address system.

squaw man (skwô măn) n. Offensive. A white or other non-Native American man having a Native American wife and usually living with her people.

squaw·root (skwô'rōōt', -rōōt') n. 1. An eastern North American plant (Conopholis americana) parasitic on the roots of oaks and other trees and having tubular yellowish flowers and a stem covered with brownish scales. 2. An eastern North American plant (Trillium erectum) having ill-smelling, purple to yellow flowers with three petals and dark red, six-angled fruit.

Squaw Valley (skwô văl'ē) A valley of northeast California in the Sierra Nevada west of Lake Tahoe. A popular ski resort, it was the site of the 1960 Winter Olympics.

squeak (skwēk) v. squeaked, squeak·ing, squeaks. — v. intr. 1. To give forth a short, shrill cry or sound. 2. Slang. To turn informer. — v. tr. To utter in a thin, shrill voice. — n. 1. A short shrill cry or sound, such as that made by a mouse or a rusty hinge. 2. An escape: a close squeak. —phrasal verb.

squeak through (or squeak by). To manage barely to pass, win, or survive: squeaked through the test; squeaks by on a limited income. [Middle English squeken, perhaps of Scandinavian origin; akin to Old Norse skvakka, to croak.]

squeak·er (skwē'kər) n. 1. One that squeaks. 2. Informal. Something, such as an election, that is won, passed, or achieved by the narrowest of margins or at the very last moment.

squeak·y (skwē'kē) adj. squeak·i·er, squeak·i·est. 1. Characterized by squeaking tones: a squeaky voice. 2. Tending to squeak: squeaky shoes.

—squeak'ily adv. —squeak'iness n.

squeak·y·clean (skwē'kē-klēn') adj. Informal. 1. Perfectly clean: squeaky-clean hair. 2. Free from moral fault or taint; untarnished and virtuous: "Despite its squeaky-clean image, [the agency] suffered waste and inefficiency" (William D. Marbach).

squeal (skwēl) v. squealed, squeal·ing, squeals. — v. intr. 1. To give forth a loud, shrill cry or sound. 2. Slang. To turn informer; betray an accomplice or a secret. — v. tr. To utter or produce with a squeal. — n. A loud, shrill cry or sound: a squeal of surprise; the squeal of tires. [Middle English squelen, probably of imitative origin.] —squeal'er n.

squea·mish (skwē'mīsh) adj. 1. a. Easily nauseated or sickened. b. Nauseated. 2. Easily shocked or disgusted. 3. Excessively fastidious or scrupulous. [Middle English squeimous, alteration of Anglo-Norman escoymous.]

—squea'mish·ly adv. —squea'mish·ness n.

squee·gee (skwē'jē) n. 1. A T-shaped implement having a crosspiece edged with rubber or leather that is drawn across a surface to remove water, as in washing windows. 2. Printing. A similar implement or a rubber roller used in printing and photography. — v. tr. squee·geed, squee·gee·ing, squee·gees. To wipe or smooth with a squeegee. [Perhaps from obsolete squeege, to press, alteration of SQUEEZE.]

squeeze (skwēz) v. squeezed, squeez·ing, squeez·es. — v. tr. 1. To press hard on or together; compress. 2. To press gently, as in affection: squeezed her hand. 3. To exert pressure on, as by way of extracting liquid: squeeze an orange. 4. To extract by or as if by applying pressure: squeeze juice from a lemon; squeezed a confession out of a suspect. 5. To extract by dishonest means; extort. 6. To oppress with burdensome demands. 7. To obtain room for by pressure; cram: squeezed her books into the briefcase. 8. To manage to find time or space for. 9. Games. To force (an opponent) to use a potentially winning card in a trick he or she cannot take in bridge. — v. intr. 1. To give way under pressure. 2. To exert pressure. 3. To force one's way: squeeze through a crowd; squeeze into a tight space. — n. 1. The act or an instance of squeezing. 2. An amount squeezed out: a squeeze of lemon. 3. A handclasp or brief embrace. 4. A group crowded together; a crush. 5. Informal. A squeeze play. 6. Financial pressure caused by shortages or narrowing economic margins. 7. Games. A forced discard of a potentially winning card in bridge. —phrasal verbs. squeeze off. To fire (a round of bullets) by squeezing the trigger. squeeze through (or squeeze by). To manage narrowly to pass, win, or survive. [Probably alteration of obsolete quease, to press, from Middle English queisen, from Old English cwȳsan.] —squeez'a·ble adj. —squeez'er n.

squeeze-box (skwēz'böks') n. Music. An accordian.

squeeze play (skwēz plā) n. 1. Baseball. A play in which the batter attempts to bunt so that a runner on third base may score. 2. Informal. Pressure exerted to obtain a concession or achieve a goal.

sqelch (skwělch) v. sqelched, sqelch-ing, sqelch-es. — v. tr. 1. To crush by or as if by trampling; squash. 2. To put down or silence, as with a crushing retort: sqelch a rumor. — v. intr. To produce a splashing, squishing, or sucking sound, as when walking through ooze. — n. 1. A squishing sound. 2. A crushing reply. 3. An electric circuit that cuts off a radio receiver when the signal is too weak for reception of anything but noise. [Probably imitative.]
—sqelch'er n.

sque-teague (skwī-tēg') n. pl. squeteague. 1. See weakfish. 2. Any of several fishes related to the weakfish. [Of Algonquian origin.]

squib (skwīb) n. 1. a. A small firecracker. b. A broken firecracker that burns but does not explode. 2. a. A brief satirical or witty writing or speech, such as a lampoon. b. A short, sometimes humorous piece in a newspaper or magazine, usually used as a filler. — v. squibbed, squib-bing, squibs. — v. intr. To write or utter squibs. — v. tr. 1. To write or utter squibs against; lampoon. 2. Football. To kick (the ball) low on a kickoff so that it bounces along the ground. [Probably imitative.]

squib kick (skwīb kīk) n. Football. A kickoff in which the ball is kicked low so that it will bounce along the ground, making it difficult to field and return.

squid (skwid) n. pl. squids or squid. Any of various marine cephalopod mollusks of the genus Loligo and related genera, having a usually elongated body, ten arms surrounding the mouth, a vestigial internal shell, and a pair of triangular or rounded fins. [Origin unknown.]

squig-gle (skwig'gl) n. A small wiggly mark or scrawl. — v. intr.

squig-gled, squig-gling, squig-gles. 1. To squirm and wriggle. 2. To make squiggles. [Perhaps blend of SQUIRM, and WIGGLE.] —squig'gly adj.

squill (skwīl) n. 1. Any of several bulbous Eurasian and African plants of the genus Scilla, having narrow leaves and bell-shaped blue, white, or pink flowers.

2. See sea onion (n., sense 1). 3. The dried inner scales of the bulbs of any of these plants, used as rat poison and formerly as a cardiac stimulant, expectorant, and diuretic. [Middle English, from Latin scilla, squilla, shrimp, squill, from Greek skilla.]

squill-la (skwīl'ə) n. pl. squill-las or squill-lae (skwīl'ē'). Any of various burrowing predatory marine crustaceans of the order Stomatopoda, having movable stalked eyes and a pair of jointed grasping appendages. Also called mantis crab, mantis shrimp. [New Latin Squilla, genus name, from Latin squilla, shrimp. See SQUILL.]

squinch¹ (skwĩnch) n. A quarter-spherical segment of masonry vaulting or corbeling carried across an interior angle of a square tower to support a circular or octagonal superstructure. [Alteration of scuncheon, from Middle English sconchon, from Old French escoinson : es-, out of (from Latin ex-); see EX- + coin, angle, wedge; see COIN.]

squinch² (skwĩnch) v. tr. squinned, squinch-ing, squinch-es. To squeeze, twist, or draw together: squinned her eyes shut. [Alteration of SQUINT.]

squint (skwĩnt) v. squint-ed, squint-ing, squints. — v. intr. 1. To look with the eyes partly closed, as in bright sunlight. 2. a. To look or glance sideways. b. To look askance, as in disapproval. 3. To have an indirect reference or inclination. 4. To be affected with strabismus. — v. tr. 1. To cause to squint. 2. To close (the eyes) partly while looking. — n. 1. The act or an instance of squinting. 2. a. A sideways glance. b. A quick look or glance: Take a squint at this view. 3. An oblique reference or inclination. 4. See strabismus. 5. A hagnioscope. — adj. 1. Looking obliquely or askance. 2. Squint-eyed. [Short for ASQUINT.] — squint'er n. — squint'y adj.

squint-eyed (skwĩnt'id') adj. 1. Affected with strabismus. 2. Looking with narrowed or squinting eyes. 3. Looking askance, as in envy.

squir-ar-chy (skwĩr'är'kē) n. Variant of squirearchy.

squire (skwĩr) n. 1. A man who attends or escorts a woman; a gallant. 2. An English country gentleman, especially the chief landowner in a district. 3. A judge or another local dignitary. 4. A young nobleman attendant upon a knight and ranked next below a knight in feudal hierarchy. — v. tr. squired, squir-ing, squires. To attend as a squire; escort. [Middle English squier, from Old French esquier. See ESQUIRE.]

squire-ar-chy or squir-ar-chy (skwĩr'är'kē) n. pl. squire-ar-chie. The landed gentry considered as a group or class.

squirm (skwũrm) v. intr. squirmed, squirm-ing, squirms. 1. To twist about in a wriggling, snakelike motion; writhe. 2. To feel or exhibit signs of humiliation or embarrassment. See Synonyms at writhe. — n. 1. The act of squirming. 2. A squirming movement. [Origin unknown.] — squirm'er n. — squirm'y adj.

squir-rel (skwũr'əl, skwũr'-) n. 1. Any of various arboreal rodents of the genus Sciurus and related genera of the family Sciuridae, having a long flexible bushy tail and including the fox squirrel, gray squirrel, and red squirrel. Also called tree squirrel. 2. Any of various other rodents of the family Sciuridae, as the ground squirrel or the flying squirrel. 3. The fur of one of these rodents. — v. tr. squir-reled or squir-relled, squir-rel-ing or squir-rel-ling, squir-rels or squir-rels. To hide or store: squirreled away her money. [Middle English squirel, from Anglo-Norman esquirel, from Vulgar Latin scūriolus*, diminutive of squirrel corn (skwûr'əl kôrn) n. A low-growing North American plant (Dicentra canadensis) having finely divided basal leaves, fragrant whitish flowers tinged with purple, and small yellow tubers resembling grains of corn.

·scūrius, alteration of Latin sciūrus, from Greek skiouros : skia, shadow + oura, tail; see ors- in Appendix.]

squir·rel·fish (skwûr'əl-fîsh', skwûr'-) n. pl. squirrelfish or squir·rel·fish·es. Any of various nocturnal fishes of the genus Holocentrus and related genera, of warm marine waters, having large eyes like those of squirrels and a usually brightly colored body.

squir·rel·ly (skwûr'ə-lē, skwûr'-) adj. Slang. 1. Eccentric. 2. Cunningly unforthcoming or reticent.

squirrel monkey (skwûr'əl mŭng'kē) n. Any of several small, brightly colored arboreal monkeys of the genus Saimiri, widely distributed in South and Central American tropical forest regions, having a white face with black nose and mouth, short fur, and a long nonprehensile tail.

squirt (skwûrt) v. squirt·ed, squirt·ing, squirts. — v. intr. 1. To issue forth in a thin forceful stream or jet; spurt. 2. To eject liquid in a jet. — v. tr. 1. To eject (liquid) forcibly in a thin stream from a narrow opening. 2. To wet with a spurt of liquid. — n. 1. The act of squirting. 2. An instrument, such as a syringe, used for squirting. 3. A squirted jet of liquid. [Middle English squirten, possibly of Middle Dutch or Middle Low German origin; akin to Low German swirtjen.] — squirt'er n.

squirt gun (skwûrt gŭn) n. A toy gun designed to squirt a stream of water. Also called water gun, water pistol.

squirt·ing cucumber (skwûr'tîng kyōō'kŭm'bər) n. A hairy Mediterranean vine (Ecballium elaterium) having fruit that when ripe discharges its seeds and juice explosively.

squish (skwîsh) v. squished, squish·ing, squish·es. — v. tr. To squeeze or crush together or into a flat mass; squash. — v. intr. To emit the gurgling or sucking sound of soft mud being walked on. — n. 1. A squishing sound. 2. Slang. A person regarded as weak and ineffective. [Probably alteration of SQUASH².]

squish·y (skwîsh'ē) adj. squish·i·er, squish·i·est. 1. Soft and wet; spongy. 2. Sloppily sentimental.

sr abbr. Steradian.

Sr The symbol for the element strontium.

Sr. abbr. 1. Or sr. Senior. 2. Señor. 3. Ecclesiastical. Sister (religious).

Sra. abbr. Señora.

Sra·nan (srä'nən) n. See Sranantongo.

Sra·nan·ton·go (srä'nən-töng'gō) n. A creole based on English, spoken in coastal Suriname and widely used as a lingua franca. Also called Sranan, taki-taki. [Sranantongo : Sranan, Suriname + tongo, tongue (from English TONGUE).]

Sri Lan·ka (srē läng'kə) Formerly Cey·lon (sī-lōn', sā-). An island country in the Indian Ocean off southeast India. Inhabited from ancient times, the island attracted Arab, Portuguese, Dutch, and British traders for its wealth of spices. It became a British colony in 1798 and achieved independence in 1948. Colombo is the capital and the largest city. Population, 14,848,364. —Sri Lan'kan adj. & n.

Sri·na·gar (srē-nüg'ər) A city of northern India on the Jhelum River north of Amritsar. Founded in the sixth century A.D., it has long been a noted resort. Population, 594,775.

sRNA n. Soluble RNA.

SRO abbr. 1. Single room occupancy. 2. Standing room only.

Srta. abbr. Señorita.

SS¹ (ēs'ēs') n. Latin. An elite quasi-military unit of the Nazi party that served as Hitler's personal guard and as a special security force in Germany and the occupied countries. [German, abbr. for Schutzstaffel : Schutz, defense + Staffel, echelon.]

SS² abbr. Latin. Saints.

ss. abbr. 1. Or ss. Scilicet. 2. Semis (one half).

S.S. abbr. 1. Social Security. 2. Or SS. Steamship. 3. Sunday school. 4. Sworn statement.

s/s abbr. Same size.

SSA abbr. Social Security Administration.

SSE abbr. South-southeast.

S.Sgt. or SSGT abbr. Staff sergeant.

SSI abbr. Supplemental Security Income.

ssp. abbr. Subspecies.

S.S.R. or SSR abbr. Soviet Socialist Republic.

SST abbr. Supersonic transport.

SSW abbr. South-southwest.

ST abbr. Standard time.

st. abbr. 1. Stanza. 2. Start. 3. State. 4. Or St. Statute. 5. Printing. Stet. 6. Stitch. 7. Stone (weight). 8. Or St. Strait. 9. Or St. Street. 10. Strophe.

St. abbr. Saint.

s.t. abbr. Short ton.

-st suff. Variant of -est².

sta. abbr. 1. Station. 2. Stationary.

stab (stāb) v. stabbed, stab·bing, stabs. — v. tr. 1. To pierce or wound with or as if with a pointed weapon. 2. To plunge (a pointed weapon or instrument) into something. 3. To make a thrusting or poking motion at or into:

stabbed the air with his fingers. — v. intr. 1. To thrust with or as if with a pointed weapon: stabbed at the food with her fork. 2. To inflict a wound with or as if with a pointed weapon. — n. 1. A thrust with a pointed weapon or instrument. 2. A wound inflicted with or as if with a pointed weapon. 3. A sudden piercing pain. 4. An attempt; a try: made a stab at the answer. — idiom. stab (someone) in the back. To harm (someone) by treachery or betrayal of trust. [Middle English stabben.] — stab'ber n.

sta·bile (stā'bīl, -bəl, -bīl', -bēl') adj. Immobile; unchangeable; stable. — n. An abstract sculpture, usually of sheet metal, resembling a mobile but having no moving parts. [Latin stabilis, stable. See STABLE¹.]

sta·bil·i·ty (stə-bīl'ī-tē) n. pl. sta·bil·i·ties. 1. The state or quality of being stable, especially: a. Resistance to change, deterioration, or displacement. b. Constancy of character or purpose; steadfastness. c. Reliability; dependability. 2. The ability of an object, such as a ship or an aircraft, to maintain equilibrium or resume its original position after displacement, as by the sea or strong winds. 3. Roman Catholic Church. A vow committing a Benedictine monk to one monastery for life.

sta·bi·lize (stā'bə-līz') v. sta·bi·lized, sta·bi·liz·ing, sta·bi·liz·es. — v. tr. 1. To make stable or steadfast. 2. To maintain the stability of (an airplane or ship, for example) by means of a stabilizer. 3. To keep from fluctuating; fix the level of: stabilize prices. — v. intr. To become stable, steadfast, or fixed. — sta'bi·li·za'tion (-lī-zā'shən) n.

sta·bi·liz·er (stā'bə-lī'zər) n. 1. One that makes or keeps something stable: “The New Deal equipped the economy with built-in stabilizers” (Arthur M. Schlesinger, Jr.). 2. Nautical. A device, such as a gyroscopically controlled fin, that prevents excessive rolling of a ship in heavy seas. 3. An airfoil that stabilizes an aircraft or a missile in flight. 4. Chemistry. A substance that renders or maintains a solution, mixture, suspension, or state resistant to chemical change.

stabilizer bar (stā'bə-lī'zər bär) n. See anti-sway bar.

sta·ble¹ (stā'bəl) adj. sta·bler, sta·blest. 1. a. Resistant to change of position or condition; steadfast. b. Maintaining equilibrium; self-restoring. 2. Immutable; permanent; enduring. 3. a. Consistently dependable. b. Not subject to mental illness or irrationality. 4. Physics. Having no known mode of decay; indefinitely long-lived. Used of atomic particles. 5. Chemistry. Not easily decomposed or otherwise modified chemically. [Middle English, from Old French estable, from Latin stabilis. See stā- in Appendix.] — sta'ble·ness n. — sta'bly adv.

sta·ble² (stā'bəl) n. 1. a. A building for the shelter and feeding of domestic animals, especially horses and cattle. b. A group of animals lodged in such a building. 2. a. All the racehorses belonging to a single owner or racing establishment. See Synonyms at flock¹. b. The personnel employed to keep and train such a group of racehorses. 3. A group, as of athletes, under common management, authority, or ownership: a stable of prizefighters. — v. sta·bled, sta·bling, sta·bles. — v. tr. To put or keep in or as if in a stable. — v. intr. To live in or as if in a stable. [Middle English, from Old French estable, from Latin stabulum, stable, standing place. See stā- in Appendix.]

stab·lish (stăb'lish) v. tr. stab·lish, stab·lished, stab·lish·ing. Archaic. To establish.

stac·ca·to (stă-kă'tō) adj. 1. Abbr. stacc. Music. Cut short crisply; disconnected: staccato octaves. 2. Marked by or composed of abrupt, disconnected parts or sounds: staccato applause. — n. pl. stac·ca·tos or stac·ca·ti (-tē). A staccato manner or sound. [Italian, past participle of staccare, to detach, short for distaccare, from obsolete French destacher, from Old French destachier. See DETACH.] — stac·ca'to adv.

stack (stăk) n. 1. A large, usually conical pile of straw or fodder arranged for outdoor storage. 2. An orderly pile, especially one arranged in layers. See Synonyms at heap. 3. Computer Science. A section of memory and its associated registers used for temporary storage of information in which the item most recently stored is the first to be retrieved. 4. A group of three rifles supporting each other, butt downward and forming a cone. 5. a. A chimney or flue. b. A group of chimneys arranged together. 6. A vertical exhaust pipe, as on a ship or locomotive. 7. Often stacks. a. An extensive arrangement of bookshelves. b. The area of a library in which most of the books are shelved. 8. A stackup. 9. An English measure of coal or cut wood, equal to 108 cubic feet (3.06 cubic meters). 10. Informal. A large quantity: a stack of work to do. — v. stacked, stack·ing, stacks. — v. tr. 1. To arrange in a stack; pile. 2. To load or cover with stacks or piles: stacked the dishwasher. 3. a. Games. To prearrange the order of (a deck of cards) so as to increase the chance of winning. b. To prearrange or fix unfairly so as to favor a particular outcome: tried to stack the jury. 4. To direct (aircraft) to circle at different altitudes while waiting to land. — v. intr. To form a stack. — phrasal verb. stack up. Informal. 1. To measure up or equal: Their gift doesn't stack up against his. 2. To make sense; add up: Her report just doesn't stack up. [Middle English stac, from Old Norse stakkr.]

— stack'a·ble adj. — stack'er n.

stacked (stăkt) adj. Slang. Attractively formed and large-breasted.

stacked heel (stăkt hēl) n. A shoe heel made of several layers of material.

stack·up (stăk'üp') n. A deployment of aircraft circling an airport at designated altitudes while awaiting instructions to land.

stac·te (stăk'tē) n. A sweet spice used by the ancient Jews in making incense. [Middle English stacten, myrrh resin, from Latin stactē, from Greek staktē, from feminine of staktos, oozing, from stazein, stag-, to ooze.]

stad·dle (stăd'1) n. A base or support, especially a platform on which hay or straw is stacked. [Middle English stathel, from Old English stathol. See stā- in Appendix.]

stad·hold·er (stăd'hōl'dər) also stadt·hold·er (stăt'1-) n. 1. A governor or viceroy formerly stationed in a province of the Netherlands. 2. The chief magistrate of the former Netherlands republic. [Partial translation of Dutch stadhouder: stad, place; see stā- in Appendix + houder, holder.]

sta·di·a¹ (stă'dē-ə) n. 1. a. A telescopic instrument having two parallel lines through which intervals on a calibrated rod are observed, used to measure distances. b. The parallel lines in this instrument. c. The calibrated rod so used. 2. The technique of measuring distances with this instrument. [Italian, probably from Latin, pl. of stadium, a unit of length. See STADIUM.]

sta·di·a² (stă'dē-ə) n. A plural of stadium.

sta·di·um (stă'dē-əm) n. pl. sta·di·ums or sta·di·a (-dē-ə). 1. A large, usually open structure for sports events with tiered seating for spectators. 2. A course on which foot races were held in ancient Greece, usually semicircular and having tiers of seats for spectators. 3. An ancient Greek measure of distance, based on the length of such a course and equal to about 185 meters (607 feet). 4. Medicine. A stage or period in the course of a disease. 5. Biology. A stage in the development or life history of an organism. [Middle English, unit of length, from Latin, from Greek stadion, perhaps alteration (influenced by stadios, firm), of spadion, racetrack, from span, to pull.]

stadt·hold·er (stăt'hōl'dər) n. Variant of stadholder.

Staël (stăl), Madame de In full Baronne Anne Louise Germaine Necker de Staël-Holstein. 1766-1817. French writer, literary patron, and critic who introduced romanticism to French literature in On Germany (1810).

staff¹ (stăf) n. pl. stoffs or staves (stăvz). 1. a. A stick or cane carried as an aid in walking or climbing. b. A stout stick used as a weapon; a cudgel. c. A pole on which a flag is displayed; a flagstaff. d. A rod or baton carried as a symbol of authority. 2. pl. stoffs. A rule or similar graduated stick used for testing or measuring, as in surveying. 3. pl. stoffs. a. A group of assistants to a manager, an executive, or another person in authority. b. A group of military officers assigned to assist a commanding officer in an executive or advisory capacity. c. The personnel who carry out a specific enterprise: the nursing staff of a hospital. 4. Something that serves as a staple or support. 5. Music. A set of five horizontal lines and four intermediate spaces used in notation to represent a sequence of pitches. In this sense, also called stave — v. tr. staffed, staff-ing, stoffs. 1. To provide with a staff of workers or assistants. 2. To serve on the staff of. [Middle English staf, from Old English stæf.]

staff² (stăf) n. A building material of plaster and fiber used as an exterior wall covering of temporary buildings, as at expositions. [Perhaps from German stoff, stuff.]

Staf-fa (stăf'ə) An island of western Scotland in the Inner Hebrides west of Mull.

staff-er (stăf'ər) n. Informal. A member of a staff: White House staffers.

staff of life (stăf üv lif) n. pl. staves of life or staffs of life. A staple or necessary food, especially bread.

Staf-ford (stăf'ərd) A municipal borough of west-central England north-northwest of Birmingham. The birthplace of Izaak Walton, it is a manufacturing center. Population, 55,100.

Staf-ford-shire bull terrier (stăf'ərd-shîr' boöl těr'ē-ər, -shər) n. A small, stocky, powerful dog of a breed developed in England by crossing bulldogs and terriers, having a short, smooth, variously colored coat, a broad head with dropped ears, a short muscular neck, and widely set forelegs. [After Staffordshire, a county of west-central England.]

Staffordshire terrier (stăf'ərd-shîr' těr'ē-ər) n. See American Staffordshire terrier. [After Staffordshire, a county of west-central England.]

staff sergeant (stăf sār'jənt) n. Abbr. S. Sgt., SSGT 1. a. A noncommissioned rank in the U.S. Army that is above sergeant and below sergeant first class. b. A noncommissioned rank in the U.S. Air Force that is above sergeant and below technical sergeant. c. A noncommissioned rank in the U.S. Marine Corps that is above sergeant and below gunnery sergeant. 2. One who holds the rank of staff sergeant.

staff tree (stăf trē) n. See bittersweet (n., sense 1).

stag (stăg) n. 1. The adult male of various deer, especially the red deer. 2. An animal, especially a pig, castrated after reaching sexual maturity. 3. a. A man who attends a social gathering unaccompanied by a woman. b. A woman who attends a social gathering unaccompanied by a man. 4. A social gathering for men only. — adj. 1. Of or for men only: a stag party. 2. Pornographic: stag films. — adv. Unaccompanied: went to the dance stag. — v. intr. staged, stag-ging, stags. 1. To attend a social gathering unaccompanied by a woman. 2. To attend a social gathering unaccompanied by a man. [Middle English stagge, from Old English stagga. See stegh- in Appendix.]

stag beetle (stăg bēt'l) n. Any of numerous large beetles of the family Lucanidae, the males of which have large, elaborately branched and toothed mandibles resembling the antlers of a stag.

stage (stāj) n. 1. A raised and level floor or platform. 2. a. A raised platform on which theatrical performances are presented. b. An area in which actors perform. c. The acting profession, or the world of theater. Used with the: The stage is her life. 3. The scene of an event or a series of events. 4. A platform on a microscope that supports a slide for viewing. 5. A scaffold for workers. 6. A resting place on a journey, especially one providing overnight accommodations. 7. The distance between stopping places on a journey; a leg: proceeded in easy stages. 8. A stagecoach. 9. A level or story of a building. 10. The height of the surface of a river or other fluctuating body of water above a set point: at flood stage. 11. a. A level, degree, or period of time in the course of a process, especially a step in development: the toddler stage. b. A point in the course of an action or series of events: too early to predict a winner at this stage. 12. One of two or more successive propulsion units of a rocket vehicle that fires after the preceding one has been jettisoned. 13. Geology. A subdivision in the classification of stratified rocks, ranking just below a series and representing rock formed during a chronological age. 14. Electronics. An element or a group of elements in a complex arrangement of parts, especially a single tube or transistor and its accessory components in an amplifier. — v. staged, stag-ing, stag-es. — v. tr. 1. To exhibit or present on or as if on a stage: stage a boxing match. 2. To produce or direct (a theatrical performance). 3. To arrange and carry out: stage an invasion. — v. intr. 1. To be adaptable to or suitable for theatrical presentation. 2. To stop at a designated place in the course of a journey: “tourists from London who had staged through Warsaw” (Frederick Forsyth). [Middle English, from Old French estage, from Vulgar Latin staticum*, from Latin status, past participle of stāre, to stand. See stā- in Appendix.] — stage/ful' n.

stage-coach (stāj'kōch') n. A four-wheeled horse-drawn vehicle formerly used to transport mail, parcels, and passengers over a regular route.

stage-craft (stāj'krāft') n. Skill in the techniques and devices of the theater.

stage fright (stāj frīt) n. Acute nervousness associated with performing or speaking before an audience.

stage-hand (stāj'hānd') n. A worker who shifts scenery, adjusts lighting, and performs other tasks required in a theatrical production.

stage left (stāj lěft) n. The area of the stage to one's left when facing the audience.

stage-man-age (stāj'măn'ij) v. tr. stage-man-aged, stage-man-ag-ing, stage-man-ag-es. 1. To serve as overall supervisor of the stage and actors for (a theatrical production). 2. To direct or manipulate from behind the scenes, as to achieve a desired effect; orchestrate: “felt certain that [the] demonstrations had... been carefully stage-managed” (Time). — stage management n. — stage manager n.

stag-er (stāj'jər) n. One who possesses the wisdom of long experience.

stage right (stāj rīt) n. The area of the stage to one's right when facing the audience.

stage-struck (stāj'strūk') adj. Enthralled by the theater or intensely eager for a career in acting.

stage whisper (stāj hwīs'pər) n. 1. The conventional whisper of an actor, intended to be heard by the audience but supposedly inaudible to others on stage.

2. A whisper intended to be overheard.

stag·ey (stā'jē) adj. Variant of stagy.

stag·fla·tion (stäg-flā'shən) n. Sluggish economic growth coupled with a high rate of inflation and unemployment. [STAG(NATION) + (IN)FLATION.]

—stag·fla'tion·ar'y (-shə-nēr'ē) adj.

Stagg (stäg), Amos Alonzo. 1862-1965. American football coach who developed the huddle and several innovative offensive plays.

stag·gard (stäg'ərd) n. A male red deer in its fourth year. [Middle English, from stagge, stag. See STAG.]

stag·ger (stäg'ər) v. stag·gered, stag·ger·ing, stag·gers. — v. intr. 1. To move or stand unsteadily, as if under a great weight; totter. 2. To begin to lose confidence or strength of purpose; waver. — v. tr. 1. To cause to totter, sway, or reel: The blow staggered him. 2. a. To overwhelm with emotion or astonishment.

b. To cause to waver or lose confidence. 3. To place on or as if on alternating sides of a center line; set in a zigzag row or rows: theater seats that were staggered for clear viewing. 4. To arrange in alternating or overlapping time periods: staggered the nurses' shifts. 5. To arrange (the wings of a biplane) so that the leading edge of one wing is either ahead of or behind the leading edge of the other wing.

— n. 1. A tottering, swaying, or reeling motion. 2. A staggered pattern, arrangement, or order. 3. staggers. (used with a sing. verb). Any of various diseases of the nervous system in animals, especially horses, cattle, or other domestic animals, characterized by a lack of coordination in moving, a staggering gait, and frequent falling. In this sense, also called blind staggers [Alteration of Middle English stakeren, from Old Norse stakra, frequentative of staka, to push.]

—stag·ger·er n. —stag·ger·y adj.

stag·ger·bush (stäg'ər-böōsh') n. A deciduous shrub (Lyonia mariana) of the eastern United States, having poisonous foliage and white or pink flowers clustered in racemes.

stag·ger·ing (stäg'ər-īng) adj. Causing great astonishment, amazement, or dismay; overwhelming: a staggering achievement; a staggering defeat.

—stag·ger·ing·ly adv.

stag·horn fern (stäg'hörn' fûrn) n. Any of several tropical epiphytic ferns of the genus Platyserium, having large, dichotomously divided fertile fronds that resemble antlers.

staghorn sumac (stäg'hörn' sōō'măk) n. An eastern North American deciduous shrub or tree (Rhus typhina) having pinnately compound leaves, a dense terminal panicle of small greenish flowers, and hairy crimson fruit.

stag·hound (stäg'hound') n. Any of several dogs, such as a deerhound, formerly used in hunting stags and other large game.

stag·ing (stā'jĭng) n. 1. A temporary platform or system of platforms used for support; scaffolding. 2. The process or manner of putting on a play on the stage. 3. The act of jettisoning a stage of a multistage rocket. 4. a. The operation of stagecoaches as an enterprise. b. Travel by stagecoach.

staging area (stā'jĭng âr'ē-ə) n. A place where troops or equipment in transit are assembled and processed, as before a military operation.

Sta-gi-ra (stə-jī'rə) or Sta-gi-rus (-rəs) An ancient city of Macedonia in north-east Greece, the birthplace of Aristotle.

stag·nant (stäg'nənt) adj. 1. Not moving or flowing; motionless. 2. Foul or stale from standing; stagnant ponds. 3. a. Showing little or no sign of activity or advancement; not developing or progressing; inactive: a stagnant economy.

b. Lacking vitality or briskness; sluggish or dull: a stagnant mind. [Latin stagnāns, stagnant- present participle of stagnāre, to be stagnant. See STAGNATE.]

—stag·nan·cy n. —stag·nant·ly adv.

stag·nate (stäg'nāt') v. intr. stag·nat·ed, stag·nat·ing, stag·nates. To be or become stagnant. [Latin stagnāre, stagnāt-, from stagnum, swamp.]

—stag·na'tion n.

stag·y also stag·ey (stā'jē) adj. stag·i·er, stag·i·est. Having a theatrical character or quality; artificial and affected. See Synonyms at dramatic. —stag'i·ly adv. —stag'i·ness n.

Stahl·berg (stôl'bærg, -bër'ē), Kaarlo Juho. 1865-1952. Finnish politician who was the first president (1919-1925) of independent Finland.

staid (stād) adj. 1. Characterized by sedate dignity and often a strait-laced sense of propriety; sober. See Synonyms at serious. 2. Fixed; permanent: "There is nothing settled, nothing staid in this universe" (Virginia Woolf). [From obsolete staid, past participle of STAY¹.] —staid'ly adv. —staid'ness n.

stain (stān) v. stained, stain·ing, stains. — v. tr. 1. To discolor, soil, or spot. 2. To bring into disrepute; taint or tarnish. 3. To color (glass, for example) with a coat of penetrating liquid dye or tint. 4. To treat (specimens for the microscope) with a reagent or dye that makes visible certain structures without affecting others. — v. intr. To produce or receive discolorations. — n. 1. A discolored or soiled spot or smudge. 2. A blemish on one's moral character or reputation. 3. A liquid substance applied especially to wood that penetrates the surface and imparts a rich color. 4. A reagent or dye used for staining microscopic specimens. [Middle English steinen, partly from Old French desteindre, desteign-, to deprive of color (des-, dis- + Latin tingere, tinct-, to dye), and partly from Old Norse steina, to paint.] —stain'a·ble adj. —stain'er n.

SYNONYMS: stain, blot, brand, stigma, taint. The central meaning shared by these nouns is "a mark of discredit or disgrace, as on one's good name": a stain on his honor; the blot of treason; the brand of cowardice; the stigma of ignominious defeat; the taint of vice.

stained glass (stānd glās) n. Glass colored by mixing pigments inherently in the glass, by fusing colored metallic oxides onto the glass, or by painting and baking transparent colors on the glass surface.

Staines (stānz) An urban district of southeast England on the Thames River west-southwest of London. It is mainly residential with some varied industries. Population, 92,800.

stain-less (stān'lis) adj. 1. Without stain or blemish: a stainless reputation.

2. Resistant to stain or corrosion: stainless metal. —stain/less-ly adv.

stainless steel (stān'lis stēl) n. Any of various steels alloyed with at least 10 percent chromium and sometimes containing other elements and that are resistant to corrosion or rusting associated with exposure to water and moist air.

stair (stâr) n. 1. Often stairs. A series or flight of steps; a staircase. 2. One of a flight of steps. [Middle English, from Old English stæger. See steigh- in Appendix.]

stair-case (stâr'kās') n. A flight or series of flights of steps and a supporting structure connecting separate levels. Also called stairway stair-way (stâr'wā') n. See staircase.

stair-well (stâr'wēl') n. A vertical shaft around which a staircase has been built.

stake (stāk) n. 1. A piece of wood or metal pointed at one end for driving into the ground as a marker, fence pole, or tent peg. 2. a. A vertical post to which an offender is bound for execution by burning. b. Execution by burning. Used with the: condemned to the stake. 3. A vertical post secured in a socket at the edge of a platform, as on a truck bed, to help retain the load. 4. Mormon Church. A territorial division consisting of a group of wards under the jurisdiction of a president. 5. Often stakes. Sports & Games. a. Money or property risked in a wager or gambling game. See Synonyms at bet. b. The prize awarded the winner of a contest or race. c. A race offering a prize to the winner, especially a horserace in which the prize consists of money contributed equally by the horse owners.

6. a. A share or an interest in an enterprise, especially a financial share.

b. Personal interest or involvement: a stake in her children's future. 7. A grub-stake. — v. tr. staked, stak-ing, stakes. 1. a. To mark the location or limits of with or as if with stakes: stake out a claim. b. To claim as one's own: staked out a place for herself in industry. 2. To fasten, secure, or support with a stake or stakes. 3. To tether or tie to a stake. 4. To gamble or risk; hazard. 5. To provide working capital for; finance. —phrasal verb. stake out. 1. To assign (a police officer, for example) to an area to conduct surveillance. 2. To keep under surveillance. —idiom. at stake. At risk; in question. [Middle English, from Old English staca.]

stake·hold·er (stāk'hōl'dər) n. 1. Games. One who holds the bets in a game or contest. 2. One who has a share or an interest, as in an enterprise.

stake·out (stāk'out') n. Surveillance of an area, a building, or a person, especially by the police.

Stakhanov·ite (stə-kä'nə-vīt') n. A Soviet worker honored and rewarded for exceptional diligence in increasing production. [After Aleksei Grigorievich Stakhanov (1906-1977), Soviet miner.]

stalac·tite (stə-lāk'tīt', stäl'ək-) n. An icicle-shaped mineral deposit, usually calcite or aragonite, hanging from the roof of a cavern, formed from the dripping of mineral-rich water. [New Latin stalactītēs, from Greek stalaktos, dripping, from stalassein, stalak-, to drip.] —stalac·ti·form' adj. —stal'ac·tit'ic (stäl'äk-tīt'ik, stə-lāk'-) adj.

WORD HISTORY: The words stalagmite and stalactite have confused many a person. A look into the history of the Greek sources of these two words may help. Both words can be traced back to the word stalassein, “to drip,” which is appropriate since both words denote deposits in caves formed by the dripping of mineral-rich water. The Greek base from which stalassein was formed was stalak- and to this base were added several endings that concern us, specifically -ma, a noun suffix most frequently denoting the result of an action, -mo-, a suffix denoting the action of a verb as well as a result, and -to-, an adjective suffix forming verbal adjectives. With these suffixes and the addition of the inflectional endings, as well as a sound change from (k) to (g) before (m), we get stalagma, “that which drops, a drop,” stalagmos, “dropping, dripping of stalactites,” and stalaktos, “dropping, dripping.” Using these Greek words, Olaus Wormius formed the Modern Latin word stalactītēs, the stalac- part meaning “dripping” and the -ītēs part being commonly used to name fossils and minerals when preceded by a form expressing a physical characteristic, in this case “dripping.” Wormius also used the term stalagmītēs, the stalag- portion expressing the notion of what drops, taken either from stalagma, “that which drops, a drop,” or stalagmos, “dropping of stalactites.” Stalactītēs and stalagmītēs, of course, are the sources of our English words stalactite (first recorded in 1677), the formation on the tops of caves, and stalagmite (first recorded in 1681), the formation on the bottoms of caves. They have been causing trouble ever since.

sta·lag (stä'läg', stäl'äg') n. A German prisoner of war camp for officers and enlisted personnel. [German, short for Stammlager, base camp : Stamm, base, stem (from Middle High German stam, from Old High German) + Lager, camp, bed (from Middle High German leger, from Old High German legar, bed, lair); see LAGER.]

sta-lag·mite (stə-läg'mīt', stäl'äg-) n. A conical mineral deposit, usually calcite or aragonite, built up on the floor of a cavern, formed from the dripping of mineral-rich water. [New Latin stalagmitēs, a drop, from Greek stalagma, a drop, or stalagmos, dropping both from stalassein, stalak-, to drip.] —stal'ag-mit'ic (stäl'äg-mīt'ik, stə-läg'-) adj.

stale¹ (stāl) adj. stal·er, stal·est. 1. Having lost freshness, effervescence, or palatability: stale bread; stale air. 2. Lacking originality or spontaneity: a stale joke. See Synonyms at trite. 3. Impaired in efficacy, vigor, or spirit, as from inactivity or boredom. 4. Law. Having lost effectiveness or force through lack of exercise or action. [Middle English, settled, clear: used of beer or wine, probably from Old French estale, slack, settled, clear, from estaler, to come to a standstill, halt, from estal, standing place, stand, of Germanic origin. See stel- in Appendix.] —stale v. —stale'ly adv. —stale'ness n.

stale² (stāl) v. intr. staled, stal·ing, stales. To urinate. Used especially of horses and camels. — n. The urine of certain animals, especially horses and camels. [Middle English stalen, possibly of Low German origin; akin to Middle Low German stallen.]

stale·mate (stāl'māt') n. 1. A situation in which further action is blocked; a deadlock. 2. Games. A drawing position in chess in which the king, although not in check, can move only into check and no other piece can move. — v. tr.

stale·mat·ed, stale·mat·ing, stale·mates. To bring into a stalemate. [Obsolete stale (from Middle English, probably from Anglo-Norman estale, fixed position, from Old French estal); see STALE¹ + MATE².]

Sta·lin (stä'līn, stäl'yīn), Joseph. Originally Iosif Vissarionovich Dzhugashvili. 1879-1953. Soviet politician. The successor of Lenin, he was general secretary of the Communist Party (1922-1953) and premier (1941-1953) of the U.S.S.R. His rule was marked by the exile of Trotsky (1929), a purge of the government and military, the forced collectivization of agriculture, a policy of industrialization, and a victorious but devastating role for the Soviets in World War II.

Sta·lin·grad (stä'līn-gräd', stə-lyīn-grät') See Volgograd.

Sta·lin·ism (stä'lə-nīz'əm) n. The bureaucratic, authoritarian exercise of state power and mechanistic application of Marxist-Leninist principles associated with Stalin. —Sta'lin·ist adj., n. —Sta'lin·ize' v.

stalk¹ (stôk) n. 1. a. A stem or main axis of a herbaceous plant. b. A stem or similar structure that supports a plant part such as a flower, flower cluster, or leaf. 2. A slender or elongated support or structure, as one that holds up an organ or another body part. [Middle English, probably diminutive of stale, upright of a ladder, post, handle, from Old English stalu. See stel- in Appendix.] —stalk'y adj.

stalk² (stôk) v. stalked, stalk·ing, stalks. — v. intr. 1. To walk with a stiff, haughty, or angry gait: stalked off in a huff. 2. To move threateningly or menac-ingly. 3. To track prey or quarry. — v. tr. 1. To pursue by tracking stealthily.

2. To go through (an area) in pursuit of prey or quarry. [Middle English stalken, from Old English -stealcian, to move stealthily (in bestealcian).] — stalk'er n.

stalked (stôkt) adj. Having a stalk or stem. Often used in combination: long-stalked; short-stalked.

stalk-eyed (stôk'īd') adj. Having the eye at the end of a stalk, as various crustaceans.

stalk-ing-horse (stô'kĭng-hôrs') n. 1. Something used to cover one's true purpose; a decoy. 2. A sham candidate put forward to conceal the candidacy of another or to divide the opposition. 3. a. A horse trained to conceal the hunter while stalking. b. A canvas screen made in the figure of a horse, used for similar concealment.

stall¹ (stôl) n. 1. A compartment for one domestic animal in a barn or shed. 2. a. A booth, cubicle, or stand used by a vendor, as at a market. b. A small compartment: a shower stall. 3. a. An enclosed seat in the chancel of a church. b. A pew in a church. 4. Chiefly British. A seat in the front part of a theater. 5. A space marked off, as in a garage, for parking a motor vehicle. 6. A protective sheath for a finger or toe. 7. The sudden, unintended loss of power or effectiveness in an engine. 8. A condition in which an aircraft or airfoil experiences an interruption of airflow resulting in loss of lift and a tendency to drop. — v.

stalled, stall-ing, stalls. — v. tr. 1. To put or lodge in a stall. 2. To maintain in a stall for fattening: to stall cattle. 3. To check the motion or progress of; bring to a standstill. 4. To cause (an engine) accidentally to stop running. 5. To cause (an aircraft) to go into a stall. — v. intr. 1. To live or be lodged in a stall. Used of an animal. 2. To stick fast in mud or snow. 3. To come to a standstill: Negotiations stalled. 4. To stop running as a result of mechanical failure: The car stalled on the freeway. 5. To lose forward flying speed, causing a stall. Used of an aircraft. [Middle English stalle, from Old English steall, standing place, stable. See stel- in Appendix.]

stall² (stôl) n. A ruse or tactic used to mislead or delay. — v. stalled, stall-ing, stalls. — v. tr. To employ delaying tactics against: stall off creditors. — v. intr. To employ delaying tactics: stalling for time. [Alteration (influenced by STALL¹), of obsolete stale, pickpocket's accomplice, from Middle English, decoy, from Anglo-Norman estale, of Germanic origin possibly akin to Old English stæl, stathol, place, position. See STADDLE.]

stall-feed (stôl'fēd') v. tr. stall-fed (-fēd'), stall-feed-ing, stall-feeds.

To lodge and feed (an animal) in a stall for the purpose of fattening.

stal-lion (stäl'yən) n. An adult male horse that has not been castrated, especially one kept for breeding. [Middle English stalione, alteration of staloun, from Anglo-Norman estaloun, of Germanic origin. See stel- in Appendix.]

stal·wart (stōl'wərt) adj. 1. Having or marked by imposing physical strength.

2. Firm and resolute; stout. See Synonyms at strong. — n. 1. One who is physically and morally strong. 2. One who steadfastly supports an organization or a cause: party stalwarts. [Middle English, alteration of stalworth, from Old English stālwierthe, serviceable, probably alteration of statholwierthe*, steadfast : stathol, foundation; see STADDLE + weorth, valuable; see wer² in Appendix.]

—stal'wart·ly adv. —stal'wart·ness n.

sta·men (stā'mən) n. pl. sta·mens or sta·mi·na (stā'mə-nə, stām'ə-). The pollen-producing reproductive organ of a flower, usually consisting of a filament and an anther. [Latin stāmen, thread. See stā- in Appendix.]

Stam·ford (stām'fərd) A city of southwest Connecticut on Long Island Sound and the New York border. Settled in 1641, it is primarily residential. Population, 108,056.

stamin- pref. Stamen: staminate. [Latin stāmen, stāmin-, thread, warp. See STAMEN.]

sta·i·na¹ (stām'ə-nə) n. Physical or moral strength to resist or withstand illness, fatigue, or hardship; endurance. [Latin stāmina, pl. of stāmen, thread. See STAMEN.]

sta·mi·na² (stā'mə-nə, stām'ə-) n. A plural of stamen.

sta·i·nal¹ (stām'ə-nəl) adj. Of or relating to stamina or endurance.

sta·mi·nal² (stā'mə-nəl, stām'ə-) adj. Of or relating to stamens or a stamen.

sta·mi·nate (stā'mə-nīt, -nāt', stām'ə-) adj. Having stamens but lacking pistils: staminate flowers.

sta·i·node (stā'mə-nōd', stām'ə-) also sta·i·no·di·um (stā'mə-nō'dē-əm, stām'ə-) n. pl. sta·i·nodes also sta·i·no·di·a (-nō'dē-ə). A sterile stamen, sometimes resembling a petal, as in the canna. [New Latin staminodium, from Latin stāmen, stāmin-, thread. See STAMEN.]

sta·mi·no·dy (stā'mə-nō'dē, stām'ə-) n. Transformation of a floral organ into a stamen. [STAMINODE + -Y².]

sta·mel (stām'əl) n. 1. Archaic. The red color of a coarse woolen cloth sometimes used for undergarments. 2. Obsolete. A coarse woolen cloth for undergarments. [Probably alteration of stamin, from Middle English stamyn, from Old French estamine, from Vulgar Latin stāminea*, from Latin, feminine of stāmineus, consisting of threads, from stāmen, stāmin-, thread. See stā- in Appendix.]

sta·mer (stām'ər) v. sta·mered, sta·mer·ing, sta·mers. — v. intr. To speak with involuntary pauses or repetitions. — v. tr. To utter with involuntary pauses or repetitions. — n. A way of speaking characterized by involuntary pauses or repetitions. [Middle English stameren, from Old English stamerian.]

—sta'mer·er n. —sta'mer·ing·ly adv.

SYNONYMS: stammer, stutter. These verbs apply to hesitant, stumbling, or halting speech. To stammer is generally to speak with involuntary pauses or repetitions, as from nervousness or confusion: The witness stammered and then fell silent. "He commanded himself sufficiently to stammer out his regrets" (Frederick Marryat). Stutter usually refers to spasmodic repetition or prolongation of sounds, especially consonants, often as a result of a speech impediment: Those who stutter often receive speech therapy. Caught shoplifting, the culprit stuttered a few transparent lies.

stamp (stämp) v. stamped, stamp-ing, stamps. — v. tr. 1. To bring down (the foot) forcibly. 2. To bring the foot down onto (an object or a surface) forcibly. 3. To extinguish or destroy by or as if by trampling underfoot: stamped the rebellion; stamp out a fire. 4. To crush or grind with a heavy instrument: stamp ore. 5. To form or cut out by application of a mold, form, or die. 6. To imprint or impress with a mark, design, or seal. 7. To impress forcibly or permanently. 8. To affix an adhesive stamp to. 9. To identify, characterize, or reveal: stamped her a traitor to the cause. — v. intr. 1. To thrust the foot forcibly downward. 2. To walk with forcible, heavy steps. See Usage Note at stomp. — n. 1. The act of stamping. 2. a. An implement or a device used to impress, cut out, or shape something to which it is applied. b. An impression or a shape formed by such an implement or device. See Synonyms at impression. 3. An official mark, design, or seal that indicates ownership, approval, completion, or the payment of a tax. 4. a. A small piece of gummed paper sold by a government for attachment to an article that is to be mailed; a postage stamp. b. A similar piece of gummed paper issued for a specific purpose: trading stamps. 5. An identifying or characterizing mark or impression: His work bears the stamp of genius. 6. Characteristic nature or quality: a person of her stamp. [Middle English stampen, possibly alteration of Old English stempan, to pound in a mortar.]

stam-pede (stäm-pēd') n. 1. A sudden frenzied rush of panic-stricken animals. 2. A sudden headlong rush or flight of a crowd of people. 3. A mass impulsive action: a stampede of support for the candidate. — v. stam-ped-ed, stamp-ed-ing, stamp-pedes. — v. tr. 1. To cause (a herd of animals) to flee in panic. 2. To cause (a crowd of people) to act on mass impulse. — v. intr. 1. To flee in a headlong rush. 2. To act on mass impulse. [Spanish estampida, uproar, stampede, from Provençal, from estampir, to stamp, of Germanic origin.]

—stam-ped'er n.

WORD HISTORY: The Spanish word estampida, meaning “explosion, bang, crash, uproar,” seems very fitting to describe a rush of animals, such as buffaloes, horses, or cattle, and was so used first in American Spanish. From this use came our word stampede (actually from the Spanish estampido, a masculine noun corresponding to the feminine estampida, first recorded in 1828). Thus stampede, now a general English word, is an Americanism, that is, a word or expression that originated in the United States. Later the United States was to see stampedes of miners who rushed westward to find gold. Not surprisingly, an early instance of this word to describe a stampede of human beings is found in the San Francisco Herald in 1851.

stamp·er (stām'pər) n. One, such as a worker or a machine, that stamps: a metal stamper.

stamp·ing ground (stām'pīng ground) n. A customary territory or favorite gathering place.

stamp mill (stāmp mīl) n. 1. A machine that crushes ore. 2. A building in which ore is crushed.

stance (stāns) n. 1. The attitude or position of a standing person or animal, especially the position assumed by an athlete preparatory to action. See Synonyms at posture. 2. Mental posture; point of view: "Peru... has also toughened its stance toward foreign investors" (Abraham F. Lowenthal). [French, position, from Italian stanza, from Vulgar Latin stantia*, from Latin stāns, stant- present participle of stāre, to stand. See stā- in Appendix.]

stanch¹ (stōnch, stānch, stānch) also staunch (stōnch, stānch) v. tr. stanch also stanch, stanch·ing also staunch·ing, stanch·es also staunch·es.

1. To stop or check the flow of (blood or tears, for example). 2. To stop the flow of blood from (a wound). 3. To check or allay: "My anxiety is stanch; I am at peace" (Scott Turow). See Usage Note at staunch¹. [Middle English stanchen, from Old French estanchier, from Vulgar Latin stanticāre*, to stop, probably from Latin stāns, stant- present participle of stāre, to stand. See stā- in Appendix.]

—stanch'er n.

stanch² (stōnch, stānch, stānch) adj. Variant of staunch¹. See Usage Note at staunch¹.

stan·chion (stān'chən, -shən) n. 1. An upright pole, post, or support. 2. A framework consisting usually of two vertical bars, used to secure cattle in a stall. — v. tr. stan·chioned, stan·chion·ing, stan·chions. 1. To equip with stanchions. 2. To confine (cattle) by means of stanchions. [Middle English stanchon, from Old French estanchon, probably from estance, act of standing upright, prop, from estans, present participle of ester, to stand, from Latin stāre. See stā- in Appendix.]

stand (stānd) v. stood (stōöd), stand·ing, stands. — v. intr. 1. a. To rise to an upright position on the feet. b. To assume or maintain an upright position as specified: stand straight; stand to one side. 2. a. To maintain an upright position on the feet. b. To maintain an upright or vertical position on a base or support:

The urn stands on a pedestal. c. To be placed or situated: The building stands at the corner. 3. a. To remain stable, upright, or intact: The old school still stands. b. To remain valid, effective, or unaltered: The agreement stands. 4. To be or show a specified figure or amount: The balance stands at $500. 5. To measure a specified height when in an upright position: stands six feet tall. 6. To take up or maintain a specified position, altitude, or course: He stands on his earlier offer. We will stand firm. 7. To be in a position of possible gain or loss: She stands to make a fortune. 8. a. To be in a specified state or condition: I stand corrected. We stand in awe of the view. b. To exist in a particular form: Send the message as it now stands. 9. To be at a specified level on or as if on a scale: stands third in her class; stands high in reputation. 10. a. To come to a stop; remain motionless. b. To remain stationary or inactive: The car stood in the garage all winter. 11. To remain without flowing or being disturbed; be or become stagnant. 12. Nautical. To take or hold a particular course or direction: a ship standing to windward. 13. To be available as a sire. Used of horses. 14. Chiefly British. To be a candidate for public office. — v. tr. 1. To cause to stand; place upright. 2. To engage in or encounter: stand battle. 3. a. To resist successfully; withstand: stand the test of time; will not stand close examination. b. To put up with patiently or resolutely; bear: can't stand the heat. See Synonyms at bear¹. 4. To submit to or undergo: stand trial. 5. To tolerate and benefit from: I could stand a good night's sleep. 6. To perform the duty of: stand guard. 7. Informal. To treat (someone) or pay the cost of (food or drink): She stood him to a drink. We'll stand dinner. — n. 1. The act of standing. 2. A ceasing of work or activity; a standstill or halt. 3. A stop on a performance tour. 4. The place or station where a person stands. 5. A booth, stall, or counter for the display of goods for sale. 6. A parking space reserved for taxis. 7. A desperate or decisive effort at defense or resistance, as in a battle: made their stand at the river. 8. A position or an opinion one is prepared to uphold: must take a stand on environmental issues. 9. stands. The bleachers at a playing field or stadium. 10. Law. A witness stand. 11. A small rack, prop, or table for holding any of various articles: a music stand; a bedside stand. 12. A group or growth of tall plants or trees: a stand of pine. — phrasal verbs. stand by. 1. To be ready or available to act. 2. To wait for something, such as a broadcast, to resume. 3. To remain uninvolved; refrain from acting: stood by and let him get away. 4. To remain loyal to; aid or support: stands by her friends. 5. To keep or maintain: stood by her decision. stand down. 6. Law. To leave a witness stand. 7. To withdraw, as from a political contest. 8. To go off duty. stand for. 9. To represent; symbolize. 10. To advocate or support: stands for freedom of the press. 11. To put up with; tolerate: We will not stand for impertinent behavior. stand in. To act as a stand-in. stand off. 13. To stay at a distance; remain apart or aloof. 14. To put off; evade. 15. Nautical. To maintain a course away from shore. stand on. 16. To be based on; depend on: The success of the project stands on management's support of it. 17. To insist on observance of: stand on ceremony; stand on one's rights. stand out. 18. To protrude; project. 19. To be conspicuous, distinctive, or prominent. 20. To refuse compliance or maintain opposition; hold out: stand out against a verdict. 21. Nautical. To maintain a course away from shore. stand over. 22. To watch or supervise closely. 23. To hold over; postpone. stand to. To take up positions for action. stand up. 25. To remain valid, sound, or durable: His claim will not stand up in court. Our old car has stood up well over time. 26. Informal. To fail to keep a date with. —idioms. stand a chance. To have a chance, as of gaining or accomplishing something. stand on (one's) own feet (or stand on (one's) two feet). To be independent and responsible for oneself. stand pat. 3. To refuse to change one's position or opinion. 4. Games. To play one's poker hand without drawing. stand to reason. To be consistent with reason: It stands to reason that if we leave late, we will arrive late. stand up for. To side with; defend. stand up to. To confront fearlessly; face up to. stand up with. To act as best man or maid of honor for (the groom or bride) at a wedding. [Middle English standen, from Old English standan. See stā- in Appendix.] —stand'er n.

stand-a-lone (stānd'ə-lōn') adj. Computer Science. Of, relating to, or being a self-contained, usually independently operating, computer system or device: a stand-alone terminal.

stan-dard (stān'dərd) n. Abbr. std. 1. A flag, banner, or ensign, especially: a. The ensign of a chief of state, nation, or city. b. A long, tapering flag bearing heraldic devices distinctive of a person or corporation. c. An emblem or flag of an army, raised on a pole to indicate the rallying point in battle. d. The colors of a mounted or motorized military unit. 2. a. An acknowledged measure of comparison for quantitative or qualitative value; a criterion. b. An object that under specified conditions defines, represents, or records the magnitude of a unit. 3. The set proportion by weight of gold or silver to alloy metal prescribed for use in coinage. 4. The commodity or commodities used to back a monetary system. 5. a. A degree or level of requirement, excellence, or attainment. b. Often standards. A requirement of moral conduct. 6. Chiefly British. A grade level in elementary schools. 7. A pedestal, stand, or base. 8. Botany. a. The large upper petal of the flower of a pea or related plant. b. One of the narrow, upright petals of an iris. Also called banner, vexillum. 9. A shrub or small tree that through grafting or training has a single stem of limited height with a crown of leaves and flowers at its apex. 10. Music. A composition that is continually used in repertoires. — adj. 1. Serving as or conforming to a standard of measurement or value. 2. Widely recognized as a model of authority or excellence: a standard reference work. 3. Acceptable but of less than top quality: a standard grade of beef. 4. Normal, familiar, or usual: the standard excuse. 5. Commonly used or supplied: standard car equipment. 6. Linguistics. Conforming to established educated usage in speech or writing. [Middle English, from Old French estandard, rallying place, probably from Frankish standhard* : standan*, to stand; see stā- in Appendix + hard*, fast, hard; see kar- in Appendix.] —stan'dard·ly adv.

SYNONYMS: standard, benchmark, criterion, gauge, measure, touchstone, yardstick. The central meaning shared by these nouns is “a point of reference against which individuals are compared and evaluated”: a book that is a standard of literary excellence; a painting that is a benchmark of quality; educational criteria; behavior that is a gauge of self-control; government funding, a measure of the importance of the arts; success, a touchstone of opportunity, ambition, and ability; farm failures, a yardstick of federal banking policy. See also Synonyms at ideal stan·dard·bear·er (stän'därd-bâr'ər) n. 1. One who carries a standard or banner, especially of a military unit. 2. An outstanding leader or representative of a movement, an organization, or a political party.

stan·dard·bred (stän'därd-brəd') n. Any of an American breed of trotting and pacing horses developed especially for harness racing by crossing Thoroughbreds with Morgans and other breeds.

standard candle (stän'därd kändl) n. A candela.

standard deviation (stän'därd də'vê-ā'shən) n. Abbr. SD, S.D. Statistics. A statistic used as a measure of the dispersion or variation in a distribution, equal to the square root of the arithmetic mean of the squares of the deviations from the arithmetic mean.

Stan·dard English (stän'därd ɪŋ'glɪʃ) n. The variety of English that is most widely accepted as the spoken and written language of educated speakers in formal and informal contexts and is characterized by generally accepted conventions of spelling, grammar, and vocabulary while admitting some regional differences, especially in pronunciation and vocabulary.

standard error (stän'därd ər'ər) n. Statistics. The standard deviations of the sample in a frequency distribution, obtained by dividing the standard deviation by the total number of cases in the frequency distribution.

standard gauge (stän'därd gāj) n. 1. A railroad track having a width of 562 inches (143.5 centimeters). 2. A railroad or railroad car built to standard gauge specification.

standard generalized markup language (stän'därd jən'ər-ə-līzd' märke'üp' ləŋ'gwɪj) n. Computer Science. SGML.

stan·dard·ize (stän'där-dīz') v. tr. stan·dard·ized, stan·dard·iz·ing, stan·dard·iz·es. 1. To cause to conform to a standard. 2. To evaluate by comparing with a standard. —stan'dard·i·za'tion (-där-dī-zā'shən) n.

standard of living (stǎn'dərd ïv liv'ing) n. pl. standards of living. A level of material comfort as measured by the goods, services, and luxuries available to an individual, a group, or a nation.

standard operating procedure (stǎn'dərd ɔp'ə-rā'ting prə-sē'jər) n.
Abbr. SOP Established procedure to be followed in carrying out a given operation or in a given situation.

standard time (stǎn'dərd tīm) n. Abbr. ST The time in any of 24 time zones, usually the mean solar time at the central meridian of each zone. In the continental United States, there are four standard time zones: Eastern, using the 75th meridian; Central, using the 90th meridian; Mountain, using the 105th meridian; and Pacific, using the 120th meridian.

stand-by (stǎnd'bī') n. pl. stand-bys. 1. One that can always be relied on, as in an emergency. 2. A favorite or frequent choice. 3. One kept in readiness to serve as a substitute. — adj. 1. Kept in reserve for use when needed: a standby generator. 2. Of, relating to, or waiting for unreserved travel space that is made available by an airline only shortly before departure: standby passengers. — adv. On a standby basis: flew standby to New York. — idiom. on standby. Ready and waiting.

stand-down or stand-down (stǎnd'doun') n. A withdrawal, as of a military presence.

stand-ee (stǎn-dē') n. One using standing room. See Usage Note at -ee¹.

stand-in (stǎnd'in') n. 1. One who substitutes for an actor while lights and camera are adjusted or during hazardous action. 2. A substitute.

standing (stǎn'ding) n. 1. a. Status with respect to rank, reputation, or position in society or a profession. b. High reputation; esteem: a person of standing in the community. 2. Continuance in time; duration: a friendship of long standing. 3. Law. The right or capacity to initiate a suit. 4. The act of one that stands. 5. A place where a person or thing stands. — adj. 1. a. Remaining upright; erect. b. Not cut down: standing timber. 2. Performed or done from a standing position: a standing jump; a standing ovation. 3. Permanent and unchanging; fixed. 4. Remaining in force or use indefinitely: a standing invitation. 5. Not movable; stationary. 6. Not flowing or circulating; stagnant.

standing army (stǎn'ding ār'mē) n. A permanent army maintained in time of peace and war.

standing crop (stǎn'ding krɔp) n. The total amount of living organisms, as of plankton, in a specific area at a given time.

standing order (stǎn'ding ɔr'dər) n. An order or rule held to be in force until specifically changed or withdrawn, especially a regulation relating to military or parliamentary procedure.

standing room (stǎn'dĩng rōom) n. Space in which to stand, as in a public place where all seats are filled. —stand'ing-room' (stǎn'dĩng-rōom', -rōom') adj.

standing wave (stǎn'dĩng wāv) n. A wave characterized by lack of vibration at certain points, between which areas of maximum vibration occur periodically. Standing waves are produced whenever a wave is confined within boundaries, as in the vibrating string of a musical instrument. Also called stationary wave

Stan·dish (stǎn'dĩsh'), Miles or Myles. 1584?-1656. English colonist in America. Hired by the English Pilgrims to accompany them on their voyage to the New World (1620), he emerged as a military and political leader in the difficult early years of the colony.

stand·off (stǎnd'ôf', -ôf') n. 1. A tie or draw, as in a contest. 2. A situation in which one force neutralizes or counterbalances the other. 3. A standoff insulator. — adj. Standoffish.

standoff insulator (stǎnd'ôf' ĩn'sə-lā'tər) n. An insulator used to support a conductor a specified distance from a surface.

stand·off·ish (stǎnd-ô'fĩsh, -ôf'ĩsh) adj. Aloof or reserved. —stand·off·ish·ness n.

stand·out (stǎnd'out') n. Informal. One that is conspicuous by virtue of excellence or superiority: “In the hard-working... supporting cast, there are two stand-outs” (New York).

stand·pat·ter (stǎnd'păt'ər) n. One who maintains opposition to change, as in politics. —stand'pat'tism n.

stand·pipe (stǎnd'pĩp') n. A large vertical pipe into which water is pumped in order to produce a desired pressure.

stand·point (stǎnd'point') n. A position from which things are considered or judged; a point of view. [Translation of German Standpunkt.]

stand·still (stǎnd'stĩl') n. Complete cessation of activity or progress: Work came to a standstill.

stand·up or stand-up (stǎnd'ŭp') adj. 1. Standing erect; upright: a standup collar. 2. Taken, done, or used while standing: a standup supper; a standup bar. 3. Of or designating a performer who stands alone on a stage, as in a nightclub, and delivers a comic monologue. 4. Slang. Courageous and steadfast: a standup guy.

Stan·ford (stǎn'fərd), Leland. 1824-1893. American financier of the Central Pacific Railroad (built 1863-1869) and founder of Stanford University (1885).

Stan·ford·Bi·net test (stǎn'fərd-bĩ-nā' tĕst) n. A standard intelligence test adapted from the Binet-Simon scale for use in the United States, especially in the assessment of children. [After Stanford University in western California near Palo Alto.]

stang (stǎng) v. Obsolete. A past tense of sting.

stan·hope (stǎn/'hōp', stǎn/'əp) n. A light, open, horse-drawn carriage with one seat and two or four wheels. [After the Reverend Fitzroy Stanhope (1787-1864), British clergyman.]

Stan·is·las I Lesz·czyń·ski (stǎn/'i-slōs; lěsh-chǐn/'skē), 1677-1766. King of Poland (1704-1709 and 1733-1736) whose second reign was marked by the War of the Polish Succession (1733-1735).

Stan·i·slav·sky (stǎn/'i-slāv/'skē, -släf'-, stə-nyĩ-), Konstantin. 1863-1938. Russian actor and director. A founder of the Moscow Art Theater, he produced many of Chekhov's plays and developed an innovative method of acting that emphasizes the psychological motivation of the actor.

stank (stǎngk) v. A past tense of stink.

Stan·ley or Port Stan·ley (stǎn/'lē) A town of the eastern Falkland Islands on the Atlantic Ocean. It is the administrative capital of the British dependency. Population, 1,050.

Stan·ley (stǎn/'lē), Edward George Geoffrey Smith 14th Earl of Derby. 1799-1869. British politician who served as prime minister (1852, 1858-1859, and 1866-1868).

Stan·ley (stǎn/'lē), Francis Edgar. 1849-1918. American inventor who with his twin brother Freelan (1849-1940) developed a steam-powered automobile, the Stanley Steamer (1897).

Stan·ley (stǎn/'lē), Sir Henry Morton. 1841-1904. British journalist and explorer known for his expedition into Africa in search of David Livingstone, whom he greeted with the words "Doctor Livingstone, I presume?" (1871).

Stan·ley (stǎn/'lē), Wendell Meredith. 1904-1971. American biochemist. He shared a 1946 Nobel Prize for discovering methods of producing pure enzymes and virus proteins.

Stanley Pool (stǎn/'lē pōol) A lakelike expansion of the Congo River in west-central Africa on the Congo-Zaire border between Kinshasa and Brazzaville.

Stan·ley·ville (stǎn/'lē-vīl') See Kisangani.

stan·nic (stǎn/'ik) adj. Of, relating to, or containing tin, especially with valence 4. [Late Latin stannum, tin (from Latin, an alloy of silver and lead, alteration of stagnum, probably of Celtic origin) + -IC.]

stannic chloride (stǎn/'ik klōr/'id') n. A colorless caustic liquid, SnCl₄, made from tin treated with chlorine and used as a conductive coating and in ceramics.

stan·nite (stǎn/'it') n. A gray to black mineral, Cu₂FeSnS₄, having a metallic luster. Also called tin pyrites [Late Latin stannum, tin; see STANNIC + -ITE¹.]

stan·nous (stǎn/'əs) adj. Of, relating to, or containing tin, especially with valence 2. [Late Latin stannum, tin; see STANNIC + -OUS.]

stannous fluoride (stǎn/'əs flōōr/'id') n. A white powder, SnF₂, used to fluoride toothpaste.

Stan·o·voy Range or Stan·o·voi Range (stăn'ə-voi' rānj, stə-nə-voi') A mountain range, about 724 km (450 mi) long, of southeast Russia north of the Amur River.

Stan·ton (stăn'tən) A city of southern California, a residential suburb in the Los Angeles-Long Beach metropolitan area. Population, 30,491.

Stan·ton (stăn'tən), Edwin McMasters. 1814-1869. American public official who served as U.S. secretary of war (1862-1868). His dismissal by President Andrew Johnson and his subsequent refusal to leave office precipitated the impeachment of Johnson.

Stan·ton (stăn'tən), Elizabeth Cady. 1815-1902. American feminist and social reformer. She helped organize the first women's rights convention, held in Seneca Falls, New York (1848), for which she wrote a Declaration of Sentiments calling for the reform of discriminatory practices that perpetuated sexual inequality.

stan·za (stăn'zə) n. Abbr. st. One of the divisions of a poem, composed of two or more lines usually characterized by a common pattern of meter, rhyme, and number of lines. [Italian. See STANCE.] —stan·za'ic (-zā'ik) adj.

sta·pe·dec·to·my (stā'pī-dēk'tə-mē, -pē-) n. pl. sta·pe·dec·to·mies. Surgical removal of the stapes. [New Latin stapēs, stapēd-, stapes; see STAPES + -ECTOMY.]

sta·pe·des (stā'pī-dēz') n. A plural of stapes.

sta·pe·li·a (stə-pē'lē-ə) n. Any of various plants of the genus Stapelia, including the starfish flower. [New Latin Stapelia, genus name, after Jan Bode van Stapel (died 1636), Dutch botanist.]

sta·pes (stā'pēz) n. pl. stapes or sta·pe·des (stā'pī-dēz'). The innermost of the three small bones of the middle ear, shaped somewhat like a stirrup. Also called stirrup bone [New Latin stapēs, stapēd-, from Medieval Latin, stirrup.]

—sta·pe'di·al (stā-pē'dē-əl) adj.

staph (stăf) n. Informal. Staphylococcus. —staph adj.

staph·y·lin·id (stăf'ə-līn'īd, -lī'nīd) n. See rove beetle. [From New Latin Staphylinidae, family name, from Staphylinus, type genus, from Greek staphulinos, kind of insect, probably from staphulē, bunch of grapes.]

staphylo- pref. 1. Cluster; resembling a cluster: staphylococcus. 2. The uvula: staphyloplasty. [New Latin, from Greek staphulē, bunch of grapes.]

staph·y·lo·coc·cus (stăf'ə-lō-kök'əs) n. pl. staph·y·lo·coc·ci (-kök'sī, -kök'ī). A spherical gram-positive parasitic bacterium of the genus Staphylococcus, usually occurring in grapelike clusters and causing boils, septicemia, and other infections. —staph'y·lo·coc'cal (-kök'əl), staph'y·lo·coc'cic (-kök'sik, -kök'ik) adj.

staph·y·lo·plas·ty (stăf'ə-lō-plăs'tē) n. pl. staph·y·lo·plas·ties. Plastic surgery of the uvula and the soft palate. —staph'y·lo·plas'tic adj.

staph·y·lor·rha·phy also staph·y·lor·a·phy (stăf'ə-lôr'ə-fē) n. pl.

staph·y·lor·rha·phies. Repair of a cleft palate by plastic surgery. [STAPHYLO- + Greek rhaphe, suture (from rhaptein, to sew); see wer-² in Appendix.]

sta·ple¹ (stā'pəl) n. 1. A principal raw material or commodity grown or produced in a region. 2. A major item of trade in steady demand. 3. A basic dietary item, such as flour, rice, or corn. 4. A basic or principal element or feature.

5. The fiber of cotton, wool, or flax, graded as to length and fineness. — adj.

1. Produced or stocked in large quantities to meet steady demand: Wheat is a staple crop. 2. Principal; main: a staple topic of conversation. — v. tr. sta·pled, sta·pling, sta·ples. To grade (fibers) according to length and fineness. [Middle English, official market for purchase of export goods, from Anglo-Norman estaple, perhaps from Middle Dutch stāpel, heap, emporium.]

sta·ple² (stā'pəl) n. 1. A U-shaped metal loop with pointed ends, driven into a surface to hold a bolt, hook, or hasp or to hold wiring in place. 2. A thin piece of wire in the shape of a square bracket that is driven by a device through sheets of paper or similar material and flattened to serve as a fastening. — v. tr.

sta·pled, sta·pling, sta·ples. To secure or fasten by means of a staple or staples. [Middle English, from Old English stapol, post, pillar.]

sta·pler¹ (stā'plər) n. One who deals in staple goods or staple fibers.

sta·pler² (stā'plər) n. A device used to bind material together by means of staples.

star (stär) n. 1. Astronomy. a. A self-luminous celestial body consisting of a mass of gas held together by its own gravity in which the energy generated by nuclear reactions in the interior is balanced by the outflow of energy to the surface, and the inward-directed gravitational forces are balanced by the outward-directed gas and radiation pressures. b. Any of the celestial bodies visible at night from Earth as relatively stationary, usually twinkling points of light. c. Something regarded as resembling such a celestial body. 2. A graphic design having five or more radiating points, often used as a symbol of rank or merit. 3. An artistic performer or athlete whose leading role or superior performance is acknowledged. 4. An asterisk (*). 5. A white spot on the forehead of a horse. 6. A planet or constellation of the zodiac believed in astrology to influence personal destiny. 7. stars. The future; destiny. Often used with the. — adj. Of, relating to, or being an outstanding, famous performer: a star figure skater. — v. starred, star·ring, stars. — v. tr. 1. a. To ornament with stars. b. To award or mark with a star for excellence. 2. To mark with an asterisk. 3. To present or feature (a performer) in a leading role. — v. intr. 1. To play the leading role in a theatrical or film production. 2. To do an outstanding job; perform excellently. — idioms.

have stars in (one's) eyes. To be dazzled or enraptured, as with romantic love.

see stars. To experience bright, flashing sensations, as from a blow to the head.

[Middle English sterre, from Old English steorra. See ster-³ in Appendix.]

star anise (stär än'īs) n. 1. An aromatic eastern Asian evergreen tree (Illicium verum) having purple-red flowers and starlike clusters of anise-scented fruit.

2. The fruit of this plant, used in Oriental cooking and medicine.

star apple (stär äp'əl) n. 1. A tropical American evergreen tree (Chrysophyllum cainito) having smooth-skinned, green or purple fruit and purplish flowers.

2. The edible fruit of this tree.

Sta-ra Za-go-ra (stä'rə zə-gôr'ə, stä'rä zä-gô'rä) A city of central Bulgaria east-northeast of Plovdiv. It is an industrial center and railroad hub. Population, 152,000.

star-board (stär'bərd) n. Abbr. stbd. The right-hand side of a ship or an aircraft as one faces forward. — adj. On the right-hand side as one faces forward. — adv. To or toward the right-hand side as one faces forward. [Middle English sterbord, from Old English stēorbord: stēor-, a steering; see stā- in Appendix + bord, side of a ship.]

star-burst (stär'bûrst') n. A shape or design with emanating rays that resembles the flash of light produced by an exploding star.

star cactus (stär kāk'təs) n. 1. Any of various Mexican cacti of the genus Astrophytum, having yellow flowers with usually red centers. 2. See haworthia. [From its starlike spine clusters.]

starch (stärch) n. 1. A naturally abundant nutrient carbohydrate, (C₆H₁₀O₅)_n, found chiefly in the seeds, fruits, tubers, roots, and stem pith of plants, notably in corn, potatoes, wheat, and rice, and varying widely in appearance according to source but commonly prepared as a white, amorphous, tasteless powder. 2. Any of various substances, such as natural starch, used to stiffen cloth, as in laundering. 3. starches. Foods having a high content of starch, as rice, breads, and potatoes. 4. a. Stiff behavior. b. Vigor; mettle. — v. tr. starched, starch-ing, starch-es. To stiffen with starch. [Middle English starche, substance used to stiffen cloth (sense uncertain), from sterchen, to stiffen, from Old English stercan*. See ster-¹ in Appendix.]

Star Chamber (stär chām'bər) n. 1. A 15th-century to 17th-century English court consisting of judges who were appointed by the Crown and sat in closed session on cases involving state security. 2. star chamber. A court or group that engages in secret, harsh, or arbitrary procedures. [So called because the ceiling of the original courtroom was decorated with stars.]

star-cham-ber (stär'chām'bər) adj. Secret, harsh, or arbitrary, as in procedures. [From STAR CHAMBER.]

starch syrup (stärch sîr'əp) n. See glucose (n., sense 2).

starch wheat (stärch hwēt) n. See emmer.

starch-y (stär'chē) adj. starch-i-er, starch-i-est. 1. a. Containing starch. b. Stiffened with starch. 2. Of or resembling starch. 3. Stiff; formal: “this starchy, old-fashioned hotel room" (Anne Tyler). —starch/i·ly adv.

—starch/i·ness n.

star-crossed (stär'krôst', -kröst') adj. Opposed by fate; ill-fated: star-crossed lovers.

star-dom (stär'däm) n. 1. The status of a performer or an entertainer acknowledged as a star. 2. Star performers considered as a group.

star-dust (stär'düst') n. 1. A dreamlike, romantic, or uncritical sense of well-being. 2. A cluster of stars too distant to be seen individually, resembling a dimly luminous cloud of dust. Not in scientific use. 3. Minute particles of matter that fall to Earth from the stars. Not in scientific use. —idiom. have stardust in (one's) eyes. To be uncritically or unrealistically optimistic.

stare (stâr) v. stared, star-ing, stares. — v. intr. 1. To look directly and fixedly, often with a wide-eyed gaze. See Synonyms at gaze. 2. To be conspicuous; stand out. 3. To stand on end; bristle, as hair or feathers. — v. tr. To look at directly and fixedly: stared him in the eyes. — n. An intent gaze. —phrasal verb. stare down. To cause to waver or give in by or as if by staring. —idiom.

stare (one) in the face. 1. To be plainly visible or obvious; force itself on (one's) attention: The money on the table was staring her in the face. 2. To be obvious though initially overlooked: The explanation had been staring him in the face all along. 3. To be imminent or unavoidable: Bankruptcy now stares us in the face. [Middle English staren, from Old English starian. See ster-¹ in Appendix.]

—star'er n.

sta·rets (stär'yīts) n. pl. star-tsy (stärt'sē). A spiritual adviser, often a monk or religious hermit, in the Eastern Orthodox Church. [Russian, elder, starets, from Old Church Slavonic staritsĭ, elder, from starŭ, old. See stā- in Appendix.]

star facet (stär fäs'īt) n. One of the eight small triangular facets in the crown of a brilliant-cut gem.

star·fish (stär'fish') n. pl. starfish or star·fish-es. Any of various marine echinoderms of the class Asteroidea, characteristically having a thick, often spiny body with five arms extending from a central disk. Also called asteroid, sea star.

starfish flower (stär'fish' flou'ər) n. Any of numerous tropical and southern African succulent plants of the genus Stapelia, having mottled, star-shaped, ill-smelling flowers. Also called carrion flower star·flow·er (stär'flou'ər) n. 1. Any of several small plants of the genus Trientalis, especially T. borealis, of northeast North America, having white starlike flowers. 2. Any of several plants having starlike flowers.

star fruit (stär frōōt) n. See carambola (n., sense 2). [From the shape of its cross section.]

star·gaze (stär'gāz') v. intr. star-gazed, star-gaz-ing, star-gaz-es. 1. To gaze at the stars. 2. To daydream.

star-gaz-er (stär'gä'zər) n. 1. a. Informal. An astronomer. b. An astrologer. 2. A daydreamer. 3. Any of various bottom-dwelling marine percoid fishes of the families Uranoscopidae and Dactyloscopidae, having eyes on the top of the head.

star grass (stär gräs) n. 1. Any of various plants of the genus Hypoxis, having grasslike leaves and star-shaped, white or yellow flowers. 2. See colicroot.

stark (stärk) adj. stark-er, stark-est. 1. Bare; blunt: “His language has become increasingly stark, to the point of sounding strident” (Robert Pear). 2. Complete or utter; extreme: stark poverty; a stark contrast. 3. Harsh; grim: “faced with that stark future” (Robert C. McFarlane). “[They] found it hard to accept such a stark portrait of unrelieved failure” (W. Bruce Lincoln). — adv. Utterly; entirely: stark raving mad. [Middle English, stiff, severe, strong, from Old English stearc. See ster¹ in Appendix.] —stark'ly adv. —stark'ness n.

Stark (stärk, shtärk), Johannes. 1874-1957. German physicist. He won a 1919 Nobel Prize for his discovery of the Stark effect, the splitting of spectral lines when light passes through an electric field.

Stark (stärk), John. 1728-1822. American Revolutionary general who defeated the British at Bennington, Vermont (1777).

stark-ers (stär'kərz) adj. Chiefly British. Stark naked. [Alteration of stark naked.]

Stark-ville (stärk'vil', -vəl) A city of eastern Mississippi west of Columbus. It is a trade and processing center. Population, 15,169.

star-let (stär'līt) n. 1. A small star. 2. A young film actress publicized as a future star.

star-light (stär'līt') n. The light from the stars.

star-ling¹ (stär'līng) n. Any of various Old World passerine birds of the family Sturnidae, characteristically having a short tail, pointed wings, and dark, often iridescent plumage, especially Sturnus vulgaris, widely naturalized in North America. [Middle English, from Old English stærlic: stær, starling + -lic, noun suff.; see -LING¹.]

star-ling² (stär'līng) n. A protective structure of pilings surrounding a pier of a bridge. [Perhaps alteration of Middle English stadelinge, from stathel, foundation, from Old English stathol. See stā- in Appendix.]

star-lit (stär'līt') adj. Illuminated by starlight.

star-nosed mole (stär'nōzd' mōl) n. A mole (Condylura cristata) of North America, having 22 small fleshy tentacles encircling the end of its nose in a star-like pattern.

star-of-Beth-le-hem (stär'əv-bēth'li-hēm') n. pl. star-of-Bethlehem or stars-of-Bethlehem (stärz'-). 1. Any of numerous bulbous perennial herbs of the genus Ornithogalum in the lily family, especially O. arabicum or O. umbellatum, native to the Mediterranean region and having narrow leaves and a cluster of star-shaped white flowers. 2. Any of several similar or related plants. [After the star that guided the Magi to Bethlehem.]

Star of David (stär üv dā'vīd) n. pl. Stars of David or Star of Davids. See Magen David.

Starr (stär), Belle. Originally Myra Belle Shirley. 1848-1889. American outlaw whose Oklahoma cabin became a hideout for fugitives from justice. Her criminal exploits are largely unsubstantiated.

Starr (stär), Ringo. Originally Richard Starkey. Born 1940. British musician who was the colorful drummer of the Beatles (1962-1970).

star·ry (stär'ē) adj. star·ri·er, star·ri·est. 1. Marked or set with stars or starlike objects. 2. Shining or glittering like stars. 3. Shaped like a star. 4. Illuminated by stars; starlit. 5. Of, relating to, or coming from the stars; stellar.

—star'ri·ness n.

star·ry·eyed (stär'ē-īd') adj. Having a naively enthusiastic, overoptimistic, or romantic view; unrealistic: a starry-eyed reformer; starry-eyed idealism.

Stars and Bars (stärz ənd bärz) n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). The first Confederate flag.

Stars and Stripes (stärz ənd strīps) n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). The flag of the United States.

star sapphire (stär säf'īr') n. A sapphire with a polished convex surface exhibiting asterism.

star shell (stär shēl) n. An artillery shell that explodes in midair with a shower of lights, used for illumination and signaling.

star·ship (stär'shīp') n. A crewed spacecraft designed for interstellar travel.

stars-of-Beth·le·hem (stärz'əv-bēth'lī-hēm') n. A plural of star-of-Beth-lehem.

Star-Span-gled Banner (stär'späng'gəld bän'ər) n. The flag of the United States.

star-struck or star-struck (stär'strūk') adj. Fascinated by or exhibiting a fascination with fame or famous people: "The star-struck tone of the text suggests that the author is giving us an exclusive peek into the secret lives of the justices" (Richard A. Epstein).

start (stärt) v. start·ed, start·ing, starts. — v. intr. 1. To begin an activity or a movement; set out. 2. To have a beginning; commence. See Synonyms at begin. 3. To move suddenly or involuntarily: started at the loud noise. 4. To come quickly into view, life, or activity; spring forth. 5. Sports. To be in the initial lineup of a game or race. 6. To protrude or bulge. 7. To become loosened or disengaged. — v. tr. 1. To commence; begin. 2. To set into motion, operation, or activity. 3. To introduce; originate. 4. Sports. a. To play in the initial lineup of (a game). b. To put (a player) into the initial lineup of a game. c. To enter (a participant) into a race or game. 5. To found; establish: start a business. 6. To tend in an early stage of development: start seedlings. 7. To rouse (game) from its hiding place or lair; flush. 8. To cause to become displaced or loosened. — n. Abbr. st. 1. a. A beginning; a commencement. b. The beginning of a new construction project: a large number of new housing starts this year. 2. A place or time of beginning. 3. Sports. a. A starting line for a race. b. A signal to begin a race. c. An instance of beginning a game or race: a pitcher who won his first five starts. 4. A startled reaction or movement. 5. A part that has become dislocated or loosened. 6. A position of advantage over others, as in a race or an endeavor; a lead. 7. An opportunity granted to pursue a career or course of action. —idioms. start something. Informal. To cause trouble. to start with. 2. At the beginning; initially. 3. In any case. [Middle English sterten, to move or leap suddenly, from Old English styrtan*. See ster-¹ in Appendix.]

start-er (stär'tər) n. 1. One that starts. 2. An attachment for starting an internal-combustion engine without hand cranking. Also called self-starter 3. A device that initiates a flow of high voltage across the electrodes of a fluorescent lamp. 4. Sports. a. One who signals the start of a race. b. A participant that starts in a game or race. 5. Baseball. a. The first pitcher for a team in a game. b. A pitcher who regularly begins games for a team. 6. The first in a series, especially the first course of a meal; an appetizer. —idiom. for starters. Informal. To begin with; initially: "Deborah believes him, indicating, for starters, that she isn't the brightest" (Judith Crist).

star thistle (stär thĭs'əl) n. Any of several plants of the genus Centaurea, especially C. calcitrapa, native to Eurasia, having spiny purplish flower heads.

start-ing block (stär'tĭng blök) n. 1. Sports. An apparatus that braces a runner's feet at the start of a race, consisting of two angled supports adjustably mounted on a rigid frame that is usually anchored to the track. 2. The beginning of a period of time or an endeavor.

starting gate (stär'tĭng gāt) n. Sports. 1. A series of stalls with interconnected doors that open simultaneously at the beginning of a race. 2. A movable barrier that starts an automatic timer when pushed aside by a competitor, such as a skier.

starting line (stär'tĭng lĭn) n. Sports. The point or line at which a race begins.

star-tle (stär'tl) v. star-tled, star-ting, star-tles. — v. tr. 1. To cause to make a quick involuntary movement or start. 2. To alarm, frighten, or surprise suddenly. See Synonyms at frighten. — v. intr. To become alarmed, frightened, or surprised. — n. A sudden mild shock; a start. [Middle English stertlen, to run about, from Old English stearthian, to kick. See ster-¹ in Appendix.]

—star'tling-ly adv. —star'tling-ness n.

star-tsy (stärt'sē) n. Plural of starets.

start-up or start-up (stärt'üp') n. 1. The act or process of setting into operation or motion. 2. A business or an undertaking that has recently begun operation: grew from a tiny start-up to a multimillion-dollar corporation. — n.

attributive. Often used to modify another noun: start-up costs; plagued by startup problems.

star·va·tion (stär-vā'shən) n. 1. The act or process of starving. 2. The condition of being starved.

starve (stärv) v. starved, starv-ing, starves. — v. intr. 1. To suffer or die from extreme or prolonged lack of food. 2. Informal. To be hungry. 3. To suffer from deprivation. 4. Archaic. To suffer or die from cold. — v. tr. 1. To cause to starve. 2. To force to a specified state by starving. [Middle English sterven, to die, from Old English steorfan. See ster¹ in Appendix.]

starve-ling (stärv'lĭng) n. One that is starving or being starved. — adj.

1. Starving. 2. Poor in quality; inadequate.

star-wort (stär'wûrt', -wôrt') n. Any of various plants having star-shaped flowers or flower heads, as the aster or the stitchwort.

stash (stăsh) Slang. v. tr. stashed, stash-ing, stash-es. To hide or store away in a secret place. — n. 1. A store or cache of money or valuables. 2. Something hidden away. [Origin unknown.]

sta·sis (stă'sĭs, stăs'ĭs) n. pl. sta·ses (stă'sēz, stăs'ēz). 1. A condition of balance among various forces; motionlessness: "Language is a primary element of culture, and stasis in the arts is tantamount to death" (Charles Marsh). 2. Pathology. Stoppage of the normal flow of a body substance, as of blood through an artery or of intestinal contents through the bowels. [Greek, stationariness. See stā- in Appendix.]

-stasis suff. 1. Slowing; stoppage: bacteriostasis. 2. Stable state: homeostasis. [From Greek stasis, standstill. See STASIS.]

Stas-sen (stăs'ən), Harold Edward. Born 1907. American politician who served as governor of Minnesota (1938-1943) and made numerous unsuccessful bids for the Republican presidential nomination.

stat¹ (stăt) n. A statistic.

stat² (stăt) adv. With no delay; at once. — adj. Immediate: "Next I want a stat EKG and a chest film" (David Shobin). [Short for Latin statim. See stā- in Appendix.]

stat. abbr. 1. Stationary. 2. Statistic; statistics. 3. Statuary. 4. Statute.

-stat suff. 1. Something that stabilizes: rheostat. 2. A device for reflecting something specified in a constant direction: heliostat. 3. Something that inhibits: fungistat. [New Latin -stata, from Greek -statēs, one that causes to stand, or from statos, standing; see stā- in Appendix.]

state (stăt) n. Abbr. st. 1. A condition or mode of being, as with regard to circumstances: a state of confusion. 2. A condition of being in a stage or form, as of structure, growth, or development: the fetal state. 3. A mental or emotional condition: in a manic state. 4. Informal. A condition of excitement or distress.

5. Physics. The condition of a physical system with regard to phase, form, composition, or structure: Ice is the solid state of water. 6. Social position or rank. 7. Ceremony; pomp: foreign leaders dining in state at the White House. 8. a. The supreme public power within a sovereign political entity. b. The sphere of supreme civil power within a given polity: matters of state. 9. A specific mode of government: the socialist state. 10. A body politic, especially one constituting a nation: the states of Eastern Europe. 11. One of the more or less internally autonomous territorial and political units composing a federation under a sovereign government: the 48 contiguous states of the Union. — adj. 1. Of or relating to a body politic or to an internally autonomous territorial or political unit constituting a federation under one government: a monarch dealing with state matters; the department that handles state security. 2. Owned and operated by a state: state universities. — v. tr. stat-ed, stat-ing, states. To set forth in words; declare. [Middle English, from Old French estat, from Latin status. See stā- in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: state, condition, situation, status. These nouns denote the mode of being or form of existence of a person or thing. State and condition, the most general, are largely interchangeable: a state (or condition) of disrepair; a healthy state (or condition). “Every body continues in its state of rest... unless it is compelled to change that state by forces impressed upon it” (Isaac Newton). “The condition of man... is a condition of war of everyone against everyone” (Thomas Hobbes). Situation more narrowly refers to a state or condition at a particular time as determined by a combination of circumstances: “Eternal truths will be neither true nor eternal unless they have fresh meaning for every new social situation” (Franklin D. Roosevelt). Status usually applies to a person or thing considered in relation to others of the same class. With reference to persons it implies relative standing; with respect to things it is roughly equivalent to state or situation: “Mr. Polly’s status was that of a guest pure and simple” (H.G. Wells). What is the current status of the arms-reduction negotiations?

state attorney (stāt ə-tûr'nē) n. Law. A prosecuting attorney for a state.

State Col·lege (stāt kōl'ij) A borough of central Pennsylvania northwest of Harrisburg. Mainly residential, it is the seat of Pennsylvania State University (established 1855). Population, 38,923.

state·craft (stāt'kräft') n. The art of leading a country: “They placed free access to scientific knowledge far above the exigencies of statecraft” (Anthony Burgess).

state·hood (stāt'hōöd') n. The status of being a state, especially of the United States, rather than being a territory or dependency.

state·hood·er (stāt'hōöd'ər) n. One who is in favor of granting statehood to a particular territory or region.

state·house also state house (stāt'hous') n. A building in which a state legislature holds sessions; a state capitol.

state-less (stāt'lis) adj. 1. Having no state. 2. Not having any recognized citizenship in a state or nation. —state/less-ness n.

state-let (stāt'līt) n. A small state: “Most of the islands have become independent statelets with freely elected governments” (Economist).

state-ly (stāt'lē) adj. state-li-er, state-li-est. 1. Dignified and impressive, as in size or proportions. See Synonyms at grand. 2. Majestic; lofty. — adv. In a ceremonious or imposing manner. [Middle English statly, from state, state, rank. See STATE.] —state/li-ness n.

state-ment (stāt'mənt) n. 1. The act of stating or declaring. 2. Something stated; a declaration. 3. Law. A formal pleading. 4. An abstract of a commercial or financial account showing an amount due; a bill. 5. A monthly report sent to a debtor or bank depositor. 6. Computer Science. An elementary instruction in a source language. —idiom. make a statement. To create a certain impression: Glass, exposed beams, and antiques all combine to make a strong decorative statement.

Stat-en Island (stāt'n ī'lənd) Formerly Rich-mond (rīch'mənd). A borough of New York City coextensive with Staten Island in New York Bay in southeast New York southwest of Manhattan Island. First visited by Henry Hudson in 1609, the island was permanently settled in the mid-1600's and became part of New York City in 1898. The borough name was officially changed in April 1975, although the island still constitutes the county of Richmond. Population, 378,977.

state of the art (stāt ÷v thē ärt) n. The highest level of development, as of a device, technique, or scientific field, achieved at a particular time: “Forty or fifty years ago the state of the art in radio was represented by crackling noises coming from a console of... Aztec-temple shape” (New Yorker). —state/-of-the-art' (stāt'əv-thē-ärt') adj.

state prison (stāt prīz'ən) n. A prison maintained by a state for the confinement of people convicted of felonies.

stat-er¹ (stā'tər) n. A resident of a particular state or type of state. Often used in combination: Lone Star staters; farm staters; the struggle between slave staters and free staters.

sta-ter² (stā'tər) n. Any of various gold, silver, or electrum coins of ancient Greece. [Middle English, from Late Latin statēr, from Greek, from histanai, sta-, to set on a scale, weigh. See SYSTEM.]

state-room (stāt'rōom', -rōöm') n. A private cabin or compartment with sleeping accommodations on a ship or train.

state's evidence (stāts əv'ī-dəns) n. Law. 1. Evidence for the prosecution in U.S. state or federal trials. 2. One that gives evidence for the state in criminal proceedings.

States-Gen-er-al (stāts/'jĕn'ər-əl) pl.n. 1. A legislative assembly of representatives from the estates of the nation, as opposed to a provincial assembly. 2. The legislative assembly in France before the Revolution. Also called Estates-General [Translation of French états généraux, and Dutch Staten-Generaal.]

state-side (stāt/'sīd') adj. 1. Of or in the continental United States. 2. Alaska. Of or in the 48 contiguous states of the United States. — adv. Informal. 1. To, toward, or in the continental United States. 2. Alaska. To, toward, or in the 48 contiguous states of the United States.

REGIONAL NOTE: Especially since World War II, the adverb stateside has commonly been used by Americans traveling abroad to mean “to, toward, or in the United States.” During the postwar period the term gained currency among Alaskans, familiar with the feeling of being far removed from the rest of the continental United States. They adopted stateside into their vocabularies as a way of referring to their fellow Americans to the south. Russell Tabbert of the University of Alaska observes that stateside “has some currency primarily as a noun modifier, but also as an adverbial,” as in this instance: “Most of the owners live in Anchorage; some 14% live stateside” (Alaska Magazine). It may or may not be capitalized. Stateside, the lower states, the South, and (the) Outside are all used in Alaska to denote “the 48 contiguous states.” All these terms, however, are losing out to the Lower 48, which, as Tabbert points out, is always spelled in Alaska with a capital L and with Arabic numerals.

states-man (stāts/'mən) n. 1. A man who is a leader in national or international affairs. 2. A male political leader regarded as a disinterested promoter of the public good. 3. A man who is a respected leader in a given field: “a mature statesman of American letters” (Toby Thompson). —states'man-like', states'man-ly adj. —states'man-ship' n.

states' rights also States' rights (stāts rīts) pl.n. 1. All rights not delegated to the federal government by the Constitution nor denied by it to the states. 2. The political position advocating strict interpretation of the Constitution with regard to the limitation of federal powers and the extension of the autonomy of the individual state to the greatest possible degree. —states' righter n.

States' Rights Party (stāts rīts pār/'tē) n. A former political party founded in 1948 by Southern Democrats to consolidate opposition to civil rights policies of the regular Democratic Party.

States-ville (stāts/'vil', -vəl) A city of west-central North Carolina north of Charlotte. Founded in 1789, it is a trade and processing center. Population, 17,567.

states-wom-an (stāts/'wōm'ən) n. 1. A woman who is a leader in national or international affairs: “In foreign policy, [she] relishes her role as a senior states- woman of the West” (Boston Globe). 2. A woman political leader regarded as a disinterested promoter of the public good. 3. A woman who is a respected leader in a given field.

state-wide (stāt'wīd') adj. Occurring or extending throughout a state: a state-wide recycling program. — adv. Throughout a state: a candidate who was popular statewide.

stat-ic (stāt'īk) adj. 1. a. Having no motion; being at rest; quiescent. b. Fixed; stationary. 2. Physics. Of or relating to bodies at rest or forces that balance each other. 3. Electricity. Of, relating to, or producing stationary charges; electrostatic. 4. Of, relating to, or produced by random radio noise. — n. 1. Random noise, such as crackling in a receiver or specks on a television screen, produced by atmospheric disturbance of the signal. 2. Informal. a. Back talk. b. Interference; obstruction. c. Angry or heated criticism. [New Latin staticus, relating to weight, from Greek statikos, causing to stand, from statos, standing. See stā- in Appendix.] — stat'i-cal adj. — stat'i-cal-ly adv.

static dump (stāt'īk dŭmp) n. Computer Science. A printed or stored copy of the contents of a computer memory that is made at an inactive point in a program, usually at the end of a routine.

stat-i-ce (stāt'ī-sē', stāt'īs) n. See sea lavender. [Latin staticē, an astringent plant, from Greek statikē, from feminine of statikos, causing to stand, astringent, from statos, standing. See stā- in Appendix.]

static electricity (stāt'īk ɪ-lĕk-trīz'ī-tē) n. 1. An accumulation of electric charge on an insulated body. 2. Electric discharge resulting from the accumulation of electric charge on an insulated body.

static memory (stāt'īk mĕm'ə-rē) n. Computer Science. A memory that contains fixed information and retains its programmed state as long as the power is on.

static pressure (stāt'īk prĕsh'ər) n. The pressure exerted by a still liquid or gas, especially water or air.

static routine (stāt'īk rōō-tĕn') n. Computer Science. A subroutine with the addresses of the operands being the only parameters.

stat-ics (stāt'īks) n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). The equilibrium mechanics of stationary bodies.

static tube (stāt'īk tōōb) n. A specialized tube used to measure the static pressure in a stream of fluid.

sta-tion (stā'shən) n. Abbr. sta. 1. The place or position where a person or thing stands or is assigned to stand; a post: a sentry station. 2. The place, building, or establishment from which a service is provided or operations are directed: a police station. 3. A stopping place along a route, especially a stop for refueling or for taking on passengers; a depot. 4. Social position; rank. 5. An establishment equipped for observation and study: a radar station. 6. An establishment equipped for radio or television transmission. 7. An input or output point along a communications system. 8. Ecology. a. The normal habitat of a particular plant or animal community. b. The exact place of occurrence of a species or individual within a given habitat. — v. tr. sta-tioned, sta-tion-ing, sta-tions. To assign to a position; post. [Middle English stacioun, from Old French station, from Latin statiō, statiōn-. See stā- in Appendix.]

sta-tion-ar-y (stā'shə-nēr'ē) adj. Abbr. sta., stat. 1. a. Not moving. b. Not capable of being moved; fixed. 2. Unchanging: a stationary sound. — n. pl. sta-tion-ar-ies. One that is stationary. [Middle English stacionarie, from Old French stationnaire, from Medieval Latin statiōnārius, from Latin, belonging to a military station, from statiō, statiōn-, station. See STATION.]

stationary bicycle (stā'shə-nēr'ē bī'sīk'əl) n. See exercise bicycle.

stationary front (stā'shə-nēr'ē frünt) n. A transition zone between two nearly stationary air masses of different density.

stationary orbit (stā'shə-nēr'ē ôr'bīt) n. A geostationary orbit.

stationary satellite (stā'shə-nēr'ē sāt'l-īt') n. An artificial satellite in a synchronous orbit.

stationary wave (stā'shə-nēr'ē wāv) n. See standing wave.

station break (stā'shən brāk) n. An intermission in a radio or television program for identification of the network or station.

sta-tion-er (stā'shə-nər) n. 1. One that sells stationery. 2. Archaic. a. A publisher. b. A bookseller. [Middle English staciouner, a bookseller, from Medieval Latin statiōnārius, shopkeeper (as against a peddler), probably from Latin statiō, statiōn-, place of business. See STATION.]

sta-tion-er-y (stā'shə-nēr'ē) n. 1. Writing paper and envelopes. 2. Writing materials and office supplies.

station house also sta-tion-house (stā'shən-hous') n. 1. A police station. 2. A fire station.

sta-tion-mas-ter (stā'shən-mäs'tər) n. Abbr. SM An official in charge of a railroad or bus station.

Sta-tions of the Cross (stā'shənz ÷v thē krôs) pl.n. Roman Catholic Church.

1. A devotion consisting of prayers and meditations before each of 14 crosses or images set up in a church or along a path commemorating the events of the Passion of Jesus. 2. The 14 crosses of this devotion, often accompanied by images or pictures representing the events of the Passion of Jesus.

sta-tion-to-sta-tion (stā'shən-tə-stā'shən) adj. Of, relating to, or designating a long-distance telephone call in which the caller is charged upon reaching anyone at the receiving number. — adv. By station-to-station long-distance telephone.

- station wagon (stā'shən wăg'ən) n. An automobile having an extended interior with a third seat or luggage platform and a tailgate. [Originally a covered wagon used to convey passengers from a train station to their hotel.]
- stat-ism (stā'tīz'əm) n. The practice or doctrine of giving a centralized government control over economic planning and policy. —stat'ist adj. & n.
- sta-tis-tic (stə-tīs'tīk) n. Abbr. stat. 1. A numerical datum. 2. A numerical value, such as standard deviation or mean, that characterizes the sample or population from which it was derived. [Ultimately from New Latin statisticus, of statecraft. See STATISTICS.]
- sta-tis-ti-cal (stə-tīs'tī-kəl) adj. Of, relating to, or employing statistics or the principles of statistics. —sta-tis'ti-cal-ly adv.
- stat-is-ti-cian (stāt'-ī-stīsh'ən) n. 1. A mathematician specializing in statistics. 2. A compiler of statistical data.
- sta-tis-tics (stə-tīs'tīks) n. Abbr. stat. 1. (used with a sing. verb). The mathematics of the collection, organization, and interpretation of numerical data, especially the analysis of population characteristics by inference from sampling. 2. (used with a pl. verb). Numerical data. [From German Statistik, political science, from New Latin statisticus, of state affairs, from Italian statista, person skilled in statecraft, from stato, state, from Old Italian, from Latin status, position, form of government. See stā- in Appendix.]
- Sta-tius (stā'shəs, -shē-əs), Publius Papinus. A.D. 45?-96?. Roman poet known for his epics Thebaid and Achilleid.
- sta-tive (stā'tīv) Grammar. adj. Belonging to or designating a class of verbs that express a state or condition. — n. A verb of the stative class.
- stato- pref. 1. Resting; remaining: statoblast. 2. Equilibrium; balance: statocyst. [From Greek statos, standing, placed. See stā- in Appendix.]
- stat-o-blast (stāt'ə-blăst') n. An asexually produced encapsulated bud of a freshwater bryozoan that is released upon disintegration of the parent colony in autumn, remains inactive through winter, and develops into a new organism in spring.
- stat-o-cyst (stāt'ə-sīst') n. A small organ of balance in many invertebrates, consisting of a fluid-filled sac containing statoliths that stimulate sensory cells and help indicate position when the animal moves. Also called otocyst
- stat-o-lith (stāt'l-īth') n. A small, movable concretion of calcium carbonate found in statocysts; an otolith.
- sta-tor (stā'tər) n. The stationary part of a motor, dynamo, turbine, or other working machine about which a rotor turns. [Latin, one that stands, from stāre, to stand. See stā- in Appendix.]
- stat-o-scope (stāt'ə-skōp') n. 1. A barometer for recording small variations in atmospheric pressure. 2. A device for indicating small changes in the altitude of an airplane.

stat·u·ar·y (stäch'ōō-ēr'ē) n. pl. stat·u·ar·ies. Abbr. stat. 1. Statues considered as a group. 2. The art of making statues. 3. A sculptor. — adj. Of, relating to, or suitable for a statue. [From Latin statuārius, of a statue, from statua, statue. See STATUE.]

stat·ue (stäch'ōō) n. A three-dimensional form or likeness sculpted, modeled, carved, or cast in material such as stone, clay, wood, or bronze. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin statua, from statuere, to set up. See STATUTE.]

stat·u·esque (stäch'ōō-ěsk') adj. Suggestive of a statue, as in proportion, grace, or dignity; stately. — stat·u·esque·ly adv.

stat·u·ette (stäch'ōō-ět') n. A small statue.

stat·ure (stäch'ər) n. 1. The natural height of a human being or an animal in an upright position. 2. An achieved level; status. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin statūra, from status, past participle of stāre, to stand. See stā- in Appendix.]

sta·tus (stā'təs, stät'əs) n. 1. Position relative to that of others; standing: Her status is that of a guest. 2. High standing; prestige: a position of status in the community. 3. Law. The legal character or condition of a person or thing: the status of a minor. 4. A state of affairs; situation. See Synonyms at state. [Latin. See stā- in Appendix.]

status quo (stā'təs kwō') n. The existing condition or state of affairs. [Latin, state in which : status, state + quō, in which, ablative of quī, which.]

status symbol (stā'təs sīm'bəl) n. Something, such as a possession or an activity, by which one's social or economic prestige is measured.

stat·u·ta·ble (stäch'ə-tə-bəl) adj. 1. Enacted, regulated, or authorized by statute; statutory. 2. Law. Legally punishable; recognized by statute: a statutable offense.

stat·ute (stäch'ōōt) n. Abbr. st., St., stat. 1. Law. A law enacted by a legislature. 2. A decree or an edict, as of a ruler. 3. An established law or rule, as of a corporation. [Middle English, from Old French estatut, from Late Latin statūtum, from neuter of Latin statūtus, past participle of statuere, to set up, from status, position. See stā- in Appendix.]

statute law (stäch'ōōt lô) n. A law established by legislative enactment.

statute mile (stäch'ōōt mīl) n. See mile (n., sense 1).

statute of limitations (stäch'ōōt ıv lım'ı-tā'shənz) n. pl. statutes of limitations. Law. A statute setting a time limit on legal action in certain cases.

stat·u·to·ry (stäch'ə-tôr'ē, -tōr'ē) adj. 1. Of or relating to a statute.

2. Enacted, regulated, or authorized by statute. — stat·u·to·ri·ly adv.

statutory offense (stäch'ə-tôr'ē ə-fěns') n. Law. A legal offense declared by statute.

statutory rape (stäch'ə-tôr'ē rāp) n. Sexual relations with a person who has not reached the statutory age of consent.

Stau·ding·er (stou'dĩng-ər, shtou' -), Hermann. 1881-1965. German chemist. He won a 1953 Nobel Prize for his research on giant molecules.

staunch¹ (stõnch, stãnch) also stanch (stõnch, stãnch, stãnch) adj.

staunch·er also stanch·er, staunch·est also stanch·est. 1. Firm and steadfast; true. See Synonyms at faithful. 2. Having a strong or substantial construction or constitution. [Middle English staunche, from Anglo-Norman estaunche, from estaunchier, to stanch, variant of Old French estanchier. See STANCH¹.]

—staunch/ly adv. —staunch/ness n.

USAGE NOTE: Staunch is more common than stanch as the spelling of the adjective. Stanch is more common than staunch as the spelling of the verb.

staunch² (stõnch, stãnch) v. Variant of stanch¹. See Usage Note at staunch¹.

Stau·ton (stãn'tøn) An independent city of north-central Virginia west-northwest of Charlottesville. The birthplace of Woodrow Wilson, it is a trade and processing center. Population, 24,461.

stau·ro·lite (stõr'ə-līt') n. A brownish to black mineral, chiefly (FeMg)₂Al₉Si₄O₂₃(OH), often having crossed intergrown crystals and sometimes used as a gem. [Greek stauros, cross; see stā- in Appendix + -LITE.]

—stau·ro·lit/ic (-līt'ik) adj.

Stav·vang·er (stə-vãng'ər) A city of southwest Norway south of Bergen on an inlet of the North Sea. Probably founded in the eighth century, it is a processing center with a shipbuilding industry. Population, 92,012.

stave (stāv) n. 1. A narrow strip of wood forming part of the sides of a barrel, tub, or similar structure. 2. A rung of a ladder or chair. 3. A staff or cudgel. 4. Music. See staff¹ (n., sense 5). 5. A set of verses; a stanza. — v. staved or stove (stõv), stav·ing, staves. — v. tr. 1. To break in or puncture the staves of. 2. To break or smash a hole in. 3. To crush or smash inward. 4. To furnish with staves. — v. intr. To be or become crushed in. — phrasal verb. stave off. To keep or hold off; repel: “For 12 years, we’ve sought to stave off this ultimate threat of disaster” (New York Times). [Back-formation from staves, pl. of STAFF¹.]

staves (stāvz) n. A plural of staff¹.

staves·a·cre (stāvz'ā'kər) n. 1. A larkspur, Delphinium staphisagria, of southern Europe, with greenish-white flowers. 2. The poisonous seeds of this plant, formerly used medicinally as an emetic, a cathartic, and an external parasiticide. [By folk etymology from Middle English staphisagre, from Latin staphis agria, from Greek : staphis, stavesacre + agria, feminine of agrius, wild; see agro- in Appendix.]

Stav·ro·pol (stāv-rõ'pəl, stäv'rə-pəl) A city of southwest Russia southeast of Rostov. It was founded as a fortress town in 1777. Population, 293,000.

stay¹ (stā) v. stayed, stay-ing, stays. — v. intr. 1. To continue to be in a place or condition: stay home; stay calm. 2. To remain or sojourn as a guest or lodger: stayed at a motel. 3. To stop moving; halt. 4. To wait; pause. 5. To endure or persist: stayed with the original plan. 6. To keep up in a race or contest: tried to stay with the lead runner. 7. Games. To meet a bet in poker without raising it. 8. To stand one's ground; remain firm. 9. Archaic. To cease from a specified activity. — v. tr. 1. To stop or halt; check. 2. To postpone; delay. 3. To delay or stop the effect of (an order, for example) by legal action or mandate: stay a prisoner's execution. 4. To satisfy or appease temporarily: stayed his anger. 5. To remain during: stayed the week with my parents; stayed the duration of the game. 6. To wait for; await: "I will not stay thy questions. Let me go;/Or if thou follow me, do not believe/But I shall do thee mischief in the wood" (Shakespeare). — n. 1. The act of halting; check. 2. The act of coming to a halt. 3. A brief period of residence or visiting. 4. A suspension or postponement of a legal action or an execution: granted a stay to the prisoner's execution. — idioms. stay put. To remain in a fixed or established position. stay the course. To hold out or persevere to the end of a race or challenge. [Middle English steien, from Old French ester, esteir, from Latin stāre. See stā- in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: stay, remain, wait, abide, tarry, linger, sojourn. These verbs mean to continue to be in a given place. Stay is the least specific, though it can also suggest that the person involved is a guest or visitor: We stayed at home all evening. "Must you go? Can't you stay?" (Charles J. Vaughan). Remain is sometimes synonymous with stay but more often implies continuing or being left after others have gone: A few people came to boo but remained to applaud. Please remain for a minute at the end of the meeting; I want a word with you in private. Wait suggests remaining in readiness, anticipation, or expectation: "Your father is waiting for me to take a walk with him" (Booth Tarkington). Abide implies continuing for a lengthy period: "Abide with me" (Henry Francis Lyte). Tarry and linger both imply a delayed departure, but linger more strongly suggests reluctance to leave: "She was not anxious but puzzled that her husband tarried" (Eden Phillpotts). "I alone sit lingering here" (Henry Vaughan). To sojourn is to reside temporarily in a place: "He was sojourning at [a] hotel in Bond Street" (Anthony Trollope). See also Synonyms at defer¹ stay² (stā) v. tr. stayed, stay-ing, stays. 1. To brace, support, or prop up. 2. To strengthen or sustain mentally or spiritually. 3. To rest or fix on for support. — n. 1. A support or brace. 2. A strip of bone, plastic, or metal, used to stiffen a garment or part, such as a corset or shirt collar. 3. stays. A corset. [Middle English staien, from Old French estaiier, from estaie, a support, of Germanic origin.]

stay³ (stā) n. 1. Nautical. A heavy rope or cable, usually of wire, used as a brace or support for a mast or spar. 2. A rope used to steady, guide, or brace. — v. tr. intr. stayed, stay-ing, stays. Nautical. To put (a ship) on the opposite tack or to come about. [Middle English, from Old English stæg.]

stay-ing power (stā'ing pou'ər) n. The ability to endure or last.

stay-in strike (stā'in' strīk) n. A job action that consists of a slowdown or work stoppage by employees who remain at their workplace.

stay-sail (stā'səl, -sāl') n. Nautical. A triangular sail hoisted on a stay.

stbd. abbr. Starboard.

STD abbr. Sexually transmitted disease.

std. abbr. Standard.

Ste. abbr. French. Sainte (feminine form of saint).

stead (stēd) n. 1. The place, position, or function properly or customarily occupied by another. 2. Advantage; service; purpose: “His personal relationship with the electorate stands in good stead” (John Sears). — v. tr. stead-ed, stead-ing, steads. To be of advantage or service to; benefit. [Middle English stede, from Old English. See stā- in Appendix.]

stead-fast also sted-fast (stēd'fäst', -fəst) adj. 1. Fixed or unchanging; steady. 2. Firmly loyal or constant; unswerving. See Synonyms at faithful. [Middle English stedefast, from Old English stedefæst: stede, place; see STEAD + fæst, fixed, fast; see past- in Appendix.] —stead/fast'ly adv. —stead/fast'-ness n.

stead-y (stēd'ē) adj. stead-i-er, stead-i-est. 1. Firm in position or place; fixed. 2. Direct and unfaltering; sure. 3. Free or almost free from change, variation, or fluctuation; uniform: a steady increase in value; a steady breeze. 4. Not easily excited or upset: steady nerves. 5. Unwavering, as in purpose; steadfast. 6. Reliable; dependable. 7. Temperate; sober. — v. tr. intr. stead-ied, stead-y-ing, stead-ies. To make or become steady. — interj. Nautical. Used to direct a helmsman to keep a ship's head in the same direction: Steady as she goes! — n. pl. stead-ies. The person whom one dates regularly, usually exclusively. —stead/i-er n. —stead/i-ly adv. —stead/i-ness n.

SYNONYMS: steady, even, equable, uniform, constant. These adjectives mean marked by lack of variation or change. Steady, the most general, can imply continuity, regularity, firmness, or steadfastness: Steady progress; the steady tick of the clock; a steady hand on the tiller; a steady, hard-working woman. Even suggests the absence of irregularity or fluctuation: maintaining an even tempo; has an even disposition. Equable usually implies an intrinsic or innate characteristic leading to a lack of variation, especially extreme variation: “The West Indian climate is... the most equable in the world” (Alec Waugh). Her father, an equable and genial man, is tolerant of her spirited stubbornness. Uniform emphasizes sameness, as in character or degree, in all aspects, parts, or elements: “Language was not uniform throughout the country but fell into dialects” (Kemp Malone). “Over all this the clouds shed a uniform and purplish shadow” (Robert Louis Stevenson). Constant implies invariability, as in nature or form: “Terror is the feeling which arrests the mind in the presence of whatsoever is grave and constant in human sufferings and unites it with the secret cause” (James Joyce).

steady state (stĕd'ē stāt) n. Physics. A stable condition that does not change over time or in which change in one direction is continually balanced by change in another.

stead-y-state theory (stĕd'ē-stāt' thĕ'ə-rĕ) n. A cosmological theory that assumes that the average density of matter in the universe is constant in space and time and that the expansion of the universe, required on other grounds, is compensated for by the continuous creation of matter. Also called continuous creation theory steak (stāk) n. 1. A slice of meat, typically beef, usually cut thick and across the muscle grain and served broiled or fried. 2. A thick slice of a large fish cut across the body. 3. A patty of ground meat broiled or fried. [Middle English steike, from Old Norse steik. See steig- in Appendix.]

steak au poivre (stāk ō pwäv'rə) n. pl. steaks au poivre. Steak studded with coarsely ground pepper before cooking and often flambéed with cognac. [STEAK + French au poivre, with pepper (au, with the + poivre, pepper).]

steak house or steak-house (stāk'hous') n. A restaurant that specializes in beefsteak dishes.

steak knife (stāk nīf) n. A table knife with a sharp, usually serrated steel blade.

steak tartare (stāk tär-tär') n. Raw ground beef mixed with onion, seasoning, and raw egg, eaten as an appetizer. Also called tartare steak [STEAK + French tartare, Tartar.]

steal (stĕl) v. stole (stōl), sto-len (stō'lən), steal-ing, steals. — v. tr. 1. To take (the property of another) without right or permission. 2. To get or effect surreptitiously or artfully: steal a kiss; stole the ball from an opponent. 3. To move, carry, or place surreptitiously. 4. To draw attention unexpectedly in (an entertainment), especially by being the outstanding performer: The magician's assistant stole the show with her comic antics. 5. Baseball. To advance safely to (another base) during the delivery of a pitch, without the aid of a base hit, walk, passed ball, or wild pitch. — v. intr. 1. To commit theft. 2. To move, happen, or elapse stealthily or unobtrusively. 3. Baseball. To steal a base. — n. 1. The act of stealing. 2. Slang. A bargain. — idiom. steal (someone's) thunder. To use, appropriate, or preempt the use of another's idea, especially to one's own advantage and without consent by the originator. [Middle English stelen, from Old English stelan.] — steal'er n.

SYNONYMS: steal, purloin, filch, snitch, pilfer, cop, hook, swipe, lift, pinch. These verbs mean to take another's property wrongfully, often surreptitiously. Steal is the most general: stole a car; stealing a few moments for relaxation; research that was stolen by a colleague. To purloin is to make off with something, often in a breach of trust: purloined the key to his safe-deposit box. Filch and snitch often suggest that what is stolen is of little value, while pilfer sometimes connotes theft of or in small quantities: filched an ashtray from the restaurant; snitch a handkerchief; strawberries pilfered from the farmer. Cop, hook, and swipe frequently connote quick, furtive snatching or seizing: copped a necklace from the counter; planning to hook a fur coat; swiped a magazine from the doctor's waiting room. To lift is to pick or take something up surreptitiously and keep it for oneself: The pickpocket lifted my wallet. Pinch suggests stealing something by or as if by squeezing it between the thumb and the fingers: went into the study and pinched a dollar bill.

stealth (stĕlth) n. 1. The act of moving, proceeding, or acting in a covert way. 2. The quality or characteristic of being furtive or covert. 3. Archaic. The act of stealing. [Middle English stelth, probably from Old English stǣlth*.] stealth-y (stĕl'thē) adj. stealth-i-er, stealth-i-est. Marked by or acting with quiet, caution, and secrecy intended to avoid notice. See Synonyms at secret.

—stealth/i-ly adv. —stealth/i-ness n.

steam (stēm) n. 1. a. The vapor phase of water. b. A mist of cooling water vapor. 2. a. Pressurized water vapor used for heating, cooking, or to provide mechanical power. b. The power produced by a machine using pressurized water vapor. c. Steam heating. 3. Power; energy. — v. steamed, steam-ing, steams. — v. intr. 1. To produce or emit steam. 2. To become or rise up as steam. 3. To become misted or covered with steam. 4. To move by means of steam power. 5. Informal. To become very angry; fume. — v. tr. To expose to steam, as in cooking. [Middle English steme, from Old English stēam.]

steam bath (stēm bāth) n. 1. The act of bathing through exposure to steam, which induces perspiration. 2. A room or building equipped to provide bathing with steam.

steam beer (stēm bîr) n. A highly effervescent beer originally brewed in the western United States.

steam-boat (stēm'bōt') n. Nautical. A steamship, especially one used on rivers and other inland waterways.

steam boiler (stēm boi'lər) n. A closed tank in which water is converted into steam under pressure.

steam chest (stēm chĕst) n. A compartment in a steam engine through which steam is delivered from the boiler to a cylinder.

steam engine (stēm ěn'jĭn) n. An engine that converts the heat energy of pressurized steam into mechanical energy, especially one in which steam drives a piston in a closed cylinder.

steam-er (stē'mər) n. Abbr. str. 1. Nautical. A steamship. 2. A vehicle, a machine, or an engine driven by steam. 3. A container in which something is steamed. 4. See soft-shell clam.

steamer rug (stē'mər rŭg) n. A warm blanket used especially by shipboard passengers while sitting in deck chairs.

steamer trunk (stē'mər trŭngk) n. A small trunk originally designed to fit under the bunk of a steamship cabin.

steam-fit-ter (stēm'fĭt'ər) n. One who installs and repairs heating, ventilating, refrigerating, and air-conditioning systems. —steam'fit'ting n.

steam heat-ing (stēm hē'tĭng) n. A heating system in which steam is generated in a boiler and piped to radiators.

steam iron (stēm ĩ'ərŋ) n. A pressing iron that holds and heats water to be emitted as steam on the cloth being pressed.

steam-rol-ler (stēm'rō'lər) n. 1. a. A steam-driven machine equipped with a heavy roller for smoothing road surfaces. b. A similar machine with an internal-combustion engine. 2. A ruthless or irresistible force or power. — v. also steam-roll (-rōl') steam-rol-lered also steam-rolled, steam-rol-ler-ing also steam-roll-ing, steam-rol-lers also steam-rolls. — v. tr. 1. To smooth or level (a road) with a steamroller. 2. To overwhelm or suppress ruthlessly; crush. — v. intr. To move or proceed with overwhelming or crushing force.

steam-ship (stēm'shĭp') n. Abbr. S.S., SS Nautical. A large vessel propelled by one or more steam-driven screws, propellers, or paddles.

steam shovel (stēm shŭv'əl) n. 1. A large, steam-driven machine for digging. 2. See power shovel.

steam table (stēm tā'bəl) n. A table in which containers of cooked food are kept warm by hot water or steam circulating below.

steam turbine (stēm tŭr'bĭn) n. A turbine operated by highly pressurized steam directed against vanes on a rotor.

steam-y (stē'mē) adj. steam-i-er, steam-i-est. 1. Filled with or emitting steam. 2. Erotic. —steam'i-ly adv. —steam'i-ness n.

ste-ap-sin (stē-ăp'sĭn) n. A digestive enzyme of pancreatic juice that catalyzes the hydrolysis of fats to fatty acids and glycerol. [Greek stear, tallow; see stei- in Appendix + (PE)PSIN.]

ste-a-rate (stē'ə-rāt', stĭr'āt') n. A salt or an ester of stearic acid. [STEAR(IC) + -ATE².]

ste-ar-ic (stē-ăr'ĭk, stĭr'ĭk) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or similar to stearin or fat. 2. Of or relating to stearic acid. [French stéarique, from Greek stear, tallow. See stei- in Appendix.]

stearic acid (stē-är'īk äs'īd) n. A colorless, odorless, waxlike fatty acid, $\text{CH}_3(\text{CH}_2)_{16}\text{COOH}$, occurring in natural animal and vegetable fats, used in making soaps, candles, lubricants, and other products.

ste·a·rin (stē'ər-īn, stīr'īn) also ste·a·rine (stē'ər-īn, -ə-rēn', stīr'īn) n. 1. A colorless, odorless, tasteless ester of glycerol and stearic acid, $\text{C}_3\text{H}_5(\text{C}_{18}\text{H}_{35}\text{O}_2)_3$, found in most animal and vegetable fats and used in the manufacture of soaps, candles, and adhesives and for textile sizing. Also called tristearin 2. The solid form of fat. [French stéarine : Greek stear, tallow; see stei- in Appendix + French -ine, -in.]

ste·a·rop·tene (stē'ə-röp'tēn') n. The portion of a natural essential oil that separates out as a white, crystalline solid on cooling or standing. [STEAR(IC) + Greek ptēnos, flying; see pet- in Appendix.]

steat- pref. Variant of steato-.

ste·a·tite (stē'ə-tīt') n. See soapstone. [Latin steatītis, a precious stone, from Greek, from stear, steat-, tallow. See stei- in Appendix.] —ste'a·tit'ic (-tīt'īk) adj.

steato- or steat- pref. Fat: steatolysis. [Greek, from stear, steat-, tallow. See stei- in Appendix.]

ste·a·tol·y·sis (stē'ə-tōl'ī-sīs) n. Digestive emulsification of fats before absorption and assimilation.

ste·at·o·pyg·i·a (stē-ät'ə-pīj'ē-ə, -pī'jē-ə) n. An extreme accumulation of fat on the buttocks. [STEATO- + Greek pugē, rump + *-ia*¹.] —ste'at·o·pyg'ic (-pīj'īk, -pī'jīk), ste'a·to·py'gous (-pī'gəs) adj.

ste·at·or·rhe·a also ste·at·or·rhe·a (stē'ə-tə-rē'ə, stē-ät'ə-) n.

1. Overaction of the sebaceous glands. 2. Excessive discharge of fat in the feces.

ste·a·to·sis (stē'ə-tō'sīs) n. Accumulation of fat in the interstitial tissue of an organ.

Steb·bins (stēb'īnz), Emma. 1815-1882. American sculptor known especially for her Angel of the Waters (Bethesda Fountain) (1873) in New York's Central Park.

sted·fast (stēd'fäst', -fəst) adj. Variant of steadfast.

steed (stēd) n. A horse, especially a spirited one. [Middle English stede, from Old English stēda, stallion. See stā- in Appendix.]

steel (stēl) n. 1. A generally hard, strong, durable, malleable alloy of iron and carbon, usually containing between 0.2 and 1.5 percent carbon, often with other constituents such as manganese, chromium, nickel, molybdenum, copper, tungsten, cobalt, or silicon, depending on the desired alloy properties, and widely used as a structural material. 2. Something, such as a sword, that is made of steel.

3. A quality suggestive of this alloy, especially a hard, unflinching character.

4. Color. Steel gray. — adj. 1. a. Made with, relating to, or consisting of steel: steel beams; the steel industry; a bicycle with a steel frame. b. Very firm or strong:

a steel grip. 2. Color. Of a steel gray. — v. tr. steeled, steel-ing, steels. 1. To cover, plate, edge, or point with steel. 2. To make hard, strong, or obdurate; strengthen: He steeled himself for disappointment. [Middle English stel, from Old English stȳle, stēl.]

steel band (stēl bānd) n. Music. A band of Trinidadian origin, composed chiefly of tuned percussion instruments fashioned from oil drums.

steel blue (stēl blōō) n. 1. Color. A medium grayish blue. 2. One of several blue colors taken on by steel while being tempered.

steel drum (stēl drūm) n. Music. A metal percussion instrument of Trinidadian origin, fashioned from an oil barrel and having a concave array of flattened areas that produce different tones when struck. —steel drummer n.

Steele (stēl), Mount. A mountain, 5,076.4 m (16,644 ft) high, in the St. Elias Mountains of southwest Yukon Territory, Canada.

Steele (stēl), Sir Richard. 1672-1729. English writer of plays and essays who founded and edited The Tatler (1709-1711) and, with Joseph Addison, The Spectator (1711-1712).

steel engraving (stēl ɛn-grā'vīng) n. 1. The art or process of engraving on a steel plate. 2. An impression produced with an engraved steel plate.

steel gray (stēl grā) n. Color. A dark to purplish gray.

steel guitar (stēl gī-tār') n. Music. 1. An acoustic guitar with a metal resonator built into the body, often played with a slide and producing a twangy, variable tone. 2. See Hawaiian guitar.

steel-head (stēl'hēd') n. The anadromous variety of rainbow trout, being larger and having darker spots than the freshwater variety.

steel-trap (stēl'trāp') adj. Very quick and keen; trenchant: a steel-trap intellect.

steel wool (stēl wōōl) n. Fine fibers of steel matted or woven together to form an abrasive for cleaning, smoothing, or polishing.

steel-work (stēl'wûrk') n. 1. Something made of steel. 2. steelworks. (used with a sing. verb.) A plant where steel is made; a foundry. —steel/work'er n.

steel-y (stē'lē) adj. steel-i-er, steel-i-est. 1. Made of steel. 2. Resembling steel, as in color or hardness: steely eyes. —steel/i-ness n.

steel-yard (stēl'yārd') n. A balance consisting of a scaled arm suspended off center, a hook at the shorter end on which to hang the object being weighed, and a counterbalance at the longer end that can be moved to find the weight. [STEEL + YARD¹, rod.]

Steen (stān), Jan. 1626?-1679. Dutch genre painter known for his humorous and moralistic depictions of domestic life and revelry, including Village Wedding (1635) and Flemish Feast in an Inn (1674).

steen-bok (stēn'bök', stān'-) also stein-bok (stīn'-) n. A small antelope (Raphicerus campestris) of southern and eastern Africa, having a brownish coat and short, pointed horns in the male and living chiefly in dry grasslands. [Afrikaans, from Middle Dutch steenboc, ibex : steen, stone; see stei- in Appendix + boc, buck.]

steep¹ (stēp) adj. steep-er, steep-est. 1. Having a sharp inclination; precipitous. 2. At a rapid or precipitous rate: a steep rise in salaries. 3. a. Excessive; stiff: a steep price. b. Ambitious; difficult: a steep undertaking. — n. A precipitous slope. [Middle English stepe, from Old English stēap.] —steep/ly adv. —steep/ness n.

SYNONYMS: steep, abrupt, precipitous, sheer. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “so sharply inclined as to be almost perpendicular”: steep cliffs; an abrupt canyon; precipitous hills; a sheer descent of rock.

steep² (stēp) v. steeped, steep-ing, steeps. — v. tr. 1. To soak in liquid in order to cleanse, soften, or extract a given property from. 2. To infuse or subject thoroughly to. 3. To make thoroughly wet; saturate. — v. intr. To undergo a soaking in liquid. — n. 1. a. The act or process of steeping. b. The state of being steeped. 2. A liquid, bath, or solution in which something is steeped. [Middle English stepen, perhaps of Old English origin.] —steep'er n.

steep-en (stē'pən) v. tr. intr. steep-ened, steep-en-ing, steep-ens. To make or become steep or steeper.

steep-ple (stē'pəl) n. 1. A tall tower forming the superstructure of a building, such as a church or temple, and usually surmounted by a spire. 2. A spire. [Middle English stepel, from Old English stēpel.]

steep-ple-bush (stē'pəl-bōōsh') n. See hardhack.

steep-ple-chase (stē'pəl-chās') n. 1. Sports. a. A horserace across open country or over an obstacle course. b. A footrace of usually 3,000 meters over a closed track with four hurdles and a water obstacle. 2. A course of action containing many obstacles. [From the use of church steeples as landmarks.] —steep-ple-chas'er n.

steep-pled (stē'pəld) adj. 1. Having steeples or a steeple: picturesque, steepled villages; a tiny, steepled church. 2. Steeply inclined: steepled roofs.

steep-ple-jack (stē'pəl-jäk') n. One who builds or maintains very high structures, such as steeples.

steer¹ (stîr) v. steered, steer-ing, steers. — v. tr. 1. To guide by means of a device such as a rudder, paddle, or wheel. 2. a. To direct the course of. b. To maneuver (a person) into a place or course of action. See Synonyms at guide. — v. intr. 1. To guide a vessel or vehicle. 2. To follow or move in a set course. 3. To admit of being steered or guided: a craft that steers easily. — n. A piece of advice. [Middle English steren, from Old English stēran. See stā- in Appendix.] —steer/a-ble adj. —steer'er n.

steer² (stîr) n. A young ox, especially one castrated before sexual maturity and raised for beef. [Middle English, from Old English stēor. See stā- in Appendix.]

steer-age (stîr'ij) n. 1. The act or practice of steering. 2. Nautical. a. The effect of the helm on a ship. b. The steering apparatus of a ship. c. The section of a passenger ship, originally near the rudder, providing the cheapest passenger accommodations.

steer-age-way (stîr'ij-wā') n. Nautical. The minimum rate of motion required for a ship or boat to be maneuvered by the helm.

steer-ing committee (stîr'ing kə-mīt'ē) n. A committee that sets agendas and schedules of business, as for a legislative body or another assemblage.

steering gear (stîr'ing gîr) n. The mechanism by which dispositions of the steering controls of a vehicle are transferred to the part that interacts with the external medium.

steering wheel (stîr'ing hwēl) n. A wheel that controls steering, as on a boat or in an automotive vehicle.

steers-man (stîrz'mən) n. Nautical. One who steers a ship.

steeve¹ (stēv) Nautical. n. A spar or derrick with a block at one end, used for stowing cargo. — v. tr. steeved, steev-ing, steeves. To stow or pack (cargo) in the hold of a ship. [From Middle English stēven, to stow, probably from Old Spanish estibar, to steeve, or from Old Catalan stivar both from Latin stīpāre.]

steeve² (stēv) Nautical. n. The angle formed by the bowsprit and the horizon or the keel. — v. steeved, steev-ing, steeves. — v. tr. To incline (a bowsprit) upward at an angle with the horizon or the keel. — v. intr. To have an upward inclination. Used of a bowsprit. [Origin unknown.]

Ste-fáns-son (stěf'ən-sən), Vilhjálmur. 1879-1962. Canadian-born explorer and ethnologist who studied the language and culture of the Eskimo.

Stef-fens (stěf'ənz), (Joseph) Lincoln. 1866-1936. American journalist. As managing editor of McClure's Magazine (1902-1906), he exposed governmental corruption in a series of articles, thereby inaugurating the era of muckraking journalism.

steg-o-don (stěg'ə-dŏn') n. Any of various extinct elephantlike mammals of the genus Stegodon and related genera, of the Pliocene to the Pleistocene. [New Latin Stegodon, genus name : Greek stegos, roof (from stēgein, to cover); see (s)teg- in Appendix + -ODON (so called because of the distinctive ridges on its molars).]

steg-o-saur (stěg'ə-sôr') also steg-o-sau-rus (stěg'ə-sôr'əs) n. Any of several herbivorous dinosaurs of the suborder Stegosauria of the Jurassic to the Cretaceous, having a double row of upright bony plates along the back, long hind legs, a short neck, and a relatively small head. [New Latin Stegosaurus, genus name : Greek stegos, roof; see STEGODON + New Latin saurus, lizard; see SAURY.]

Stei-chen (stī'kən), Edward Jean. 1879-1973. American photographer who was a pioneer of photography as a fine art.

stein (stīn) n. A mug, especially one for beer, usually holding about a pint. [German, probably short for Steinkrug, stone jug : Stein, stone (from Middle High German, from Old High German); see stei- in Appendix + Krug, jug.]

Stein (stīn), Gertrude. 1874-1946. American writer of experimental novels, essays, and plays. In Paris during the 1920's she was a central member of a group of American expatriates, including Ernest Hemingway. Her works include Three Lives (1908) and The Autobiography of Alice B. Toklas (1933).

Stein (stīn), William Howard. 1911-1980. American biochemist. He shared a 1972 Nobel Prize for pioneering studies of enzymes.

Stein-beck (stīn'bĕk'), John Ernst. 1902-1968. American writer of short stories and novels, most notably The Grapes of Wrath (1939), which concerns the social and economic plight of migrant farm workers in California. He won the 1962 Nobel Prize for literature.

Stein-berg (stīn'bûrg', -bærg), Saul. Born 1914. Romanian-born American graphic artist and cartoonist whose witty, satirical works have appeared in the New Yorker.

Stein-berg-er (stīn'bûr'gær), Jack. Born 1921. German-born American physicist. He shared a 1988 Nobel Prize for developing the use of a beam of neutrinos in high-energy particle research.

stein-bok (stīn'bŏk') n. Variant of steenbok.

Stein-em (stī'nəm), Gloria. Born 1934. American feminist, writer, and a founding editor (1972) of Ms. magazine.

Stein-er (stī'nær, shtī'-), Rudolf. 1861-1925. Austrian social philosopher who founded a Christianized school of theosophy, called anthroposophy, which recognizes the existence of pure thought that is independent of the senses.

Stein-heim man (stīn'hīm' mān, shtīn'-) n. An extinct hominid (Homo steinheimensis) known from skull fragments of the middle Pleistocene and thought to be an ancestor of Neanderthal man. [After Steinheim, a village of south-central Germany.]

Stein-itz (stī'nīts, shtī'-), William. 1836-1900. German chess master who was considered the world champion from 1866 to 1894.

Stein-man (stīn'mən), David Barnard. 1886-1960. American civil engineer who designed numerous suspension bridges, including the George Washington Bridge in New York City (1931).

Stein-metz (stīn'mĕts', shtīn'-), Charles Proteus. 1865-1923. German-born American electrical engineer and inventor known for his theoretical studies of alternating current, which made possible advancements in electrical generators and motors.

Stein-way (stīn/'wā'), Henry Engelhard. 1797-1871. German-born American piano maker who founded the Steinway & Sons piano company in New York City (1853).

ste-le (stē/'lē) n. pl. ste-les or ste-lae (-lē). 1. An upright stone or slab with an inscribed or sculptured surface, used as a monument or as a commemorative tablet in the face of a building. 2. Botany. The central core of vascular tissue in a plant stem or root. [Greek stēlē, pillar. See stel- in Appendix.] —ste'lar (-lər) adj.

Stel-la (stēl'ə), Frank Philip. Born 1936. American painter whose abstract works are characterized by geometric forms, brilliant colors, and often irregularly shaped canvases.

stel-lar (stēl'ər) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or consisting of stars. 2. a. Of or relating to a star performer. b. Outstanding; principal. [Late Latin stēllāris, from Latin stēlla, star. See ster-³ in Appendix.]

stellar wind (stēl'ər wīnd) n. The varying flow of plasma ejected from the surface of a star into interstellar space.

stel-late (stēl'āt') also stel-lat-ed (-ā'tīd) adj. Arranged or shaped like a star; radiating from a center. [Latin stēllātus, from stēlla, star. See ster-³ in Appendix.] —stel'late-ly adv.

Stel-ler's eider (stēl'ərz ī'dər) n. A small black-and-white eider (Polysticta stelleri) of Alaska, Canada, and Siberia. [After Georg Wilhelm Steller (1709-1746), German naturalist.]

Steller's jay (stēl'ərz jā) n. A bird (Cyanocitta stelleri) of western North America, having a black crested head, sooty-brown back and shoulders, and blue wings and tail and related to the blue jay. [After Georg Wilhelm Steller (1709-1746), German naturalist.]

Steller's sea lion (stēl'ərz sē lī'ən) n. A large sea lion (Eumetopias jubata) with a prominent mane, found from the Bering Sea to the California coast. [After Georg Wilhelm Steller (1709-1746), German naturalist.]

stel-li-form (stēl'ə-fōrm') adj. Shaped like a star. [New Latin stēllifōrmis: Latin stēlla, star; see STELLAR + Latin -formis, form (from fōrma).]

stel-lu-lar (stēl'yə-lər) adj. 1. Having the form of a small star. 2. Bespangled with small stars. [From Late Latin stēllula, diminutive of Latin stēlla, star. See STELLAR.]

stem¹ (stēm) n. 1. a. The main ascending axis of a plant; a stalk or trunk. b. A slender stalk supporting or connecting another plant part, such as a leaf or flower. 2. A banana stalk bearing several bunches of bananas. 3. A connecting or supporting part, especially: a. The tube of a tobacco pipe. b. The slender upright support of a wineglass or goblet. c. The small projecting shaft with an expanded crown by which a watch is wound. d. The rounded rod in the center of certain locks about which the key fits and is turned. e. The shaft of a feather or hair.

f. The upright stroke of a typeface or letter. g. Music. The vertical line extending from the head of a note. 4. The main line of descent of a family. 5. Linguistics. The main part of a word to which affixes are added. 6. Nautical. The curved upright beam at the fore of a vessel into which the hull timbers are scarfed to form the prow. 7. The tubular glass structure mounting the filament or electrodes in an incandescent bulb or vacuum tube. — v. stemmed, stem-ming, stems. — v. intr. To have or take origin or descent. — v. tr. 1. To remove the stem of. 2. To provide with a stem. 3. To make headway against: managed to stem the rebellion. — idiom. from stem to stern. From one end to another. [Middle English, from Old English stefn, stemn. See stā- in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: stem, arise, derive, emanate, flow, issue, originate, proceed, rise, spring. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to come forth or come into being”: customs stemming from the past; misery arising from war; rights deriving from citizenship; disapproval emanating from the teacher; happiness that flows from their friendship; prejudice that issues from fear; a proposal originating in the Congress; a mistake that proceeded from carelessness; rebellion rising in the provinces; new industries springing up.

stem² (stēm) v. stemmed, stem-ming, stems. — v. tr. 1. To stop or hold back by or as if by damming; stanch. 2. To plug or tamp (a blast hole, for example). 3. Sports. To point (skis) inward. — v. intr. Sports. To point skis inward in order to slow down or turn. [Middle English stemmen, from Old Norse stemma.]

stem cell (stēm sĕl) n. An unspecialized cell that gives rise to a specific specialized cell, such as a blood cell.

stem chris-tie (stēm krīs'tē) n. Sports. A turn in skiing made by stemming the uphill ski, transferring weight to its inside edge, and bringing the other ski into a parallel position midway through the turn.

stem·ma (stēm'ə) n. pl. stem·ma·ta (stēm'ə-tə) or stem·mas. 1. A scroll recording the genealogy of an ancient Roman family; a family tree. 2. The genealogy of the manuscripts of a literary work. 3. A small, circular, simple eye present in various insect larvae. [Latin stemma, stemmat-, from Greek, garland, from stephein, to encircle.]

stemmed (stēmd) adj. 1. Having the stems removed. 2. Provided with a stem or a specific type of stem. Often used in combination: stemmed goblets; long-stemmed roses.

stem rust (stēm rüst) n. A rust disease affecting the stem of a plant.

stem·son (stēm'sən) n. Nautical. A piece of supporting timber bolted to the stem and keelson at their junction near the bow of a wooden vessel. [STEM¹ + (KEEL)SON.]

stem turn (stĕm tûrn) n. Sports. A turn in skiing made by stemming the uphill ski, transferring weight to its inside edge, and bringing the other ski into a parallel position after the turn is completed.

stem-ware (stĕm'wâr') n. Glassware mounted on a stem with a broad base.

stem-wind-er (stĕm'wîn'dər) n. 1. A stem-winding watch. 2. A rousing oration, especially a political one.

stem-wind-ing (stĕm'wîn'ding) adj. 1. Wound by turning an expanded crown on the stem. 2. Of, relating to, or characterized by rousing oration: “a stem-winding style that one associates with the Senate of a hundred years ago” (New Yorker).

sten. abbr. Stenographer; stenography.

stench (stĕnch) n. A strong, foul odor; a stink. [Middle English, from Old English stenc, odor.]

SYNONYMS: stench, fetor, malodor, reek, stink. The central meaning shared by these nouns is “a penetrating, objectionable odor”: the stench of burning rubber; the fetor of polluted waters; the malodor of diesel fumes; the reek of stale sweat; a stink of decayed flesh.

sten-cil (stĕn'səl) n. 1. A sheet, as of plastic or cardboard, in which a desired lettering or design has been cut so that ink or paint applied to the sheet will reproduce the pattern on the surface beneath. 2. The lettering or design produced with such a sheet. 3. The process of printing with such a sheet. — v. tr.

sten-ciled or sten-cilled, sten-cil-ing or sten-cil-ling, sten-cils or sten-cils.

1. To mark with a stencil. 2. To produce by stencil. [From Middle English stencelled, adorned brightly, from Old French estenceler, to adorn brightly, from estencele, spark, from Vulgar Latin stincilla*, alteration of Latin scintilla, spark.]

—sten'cil-er n.

Sten-dhal (stĕn-däl', stän-, stän-), Pen name of Marie Henri Beyle. 1783-1842. French writer who influenced the development of the modern novel with his psychologically penetrating romances, such as The Red and the Black (1830).

Sten-gel (stĕng'gəl), Charles Dillon. Known as “Casey.” 1890?-1975. American baseball player and manager, most notably of the New York Yankees (1948-1960), a team he led to ten American league pennants and seven World Series championships.

sten-o (stĕn'ō) n. pl. sten-os. 1. A stenographer. 2. Stenography.

steno- pref. Narrow; small: stenotopic. [Greek, from stenos.]

sten-o-bath-ic (stĕn'ə-băth'ik) adj. Limited to or able to live only within a narrow range of water depths. Used of aquatic organisms. [STENO- + Greek bathos, depth + -IC.] —sten'o-bath' n.

steno-g. abbr. Stenographer; stenography.

sten·o·graph (stĕn'ə-grăf') n. 1. A keyboard machine for reproducing letters in a shorthand system. 2. A character in shorthand.

ste·nog·ra·pher (stə-nŏg'rə-fər) n. Abbr. sten., stenog. One who is skilled in stenography, especially one employed to take and transcribe dictation or testimony.

ste·nog·ra·phy (stə-nŏg'rə-fē) n. Abbr. sten., stenog. 1. The art or process of writing in shorthand. 2. The art or practice of transcribing speech with a stenograph machine. 3. Material transcribed in shorthand. —sten'·o·graph'ic (stĕn'ə-grăf'ik), sten'·o·graph'i·cal (-i-kəl) adj. —sten'·o·graph'i·cal·ly adv.

sten·o·ha·line (stĕn'ə-hā'līn, -hāl'īn) adj. Limited to or able to live only within a narrow range of saltwater concentrations. Used of aquatic organisms. [STENO- + Greek halinos, of salt (from hals, hal-, salt); see HALO-.]

ste·noph·a·gous (stə-nŏf'ə-gəs) adj. Feeding on a single kind or limited variety of food.

ste·nosed (stə-nŏzd', -nŏst') adj. Characterized by stenosis. [STENOS(IS) + -ED³.]

ste·no·sis (stə-nŏ'sis) n. pl. ste·no·ses (-sēz). A constriction or narrowing of a duct or passage; a stricture. [New Latin, from Greek stenōsis, a narrowing, from stenoun, to narrow, from stenos, narrow.] —ste·not'ic (-nŏt'ik) adj.

sten·o·ther·mal (stĕn'ə-thŭr'məl) also sten·o·ther·mic (-mīk) or sten·o·ther·mous (-məs) adj. Capable of living or growing only within a limited range of temperature. —sten'·o·therm' n.

sten·o·top·ic (stĕn'ə-tŏp'ik) adj. Able to adapt only to a narrow range of environmental conditions. Used of a plant or an animal. [STENO- + Greek topos, place + -IC.]

sten·o·type (stĕn'ə-tīp') n. 1. A keyboard machine used to record dictation in shorthand by a series of phonetic symbols. 2. A phonetic symbol or combination of symbols produced by such a machine. — v. tr. sten·o·typed, sten·o·typ·ing, sten·o·types. To record or transcribe (matter) with a stenotype machine. [STENO(GRAPHY) + TYPE.] —sten'·o·typ'ist n.

sten·o·typ·y (stĕn'ə-tī'pē) n. pl. sten·o·typ·ies. The art or process of transcribing with a stenotype machine.

sten·tor (stĕn'tŏr') n. Any of several trumpet-shaped, ciliate protozoans of the genus Stentor, living in dark freshwater pools and feeding chiefly on smaller microorganisms. [After Stentor, a Greek herald. See STENTORIAN.]

sten·to·ri·an (stĕn-tŏr'ē-ən, -tŏr'-) adj. Extremely loud: a stentorian voice. See Synonyms at loud. [After Stentor, a loud-voiced Greek herald in the Iliad.]

step (stĕp) n. 1. a. The single complete movement of raising one foot and putting it down in another spot, as in walking. b. A manner of walking; a particular gait. c. A fixed rhythm or pace, as in marching: keep step. d. The sound of a footstep. e. A footprint: steps in the mud. 2. a. The distance traversed by moving one foot ahead of the other. b. A very short distance: just a step away.

c. steps. Course; path: turned her steps toward home. 3. a. A rest for the foot in ascending or descending. b. steps. Stairs. c. Something, such as a ledge or an offset, that resembles a step of a stairway. 4. a. One of a series of actions, processes, or measures taken to achieve a goal. b. A stage in a process: followed every step in the instructions. 5. A degree in progress or a grade or rank in a scale: a step up in the corporate hierarchy. 6. Music. The interval that separates two successive tones of a scale. 7. Nautical. The block in which the heel of a mast is fixed.

— v. stepped, step·ping, steps. — v. intr. 1. To put or press the foot: step on the gas. 2. To shift or move slightly by taking a step or two: step back. 3. To walk a short distance to a specified place or in a specified direction: step over to the corner. 4. To move with the feet in a particular manner: step lively. 5. To move into a new situation by or as if by taking a single step: stepping into a life of ease. 6. To treat with arrogant indifference: He is always stepping on other people.

— v. tr. 1. To put or set (the foot) down: step foot on land. 2. To measure by pacing: step off ten yards. 3. To furnish with steps; make steps in: terraces that are stepped along the hillside. 4. Computer Science. To cause (a computer) to execute a single instruction. 5. Nautical. To place (a mast) in its step. — phrasal verbs. step down. 1. To resign from a high post. 2. To reduce, especially in stages: stepping down the electric power. step in. 3. To enter into an activity or a situation. 4. To intervene. step out. 5. To walk briskly. 6. To go outside for a short time. 7. Informal. To go out for a special evening of entertainment. 8. To withdraw; quit. step up. 9. To increase, especially in stages: step up production. 10. To come forward: step up and be counted. — idioms. in step. 1. Moving in rhythm. 2. In conformity with one's environment: in step with the times. out of step. 3. Not moving in rhythm: recruits marching out of step. 4. Not in conformity with one's environment: out of step with the times. step by step. By degrees. step on it. Informal. To go faster; hurry. [Middle English, from Old English stæpe, stepe.]

step- pref. Related by means of a remarriage rather than by blood: stepparent. [Middle English, from Old English stēop-.]

step·broth·er (stĕp'brūth'ər) n. A son of one's stepparent.

step·child (stĕp'child') n. 1. A spouse's child by a previous marriage.

2. Something that does not receive appropriate care, respect, or attention:

“Demography has a reputation for being the stepchild of... economics” (Louis Pol).

step dance (stĕp dāns) n. A dance in which emphasis is placed on certain steps, such as clogging or tapping, rather than body position or gesture.

step·daugh·ter (stĕp'dô'tər) n. A spouse's daughter by a previous marriage.

step-down (stĕp'doun') adj. 1. Decreasing in stages: a step-down gear.

2. Electricity. Serving to reduce voltage: a step-down transformer. — n. A reduction in amount or size.

step-fam-i-ly (stĕp'fām'ə-lē, -fām'lē) n. pl. step-fam-i-lies. A family with one or more stepchildren.

step-fa-ther (stĕp'fä'thər) n. The husband of one's mother and not one's natural father.

steph-a-no-tis (stĕf'ə-nō'tis) n. pl. steph-a-no-tis-es. Any of various woody climbing plants of the genus Stephanotis, especially S. floribunda of Madagascar, cultivated for its showy, fragrant, white flowers. [Greek stephanōtis, deserving a crown, from stephanos, crown, wreath, from stephein, to crown.]

Ste-phen (stĕ'vən), Saint. Died c. A.D. 36. Christian protomartyr who, according to tradition, was stoned to death after his defense of Christianity before the Sanhedrin.

Ste-phen I (stĕ'vən), Often called Saint Stephen. 975?-1038. King of Hungary (997?-1038). Considered the founder of the Hungarian state, he maintained strong ties with the Roman Catholic Church, advocated the building of churches and abbeys, and organized a standing army.

Ste-phen (stĕ'vən), Sir Leslie. 1832-1904. British writer and editor whose works include The History of English Thought in the Eighteenth Century (1876) and biographies of Samuel Johnson, Alexander Pope, and others.

Ste-phen of Blois (stĕ'vən ūf blwä), 1097?-1154. King of England (1135-1154). The grandson of William the Conqueror, he was the last Norman king of England.

Ste-phens (stĕ'vənz), Alexander Hamilton. 1812-1883. American politician who was vice president of the Confederacy (1861-1865) under Jefferson Davis.

Ste-phens (stĕ'vənz), Alice Barber. 1858-1932. American illustrator and painter whose works appeared in periodicals, including Women's World and Harper's, and in the books of authors such as George Eliot.

Ste-phens (stĕ'vənz), James. 1882-1950. Irish writer of poems and novels, such as The Crock of Gold (1912).

Ste-phen-son (stĕ'vən-sən), George. 1781-1848. British railway pioneer who built a practical steam locomotive (1814) and the first passenger railway (1825). His son Robert (1803-1859) built railroads, locomotives, and bridges.

step-in (stĕp'ɪn') adj. Put on by stepping into: a step-in robe. — n. 1. step-ins. Panties with wide legs. 2. A step-in garment.

step-lad-der (stĕp'läd'ər) n. A portable ladder with a hinged supporting frame and usually topped with a small platform.

step-moth-er (stĕp'mŭth'ər) n. The wife of one's father and not one's natural mother.

step-par-ent (stĕp'pâr'ənt, -pär'-) n. A stepfather or stepmother.

steppe (stĕp) n. A vast semiarid grass-covered plain, as found in southeast Europe, Siberia, and central North America. [German, from Russian step'.]

stepped-up (stĕpt'ŭp') adj. Increased in pace or intensity; heightened: a stepped-up political campaign.

step-per (stĕp'ər) n. 1. One that steps, especially in a fast or spirited manner. 2. Informal. A dancer.

step-ping-off place (stĕp'ŭng-ōf' plās, -ōf') n. 1. The last stop on an out-bound line, as of a train. 2. A place or point from which one leaves for unfamiliar regions.

step-ping-stone (stĕp'ŭng-stōn') n. 1. A stone that provides a place to step, as in crossing a stream. 2. An advantageous position for advancement toward a goal.

step rocket (stĕp rōk'it) n. See multistage rocket.

step-sib-ling (stĕp'sīb'lŭng) n. A stepbrother or a stepsister.

step-sis-ter (stĕp'sis'tər) n. A daughter of one's stepparent.

step-son (stĕp'sŭn') n. A spouse's son by a previous marriage.

step stool (stĕp stōol) n. A stool, often with folding steps attached, on which one stands to reach high objects.

step turn (stĕp tŭrn) n. Sports. A turn in skiing made by lifting one ski, putting it down again pointed in the direction of the turn, and transferring one's weight to it while bringing the other ski into a parallel position.

step-up (stĕp'ŭp') adj. 1. Increasing in steps or by stages. 2. Electricity. Serving to increase voltage: a step-up transformer. — n. An increase in size, amount, or activity.

step-wise (stĕp'wīz') adj. 1. Marked by a gradual progression as if step by step: "The [people's] height has increased sharply, stepwise by generation" (James Fal-lows). 2. Music. Moving from one tone to an adjacent one. — step'wise' adv.

ster. abbr. Sterling.

-ster suff. 1. One that is associated with, participates in, makes, or does: songster. 2. One that is: youngster. [Middle English, from Old English -estre, female agent suff.] ste-ra-di-an (stī-rā'dē-ən) n. Abbr. sr A unit of measure equal to the solid angle subtended at the center of a sphere by an area on the surface of the sphere that is equal to the radius squared: The total solid angle of a sphere is 4π steradians. See Table at measurement. [STE(Reo)- + RADIAN.]

ster-co-ra-ceous (stŭr'kə-rā'shəs) also ster-co-rous (stŭr'kər-əs) adj. Consisting of or relating to excrement. [Latin stercus, stercor-, dung; see sker⁻³ in Appendix + -ACEOUS.]

stere (stŭr) n. Abbr. s A unit of volume equal to one cubic meter. [French stère, from Greek stereos, solid, hard. See ster⁻¹ in Appendix.]

ster-e-o (stĕr'ē-ō', stŭr'-) n. pl. ster-e-os. 1. a. A stereophonic sound-reproduction system. b. Stereophonic sound. 2. A stereotype. 3. A stereoscopic system or photograph. — adj. 1. Stereophonic. 2. Stereoscopic.

stereo- pref. 1. Solid; solid body: stereotropism. 2. Three-dimensional: stereoscope. [Greek, from stereos, solid. See ster¹ in Appendix.]

ster·e·o·bate (stĕr'ē-ō-bāt', stîr'-) n. Architecture. 1. See stylobate. 2. The foundation of a stone building, its top course sometimes being a stylobate. [Latin stereobatēs, from Greek stereobatēs* : stereos, solid; see STEREO- + -batēs, walker (from bainein, to go); see g^wā- in Appendix.]

ster·e·o·chem·is·try (stĕr'ē-ō-kĕm'ī-strĕ, stîr'-) n. The branch of chemistry that deals with spatial arrangements of atoms in molecules and the effects of these arrangements on the chemical and physical properties of substances.

—ster'e·o·chem/i·cal (-ĭ-kəl) adj.

ster·e·o·chro·my (stĕr'ē-ə-krō'mĕ, stîr'-) n. pl. ster·e·o·chro·mies. The art or process of mural painting with pigments mixed with water glass.

—ster'e·o·chrome' n. —ster'e·o·chro/mic adj. —ster'e·o·chro/mi·cal·ly adv.

ster·e·o·gram (stĕr'ē-ə-grām', stîr'-) n. 1. A picture or diagram designed to give the impression of solidity. 2. A stereograph.

ster·e·o·graph (stĕ'rĕ-ə-grāf', stîr'-) n. Two stereoscopic pictures or one picture with two superposed stereoscopic images, designed to give a three-dimensional effect when viewed through a stereoscope or special glasses. — v. tr.

ster·e·o·graphed, ster·e·o·graph·ing, ster·e·o·graphs. To make a stereographic picture of.

ster·e·og·ra·phy (stĕr'ē-ŏg'rə-fĕ, stîr'-) n. 1. The art or technique of depicting solid bodies on a plane surface. 2. Photography that involves the use of stereoscopic equipment. —ster'e·o·graph'ic (-ə-grāf'ĭk), ster'e·o·graph'i·cal

(-ĭ-kəl) adj. —ster'e·o·graph'i·cal·ly adv.

ster·e·o·i·so·mer (stĕr'ē-ō-ī'sə-mær, stîr'-) n. One of a set of isomers whose molecules have the same atoms bonded to each other but differ in the way these atoms are arranged in space.

ster·e·o·i·som·er·ism (stĕr'ē-ō-ī-sŏm'ə-rĭz'əm, stîr'-) n. Isomerism created by differences in the spatial arrangement of atoms in a molecule.

—ster'e·o·i'so·mer'ic (-ī'-sə-mĕr'ĭk) adj.

ster·e·ol·o·gy (stĕr'ē-ŏl'ə-jĕ, stîr'-) n. The study of three-dimensional properties of objects or matter usually observed two-dimensionally. —ster'e·o·log'ic (-ə-lŏj'ĭk), ster'e·o·log'i·cal (-ĭ-kəl) adj. —ster'e·o·log'i·cal·ly adv.

—ster'e·ol'o·gist n.

ster·e·o·mi·cro·scope (stĕr'ē-ō-mī'krə-skŏp', stîr'-) n. A microscope optically equipped for stereoscopic viewing. —ster'e·o·mi'cro·scop'ic (-skŏp'ĭk)

adj. —ster'e·o·mi·cros/co·py (-mī-krŏs'kə-pĕ) n.

ster·e·o·phon·ic (stĕr'ē-ə-fŏn'ĭk, stîr'-) adj. Of or used in a sound-reproduction system that uses two or more separate channels to give a more natural distribution of sound. —ster'e·o·phon/i·cal·ly adv. —ster'e·oph'on·y (-ē-ōf'ə-nē) n.

ster·e·op·sis (stĕr'ē-ōp'sis, stîr'-) n. Stereoscopic vision.

ster·e·op·ti·con (stĕr'ē-ōp'tī-kŏn', stîr'-) n. A magic lantern, especially one with two projectors arranged so as to produce dissolving views. [New Latin : STEREO- + Greek optikon, neuter of optikos, optic; see OPTIC.]

ster·e·o·scope (stĕr'ē-ə-skōp', stîr'-) n. An optical instrument with two eye-pieces used to impart a three-dimensional effect to two photographs of the same scene taken at slightly different angles.

ster·e·o·scop·ic (stĕr'ē-ə-skōp'ik, stîr'-) adj. 1. Of or relating to stereoscopy. 2. Of or relating to a stereoscope. —ster'e·o·scop/i·cal·ly adv.

ster·e·os·co·py (stĕr'ē-ōs'kə-pē, stîr'-) n. 1. The viewing of objects as three-dimensional. 2. The technique of making or using stereoscopes and stereoscopic slides. —ster'e·os/co·pist n.

ster·e·o·tax·is (stĕr'ē-ə-tāk'sis, stîr'-) also ster·e·o·tax·y (stĕr'ē-ə-tāk'sē, stîr'-) n. 1. A method in neurosurgery and neurological research for locating points within the brain using an external, three-dimensional frame of reference usually based on the Cartesian coordinate system. 2. Movement of an organism in response to contact with a solid body. In this sense, also called thigmotaxis —ster'e·o·tac/tic (-tāk'tik), ster'e·o·tax'ic (-tāk'sik) , ster'e·o·tac/ti·cal (-tāk'tī-kəl) , ster'e·o·tax/i·cal (-tāk'sī-kəl) adj. —ster'e·o·tac/ti·cal·ly, ster'e·o·tax/i·cal·ly adv.

ster·e·ot·ro·pism (stĕr'ē-ōt'rə-pīz'əm, stîr'-) n. See thigmotropism. —ster'e·o·trop'ic (-ē-ə-trōp'ik) adj.

ster·e·o·type (stĕr'ē-ə-tīp', stîr'-) n. 1. A conventional, formulaic, and oversimplified conception, opinion, or image: “Regional stereotypes have been part of America since its founding.... Westerners are trendy, Midwesterners are dull, Northeasterners are brainy, and Southerners are lazy” (Brad Edmondson). 2. One that is regarded as embodying or conforming to a set image or type. 3. Printing. A metal printing plate cast from a matrix molded from a raised printing surface, such as type. — v. tr. ster·e·o·typed, ster·e·o·typ·ing, ster·e·o·types. 1. To make a stereotype of. 2. To characterize by a stereotype: “Elderly Americans are the neglected sector of the fashion industry, stereotyped by blue hair and polyester pantsuits” (American Demographics). 3. To give a fixed, unvarying form to. 4. To print from a stereotype. [French stéréotype, stereotype printing : stéreo-, solid (from Greek stereo-); see STEREO- + type, printing type (from Old French, symbol, from Late Latin typus); see TYPE.] —ster'e·o·typ'er n. —ster'e·o·typ'ic (-tīp'ik), ster'e·o·typ/i·cal (-ī-kəl) adj. —ster'e·o·typ/i·cal·ly adv.

ster·e·o·typed (stĕr'ē-ə-tīpt', stîr'-) adj. 1. Lacking originality or creative force. See Synonyms at trite. 2. Printing. Printed or reproduced from stereotype plates.

ster·e·o·ty·py (stĕr'ē-ə-tī'pē, stîr'-) n. pl. ster·e·o·ty·pies. 1. Excessive repetition or lack of variation in movements, ideas, or patterns of speech. 2. Printing. The process or art of making stereotype plates.

ster·e·o·vi·sion (stĕr'ē-ō-vīzh'ən, stîr'-) n. Visual perception of or exhibition in three dimensions.

ster·ic (stĕr'ik, stîr'-) also ster·i·cal (-ĭ-kəl) adj. Chemistry & Physics. Of or relating to the spatial arrangement of atoms in a molecule. [STER(EO)- + -IC.]
—ster'i·cal·ly adv.

ste·rig·ma (stə-rĭg'mə) n. pl. ste·rig·ma·ta (-mə-tə). A slender projection of the basidium of some fungi that bears a basidiospore. [New Latin, from Greek stērigma, support, from stērizēin, stērig-, to support. See ster¹ in Appendix.]

—ster'ig·mat'ic (stĕr'ĭg-măt'ik, stîr'-) adj.

ster·il·ant (stĕr'ə-lənt) n. A sterilizing agent.

ster·ile (stĕr'əl, -ĭl') adj. 1. Not producing or incapable of producing offspring. 2. a. Not producing or incapable of producing seed, fruit spores, or other reproductive structures. Used of plants or their parts. b. Producing little or no vegetation; unfruitful: sterile land. 3. Free from live bacteria or other microorganisms: a sterile operating area; sterile instruments. 4. Lacking imagination, creativity, or vitality. 5. Lacking the power to function; not productive or effective; fruitless: a sterile discussion. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin sterilis.] —ster'ile·ly adv. —ster'ile·ness, ste·ril'ī·ty (stə-rĭl'ī-tē) n.

SYNONYMS: sterile, infertile, barren, unfruitful, impotent. These adjectives in literal usage mean not producing or unable to produce offspring; figuratively they suggest a lack of productiveness. To be sterile is to be incapable of reproducing; by extension the term implies a lack of vitality, creativity, or effectiveness: a sterile conclusion; sterile pleasures. Infertile is synonymous with sterile: an infertile imagination. Barren especially describes one who has tried and failed to have children; it can also apply to what is devoid of profit, interest, or enjoyment: barren efforts; barren praise. Unfruitful literally means not bearing fruit or offspring and figuratively means not having a useful result: an unfruitful discussion. Impotent specifies the inability of a male to engage in sexual intercourse; in a general sense it implies powerlessness: impotent rage.

ster·il·i·za·tion (stĕr'ə-lī-zā'shən) n. 1. The act or procedure of sterilizing. 2. The condition of being sterile or sterilized.

ster·il·ize (stĕr'ə-līz') v. tr. ster·il·ized, ster·il·iz·ing, ster·il·iz·es. 1. To make free from live bacteria or other microorganisms. 2. To deprive (a person or an animal) of the ability to produce offspring, as by removing the reproductive organs. 3. a. To make incapable of bearing fruit or germinating. b. To render (land) unfruitful. 4. Economics. To place (gold) in safekeeping so as not to affect the supply of money or credit. 5. To make inoffensive or innocuous: sterilized the terminology with euphemisms. —ster'il-iz'er n.

ster-let (stûr'līt) n. A sturgeon (Acipenser ruthenus) of the Black and Caspian seas, used as a source of caviar. [Russian sterlyad', from Old Russian sterlyagi, of Germanic origin.]

ster-ling (stûr'lĭng) n. Abbr. ster., stg. 1. British money, especially the pound as the basic monetary unit of the United Kingdom. 2. British coinage of silver or gold, having as a standard of fineness 0.500 for silver and 0.91666 for gold.

3. a. Sterling silver. b. Articles, such as tableware, made of sterling silver. — adj. Abbr. ster., stg. 1. Consisting of or relating to sterling or British money.

2. Made of sterling silver: a sterling teaspoon. 3. Of the highest quality: a person of sterling character. [Middle English, silver penny : possibly sterre, star; see STAR + -ling, diminutive suff. (from the small star stamped on the coin); see *-LING*¹.]

Ster-ling (stûr'lĭng) A city of northwest Illinois southwest of Rockford. It is an industrial center. Population, 15,132.

Sterling Heights (stûr'lĭng hīts) A city of southeast Michigan, a suburb of Detroit. Population, 117,810.

sterling silver (stûr'lĭng sĭl'vər) n. 1. An alloy of 92.5 percent silver with copper or another metal. 2. Objects made of this alloy.

Ster-li-ta-mak (stěr'lĭ-tə-măk', stĭr'lyĭ-tə-măk') A city of western Russia on the Belaya River west of Magnitogorsk. Center of a chemical complex, it has varied heavy industries. Population, 240,000.

stern¹ (stûrn) adj. stern-er, stern-est. 1. Hard, harsh, or severe in manner or character: a stern disciplinarian. See Synonyms at severe. 2. Grim, gloomy, or forbidding in appearance or outlook. 3. Firm or unyielding; uncompromising. 4. Inexorable; relentless: stern necessity. [Middle English sterne, from Old English styrne. See ster-¹ in Appendix.] —stern'ly adv. —stern'ness n.

stern² (stûrn) n. 1. Nautical. The rear part of a ship or boat. 2. A rear part or section. [Middle English sterne, perhaps of Scandinavian origin; akin to Old Norse stjörn, rudder. See stā- in Appendix.]

Stern (stûrn), Isaac. Born 1920. Russian-born American violinist who is considered among the great 20th-century virtuosos.

Stern (stûrn), Otto. 1888-1969. German-born American physicist. He won a 1943 Nobel Prize for detecting the magnetic movements of atomic particles.

ster-na (stûr'nə) n. A plural of sternum.

ster-nal (stûr'nəl) adj. Of, relating to, or near the sternum.

Stern-berg (stûrn'bûrg'), George Miller. 1838-1915. American army physician who was U.S. surgeon general (1893-1902) and organized (1900) the Yellow Fever Commission.

stern chaser (stûrn chă'sər) n. A gun or cannon mounted on the stern of a ship for firing at a pursuing vessel.

Sterne (stûrn), Laurence. 1713-1768. British writer whose masterpiece, Tristram Shandy (1761-1767), was a precursor to modern stream-of-consciousness novels.

stern-fore-most (stûrn'fôr'mōst', -fôr'-) adv. Nautical. With the stern foremost; backward.

ster-nite (stûr'nīt) n. The ventral shield or plate of each segment of the body of an insect or other arthropod. [STERN(UM) + -ITE¹.]

stern knee (stûrn nē) n. Nautical. See sternson.

stern-most (stûrn'mōst') adj. Nautical. Closest to the stern.

ster-no-cla-vic-u-lar (stûr'nō-klə-vīk'yə-lər) adj. Of, relating to, or connecting the sternum and the clavicle.

ster-no-clei-do-mas-toid (stûr'nō-klī'də-mās'toid) n. Either of two muscles of the neck that serve to flex and rotate the head. [STERN(UM) + Greek kleis, kleid-, collarbone + MASTOID.]

ster-no-cos-tal (stûr'nō-kōs'təl) adj. Of or relating to both the sternum and the ribs. [STERN(UM) + Latin costa, rib; see kost- in Appendix + -AL¹.]

stern-post (stûrn'pōst') n. Nautical. The principal upright post at the stern of a vessel, usually serving to support the rudder.

stern sheets (stûrn shēts) pl.n. Nautical. The stern area of an open boat.

stern-son (stûrn'sən) n. Nautical. A bar of metal or wood set between the keelson and the sternpost to fortify the joint. Also called stern knee [STERN² + (KEEL)SON.]

ster-num (stûr'nəm) n. pl. ster-nums or ster-na (-nə). A long flat bone in most vertebrates that is situated along the ventral midline of the thorax and articulates with the ribs. The manubrium of the sternum articulates with the clavicles in human beings and certain other vertebrates. Also called breastbone [New Latin, from Greek sternon, breast, breastbone. See ster-² in Appendix.]

ster-nu-ta-tion (stûr'nyə-tā'shən) n. 1. The act of sneezing. 2. A sneeze. [Middle English sternutacioun, from Latin sternūtātiō, sternūtātiōn-, from sternūtātus, past participle of sternūtāre frequentative of sternuere, to sneeze.]

ster-nu-ta-tor (stûr'nyə-tā'tər) n. A substance that irritates the nasal and respiratory passages and causes coughing, sneezing, lacrimation, and sometimes vomiting.

ster-nu-ta-to-ry (stûr-nyōō'tə-tôr'ē, -tôr'ē, -nōō'-) adj. Causing or tending to cause sneezing. — n. pl. ster-nu-ta-to-ries. A sternutatory substance, such as pepper.

stern-ward (stûrn'wərd) adv. & adj. Nautical. Toward, to, or in the stern. —stern'wards adv.

stern-way (stûrn'wā') n. Nautical. The backward movement of a vessel.

stern-wheel-er (stûrn'hwē'lər, -wē'lər) n. Nautical. A steamboat propelled by a paddle wheel at the stern.

ster-oid (stîr'oid', stěr'(-) n. Any of numerous naturally occurring or synthetic fat-soluble organic compounds having as a basis 17 carbon atoms arranged in four rings and including the sterols and bile acids, adrenal and sex hormones, certain natural drugs such as digitalis compounds, and the precursors of certain vitamins. [STER(OL) + -OID.] —ster'oid', ste-roid'al (stī-roid'l, stě-) adj.

ste-roid·o·gen·e·sis (stī-roi'də-jěn'ī-sīs, stîr'oi-, stěr'(-) n. Production of steroids by living organisms. —ste-roid'o·gen'ic (-jěn'ik) adj.

ster-ol (stîr'ôl', -ôl', -ôl', stěr'(-) n. Any of a group of predominantly unsaturated solid alcohols of the steroid group, such as cholesterol and ergosterol, present in the fatty tissues of plants and animals. [Short for CHOLESTEROL.]

Ster·o·pe (stěr'ə-pē') also As-ter·o·pe (ă-stěr'(-) n. 1. Greek Mythology. One of the seven Pleiades. 2. One of the stars in the constellation Pleiades.

ster-tor (stîr'tər) n. A heavy snoring sound in respiration. [New Latin, from Latin stertere, to snore.] —ster'to-rous adj. —ster'to-rous-ly adv.

stet (stět) v. stet-ted, stet-ting, stets. Abbr. st. Printing. — v. intr. To direct that a letter, word, or other matter marked for omission or correction is to be retained. Used in the imperative. — v. tr. To nullify (a correction or deletion) in printed matter. [Latin, third person sing. present subjunctive of stāre, to stand. See stā- in Appendix.]

steth·o·scope (stěth'ə-skōp') n. Any of various instruments used for listening to sounds produced within the body. [French stéthoscope: Greek stēthos, chest + French -scope, an instrument for viewing (from Latin -scopium); see -SCOPE.] —steth'o·scop'ic (-skōp'ik), steth'o·scop'i·cal (-ī-kəl) adj.

—steth'o·scop'i·cal-ly adv. —ste-thos'co-py (stě-thōs'kə-pē) n.

Stet-son (stět'sən) A trademark used for a hat having a high crown and wide brim.

Stet-son (stět'sən), Augusta Emma Simmons. 1842-1928. American religious leader who founded the first Christian Science congregation in New York City (1888).

Stett·hei·mer (stět'hī'mər), Florine. 1871-1944. American artist whose paintings, most notably The Cathedrals of Fifth Avenue (1931) and The Cathedrals of Wall Street (1939), satirize life among the elite in New York City in the 1920's.

Stet-tin (stə-tēn', shtě-) See Szczecin.

Stet-tin·i·us (stə-tīn'ē-əs), Edward Reilly, Jr. 1900-1949. American business executive and public official who served as U.S. secretary of state (1944-1945) and was the first U.S. delegate to the United Nations (1945-1946).

Steu·ben (stōō'bən, styōō'-, stōō-běn', styōō-, shtoi'bən), Baron Friedrich Wilhelm Ludolf Gerhard Augustin von. 1730-1794. Prussian-born American Revolutionary military leader who trained the previously undisciplined troops under Gen. George Washington.

- Steu-ben-ville (stōō'bin-vīl', styōō'-) A city of eastern Ohio on the Ohio River south of Youngstown. Permanent settlement began here in 1797 on the site of Fort Steuben (1786-1790). Population, 22,125.
- ste-ve-dore (stē'vī-dôr', -dôr') n. One who is employed in the loading or unloading of ships. — v. ste-ve-dored, ste-ve-dor-ing, ste-ve-dores. — v. tr. intr. To load or unload the cargo of (a ship) or to engage in the process of loading or unloading such a vessel. [Spanish estibador, from estibar, to stow, from Latin stīpāre, to pack.]
- ste-ve-dore's knot (stē'vī-dôrz' nōt, -dôrz') also stevedore knot n. Nautical. A knot tied in the end of a line to prevent it from unreeving.
- Ste-ven-age (stē'və-nij) An urban district of southeast England north of London. It was the first new town to be designated under a parliamentary act of 1946 to decentralize population and industry. Population, 74,500.
- Ste-vens (stē'vənz), George. 1905-1975. American filmmaker who directed A Place in the Sun (1951), Giant (1956), and numerous other motion pictures.
- Ste-vens (stē'vənz), John. 1749-1838. American inventor who was instrumental in the passage of the first U.S. patent laws (1790) and built a seagoing steamboat, the Phoenix (1808).
- Ste-vens (stē'vənz), John Paul. Born 1920. American jurist who was appointed an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court in 1975.
- Ste-vens (stē'vənz), May. Born 1924. American artist whose large works often deal with themes such as imperialism, sexism, and racism.
- Ste-vens (stē'vənz), Nettie Marie. 1861-1912. American cytogeneticist whose studies on the chromosomes of the common mealworm led to the discovery of the chromosomal determination of sex.
- Ste-vens (stē'vənz), Thaddeus. 1792-1868. American politician. A U.S. representative from Pennsylvania (1849-1853 and 1859-1868), he led the impeachment proceedings against President Andrew Johnson (1868).
- Ste-vens (stē'vənz), Wallace. 1879-1955. American poet whose artful and innovative works, including "Peter Quince at the Clavier" and "Sunday Morning" (both 1923), concern the role of imagination in bringing order to a chaotic world.
- Ste-vens-John-son syndrome (stē'vənz-jōn'sən sīn'drōm') n. A severe inflammatory eruption of the skin and mucous membranes, usually occurring in children and young adults following a respiratory infection or as an allergic reaction to drugs or other substances. [After Albert Mason Stevens (1884-1945), and Frank Chambliss Johnson (1894-1934), American pediatricians.]
- Ste-ven-son (stē'vən-sən), Adlai Ewing. 1835-1914. Vice President of the United States (1893-1897) under Grover Cleveland. His grandson Adlai Ewing (1900-1965) was the Democratic nominee for President in 1952 and 1956.

Ste-ven·son (stē'vən-sən), Robert Louis Balfour. 1850-1894. British writer of essays, poetry, and novels, most notably Treasure Island (1883), The Strange Case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde (1886), and Kidnapped (1886).

Stevens Point (stē'vənz point) A city of central Wisconsin south of Wausau. Paper and furniture are among its manufactures. Population, 23,006.

Ste-vin (stə-vīn', -vēn'), Simon. Known as "Stevinus." 1548-1620. Flemish mathematician who studied decimal fractions, hydrostatics, perpetual motion, and gravity.

stew¹ (stōō, styōō) v. stewed, stew-ing, stews. — v. tr. To cook (food) by simmering or boiling slowly. — v. intr. 1. To undergo cooking by boiling slowly or simmering. See Synonyms at boil¹. 2. Informal. To suffer with oppressive heat or stuffy confinement; swelter. 3. Informal. To be in a state of anxiety or agitation. See Synonyms at brood. — n. 1. a. A dish cooked by stewing, especially a mixture of meat or fish and vegetables with stock. b. A mixture likened to this dish. 2. Informal. Mental agitation: in a stew over the lost keys. 3. Often stews. Archaic. A brothel. [Middle English stewen, to bathe in a steam bath, stew, from Old French estuver, possibly from Vulgar Latin extūpāre, extūfāre, to bathe, evaporate : Latin ex-, ex- + Vulgar Latin tūfus*, hot vapor (from Greek tuphos, fever); see TYPHUS.] —stew'y adj.

stew² (stōō, styōō) n. Informal. A flight attendant. [Short for STEWARDESS.]

stew·ard (stōō'ərd, styōō'-) n. 1. One who manages another's property, finances, or other affairs. 2. One who is in charge of the household affairs of a large estate, club, hotel, or resort. 3. A ship's officer who is in charge of provisions and dining arrangements. 4. An attendant on a ship or an airplane. 5. An official who supervises or helps to manage an event. 6. A shop steward. — v. intr. tr. stew·ard·ed, stew·ard·ing, stew·ards. To serve as a steward or as the steward of. [Middle English, from Old English stigeuard, stīward : stig, stī, hall + ward, keeper; see wer⁻³ in Appendix.] —stew'ard-ship' n.

stew·ard·ess (stōō'ər-dīs, styōō'-) n. A woman flight attendant. See Usage Note at -ess.

Stew·art (stōō'ərt, styōō'-), Dugald. 1753-1828. British philosopher who was an exponent of the school of common sense.

Stew·art (stōō'ərt, styōō'-), Henry. See Lord. Darnley.

Stew·art (stōō'ərt, styōō'-), James. Born 1908. American actor known for his portrayals of incorruptible and modest heroes in motion pictures such as Mr. Smith Goes to Washington (1939) and It's a Wonderful Life (1946).

Stew·art (stōō'ərt, styōō'-), Potter. 1915-1985. American jurist who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1958-1981).

Stew·art (stōō'ərt, styōō'-), Robert Second Marquis of Londonderry. See Viscount. Castlereagh.

stew·ar·tia (stōō-är'shə, -shē-ə, -tē-ə, styōō-) n. Any of various deciduous trees or shrubs of the genus Stewartia, native to eastern North America and tropical eastern Asia, having fragrant, showy, white flowers and smooth brown bark that peels into thin flakes. [New Latin Stewartia, genus name, after John Stuart, Third Earl of Bute (1713-1792), British politician.]

Stewart Island (stōō'ärt ī'lənd) A volcanic island of southern New Zealand off the southern coast of South Island. It was discovered in 1808 by the British, who bought it from the Maori in 1864.

Stewart River (stōō'ärt rīv'ər) A river, about 533 km (331 mi) long, of central Yukon Territory, Canada, flowing generally west to the Yukon River.

stewed (stōōd, styōōd) adj. 1. Cooked by stewing: stewed prunes. 2. Informal. Intoxicated; drunk.

St. Ex. abbr. Stock Exchange.

stg. abbr. Sterling.

stge. abbr. Storage.

sthe·ni·a (sthə-nī'ə, sthē'nē-ə) n. A condition of bodily strength, vigor, or vitality. [New Latin, from Greek sthenos, strength.]

sthen·ic (sthēn'ik) adj. Relating to or marked by sthenia; strong, vigorous, or active.

Sthe·no (sthē'nō) n. Greek Mythology. One of the three Gorgons.

stib·ine (stīb'ēn) n. A colorless, flammable poisonous gas, SbH₃, often used as a fumigant. [From Middle English stibium, antimony, from Latin, variant of stimi, from Greek stibi, stimmī, of Coptic origin; akin to Egyptian štm.]

stib·nite (stīb'nīt') n. A lead-gray mineral, Sb₂S₃, that is the chief source of antimony. [French stibine, stibnite (from Latin stibium, antimony); see STIBINE + -ITE¹.]

stich (stīk) n. A line of verse. [Greek stikhos. See steigh- in Appendix.]

stich·ic (stīk'ik) adj. Composed of verses having the same metrical form.

sti·chom·e·try (stī-kōm'ī-trē) n. The division of a prose piece into lines of fixed length or into lines whose lengths correspond to the natural divisions of sense, as in manuscripts written before the adoption of punctuation. [Greek stikhos, stich; see steigh- in Appendix + -METRY.] —stich'o·met'ric (stīk'ə-mēt'rik) adj.

stich·o·myth·i·a (stīk'ə-mīth'ē-ə) also sti·chom·y·thy (stī-kōm'ə-thē) n. An ancient Greek arrangement of dialogue in drama, poetry, and disputation in which single lines of verse or parts of lines are spoken by alternate speakers.

[Greek stikhomuthia, from stikhomuthein, to speak in alternating lines : stikhos, stich; see steigh- in Appendix + muthos, speech.] —stich'o·myth'ic adj.

stick (stīk) n. 1. A long, slender piece of wood, especially: a. A branch or stem cut from a tree or shrub. b. A piece of wood, such as a tree branch, that is used for fuel, cut for lumber, or shaped for a specific purpose. c. A wand, staff, baton, or rod. d. Sports & Games. Any of various implements shaped like a rod and used in play: a hockey stick. 2. A walking stick; a cane. 3. Something slender and often cylindrical in form: a stick of dynamite. 4. Slang. A marijuana cigarette. 5. a. The control device of an aircraft that operates the elevators and ailerons. b. Informal. A stick shift. 6. Nautical. A mast or a part of a mast. 7. Printing. a. A composing stick. b. A stickful. 8. a. A group of bombs released to fall across an enemy target in a straight row. b. Slang. A group of paratroopers exiting an aircraft in succession. 9. A timber tree. 10. Informal. A piece of furniture. 11. A poke, thrust, or stab with a stick or similar object: a stick in the ribs. 12. A threatened penalty: using both a carrot and a stick to keep allies in line. 13. The condition or power of adhering: a glue with plenty of stick. 14. sticks. Informal. a. A remote area; backwoods: moved to the sticks. b. A city or town regarded as dull or unsophisticated. 15. Informal. A person regarded as stiff, boring, or spiritless. 16. Archaic. A difficulty or an obstacle; a delay. — v.

stuck (stŭk), stick-ing, sticks. — v. tr. 1. To pierce, puncture, or penetrate with a pointed instrument. 2. To kill by piercing. 3. To thrust or push (a pointed instrument) into or through another object. 4. To fasten into place by forcing an end or point into something: stick a hook on the wall. 5. To fasten or attach with or as if with pins, nails, or similar devices. 6. To fasten or attach with an adhesive material, such as glue or tape. 7. To cover or decorate with objects piercing the surface. 8. To fix, impale, or transfix on a pointed object: stick an olive on a toothpick. 9. To put, thrust, or push: stuck a flower in his buttonhole; sticking her head out the window. 10. To detain or delay. 11. past tense and past participle.

sticked (stĭkt). To prop (a plant) with sticks or brush on which to grow. 12. past tense and past participle. sticked. Printing. To set (type) in a composing stick. 13. Informal. To confuse, baffle, or puzzle: Sometimes even simple questions stick me. 14. To cover or smear with something sticky. 15. Informal. To put blame or responsibility on; burden: stuck me with the bill. 16. Slang. To defraud or cheat: The dealer stuck me with shoddy merchandise. — v. intr. 1. To be or become fixed or embedded in place by having the point thrust in. 2. To become or remain attached or in close association by or as if by adhesion; cling: stick together in a crowd; stuck with me on the unfamiliar trail. 3. a. To remain firm, determined, or resolute: stuck to basic principles. b. To remain loyal or faithful: stick by a friend through difficult times. c. To persist or endure: a bad name that has stuck. 4. To scruple or hesitate: She sticks at nothing—no matter how difficult. 5. To be at or come to a standstill; become fixed, blocked, checked, or obstructed: stuck in traffic for an hour. 6. To project or protrude: hair sticking out on his head; an antenna sticking up on the roof. —phrasal verbs. stick around. Informal. To remain; linger. stick out. 2. To be prominent. 3. Informal. To put up with: had to stick out a bad situation in the office. stick up. To rob, especially at gunpoint. —idioms. be stuck on. Informal. To be very fond of. stick it to.

Slang. To treat severely or wrongfully. stick (one's) neck out. Informal. To make oneself vulnerable; take a risk. stick to one's guns (or stick by one's guns). To hold fast to an opinion or a set course of action. stick to (one's) knitting. Informal. To mind one's own business. stick to (one's) ribs. Informal. To be substantial or filling. Used of food. stick up for. To defend or support. [Middle English stikke, from Old English sticca. See steig- in Appendix.] stick-ball (stĭk'bōl') n. Sports. A form of baseball played with a rubber ball and a stick, such as one made from the handle of a broom, for a bat. —stick'ball'er n.

sticked (stĭkt) v. 1. Past tense and past participle of stick (v. tr., sense 11).

2. Printing. Past tense and past participle of stick (v. tr., sense 12).

stick'er (stĭk'ər) n. 1. One that sticks, as a gummed or adhesive label or patch.

2. A tenacious, diligent, or persistent person. 3. A thorn, prickle, or barb.

sticker price (stĭk'ər prīs) n. See list price.

stick figure (stĭk fig'yər) n. A picture of a human or animal figure showing the head as a circle and the rest of the body as a combination of straight lines.

stick-ful (stĭk'fŭl') n. Printing. The amount of type a composing stick will hold.

stick-han-dle (stĭk'hăn'dl) v. intr. stick-han-dled, stick-han-dling, stick-han-dles. Sports. To move, maneuver, and have control over the puck in ice hockey or the ball in lacrosse and field hockey. —stick'han'dler n.

stick-ing plaster (stĭk'ing plăs'tər) n. See plaster (n., sense 3).

sticking point (stĭk'ing point) n. A point, an issue, or a situation that causes or is likely to cause an impasse.

stick insect (stĭk ĭn'sĕkt') n. Any of several insects of the family Phasmidae, as the walking stick, that resemble sticks or twigs.

stick-in-the-mud (stĭk'ĭn-thə-mŭd') n. pl. stick-in-the-muds. Informal.

One who lacks initiative, imagination, or enthusiasm.

stick-le (stĭk'əl) v. intr. stick-led, stick-ling, stick-les. 1. To argue or contend stubbornly, especially about trivial or petty points. 2. To have or raise objections; scruple. [Variant of Middle English stightlen, to contend, frequentative of stighten, to arrange, from Old English stihtian, stihtan. See steigh- in Appendix.]

stick-le-back (stĭk'əl-băk') n. Any of various small freshwater and marine fishes of the family Gasterosteidae, having erectile spines along the back. [Middle English stikelbak: Old English sticel, prick; see steig- in Appendix + Middle English bak, back; see BACK¹.]

stick-ler (stĭk'lər) n. 1. One who insists on something unyieldingly: a stickler for neatness. 2. Something puzzling or difficult.

stick-pin (stĭk'pĭn') n. A decorative pin worn on a necktie.

stick-seed (stĭk'sĕd') n. Any of various plants of the genera Hackelia or Lapp-ula, having small barbed fruits that cling to clothing or fur.

stick shift (stĭk shĭft) n. An automotive transmission with a shift lever operated by hand.

stick-tail (stĭk'tāl') n. See suricate.

stick-tight (stĭk'tīt') n. See beggar ticks (pl.n., sense 1a).

stick-to-it-ive-ness (stĭk-tōō'ī-tĭv-nĭs) n. Informal. Unwavering pertinacity; perseverance: "You've got to have reasonable goals and the stick-to-itiveness to get there" (J. Robert Buchanan).

stick-um (stĭk'əm) n. An adhesive substance. [STICK + -um (variant of 'EM).]

stick-up (stĭk'ŭp') n. Slang. A robbery, especially at gunpoint. [From the expression "Stick up your hands!"] stick-weed (stĭk'wēd') n. Any of various plants having clinging seeds or fruit, especially ragweed.

stick-y (stĭk'ē) adj. stick-i-er, stick-i-est. 1. Having the property of adhering or sticking to a surface; adhesive. 2. Covered with an adhesive agent. 3. Warm and humid; muggy: a sticky day. 4. Informal. Painful or difficult: a sticky situation. 5. Economics. Tending to remain the same despite changes in the economy. Used of prices or wages. —stick'i-ly adv. —stick'i-ness n.

sticky wicket (stĭk'ē wĭk'ĭt) n. Informal. A difficult or embarrassing problem or situation.

stied (stĭd) v. Past tense and past participle of sty¹.

Stie-gel (stē'gəl, shtē'-), Henry William. 1729-1785. German-born American iron and glass manufacturer known for his high-quality colored glassware.

Stieg-litz (stēg'lĭts), Alfred. 1864-1946. American photographer whose works include a series of photographs of his wife, Georgia O'Keeffe.

sties¹ (stĭz) n. Plural of sty¹. — v. Third person singular present tense of sty¹.

sties² (stĭz) n. Plural of sty².

stiff (stĭf) adj. stiff-er, stiff-est. 1. Difficult to bend; rigid. 2. a. Not moving or operating easily or freely; resistant: a stiff hinge. b. Lacking ease or comfort of movement; not limber: a stiff neck. 3. Drawn tightly; taut. 4. a. Rigidly formal. b. Lacking ease or grace. 5. Not liquid, loose, or fluid; thick: stiff dough.

6. Firm, as in purpose; resolute. 7. Having a strong, swift, steady force or movement: a stiff current; a stiff breeze. 8. Potent or strong: a stiff drink. 9. Difficult, laborious, or arduous: a stiff hike; a stiff examination. 10. Difficult to comprehend or accept; harsh or severe: a stiff penalty. 11. Excessively high: a stiff price. 12. Nautical. Not heeling over much in spite of great wind or the press of the sail.

— adv. 1. In a stiff manner: frozen stiff. 2. To a complete extent; totally: bored stiff. — n. Slang. 1. A corpse. 2. A person regarded as constrained, priggish, or overly formal. 3. A drunk. 4. A person: a lucky stiff; just an ordinary working stiff. 5. A hobo; a tramp. 6. A person who tips poorly. — v. tr. stiffed, stiff-ing, stiffs. Slang. 1. To tip (someone) inadequately or not at all, as for a service rendered: paid the dinner check but stiffed the waiter. 2. a. To cheat

(someone) of something owed: My roommate stiffed me out of last month's rent.

b. To fail to give or supply (something expected or promised). [Middle English, from Old English stīf.] —stiff'ish adj. —stiff'ly adv. —stiff'ness n.

SYNONYMS: stiff, rigid, inflexible, inelastic, tense. These adjectives are compared as they describe what is very firm and does not easily bend or give way. Stiff, the least specific, refers to what can be flexed only with difficulty (a brush with stiff bristles; a stiff collar); with reference to persons it often suggests a lack of ease, cold formality, or fixity, as of purpose: “stiff in opinions” (John Dryden). Rigid and inflexible apply to what cannot be bent without damage or deformation (a table made of rigid plastic; an inflexible knife blade); figuratively they describe what does not relent or yield: “under the dictates of a rigid disciplinarian” (Thomas B. Aldrich). “In religion the law is written, and inflexible, never to do evil” (Oliver Goldsmith). Inelastic refers largely to what lacks elasticity and so will not stretch and spring back without marked physical change: an inelastic substance. Tense means stretched tight; it is applied literally to body structures such as muscles and figuratively to what is marked by tautness or strain: “that tense moment of expectation” (Arnold Bennett).

stiff-arm (stīf'ärm') Football. v. tr. stiff--armed, stiff--arm-ing, stiff--arms.

To straight-arm. — n. A straight-arm.

stiff-en (stīf'ən) v. tr. intr. stiff-ened, stiff-en-ing, stiff-ens. To make or become stiff or stiffer. —stiff'en-er n.

stiff-necked (stīf'nēkt') adj. Stubborn and arrogant or aloof. See Synonyms at obstinate.

stiff upper lip (stīf ūp'ər lɪp) n. Concealment of emotions or feelings, especially of grief or fear; great restraint or composure.

sti-fle¹ (stī'fəl) v. sti-fled, sti-fling, sti-fles. — v. tr. 1. To interrupt or cut off (the voice, for example). 2. To keep in or hold back; repress: stifled my indignation. See Synonyms at suppress. 3. To kill by preventing respiration; smother or suffocate. — v. intr. 1. To feel smothered or suffocated by or as if by close confinement in a stuffy room. 2. To die of suffocation. [Middle English stifilen, alteration (influenced by Old Norse stīfla, to stop up), of stuffen, stuflen, to stifle, choke, drown, from Old French estoufer, of Germanic origin.] —sti'fler n.

sti-fle² (stī'fəl) n. The joint of the hind leg analogous to the human knee in certain quadrupeds, such as the horse. [Middle English, possibly from Old French estivel, pipe, leg, tibia, from Latin stīpes, stick.]

sti-fling (stī'flɪŋ) adj. 1. Very hot or stuffy almost to the point of being suffocating. 2. Being of such a character or nature as to engender a feeling of stultifi-cation, repression, or suffocation: “The scholarly correctness of our age can be stifling” (Annalyn Swan). —sti'fling·ly adv.

Stig·ler (stĭg'lər), George Joseph. Born 1911. American economist. He won a 1982 Nobel Prize for theories on the function of industry and governmental economic regulations.

stig·ma (stĭg'mə) n. pl. stig·ma·ta (stĭg-mä'tə, -mä'tə, stĭg'mə-) or stig·mas. 1. A mark or token of infamy, disgrace, or reproach: “Party affiliation has never been more casual... The stigmata of decay are everywhere” (Arthur M. Schlesinger, Jr.). See Synonyms at stain. 2. A small mark; a scar or birthmark. 3. Medicine. a. A mark or spot on the skin that bleeds as a symptom of hysteria. b. A mark or characteristic indicative of a history of a disease or abnormality. 4. stigmata. Marks or sores corresponding to and resembling the crucifixion wounds of Jesus, sometimes occurring during religious ecstasy or hysteria. 5. Biology. A small mark, spot, or pore, such as the respiratory spiracle of an insect or an eyespot in certain algae. 6. Botany. The receptive apex of the pistil of a flower, on which pollen is deposited at pollination. 7. Archaic. A mark burned into the skin of a criminal or slave; a brand. [Middle English stigma, brand, from Latin stigma, stigmat-, from Greek, tattoo mark, from stizein, stig-, to prick. See steig- in Appendix.] —stig'mal adj.

stig·mas·ter·ol (stĭg-mäs'tə-rōl', -rōl') n. A sterol, C₂₉H₄₈O, obtained from soybeans or Calabar beans. [New Latin (Physo)stigma, Calabar bean genus; see PHYSOSTIGMINE + STEROL.]

stig·ma·ta (stĭg-mä'tə, -mä'tə, stĭg'mə-) n. A plural of stigma.

stig·mat·ic (stĭg-mät'ik) adj. 1. Relating to, resembling, or having stigmata or a stigma. 2. Anastigmatic. — n. A person marked with religious stigmata. —stig·mat'i·cal·ly adv.

stig·ma·tism (stĭg'mə-tĭz'əm) n. 1. The condition of being affected by stigmata. 2. The state of a refracting or reflecting system in which light rays from a single point are accurately focused at another point. 3. Normal eyesight.

stig·ma·tist (stĭg'mə-tĭst) n. A stigmatic.

stig·ma·tize (stĭg'mə-tĭz') *v. tr. stig·ma·tized, stig·ma·tiz·ing, stig·ma·tiz·es. 1. To characterize or brand as disgraceful or ignominious. 2. To mark with stigmata or a stigma. 3. To cause stigmata to appear on. [Medieval Latin stigmatizāre, to brand, from Greek stigmatizein, to mark, from stigma, stigmat-, tattoo mark. See STIGMA.] —stig'ma-ti-za'tion (-tĭ-zā'shən) n. —stig'ma-tiz'er *n.

Sti·kine (stĭ-kēn') A river rising in the Stikine Mountains of northwest British Columbia, Canada, and flowing about 539 km (335 mi) generally west and southwest through southeast Alaska to the Pacific Ocean.

stil-bene (stīl'bēn') n. A colorless or yellowish crystalline compound, $C_{14}H_{12}$, used in the manufacture of dyes and optical bleaches and as a phosphor. [Greek stilbos, shining (from stilbein, to shimmer) + -ENE.]

stil-bes-trol (stīl-bēs'trōl', -trōl', -trōl') n. DES. [STILB(ENE) + ESTR(US) + -OL¹.]

stil-bite (stīl'bīt') n. A white or yellow lustrous zeolite mineral, essentially $(Ca,Na)_2Al_2Si_7O_{18} \cdot 7H_2O$. [French, from Greek stilbos, shining. See STILBENE.]

stile¹ (stīl) n. 1. A set or series of steps for crossing a fence or wall. 2. A turnstile. [Middle English, from Old English stigel. See steigh- in Appendix.]

stile² (stīl) n. A vertical member of a panel or frame, as in a door or window sash. [Probably from Dutch stijl, doorpost, from Middle Dutch, possibly from Latin stilus, pole, post.]

sti-let-to (stī-lēt'ō) n. pl. sti-let-tos or sti-let-toes. 1. a. A small dagger with a slender, tapering blade. b. Something shaped like such a dagger. 2. A small, sharp-pointed instrument used for making eyelet holes in needlework. [Italian, diminutive of stilo, dagger, from Latin stilus, stylus, spike.]

stiletto heel (stī-lēt'ō hēl) n. A high heel on women's shoes that is thinner than a spike heel.

Stil-i-cho (stīl'ī-kō'), Flavius. 365?-408 A.D. Roman general who defended the Western Empire from the invading Goths and Vandals.

still¹ (stīl) adj. still-er, still-est. 1. Free of sound. 2. Low in sound; hushed or subdued. 3. Not moving or in motion. 4. Free from disturbance, agitation, or commotion. 5. Free from a noticeable current: a still pond; still waters. 6. Not carbonated; lacking effervescence: a still wine. 7. Of or relating to a single or static photograph as opposed to a movie. — n. 1. Silence; quiet: the still of the night. 2. A still photograph, especially one taken from a scene of a movie and used for promotional purposes. 3. A still-life picture. — adv. 1. Without movement; motionlessly: stand still. 2. Up to or at the time indicated; yet: still unfinished; will still be here tomorrow. 3. In increasing amount or degree: and still further complaints. 4. All the same; nevertheless. — v. stilled, still-ing, stills. — v. tr. 1. To make still or tranquil. 2. To make quiet; silence. 3. To make motionless. 4. To allay; calm: The parents stilled their child's fears of the dark. — v. intr. To become still. [Middle English, from Old English stille. See stel- in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: still, quiet, silent, noiseless, soundless. These adjectives mean marked by or making no sound, noise, or movement. Still implies lack of motion or disturbance; the term often connotes rest or tranquillity: "But after tempest... /There came a day as still as heaven" (Tennyson). Quiet suggests the absence of noise, bustle, tumult, or agitation: "life being very short, and the quiet hours of it few" (John Ruskin). Silent refers to absence of sound or noise and may suggest a profound hush: “I like the silent church before the service begins” (Ralph Waldo Emerson). Noiseless and soundless mean without sound but usually imply freedom from disturbing sound: “th’ inaudible and noiseless foot of time” (Shakespeare); “the soundless footsteps on the grass” (John Galsworthy).

still² (stīl) n. 1. An apparatus for distilling liquids, such as alcohols, consisting of a vessel in which the substance is vaporized by heat and a cooling device in which the vapor is condensed. 2. A distillery. [From Middle English stillen, to distill, from distillen. See DISTILL.]

Still (stīl), Andrew Taylor. 1828-1917. American physician who founded osteopathy (1874).

still alarm (stīl ə-lärm') n. A fire alarm transmitted silently, as by telephone, rather than by sounding the conventional signal apparatus.

still and all (stīl ənd ɔl) adv. Informal. After taking everything into consideration; nevertheless; however: Still and all, our objective can be achieved.

still·birth (stīl'bürth') n. 1. The birth of a dead child or fetus. 2. A child or fetus dead at birth.

still·born (stīl'bôrn') adj. 1. Dead at birth. 2. Failing before or at the very beginning of inception; abortive: a stillborn plot to assassinate the President.

still hunt (stīl hünt) n. The hunting of game by stalking or ambushing.

—still'·hunt' (stīl'hünt') v. —still'·hunt'er n.

stil·li·form (stīl'ə-fôrm') adj. Shaped like a drop; globular. [Latin stilla, drop + -FORM.]

still life (stīl lif) n. pl. still lifes. 1. Representation of inanimate objects, such as flowers or fruit, in painting or photography. 2. A painting, picture, or photograph of inanimate objects. —still'·life' (stīl'lif') adj.

still·ness (stīl'nīs) n. The state or an instance of being quiet or calm: “The stillness that permeates the valleys is visual as well as acoustical” (Barry Lopez).

Still·son (stīl'sən) A trademark used for a monkey wrench having serrated jaws that tighten as pressure is applied to the handle.

still water (stīl wô'tər) n. A flat or level section of a stream where no flow or motion of the current is discernible and the water is still. —still'·wa'ter (stīl'wô'tər, -wôt'ər) adj.

Still·wa·ter (stīl'wô'tər, -wôt'ər) A city of north-central Oklahoma north-northeast of Oklahoma City. Founded in 1889, it is the seat of Oklahoma State University (established 1890). Population, 36,676.

still·y (stīl'ē) adj. still·i·er, still·i·est. Quiet; calm. —stil'ly adv.

stilt (stīlt) n. 1. Either of a pair of long, slender poles each equipped with a raised footrest to enable the user to walk elevated above the ground. 2. Any of various tall posts or pillars used as support, as for a dock or building: a beach house on stilts. 3. pl. stilt or stilts. a. An American wading bird (Himantopus mexicanus) that has long pink legs, black and white plumage, and a long slender bill, and that ranges from the United States to Peru and Brazil and is related to the avocet. b. A related bird (Cladorhynchus leucocephala) of Australia. — v. tr. stilt-ed, stilt-ing, stilts. To place or raise on stilts. [Middle English stilte. See stel- in Appendix.]

stilt-ed (stīl'tīd) adj. 1. Stiffly or artificially formal; stiff. 2. Architecture. Having some vertical length between the impost and the beginning of the curve. Used of an arch. — stilt'ed-ly adv. — stilt'ed-ness n.

Stil-ton (stīl'tən) n. A rich, waxy cheese with a blue-green mold and a wrinkled rind. [After Stilton, a village of east-central England.]

stilt root (stīl rōōt) n. Botany. An aerial root.

Stil-well (stīl'wēl', -wəl), Joseph Warren. Known as "Vinegar Joe" or "Uncle Joe." 1883-1946. American army officer who commanded Allied forces in China, Burma, and India during World War II.

Stim-son (stīm'sən), Henry Lewis. 1867-1950. American public official who served as U.S. secretary of state (1929-1933) and secretary of war (1940-1945) during World War II. He was the chief adviser on atomic weaponry to Presidents Franklin D. Roosevelt and Harry S Truman.

stim-u-lant (stīm'yə-lənt) n. 1. An agent, especially a chemical agent such as caffeine, that temporarily arouses or accelerates physiological or organic activity. 2. A stimulus or an incentive: "An age of political excitement is usually a stimulant to literature" (Will Durant). 3. A food or drink, especially an alcoholic drink, believed to have a stimulating effect. — adj. Serving as or being a stimulus; stimulating.

stim-u-late (stīm'yə-lāt') v. stim-u-lat-ed, stim-u-lat-ing, stim-u-lates. — v. tr. 1. To rouse to activity or heightened action, as by spurring or goading; excite. See Synonyms at provoke. 2. To increase temporarily the activity of (a body organ or part). 3. To excite or invigorate (a person, for example) with a stimulant. — v. intr. To act or serve as a stimulant or stimulus. [Latin stimulāre, stimulāt-, to goad on, from stimulus, goad.] — stim'u-lat'er, stim'u-la'tor n. — stim'u-lat'ing-ly adv. — stim'u-la'tion n. — stim'u-la'tive, stim'u-la-to'ry (-lə-tōr'ē, -tōr'ē) adj.

stim-u-lus (stīm'yə-ləs) n. pl. stim-u-li (-lī'). 1. Something causing or regarded as causing a response. 2. An agent, an action, or a condition that elicits or accelerates a physiological or psychological activity or response. 3. Something that incites or rouses to action; an incentive: "Works which were in themselves poor have often proved a stimulus to the imagination" (W.H. Auden). [Latin goad.]

sting (stīng) v. stung (stūng), sting-ing, stings. — v. tr. 1. To pierce or wound painfully with or as if with a sharp-pointed structure or organ, as that of certain insects. 2. To cause to feel a sharp, smarting pain by or as if by pricking with a sharp point: smoke stinging our eyes. 3. To cause to suffer keenly in the mind or feelings: Those harsh words stung me bitterly. 4. To spur on by or as if by sharp irritation. 5. Slang. To cheat or overcharge. — v. intr. 1. To have, use, or wound with or as if with a sharp-pointed structure or organ, as that of certain insects. 2. To cause or feel a sharp, smarting pain. — n. 1. The act of stinging. 2. The wound or pain caused by or as if by stinging. 3. A sharp, piercing organ or part, often ejecting a venomous secretion, as the modified ovipositor of a bee or wasp or the spine of certain fishes. 4. A stinging power, quality, or capacity. 5. A keen stimulus or incitement; a goad or spur: the sting of curiosity. 6. Slang. A complicated confidence game planned and executed with great care, especially an operation organized and implemented by undercover agents to apprehend criminals. [Middle English stingen, from Old English stingan. See stegh- in Appendix.] —sting'ing·ly adv.

sting·a·ree (stɪŋ'ə-rē') n. See stingray. [Alteration of STINGRAY.]

sting·er (stɪŋ'ər) n. 1. One that stings, especially something such as an insult, that stings or wounds mentally. 2. A stinging organ or part. 3. A sharp blow. 4. Slang. One who participates in or organizes the operation of a sting. 5. A cocktail of crème de menthe and brandy.

sting·ing cell (stɪŋ'ɪŋ sɛl) n. See nematocyst.

stinging hair (stɪŋ'ɪŋ hâr) n. A glandular plant hair that expels an irritating fluid.

stinging nettle (stɪŋ'ɪŋ nɛt'l) n. 1. A dioecious perennial Eurasian herb (Urtica dioica) having stinging hairs, inconspicuous greenish flowers, and coarsely toothed leaves. 2. A perennial herb (Cnidioscolus stimulosus) of the southeast United States, having stinging hairs and fragrant white flowers.

sting·ray (stɪŋ'rā') n. Any of various rays of the family Dasyatidae, having a whiplike tail armed with one or more venomous spines capable of inflicting severe injury. Also called stingaree stin·gy (stɪn'jē) adj. stin·gi·er, stin·gi·est. 1. Giving or spending reluctantly. 2. Scanty or meager: a stingy meal; stingy with details about the past. [Perhaps alteration of dialectal stingy, stinging, from STING.] —stin'gi·ly adv.

—stin'gi·ness n.

SYNONYMS: stingy, close, close-fisted, niggardly, penny-pinching, miserly, parsimonious, penurious, tight, tightfisted. These adjectives mean reluctant or marked by reluctance to spend money or part with possessions. Stingy, the most general, implies absence of generosity and often an inclination toward meanness of spirit: She practices economy without being stingy. Close and close-fisted imply both stinginess and exceeding caution: Poverty has taught them to be close with their money. The old peasant was an avaricious and close-fisted fellow. Niggardly implies a tendency to be grudging and petty: Don't be niggardly; you can afford to share your good fortune. Penny-pinching heightens the implications of niggardly and sometimes suggests foolish economy: Penny-pinching landlords stinted their tenants on heat and hot water. Miserly implies greed and the hoarding of wealth for its own sake: “He was a miserly wretch who grudged us food to eat, and clothes to wear” (Charles Dickens). Parsimonious emphasizes excessive frugality: The appropriations committee, suddenly and ill-advisedly parsimonious, cut funds for assistance to the disadvantaged. Penurious implies ungenerous or petty unwillingness to spend money, usually to an extreme degree: “He lived in the most penurious manner, and denied himself every indulgence” (William Godwin). Tight and tightfisted suggest not only niggardliness but also a close and vigilant control over one’s funds and possessions: tight with the family, generous to others; “too tightfisted to spend a few dollars” (Sinclair Lewis).

stink (stĭngk) v. stank (stǎngk) or stunk (stŭngk), stunk, stink-ing, stinks.

— v. intr. 1. To emit a strong foul odor. 2. a. To be highly offensive or abhorrent. b. To be in extremely bad repute. 3. Slang. To have something to an extreme or offensive degree: a family that stinks with money; a deed that stinks of treachery. 4. Slang. To be of an extremely low or bad quality: This job stinks. — v. tr. To cause to stink: garbage that stinks up the yard. — n. A strong offensive odor; a stench. See Synonyms at stench. —idiom. make a stink (or raise a stink). Slang. To make a great fuss. [Middle English stinken, from Old English stincan, to emit a smell.] —stink’y adj.

stink-a-roo (stĭng’kə-rōō’, stĭng’kə-rōō’) n. Slang. Variant of stinkeroo.

stink-ball (stĭngk’bôl’) n. See stinkpot (n., sense 4).

stink bomb (stĭngk böm) n. A small bomb, often in the form of a capsule, that emits a foul odor on detonation.

stink-bug (stĭngk’büg’) n. Any of numerous hemipterous insects of the family Pentatomidae, having a broad, flattened body and emitting a foul odor.

stink-er (stĭng’kər) n. Slang. 1. A person regarded as irritating, disgusting, or contemptible. 2. Slang. Something very difficult: The interview was a real stinker.

stink-er-oo also stink-a-roo (stĭng’kə-rōō’, stĭng’kə-rōō’) n. pl. stink-er-ooos also stink-a-roos. Slang. One that is contemptible, disgusting, irritating, or very bad. [From STINKER.]

stink-horn (stĭngk’hôrn’) n. Any of several foul-smelling fungi of the order Phallales, such as Phallus impudicus or P. ravenelii, having a thick, cylindrical stalk and a narrow cap.

stink-ing (stĭng’kĭng) adj. 1. Having a foul smell; fetid. 2. Slang. Very drunk. — adv. Slang. Used as an intensive: stinking rich. —stink’ing-ly adv.

—stink’ing-ness n.

stinking ash (stĭng’kĭng ăsh) n. An eastern North American deciduous ornamental tree or shrub (Ptelea trifoliata) having trifoliolate leaves and oblong to heart-shaped samara with reticulate wings. Also called water ash stinking chamomile (stɪŋk'kɪŋ kəm'ə-mīl') n. See mayweed.

stink-o (stɪŋk'kō) adj. Slang. 1. Very drunk. 2. Of poor or inferior quality.

[From STINK.]

stink-pot (stɪŋk'pöt') n. 1. Slang. A person who is despised. 2. A small musk turtle (Sternotherus odoratus) of the eastern and southern United States, usually found on the bottom of ponds and small streams. 3. Slang. A motorboat. 4. An earthenware jar containing combustibles emitting a suffocating smoke, formerly used in naval warfare. In this sense, also called stinkball stink stone also stink-stone (stɪŋk'stōn') n. A variety of limestone that emits a disagreeable odor when struck or rubbed.

stink-weed (stɪŋk'wēd') n. Any of various plants that have flowers or foliage with an unpleasant odor.

stink-wood (stɪŋk'wōd') n. 1. a. A southern African deciduous tree (Ocotea bullata) having wood with an unpleasant odor. b. The hard, heavy wood of this tree, used in cabinetwork. 2. Any of several trees having wood with an unpleasant odor.

stint¹ (stɪnt) v. stint-ed, stint-ing, stints. — v. tr. 1. To restrict or limit, as in amount or number; be sparing with. 2. Archaic. To cause to stop. — v. intr. 1. To subsist on a meager allowance; be frugal. 2. Archaic. To stop or desist. — n. 1. A fixed amount or share of work allotted. See Synonyms at task. 2. A limitation or restriction: working without stint. [Middle English stinten, to cease, from Old English styntan, to blunt.] — stint'er n. — stint'ing-ly adv.

stint² (stɪnt) n. Any of several small sandpipers of the genera Erolia or Calidris, of northern regions. [Middle English stint, from Old English.]

stip. abbr. 1. Stipend. 2. Stipulation.

stipe (stīp) n. Botany. A supporting stalk or stemlike structure, especially the stalk of a pistil, the petiole of a fern frond, or the stalk that supports the cap of a mushroom. [French, from Latin stīpes, post.]

sti-pel (stī'pəl, stī-pěl') n. Botany. A minute stipule at the base of a leaflet. [New Latin stipella, diminutive of stipula, stipule. See STIPULE.] — sti-pel'late (stī-pěl'it, stī'pə-lāt') adj.

sti-pend (stī'pənd', -pənd) n. Abbr. stip. A fixed and regular payment, such as a salary for services rendered or an allowance. [Middle English stipendie, from Old French, from Latin stīpendium, soldier's pay, from stīpendium* : stips, stip-, a small payment + pendere, to weigh, pay; see SUSPEND.]

sti-pen-di-ar-y (stī-pən'dē-ēr'ē) adj. 1. Receiving a stipend. 2. Compensated by stipend: stipendiary services. — n. pl. sti-pen-di-ar-ies. A recipient of a stipend.

sti-pes (stī'pēz) n. pl. stip-i-tes (stīp'i-tēz'). 1. The basal segment of the maxilla of an insect or a crustacean. 2. Botany. A stalklike support or structure; a stipe. [New Latin stīpes, stīpit-, from Latin, post.] —sti'pi-form' (stī'pə-fôrm'), stip'i-ti-form' (stĭp'ī-tə-) adj.

stip·i·tate (stĭp'ī-tāt') Botany. adj. Supported on or having a stipe.

stip·i·tes (stĭp'ī-tēz') n. Plural of stipes.

stip·ple (stĭp'əl) v. tr. stip·pled, stip·pling, stip·ples. 1. To draw, engrave, or paint in dots or short strokes. 2. To apply (paint, for example) in dots or short strokes. 3. To dot, fleck, or speckle: "They crossed a field stippled with purple weeds" (Flannery O'Connor). — n. 1. A method of drawing, engraving, or painting using dots or short strokes. 2. The effect produced by stippling. [Dutch stippelen, frequentative of stippen, to speckle, from stip, dot, from Middle Dutch.] —stip'pler n.

stip·u·lar (stĭp'yə-lər) adj. Of, relating to, or resembling a stipule.

stip·u·late¹ (stĭp'yə-lāt') v. stip·u·lat·ed, stip·u·lat·ing, stip·u·lates. — v. tr. 1. a. To lay down as a condition of an agreement; require by contract. b. To specify or arrange in an agreement: stipulate a date of payment and a price. 2. To guarantee or promise (something) in an agreement. — v. intr. 1. To make an express demand or provision in an agreement. 2. To form an agreement. [Latin stipulārī, stipulāt-, to bargain.] —stip'u·la'tor n.

stip·u·late² (stĭp'yə-līt) adj. Botany. Having stipules.

stip·u·la·tion (stĭp'yə-lā'shən) n. Abbr. stip. 1. The act of stipulating.

2. Something stipulated, especially a term or condition in an agreement.

—stip'u·la-to'ry (-lə-tôr'ē, -tôr'ē) adj.

stip·ule (stĭp'yool) n. Botany. One of the usually small, paired appendages at the base of a leafstalk in certain plants, such as roses and beans. [New Latin stipula, from Latin, stalk. See STUBBLE.] —stip'uled' adj.

stir¹ (stîr) v. stirred, stir·ring, stirs. — v. tr. 1. a. To pass an implement through (a liquid, for example) in circular motions so as to mix or cool the contents: stirred the soup before tasting it. b. To introduce (an ingredient, for example) into a liquid or mixture: stirred a cup of sugar into the cake batter. c. To mix together the ingredients of before cooking or use: stirred up some popover batter; stirred the paint. 2. To alter the placement of slightly; disarrange: had not stirred out of line. 3. To cause to move briskly or vigorously; bestir. 4. a. To rouse, as from indifference, and prompt to action. See Synonyms at provoke. b. To provoke deliberately: stirred by trouble. 5. To excite strong feelings in. — v. intr. 1. To change position slightly: The dog stirred in its sleep. 2. a. To move about actively; bestir oneself. b. To move away from a customary or usual place or position: instructed the guards not to stir from their posts. 3. To take place; happen. 4. To be capable of being stirred: a mixture that stirs easily. 5. To be roused or affected by strong feelings: "His wrath so stirred within him, that he could have struck him dead" (Charles Dickens). — n. 1. A stirring, mixing, or poking movement. 2. A slight movement. 3. A disturbance or commotion. 4. An excited reaction; a ferment. [Middle English stiren, from Old English styrīan, to excite, agitate.] —stir/rer n.

stir² (stûr) n. Slang. Prison. [Origin unknown.]

stir-cra-zy (stûr'krā'zē) adj. Informal. Distraught or restless from long confinement in or as if in prison.

stir-fry (stûr'frī') v. tr. stir-fried (-frīd'), stir-fry-ing, stir-fries (-frīz'). To fry quickly in a small amount of oil over high heat while stirring continuously.

— n. Food fried quickly in this manner: a chicken and vegetable stir-fry.

stirk (stûrk) n. Chiefly British. A heifer or bullock, especially between one and two years old. [Middle English, from Old English stīrc. See stā- in Appendix.]

Stir-ling (stûr'ling) A borough of central Scotland on the Forth River west-northwest of Edinburgh. Its medieval castle was the birthplace of James II of Scotland. Population, 38,400.

stirps (stûrps) n. pl. stir-pes (stûr'pēz). 1. A line of descendants of common ancestry; stock. 2. Law. A person from whom a family is descended. [Latin, stem, lineage.]

stir-ring (stûr'ring) adj. 1. Exciting strong feelings, as of inspiration; rousing. See Synonyms at moving. 2. Active; lively. — n. A slight motion or moving about: restless stirrings in the audience. —stir/ring-ly adv.

stir-rup (stûr'əp, stîr'-) n. 1. A flat-based loop or ring hung from either side of a horse's saddle to support the rider's foot in mounting and riding; a stirrup iron. 2. A part or device shaped like an inverted U in which something is supported, held, or fixed. 3. Nautical. A rope on a ship that hangs from a yard and has an eye at the end through which a footrope is passed for support. [Middle English stirope, from Old English stīgrāp : stīgan, to mount; see steigh- in Appendix + rāp, rope.]

stirrup bone (stûr'əp bōn) n. See stapes.

stir-rup-cup (stûr'əp-kŭp', stîr'-) n. A farewell drink, especially for a rider who is mounted to depart.

stirrup iron (stûr'əp ī'ərn) n. A stirrup.

stirrup leather (stûr'əp lēth'ər) n. The strap used to fasten a stirrup to a saddle. Also called stirrup strap stish-ov-ite (stīsh'ə-vīt') n. A dense tetragonal polymorph of quartz that is formed under great pressure and is often associated with meteoroid impact.

[After S.M. Stishov, 20th-century Russian mineralogist.]

stitch (stīch) n. Abbr. st. 1. A single complete movement of a threaded needle in sewing or surgical suturing. 2. a. A single loop of yarn around an implement such as a knitting needle. b. The link, loop, or knot made in this way. 3. A mode of arranging the threads in sewing, knitting, or crocheting: a purl stitch. 4. A sudden sharp pain, especially in the side. See Synonyms at pain. 5. Informal. An article of clothing: wore not a stitch. 6. Informal. The least part; a bit: didn't do a stitch of work. 7. A ridge between two furrows. — v. stitched, stitch-ing, stitch-es. — v. tr. 1. a. To fasten or join with or as if with stitches. b. To mend or repair with stitches: stitched up the tear. 2. To decorate or ornament with or as if with stitches: “The sky was stitched with stars” (Mario Puzo). 3. To fasten together with staples or thread. — v. intr. To make stitches; sew. — idiom. in stitches. Informal. Laughing uncontrollably. [Middle English stiche, from Old English stice, sting. See steig- in Appendix.] — stitch'er n.

stitch·er·y (stĭch'ə-rē) n. Needlework; sewing.

stitch·wort (stĭch'wŭrt', -wŏrt') n. Any of several low-growing plants of the genus Stellaria, having opposite leaves and small, white, star-shaped flowers. [Middle English, from Old English sticwyr̥t, agrimony : stice, stich (from its alleged ability to cure sharp pains in the side); see STITCH + wyr̥t, plant; see WORT¹.]

stith·y (stĭth'ē, stĭth'ē) n. pl. stith-ies. 1. An anvil. 2. A forge or smithy. [Middle English stethi, from Old Norse stedhi. See stā- in Appendix.]

sti·ver (stī'vər) n. 1. A nickel coin used in the Netherlands and worth 20 of a guilder. 2. Something of small value. [Dutch stuiver, from Middle Dutch stuyver.]

stk. abbr. Stock.

S.T.M abbr. Latin. Sacrae Theologiae Magister (Master of Sacred Theology).

sto·a (stō'ə) n. pl. sto-as or sto-ae (stō'ē'). An ancient Greek covered walk or colonnade, usually having columns on one side and a wall on the other. [Greek, porch. See stā- in Appendix.]

stoat (stōt) n. pl. stoat or stoats. Chiefly British. The ermine, especially when in its brown color phase. [Middle English stote.]

stob (stŏb) n. Chiefly Southern U.S. A short, straight piece of wood, such as a stake. [Middle English, stump, variant of stubbe, stub. See STUB.]

REGIONAL NOTE: The Southern word stob means a short, straight stick of wood: “Jim Rozier’s skill with a piece of iron and a hardwood stob sets up a vibration in the earth that Sopchoppy worms find extremely disagreeable” (Charles Kuralt). Related to stub and stubby, stob is one of numerous Indo-European cognates, for example, Greek stupos, meaning “stump (of a tree or branch).” In Middle English stob seems to have been a variant spelling of stub, with one of its meanings being “the amputated stump of a human limb.” However, the word has chiefly denoted a short piece of wood, such as “a small post or stake or stump of a shrub, [and is] commonly so used in many, if not all, parts of the [American] South” (Charles F. Smith).

sto·chas·tic (stō-kās'tĭk) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or characterized by conjecture; conjectural. 2. Statistics. a. Involving or containing a random variable or variables: stochastic calculus. b. Involving chance or probability: a stochastic simulation. [Greek stokhastikos, from stokhastēs, diviner, from stokhazesthai, to guess at, from stokhos, aim, goal. See stegh- in Appendix.] —sto-chas'ti-cal-ly adv.

stock (stök) n. Abbr. s., stk. 1. A supply accumulated for future use; a store. 2. The total merchandise kept on hand by a merchant, commercial establishment, warehouse, or manufacturer. 3. All the animals kept or raised on a farm; live-stock. 4. a. The capital or fund that a corporation raises through the sale of shares entitling the stockholder to dividends and to other rights of ownership, such as voting rights. b. The number of shares that each stockholder possesses. c. The part of a tally or record of account formerly given to a creditor. d. A debt symbolized by a tally. 5. The trunk or main stem of a tree or another plant. 6. a. A plant or stem onto which a graft is made. b. A plant or tree from which cuttings and slips are taken. 7. a. The original progenitor of a family line. b. The descendants of a common ancestor; a family line, especially of a specified character: comes from farming stock. c. Ancestry or lineage; antecedents. d. The type from which a group of animals or plants has descended. e. A race, family, or other related group of animals or plants. f. An ethnic group or other major division of the human race. g. A group of related languages. h. A group of related families of languages. 8. The raw material out of which something is made. 9. The broth in which meat, fish, bones, or vegetables are simmered for a relatively long period, used as a base in preparing soup, gravy, or sauces. 10. a. A main upright part, especially a supporting structure or block. b. stocks. Nautical. The timber frame that supports a ship during construction. c. A frame in which a horse or other animal is held for shoeing or for veterinary treatment. Often used in the plural. 11. stocks. A device consisting of a heavy timber frame with holes for confining the ankles and sometimes the wrists, formerly used for punishment. 12. Nautical. A crosspiece at the end of the shank of an anchor. 13. The wooden block from which a bell is suspended. 14. a. The rear wooden, metal, or plastic handle or support of a rifle, a pistol, or an automatic weapon, to which the barrel and mechanism are attached. b. The long supporting structure and mooring beam of field-gun carriages that trails along the ground to provide stability and support. 15. A handle, such as that of a whip, a fishing rod, or various carpentry tools. 16. The frame of a plow, to which the share, handles, coulter, and other parts are fastened. 17. a. A theatrical stock company. b. The repertoire of such a company. c. A theater or theatrical activity, especially outside of a main theatrical center: a small role in summer stock. 18. Botany. Any of several Eurasian and Mediterranean plants of the genus Matthiola in the mustard family, especially M. incana, widely cultivated for its clusters of showy, variously colored flowers. 19. Games. The portion of a pack of cards or of a group of dominoes that is not dealt out but is drawn from during a game. 20. Geology. A body of intrusive igneous rock of which less than 100 square kilometers (40 square miles) is exposed. 21. Zoology. A compound organism, such as a colony of zooids. 22. a. Personal reputation or status: a teacher whose stock with the students is rising. b. Confidence or credence: I put no stock in that statement. 23. a. A long white neckcloth worn as part of a formal riding habit. b. A broad scarf worn around the neck, especially by certain clerics. 24. Rolling stock. — v. stocked, stock-ing, stocks. — v. tr. 1. To provide or furnish with a stock of something, especially: a. To supply (a shop) with merchandise. b. To supply (a farm) with livestock. c. To fill (a stream, for example) with fish. 2. To keep for future sale or use. 3. To provide (a rifle, for example) with a stock. 4. Obsolete. To put (someone) in the stocks as a punishment. — v. intr. 1. To gather and lay in a supply of something: stock up on canned goods. 2. To put forth or sprout new shoots. Used of a plant. — adj. 1. Kept regularly in stock: a stock item. 2. Repeated regularly without any thought or originality; routine: a stock answer. 3. Employed in dealing with or caring for stock or merchandise: a stock clerk. 4. a. Of or relating to the raising of livestock: stock farming. b. Used for breeding: a stock mare. 5. a. Of or relating to a stock company or its repertoire. b. Of or being a conventional character or situation that recurs in many literary or cinematic works. — idioms. in stock. Available for sale or use; on hand. out of stock. Not available for sale or use. [Middle English stok, from Old English stoc, tree trunk.] — stock'age n. — stock'er n.

stock-ade (stō-kād') n. 1. A defensive barrier made of strong posts or timbers driven upright side by side into the ground. 2. a. A similar fenced or enclosed area, especially one used for protection. b. A jail on a military base. — v. tr. stock-ad-ed, stock-ad-ing, stock-ades. To fortify, protect, or surround with a stockade. [Obsolete French estacade, estocade, from Spanish estacada, from estaca, stake, of Germanic origin.]

stock-breed-ing (stōk'brē'ding) n. The breeding and raising of livestock. — stock'breed'er n.

Stock-bridge (stōk'brīj') n. A subtribe of the Mahican confederacy formerly inhabiting southwest Massachusetts, with a present-day population in central Wisconsin.

stock-bro-ker (stōk'brō'kər) n. One that acts as an agent in the buying and selling of stocks or other securities; a broker. — stock'bro'ker-age n. — stock'brok'ing n.

stock car (stōk kər) n. 1. Sports. An automobile of a standard make modified for racing. 2. A railroad car for carrying livestock.

stock certificate (stōk sər-tīf'ī-kīt) n. A certificate establishing ownership of a stated number of shares in a corporation's stock.

stock company (stōk kŭm'pə-nē) n. 1. A company or corporation whose capital is divided into shares. 2. A permanent company that performs a repertoire of plays, usually at a single theater.

stock dove (stök düv) n. A common Old World bird (Columba oenas) having grayish plumage. [Probably from its living in hollow tree trunks.]

stock exchange (stök ĩks-chānj') n. Abbr. SE 1. A place where stocks, bonds, or other securities are bought and sold. 2. An association of stockbrokers who meet to buy and sell stocks and bonds according to fixed regulations. Also called stock market stock·fish (stök'fish') n. pl. stockfish or stock·fish·es. A fish, such as a cod or haddock, cured by being split and air-dried without salt. [Middle English stokfish, translation of Middle Dutch stocvisch : stoc, tree limb (perhaps from its being dried on wooden racks) + vische, fish.]

stock·hold·er (stök'hōl'dər) n. One who owns a share or shares of stock in a company. Also called stockowner —stock'hold'ing n.

Stock·holm (stök'hōlm', -hōm') The capital and largest city of Sweden, in the eastern part of the country on the Baltic Sea. Founded in the mid-13th century, it grew as a trade center allied with the Hanseatic League. Stockholm was the leading city of the kingdom of Sweden after 1523 but did not become the official capital until 1634. The Nobel Institute is here. Population, 653,455.

Stockholm syndrome (stök'hōlm' šĭn'drōm') n. A phenomenon in which a hostage begins to identify with and grow sympathetic to his or her captor. [After Stockholm, where a hostage in a 1973 bank robbery became romantically attached to one of her captors.]

stock·i·nette also stock·i·net (stök'ə-nět') n. An elastic knitted fabric used especially in making undergarments, bandages, and babies' clothes. [Alteration of stocking net.]

stockinette stitch (stök'ə-nět' stĭch) n. A knitting pattern made by alternating rows of plain stitches and purl stitches.

stock·ing (stök'ing) n. 1. A close-fitting, usually knitted covering for the foot and leg made from nylon, silk, cotton, wool, and similar yarns. 2. An item resembling this covering. [From dialectal stock, from Middle English stokke, leg covering, probably from stok, stock. See STOCK.] —stock'inged adj.

stocking cap (stök'ing kăp) n. A close-fitting knitted cap that resembles a stocking and often has a long tapering tail with a tassel attached.

stocking mask (stök'ing măsk) n. A stocking, usually of nylon, that is worn over the head to distort and disguise facial features, often used as a mask by a criminal in the commission of a crime.

stock-in-trade also stock in trade (stök'ĭn-trăd', stök'ĭn-trăd') n. 1. All the merchandise and equipment kept on hand and used in carrying on a business. 2. The resources available to and habitually called on by a person in a given situation: A ready wit is her stock-in-trade.

stock·job·ber (stök'jōb'ər) n. Chiefly British. A stock-exchange operator who deals only with brokers. —stock'job'ber·y n.

stock·man (stök'män) n. 1. A man who owns or raises livestock. 2. A man who is in charge of livestock or works on a stock farm. 3. A man who is employed in a stockroom or warehouse.

stock market (stök mär'kīt) n. 1. See stock exchange. 2. The business transacted at a stock exchange. 3. The prices offered for stocks and bonds in general: a rising stock market. —stock'-mar'ket (stök'mär'kīt) adj.

stock·own·er (stök'ō'när) n. See stockholder. —stock'own'er-ship' n.

stock·pile (stök'pīl') n. A supply stored for future use, usually carefully accrued and maintained. — v. tr. stock·piled, stock·pil·ing, stock·piles. To accumulate and maintain a supply of for future use. —stock'pil'er n.

Stock·port (stök'pōrt', -pōrt') A borough of northwest England on the Mersey River south of Manchester. Chartered in 1220, it produces textiles and machinery. Population, 291,000.

stock·pot (stök'pōt') n. 1. A pot used for preparing soup stock. 2. A rich supply or resource.

stock·room also stock room (stök'rōom', -rōom') n. A room in which a store of goods or materials is kept.

stock saddle (stök säd'l) n. A large, heavy, often ornamented saddle with a raised curved pommel originally used on cattle ranches in the West and Southwest. Also called western saddle stock·still (stök'stīl') adj. Completely still; motionless.

stock·tak·ing (stök'tā'kīng) n. 1. A reappraisal of a situation, a person, or one's own position or prospects. 2. The act or process of inventorying merchandise or the supplies on hand.

Stock·ton (stök'tən) A city of central California on the San Joaquin River south of Sacramento. Settled in 1848 just prior to the gold rush, it is an inland port and a trade and processing center. Population, 210,943.

Stock·ton (stök'tən), Francis Richard. Called "Frank." 1834-1902. American writer known for his short story "The Lady or the Tiger?" (1882).

Stock·ton (stök'tən), Robert Field. 1795-1866. American naval officer who was active in the return of freed slaves to Africa. He also commanded the forces that conquered California and proclaimed it a territory of the United States (1846).

Stock·ton·on·Tees (stök'tən-ōn-tēz', -ōn-) A borough of northeast England west-northwest of Middlesbrough. It is a shipbuilding center. Population, 172,600.

stock·y (stök'ē) adj. stock·i·er, stock·i·est. 1. Solidly built; sturdy.

2. Chubby; plump. —stock'i·ly adv. —stock'i·ness n.

stock·yard (stök'yärd') n. A large enclosed yard, usually with pens or stables, in which livestock, such as cattle or pigs, are temporarily kept until slaughtered, sold, or shipped elsewhere.

Stod-dert (stöd'ərt), Benjamin. 1751-1813. American public official who was the first U.S. secretary of the navy (1798-1801).

stodgy (støj'ē) adj. stodgy-i-er, stodgy-i-est. 1. a. Dull, unimaginative, and commonplace. b. Prim or pompous; stuffy: "Why is the middle-class so stodgy—so utterly without a sense of humor?" (Katherine Mansfield). See Synonyms at dull. 2. Indigestible and starchy; heavy: stodgy food. 3. Solidly built; stocky. [From stodge, thick filling food, from stodge, to cram.] —stodgy'i-ly adv. —stodgy'i-ness n.

sto-gy or sto-gie (stō'gē) n. pl. sto-gies. 1. A cheap cigar. 2. A roughly made heavy shoe or boot. [After Conestoga, a village of southeast Pennsylvania.]

sto-ic (stō'ik) n. 1. One who is seemingly indifferent to or unaffected by joy, grief, pleasure, or pain. 2. Stoic. Philosophy. A member of a Greek school of philosophy, founded by Zeno about 308 B.C., believing that human beings should be free from passion and should calmly accept all occurrences as the unavoidable result of divine will or of the natural order. — adj. also sto-i-cal (-i-kəl) Seemingly indifferent to or unaffected by pleasure or pain; impassive: "stoic resignation in the face of hunger" (John F. Kennedy). [Middle English Stoic, a Stoic, from Latin Stoicus, from Greek Stoikos, from stoa (poikilē), (Painted) Porch, where Zeno taught. See stā- in Appendix.] —sto'i-cal-ly adv. —sto'i-cal-ness n.

stoi-chi-om-e-try (stoi'kē-ōm'ī-trē) n. 1. Calculation of the quantities of reactants and products in a chemical reaction. 2. The quantitative relationship between reactants and products in a chemical reaction. [Greek stoikheion, element; see steigh- in Appendix + -METRY.] —stoi'chi-o-met'ric (-ə-mět'rik) adj. —stoi'chi-o-met'ri-cal-ly adv.

sto-i-cism (stō'ī-siz'əm) n. 1. Indifference to pleasure or pain; impassiveness. 2. Stoicism. Philosophy. The doctrines or philosophy of the Stoics.

stoke (stōk) v. stoked, stoking, stokes. — v. tr. 1. To stir up and feed (a fire or furnace). 2. To feed fuel to and tend the fire of (a furnace). — v. intr. 1. To feed or tend a furnace or fire. 2. Informal. To eat steadily and in large quantities. [Back-formation from STOKER.]

stoked (stōkt) adj. Slang. 1. Exhilarated or excited. 2. Being or feeling high or intoxicated, especially from a drug.

stoke-hold (stōk'hōld') n. Nautical. The area or compartment into which a ship's furnaces or boilers open.

stoke-hole (stōk'hōl') n. 1. The space about the opening in a furnace or boiler. 2. Nautical. A stokehold. [Translation of Dutch stookgat.]

Stoke-on-Trent (stōk'ōn-trēnt', -ōn-) A borough of west-central England south of Manchester. Center of an important pottery-making industry, it also has iron and steel mills. Josiah Wedgwood and Josiah Spode lived here. Population, 250,700.

Stoke Po-ges (stōk pō'jīs) A village of southeast-central England west of London. It is generally considered to be the setting for Thomas Gray's Elegy Written in a Country Churchyard (published 1751).

stok·er (stō'kər) n. 1. One who is employed to feed fuel to and tend a furnace, as on a steam locomotive or a steamship. 2. A mechanical device for feeding coal to a furnace. [Dutch, from stoken, to stoke, from Middle Dutch stōken, to poke.]

Sto-ker (stō'kər), Abraham. Known as "Bram." 1847-1912. British writer of the gothic horror novel Dracula (1897).

Stokes-Ad·ams syndrome (stōks'ād'əmz sĭn'drōm') n. An occasional temporary stoppage or extreme slowing of the pulse as a result of heart block, causing dizziness, fainting, and sometimes convulsions. [After William Stokes (1804-1878) and Robert Adams (1791-1875), Irish physicians.]

Stokes (stōks), Sir George Gabriel. 1819-1903. British mathematician and physicist known for his study of hydrodynamics.

Sto-kow-ski (stə-kōv'skē, -kōf'-, -kou'-), Leopold Antoni Stanislaw. 1882-1977. British-born American conductor of the Philadelphia Orchestra (1914-1936) and other major symphonies. He founded the American Symphony Orchestra in 1962.

STOL abbr. Short takeoff and landing.

Stol-berg (stōl'bûrg', shtōl'bĕrk') A city of west-central Germany west-southwest of Cologne. It has been a brassmaking center since c. 1600. Population, 56,550.

stole¹ (stōl) n. 1. Ecclesiastical. A long scarf, usually of embroidered silk or linen, worn over the left shoulder by deacons and over both shoulders by priests and bishops while officiating. 2. A woman's long scarf of cloth or fur worn about the shoulders. 3. A long robe or outer garment worn by matrons in ancient Rome. [Middle English, from Old English, from Latin stola, garment, robe, from Greek stolē. See stel- in Appendix.]

stole² (stōl) v. Past tense of steal.

sto-len (stō'lən) v. Past participle of steal.

stol-id (stōl'ĭd) adj. stol-id-er, stol-id-est. Having or revealing little emotion or sensibility; impassive: "the incredibly massive and stolid bureaucracy of the Soviet system" (John Kenneth Galbraith). [Latin stolidus, unmoving, stupid. See stel- in Appendix.] —sto-lid'i-ty (stō-lĭd'ĭ-tē, stə-), stol'id-ness (stōl'ĭd-nĭs) n. —stol'id-ly adv.

stol-len (stō'lən) n. pl. stollen or stol-lens. A rich yeast bread containing raisins, citron, and chopped nutmeats. [German, prop, support, stollen. See STULL.]

sto-lon (stō'lŏn', -lən) n. 1. Botany. A shoot that bends to the ground or that grows horizontally above the ground and produces roots and shoots at the nodes. 2. Zoology. A stemlike structure of certain colonial organisms from which new individuals arise by budding. [Latin stolō, stolōn-, shoot. See stel- in Appendix.]

—sto'lon-ate' (-lə-nāt') adj.

sto·lon·if·er·ous (stō'lə-nīf'ər-əs) adj. Bearing or forming stolons.

—sto'lon·if·er·ous·ly adv.

sto·ma (stō'mə) n. pl. sto·ma·ta (-mə-tə) or sto·mas. 1. Botany. One of the minute pores in the epidermis of a leaf or stem through which gases and water vapor pass. Also called stomate. 2. Anatomy. A small aperture in the surface of a membrane. 3. A surgically constructed opening, especially one in the abdominal wall that permits the passage of waste after a colostomy or an ileostomy.

4. Zoology. A mouthlike opening, such as the oral cavity of a nematode. [New Latin, from Greek stoma, mouth.]

stom·ach (stŭm'ək) n. 1. a. The enlarged, saclike portion of the alimentary canal, one of the principal organs of digestion, located in vertebrates between the esophagus and the small intestine. b. A similar digestive structure of many invertebrates. c. Any of the four compartments into which the stomach of a ruminant is divided. 2. The abdomen or belly. 3. An appetite for food. 4. A desire or inclination, especially for something difficult or unpleasant: had no stomach for quarrels. 5. Courage; spirit. 6. Obsolete. Pride. — v. tr. stom·ached, stom·ach·ing, stom·achs. 1. To bear; tolerate. 2. Obsolete. To resent. [Middle English, from Old French stomaque, estomac, from Latin stomachus, from Greek stomakhos, from stoma, mouth.]

stom·ach·ache (stŭm'ək-āk') n. Pain in the stomach or abdomen.

stom·ach·er (stŭm'ək-kər) n. A heavily embroidered or jeweled garment formerly worn over the chest and stomach, especially by women.

sto·mach·ic (stə-māk'ik) adj. 1. Of or relating to the stomach; gastric.

2. Beneficial to or stimulating digestion in the stomach. — n. An agent, such as a medicine, that strengthens or stimulates the stomach. —sto·mach'i·cal·ly adv.

stomach pump (stŭm'ək pŭmp) n. A suction pump with a flexible tube inserted into the stomach through the mouth and esophagus to empty the stomach in an emergency, as in a case of poisoning.

stomach tooth (stŭm'ək tōōth) n. A canine tooth of the lower jaw. [From the gastric disturbances that often accompany its emergence.]

stomach worm (stŭm'ək wŭrm) n. Any of various parasitic nematode worms that infest the stomachs of animals, especially Haemonchus contortus, a parasite of sheep and other ruminants.

stomat- pref. Variant of stomato-.

sto·ma·ta (stō'mə-tə) n. A plural of stoma.

sto·ma·tal (stō'mə-təl) adj. Of, relating to, resembling, or having a stoma.

sto·mate (stō'māt') n. Botany. See stoma (n., sense 1). [Perhaps back-formation from STOMATA.]

sto·mat·ic (stō-măt'īk) adj. 1. Of or relating to the mouth. 2. Of, having, or resembling a stoma.

sto·ma·ti·tis (stō'mə-tī'tis) n. Inflammation of the mucous tissue of the mouth.

stomato- or stomat- pref. Mouth; stoma: stomatitis. [From Greek stoma, stomat-, mouth.]

sto·ma·tol·o·gy (stō'mə-tōl'ə-jē) n. The medical study of the mouth and its diseases. —sto'ma-to-log'i-cal (-tə-lōj'ī-kəl), sto'ma-to-log'ic (-lōj'īk) adj. —sto'ma-tol'o-gist n.

sto·mat·o·pod (stō-măt'ə-pōd') n. Any of various marine crustaceans of the order Stomatopoda, which includes the squilla. [From New Latin Stomatopoda, order name : STOMATO- + -POD.]

sto·ma·tous (stō'mə-təs) adj. Of, having, or resembling a stoma.

-stome suff. Mouth; stoma: peristome. [From Greek stoma, mouth.]

sto·mo·de·um also sto·mo·dae·um (stō'mə-dē'əm) n. pl. sto·mo·de·a also sto·mo·dae·a (-dē'ə). The anterior or oral portion of the alimentary canal of an embryo. [New Latin : Greek stoma, mouth + Greek hodaïos, on the way (from hodos, road).] —sto'mo-de'al (-dē'al) adj.

stomp (stōmp, stōmp) v. stomped, stomping, stomps. — v. tr. To tread or trample heavily or violently on. — v. intr. To tread or trample heavily or violently. — n. 1. A dance involving a rhythmical, heavy step. 2. The jazz music for this dance. [Variant of STAMP.] —stomp'er n. —stomp'ing-ly adv.

USAGE NOTE: Stomp and stamp are interchangeable in the sense “to trample” or “to tread on violently”: stomped (or stamped) to death; stomping (or stamping) horses. Only stamp is used in the sense “to eliminate”: stamp out a fire; stamp out poverty. Stamp is also standard in the sense “to strike the ground with the foot, as in anger or frustration,” as in He stamped his foot and began to cry. In an earlier survey the use of stomp in this example was rejected by a large majority of the Usage Panel.

-stomy suff. A surgical operation in which an artificial opening is made into a specified organ or part: colostomy. [Greek stoma, opening, mouth + -Y².]

stone (stōn) n. 1. a. Concreted earthy or mineral matter; rock. b. Such concreted matter of a particular type. Often used in combination: sandstone; soapstone. 2. A small piece of rock. 3. Rock or a piece of rock shaped or finished for a particular purpose, especially: a. A piece of rock that is used in construction: a coping stone; a paving stone. b. A gravestone or tombstone. c. A grindstone, millstone, or whetstone. d. A milestone or boundary. 4. A gem or precious stone. 5. Something, such as a hailstone, resembling a stone in shape or hardness. 6. Botany. The hard covering enclosing the seed in certain fruits, such as the cherry, plum, or peach. 7. Pathology. A mineral concretion in an organ, such as the kidney or gallbladder, or other body part; a calculus. 8. pl. stone. Abbr. st. A unit of weight in Great Britain, 14 pounds (6.4 kilograms). 9. Printing. A table with a smooth surface on which page forms are composed. — adj. 1. Relating to or made of stone: a stone wall. 2. Made of stoneware or earthenware. — adv. Used as an intensive. Often used in combination: stone cold; standing stone still. — v. tr. stoned, ston-ing, stones. 1. To hurl or throw stones at, especially to kill with stones. 2. To remove the stones or pits from. 3. To furnish, fit, pave, or line with stones. 4. To rub on or with a stone in order to polish or sharpen. 5. Obsolete. To make hard or indifferent. [Middle English, from Old English stān. See stei- in Appendix.] — ston'er n.

Stone (stōn), Edward Durell. 1902-1978. American architect who was an exponent of the International Style. Among his notable designs is the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in Washington, D.C. (1964).

Stone (stōn), Harlan Fiske. 1872-1946. American jurist who served as an associate justice (1925-1941) and the chief justice (1941-1946) of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Stone (stōn), Irving. 1903-1989. American writer of popular biographies, including Lust for Life (1934), about Vincent van Gogh, and The Agony and the Ecstasy (1961), about Michelangelo.

Stone (stōn), I(sidor) F(einstein). 1907-1989. American journalist who championed liberal causes in I.F. Stone's Weekly (1953-1971).

Stone (stōn), Sir (John) Richard (Nicholas). Born 1913. British economist. He won a 1984 Nobel Prize for developing accounting systems to track national and international economics.

Stone (stōn), Lucy. 1818-1893. American feminist and social reformer who organized the first national women's rights convention, held in Worcester, Massachusetts (1850), and was a founder of the American Woman Suffrage Association (1869).

Stone Age (stōn āj) n. The earliest known period of human culture, characterized by the use of stone tools.

stone-blind (stōn'blīnd') adj. Completely blind. — stone'-blind'ness n.

stone-broke (stōn'brōk') adj. Informal. Completely broke; having no money.

stone canal (stōn kə-nāl') n. A calcareous duct in echinoderms that leads from the madreporite to a ring-shaped canal around the mouth.

stone-cat (stōn'kāt') n. A yellowish-brown freshwater catfish (Noturus flavus) of the Mississippi Valley and Great Lakes region, having poisonous pectoral spines.

stone cell (stōn sĕl) n. A nearly isodiametric sclereid that is found in certain fruits, such as the quince and pear.

stone-chat (stōn'chăt') n. A small Old World thrush (Saxicola torquata) of open, grassy regions, the male of which has a black head, dark wings and tail, and chestnut underparts. [From the resemblance of its call to the sound of falling pebbles.]

stone crab (stōn krăb) n. A large edible crab (Menippe mercenaria) found along the Atlantic coast of the southern United States.

stone-crop (stōn'kröp') n. 1. Any of various plants of the genus Sedum, having fleshy leaves and variously colored flowers. 2. Any of various related plants. [Middle English, from Old English stāncropp : stān, stone; see STONE + cropp, cluster, sprout.]

stone-cut-ter (stōn'küt'ər) n. 1. One that cuts or carves stone. 2. A machine that is used to dress stone. —stone/cut'ting n.

stoned (stōnd) adj. Slang. 1. Intoxicated; drunk. 2. Under the influence of a mind-altering drug.

stone-deaf (stōn'děf') adj. Completely deaf.

stone-faced (stōn'făst') adj. Variant of stony-faced.

stone-fish (stōn'fîsh') n. pl. stonefish or stone-fish-es. Any of several tropical scorpion fishes of the genus Synanceja, especially S. verrucosa, which resembles a small rock and ejects a deadly venom from spines on its dorsal fin. [From its resemblance to an encrusted stone.]

stone-fly (stōn'flī') n. Any of numerous weak-flying insects of the order Plecoptera, whose flat, elongated nymphs live under stones along the banks of streams. Adult and larval stoneflies are used as fishing bait. Also called plecopteran stone fruit (stōn frōt) n. See drupe.

stone-ground (stōn'ground') adj. Ground between millstones, especially buhrstones: stone-ground flour.

Stone-ham (stō'nəm) A town of northeast Massachusetts, a residential suburb of Boston. Population, 22,203.

stone-heart-ed (stōn'här'tîd) adj. Variant of stonyhearted.

Stone-henge (stōn'hěnj') A group of standing stones on Salisbury Plain in southern England. Dating to c. 2000-1800 B.C., the megaliths are enclosed by a circular ditch and embankment that may date to c. 2800. The arrangement of the stones suggests that Stonehenge was used as a religious center and also as an astronomical observatory.

stone lily (stōn lîl'ē) n. A fossil crinoid.

stone marten (stōn măr'tn) n. 1. A Eurasian marten (Martes foina) having brown fur with lighter underfur and often inhabiting rocky inlets and crevices. 2. The fur of this animal.

stone-ma-son (stōn'mā'sən) n. One that prepares and lays stones in building. —stone/ma'son-ry n.

stone mint (stōn mīnt) n. An aromatic eastern North American plant (Cunila origanoides) of the mint family, having clusters of small purplish or white flowers. Also called dittany [So called because it grows in rocky places.]

Stone Mountain (stōn moun'tən) A massive granite monadnock, 514.2 m (1,686 ft) high, in northwest-central Georgia east of Atlanta. Its northeast wall contains a huge Confederate memorial (carved 1917-1967).

stone-roll-er (stōn'rō'lər) n. 1. A minnow (Campostoma anomalum) of the central and southern United States, having a horny ridge near the edge of the lower lip used for scraping food from the bottom of a body of water. 2. A sucker (Hypentelium nigricans) of the central and southern United States, common in swift or rocky streams.

stone's throw (stōnz thrō) n. A short distance.

stone-wall (stōn'wōl') v. stone-walled, stone-wall-ing, stone-walls. — v. intr. 1. Informal. a. To engage in delaying tactics; stall: “stonewalling for time in order to close the missile gap” (James Reston). b. To refuse to answer or cooperate. 2. Sports. To play defensively rather than trying to score in cricket. — v. tr. Informal. To refuse to answer or cooperate with; resist or rebuff: “I want you to stonewall it, let them plead the Fifth Amendment” (Richard M. Nixon).

—stone'wall'er n.

stone-ware (stōn'wâr') n. A heavy, nonporous, nontranslucent pottery, such as jasper ware, that is fired at a high temperature.

stone-wash-ing (stōn'wôsh'ing) n. A process of washing garments or material, usually denim, in large industrial machines with pumice pebbles to soften and abrade the material by friction. —stone'wash' v.

stone-work (stōn'wûrk') n. 1. The technique or process of working in stone. 2. Work made of stone; stone masonry. —stone'work'er n.

stone-wort (stōn'wûrt', -wôrt') n. Any of various submerged aquatic algae of the genus Chara that are frequently encrusted with calcium carbonate deposits and have nodes with whorled, filamentlike branches.

ston-ey (stō'nē) adj. Variant of stony.

Ston-ey Creek (stō'nē krēk) A town of southeast Ontario, Canada, at the west end of Lake Ontario south of Hamilton. The British defeated the Americans here on June 6, 1813, during the War of 1812. Population, 36,762.

Ston-ing-ton (stō'nīng-tən) A town of southeast Connecticut on Long Island Sound east of New London. Settled in 1649, it was once a major shipbuilding and whaling center. Population, 16,919.

ston-y also ston-ey (stō'nē) adj. ston-i-er, ston-i-est. 1. Covered with or full of stones: a stony beach. 2. Resembling stone, as in hardness. 3. a. Hardhearted and unfeeling; unemotional. b. Exhibiting no feeling or warmth; impassive: a stony expression. 4. Emotionally numbing or paralyzing: a stony feeling of fear. —ston'i-ly adv. —ston'i-ness n.

stony coral (stō'nē kôr'əl) n. A coral with a hard calcareous skeleton, especially of the order Scleractinia.

ston-y-faced (stō'nē-fāst') also stone-faced (stōn'-) adj. Exhibiting no emotion or feeling; expressionless.

ston-y-heart-ed (stō'nē-här'tid) also stone-heart-ed (stōn'-) adj. Devoid of kindness or sympathy; hardhearted. —ston'y-heart'ed-ly adv.

—ston'y-heart'ed-ness n.

Ston-y Point (stō'nē point) A village of southeast New York on the Hudson River north of New City. Its blockhouse, captured by British troops in May 1779, was retaken in July by Gen. Anthony Wayne's forces. Population, 8,270.

Stony Tun-gus-ka (stō'nē tōōng-gōō'skə, tōōn-) See Tunguska.

stood (stōd) v. Past tense and past participle of stand.

stooge (stōoj) n. 1. The straight man to a comedian. 2. One who allows oneself to be used for another's profit or advantage; a puppet. 3. Slang. A stool pigeon. — v. intr. stooged, stoog-ing, stoog-es. To be a stooge or behave like one. [Origin unknown.]

stool (stōol) n. 1. A backless and armless single seat supported on legs or a pedestal. 2. A low bench or support for the feet or knees in sitting or kneeling, as a footrest. 3. A toilet seat; a commode. 4. a. A bowel movement; an evacuation. b. Evacuated fecal matter. 5. Botany. a. A stump or rootstock that produces shoots or suckers. b. A shoot or growth from such a stump or rootstock. — v. intr. stooled, stool-ing, stools. 1. Botany. To send up shoots or suckers. 2. To evacuate the bowels; defecate. 3. Slang. To act as a stool pigeon. [Middle English, from Old English stōl. See stā- in Appendix.]

stool-ie (stōol'lē) n. Slang. A stool pigeon.

stool pigeon (stōol pīj'ən) n. 1. Slang. A person acting as a decoy or as an informer, especially one who is a spy for the police. 2. A pigeon used as a decoy. [From the practice of tying decoy pigeons to a stool to attract other pigeons.]

stoop¹ (stōop) v. stooped, stoop-ing, stoops. — v. intr. 1. To bend forward and down from the waist or the middle of the back: had to stoop in order to fit into the cave. 2. To walk or stand, especially habitually, with the head and upper back bent forward. 3. To bend or sag downward. 4. a. To lower or debase oneself. b. To descend from a superior position; condescend. 5. To yield; submit. 6. To swoop down, as a bird in pursuing its prey. — v. tr. 1. To bend (the head or body) forward and down. 2. To debase; humble. — n. 1. The act of stooping. 2. A forward bending of the head and upper back, especially when habitual. 3. An act of self-abasement or condescension. 4. A descent, as of a bird of prey. [Middle English stoupen, from Old English stūpian.]

SYNONYMS: stoop, condescend, deign. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to descend to a level considered inappropriate to one’s dignity”: stooping to contemptible methods to realize their ambitions; won't condescend to acknowledge his rival's greeting; didn't even deign to reply.

stoop² (stōōp) n. Northeastern U.S. A small porch, platform, or staircase leading to the entrance of a house or building. [Dutch stoep, front verandah, from Middle Dutch.]

stoop³ (stōōp) n. Variant of stoup.

stoop-ball (stōōp'bôl') n. Sports. A game patterned on baseball in which a player throws a ball against a stoop or wall and the number of bounces indicates the bases reached.

stoop-er (stōō'pər) n. 1. One that stoops. 2. Slang. One who looks for winning pari-mutuel tickets carelessly discarded by others at a racetrack.

stop (stŏp) v. stopped, stop-ping, stops. — v. tr. 1. To close (an opening) by covering, filling in, or plugging up. 2. To constrict (an opening or orifice). 3. To obstruct or block passage on (a road, for example). 4. To prevent the flow or passage of: tried to stop the bleeding. 5. To cause to halt, cease, or desist: stopped me and asked directions. 6. To desist from; cease: stop running. 7. To order a bank to withhold payment of: stopped the check. 8. To cause (a motor, for example) to cease operation or function; halt. 9. Music. a. To press down (a string on a stringed instrument) on the fingerboard to produce a desired pitch. b. To close (a hole on a wind instrument) with the finger in sounding a desired pitch. — v. intr. 1. To cease moving, progressing, acting, or operating; come to a halt: The clock stopped at some point during the night. 2. To put an end to what one is doing; cease: had to stop at an exciting place in the book. 3. To interrupt one's course or journey for a brief visit or stay: stop at the store; stopped at a friend's for a few nights. — n. 1. The act of stopping or the condition of being stopped; cessation. 2. A finish; an end. 3. A stay or visit, as one taken during a trip. 4. A place at which someone or something stops: a regular stop on my paper route; a bus stop. 5. A device or means that obstructs, blocks, or plugs up. 6. An order given to a bank to withhold payment on a check. 7. A part in a machine that stops or regulates movement. 8. The effective aperture of a lens, controlled by a diaphragm. 9. A mark of punctuation, especially a period. 10. Music. a. The act of stopping a string or hole on an instrument. b. A fret on a stringed instrument. c. A hole on a wind instrument. d. A device such as a key for closing the hole on a wind instrument. e. A tuned set of pipes, as in an organ. f. A knob, key, or pull that regulates such a set of pipes. 11. Nautical. A line used for securing something temporarily: a sail stop. 12. Linguistics. 13. See plosive. 14. The depression between the muzzle and top of the skull of an animal, especially a dog. 15. Games. A stopper. 16. Architecture. A projecting stone, often carved, at the end of a molding. — adj. Of, relating to, or being of use at the end of an operation or activity: a stop code. — phrasal verb. stop down. To reduce (the aperture) of a lens. [Middle English stoppen, from Old English -stop-pian, probably from Vulgar Latin stuppāre*, to caulk, from Latin stuppa, tow, broken flax, from Greek stuppē.] —stop'pa-ble adj.

SYNONYMS: stop, cease, desist, discontinue, halt, quit. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to bring or come to a cessation”: stop arguing; ceased crying; desist from complaining; discontinued the treatment; halting the convoy; quit laughing.

ANTONYM: start

stop-cock (stöp'kök') n. A valve that regulates the flow of fluid through a pipe; a faucet.

stope (stöp) n. An excavation in the form of steps made by the mining of ore from steeply inclined or vertical veins. — v. tr. stoped, stop-ing, stopes. To remove (ore) from or mine by means of a stope. [Perhaps from Low German, step, from Middle Low German stōpe.] —stop'er n.

Stopes (stōps), Marie Carmichael. 1880-1958. British paleontologist and social reformer who opened England's first birth control clinic (1924) in London and later promoted family planning in the Far East.

stop-gap (stöp'gäp') n. An improvised substitute for something lacking; a temporary expedient. See Synonyms at makeshift. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: stopgap measures; a stopgap leader.

stop-light (stöp'līt') n. 1. A light on the rear of a vehicle that is activated when the brakes are applied. Also called brake light 2. See traffic light.

stop order (stöp ôr'där) n. An order to a broker to buy or sell a stock when it reaches a specified level of decline or gain in price.

stop-o-ver (stöp'ô'vər) n. 1. An interruption in the course of a journey for stopping or visiting at a certain place. 2. A place visited briefly in the course of a journey.

stop-page (stöp'ij) n. The act of stopping or the condition of being stopped; a halt: called for a work stoppage.

stop payment (stöp pā'mənt) n. An order to one's bank not to honor a check one has drawn.

stop-per (stöp'ər) n. 1. A device, such as a cork or plug, that is inserted to close an opening. 2. One that causes something to stop: a conversation stopper.

3. Computer Science. The topmost memory location in a device or system.

4. Games. A card or cards enabling one to prevent one's opponents from winning all the tricks in a hand of bridge. — v. tr. stop-pered, stop-per-ing, stop-pers. To close with or as if with a stopper.

stop·ple (stɒp'əl) n. A stopper; a plug. — v. tr. stop·pled, stop·pling, stop·ples. To close with a stopper or plug. [Middle English stoppell, from Middle English stoppen, to stop. See STOP.]

stop sign (stɒp sɪn) n. A traffic sign that indicates that traffic is required to come to a complete stop before proceeding.

stop street (stɒp strɛt) n. A street intersection at which a vehicle must come to a complete stop before entering a through street.

stop·watch (stɒp'wɒtʃ) n. A watch that can be instantly started and stopped by pushing a button and used to measure an exact duration of time.

stor·age (stɔr'ɪj, stɔr'-) n. Abbr. stge., stor. 1. a. The act of storing goods or the state of being stored. b. A space for storing goods. c. The price charged for keeping goods stored. 2. The charging or regenerating of a storage battery. 3. Computer Science. The part of a computer that stores information for subsequent use or retrieval. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a storage closet; storage facilities.

storage battery (stɔr'ɪj bæt'ərɪ) n. Electricity. A group of reversible or rechargeable secondary cells acting as a unit. Also called secondary battery storage cell (stɔr'ɪj sɛl) n. 1. See secondary cell. 2. Computer Science. An elementary unit of storage.

sto·rax (stɔr'æks', stɔr'-) n. 1. See snowbell. 2. Botany. An aromatic resin obtained from the snowbell. Also called styrax 3. Botany. A brownish, aromatic resin used in perfume and medicine and obtained from any of several trees of the genus Liquidambar, especially L. orientalis, of Turkey. Also called styrax [Middle English, from Latin, alteration of styrax, from Greek sturax, perhaps of Semitic origin.]

store (stɔr, stɔr) n. 1. A place where merchandise is offered for sale; a shop.

2. A stock or supply reserved for future use: a squirrel's store of acorns.

3. stores. Supplies, especially of food, clothing, or arms. 4. A place where commodities are kept; a warehouse or storehouse. 5. A great quantity or number; an abundance. — v. tr. stored, stor·ing, stores. 1. To reserve or put away for future use. 2. To fill, supply, or stock. 3. To deposit or receive in a storehouse or warehouse for safekeeping. — idiom. in store. Forthcoming: great trouble in store for her. [Middle English stor, supply, from Old French estor, from estorer, to build, from Latin īnstaūrāre, to restore. See stā- in Appendix.] — stor'a·ble adj. — stor'er n.

store·bought (stɔr'bɔt', stɔr'-) adj. Informal. Manufactured and purchased at retail; not homemade: store-bought clothes; store-bought cookies.

store cheese (stɔr tʃɛz) n. Cheddar.

store·front (stɔr'frʌnt', stɔr'-) n. 1. The side of a store or shop facing a street.

2. A room or suite of rooms in a commercial building at street level: a political office in a storefront. — adj. 1. Of, relating to, or being that side of a store facing a street: storefront window boxes. 2. Operating in a room or suite of rooms in a commercial building at street level: a storefront lawyer. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: storefront legal aid offices; a storefront book-stall.

store-house (stôr'hous', stôr'-) n. 1. A place or building in which goods are stored; a warehouse. 2. An abundant source or supply: a storehouse of knowledge.

store-keep-er (stôr'kē'pær, stôr'-) n. 1. One who keeps a retail store or shop; a shopkeeper. 2. One who is in charge of receiving or distributing stores or supplies, such as military or naval supplies. — store/keep'ing n.

store-own-er (stôr'ō'nær) n. One who owns or operates a store or shop.

store-room (stôr'rōom', -rōom', stôr'-) n. A room in which things are stored.

store-wide (stôr'wīd', stôr'-) adj. Involving, applying to, or occurring throughout a whole store: a storewide sale; storewide renovations.

sto-rey (stôr'ē, stôr'ē) n. Chiefly British. Variant of story².

sto-reyed (stôr'ēd, stôr'-) adj. Chiefly British. Variant of storied².

sto-ried¹ (stôr'ēd, stôr'-) adj. 1. Celebrated or famous in history or story: a storied chieftain of guerrillas. 2. Ornamented with designs representing scenes from history, legend, or story: storied tapestry.

sto-ried² (stôr'ēd, stôr'-) adj. Having or consisting of a specified number of stories. Often used in combination: a three-storied house; a multistoried office building.

stork (stôrk) n. Any of various large wading birds of the family Ciconiidae, chiefly of the Eastern Hemisphere, having long legs and a long straight bill.

[Middle English, from Old English storc. See ster-¹ in Appendix.]

storks-bill (stôrks'bīl') n. 1. Any of various plants of the genus Erodium, having fruit with a narrow beaklike tip. 2. See geranium (n., sense 2).

storm (stôrm) n. 1. An atmospheric disturbance manifested in strong winds accompanied by rain, snow, or other precipitation and often by thunder and lightning. 2. Meteorology. A wind with a speed from 64 to 73 miles (from 103 to 117 kilometers) per hour, according to the Beaufort scale. Also called violent storm. 3. A heavy shower of objects, such as bullets or missiles. 4. A strong or violent outburst, as of emotion or excitement: a storm of tears. 5. A violent disturbance or upheaval, as in political, social, or domestic affairs: a storm of protest.

6. A violent, sudden attack on a fortified place. — v. stormed, storm-ing, storms. — v. intr. 1. a. To blow forcefully. b. To precipitate rain, snow, hail, or sleet. 2. To be extremely angry; rant and rage. 3. To move or rush tumultuously, violently, or angrily: stormed into the room. — v. tr. To assault, capture, or captivate by storm. See Synonyms at attack. — idiom. take by storm. To captivate completely: a new play that took New York City by storm. [Middle English, from Old English.]

storm-bound (stôrm'bound') adj. Delayed, confined, or cut off from communication by a storm.

storm cellar (stôrm sĕl'ər) n. See cyclone cellar.

storm center (stôrm sĕn'tər) n. 1. The central area of a storm, especially the point of lowest barometric pressure within a storm. 2. A center of trouble, disturbance, or argument.

storm door (stôrm dôr) n. An outer or additional door added for protection against inclement weather.

storm petrel (stôrm pĕt'rəl) n. Any of various small sea birds of the family Hydrobatidae, especially Hydrobates pelagicus, of the North Atlantic and the Mediterranean, having sooty plumage and a white rump. Also called stormy petrel storm trooper (stôrm trōō'pər) n. 1. a. A member of the Nazi militia noted for brutality and violence. b. One who resembles or behaves like a member of the Nazi militia. 2. A member of a force of shock troops.

storm window (stôrm wĭn'dō) n. A secondary window attached over the usual window to protect against the wind and cold.

storm-y (stôr'mĕ) adj. storm-i-er, storm-i-est. 1. Subject to, characterized by, or affected by storms; tempestuous. 2. Characterized by violent emotions, passions, speech, or actions: a stormy argument. —storm'i-ly adv.

—storm'i-ness n.

stormy petrel (stôr'mĕ pĕt'rəl) n. 1. See storm petrel. 2. One who brings discord or appears at the onset of trouble; a rebel.

sto-ry¹ (stôr'ĕ, stōr'ĕ) n. pl. sto-ries. 1. An account or a recital of an event or a series of events, either true or fictitious. 2. A usually fictional prose or verse narrative intended to interest or amuse the hearer or reader; a tale. 3. A short story. 4. An incident, experience, or subject that furnishes or would be interesting material for a narrative: "He was colorful, he was charismatic, he was controversial, he was a good story" (Terry Ann Knopf). 5. The plot of a narrative or dramatic work. 6. A report, a statement, or an allegation of facts. 7. a. A news article or broadcast. b. The event, situation, or other material for such an article or broadcast. 8. An anecdote. 9. A lie. 10. Romantic legend or tradition. — v. tr.

sto-ried, sto-ry-ing, sto-ries. 1. To decorate with scenes representing historical or legendary events. 2. Archaic. To tell as a story. [Middle English storie, from Old French estorie, estoire, from Latin historia. See HISTORY.]

sto-ry² (stôr'ĕ, stōr'ĕ) n. pl. sto-ries. 1. A complete horizontal division of a building, constituting the area between two adjacent levels. 2. The set of rooms on the same level of a building. [Middle English storie, story, from Medieval Latin historia, picture, story (probably from painted windows or sculpture on the front of buildings), from Latin, history. See HISTORY.]

Sto-ry (stôr'ĕ, stōr'ĕ), Joseph. 1779-1845. American jurist who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1811-1845).

Sto-ry (stôr'ē, stōr'ē), William Wetmore. 1819-1895. American sculptor known for his neoclassical works, such as Cleopatra (1858).

sto-ry-board (stôr'ē-bôrd', stōr'ē-bōrd') n. A hanging panel of rough sketches depicting the plot, action, and characters in the sequential scenes of a film, an animated cartoon, a television show, or a filmed advertisement that is being proposed or made. —sto'ry-board' v.

sto-ry-book (stôr'ē-bōok', stōr'-) n. A book containing a collection of stories, usually for children. — adj. Occurring in or resembling the style or content of a storybook: storybook characters; a storybook romance.

story line (stôr'ē līn) n. The plot of a story or dramatic work.

sto-ry-tell-er (stôr'ē-těll'ər, stōr'-) n. 1. a. One who tells or writes stories.

b. One who relates anecdotes. 2. Informal. One who tells lies.

—sto'ry-tell'ing n.

sto-ry-writ-er (stôr'ē-rī'r'tər, stōr'-) n. 1. One who writes stories. 2. One who writes news stories, as for the electronic or print media.

stoss (stōs, stōs, shtōs) adj. Facing the direction from which a glacier moves. Used of a rock or slope in its path. [From German Stoss, push, blow, from stossen, to push, from Middle High German stōzen, from Old High German stōzan.]

sto-tin-ka (stō-tīng'kə) n. pl. sto-tin-ki (-kē). A unit of currency in Bulgaria. See Table at currency. [Bulgarian, from sto, hundred, from Old Church Slavonic sŭto. See dekṃ in Appendix.]

Stough-ton (stōt'n) A town of eastern Massachusetts northwest of Brockton. It is a manufacturing center. Population, 26,777.

stound (stound) n. Archaic. A short time; a while. [Middle English, from Old English stund. See stā- in Appendix.]

stoup also stoop (stōop) n. 1. Ecclesiastical. A basin or font for holy water at the entrance of a church. 2. A drinking vessel, such as a cup or tankard. 3. Scots. A bucket or pail. [Middle English stoup, bucket, jar, from Old Norse staup, cup.]

Stour (stour, stōor, stōr) A river, about 64 km (40 mi) long, of southeast England emptying into the North Sea in two channels enclosing the Isle of Thanet.

stout (stout) adj. stout-er, stout-est. 1. Having or marked by boldness, bravery, or determination; firm and resolute. 2. Strong in body; sturdy. 3. Strong in structure or substance; solid or substantial. See Synonyms at strong. 4. Bulky in figure; thickset or corpulent. See Synonyms at fat. 5. Powerful; forceful.

6. Stubborn or uncompromising: put up stout resistance to the proposal. — n.

1. a. A thickset or corpulent person. b. A garment size for a large or heavy figure. 2. A strong, very dark beer or ale. [Middle English, from Old French estout, of Germanic origin. See stel- in Appendix.] —stout'ish adj. —stout'ly adv.

—stout'ness n.

Stout (stout), Rex (Todhunter). 1886-1975. American writer of mystery novels featuring the portly, sedentary detective Nero Wolfe, such as Gambit (1962) and The Doorbell Rang (1966).

stout-en (stout/n) v. tr. intr. stout-ened, stout-en-ing, stout-ens. To make or become stout or stouter.

stout-heart-ed (stout/här/tid) adj. Brave; courageous. —stout/-heart/ed-ly adv. —stout/heart/ed-ness n.

stove¹ (stöv) n. 1. An apparatus in which electricity or a fuel is used to furnish heat, as for cooking or warmth. 2. A device that produces heat for specialized, especially industrial, purposes. 3. A kiln. 4. Chiefly British. A hothouse. [Middle English, heated room, probably from Middle Low German, or Middle Dutch both probably from Vulgar Latin extūfa*, from extūfāre*, to heat with steam. See STEW¹.]

WORD HISTORY: A stove to us is something we expect to find in a room, but at one time a stove was a room, specifically, a room for taking a hot-air or steam bath (first recorded in 1456). Around 1545 the word is recorded with reference to another room, such as a bedroom, heated with a furnace. The devices used to heat these rooms came to be called stoves as well, a use first found sometime between 1550 and 1625. Of course, heating devices that we would call stoves had long been in existence, going back to Roman times. However, the stove as the chief cooking device, taking the place of the fireplace, dates only to around the mid-19th century with the widespread use of wood-burning or coal-burning cooking stoves.

stove² (stöv) v. A past tense and a past participle of stave.

stove-pipe (stöv/pip/) n. 1. A pipe, usually of thin sheet iron, used to conduct smoke or fumes from a stove into a chimney flue. 2. A man's tall silk hat.

sto-ver (stöv/vər) n. The dried stalks and leaves of a cereal crop, used as fodder after the grain has been harvested. [Middle English, provisions, from Norman French estovers, from Old French estovier, to be necessary, from Latin est opus, it is necessary : est, third person sing. present tense of esse, to be; see ESSENCE + opus, need, work; see OPUS.]

stove-top (stöv/töp/) n. The top surface of a stove, especially when used for cooking. — adj. Used, prepared, or done on the top of a cooking stove: a stovetop casserole; stovetop cooking.

stow (stō) v. tr. stowed, stow-ing, stows. 1. a. To place or arrange, especially in a neat, compact way: stowed his gear in the footlocker. b. To fill (a place or container) by packing tightly. 2. To store for future use: stowed carrots and potatoes in the root cellar. 3. Slang. To refrain from; stop. 4. To provide lodging for; quarter. —phrasal verb. stow away. 1. To hide oneself aboard a conveyance in order to obtain free transportation. 2. Informal. To consume (food or drink) greedily. [Middle English stowen, from stowe, place, from Old English stōw. See stā- in Appendix.]

Stow (stō) A city of northeast Ohio, a chiefly residential suburb of Akron. Population, 27,702.

Stow (stō), John. 1525-1605. English historian and antiquarian noted for his collection of medieval manuscripts and for his Survey of London (1598), a description of London at the dawn of modern time.

stow-age (stō'ij) n. 1. a. The act, manner, or process of stowing. b. The state of being stored. 2. a. Space or room for storage. b. A place or container for storage. 3. Goods in storage or to be stowed. 4. A charge for storing goods.

stow-a-way (stō'ə-wā') n. A person who hides aboard a ship or other conveyance in order to obtain free passage.

Stowe (stō), Harriet (Elizabeth) Beecher. 1811-1896. American writer whose antislavery novel Uncle Tom's Cabin (1852) had great political influence and advanced the cause of abolition.

STP abbr. Standard temperature and pressure.

STR abbr. Synchronous transmitter receiver.

str. abbr. 1. Steamer. 2. Or Str. Strait. 3. Music. Stringed. 4. Strophe.

stra-bis-mus (strə-bīz'məs) n. A visual defect in which one eye cannot focus with the other on an objective because of imbalance of the eye muscles. Also called squint [New Latin, from Greek strabismos, condition of squinting, from strabizein, to squint, from strabos, squinting. See streb(h)- in Appendix.]

—stra-bis'mal (-mə'l), stra-bis'mic (-mīk) adj.

Stra-bo (strā'bō'), 63? B.C.-A.D. 24?. Greek geographer and historian whose great work, Geography, is the only extant text that describes the people and countries known to the Greeks and Romans during the reign of Augustus.

stra-bot-o-my (strə-bōt'ə-mē) n. pl. stra-bot-o-mies. The surgical cutting of a muscle or tendon of the eye to correct strabismus. [Greek strabos, squinting; see streb(h)- in Appendix + -TOMY.]

Stra-chey (strā'kē), (Giles) Lytton. 1880-1932. British historian and biographer noted for his urbane, witty, and critical biographical works, including Eminent Victorians (1918).

strad-dle (strād'l) v. strad-dled, strad-dling, strad-dles. — v. tr. 1. a. To stand or sit with a leg on each side of; bestride: straddle a horse. b. To be on both sides of; extend over or across: a car straddling the centerline. 2. To appear to favor both sides of (an issue). 3. To fire shots behind and in front of (a target) in order to determine the range. — v. intr. 1. To walk, stand, or sit with the legs wide apart, especially to sit astride. 2. To spread out in a disorderly way; sprawl. 3. To appear to favor both sides of an issue. — n. 1. The act or posture of sitting astride. 2. An equivocal or a noncommittal position. 3. The option to buy or sell a specific asset, such as a block of stock, at a predetermined price before a certain date. —idiom. straddle the fence. Informal. To be undecided or uncommitted. [; akin to Akin to STRIDE.] —strad'ler n.

Stra-di-va-ri (strād'ə-vâr'ē, -vâr'ē), Antonio. Often called Antonius Stradivarius. 1644?-1737. Italian violinmaker who developed the proportions of the modern violin and created instruments of unsurpassed beauty and tone. His sons Francesco (1671-1743) and Omobono (1679-1742) carried on the family tradition of fine artistry.

strafe (strāf) v. tr. strafed, straf-ing, strafes. To attack (ground troops, for example) with a machine gun or cannon from a low-flying aircraft. — n. An attack of machine-gun or cannon fire from a low-flying aircraft. [From German (Gott) strafe (England), (God) punish (England), a common World War I slogan, from strafen, to punish, from Middle High German strāfen, to contest, admonish.] —straf'er n.

Straf-ford (strāf'ərd), First Earl of Title of Thomas Wentworth. 1593-1641. English politician who was the principal minister to Charles I. He was convicted of treason by Parliament and was executed.

strag-gle (sträg'əl) v. intr. strag-gled, strag-gling, strag-gles. 1. To stray or fall behind. 2. To proceed or spread out in a scattered or irregular group. — n. A scattered or disorderly group, as of people or things. [Middle English straglen, to wander.] —strag'gler n. strag-gly (sträg'lē) adj. strag-gli-er, strag-gli-est. Growing or spread out in a disorderly or aimless way: straggly ivy.

straight (strāt) adj. straight-er, straight-est. 1. Extending continuously in the same direction without curving: a straight line. 2. Having no waves or bends: straight hair. 3. Erect; upright: has a straight, strong back. 4. Perfectly horizontal or vertical; level or even: The mirror isn't straight. 5. a. Direct and candid: a straight answer. b. Following a direct or correct method or approach; systematic: straight reasoning. c. Coming from a reliable source; factual: a straight tip; straight information. 6. a. Showing or marked by honesty or fair-mindedness: straight business dealings. b. Right; correct: made sure the facts were straight in the report. 7. Neatly arranged; orderly: The room is straight again.

8. a. Uninterrupted; consecutive: sick for five straight days; their fourth straight victory. b. Having the parts or details in correct sequence. c. Games. Made up of five cards constituting a sequence in poker. 9. Characterized by undeviating support, as of a principle or a political party: always votes a straight party line; a straight Democrat. 10. a. Not deviating from what is considered socially normal, usual, or acceptable; conventional. b. Conventional to an extreme degree.

c. Heterosexual. 11. Slang. Not being under the influence of alcohol or drugs.

12. a. Not deviating from the normal or strict form: straight Freudian analysis.

b. Not altered, embellished, or modified: does straight comedy.

13. a. Concerned with serious or important matters: a straight drama without comedy or music. b. Of or relating to a straight man. 14. Not mixed with anything else; undiluted: straight bourbon. 15. Sold without discount regardless of the amount purchased. — adv. 1. In a straight line; directly. 2. In an erect posture; upright. 3. Without detour or delay: went straight home. 4. Without circumlocution; candidly: I'll say it to you straight: you're wrong. 5. In a neat and orderly condition: put the living room straight. 6. In an honest, law-abiding, or virtuous manner: lives straight. 7. Without stopping; continuously: walked six hours straight. 8. Without embellishment or modification: tell the joke straight; play the role straight. 9. Without ice, water, or a mixer: drinks her whiskey straight. — n. 1. a. The straight part, as of a road: “The car darted forward on to the straight” (Kingsley Amis). b. Sports & Games. The straight part of a race-course between the winning post and the last turn. 2. A straight line. 3. A straight form or position. 4. Games. A poker hand containing five cards of various suits in numerical sequence, ranked above three of a kind and below a flush. 5. a. A conventional person, especially one considered a member of established society. b. A heterosexual person. 6. Slang. A person who does not use illegal drugs. — idiom. straight up. Served without ice: a martini straight up. [Middle English, from past participle of strecchen, to stretch. See STRETCH.]

—straight/ly adv. —straight/ness n.

straight-a-head (strāt'ə-hĕd') adj. Conforming to a conventional style or mode; standard: straight-ahead rock music; a straight-ahead whodunit.

straight and narrow (strāt ənd nār'ō) n. The way of proper conduct and moral integrity. Often used with the: kept strictly to the straight and narrow. [Probably alteration of “Strait is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life” (Matthew 7:14).]

straight angle (strāt äng'gəl) n. Mathematics. An angle of 180°.

straight-arm (strāt'ärm') v. tr. straight-armed, straight-arm-ing, straight-arms. 1. Football. To ward off (a tackler) by holding the arm out straight with the elbow locked and the palm of the hand placed against the opponent's body; stiff-arm. 2. To force or ward off by or as if by holding the arm out straight. — n. Football. The act or an instance of straight-arming.

straight arrow (strāt ä'r'ō) n. Informal. 1. A morally upright person. 2. A person regarded as being extremely conventional. [From the phrase straight as an arrow.] —straight/ar'row (strāt'är'ō) adj.

straight-a-way (strāt'ə-wā') adj. 1. Extending in a straight line or course without a curve or turn. 2. Unhesitating; immediate: a straightaway denial. — n. A straight course, stretch, or track. — adv. (strāt'ə-wā') At once; immediately.

straight-backed (strāt'bäkt') adj. Having a straight back: a slim, straight-backed dancer; a straight-backed wooden chair.

straight chain (strāt chān) n. An organic molecular structure in the form of an unbranched open chain.

straight-edge (strāt'ēj') n. A rigid flat rectangular bar, as of wood or metal, with a straight edge for testing or drawing straight lines. —straight/edged' adj.

straight-en (strāt'n) v. tr. intr. straight-ened, straight-en-ing, straight-ens. To make or become straight or straighter. —straight/en-er n.

straight face (strāt fās) n. A face that betrays no sign of emotion. —straight/-faced' (strāt'fāst') adj. —straight/-faced/ly (-fāst'lē, -fā'sīd-lē) adv.

straight flush (strāt flūsh) n. Games. A hand in which all five cards are of the same suit and in numerical sequence, ranked above four of a kind in poker.

straight-for-ward (strāt-fôr'wərd) adj. 1. Proceeding in a straight course; direct. 2. a. Not circuitous or evasive; honest and frank. See Synonyms at frank¹. b. Free from ambiguity or pretense; plain and open. — adv. In a direct course or an honest manner. —straight-for/ward-ly adv.

—straight-for/ward-ness n. —straight-for/wards adv.

straight-from-the-shoulder (strāt'frəm-thə-shōl'dər) adj. Informal.

Frank and forthright: straight-from-the-shoulder reporting.

straight-jack-et (strāt'jāk'it) n. & v. Variant of straitjacket.

straight-laced (strāt'lāst') adj. Variant of strait-laced.

straight-line (strāt'līn') adj. 1. Lying in a straight line. 2. Relating to a device whose linkage produces or copies motion in straight lines. 3. Accounting. Of or being a mode of amortization by equal payments at stated intervals over a given period of time.

straight man (strāt măn) n. The partner in a comedy team who feeds lines to the other comedian, who then makes witty replies.

straight off (strāt ôf) adv. At once; immediately: discovered straight off that the furnace wasn't working.

straight-out (strāt'out') adj. 1. Straightforward; blunt: gave them a straight-out "no." 2. Complete; unmitigated: a straight-out error.

straight poker (strāt pō'kər) n. Games. Poker in which each player is dealt five cards face down, bets are made, and the showdown takes place without any new cards being drawn.

straight razor (strāt rā'zər) n. A razor consisting of a blade hinged to a handle into which it slips when not in use.

straight shooter (strāt shōō'tər) n. Informal. One who is honest and forthright. —straight/-shoot'ing (strāt'shōō'tīng) adj.

straight ticket (strāt tīk'it) n. A ballot cast for all the candidates of one party.

straight-way (strāt'wā', -wā') adv. 1. In a direct course: plunged straightway to the rocks below. 2. Without delay; at once: Straightway a storm began to brew.

strain¹ (strān) v. strained, strain-ing, strains. — v. tr. 1. To pull, draw, or stretch tight: strained the sheets over the bed. 2. To exert or tax to the utmost: straining our ears to hear. 3. To injure or impair by overuse or overexertion; wrench: strain a muscle. 4. To stretch or force beyond the proper or legitimate limit: strain a point. 5. To alter (the relations between the parts of a structure or shape) by applying an external force; deform. 6. a. To pass (gravy, for example) through a filtering agent such as a strainer. b. To draw off or remove by filtration: strained the pulp from the juice. 7. To embrace or clasp tightly; hug. — v. intr. 1. To make violent or steady efforts; strive hard: straining to reach the finish line. 2. To be or become wrenched or twisted. 3. To be subjected to great stress. 4. To pull forcibly or violently: The dog strained at its leash. 5. To stretch or exert one's muscles or nerves to the utmost. 6. To filter, trickle, or ooze. 7. To be extremely hesitant; balk: a mule that strained at the lead. — n. 1. a. The act of straining. b. The state of being strained. 2. a. Extreme or laborious effort, exertion, or work. b. A great or excessive pressure, demand, or stress on one's body, mind, or resources: the strain of managing both a family and a career. 3. A wrench, twist, or other physical injury resulting from excessive tension, effort, or use. 4. Physics. A deformation produced by stress. 5. An exceptional degree or pitch: a strain of zealous idealism. [Middle English streinen, from Old French estreindre, estrein-, to bind tightly, from Latin stringere. See streig- in Appendix.]

strain² (strān) n. 1. The collective descendants of a common ancestor; a race, stock, line, or breed. 2. Any of the various lines of ancestry united in an individual or a family; ancestry or lineage. 3. Biology. A group of organisms of the same species, having distinctive characteristics but not usually considered a separate breed or variety: a superior strain of wheat; a smooth strain of bacteria. 4. An artificial variety of a domestic animal or cultivated plant. 5. A kind or sort: imaginings of a morbid strain. 6. a. An inborn or inherited tendency or character. b. A streak; a trace. See Synonyms at streak. 7. a. The tone, tenor, or substance of a verbal utterance or of a particular action or behavior: spoke in a passionate strain. b. A prevailing quality, as of attitude or behavior. 8. Often strains. Music. A passage of expression; a tune or an air: melodic strains of the violin. 9. a. A passage of poetic and especially lyrical expression. b. An outburst or a flow of eloquent or impassioned language. [Middle English strene, from Old English strēon, something gained, offspring. See ster⁻² in Appendix.]

strained (strānd) adj. 1. Having been passed through a strainer: a bowl of strained peaches. 2. Done with or marked by excessive effort; forced: strained humor. 3. Extended beyond proper limits: a strained meaning. 4. Antagonized to the verge of open conflict: strained relations.

strain-er (strā'nər) n. 1. One that strains, as a device used to separate liquids from solids. 2. An apparatus for tightening, stretching, or strengthening.

strain gauge (strān gāj) n. An extensometer.

strain·ing beam (strā'ning bēm) n. Architecture. A horizontal tie beam connecting two queen posts in a roof truss. Also called straining piece strain·om·e·ter (strā-nōm'ī-tər) n. An extensometer.

strait (strāt) n. Abbr. str., Str., st., St. 1. Also straits. A narrow channel joining two larger bodies of water. 2. A position of difficulty, perplexity, distress, or need. Often used in the plural: in desperate straits. — adj. 1. a. Difficult; stressful. b. Having or marked by limited funds or resources. 2. Archaic.

a. Narrow. b. Affording little space or room; confined. c. Fitting tightly; constricted. 3. Archaic. Strict, rigid, or righteous. [Middle English streit, narrow, a strait, from Old French estreit, tight, narrow, from Latin strictus, past participle of stringere, to draw tight. See streig- in Appendix.] — strait'ly adv. — strait'ness n.

strait·en (strāt'n) v. tr. strait·ened, strait·en·ing, strait·ens. 1. a. To make narrow. b. To enclose in a limited area; confine. 2. To put or bring into difficulties or distress, especially financial hardship. 3. Archaic. To restrict in latitude or scope.

strait·jack·et also straight·jack·et (strāt'jäck'it) n. 1. A long-sleeved jacket-like garment used to bind the arms tightly against the body as a means of restraining a violent patient or prisoner. 2. Something that restricts, hinders, or confines: the straitjacket of bureaucratic paperwork. — v. tr. strait·jack·et·ed, strait·jack·et·ing, strait·jack·ets. To restrain, restrict, or hinder by or as if by confining in a straitjacket.

strait·laced also straight·laced (strāt'lāst') adj. 1. Excessively strict in behavior, morality, or opinions. 2. Having or wearing a tightly laced garment. — strait'·lac'ed·ly (-lā'sid-lē, -lāst'lē) adv. — strait'·lac'ed·ness n.

Straits Settlements (strāts sēt'l-mənts) A former British crown colony comprising parts of the southern and western Malay Peninsula and adjacent islands, including Singapore. Formed in 1826, it was under Indian control until 1867, when the British assumed direct authority. Singapore became a separate colony in 1946; the remaining portions of the Straits Settlements were granted to Australia and the Federation of Malaya (later Malaysia) in the 1950's.

strake (strāk) n. Nautical. A single continuous line of planking or metal plating extending on a vessel's hull from stem to stern. [Middle English, probably from Old English straca*.]

Stral·sund (sträl'sōont', shträl'zōont') A city of northeast Germany on an inlet of the Baltic Sea opposite Rügen Island. Chartered in 1234, it was a leading member of the Hanseatic League and changed hands many times before it passed to Prussia in 1815. Population, 75,335.

stra·mo·ni·um (strā-mō'nē-əm) n. 1. See jimsonweed. 2. The dried poisonous leaves of the jimsonweed, used in the treatment of asthma. [New Latin.]

strand¹ (stränd) n. The land bordering a body of water; a beach. — v.
strand-ed, strand-ing, strands. — v. tr. 1. To drive or run ashore or aground. 2. To bring into or leave in a difficult or helpless position: The convoy was stranded in the desert. 3. Baseball. To leave (a base runner) on base at the end of an inning. — v. intr. 1. To be driven or run ashore or aground. 2. To be brought into or left in a difficult or helpless position. [Middle English, from Old English.]

strand² (stränd) n. 1. A complex of fibers or filaments that have been twisted together to form a cable, rope, thread, or yarn. 2. a. A single filament, such as a fiber or thread, of a woven or braided material. b. A wisp or tress of hair.
3. Something, such as a string of pearls, that is plaited or twisted into a ropelike length. 4. One of the elements woven together to make an intricate whole, such as the plot of a novel. — v. tr. strand-ed, strand-ing, strands. 1. To make or form (a rope, for example) by twisting strands together. 2. To break a strand of (a rope, for example). [Middle English strond.]

Strand (stränd) A thoroughfare in west-central London, England, running parallel to the northern bank of the Thames River and eastward from Trafalgar Square in the West End to the City of London. Among its well-known fixtures is the Savoy Hotel.

strand line also strand-line (stränd'lin') n. A shoreline, especially one marking an earlier and higher water level.

strange (strānj) adj. strang-er, strang-est. 1. Not previously known; unfamiliar. 2. a. Out of the ordinary; unusual or striking. b. Differing from the normal. 3. Not of one's own or a particular locality, environment, or kind; exotic.
4. a. Reserved in manner; distant. b. Not comfortable or at ease; constrained.
5. Not accustomed or conditioned: She was strange to her new duties. 6. Archaic.
Of, relating to, or characteristic of another place or part of the world; foreign.
— adv. In a strange manner. [Middle English, from Old French estrange, extraordinary, foreign, from Latin extrāneus, adventitious, foreign, from extrā, outside, from feminine ablative of exter, outward. See eghs in Appendix.]
—strange/ly adv.

SYNONYMS: strange, peculiar, odd, queer, quaint, outlandish, singular, eccentric, curious. These adjectives describe what deviates from the usual or customary. Strange refers especially to what is unfamiliar, unknown, or inexplicable: “I do hate to be chucked in the dark aboard a strange ship. I wonder where they keep their fresh water” (Joseph Conrad). Peculiar particularly describes what is distinct from all others: The kitchen was redolent with the peculiar aromatic odor of cloves. Something that is odd fails to accord with what is ordinary, usual, or expected, while something queer deviates markedly from the norm; both terms can suggest strangeness or peculiarity: I find it odd that his name is never mentioned. “Now, my suspicion is that the universe is not only queerer than we suppose, but queerer than we can suppose" (J.B.S. Haldane). Quaint refers to pleasing or old-fashioned peculiarity: "the quaint streets of New Orleans, that most foreign of American cities" (Winston Churchill). Outlandish suggests alien or bizarre strangeness: "They were dressed in a quaint, outlandish fashion" (Washington Irving). Singular describes what is unique or unparalleled; the term often suggests an unusual or peculiar quality that arouses curiosity or wonder: Such poise is singular in one so young. Eccentric refers particularly to what departs strikingly from the recognized or conventional: Many consider Berlioz's compositions to be innovative but eccentric. Curious suggests strangeness or novelty that excites interest: Americans living abroad often acquire a curious hybrid accent. See also Synonyms at foreign strange-ness (strānj'nis) n. 1. The quality or condition of being strange.

2. Physics. A quantum number equal to hypercharge minus baryon number, indicating the possible transformations of an elementary particle upon strong interaction with another elementary particle.

strange particle (strānj pār'ti-kəl) n. Physics. An unstable elementary particle created in high-energy particle collisions having a short life and a strangeness quantum number other than zero.

strange quark (strānj kwôrk) n. Abbr. s Physics. A quark with a charge of -3 , a mass about 988 times that of the electron, and a strangeness of -1 .

stranger (strānj'jər) n. 1. One who is neither a friend nor an acquaintance.

2. A foreigner, a newcomer, or an outsider. 3. One who is unaccustomed to or unacquainted with something specified; a novice: a stranger to our language; no stranger to hardship. 4. A visitor or guest. 5. Law. One that is neither privy nor party to a title, an act, or a contract. [Middle English, from Old French estrangier, from estrangle, strange. See STRANGE.]

strangle (sträng'gəl) v. strangled, strangling, strangles. — v. tr.

1. a. To kill by squeezing the throat so as to choke or suffocate; throttle. b. To cut off the oxygen supply of; smother. 2. To suppress, repress, or stifle: strangle a scream. 3. To inhibit the growth or action of; restrict: "That artist is strangled who is forced to deal with human beings solely in social terms" (James Baldwin).

— v. intr. 1. To become strangled. 2. To die from suffocation or strangulation; choke. [Middle English stranglen, from Old French estrangler, from Latin strangulāre, from Greek strangalan, from strangalē, halter.] — strangler n.

stranglehold (sträng'gəl-höld') n. 1. Sports. An illegal wrestling hold used to choke an opponent. 2. A force, an influence, or an action that restricts or suppresses freedom or progress. In this sense, also called throttlehold strangler fig (sträng'glər fig) n. An evergreen tree (Ficus aurea) of southern Florida and the West Indies, having elliptic leaves and yellow fruit. [From the fact that it strangles its host.]

stran-gles (sträng'gəlz) pl.n. (used with a sing. verb). An infectious disease of horses and related animals, caused by the bacterium Streptococcus equi and characterized by inflammation of the nasal mucous membrane and abscesses under the jaw and around the throat that cause a strangling or choking sensation.

[From Middle English strangle, strangulation, from stranglen, to strangle. See STRANGLE.]

stran-gu-late (sträng'gyə-lāt') v. stran-gu-lat-ed, stran-gu-lat-ing, stran-gu-lates. — v. tr. 1. To strangle. 2. Pathology. To compress, constrict, or obstruct (an organ, a duct, or other body part) so as to cut off the flow of blood or other fluid: strangulate an intestinal hernia. — v. intr. To be or become strangled, compressed, constricted, or obstructed. [Latin strangulāre, strangulāt-. See STRANGLE.]

stran-gu-la-tion (sträng'gyə-lā'shən) n. 1. a. The act of strangling or strangulating. b. The state of being strangled or strangulated. 2. Pathology. Constriction of a body part so as to cut off the flow of blood or another fluid: strangulation of the intestine.

stran-gu-ry (sträng'gyə-rē) n. Slow, painful urination, caused by muscular spasms of the urethra and bladder. [Middle English, from Latin strangūria, from Greek strangouria: stranx, strang-, drop, trickle + -ouria, -uria.]

strap (străp) n. 1. a. A long, narrow strip of pliant material such as leather. b. Such a strip equipped with a buckle or similar fastener for binding or securing objects. 2. A thin, flat metal or plastic band used for fastening or clamping objects together or into position. 3. A narrow band formed into a loop for grasping with the hand. 4. A razor strop. 5. A strip of leather used in flogging. — v. tr. strapped, strap-ping, straps. 1. To fasten or secure with a strap. 2. To beat with a strap. 3. To sharpen (a razor, for example). [Alteration of STROP.]

strap-hang (străp'hăng') v. intr. strap-hung (-hŭng'), strap-hang-ing, strap-hangs. To travel as a straphanger, as on a subway or bus.

strap-hang-er (străp'hăng'ər) n. 1. One who grips a hanging strap or similar device for support while riding as a passenger on a bus or subway. 2. One who uses public transportation.

strap-hung (străp'hŭng') v. Past tense and past participle of straphang.

strap-less (străp'līs) adj. Having no strap or straps, as a dress or an undergarment. — n. A garment having no strap or straps.

strap-pa-do (stră-pā'dō, -pā'-) n. pl. strap-pa-does. 1. A form of torture in which the victim is lifted off the ground by a rope attached to the wrists, which have been tied behind the back, and then is dropped partway to the ground with a jerk. 2. The apparatus employed in this method of torture. [Alteration of French strapade, from Old French, from Old Italian strappata, from strappare, to stretch tight, of Germanic origin.]

strapped (sträpt) adj. Informal. In financial need: We are strapped for cash right now.

strap-per (sträp'ər) n. A powerfully built, robust person.

strap-ping (sträp'ɪŋ) adj. Having a sturdy, muscular physique; robust. — n.

1. Straps considered as a group. 2. Material for making straps.

Stras-berg (sträs'bərg, sträs'-), Lee. 1901-1982. Austrian-born American theatrical director and teacher who studied under Stanislavsky and was an influential exponent of his method of acting.

Stras-bourg (sträs'bōörg', sträz'-, sträz-bōör') A city of northeast France near the German border east of Nancy. Strategically important since ancient times, it became a free imperial city in 1262, was occupied by France in 1681, and passed to Germany in 1871. The city was recovered by France in 1919. Population, 248,712.

strass (sträs) n. See paste¹ (n., sense 4). [German Strass, or French stras both perhaps after Josef Strasser, 18th-century German jeweler.]

stra-ta (strä'tə, strät'ə) n. A plural of stratum.

strat-a-gem (strät'ə-jəm) n. 1. A military maneuver designed to deceive or surprise an enemy. 2. A clever, often underhand scheme for achieving an objective. See Synonyms at artifice. [Middle English, from Old French stratageme, from Old Italian stratagemma, from Latin stratēgēma, from Greek, from stratēgein, to be a general, from stratēgos, general : stratos, army; see ster-² in Appendix + agein, to lead; see ag- in Appendix.]

stra-te-gic (strə-tē'jɪk) also stra-te-gi-cal (-jɪ-kəl) adj. 1. Of or relating to strategy. 2. a. Important or essential in relation to a plan of action: a strategic withdrawal. b. Essential to the effective conduct of war: strategic materials. c. Highly important to an intended objective: The committee discussed strategic marketing factors. 3. Intended to destroy the military potential of an enemy: strategic bombing. —stra-te-gi-cal-ly adv.

stra-te-gics (strə-tē'jɪks) n. (used with a sing. verb). The art of strategy.

strat-e-gist (strät'ə-jɪst) n. One who is skilled in strategy.

strat-e-gize (strät'ə-jɪz') v. strat-e-gized, strat-e-giz-ing, strat-e-giz-es.

— v. tr. To plan a strategy for (a business or financial venture, for example). —

v. intr. To determine strategies; plan: “a lot to think about and strategize about and anticipate” (New Yorker).

strat-e-gy (strät'ə-jē) n. pl. strat-e-gies. 1. a. The science and art of using all the forces of a nation to execute approved plans as effectively as possible during peace or war. b. The science and art of military command as applied to the overall planning and conduct of large-scale combat operations. 2. A plan of action resulting from strategy or intended to accomplish a specific goal. See Synonyms at plan. 3. The art or skill of using stratagems in endeavors such as politics and business. [French stratégie, from Greek stratēgia, office of a general, from stratēgos, general. See STRATAGEM.]

Strat·ford (strät'fərd) 1. A city of southeast Ontario, Canada, west-southwest of Toronto. It is an industrial center and the home of the Stratford Shakespearean Festival (founded 1953). Population, 26,262. 2. A town of southwest Connecticut on Long Island Sound northeast of Bridgeport. Settled in 1639, it is a manufacturing center and site of the annual American Shakespeare Festival (established 1955). Population, 49,389.

Strat·ford·up·on·Av·on (strät'fərd-ə-pön-ā'vən, -pôn-) also Strat·ford·on·Av·on (-ön-, -ôn-) A municipal borough of central England south-southeast of Birmingham. William Shakespeare was born and died in the borough, which has long been a popular tourist center. An annual festival includes performances by the Royal Shakespeare Company. Population, 20,800.

strath (sträth) n. Scots. A wide, flat river valley. [Scottish Gaelic srath, from Old Irish. See ster² in Appendix.]

stra·ti (strā'tī, strät'ī) n. Plural of stratus.

strati- pref. Stratum: stratiform. [From STRATUM.]

stra·tic·u·late (strä-tik'yə-līt) adj. Geology. Having thin layers. [From STRATUM.] —stra·tic·u·la·tion (-lā'shən) n.

strat·i·fi·ca·tion (strät'ə-fī-kā'shən) n. 1. a. Formation or deposition of layers, as of rock or sediments. b. The condition of being stratified. 2. A layered configuration.

strat·i·fi·ca·tion·al grammar (strät'ə-fī-kā'shə-nəl grām'ər) n. A grammar based on the theory that language is made up of a hierarchical series of layers linked by rules.

strat·i·fied charge engine (strät'ə-fīd' chärj ěn'jĭn) n. An internal-combustion engine with a divided ignition cylinder that uses the ignition of rich fuel in a small chamber near the spark plug to improve the combination of a very lean mixture throughout the rest of the cylinder.

strat·i·form (strät'ə-fōrm') adj. Forming a layer or arranged in layers.

strat·i·fy (strät'ə-fī') v. strat·i·fied, strat·i·fy·ing, strat·i·fies. — v. tr.

1. To form, arrange, or deposit in layers. 2. To preserve (seeds) by placing them between layers of moist sand or similar material. 3. a. To arrange or separate into castes, classes, or social levels. b. To separate into a sequence of graded status levels. — v. intr. 1. To become layered; form strata. 2. To develop different levels of caste, class, privilege, or status.

stra·tig·ra·phy (strə-tĭg'rə-fē) n. The study of rock strata, especially the distribution, deposition, and age of sedimentary rocks. —strat'·i·graph'ic (strät'ī-gräf'ĭk), strat'·i·graph'·i·cal (-ĭ-kəl) adj. —strat'·i·graph'·i·cal·ly adv.

stra·toc·ra·cy (strə-tōk' rə-sē) n. pl. stra·toc·ra·cies. Government by the armed forces. [Greek stratos, army; see ster⁻² in Appendix + -CRACY.]

—strat' o·crat'ic (strät' ə-krät' ik) adj.

stra·to·cu·mu·lus (strā'tō-kyōōm' yə-ləs, strät' ō-) n. pl. stra·to·cu·mu·li (-lī'). A low-lying cloud formation occurring in extensive horizontal layers with rounded summits. [STRAT(US) + CUMULUS.]

strat·o·pause (strät' ə-pōz') n. The boundary between the stratosphere and the mesosphere located at an altitude of about 55 kilometers (35 miles) above the earth's surface. [STRATO(SPHERE) + PAUSE.]

strat·o·sphere (strät' ə-sfīr') n. 1. The region of the atmosphere above the troposphere and below the mesosphere. 2. An extremely high or the highest point or degree on a ranked scale: the governmental stratosphere; business expenses in the stratosphere. [French stratosphère : Latin strātus, a spreading out; see STRATUS + -sphère, sphere (from Old French espere); see SPHERE.]

strat·o·spher·ic (strät' ə-sfīr' ik, -sfēr'-) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or characteristic of the stratosphere. 2. Extremely or unreasonably high: "money borrowed at today's stratospheric rates of interest" (New York Times).

—strat' o·spher' i·cal·ly adv.

strat·o·vol·ca·no (strät' ō-vōl-kā'nō, strā'tō-) n. pl. strat·o·vol·ca·nos. A volcano composed of alternating layers of lava and ash. [STRAT(UM) + VOLCANO.]

Strat·ton (strät' n), Charles Sherwood. Known as "General Tom Thumb." 1838-1883. American entertainer who reached 3 feet 4 inches at maturity and toured extensively with P.T. Barnum's circus.

stra·tum (strā'təm, strät' əm) n. pl. stra·ta (-tə) or stra·tums. 1. A horizontal layer of material, especially one of several parallel layers arranged one on top of another. 2. Geology. A bed or layer of sedimentary rock having approximately the same composition throughout. 3. A level of society composed of people with similar social, cultural, or economic status. 4. One of a number of layers, levels, or divisions in an organized system: a complex poem with many strata of meaning. [Latin strātum, a covering, from neuter past participle of sternere, to spread. See STRATUS.] —stra'tal (-təl) adj.

USAGE NOTE: The standard singular form is stratum; the standard plural is strata (or sometimes stratums) but not stratas.

stratum cor·ne·um (strā'təm kōr'nē-əm) n. pl. strata cornea. The horny outer layer of the epidermis, consisting mainly of dead or peeling cells. [New Latin : STRATUM + Latin corneum, neuter of corneus, horny; see CORNEA.]

stra·tus (strā'təs, strät' əs) n. pl. stra·ti (-tī). A low-altitude cloud formation consisting of a horizontal layer of gray clouds. [From Latin strātus, past participle of sternere, to stretch, extend. See ster⁻² in Appendix.]

Straus (strous), Nathan. 1848-1931. German-born American merchant who with his brother Isidor (1845-1912) owned Macy's department store in New York City and funded numerous philanthropic organizations.

Straus (strous, shtrous), Oscar. 1870-1954. Austrian-born French composer noted for his operettas, including The Chocolate Soldier (1908).

Strauss (strous, shtrous), David Friedrich. 1808-1874. German theologian who applied Hegelian philosophy to the study of the Bible.

Strauss (strous, shtrous), Johann. Known as "the Elder." 1804-1849. Austrian violinist and composer of waltzes and other works, notably Redetzky March (1848). His son Johann (1825-1899), known as "the Younger," is sometimes called "the Waltz King" and is best remembered for his numerous waltzes, such as "The Blue Danube" (1867).

Strauss (strous), Levi. 1829?-1902. American clothing manufacturer who developed heavy denim trousers and founded Levi Strauss and Company (1850).

Strauss (strous, shtrous), Richard. 1864-1949. German composer known chiefly for his symphonic poems, such as Don Quixote (1897), and his operas, including Salome (1905).

Stra·vin·sky (strə-vīn'skē), Igor Fyodorovich. 1882-1971. Russian-born composer of ballets, including The Rite of Spring (1913), symphonies, operas, such as The Rake's Progress (1951), and other works. He is considered one of the most innovative composers of the 20th century.

straw (strô) n. 1. a. Stalks of threshed grain, used as bedding and food for animals, for thatching, and for weaving or braiding, as into baskets. b. A single stalk of threshed grain. 2. Something, such as a hat or basket, made of straw. 3. A slender tube used for sucking up a liquid. 4. a. Something of minimal value or importance. b. Something with too little substance to provide support in a crisis: Near the end we were grasping at straws. — adj. 1. Of, relating to, or made of straw: a straw mat. 2. Containing or used for straw, as a barn or feeding trough. 3. Color. Of the color of straw; yellowish. 4. Having little or no value or substance; unimportant. 5. Of, relating to, or constituting a straw man. — idiom. straw in the wind. A slight hint of something to come. [Middle English, from Old English strēaw. See ster² in Appendix.] — straw'y adj.

straw·ber·ry (strô'bĕr'ē) n. 1. Any of various low-growing plants of the genus Fragaria, having white flowers and an aggregate fruit that consists of a red, fleshy, edible receptacle and numerous seedlike fruitlets. 2. The aggregate fruit of this plant. [Middle English, from Old English strēawberige: strēaw, straw; see STRAW + berige, berie, berry; see BERRY.]

WORD HISTORY: Izaak Walton's 1655 comment, "We may say of Angling as Dr. Boteler said of Strawberries; Doubtless God could have made a better berry, but doubtless God never did," is perhaps the nicest use of the word strawberry in its history. This history goes back much further in English to the Old English period when the word is first recorded. We know that strawberry was formed during that period from the Old English ancestors of our words straw and berry. What is not known is why the word straw is the first part of this compound. One possibility is that the small, one-seeded fruits on the surface of a strawberry resemble fragments of straw.

strawberry bass (strô'běr'ē bäs) n. See black crappie.

strawberry blite (strô'běr'ē blīt) n. A weedy European plant (Chenopodium capitatum) having minute petalless flowers and red, berrylike fruit.

strawberry bush (strô'běr'ē böosh) n. An erect to straggly shrub (Euonymus americanus) of the eastern United States having inconspicuous flowers and showy pinkish fruit.

strawberry mark (strô'běr'ē märk) n. A raised, shiny, red nevus or birthmark, occurring usually on the face or scalp and resembling a strawberry.

strawberry roan (strô'běr'ē rōn) n. A horse having reddish hair mixed with white.

strawberry shrub (strô'běr'ē shrüb) n. See Carolina allspice.

strawberry tomato (strô'běr'ē tə-mā'tō) n. 1. Any of several plants of the genus Physalis, as P. pubescens and P. pruinosa, of eastern North America, having yellow flowers and edible yellowish fruit enclosed in a persistent husklike calyx.

2. The fruit of this plant.

strawberry tree (strô'běr'ē trē) n. Any of several evergreen shrubs of the genus Arbutus, especially A. unedo, native to southern Europe, having shiny leaves, drooping clusters of white or pinkish flowers, and scarlet strawberrylike fruit.

straw-board (strô'bôrd', -bôrd') n. A coarse yellow cardboard made of straw pulp.

straw boss (strô bôs) n. Informal. A worker who acts as a boss or crew leader in addition to performing regular duties.

straw-flow-er (strô'flou'ər) n. A stout Australian plant (Helichrysum bracteatum) having flower heads with showy, variously colored bracts that retain their color when dried.

straw-hat (strô'hăt') adj. Of or relating to summer theater that operates in suburban or resort areas. [From the fashion of wearing straw hats during the summer.]

straw man (strô män) n. 1. A person who is set up as cover or a front for a questionable enterprise. 2. An argument or opponent set up so as to be easily refuted or defeated. 3. A bundle of straw made into the likeness of a man and often used as a scarecrow.

straw mushroom (strô mŭsh/'rôom') n. A tropical and subtropical edible mushroom (Volvariella volvacea) having a white cap and a long stipe with a swollen base.

straw vote (strô vôt) n. An unofficial vote or poll indicating the trend of opinion on a candidate or an issue.

straw wine (strô wîn) n. A sweet dessert wine made from grapes that have been dried on straw.

straw-worm (strô/'wûrm') n. The destructive larva of a wasp (Harmolita grandis), of western North America, that infests stalks of grain.

straw yellow (strô yĕl'ô) n. Color. A pale yellow.

stray (strā) v. intr. strayed, straying, strays. 1. a. To move away from a group, deviate from the correct course, or go beyond established limits. b. To become lost. 2. To wander about without a destination or purpose; roam. See Synonyms at wander. 3. To follow a winding course; meander. 4. To deviate from a moral, proper, or right course; err. 5. To become diverted from a subject or train of thought; digress. See Synonyms at swerve. — n. One that has strayed, especially a domestic animal wandering about. — adj. 1. Straying or having strayed; wandering or lost: stray cats and dogs. 2. Scattered or separate: a few stray crumbs. [Middle English straien, from Old French estraier, from estree, highway, from Latin strāta. See STREET.] —stray'er n.

streak (strĕk) n. 1. A line, mark, smear, or band differentiated by color or texture from its surroundings. 2. A slight contrasting element; a trace: "There was a streak of wildness in him" (Olga Carlisle). 3. Informal. a. A brief run or stretch, as of luck. b. An unbroken series, as of wins or losses. 4. Mineralogy. The color of the fine powder produced when a mineral is rubbed against a hard surface. Used as a distinguishing characteristic. 5. Botany. Any of various viral diseases of plants characterized by the appearance of discolored stripes on the leaves or stems. 6. Microbiology. A bacterial culture inoculated by drawing a bacteria-laden needle across the surface of a solid culture medium. — v. streaked, streak-ing, streaks. — v. tr. 1. To mark with streaks: rain streaking the pavement. 2. To lighten (strands of hair) with a chemical preparation.

3. Microbiology. To inoculate in order to produce a streak. — v. intr. 1. To form streaks. 2. To be or become streaked. 3. To move at high speed; rush. [Middle English streke, line, from Old English strica. See streig- in Appendix.]

—streak'er n.

SYNONYMS: streak, strain, vein. The central meaning shared by these nouns is "an intermixture of an unexpected quality, as in a person's character": a streak of humor; a strain of melancholy; a vein of stubbornness.

streak·y (strē'kē) adj. streak·i·er, streak·i·est. 1. Marked with, characterized by, or occurring in streaks. 2. Variable or uneven in character or quality.

—streak'ily adv. —streak'i·ness n.

stream (strēm) n. 1. a. A flow of water in a channel or bed, as a brook, rivulet, or small river. b. A steady current in such a flow of water. 2. A steady current of a fluid. 3. A steady flow or succession: a stream of insults. See Synonyms at flow. 4. A trend, course, or drift, as of opinion, thought, or history. 5. A beam or ray of light. 6. Chiefly British. A course of study to which students are tracked.

— v. streamed, stream·ing, streams. — v. intr. 1. To flow in or as if in a stream. 2. To pour forth or give off a stream; flow: My eyes were streaming with tears. 3. To come or go in large numbers; pour: Traffic was streaming by. Fan mail streamed in. 4. To extend, wave, or float outward: The banner streamed in the breeze. 5. a. To leave a continuous trail of light. b. To give forth a continuous stream of light rays or beams; shine. — v. tr. To emit, discharge, or exude (a body fluid, for example). —idiom. on stream. In or into operation or production: a new power plant soon to go on stream. [Middle English streame, from Old English strēam. See sreu- in Appendix.] —stream'y adj.

stream·bed (strēm'bēd') n. The channel through which a natural stream of water runs or used to run.

stream·er (strē'mər) n. 1. a. A long narrow flag, banner, or pennant. b. A long narrow strip of material used for ornament or decoration. 2. A column of light shooting across the sky in the aurora borealis. 3. An extension of rays from the sun's corona. 4. A newspaper headline that runs across a full page.

stream·let (strēm'līt) n. A small stream.

stream·line (strēm'līn') v. tr. stream·lined, stream·lin·ing, stream·lines.

1. To construct or design in a form that offers the least resistance to fluid flow. 2. To improve the appearance or efficiency of; modernize. 3. a. To organize. b. To simplify. — n. 1. A line that is parallel to the direction of flow of a fluid at a given instant. 2. The path of one particle in a flowing fluid. 3. A contour of a body constructed so as to offer minimum resistance to a fluid flow.

stream·lined (strēm'līnd') adj. 1. a. Designed or arranged to offer the least resistance to fluid flow. b. Reduced to essentials; lacking anything extra.

c. Effectively organized or simplified: a streamlined method of production.

2. Having flowing, graceful lines; sleek: a streamlined convertible. 3. Improved in appearance or efficiency; modernized.

stream of consciousness (strēm ũv kōn'shəs-nīs) n. pl. streams of consciousness. 1. A literary technique that presents the thoughts and feelings of a character as they develop. 2. Psychology. The conscious experience of an individual regarded as a continuous, flowing series of images and ideas running through the mind. —stream'-of-con'scious·ness (strēm'əv-kōn'shəs-nīs) adj.

stream·side (strēm'sīd') n. The land adjacent to a stream.

Stream·wood (strēm'wōōd') A village of northeast Illinois, a suburb of Chicago. Population, 30,987.

street (strēt) n. 1. Abbr. st., St. a. A public way or thoroughfare in a city or town, usually with a sidewalk or sidewalks. b. Such a public way considered apart from the sidewalks: Don't play in the street. c. A public way or road along with the houses or buildings abutting it: lives on a quiet street. 2. The people living, working, or habitually gathering in or along a street: The whole street protested the new parking regulations. 3. Street. A district, such as Wall Street in New York City, that is identified with a specific profession. Often used with the. 4. The streets of a city viewed as the scene of crime, poverty, or dereliction. — adj.

1. Near or giving passage to a street: a street door. 2. a. Taking place in the street: a street brawl; street crime. b. Living or making a living on the streets: street people; a street vendor. c. Performing on the street: street musicians; a street juggler. d. Crude; vulgar: street language; street humor. 3. Appropriate for wear or use in public: street clothes. — idiom. on the street (or in the street). 1. Without a job; idle. 2. Without a home; homeless. 3. Out of prison; at liberty. [Middle English strete, from Old English stræt, strēt, from Late Latin strāta, paved road, from Latin, feminine past participle of sternere, to stretch, extend, pave. See ster-² in Appendix.]

street·car (strēt'kär') n. A public vehicle operated on rails along a regular route, usually through the streets of a city.

street fighter (strēt fi'tər) n. 1. One who has learned fighting skills in the streets as opposed to being formally trained in the art of boxing. 2. An extremely aggressive person who often employs underhand tactics in interpersonal relationships.

street·light (strēt'līt') n. One of a series of lights that are usually attached to tall poles, are spaced at intervals along a public street or roadway, and are illuminated from dusk to dawn.

street·scape (strēt'skāp') n. 1. An artistic representation of a street. 2. Surroundings composed of streets: the urban streetscape.

street-smart (strēt'smärt') adj. Informal. Having or displaying street smarts: "a street-smart young hairdresser in Liverpool" (New Yorker).

street smarts (strēt smärts) pl.n. Informal. Shrewd awareness of how to survive in an often hostile urban environment.

street theater (strēt thē'ə-tər) n. Dramatization of social and political issues, usually enacted outside, as on the street or in a park. Also called guerrilla theater street·walk·er (strēt'wô'kər) n. A prostitute, especially one who solicits in the streets. — street·walk·ing n.

street·wise (strēt'wīz') adj. Informal. Having the shrewd awareness, experience, and resourcefulness needed for survival in a difficult, often dangerous urban environment.

strength (strĕngkth, strĕngth, strĕnth) n. 1. The state, property, or quality of being strong. 2. The power to resist attack; impregnability. 3. The power to resist strain or stress; durability. 4. The ability to maintain a moral or intellectual position firmly. 5. Capacity or potential for effective action: a show of strength. 6. a. The number of people constituting a normal or ideal organization: The police force has been at half strength since the budget cuts. b. Military capability in terms of personnel and materiel: an army of fearsome strength. 7. a. A source of power or force. b. One that is regarded as the embodiment of protective or supportive power; a support or mainstay. c. An attribute or a quality of particular worth or utility; an asset. 8. Degree of intensity, force, effectiveness, or potency in terms of a particular property, as: a. Degree of concentration, distillation, or saturation; potency. b. Operative effectiveness or potency. c. Intensity, as of sound or light. d. Intensity or vehemence, as of emotion or language. 9. Effective or binding force; efficacy: the strength of an argument. 10. Firmness of or a continuous rising tendency in prices, as on the stock market. 11. Games. Power derived from the value of playing cards held. —idiom. on the strength of. On the basis of: She was hired on the strength of her computer skills. [Middle English, from Old English strengthu.]

SYNONYMS: strength, power, might, energy, force. These nouns are compared as they denote the capacity to act or work effectively. Strength refers especially to physical, mental, or moral robustness or vigor: “enough work to do, and strength enough to do the work” (Rudyard Kipling). “We are of course a nation of differences. Those differences don’t make us weak. They’re the source of our strength” (Jimmy Carter). Power is the ability to do something and especially to produce an effect: “I do not think the United States would come to an end if we lost our power to declare an Act of Congress void” (Oliver Wendell Holmes, Jr.). Might often implies abundant or extraordinary power: “With twenty-five squadrons of fighters he could defend the island against the whole might of the German Air Force” (Winston S. Churchill). Energy in this comparison refers especially to a latent source of power: “The same energy of character which renders a man a daring villain would have rendered him useful to society, had that society been well organized” (Mary Wollstonecraft). Force is the application of power or strength: “the overthrow of our institutions by force and violence” (Charles Evans Hughes).

strength-en (strĕngk'thən, strĕng'-, strĕn'-) v. strength-ened, strength-en-ing, strength-ens. — v. tr. To make strong or increase the strength of. — v. intr. To become strong or stronger. —strength'en-er n. stren-u-ous (strĕn'yōō-əs) adj. 1. Requiring great effort, energy, or exertion: a strenuous task. 2. Vigorously active; energetic or zealous. [From Latin strĕnuus.]

—stren'u-os/i-ty (-ös'itē), stren'u-ous-ness (-əs-nīs) n. —stren'u-ously adv.

strep (strĕp) adj. Streptococcal. — n. Streptococcus.

strep throat (strĕp thrōt) n. See septic sore throat.

strepto- pref. 1. Twisted; twisted chain: streptococcus. 2. Streptococcus: streptolysin. 3. Streptomyces: streptonigrin. [From Greek streptos, from strephain, to turn. See streb(h)- in Appendix.]

strep-to-ba-cil-lus (strĕp'tō-bā-sīl'əs) n. pl. strep-to-ba-cil-li (-sīl'ī). Any of various gram-negative, rod-shaped, often pathogenic bacteria of the genus Streptobacillus, occurring in chains, especially S. moniliformis, which causes a type of rat-bite fever.

strep-to-car-pus (strĕp'tə-kär'pəs) n. pl. strep-to-car-pus-es. See Cape primrose. [New Latin, genus name : STREPTO- + -carpus, -carpous.]

strep-to-coc-cal (strĕp'tə-kök'əl) also strep-to-coc-cic (-kök'sīk, -kök'īk) adj. Of, relating to, or caused by a streptococcus.

strep-to-coc-cus (strĕp'tə-kök'əs) n. pl. strep-to-coc-ci (-kök'sī, -kök'ī). A round to ovoid, gram-positive, often pathogenic bacterium of the genus Streptococcus that occurs in pairs or chains, many species of which destroy red blood cells and cause various diseases in human beings, including erysipelas, scarlet fever, and septic sore throat.

strep-to-dor-nase (strĕp'tō-dôr'nās, -nāz) n. An enzyme produced by hemolytic streptococci that is used medicinally, often in combination with streptokinase, to dissolve purulent or fibrinous secretions from infections. [STREPTO- + D(E)O(XY)- + R(IBO)N(UCLE)ASE.]

strep-to-kin-ase (strĕp'tō-kīn'ās, -āz, -kī'nās, -nāz) n. A proteolytic enzyme produced by hemolytic streptococci, capable of dissolving fibrin and used medically to dissolve blood clots.

strep-to-ly-sin (strĕp'tə-lī'sīn) n. Any of several hemolysins derived from some strains of streptococci. strep-to-my-ces (strĕp'tə-mī'sēz) n. pl. streptomyces. Any of various actinomycetes of the genus Streptomyces, including several strains that produce antibiotics. [New Latin Streptomyces, genus name : STREPTO- + Greek mukēs, fungus.]

strep-to-my-cin (strĕp'tə-mī'sīn) n. An antibiotic, C₂₁H₃₉O₁₂N₇, produced by the actinomycete Streptomyces griseus, used to treat tuberculosis and other bacterial infections. [STREPTOMYC(ES) + -IN.]

strep-to-ni-grin (strĕp'tə-nī'grīn) n. A highly toxic antibiotic, C₂₅H₂₂N₄O₈, produced by an actinomycete (Streptomyces flocculus) and active against various types of tumors. [STREPTO- + Latin niger, nigr-, black + -IN.]

strep-to-thri-cin (strĕp'tə-thrī'sīn, -thrīs'īn) n. Any of a group of antibiotics produced by an actinomycete (Streptomyces lavendulae) and active against both gram-positive and gram-negative bacteria and some fungi. [New Latin Streptothrix, Streptothric-, genus of bacteria (STREPTO- + Greek thrix, trikh-, hair) + -IN.]

strep-to-var-i-cin (strĕp'tō-vâr'ī-sĭn) n. Any of a group of antibiotics produced by an actinomycete (Streptomyces spectabilis) and active against various bacteria and viruses. [STREPTO(MYCES) + VARI(OUS) + -(MY)CIN.]

strep-to-zot-o-cin (strĕp'tə-zōt'ə-sĭn) n. An antibiotic, C₈H₁₅N₃O₇, produced by an actinomycete (Streptomyces achromogenes) and active against tumors but damaging to insulin-producing cells and now also regarded as a carcinogen. [STREPTO- + ZO(O)- + -tocin (alteration of TOXIN).]

Stre-se-mann (strā'zə-män', shtrā'-), Gustav. 1878-1929. German politician who served as foreign minister (1923-1929) and was largely responsible for Germany's conciliatory and cooperative policies after World War I. He shared the 1926 Nobel Peace Prize.

stress (strĕs) n. 1. Importance, significance, or emphasis placed on something. See Synonyms at emphasis. 2. Linguistics. a. The relative force with which a sound or syllable is spoken. b. The emphasis placed on the sound or syllable spoken most forcefully in a word or phrase. 3. a. The relative force of sound or emphasis given a syllable or word in accordance with a metrical pattern. b. A syllable having strong relative emphasis in a metrical pattern. 4. Music. Accent or a mark representing it. 5. Physics. a. An applied force or system of forces that tends to strain or deform a body. b. The internal resistance of a body to such an applied force or system of forces. 6. a. A mentally or emotionally disruptive or upsetting condition occurring in response to adverse external influences and capable of affecting physical health, usually characterized by increased heart rate, a rise in blood pressure, muscular tension, irritability, and depression. b. A stimulus or circumstance causing such a condition. 7. A state of extreme difficulty, pressure, or strain: "He presided over the economy during the period of its greatest stress and danger" (Robert J. Samuelson). — v. tr. stressed, stress-ing, stress-es. 1. To place emphasis on: stressed basic fire safety. 2. To give prominence to (a syllable or word) in pronouncing or in accordance with a metrical pattern. 3. To subject to physical or mental pressure, tension, or strain. 4. To subject to mechanical pressure or force. 5. To construct so as to withstand a specified stress. — phrasal verb. stress out. Slang. To subject to or undergo extreme stress, as from working. [Middle English stresse, hardship, partly from destresse (from Old French); see DISTRESS, and partly from Old French estrece, narrowness, oppression (from Vulgar Latin strictia*, from Latin strictus, past participle of stringere, to draw tight); see STRAIT.]

STRESS (strĕs) n. Computer Science. A language designed for use in solving structural analysis problems in civil engineering. [str(uctural) e(ngineering) s(ystems) s(olver).] stressed-out (strēs'd'out') adj. Slang. Undergoing or suffering the effects of extreme stress: “frequent asides that are often exasperating to today’s more stressed-out public” (James Wilcox).

stress fracture (strēs frāk'chər) n. A fracture of bone caused by repeated application of a heavy load, such as the constant pounding on a surface by runners, gymnasts, and dancers.

stress-ful (strēs'fəl) adj. Full of or tending to cause stress. —stress'ful-ly adv. —stress'ful-ness n.

stress-less (strēs'līs) adj. 1. Linguistics. Having no phonetic stress: a stressless syllable. 2. Having no metrical stress. 3. Causing no stress: enjoyed a stressless hour of peace and quiet.

stres-sor (strēs'ər) n. An agent, a condition, or another stimulus that causes stress to an organism.

stress test (strēs tĕst) n. A graded test to measure an individual’s heart rate and oxygen intake while undergoing strenuous physical exercise, as on a treadmill.

stretch (strĕch) v. stretched, stretch-ing, stretch-es. — v. tr. 1. To lengthen, widen, or distend: stretched the sweater out of shape. 2. To cause to extend from one place to another or across a given space: stretched the banner between two poles. 3. To make taut; tighten: stretched the tarpaulin until it ripped. 4. To reach or put forth; extend: stretched out his hand. 5. a. To extend (oneself or one’s limbs, for example) to full length: stretches herself after waking up; stretched his calves before running. b. To extend (oneself) when lying down: she stretched herself out on the couch and fell asleep. c. To put to torture on the rack. 6. To wrench or strain (a muscle, for example). 7. a. To extend or enlarge beyond the usual or proper limits: stretch the meaning of a word; stretch one’s imagination. b. To subject to undue strain: This situation really stretches my patience. 8. a. To expand in order to fulfill a larger function: stretch a budget; stretch a paycheck. b. To increase the quantity of by admixture or dilution: stretch a meal by thinning the stew. 9. To prolong: stretch out an argument; stretch the payments. 10. Informal. To fell by a blow: stretched his opponent in the first round. — v. intr. 1. To become lengthened, widened, or distended. 2. To extend or reach over a distance or an area or in a given direction: “On both sides of us stretched the wet plain” (Ernest Hemingway). 3. To lie down at full length: stretched out on the bed for a nap. 4. To extend one’s muscles or limbs, as after prolonged sitting or on awakening. 5. To extend over a given period of time: “This story stretches over a whole generation” (William Golding). — n. 1. The act of stretching or the state of being stretched. 2. The extent or scope to which something can be stretched; elasticity. 3. A continuous or unbroken length, area, or expanse: an empty stretch of highway. 4. A straight section of a racecourse or track, especially the section leading to the finish line. 5. a. A continuous period of time. b. Slang. A term of imprisonment: served a two-year stretch.

c. Informal. The last stage of an event, a period, or a process. 6. Baseball. The movement in which a pitcher raises both hands to the height of the head and then lowers them to the waist for a short pause before pitching the ball. It is used as an alternative to a wind-up, especially when runners are on base. — adj. 1. Made of an elastic material that stretches easily: stretch pants. 2. Of, relating to, or being a vehicle, such as a limousine or passenger jet, having an extended seating area that provides extra space for more passengers, leg room, or amenities.

—idiom. stretch (one's) legs. To go for a walk, especially after a lengthy period of sitting. [Middle English strecchen, from Old English streccan.]

—stretch'a·bil'i·ty n. —stretch'a·ble adj.

stretch·er (strĕch'ər) n. 1. A litter, usually of canvas stretched over a frame, used to transport the sick, wounded, or dead. 2. One that stretches, such as the wooden framework on which canvas is stretched for an oil painting. 3. A usually horizontal tie beam or brace serving to support or extend a framework. 4. A brick or stone laid parallel to the face of a wall.

stretch·er·bear·er (strĕch'ər-bâr'ər) n. One who helps carry a stretcher or litter.

stretch mark (strĕch märke) n. A shiny line on the skin of the abdomen, breasts, thighs, or buttocks caused by the stretching and weakening of elastic tissues as a result of pregnancy or obesity, for example.

stretch-out (strĕch'out') n. 1. a. The act of stretching out. b. The condition of being stretched out. c. An extension or a prolongation, such as the time required for paying a debt. 2. An increase in the work required of industrial workers without a commensurate pay increase.

stretch receptor (strĕch rĭ-sĕp'tər) n. A sensory receptor in a muscle that responds to the stretching of tissue.

stretch reflex (strĕch rĕ'flĕks') n. A reflex contraction of a muscle in response to stretching of an attached tendon or of the muscle itself.

stretch runner (strĕch rŭn'ər) n. Sports. A runner or racehorse that makes a strong effort in the last stretch of a race.

stretch-y (strĕch'ē) adj. stretch-i·er, stretch-i·est. 1. Capable of being stretched: a stretchy fabric. 2. Tending to stretch excessively.

Stret·ford (strĕt'fərd) A municipal borough of northwest England, an industrial suburb of Manchester. Population, 222,200.

stret·ta (strĕt'ə) n. pl. stret·te (strĕt'ā) or stret·tas. Music. See stretto (n., sense 2). [Italian, feminine of stretto, stretto. See STRETTO.]

stret·to (strĕt'ō) n. pl. stret·ti (strĕt'ē) or stret·tos. Music. 1. A close succession or overlapping of voices in a fugue, especially in the final section. 2. A final section, as of an oratorio, performed with an acceleration in tempo to produce a climax. In this sense, also called stretta [Italian, narrow, stretto, from Latin strictus, strict. See STRICT.]

streu-sel (strōō'zəl, stroi'/-) n. A crumblike topping for coffee cakes and rich breads, consisting of flour, sugar, butter, cinnamon, and sometimes chopped nutmeats. [German, streusel, from Middle High German ströusel, something strewn, from ströuwen, to sprinkle, from Old High German strowwen. See ster² in Appendix.]

strew (strōō) v. tr. strewed, strewn (strōōn) or strewed, strew-ing, strews. 1. To spread here and there; scatter: strewing flowers down the aisle.

2. To cover (an area or a surface) with things scattered or sprinkled: "Italy... was strewn thick with the remains of Roman buildings" (Bernard Berenson). 3. To be or become dispersed over (a surface). 4. To spread (something) over a wide area; disseminate. [Middle English strewen, from Old English strēowian. See ster² in Appendix.]

stri-a (stri'ə) n. pl. stri-ae (stri'ē) 1. A thin, narrow groove or channel. 2. A thin line or band, especially one of several that are parallel or close together: a characteristic stria of contractile tissue. [Latin. See streig- in Appendix.]

stri-ate (stri'āt') v. tr. stri-at-ed, stri-at-ing, stri-ates. To mark with striae or striations. — adj. also stri-at-ed (-ā'tīd) 1. Marked with striae; striped, grooved, or ridged. 2. Consisting of a stria or striae. [From Latin striātus, furrowed, from stria, furrow. See STRIA.]

striated muscle (stri'ā'tīd müs'əl) n. Skeletal, voluntary, and cardiac muscle, distinguished from smooth muscle by transverse striations of the fibers.

stri-a-tion (stri-ā'shən) n. 1. The state of being striated or having striae.

2. One of a number of parallel lines or scratches on the surface of a rock that were inscribed by rock fragments embedded in the base of a glacier as it moved across the rock. 3. The form taken by striae. 4. A stria.

strick-en (stri'k'ən) v. A past participle of strike. — adj. 1. Struck or wounded, as by a projectile. 2. a. Affected by something overwhelming, such as disease, trouble, or painful emotion. b. Incapacitated; disabled. 3. Having the contents made even with the top of a measuring device or container; level: a stricken measure of flour.

Strick-land (stri'k'lənd), William. 1787-1854. American architect and engineer who led the Greek revival movement in American architecture.

strick-le (stri'k'əl) n. 1. An instrument used to level off grain or other material in a measure. 2. A foundry tool used to shape a mold in sand or loam. 3. A tool for sharpening scythes. [Middle English strikelle, perhaps from Old English stricel, teat, strickle. See streig- in Appendix.] — strick'le v.

strict (strikt) adj. strict-er, strict-est. 1. Precise; exact: a strict definition.

2. Complete; absolute: strict loyalty. 3. Kept within narrowly specific limits: a strict application of a law. 4. Rigorous in the imposition of discipline: a strict parent. 5. Exacting in enforcement, observance, or requirement; stringent: strict standards. See Synonyms at severe. 6. Conforming completely to established rule, principle, or condition: a strict vegetarian. 7. Botany. Stiff, narrow, and upright. [Middle English stricte, narrow, small, from Latin strictus, tight, strict, past participle of stringere, to draw tight. See streig- in Appendix.] —strict/ly adv. —strict/ness n.

stric-ture (strĭk'chər) n. 1. A restraint, limit, or restriction. 2. An adverse remark or criticism; censure. 3. Pathology. An abnormal narrowing of a duct or passage. [Middle English, an abnormal narrowing of a bodily part, from Late Latin strictūra, contraction, from Latin strictus, past participle of stringere, to draw tight. See STRICT.]

stride (strĭd) v. strode (strōd), strid-den (strĭd'n), strid-ing, strides. — v. intr. 1. To walk with long steps, especially in a hasty or vigorous way. 2. To take a single long step, as in passing over an obstruction. 3. To stand or sit astride; straddle. — v. tr. 1. To walk with long steps on, along, or over: striding the stage. 2. To step over or across: stride a brook. 3. To be astride of; straddle. — n. 1. The act of striding. 2. a. A single long step. b. The distance traveled in such a step. 3. a. A single coordinated movement of the four legs of a horse or other animal, completed when the legs return to their initial relative position. b. The distance traveled in such a movement. 4. A step of progress; an advance. Often used in the plural: making great strides in their studies. —idioms. hit (one's) stride. 1. To achieve a steady, effective pace. 2. To attain a maximum level of competence. take in (one's) stride. To cope with calmly, without interrupting one's normal routine: taking their newfound wealth in stride. [Middle English striden, from Old English strīdan.] —strid'er n.

stri-dent (strĭd'nt) adj. Loud, harsh, grating, or shrill; discordant. See Synonyms at loud. See Synonyms at vociferous. [Latin strīdēns, strīdent- present participle of strīdēre, to make harsh sounds, ultimately of imitative origin.] —stri/dence, stri/den-cy n. —stri/dent-ly adv.

stride piano (strĭd pē-ān'ō) n. Music. A style of jazz piano playing in which the melody is played by the right hand while a single note is played by the left hand in alternation with a chord that is an octave or more higher. [From stride bass (from the motions of the left hand).] —stride pianist n.

stri-dor (strĭ'dər, -dôr') n. 1. A harsh, shrill, grating, or creaking sound. 2. Pathology. A harsh, high-pitched sound in inhalation or exhalation. [Latin strīdor, from strīdēre, to make harsh sounds, ultimately of imitative origin.]

strid-u-late (strĭj'ə-lāt') v. strid-u-lat-ed, strid-u-lat-ing, strid-u-lates. — v. intr. To produce a shrill grating, chirping, or hissing sound by rubbing body parts together, as certain insects do. — v. tr. To produce by rubbing body parts together: “The crickets stridulated their everlasting monotonous meaningful note” (John Updike). [From Latin strīdulus, stridulous. See STRIDULOUS.]

—strid/u-la'tion n. —strid/u-la-to'ry (-lə-tôr'ē, -tôr'ē) adj.

strid·u·lous (strĭj'ə-ləs) adj. 1. Characterized by or making a shrill grating sound or noise. 2. Relating to or characterized by stridor. [From Latin strīdulus, from strīdēre, to make harsh sounds, ultimately of imitative origin.]

—strid' u·lous·ly adv.

strife (strĭf) n. 1. Heated, often violent dissension; bitter conflict. See Synonyms at discord. 2. A struggle, fight, or quarrel. 3. Contention or competition between rivals. 4. Archaic. Earnest endeavor or striving. [Middle English strif, from Old French estrit, estrif, from Frankish strīd*.]

strig·il (strĭj'əl) n. An instrument used in ancient Greece and Rome for scraping the skin after a bath. [Latin strigilis. See streig- in Appendix.]

stri·gose (strĭ'gōs') adj. 1. Zoology. Marked with fine, close-set grooves, ridges, or streaks. 2. Botany. Having stiff, straight, closely appressed hair: strigose leaves. [New Latin strigōsus, from striga, bristle, from Latin, windrow, furrow. See streig- in Appendix.]

strike (strĭk) v. struck (strŭk), struck or strick·en (strĭk'ən), strick·ing, strikes. — v. tr. 1. a. To hit sharply, as with the hand, the fist, or a weapon. b. To inflict (a blow). 2. To penetrate or pierce: was struck in the leg by a bullet. 3. a. To collide with or crash into: She struck the desk with her knee. b. To cause to come into violent or forceful contact: She struck her knee against the desk. c. To thrust (a weapon, for example) in or into someone or something: struck the sword into the dragon. d. To damage or destroy, as by forceful contact: Lightning struck the tree. 4. To make a military attack on; assault. 5. To afflict suddenly, as with a disease or an impairment: was stricken with cancer. 6. To cause to become by or as if by a blow: struck him dead. 7. a. To snap at or seize (a bait). b. To hook (a fish that has taken the bait) by a pull on the line. 8. To wound by biting. Used especially of a snake. 9. To form by stamping, printing, or punching: strike a medallion. 10. To produce or play by manipulating strings or keys: strike a B flat; strike w, t, and y on the typewriter. 11. To indicate by a percussive or chiming sound: The clock struck nine. 12. To produce as if by playing a musical instrument: The report struck a positive note in the final paragraph. 13. a. To produce by friction or a blow: struck fire from the flints. b. To produce flame, light, or a spark from by friction: strike a match. 14. To remove or separate with or as if with a blow: struck the wasp from his shoulder; struck off the diseased branch with a machete. 15. To eliminate or expunge: strike a statement from the court records. 16. a. To come upon; discover: struck gold. b. To come to; attain: finally struck the main trail. 17. a. To fall upon; shine on: A bright light struck her face. b. To become audible to: An odd sound struck his ear. 18. To affect keenly or forcibly; impress. See Synonyms at affect¹. 19. To enter one's mind; occur to: The thought struck me from out of the blue. 20. a. To cause (a strong emotion) to penetrate deeply: struck terror into their hearts. b. To affect or overcome with strong emotion: She was struck with alarm at the news. 21. a. To make and confirm the terms of (a bargain). b. To achieve (a balance, for example) by careful weighing or reckoning. 22. To take on or assume (a pose, for example). 23. Nautical. a. To haul down (a mast or sail). b. To lower (a flag or sail) in salute or surrender. c. To lower (cargo) into a hold. 24. To remove (theatrical properties) from the stage. 25. To dismantle and pack up for departure: strike camp. 26. To undertake a strike against (an employer). 27. a. To level or even (a measure, as of grain). b. To smooth or shape with a strickle. 28. a. To send (plant roots) out or down. b. To cause (a plant cutting) to take root. — v. intr. 1. To deal a blow or blows with or as if with the fist or a weapon; hit. 2. To aim a stroke or blow. 3. To make contact suddenly or violently; collide: A car and a bus struck at the intersection. 4. To begin a military attack: The enemy struck unexpectedly. 5. To penetrate or pierce: The cold struck right through our jackets. 6. To take bait: The fish are striking. 7. To dart or shoot suddenly forward in an attempt to inflict a bite or wound. Used of snakes and wild animals. 8. To set out or proceed, especially in a new direction: struck off into the forest. 9. To begin to move: The horse struck into a gallop. 10. a. To send out roots. b. To sprout. 11. a. To indicate the time by making a percussive or chiming sound: The clock struck just as we left. b. To become indicated by percussive or chiming sounds: The hour has struck. 12. To become ignited. 13. To discover something suddenly or unexpectedly: struck on a new approach. 14. To fall, as light or sound: sunlight striking on the cliffs; a din struck upon their ears. 15. To have an effect; make an impression. 16. To engage in a strike against an employer. 17. To interrupt by pushing oneself forward: struck rudely into the conversation. 18. To strive diligently for a specific technical rating in the U.S. Navy. — n. 1. An act or a gesture of striking. 2. An attack, especially a military air attack on a single group of targets. 3. a. A cessation of work by employees in support of demands made on their employer, as for higher pay or improved conditions. b. A temporary stoppage of normal activity undertaken as a protest. 4. A sudden achievement or valuable discovery, as of a precious mineral. 5. a. The taking of bait by a fish. b. A pull on a fishing line indicating this. 6. A quantity of coins or medals struck at the same time. 7. Baseball. a. A pitched ball that is counted against the batter, typically one that is swung at and missed, fouled off, or judged to have passed through the strike zone. b. A perfectly thrown ball. 8. An unfavorable condition, circumstance, or characteristic; a disadvantage. 9. Sports. The knocking down of all the pins in bowling with the first bowl of a frame. 10. The taking root and growing of a plant cutting. 11. Geology. The course or bearing of the outcrop of an inclined bed or structure on a level surface. 12. A strickle. — phrasal verbs. strike down. 1. To cause to fall by a blow. 2. To incapacitate or kill: He was struck down by tuberculosis while in his twenties. 3. To render ineffective; cancel: The court struck down the law as unconstitutional. strike out. 4. To begin a course of action. 5. To set out energetically. 6. Baseball. a. To pitch three strikes to (a batter), putting the batter out. b. To be struck out. 7. To fail in an endeavor.

strike up. 8. a. To start to play music or sing: The band suddenly struck up.

b. To start to play or sing (something): The orchestra struck up a waltz. c. To cause to start to play or sing: Strike up the band! 9. To initiate or begin: strike up a conversation; struck up a friendship.

—idioms. on strike. Engaged in a work stoppage: Most of the employees were on strike. strike hands. To conclude a bargain or reach an agreement. strike it rich. Informal. To have sudden financial success. [Middle English striken, from Old English strīcan, to stroke. See streig- in Appendix.]

strike-bound (strīk'bound') adj. Closed, immobilized, or slowed down by a strike: a strikebound airline.

strike-break-er (strīk'brā'kər) n. One who works or provides an employer with workers during a strike. —strike/break'ing n.

strike-out (strīk'out') n. Abbr. s.o. Baseball. An out made by a batter charged with three strikes and credited to the pitcher who threw the strikes.

strike-o-ver (strīk'ō'vər) n. The act or an instance of typing a character over one already typed.

striker (strī'kər) n. 1. One who strikes, as an employee on strike against an employer. 2. One that strikes, as the clapper in a bell or the firing pin in a gun. 3. a. A harpoon. b. One who uses a harpoon; a harpooner. 4. An enlisted person in usually intensive training for a naval technical rating. 5. Sports. A forward on a soccer team.

strike zone (strīk zōn) n. Baseball. The area over home plate through which a pitch must pass to be called a strike, roughly between the batter's armpits and knees.

striking (strī'kɪŋ) adj. Arresting the attention and producing a vivid impression on the sight or the mind. See Synonyms at noticeable. —strikingly adv. —striking-ness n.

striking price (strī'kɪŋ prīs) n. The price at which a put or call option may be exercised.

Strind-berg (strɪnd'bûrg, strɪn'-, strɪn'bēr'ē), (Johan) August. 1849-1912. Swedish writer of novels and plays, including Miss Julie (1888) and The Dance of Death (1901), which are noted for their psychological realism.

—Strind-berg/i-an adj.

string (strɪŋ) n. 1. A cord usually made of fiber, used for fastening, tying, or lacing. 2. Something configured as a long, thin line: limp strings of hair. 3. A plant fiber. 4. A set of objects threaded together: a string of beads. 5. A series of similar or related acts, events, or items arranged or falling in or as if in a line. See Synonyms at series. 6. Computer Science. A set of consecutive characters treated by a computer as a single item. 7. Informal. a. A set of animals, especially racehorses, belonging to a single owner; a stable. b. A scattered group of businesses under a single ownership or management: a string of boutiques. 8. Sports. A group of players ranked according to ability within a team: He made the second string. 9. Music. a. A cord stretched on an instrument and struck, plucked, or bowed to produce tones. b. Also strings. The section of a band or an orchestra composed of stringed instruments. c. Also strings. Stringed instruments or their players considered as a group. 10. Architecture. a. A stringboard. b. A stringcourse. 11. Games. The balk line in billiards. 12. Sports. A complete game consisting of ten frames in bowling. 13. Also strings. Informal. A limiting or hidden condition: a gift with no strings attached. — v. strung (strŭng), string-ing, strings. — v. tr. 1. To fit or furnish with strings or a string: string a guitar. 2. To thread on a string. 3. To arrange in a string or series. 4. To fasten, tie, or hang with a string or strings. 5. To stretch out or extend: string a wire across a room. 6. To strip (vegetables) of fibers. — v. intr. 1. To form strings or become stringlike. 2. To extend or progress in a string, line, or succession. — phrasal verbs. string along. Informal. 1. To go along with something; agree. 2. To keep (someone) waiting or in a state of uncertainty. 3. To fool, cheat, or deceive. string up. Informal. To kill (someone) by hanging. — idiom. on the string. Under one's complete control or influence. [Middle English, from Old English streng.]

string bass (strĭng bās) n. Music. See double bass.

string bean (strĭng bēn) n. 1. a. A bushy or climbing tropical American plant (Phaseolus vulgaris) widely cultivated for its narrow, green, edible pods. b. The green pod of this plant, eaten as a vegetable. Also called green bean. 2. Slang. A tall, thin person.

string-board (strĭng' bōrd', -bōrd') n. A board that runs along the side of a staircase to support or cover the ends of the steps.

string-course (strĭng' kōrs', -kōrs') n. Architecture. A horizontal band or molding set in the face of a building as a design element.

stringed (strĭngd) adj. Abbr. str. Music. 1. Having strings. Often used in combination: a six-stringed lute. 2. Produced by stringed instruments: stringed chamber music.

stringed instrument (strĭngd ĭn'strə-mənt) n. Music. An instrument, such as a violin, viola, cello, or double bass, in which sound is produced by plucking, striking, or bowing taut strings.

strin-gen-do (strĭn-jĕn'dō) adj. Music. Played with an accelerating tempo. Used chiefly as a direction. [Italian, gerund of stringere, to draw tight, from Latin. See streig- in Appendix.] — strin-gen'do adv.

stringent (strĭn'jənt) adj. 1. Imposing rigorous standards of performance; severe: stringent safety measures. 2. Constricted; tight: operating under a stringent time limit. 3. Characterized by scarcity of money, credit restrictions, or other financial strain: stringent economic policies. [Latin stringēns, stringent- present participle of stringere, to draw tight. See streig- in Appendix.] —strin'-gen-cy n. —strin'gent-ly adv.

string-er (strɪŋg'ər) n. 1. One that strings: a stringer of beads. 2. Architecture. a. A long, heavy horizontal timber used as a support or connector. b. A string-board. 3. A horizontal timber used to support upright posts. 4. Sports. A member of a specified string or squad on a team. Often used in combination: a first-stringer; a second-stringer. 5. A part-time or freelance correspondent for the news media.

string-halt (strɪŋg'hôlt') n. A nervous disorder in horses characterized by spasmodic movements in the hind legs that cause the feet to rise abnormally high.

Also called springhalt [STRING, tendon + HALT².] —string'halt'ed adj.

string line (strɪŋg līn) n. Games. The balk line in billiards.

string quartet (strɪŋg kwôr-tět') n. Music. 1. Four people playing stringed instruments, traditionally including a first and second violinist, a violist, and a cellist. 2. A composition for such a group.

string tie (strɪŋg tī) n. A narrow necktie, usually tied in a bow.

string-y (strɪŋg'ē) adj. string-i-er, string-i-est. 1. Consisting of, resembling, or containing strings or a string. 2. Slender and sinewy; wiry. 3. Forming strings, as a viscous liquid; ropy. —string'i-ly adv. —string'i-ness n.

strip¹ (strɪp) v. stripped, strip-ping, strips. — v. tr. 1. a. To remove clothing or covering from. b. To deprive of (clothing or covering). 2. To deprive of honors, rank, office, privileges, or possessions; divest. 3. a. To remove all excess detail from; reduce to essentials. b. To remove equipment, furnishings, or supplementary parts or attachments from. 4. To clear of a natural covering or growth; make bare: strip a field. 5. To remove an exterior coating, as of paint or varnish, from: stripped and refinished the old chest of drawers. 6. To remove the leaves from the stalks of. Used especially of tobacco. 7. To dismantle (a firearm, for example) piece by piece. 8. To damage or break the threads of (a screw, for example) or the teeth of (a gear). 9. To press the last drops of milk from (a cow or goat, for example) at the end of milking. 10. To rob of wealth or property; plunder or despoil. 11. To mount (a photographic positive or negative) on paper to be used in making a printing plate. — v. intr. 1. a. To undress completely. b. To perform a striptease. 2. To fall away or be removed; peel. — n. A striptease. [Middle English stripen, from Old English -strȳpan, to plunder, in bestȳpan.]

SYNONYMS: strip, divest, denude, bare. These verbs signify to remove clothing, coverings, possessions, or attributes from someone or something. Strip often suggests forceful or abrupt peeling or tearing off: “a party of fifteen or twenty... stripped to their shirts” (Frederick Marryat). “He stripped the skin from the banana” (John Galsworthy). Divest usually specifies deprivation, as of rank or its symbols:

“That all men... have certain inherent rights, of which... they cannot by any compact... divest their posterity” (George Mason). To denude is to remove a usual or natural covering: Construction began only after the tract had been denuded of trees. Bare implies uncovering and exposing, as to view: Bystanders bared their heads as the funeral procession passed.

strip² (strĭp) n. 1. a. A long narrow piece, usually of uniform width: a strip of paper; strips of beef. b. A long narrow region of land or body of water. 2. A comic strip. 3. An airstrip. 4. An area, as along a busy street or highway, that is lined with a great number and variety of commercial establishments. — v. tr. stripped, strip·ping, strips. To cut or tear into strips. [Middle English, perhaps from Middle Low German strippe, strap, thong.]

strip-crop·ping (strĭp/kröp/ĭng) n. The growing of a cultivated crop, such as cotton, and a sod-forming crop, such as alfalfa, in alternating strips following the contour of the land, in order to minimize erosion.

stripe¹ (strĭp) n. 1. a. A long narrow band distinguished, as by color or texture, from the surrounding material or surface. b. A textile pattern of parallel bands or lines on a contrasting background. c. A fabric having such a pattern. 2. A strip of cloth or braid worn on a uniform to indicate rank, awards received, or length of service; a chevron. 3. Sort; kind: “All Fascists are not of one mind, one stripe” (Lillian Hellman). — v. tr. striped, strip·ing, stripes. To mark with stripes or a stripe. [Middle English, possibly from Middle Dutch, or Middle Low German strīpe.]

stripe² (strĭp) n. A stroke or blow, as with a whip. [Middle English.]

striped (strĭpt, strĭ/pĭd) adj. Having lines or bands of different color or texture.

striped bass (strĭpt bäs) n. A North American food and game fish (Morone saxatilis) chiefly of coastal waters, having dark longitudinal stripes along its sides. Striped bass, which swim up rivers to spawn, are occasionally found in landlocked bodies of water. Also called rockfish, striper.

striped gopher (strĭpt gō/fər) n. A ground squirrel (Citellus decemlineatus) of western North America, marked with white lines over the back and flanks.

striped maple (strĭpt mā/pəl) n. An eastern North American deciduous tree (Acer pensylvanicum) having smooth bark striped with vertical white lines and roundish, three-lobed leaves. Also called moosewood striped marlin (strĭpt mär/lĭn) n. A small marlin (Tetrapturus audex or Makaira audex) of the Pacific and Indian oceans, marked with vertical stripes along the sides.

striped skunk (strĭpt skŭngk) n. A North American skunk (Mephitis mephitis) commonly found from southern Canada to northern Mexico, having a pair of white stripes running from the top of the head to the tail.

striped squirrel (stript skwûr'əl) n. Any of several small rodents with striped markings on the back, especially the chipmunk of North America.

strip-er (stri'pər) n. 1. Slang. A member of the armed forces, a cadet corps, or a commercial flight crew who wears stripes designating rank or length of service.

Often used in combination: a three-striper; a four-striper. 2. See striped bass.

strip·film (stri'p'film') n. See filmstrip.

strip·ing (stri'p'ing) n. 1. The act or process of marking or decorating with stripes. 2. a. The stripes placed on something. b. A pattern of stripes.

strip·ling (stri'p'ling) n. An adolescent youth. [Middle English, possibly from strip, strip. See STRIP².]

strip mine (stri'p mīn) n. An open mine, especially a coal mine, whose seams or outcrops run close to ground level and are exposed by the removal of topsoil and overburden.

strip·mine (stri'p'mīn') v. strip·mined, strip·min·ing, strip·mines. — v. tr. 1. To mine (ore) from a strip mine. 2. To subject to strip mining: strip-mined the land. — v. intr. To engage in strip mining. —strip miner n.

stripped-down (stript'doun') adj. Having only essential or minimal features; lacking anything extra: a stripped-down stage setting; a stripped-down budget.

strip·per (stri'p'ər) n. 1. One that strips, as one that strips photographic negatives or positives. 2. A chemical product for removing a surface covering, such as paint or varnish, from furniture or floors. 3. Slang. One who performs a striptease. 4. An oil well that produces ten barrels or fewer per day.

strip poker (stri'p pō'kər) n. Games. Poker in which the losing players in each hand must remove an article of clothing.

strip search (stri'p sūrch) n. The act or an instance of subjecting a person to strip-searching. Also called skin search strip·search (stri'p'sūrch') v. tr. strip--searched, strip--search·ing, strip·search·es. To search (a person) for illegal articles, such as drugs or weapons, by first requiring the removal of all clothing.

strip·tease also strip tease (stri'p'tēz') n. A performance, as in a burlesque act, in which a person slowly removes clothing, usually to musical accompaniment. —strip'teas'er n.

strip·y (stri'pē) adj. strip·i·er, strip·i·est. Marked with or suggestive of stripes; striped.

strive (striv) v. intr. strove (strōv), striv·en (striv'ən) or strived, striv·ing, strives. 1. To exert much effort or energy; endeavor. 2. To struggle or fight forcefully; contend: strive against injustice. [Middle English striven, from Old French estriver, from estrit, estrif, quarrel. See STRIFE.] —striv'er n.

—striv'ing·ly adv.

strobe (strōb) n. 1. A strobe light. 2. Stroboscope. 3. A spot of higher than normal intensity in the sweep of an indicator, as on a radar screen, used as a reference mark for determining distance.

strobe light (strōb līt) n. A flash lamp that produces high-intensity short-duration light pulses by electric discharge in a gas.

stro·bi·la (strō-bī'lā) n. pl. stro·bi·lae (-lē). A part or structure that buds to form a series of segments, as the main body part of a tapeworm or the polyp stage in certain jellyfish. [New Latin, from Greek strobilē, twisted plug of lint, from strobilos, pine cone. See STROBILUS.] —stro·bi·lar adj.

stro·bi·la·ceous (strō'bā-lā'shəs) adj. Of or resembling a strobile; conelike.

stro·bi·la·tion (strō'bā-lā'shən) n. Asexual reproduction by division into body segments, as in tapeworms and jellyfish.

stro·bi·lus (strō-bī'ləs) also stro·bile (strō'bīl', -bəl) n. pl. stro·bi·li (-bī'lī) or stro·biles. A conelike structure, such as a pine cone, the fruit of the hop, or a cone of a club moss, that consists of overlapping sporophylls spirally arranged along a central axis. [Late Latin, pine cone, from Greek strobilos, twisted object, pine cone, from strobos, a whirling. See streb(h)- in Appendix.]

strob·o·scope (strō'bə-skōp') n. Any of various instruments used to observe moving objects by making them appear stationary, especially with pulsed illumination or mechanical devices that intermittently interrupt observation. [Greek strobos, a whirling; see streb(h)- in Appendix + -SCOPE.] —stro'bo·scop'ic (-skōp'ik) adj. —stro'bo·scop'i·cal·ly adv.

stro·bo·tron (strō'bə-trōn') n. A gas-filled cathode tube that produces bright flashes of light for a stroboscope. [STROBO(SCOPE) + -TRON.]

strobe (strōd) v. Past tense of stride.

Stro·heim (strō'hīm'), Erich von. 1885-1957. Austrian-born American actor and director who is best known for his roles in La Grande Illusion (1937) and Sunset Boulevard (1950).

stroke¹ (strök) n. 1. The act or an instance of striking, as with the hand, a weapon, or a tool; a blow or an impact. 2. a. The striking of a bell or gong. b. The sound so produced. c. The time so indicated: at the stroke of midnight. 3. A sudden action or process having a strong impact or effect: a stroke of lightning. 4. A sudden occurrence or result: a stroke of luck; a stroke of misfortune. 5. A sudden severe attack, as of paralysis or sunstroke. 6. A sudden loss of brain function caused by a blockage or rupture of a blood vessel to the brain, characterized by loss of muscular control, diminution or loss of sensation or consciousness, dizziness, slurred speech, or other symptoms that vary with the extent and severity of the damage to the brain. Also called cerebral accident, cerebrovascular accident. 7. An inspired or effective idea or act: a stroke of genius. 8. a. A single uninterrupted movement, especially when repeated or in a back-and-forth motion: the stroke of a pendulum. b. Any of a series of movements of a piston from one end of the limit of its motion to another. 9. a. A single completed movement of the limbs and body, as in swimming or rowing. b. The manner or rate of executing such a movement: My favorite stroke is butterfly. She had a very rapid stroke. 10. Nautical. a. The rower who sits nearest the coxswain or the stern and sets the tempo for the other rowers. b. The position occupied by this person. 11. Sports. a. A movement of the upper torso and arms for the purpose of striking a ball, as in golf or tennis. b. The manner of executing such a movement. 12. a. A single mark made by a writing or marking implement, such as a pen. b. The act of making such a mark. c. A printed line in a graphic character that resembles such a mark. 13. A distinctive effect or deft touch, as in literary composition. — v. stroked, strok-ing, strokes. — v. tr. 1. a. To mark with a single short line. b. To draw a line through; cancel: stroked out the last sentence. 2. Nautical. To set the pace for (a rowing crew). 3. To hit or propel (a ball, for example) with a smoothly regulated swing. — v. intr. 1. To make or perform a stroke. 2. Nautical. To row at a particular rate per minute. [Middle English, probably from Old English strāc*. See streig- in Appendix.]

stroke² (strök) v. tr. stroked, strok-ing, strokes. 1. To rub lightly, with or as if with the hand or something held in the hand; caress. 2. Informal. To behave attentively or flatteringly toward, especially in order to restore to confidence or win over. — n. A light caressing movement, as of the hand. [Middle English stroken, from Old English strācian, from strāc*, stroke. See STROKE¹.] —strok'er n.

stroll (strōl) v. strolled, stroll-ing, strolls. — v. intr. 1. To go for a leisurely walk: stroll in the park. 2. To travel from place to place seeking work or gain. — v. tr. To walk along or through at a leisurely pace: stroll the beach. — n. A leisurely walk. [Probably German dialectal strollen, variant of strolchen, from Strolch, fortuneteller, vagabond, perhaps from Italian dialectal stroleggh, from Italian astròlogo, astrologer, fortuneteller, from Latin astrologus, astronomer, astrologer, from Greek astrologos. See ASTROLOGY.]

stroll-er (strō'lər) n. 1. One who strolls: elderly strollers in the park. 2. A light four-wheeled chairlike carriage for transporting small children. 3. An itinerant actor or performer. 4. A vagabond.

stro-ma (strō'mə) n. pl. stro-ma-ta (-mə-tə). 1. The connective tissue framework of an organ, a gland, or other structure, as distinguished from the tissues performing the special function of the organ or part. 2. The spongy, colorless framework of a red blood cell or other cell. [Late Latin strōma, mattress, covering, from Greek, bed. See ster-2 in Appendix.] —stro'mal adj. —stro-mat'ic (-măt'ik) adj.

stro-mat-o-lite (strō-măt'l-it') n. A widely distributed sedimentary structure consisting of laminated carbonate or silicate rocks, produced over geologic time by the trapping, binding, or precipitating of sediment by groups of microorganisms, primarily cyanobacteria. [Late Latin strōma, strōmat-, covering; see STROMA + -LITE.] —stro·mat'·o·lit'ic (-măt'ł-ıt'ık) adj.

Strom-bo-li (ström'bə-lē, strôm'bô-) An island of southern Italy in the Lipari Islands off northeast Sicily in the Tyrrhenian Sea. Its active volcano, 926.6 m (3,038 ft) high, erupted violently in 1930 and 1966.

strong (strông) adj. strong-er, strong-est. 1. a. Physically powerful; capable of exerting great physical force. b. Marked by great physical power: a strong blow to the head. 2. In good or sound health; robust: a strong constitution; a strong heart. 3. Economically or financially sound or thriving: a strong economy. 4. Having force of character, will, morality, or intelligence: a strong personality. 5. Having or showing ability or achievement in a specified field: students who are strong in chemistry. 6. Capable of the effective exercise of authority: a strong leader. 7. a. Capable of withstanding force or wear; solid, tough, or firm: a strong building; a strong fabric. b. Having great binding strength: a strong adhesive. 8. Not easily captured or defeated: a strong flank; a strong defense. 9. Not easily upset; resistant to harmful or unpleasant influences: strong nerves; a strong stomach. 10. Having force or rapidity of motion: a strong current.

11. a. Persuasive, effective, and cogent: a strong argument. b. Forceful and pointed; emphatic: a strong statement. c. Forthright and explicit, often offensively so: strong language. 12. Extreme; drastic: had to resort to strong measures. 13. Having force of conviction or feeling; uncompromising: strong faith; a strong supporter. 14. Intense in degree or quality: a strong emotion; strong motivation. 15. a. Having an intense or offensive effect on the senses: strong light; strong vinegar; strong cologne. b. Clear and loud: a strong voice. c. Readily noticeable; remarkable: a strong resemblance; a strong contrast. d. Readily detected or received: a strong radio signal. 16. a. Having a high concentration of an essential or active ingredient: mixed a strong solution of bleach and water.

b. Containing a considerable percentage of alcohol: strong punch. c. Powerfully effective: a strong painkiller. 17. Color. Characterized by a high degree of saturation. 18. Having a specified number of units or members: a military force 100,000 strong. 19. Marked by steady or rising prices: a strong market.

20. Linguistics. a. Of or relating to those verbs in Germanic languages that form their past tense by a change in stem vowel, and their past participles by a change in stem vowel and sometimes by adding the suffix -(e)n, as sing, sang, sung or tear, tore, torn. b. Of or relating to the inflection of nouns or adjectives in Germanic languages with endings that historically did not contain a suffix with an -n-.

21. Stressed or accented in pronunciation or poetic meter. Used of a word or syllable. — adv. In a strong, powerful, or vigorous manner; forcefully: a salesperson who comes on too strong. [Middle English, from Old English strang.]

—strong'ish adj. —strong'ly adv.

SYNONYMS: strong, stout, sturdy, tough, stalwart, tenacious. These adjectives are compared as they mean having or showing vigor, durability, or power of body or spirit. Strong is the most general: strong arms; a strong grip; a strong rope; strong resistance. “I am as strong as a bull moose” (Theodore Roosevelt). Stout stresses the ability to endure, as by virtue of physical strength, solidity of construction, or resoluteness: a stout branch; stout walls; a stout advocate. “It was enough to place horror upon the stoutest heart in the world” (Daniel Defoe). Sturdy, like stout, implies ruggedness of body or construction or firmness of spirit or purpose: sturdy limbs; sturdy opposition; “sturdy russet boots” (George W. Cable). Tough suggests physical or moral strength to resist opposition, strain, or hardship: tough little burros hauling carts; “a tough but nervous, tenacious but restless race” (Samuel Eliot Morison). Stalwart implies imposing strength or determination: a stalwart proponent of tax reform; “proud of her stalwart, good-looking son” (Booth Tarkington). Tenacious stresses persistence, as in holding fast to a position or goal: “tenacious in upholding strict discipline” (Sir Walter Scott).

Strong (strông), William. 1808-1895. American jurist who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1870-1880).

strong-arm (strông'ärm') Informal. adj. Using physical force or coercion: strong-arm tactics. — v. tr. strong-armed, strong-arm-ing, strong-arms. 1. To use physical force or coercion against. 2. To rob by force.

strong-box (strông'böks') n. A stoutly made box or safe in which valuables are deposited.

strong breeze (strông brēz) n. Meteorology. A wind having a speed ranging from 25 to 31 miles (39 to 50 kilometers) per hour, according to the Beaufort scale.

strong force (strông fôrs) n. Physics. See strong interaction.

strong gale (strông gāl) n. Meteorology. A wind having a speed ranging from 47 to 54 miles (75 to 86 kilometers) per hour, according to the Beaufort scale.

strong-hold (strông'höld') n. 1. A fortified place or a fortress. 2. a. A place of survival or refuge: one of the last strongholds of an age-old tradition. b. An area dominated or occupied by a special group or distinguished by a special quality: a feminist stronghold; a stronghold of democracy.

strong interaction (strông ın'tər-äk'shən) n. A fundamental interaction between elementary particles that causes protons and neutrons to bind together in the atomic nucleus. Also called strong force strong-man (strông'măn') n. 1. A powerful, influential political figure who exercises leadership and control by force. 2. One who performs feats of strength, as at a circus.

strong-mind·ed (strông'min'did) adj. 1. Having a determined will.

2. Having a vigorous, independent mind. —strong'-mind/ed-ly adv.

—strong'-mind/ed-ness n.

strong·point (strông'point') n. A military stronghold.

strong room (strông rōom) n. A strongly built fireproof room designed for the safekeeping of money or valuables.

strong side (strông sīd) n. Football. The side of a formation having more players; the side on which the tight end is positioned.

strong suit (strông sōot) n. 1. A quality, an activity, or a skill in which a person excels: Foreign policy was the President's strong suit. 2. Games. A long suit in a card game such as bridge that contains high cards.

Strongsville (strôngz'vil') A city of northeast Ohio, a residential suburb of Cleveland. Population, 35,308.

stron·gyle also stron·gyl (strôn'jil', -jəl) n. Any of various nematode worms of the family Strongylidae, often parasitic in the gastrointestinal tract of mammals, especially horses. [New Latin Strongylus, type genus, from Greek strongulos, compact.]

stron·gy·lo·sis (strôn'jə-lō'sis) n. Infestation with strongyles.

stron·ti·an·ite (strôn'chē-ə-nīt', -shə-nīt') n. A gray to yellowish-green ore of strontium, SrCO₃. [strontian, strontianite (short for Strontian earth, after Strontian, a village of west-central Scotland) + -ITE¹.]

stron·ti·um (strôn'chē-əm, -tē-əm, -shəm) n. Symbol Sr A soft, silvery, easily oxidized metallic element that ignites spontaneously in air when finely divided. Strontium is used in pyrotechnic compounds and various alloys. Atomic number 38; atomic weight 87.62; melting point 769°C; boiling point 1,384°C; specific gravity 2.54; valence 2. [From New Latin strontia, strontium oxide, from strontian. See STRONTIANITE.] —stron'tic (-tīk) adj.

strontium 90 (strôn'chē-əm;) n. The strontium isotope with mass 90, having a half-life of 28 years, used for its high-energy beta emission in certain nuclear electric power sources and constituting a radiation hazard in fallout.

strop (ströp) n. 1. A strap, especially a short rope whose ends are spliced together to make a ring. 2. A flexible strip of leather or canvas used for sharpening a razor. — v. tr. stropped, strop·ping, strops. To sharpen (a razor) on a strop. [Middle English strobe, band of leather, probably from Old English, thong for an oar, from Latin stroppus, twisted cord, from Greek strophos, from strephein, to turn. See streb(h)- in Appendix.]

stro·phan·thin (strō-fān'thīn) n. A toxic glycoside or mixture of glycosides obtained from the seeds of certain plants of the genus Strophanthus, especially S. kombé, used medicinally as a cardiac stimulant. [New Latin Strophanthus, genus name (Greek strophos, twisted cord; see strop + Greek anthos, flower) + -IN.]

stro·phe (strō'fē) n. Abbr. str., st. 1. a. The first of a pair of stanzas of alternating form on which the structure of a given poem is based. b. A stanza containing irregular lines. 2. The first division of the triad constituting a section of a Pindaric ode. 3. a. The first movement of the chorus in classical Greek drama while turning from one side of the orchestra to the other. b. The part of a choral ode sung while this movement is executed. [Greek strophē, a turning, stanza, from strephein, to turn. See streb(h)- in Appendix.] —stro'phic (strō'fik, strō'f'ik) adj.

stro·phoid (strō'foid') n. A plane curve generated by a point that maintains a distance from the y-axis along a straight line equal to the y-intercept. [Greek strophos, twisted cord (from strephein, to turn); see streb(h)- in Appendix + -OID.]

stroph·u·lus (strōf'yə-ləs) n. pl. stroph·u·li (-lē). A disease, especially common among children, sometimes associated with intestinal disturbances and characterized by a papular eruption of the skin. Also called *red gum*² [New Latin, from Greek strophos, twisted cord, from strephein, to turn. See streb(h)- in Appendix.]

strop·py (strōp'ē) adj. strop·pi·er, strop·pi·est. Chiefly British. Easily offended or annoyed; ill-tempered or belligerent. [Perhaps alteration of OBSTREPEROUS.]

stroud (stroud) n. A coarse woolen cloth or blanket. [After Stroud, an urban district of southwest-central England.]

strove (strōv) v. Past tense of strive.

struck (strūk) v. Past tense and a past participle of strike. — adj. Affected or shut down by a labor strike.

struck jury (strūk jōr'ē) n. Law. A jury, especially a special jury, selected from an original panel of 48 members from which each party strikes off names until the list is reduced to the required number.

struc·tur·al (strūk'chər-əl) adj. 1. a. Of, relating to, having, or characterized by structure: structural simplicity. b. Affecting structure: structural damage. 2. Used in or necessary to building: structural beams. 3. Concerned with or resulting from political or especially economic structure. 4. Geology. Of or relating to the structure of rocks and other aspects of the earth's crust. 5. Biology. Of or relating to organic structure; morphological. 6. Relating to or concerned with systematic structure in a particular field of study, such as linguistics or the behavioral sciences. — n. A part of a structure that bears a weight, or the structural piece used for such a part. —struc'tur-al-ly adv.

structural formula (strūk'chər-əl fôr'myə-lə) n. A chemical formula that shows how the atoms and bonds in a molecule are arranged.

structural gene (strūk'chər-əl jēn) n. A gene that determines the amino acid sequence of a protein.

struc-tur-al-ism (strūk'chər-ə-līz'əm) n. 1. A method of analyzing phenomena, as in anthropology, linguistics, psychology, or literature, chiefly characterized by contrasting the elemental structures of the phenomena in a system of binary opposition. 2. A school that advocates and employs such a method.

—struc'tur-al-ist adj. & n.

struc-tur-al-ize (strūk'chər-ə-līz') v. tr. struc-tur-al-ized, struc-tur-al-iz-ing, struc-tur-al-iz-es. To form, organize, or incorporate into a structure. —struc'tur-al-i-za'tion (-ə-lī-zā'shən) n.

structural linguistics (strūk'chər-əl līng-gwīs'tīks) n. (used with a sing. verb). 1. A method of synchronic linguistic analysis employing structuralism, especially in contrasting those formal structures, such as phonemes or sentences, that make up systems, such as phonology or syntax. 2. A school of linguistics developed in the United States from the 1930's to the 1950's that advocated and employed such a method.

structural steel (strūk'chər-əl stēl) n. Steel shaped for use in construction.

struc-ture (strūk'chər) n. 1. Something made up of a number of parts that are held or put together in a particular way: hierarchical social structure. 2. The way in which parts are arranged or put together to form a whole; makeup: triangular in structure. 3. The interrelation or arrangement of parts in a complex entity: political structure; plot structure. 4. Something constructed. See Synonyms at building. 5. Biology. a. The arrangement or formation of the tissues, organs, or other parts of an organism. b. An organ or other part of an organism. — v. tr.

struc-tured, struc-tur-ing, struc-tures. To give form or arrangement to: structure a curriculum; structure one's day. [Middle English, the process of building, from Latin strūctūra, from strūctus, past participle of struere, to construct. See ster² in Appendix.]

struc-tured (strūk'chərd) adj. 1. Highly organized: a structured environment. 2. Psychology. Having a limited number of correct or nearly correct answers. Used of a test.

structured programming (strūk'chərd prō'grām'īng) n. Computer Science. A method of designing and writing programs in which the statements are organized in a specific manner to minimize error or misinterpretation.

stru-del (strōōd'l, shtrōōd'l) n. A pastry made with fruit or cheese rolled up in a thin sheet of dough and then baked. [German, strudel, from Middle High German, whirlpool.]

strug-gle (strüg'əl) v. strug-gled, strug-gling, strug-gles. — v. intr. 1. To exert muscular energy, as against a material force or mass: struggled with the heavy load. 2. To be strenuously engaged with a problem, a task, or an undertaking. 3. To make a strenuous effort; strive: struggled to be polite. 4. To contend or compete: "The human being struggles with his environment" (Karl A. Menninger). 5. To progress with difficulty: struggled through calculus. — v. tr. To move or place (something) with an effort: struggled the heavy desk into the elevator. — n.

1. The act of struggling. 2. Strenuous effort; striving. 3. Combat; strife: armed struggle. [Middle English struglen.] — strug'gler n. — strug'gling-ly adv.

strum (strŭm) v. strummed, strum·ming, strums. — v. tr. 1. To play (a stringed musical instrument) by stroking or brushing the strings: strum a banjo. 2. To play (music) on a stringed instrument in this way: strum chords on a guitar. — v. intr. To play a stringed instrument by strumming. — n. The act or sound of strumming. [Perhaps imitative.] — strum'mer n.

stru·ma (strŭō'mə) n. pl. stru·mae (-mē) or stru·mas. 1. a. See scrofula. b. See goiter. 2. Botany. A cushionlike swelling at the base of a moss capsule. [Latin strūma, scrofulous tumor.] — stru·mat'ic (-măt'ik), stru'mose' (-mōs'), stru'mous (-məs) adj.

Stru·ma (strŭō'mə) A river, about 348 km (216 mi) long, of western Bulgaria and northeast Greece flowing southward to an inlet of the Aegean Sea.

strum·pet (strŭm'pīt) n. A prostitute. [Middle English.]

strung (strŭng) v. Past tense and past participle of string. — adj. Tense or exhausted: His strung nerves made it difficult for him to relax.

strung-out (strŭng'out') adj. Slang. 1. a. Stupefied from ingestion of a drug. b. Addicted to a drug. 2. a. Severely debilitated from long-term drug use. b. Physically or emotionally exhausted.

strut (strŭt) v. strut·ted, strut·ting, struts. — v. intr. To walk with pompous bearing; swagger. — v. tr. 1. To display in order to impress others: She strutted all her new clothes before the guests. 2. To brace with a supporting bar or rod. — n. 1. A pompous, self-important gait. 2. A bar or rod used to brace a structure against forces applied from the side. — idiom. strut (one's) stuff. Slang. To behave or perform in an ostentatious manner; show off. [Middle English strouten, to stand out, from Old English strūtian, to stand out stiffly. See ster¹ in Appendix.] — strut'ter n. — strut'ting-ly adv.

SYNONYMS: strut, swagger, swank. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to walk or conduct oneself with exaggerated self-importance or affected superiority”: a pompous lecturer strutting back and forth across the stage; a parvenu swaggering around at a party; a newly elected senator's wife swanking around town.

stru·thi·ous (strŭō'thē-əs, -thē-) adj. Of, relating to, or resembling an ostrich or a related bird; ratite. [From Late Latin strŭthiō, ostrich, from Late Greek strouthiōn, from Greek strouthos.] Stru·ve (strŭō'və), Otto. 1897-1963. Russian-born American astronomer who studied interstellar matter and stellar evolution.

strych·nine (strĭk'nĭn', -nĭn, -nēn') n. An extremely poisonous white crystalline alkaloid, C₂₁H₂₂O₂N₂, derived from nux vomica and related plants, used as a poison for rodents and other pests and topically in medicine as a stimulant for the central nervous system. [French, from New Latin Strychnos, genus name, from Latin strychnon, a kind of nightshade, from Greek strukhnon.]

strych-nin-ism (strĭk'nī-nĭz'əm, -nĭ-, -nĕ-) n. A pathological condition induced by strychnine poisoning.

Stu-art (stōō'ərt, styōō'-) Ruling house of Scotland (1371-1603) and of England and Scotland (1603-1649 and 1660-1714).

Stu-art (stōō'ərt, styōō'-), Charles Edward. Known as “the Young Pretender.” 1720-1788. Pretender to the British throne. The grandson of James II, he led the last Jacobite rising (1745-1746), claiming the throne for his father, James Edward Stuart, but was defeated in battle and fled to France.

Stu-art (stōō'ərt, styōō'-), Gilbert Charles. 1755-1828. American painter particularly known for his portraits of George Washington.

Stu-art (stōō'ərt, styōō'-), Henry. See Lord. Darnley.

Stu-art (stōō'ərt, styōō'-), James Ewell Brown. Known as “Jeb.” 1833-1864. American Confederate general who commanded brilliantly at the battles of Bull Run (1861 and 1862), Antietam (1862), and Fredericksburg (1862). His tactical error at Gettysburg (1863) contributed to the Confederate defeat there. Stuart was mortally wounded during the Wilderness Campaign (1864).

Stu-art (stōō'ərt, styōō'-), James (Francis) Edward. Known as “the Old Pretender.” 1688-1766. Pretender to the British throne. The son of James II, he made two unsuccessful attempts to take the throne (1708-1715). The final Jacobite rising (1745-1746), also a failure, was conducted on his behalf by his son Charles Edward Stuart.

stub (stüb) n. 1. The usually short end remaining after something bigger has been used up: a pencil stub; a cigarette stub. See Regional note at stob.

2. Something cut short or arrested in development: a stub of a tail. 3. a. The part of a check or receipt retained as a record. b. The part of a ticket returned as a voucher of payment. — v. tr. stubbed, stub-bing, stubs. 1. a. To pull up (weeds) by the roots. b. To clear (a field) of weeds. 2. To strike (one's toe or foot) against something accidentally. 3. To snuff out (a cigarette butt) by crushing. [Middle English stubbe, tree stump, from Old English stybb.]

stub-ble (stüb'əl) n. 1. The short, stiff stalks of grain or hay remaining on a field after harvesting. 2. Something resembling this material, especially the short bristly hairs on a man's unshaven face. [Middle English stuble, from Old French estuble, from Latin stipula, stupla, variant of stipula, straw, diminutive of stīpes, stalk.] —stub'bled adj. —stub'bly adj.

stub-born (stüb'ərn) adj. stub-born-er, stub-born-est. 1. a. Unreasonably, often perversely unyielding; bullheaded. b. Firmly resolved or determined; resolute. See Synonyms at obstinate. 2. Characterized by perseverance; persistent. 3. Difficult to treat or deal with; resistant to treatment or effort: stubborn soil; stubborn stains. [Middle English stuborn.] —stub/born-ly adv.

—stub/born-ness n.

Stubbs (stübz), William. 1825-1901. British historian and prelate known for his study of the constitutional history of medieval England.

stub-by (stüb'ē) adj. stub-bi-er, stub-bi-est. 1. a. Having the nature of or suggesting a stub, as in shortness, broadness, or thickness: stubby fingers and toes. b. Having a short, stocky build; thickset. 2. Short and blunt, as from much use: a stubby pencil. See Regional note at stob. 3. Covered with or made of stubs. 4. Short and bristly: a stubby beard. —stub/bi-ly adv. —stub/bi-ness n.

stub nail (stüb nāl) n. A short, thick nail.

stuc-co (stük'ō) *n. pl. stuc-coes or stuc-cos. 1. A durable finish for exterior walls, usually composed of cement, sand, and lime, and applied while wet. 2. A fine plaster for interior wall ornamentation, such as moldings. 3. A plaster or cement finish for interior walls. 4. Stuccowork. — v. tr. stuc-coed, stuc-co-ing, stuc-coes or stuc-cos. To finish or decorate with stucco. [Italian, of Germanic origin.]*

stuc-co-work (stük'ō-wûrk') n. Ornamental work or moldings or a finish done in stucco. —stuc/co-work'er n.

stuck (stük) v. Past tense and past participle of stick.

stuck-up (stük'ûp') adj. Informal. Snobbish; conceited.

stud¹ (stüd) n. 1. An upright post in the framework of a wall for supporting sheets of lath, wallboard, or similar material. 2. A small knob, nail head, or rivet fixed in and slightly projecting from a surface. 3. a. A small ornamental button mounted on a short post for insertion through an eyelet, as on a dress shirt. b. A buttonlike earring mounted on a slender post, as of gold or steel, for wearing in a pierced earlobe. 4. a. Any of various protruding pins or pegs in machinery, used mainly as a support or pivot. b. One of a number of small metal cleats embedded in a snow tire to increase traction on slippery or snowy roads. 5. A metal cross-piece used as a brace in a link, as in a chain cable. — v. tr. stud-ded, stud-ding, studs. 1. To provide with or construct with studs or a stud. 2. To set with studs or a stud: stud a bracelet with rubies. 3. To be scattered over: Daisies studded the meadow. [Middle English stode, from Old English studu. See stā- in Appendix.]

stud² (stüd) n. 1. a. A group of animals, especially horses, kept for breeding. b. A male animal, such as a stallion, that is kept for breeding. c. A stable or farm where these animals are kept. 2. Slang. A man regarded as virile and sexually active. 3. Games. Stud poker. —idiom. at stud. Available or offered for breeding. Used of animals. [Middle English stod, establishment for breeding horses, from Old English stōd. See stā- in Appendix.]

stud. abbr. Student.

stud·book (stüd'böök') n. A book registering the pedigrees of thoroughbred animals, especially horses.

stud·ding (stüd'ing) n. 1. a. The wood framework of a wall or partition.

b. Lumber cut for studs. 2. Something with which a surface is studded.

stud·ding·sail (stün'səl, stüd'ing-säl') n. Nautical. A narrow rectangular sail set from extensions of the yards of square-rigged ships. [Origin unknown.]

Stu·de·ba·ker (stōō'də-bā'kər, styōō'-), Clement. 1831-1901. American manufacturer who founded a family business (1852) that became the world's largest maker of horse-drawn vehicles and later produced automobiles.

stu·dent (stōōd'nt, styōōd'-) n. Abbr. stud. 1. One who attends a school, college, or university. 2. a. One who makes a study of something. b. An attentive observer: a student of world affairs. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: student government; student issues. [Middle English, alteration (influenced by Latin studēre, to study), of student, studiant, from Old French estudiant, one who studies, from present participle of estudier, to study, from Medieval Latin studiāre, from Latin studium, study. See STUDY.]

student lamp (stōōd'nt lămp) n. A reading lamp having a flexible, adjustable neck and intended for use on a desk.

student teacher (stōōd'nt tē'chər) n. A college student pursuing a degree in education who, as an intern in teaching methodology, teaches in a classroom under the supervision and guidance of an experienced, certified teacher. Also called practice teacher —student teaching n.

student union (stōōd'nt yōōn'yən) n. A building on a college campus with facilities for social and organizational activities.

stud·fish (stüd'fish') n. pl. studfish or stud·fish·es. Either of two small, brightly colored topminnows (Fundulus catenatus or F. stelleri) of the southeast United States.

stud·horse also stud horse (stüd'hôrs') n. A stallion kept for breeding.

stud·ied (stüd'ēd) adj. 1. Resulting from deliberation and careful thought: a studied decision. 2. Lacking spontaneity; contrived: a studied smile. 3. Learned; knowledgeable. —stud'ied·ly adv. —stud'ied·ness n.

stu·di·o (stōō'dē-ō, styōō'-) n. pl. stu·di·os. 1. An artist's workroom. 2. A photographer's establishment. 3. An establishment where an art is taught or studied: a dance studio. 4. a. A room or building for movie, television, or radio productions. b. A room or building where tapes and records are produced. [Italian, from Latin studium, eagerness, application. See STUDY.]

studio apartment (stōō'dē-ō ə-pärt'mənt) n. A small apartment usually consisting of one main living space, a small kitchen, and a bathroom.

studio couch (stōō'dē-ō kouch) n. A couch that can be made to serve as a double bed by sliding the frame of a cot from beneath it.

stu·di·ous (stōō'dē-əs, styōō'-) adj. 1. a. Given to diligent study: a quiet, studious child. b. Conducive to study. 2. Marked by steady attention and effort; assiduous: made a studious attempt to fix the television set. 3. Giving or evincing careful regard; heedful: "The major... was very studious of his appearance" (H.E. Bates). 4. Deliberate; contrived. [Middle English, from Latin studiōsus, from studium, eagerness. See STUDY.] —stu'di-ous-ly adv. —stu'di-ous-ness n.

stud poker (stüd pō'kər) n. Games. Poker in which the first round of cards, and often the last, is dealt face down and the others face up. [Probably short for studhorse poker.] stud·work (stüd'wûrk') n. 1. Work ornamented or covered with studs. 2. The supportive framework of a wall or partition.

stud·y (stüd'ē) n. pl. stud·ies. 1. a. The act or process of studying. b. The pursuit of knowledge, as by reading, observation, or research. 2. Attentive scrutiny. 3. A branch of knowledge. 4. studies. A branch or department of learning: graduate studies. 5. a. A work, such as a thesis, that results from studious endeavor. b. A literary work on a particular subject. c. A preliminary sketch, as for a work of art or literature. 6. Music. A composition intended as a technical exercise. 7. A state of mental absorption: She is in a deep study. 8. A room intended or equipped for studying or writing. 9. a. One who memorizes something, especially a performer with reference to his or her ability to memorize a part: He is a quick study. b. Memorization of a part in a play. — v. stud·ied, stud·y·ing, stud·ies. — v. tr. 1. To apply one's mind purposefully to the acquisition of knowledge or understanding of (a subject). 2. To read carefully. 3. To memorize. 4. To take (a course) at a school. 5. To inquire into; investigate. 6. To examine closely; scrutinize. 7. To give careful thought to; contemplate: study the next move. — v. intr. 1. To apply oneself to learning, especially by reading. 2. To pursue a course of study. 3. To ponder; reflect. [Middle English studie, from Old French estudie, from Latin studium, from studēre, to study.]

study hall (stüd'ē hōl) n. 1. A schoolroom reserved for study. 2. A period set aside for study.

stuff (stüf) n. 1. The material out of which something is made or formed; substance. 2. The essential substance or elements; essence: "We are such stuff/As dreams are made on" (Shakespeare). 3. Informal. a. Unspecified material: Put that stuff over there. b. Household or personal articles considered as a group. c. Worthless objects. 4. Slang. Specific talk or actions: Don't give me that stuff about being tired. 5. Sports. a. The control a player has over a ball, especially to give it spin, english, curve, or speed. b. The spin, english, curve, or speed imparted to a ball: "where we could watch the stuff, mainly curves, that the pitchers were putting on the ball" (James Henry Gray). 6. Special capability: The team really showed its stuff and won the championship. 7. Chiefly British. Woven material, especially woolens. 8. Slang. Money; cash. 9. Slang. A habit-forming drug, especially heroin. — v. stuffed, stuff-ing, stuffs. — v. tr. 1. a. To pack tightly; cram: stuff a Christmas stocking. b. To block (a passage); plug: stuff a crack with caulking. 2. a. To fill with an appropriate stuffing: stuff a pillow. b. To fill (an animal skin) to restore its natural form for mounting or display. 3. To cram with food. 4. To fill (the mind): His head is stuffed with silly notions. 5. To put fraudulent votes into (a ballot box). 6. To apply a preservative and softening agent to (leather). — v. intr. To overeat; gorge. — idioms. stuff it. Vulgar Slang. Used as an intensive to express extreme anger, frustration, or disgust. stuff (one's) face. Slang. To eat greedily. [Middle English, from Old French estoffe, from estoffer, to equip, of Germanic origin.] — stuff'er n.

stuffed derma (stüft dûr'mə) n. See derma².

stuffed shirt (stüft shûrt) n. Informal. A person regarded as pompous or stiff.

stuff-ing (stüf'ing) n. a. Padding put in cushions and upholstered furniture.

b. Food put into the cavity of a piece of meat or a hollowed-out vegetable.

stuffing box (stüf'ing böks) n. An enclosure containing packing to prevent leakage around a moving machine part.

stuff shot (stüf shöt) n. Basketball. See dunk shot.

stuff-y (stüf'ē) adj. stuff-i-er, stuff-i-est. 1. Lacking sufficient ventilation; close. 2. Having the respiratory passages blocked: a stuffy nose. 3. a. Dull and boring: a stuffy lecture. b. Rigidly adhering to standards of conduct; strait-laced: "I went to one stuffy upper class dinner party on my first night & I go to another tonight" (Evelyn Waugh). — stuff'i-ly adv. — stuff'i-ness n.

stull (stül) n. 1. A supporting timber or other prop in a mine. 2. A platform braced against the sides of a working area in a mine. [Probably from German Stollen, from Middle High German stolle, prop, support, from Old High German stollo. See stel- in Appendix.]

stul-ti-fy (stül'tə-fī') v. tr. stul-ti-fied, stul-ti-fy-ing, stul-ti-fies. 1. To render useless or ineffectual; cripple. 2. To cause to appear stupid, inconsistent, or ridiculous. 3. Law. To allege or prove insane and so not legally responsible. [Late Latin stultificāre, to make foolish : Latin stultus, foolish; see stel- in Appendix + Latin -ficāre, -fy.] — stul'ti-fi-ca'tion (-fī-kā'shən) n. — stul'ti-fi'er n.

stum (stüm) n. 1. Unfermented or partly fermented grape juice; must. 2. Vapid wine renewed by an admixture of stum. — v. tr. stummed, stum-ming, stums. To ferment (vapid wine) by adding stum. [Dutch stom, dumb, stum, from Middle Dutch.]

stum-ble (stüm'bəl) v. stum-bled, stum-bling, stum-bles. — v. intr.

1. a. To miss one's step in walking or running; trip and almost fall. b. To proceed unsteadily or falteringly; flounder. See Synonyms at blunder. c. To act or speak falteringly or clumsily. 2. To make a mistake; blunder. 3. To fall into evil ways; err. 4. To come upon accidentally or unexpectedly: "The urge to wider voyages... caused men to stumble upon New America" (Kenneth Cragg). — v. tr. To cause to stumble. — n. 1. The act of stumbling. 2. A mistake or blunder.

[Middle English stumblen, probably of Scandinavian origin; akin to Old Norse stumra.] — stum'bler n. — stum'bling-ly adv.

stum·ble·bum (stŭm'bəl-bŭm') n. Slang. 1. A person regarded as blundering or inept. 2. Sports. A punch-drunk or second-rate prizefighter.

stum·bling block (stŭm'blɪŋ blɔk) n. An obstacle or impediment.

stump (stŭmp) n. 1. The part of a tree trunk left protruding from the ground after the tree has fallen or has been felled. 2. A part, as of a branch, limb, or tooth, remaining after the main part has been cut away, broken off, or worn down. 3. a. stumps. Informal. The legs. b. An artificial leg. 4. A short, thick-set person. 5. A heavy footfall. 6. A place or an occasion used for political or campaign oratory: candidates out on the stump. 7. A short, pointed roll of leather or paper or wad of rubber for rubbing on a charcoal or pencil drawing to shade or soften it. 8. Sports. Any one of the three upright sticks in a cricket wicket. — v. tr. stumped, stumping, stumps. 1. To reduce to a stump. 2. To clear stumps from: stump a field. 3. To stub (a toe or foot). 4. To traverse (a district) making political speeches: a candidate stumping the state. 5. To shade (a drawing) with a stump. 6. Informal. To challenge (someone); defy. 7. Informal. To bring to a halt; baffle. [Middle English stumpe, possibly from Middle Low German stump.] — stump'er n. — stump'i-ness n. — stump'y adj.

stump·age (stŭm'pɪj) n. 1. Standing timber regarded as a commodity. 2. The value of standing timber. 3. The right to cut standing timber.

stun (stŭn) v. tr. stunned, stun-ning, stuns. 1. To daze or render senseless, by or as if by a blow. 2. To overwhelm or daze with a loud noise. 3. To stupefy, as with the emotional impact of an experience; astound. See Synonyms at daze. — n. A blow or shock that stupefies. [Middle English stonen, Old French estoner, from Vulgar Latin extonāre*: Latin ex-, ex- + Latin tonāre, to thunder; see (s)tenə- in Appendix.]

stung (stŭŋg) v. Past tense and past participle of sting.

stun gun (stŭn gŭn) n. A weapon designed to stun or temporarily immobilize a victim by firing pellets or bags of shot or sand or by delivering a high-voltage electric shock.

stunk (stŭŋk) v. A past tense and the past participle of stink.

stun·ner (stŭn'ər) n. One that stuns, as: a. An astounding, unexpected event. b. An exceptionally good-looking person.

stun·ning (stŭn'ɪŋ) adj. 1. Causing or capable of causing emotional shock or loss of consciousness. 2. Of a strikingly attractive appearance. 3. a. Impressive: gave a stunning performance. b. Surprising: The President's final decision came with stunning suddenness. — stun'ning-ly adv.

stunt¹ (stŭnt) v. tr. stunt-ed, stunt-ing, stunts. To check the growth or development of. — n. 1. One that stunts. 2. One that is stunted. 3. A plant disease that causes dwarfing. [From Middle English stunnt, foolish, short-witted, short (influenced by Old Norse stuttr, short, dwarfish), from Old English stunt.]

—stunt'ed-ness n.

stunt² (stünt) n. 1. A feat displaying unusual strength, skill, or daring.

2. Something of an unusual nature done for publicity. — v. intr. stunt-ed, stunt-ing, stunts. To perform stunts or a stunt. [Origin unknown.]

stunt box (stünt böks) n. An electronic device designed to control the non-printing functions of a teleprinter.

stunt-man (stünt'män') n. A man who substitutes for a performer in scenes requiring physical daring or involving physical risk.

stunt-wom-an (stünt'wōm'ən) n. A woman who substitutes for a performer in scenes requiring physical daring or involving physical risk.

stu-pa (stōō'pə) n. See tope³. [Sanskrit stūpah, summit, stupa.]

stupe (stōōp, styōōp) n. A hot, wet, often medicated cloth used as a compress. [Middle English, from Latin stuppa, stūpa, tow, from Greek stuppē.]

stu-pe-fa-cient (stōō'pə-fā'shənt, styōō'-) adj. Inducing stupor; stupefying or narcotic. — n. A drug, such as a narcotic, that induces stupor. [Latin stupefaciēns, stupefacient- present participle of stupefacere, to stupefy. See STUPEFY.]

stu-pe-fac-tion (stōō'pə-fāk'shən, styōō'-) n. 1. a. The act or an instance of stupefying. b. The state of being stupefied. 2. Great astonishment or consternation.

stu-pe-fac-tive (stōō'pə-fāk'tiv, styōō'-) adj. Stupefacient. —stu'pe-fac-tive n.

stu-pe-fy (stōō'pə-fī', styōō'-) v. tr. stu-pe-fied, stu-pe-fy-ing, stu-pe-fies.

1. To dull the senses or faculties of. See Synonyms at daze. 2. To amaze; astonish. [Middle English stupefiēn, from Old French stupefier, from Latin stupefacere: stupēre, to be stunned + facere, to make; see FACT.] —stu'pe-fi'er n.

—stu'pe-fy'ing-ly adv.

stu-pen-dous (stōō-pěn'dəs, styōō-) adj. 1. Of astounding force, volume, degree, or excellence; marvelous. 2. Amazingly large or great; huge. See Synonyms at enormous. [From Late Latin stupendus, stunning, gerundive of Latin stupēre, to be stunned.] —stu-pen'dous-ly adv. —stu-pen'dous-ness n.

stu-pid (stōō'pīd, styōō'-) adj. stu-pid-er, stu-pid-est. 1. Slow to learn or understand; obtuse. 2. Lacking or marked by a lack of intelligence. 3. In a stupor; stupefied. 4. In a dazed or stunned state. 5. Pointless; worthless: a stupid job. — n. A person regarded as stupid. [Latin stupidus, from stupēre, to be stunned.] —stu'pid-ly adv. —stu'pid-ness n.

SYNONYMS: stupid, slow, dumb, dull, obtuse, dense. These adjectives mean lacking or marked by a lack of intellectual acuity. Stupid, the most inclusive, means wanting in intelligence: Despite a lack of formal education, she was far from stupid. Slow and dumb imply chronic sluggishness of perception, reaction, or understanding: The school offers special tutorials for slow learners. It was dumb of him to say yes. Dull suggests a lack of keenness of intellect: “It is the dull man who is always sure” (H.L. Mencken). Obtuse implies a lack of quickness, sensitivity, or perceptiveness: At the time, I was too obtuse to grasp the true implications of her behavior. Dense suggests impenetrability of mind: The woman kept signaling that it was time to leave, but her escort was so dense that he just kept sitting there.

stu·pid·i·ty (stōō-pīd’ī-tē, styōō-) n. pl. stu·pid·i·ties. 1. The quality or condition of being stupid. 2. A stupid act, remark, or idea.

stu·por (stōō’pər, styōō’-) n. 1. A state of reduced or suspended sensibility. 2. A state of mental numbness, as that resulting from shock; a daze. See Synonyms at lethargy. [Middle English, from Latin, from stupēre, to be stunned.] —stu’por·ous adj.

stur·dy (stūr’dē) adj. stur·di·er, stur·di·est. 1. Having or showing rugged physical strength. 2. Substantially made or built; stout: sturdy canvas. 3. Marked by resoluteness or determination; firm: sturdy resistance. 4. Vigorous or robust. See Synonyms at strong. — n. See gid. [Middle English, stubborn, reckless, sturdy, from Old French estourdi, past participle of estourdir, to stun, perhaps from Vulgar Latin exturdire*, to be giddy as a thrush : Latin ex-, intensive pref.; see EX- + Latin turdus, thrush.] —stur’di·ly adv. —stur’di·ness n.

stur·geon (stūr’jən) n. Any of various large, ganoid freshwater and marine fishes of the family Acipenseridae of the Northern Hemisphere, having edible flesh and valued as a source of caviar and isinglass. [Middle English, from Anglo-Norman, from Old French esturgeon, of Germanic origin.]

Sturm und Drang (shtōōrm’ ōont dräng’) n. 1. Turmoil; ferment: “A book’s historical roots represent another barrier; so does the personal Sturm und Drang of the author” (Robert Kanigel). 2. A late-18th-century German romantic literary movement whose works typically depicted the struggles of a highly emotional individual against conventional society. [German, storm and stress, after Sturm und Dranga drama by Friedrich Maximilian von Klinger (1752-1831).]

stut·ter (stūt’ər) v. stut·tered, stut·ter·ing, stut·ters. — v. intr. To speak with a spasmodic repetition or prolongation of sounds. — v. tr. To utter with spasmodic repetition or prolongation of sounds. See Synonyms at stammer. — n. The act or habit of stuttering. [Frequentative of dialectal stut, from Middle English stutten.] —stut’ter·er n. —stut’ter·ing·ly adv.

Stutt·gart (stūt’gärt’, stōōt’-, shtōōt’-) A city of southwest Germany on the Neckar River south-southeast of Heidelberg. Chartered in the 13th century, it developed as an industrial center in the 19th and early 20th centuries and was heavily bombed during World War II. Population, 561,567.

Stutz (stüts), Harry Clayton. 1876-1930. American automobile manufacturer who founded the Stutz Motor Car Company (1913), a maker of racing and sports cars.

Stuy-ve-sant (stī/vī-sənt), Peter or Petrus. 1592?-1672. Dutch colonial administrator. The last Dutch governor (1646-1664) of New Netherland, he was unpopular for his harsh leadership and in 1664 was forced to surrender the colony to England.

sty¹ (stī) n. pl. sties (stīz). 1. An enclosure for swine. 2. A filthy place. — v. tr. intr. stied (stīd), sty-ing, sties (stīz). To shut up in or live in a sty. [Middle English, from Old English stī-, stig.]

sty² also stye (stī) n. pl. sties also styes (stīz). Inflammation of one or more sebaceous glands of an eyelid. [Alteration of Middle English styanye: styan, sty (from Old English stīgend, from present participle of stīgan, to rise); see steigh- in Appendix + eye, ye, eye; see EYE.]

stygi-an also Styg-i-an (stīj'ē-ən) adj. 1. a. Gloomy and dark. b. Infernal; hellish. 2. Of or relating to the river Styx. [From Latin Stygius, from Greek Stygios, from Stux, Stug-, Styx.]

styl- pref. Variant of stylo-.

stylar (stī'lər, -lär') adj. 1. Of, relating to, or resembling a stylus. 2. Botany & Zoology. Of or relating to a style.

style-late (stī'lāt') adj. Having a style or styles.

style (stīl) n. 1. The way in which something is said, done, expressed, or performed: a style of speech and writing. 2. The combination of distinctive features of literary or artistic expression, execution, or performance characterizing a particular person, group, school, or era. 3. Sort; type: a style of furniture. 4. A quality of imagination and individuality expressed in one's actions and tastes: does things with style. 5. a. A comfortable and elegant mode of existence: living in style. b. A mode of living: the style of the very rich. 6. a. The fashion of the moment, especially of dress; vogue. b. A particular fashion: the style of the 1920's. See Synonyms at fashion. 7. A customary manner of presenting printed material, including usage, punctuation, spelling, typography, and arrangement. 8. A form of address; a title. 9. a. An implement used for etching or engraving. b. A slender, pointed writing instrument used by the ancients on wax tablets. 10. The needle of a phonograph. 11. The gnomon of a sundial. 12. Botany. The usually slender part of a pistil, situated between the ovary and the stigma. 13. Zoology. A slender, tubular, or bristlelike process: a cartilaginous style. 14. Medicine. A surgical probing instrument; a stylet. 15. Obsolete. A pen. — v. tr. styled, styl-ing, styles. 1. To call or name; designate: George VI styled his brother Duke of Windsor. 2. To make consistent with rules of style: style a manuscript. 3. To give style to: style hair. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin stylus, stilus, spike, pointed instrument used for writing, style. See STYLUS.] —styl'er n. —styl'ing n.

style·book (stīl'boōk') n. A book giving rules and examples of usage, punctuation, and typography, used in preparation of copy for publication.

sty·let (stī-lēt', stī'līt') n. 1. A slender, pointed instrument or weapon, such as a stiletto. 2. a. A surgical probe. b. A fine wire that is run through a catheter, canula, or hollow needle to keep it stiff or clear of debris. 3. Zoology. A small, stiff, needlelike organ or appendage, such as the feeding organ of a tardigrade.

[French, from Italian stiletto, stiletto. See STILETTO.]

sty·li (stī'lī) n. A plural of stylus.

styli- pref. Variant of stylo-.

sty·li·form (stī'lə-fōrm') adj. Having the shape of a style; slender and pointed: a styliform bone or appendage.

sty·ish (stī'līsh) adj. Conforming to the current fashion; modish. See Synonyms at fashionable. —styl'ish·ly adv. —styl'ish·ness n.

sty·list (stī'līst) n. 1. A writer or speaker who cultivates an artful literary style. 2. A designer of or consultant on styles in decorating, dress, or beauty.

sty·lis·tic (stī-līs'tīk) adj. Of or relating to style, especially literary style. —sty·lis'ti·cal·ly adv.

sty·lis·tics (stī-līs'tīks) n. (used with a sing. verb). The study of the use of elements of language style, such as metaphor, in particular contexts.

sty·lite (stī'līt') n. One of a number of early Christian ascetics who lived unsheltered on the tops of high pillars. [Late Greek stulitēs, from Greek stulos, pillar. See stā- in Appendix.] —sty·lit'ic (-līt'īk) adj. —sty'lit·ism (stī'lī'tīz-əm) n.

styl·ize (stī'līz') v. tr. styl·ized, styl·iz·ing, styl·iz·es. 1. To restrict or make conform to a particular style. 2. To represent conventionally; conventionalize. —styl'i·za'tion (stī'lī-zā'shən) n. —styl'iz'er n.

stylo- or styli- or styl- pref. Style: stylopodium. [From Latin stilus, stylus, stake, stem, style. See STYLUS.]

sty·lo·bate (stī'lə-bāt') n. Architecture. The immediate foundation of a row of classical columns. Also called stereobate [Latin stylobata, from Greek stulobatēs: stulos, pillar; see stā- in Appendix + bainein, to walk; see g^wā- in Appendix.]

sty·loid (stī'lōid') adj. 1. Resembling a style in shape; slender and pointed: the styloid muscles in carnivores. 2. Anatomy. Of, relating to, or designating any of several slender, pointed bone processes, especially the spine that projects from the base of the temporal bone.

sty·lo·lite (stī'lə-līt') n. A secondary structure found along contacting surfaces of adjacent calcareous rock layers, the contact zone appearing in cross section as a series of jagged interlocking up-and-down projections that resemble a suture or the tracing of a stylus. [Greek stulos, pillar; see STYLITE + -LITE.]

sty·lo·po·di·um (stī'lə-pō'dē-əm) n. pl. sty·lo·po·di·a (-dē-ə). An enlargement at the base of the style of flowers in certain plants of the parsley family.

sty·lus (stī'ləs) n. pl. sty·lus·es or sty·li (-lī). 1. A sharp, pointed instrument used for writing, marking, or engraving. 2. A phonograph needle. 3. A sharp, pointed tool used for cutting record grooves. [Latin, alteration (influenced by Greek stulos, pillar); see STYLITE, of stilus.]

sty·mie also sty·my (stī'mē) v. tr. sty·mied (-mēd), sty·mie·ing also sty·my·ing (-mē-ĭng), sty·mies (-mēz). To thwart; stump: a problem in thermodynamics that stymied half the class. — n. 1. An obstacle or obstruction. 2. Sports. A situation in golf in which an opponent's ball obstructs the line of play of one's own ball on the putting green. [Origin unknown.]

styp·sis (stĭp'sis) n. The action or application of a styptic. [Late Latin stypsis, from Greek stupsis, from stuphein, to contract.]

styp·tic (stĭp'tik) adj. 1. Contracting the tissues or blood vessels; astringent. 2. Tending to check bleeding by contracting the tissues or blood vessels; hemostatic. — n. A styptic drug or substance. [Middle English stiptik, from Old French stiptique, from Latin stypiticus, from Greek stuptikos, from stuphein, to contract.] — styp·tic'i·ty (-tĭs'ĭ-tē) n.

styptic pencil (stĭp'tik pĕn'səl) n. A short medicated stick, often of alum, applied to a cut to check bleeding.

Styr (stĭr) A river, about 436 km (271 mi) long, of northwest Ukraine flowing northward to the Pripet River.

sty·rax (stī'rāks) n. Botany. See storax. [Latin. See STORAX.]

sty·rene (stī'rĕn') n. A colorless oily liquid, C₆H₅CH:CH₂, the monomer for polystyrene. [Latin styrax, storax; see STORAX + -ENE.]

Sty·ro·foam (stī'rə-fōm') A trademark used for a light, resilient polystyrene plastic. This trademark often occurs in print in lowercase: "throw-away plates, utensils and styrofoam trays" (Washington Post). "selfpropelled boats from styrofoam" (New York Times).

Sty·ron (stī'rən), William. Born 1925. American writer primarily known for his novels, including Lie Down in Darkness (1951) and The Confessions of Nat Turner (1967).

Styx (stĭks) n. Greek Mythology. The river across which the souls of the dead are ferried, one of the five rivers in Hades. [Latin, from Greek Stux.]

su·a·ble (sōō'ə-bəl) adj. Law. Subject to suit in a court of law. — su'a·bil'i·ty n.

Suá·rez Gon·zá·lez (swär'əz gən-zäl'əs, swä'rĕth gôn-thä'lĕth), Adolfo. Born 1932. Spanish politician who as prime minister (1976-1981) instituted democratic reforms.

sua·sion (swā'zhən) n. Persuasion: moral suasion. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin suāsiō, suāsiōn-, from suāsus, past participle of suādēre, to advise. See swād- in Appendix.]

sua·sive (swā'siv) adj. Having the power to persuade or convince; persuasive. [Latin suāsus, past participle of suādēre, to advise; see SUASION + -IVE.] —sua/sive·ly adv. —sua/sive·ness n.

suave (swäv) adj. suav·er, suav·est. Smoothly agreeable and courteous. [French, agreeable, from Old French, from Latin suāvis, delightful, sweet. See swād- in Appendix.] —suave/ly adv. —suave/ness, suav/i·ty (swä'vī-tē) n.

SYNONYMS: suave, smooth, urbane, diplomatic, politic. These adjectives mean effortlessly gracious, tactful, and polite. Suave suggests courtesy, social polish, and often a degree of sophistication: “That same year he made his Broadway debut, playing a suave radio journalist” (Edward Hudson). Smooth stresses a deliberate, usually ingratiating agreeableness: The manager pacified the irate customer with a smooth apology for the error. Urbane implies a high degree of refinement together with the assurance that comes from wide social experience: “Urbane and pliant... he was at ease even in the drawing rooms of Paris” (R.R. Palmer). Diplomatic suggests skill, tact, and sensitivity in dealing with others: The hostess averted a confrontation between the two guests with an adroit and diplomatic change of subject. Politic implies artful management, prudence, or expedience: “He was too politic to quarrel with so important a personage” (John Lothrop Motley).

sub¹ (süb) n. Informal. 1. See submarine (n., sense 1). 2. See submarine (n., sense 2). See Regional note at submarine.

sub² (süb) Informal. n. A substitute. — v. intr. subbed, sub·bing, subs. To act as a substitute.

sub. abbr. 1. Subaltern. 2. Suburb; suburban.

sub- pref. 1. Below; under; beneath: subsoil. 2. a. Subordinate; secondary: subplot. b. Subdivision: subregion. 3. Less than completely or normally; nearly; almost: subhuman. [Middle English, from Latin, from sub, under. See upo in Appendix.]

sub·ab·dom·i·nal (süb'äb-döm'ə-nəl) adj. Located or occurring below the abdomen.

sub·ac·id (süb-äs'id) adj. Somewhat sharp or acid in character: subacid remarks.

sub·a·cute (süb'ə-kyōōt') adj. 1. Somewhat or moderately acute: subacute petals and sepals. 2. Between acute and chronic: subacute fever symptoms; subacute endocarditis. —sub/a·cute/ly adv.

subacute scle·ros·ing panencephalitis (süb'ə-kyōōt' sklə-rō'sing pän'ən-sěf'ə-lī'tis) n. An often fatal degenerative disease of the central nervous system occurring chiefly in young people, caused by slow infection with a measles virus and characterized by progressive loss of mental and motor functions ending in dementia and paralysis.

sub·ad·dress (süb'ə-drēs') n. Computer Science. A section of a computer device for input and output accessible through an operation code.

sub·aer·i·al (süb-âr'ē-əl) adj. Located or occurring on or near the surface of the earth.

sub·al·pine (süb-äl'pīn') adj. 1. Of or relating to regions at or near the foot of the Alps. 2. Of, relating to, inhabiting, or growing in mountainous regions just below the timberline.

sub·al·tern (süb-ôl'tərn, süb'əl-türn') adj. Abbr. sub. 1. Lower in position or rank; secondary. 2. Chiefly British. Holding a military rank just below that of captain. 3. Logic. In the relation of a particular proposition to a universal with the same subject, predicate, and quality. — n. Abbr. sub. 1. A subordinate. 2. Chiefly British. A subaltern officer. 3. Logic. A subaltern proposition. [French subalterne, from Old French, from Late Latin subalternus: Latin sub-, sub- + Latin alternus, alternate (from alter, other); see al-¹ in Appendix.]

sub·al·ter·nate (süb-ôl'tər-nīt) adj. 1. Subordinate. 2. Botany. Arranged in an alternating pattern but tending to become opposite. Used of leaves.

—sub·al·ter·na'tion (-nā'shən) n.

sub·ant·arc·tic (süb'ánt-ärk'tīk, -är'tīk) adj. Of or resembling regions just north of the Antarctic Circle.

sub·ap·i·cal (süb-äp'i-kəl, -ä'pī-) adj. Located below or near an apex.

—sub·ap'i·cal·ly adv.

sub·a·que·ous (süb-ā'kwē-əs, -äk'wē-) adj. 1. Formed or adapted for underwater use or operation; submarine. 2. Found or occurring underwater: subaqueous organisms; subaqueous rocks.

sub·a·rach·noid (süb'ə-räk'noid) adj. Situated or occurring beneath the arachnoid membrane, or between the arachnoid and the pia mater: subarachnoid space; subarachnoid anesthesia.

sub·arc·tic (süb-ärk'tīk, -är'tīk) adj. Of or resembling regions just south of the Arctic Circle.

sub·ar·id (süb-är'id) adj. Somewhat arid; moderately dry.

sub·as·sem·bly (süb'ə-sēm'blē) n. pl. sub-as-sem-blies. An assembled unit forming a component to be incorporated into a larger assembly.

sub·a·tom·ic (süb'ə-töm'ik) adj. 1. Of or relating to the constituents of the atom. 2. Having dimensions or participating in reactions characteristic of the constituents of the atom.

subatomic particle (süb'ə-töm'ik pär'tī-kəl) n. Any of various units of matter below the size of an atom, including the elementary particles and hadrons.

sub·au·di·tion (süb'ô-dîsh'ən) n. 1. The act of understanding and mentally supplying a word or thought that has been implied but not expressed. 2. A word or thought supplied by subaudition. [Late Latin subauditiō, subauditiōn-, from subaudītus, past participle of subaudīre, to supply an omitted word : Latin sub-, sub- + Latin audīre, to hear; see au- in Appendix.]

sub·ax·il·lar·y (süb-äk'lə-lër'ē) adj. Situated beneath the axilla or armpit: subaxillary glands; subaxillary feathers.

sub·base (süb'bās') n. The lowermost front strip or molding of a baseboard.

sub·base·ment (süb'bās'mənt) n. A floor beneath a main basement of a building.

sub·bass (süb'bās') n. Music. A pedal stop on an organ that produces the lowest tones, having 16 or 32 feet.

sub·cab·i·net (süb'kăb'ə-nĭt) adj. Of, relating to, or being an administrative position below cabinet level: initially held talks at the subcabinet level.

sub·cal·i·ber (süb-kăl'ə-bər) adj. 1. Smaller in caliber than the barrel of the gun from which it was fired. Used of projectiles. 2. Of or relating to such projectiles.

sub·car·ri·er (süb'kăr'ē-ər) n. Physics. A section of a transmitted wave used to modify the information-carrying section of the wave.

sub·car·ti·lag·i·nous (süb'kăr-tl-ăj'ə-nəs) adj. 1. Located beneath a cartilage. 2. Partly cartilaginous.

sub·cat·e·go·ry (süb-kăt'ĭ-gôr'ē, -gôr'ē, süb'kăt'-) n. pl. sub·cat·e·go·ries. A subdivision that has common differentiating characteristics within a larger category.

sub·ceil·ing (süb'sē'lĭng) n. See sublimit.

sub·ce·les·tial (süb'sĭ-lĕs'chəl) adj. 1. Lower than celestial; terrestrial.
2. Mundane.

sub·cel·lu·lar (süb-sĕl'yə-lər) adj. 1. Situated or occurring within a cell: subcellular organelles. 2. Smaller in size than ordinary cells: subcellular organisms.
3. Below the cellular level: subcellular research.

sub·cen·ter (süb'sĕn'tər) n. A secondary center, especially a commercial or shopping area located away from the main business sector of a city. —sub·cen·tral (-trəl) adj.

sub·chas·er (süb'chā'sər) n. Informal. A submarine chaser.

sub·class (süb'klăs') n. 1. A subdivision of a set or class. 2. Biology. A taxonomic category of related organisms ranking between a class and an order.

sub·cla·vi·an (süb-klā'vĕ-ən) adj. Anatomy. 1. Situated beneath the clavicle. 2. Of or relating to a subclavian part. 3. Of or relating to the subclavian artery or vein. — n. A subclavian structure, such as a nerve or muscle. [From New Latin subclāvius : SUB- + Latin clāvis, key; see CLAVICLE.]

- subclavian artery (süb-klä'vē-ən är'tə-rē) n. A part of a major artery of the upper extremities or forelimbs that passes beneath the clavicle and is continuous with the axillary artery.
- subclavian vein (süb-klä'vē-ən vān) n. A part of a major vein of the upper extremities or forelimbs that passes beneath the clavicle and is continuous with the axillary vein.
- sub-climax (süb-klī'mäks') n. Ecology. A stage in the ecological succession of a plant or animal community immediately preceding a climax, and often persisting because of the effects of fire, flood, or other conditions. —sub-climax'tic (-mäk'tik) adj.
- sub-clinical (süb-klīn'ī-kəl) adj. Not manifesting characteristic clinical symptoms. Used of a disease or condition. —sub-clinical'ly adv.
- sub-com-mit-tee (süb'kə-mīt'ē) n. A subordinate committee composed of members appointed from a main committee.
- sub-com-pact (süb-köm'päkt') n. An automobile smaller than a compact.
- sub-com-po-nent (süb'kəm-pō'nənt) n. A portion of a component, especially a piece of electronic equipment that can be incorporated into a component of a larger unit; a subassembly: no restrictions on testing the subcomponents of the new weapons system.
- sub-con-ference (süb'kõn'fər-əns, -frəns) n. A subcommittee of a congressional conference.
- sub-con-scious (süb-kõn'shəs) adj. Not wholly conscious; partially or imperfectly conscious: subconscious perceptions. — n. The part of the mind below the level of conscious perception. Often used with the. —sub-con'scious'ly adv. —sub-con'scious-ness n.
- sub-con-tinent (süb'kõn'tə-nənt, süb-kõn'-) n. 1. A large landmass, such as India, that is part of a continent but is considered either geographically or politically as an independent entity. 2. A large landmass, such as Greenland, that is smaller than a continent. —sub'con-tinental (-nən'tl) adj.
- sub-con-tract (süb-kõn'träkt', süb'kõn'träkt) n. A contract that assigns some of the obligations of a prior contract to another party. — v. intr. tr.
- sub-con-tract-ed, sub-con-tract-ing, sub-con-tracts (süb-kõn'träkt', süb'kən-träkt'). To make a subcontract or a subcontract for.
- sub-con-trac-tor (süb-kõn'trāk'tər, süb'kən-trāk'tər) n. One that enters into a subcontract and assumes some of the obligations of the primary contractor.
- sub-con-trar-y (süb-kõn'trēr'ē) n. pl. sub-con-tra-ries. Logic. A proposition related to another in such a way that both may be true, but both cannot be false.
- sub-cor-tex (süb-kôr'těks) n. pl. sub-cor-ti-ces (-tī-sēz'). The portion of the brain immediately below the cerebral cortex. —sub-cor'ti-cal (-tī-kəl) adj. —sub-cor'ti-cal'ly adv.

sub-crit-i-cal (süb-krīt'ī-kəl) adj. 1. Having a mass of fissionable material that is less than that needed for a chain reaction. 2. Of less than critical importance.

sub-cul-ture (süb'kül'chər) n. 1. A cultural subgroup differentiated by status, ethnic background, residence, religion, or other factors that functionally unify the group and act collectively on each member. 2. One culture of microorganisms derived from another. —sub-cul'tur-al adj.

sub-cu-ta-ne-ous (süb'kyōō-tā'nē-əs) adj. Located, found, or placed just beneath the skin: subcutaneous tissue; a subcutaneous implant. —sub-'cu-ta'ne-ous-ly adv.

sub-cu-tis (süb-kyōō'tis) n. A layer of connective tissue beneath the dermis.

sub-dea-con (süb-dē'kən) n. 1. A cleric ranking just below a deacon. 2. A cleric who acts as assistant to the deacon at High Mass.

sub-deb (süb'dēb') n. Informal. A subdebutante.

sub-deb-u-tante (süb-dēb'yə-tänt') n. 1. A teenage girl approaching her debut. 2. A girl in her middle teens.

sub-di-ac-o-nate (süb'dī-äk'ə-nīt) n. The office, order, or rank of subdeacon. [Late Latin subdiāconātus, from subdiāconus, subdeacon (partial translation of Late Greek hupodiakonos): Latin sub-, sub- + Greek diakonos, attendant.] —sub-'di-ac'o-nal adj.

sub-di-rec-to-ry (süb'dī-rēk'tə-rē, -dī-) n. pl. sub-di-rec-to-ries. Computer Science. A subdivision of a computer directory.

sub-dis-ci-pline (süb'dis'ə-plīn) n. A field of specialized study within a broader discipline; a subfield.

sub-di-vid-e (süb'dī-vīd', süb'dī-vīd') v. sub-di-vid-ed, sub-di-vid-ing, sub-di-vides. — v. tr. 1. To divide a part or parts of into smaller parts. 2. To divide into a number of parts, especially to divide (land) into lots. — v. intr. To form into subdivisions. —sub'di-vid'er n.

sub-di-vi-sion (süb'dī-vīzh'ən, süb'dī-vīzh'ən) n. 1. a. The act or process of subdividing. b. A subdivided part. 2. An area composed of subdivided lots. —sub'di-vi'sion-al adj.

sub-dom-i-nant (süb-döm'ə-nənt) n. Music. The fourth tone of a diatonic scale, next below the dominant. — adj. 1. Zoology. Less than dominant; ranking below one that is dominant: the subdominant male in a pride of lions. 2. Ecology. Prevalent in a community but below the dominant in importance. Used of a species.

sub-duc-tion (səb-dük'shən) n. A geologic process in which one edge of one crustal plate is forced below the edge of another. [French, from Latin subductus, past participle of subducere, to draw away from below : sub-, sub- + dūcere, to lead; see deuk- in Appendix.]

sub-due (səb-doo', -dyoo') v. tr. sub-dued, sub-du-ing, sub-dues. 1. To conquer and subjugate; vanquish. See Synonyms at defeat. 2. To quiet or bring under control by physical force or persuasion; make tractable. 3. To make less intense or prominent; tone down: Subdued my excitement about the upcoming holiday. 4. To bring (land) under cultivation: Farmers subdued the arid lands of Australia. [Middle English subduen, alteration (influenced by Latin subdere, to subject), of Old French suduire, to seduce, from Latin subdūcere, to withdraw (probably influenced by Latin sēdūcere, to seduce); see SEDUCE : sub-, away; see SUB- + dūcere, to lead; see deuk- in Appendix.] —sub-du'a·ble adj.

—sub-du'er n.

sub-dur·al (səb-dōōr'əl, -dyōōr'-) adj. Located or occurring beneath the dura mater: subdural space; a subdural hematoma.

sub-em·ployed (süb'ēm-ploid') adj. Of or relating to workers or segments of the paid labor force that are unemployed, underemployed, or underpaid.

—sub'em·ploy'ment n.

sub-en·try (süb'ën'trē) n. pl. sub-en·tries. An entry, such as one in an account, a catalog, or a reference work, that is included within a main entry.

sub-e·qua·to·ri·al (süb'ē-kwə-tōr'ē-əl, -tōr'-, -ĕk-wə-) adj. Belonging to a region adjacent to an equatorial area.

su·ber·ic acid (sōō-bēr'ik äs'id) n. A colorless crystalline dibasic acid, $\text{HOOC}(\text{CH}_2)_6\text{COOH}$, used in the manufacture of plastics. [French subérique, from Latin sūber, cork.]

su·ber·in (sōō'bər-ĭn) n. A waxy waterproof substance present in the cell walls of cork tissue in plants. [French subérine : Latin sūber, cork + French -ine, adj. suff.; see *-INE*².]

su·ber·i·za·tion (sōō'bər-ĭ-zā'shən) n. Deposition of suberin on the walls of plant cells and their subsequent conversion into cork tissue.

su·ber·ize (sōō'bə-rīz') v. tr. su·ber·ized, su·ber·iz·ing, su·ber·iz·es. To cause to undergo suberization. [From Latin sūber, cork.]

su·ber·ose (sōō'bə-rōs') also su·ber·ous (-bər-əs) adj. Of, relating to, or resembling cork or cork tissue. [Latin sūber, cork + *-OSE*¹.]

sub·fam·i·ly (süb'fäm'ə-lē) n. pl. sub·fam·i·lies. 1. Biology. A taxonomic category of related organisms ranking between a family and a genus. 2. Linguistics. A division of languages below a family and above a branch.

sub·field (süb'fēld') n. 1. A subdivision of a field of study; a subdiscipline. 2. Mathematics. A field that is a subset of another field.

sub·floor·ing (süb'flōr'ing, -flōr'-) or sub·floor (-flōr', -flōr') n. A rough floor over which a finished floor, flooring material, or carpet is laid.

sub·fos·sil (süb'fōs'əl) adj. Partly fossilized: subfossil animals and plants. — n. A subfossil organism.

sub·freez·ing (süb-frē'zing) adj. Below freezing.

sub·fusc (süb-füsk') adj. Of a dark, dull, or somber color. — n. Dark, dull clothing. [Latin subfuscus, brownish : sub-, sub- + fuscus, dark.]

sub·gen·e·ra (süb'jĕn'ər-ə) n. Plural of subgenus.

sub·gen·re (süb'zhän'rə) n. A subcategory within a particular genre: The academic mystery is a subgenre of the mystery novel.

sub·ge·nus (süb'jĕ'nəs) n. pl. sub·gen·e·ra (-jĕn'ər-ə). Biology. An occasionally used taxonomic category ranking between a genus and a species. —sub·ge·ner'ic (-jə-nĕr'ik) adj.

sub·gla·cial (süb-glā'shəl) adj. Formed or deposited beneath a glacier.
—sub'gla'cial·ly adv.

sub·grade (süb'grād') n. The level layer of rock or earth upon which the foundation of a road or railway is laid.

sub·group (süb'grōöp') n. 1. A distinct group within a group; a subdivision of a group. 2. A subordinate group. 3. Mathematics. A nonempty subset of a group.

sub·gum (süb'gŭm') n. A dish of Chinese origin made with mixed vegetables. [Chinese (Cantonese) shap kam, mixture, subgum.]

sub·har·mon·ic (süb'här-mŏn'ik) adj. Of, relating to, or being a wave with a frequency that is a fraction of a fundamental frequency.

sub·head (süb'hĕd') n. 1. The heading or title of a subdivision of a printed subject. 2. A subordinate heading or title.

sub·hu·man (süb-hyōō'mən) adj. 1. Below the human race in evolutionary development. 2. Regarded as not being fully human. —sub·hu'man n.

Su·bic Bay (sōō'bik bā) An inlet of the South China Sea off west-central Luzon, Philippines, west of Manila Bay. A U.S. naval base established here in 1901 was held by the Japanese from 1942 to 1945.

sub·in·dex (süb-ĭn'dĕks) n. pl. sub·in·di·ces (-dĭ-sĕz'). 1. Mathematics. A subscript. 2. pl. sub·in·dic·es or sub·in·dex·es. An index of measurement based on relatively few variables, especially a trade index based on the performance of a particular group or type of stocks.

sub·in·dus·try (süb'ĭn'də-strĕ) n. pl. sub·in·dus·tries. 1. A subgroup within an industry. 2. A business or an industry that arises from or provides materials and services to a larger industry: a subindustry supplying accessories for home computers.

sub·in·feu·date (süb'ĭn-fyōō'dāt') also sub·in·feud (-fyōōd') v. tr.

sub·in·feu·dat·ed also sub·in·feud·ed, sub·in·feu·dat·ing also sub·in·feud·ing, sub·in·feu·dates also sub·in·feuds. To lease (lands) by subinfeudation.

sub·in·feu·da·tion (süb'ĭn-fyōō-dā'shən) n. 1. The sublease of a portion of a feudal estate by a vassal to a subtenant who pays fealty to the vassal. 2. The lands so leased. —sub'ĭn·feu'da·to'ry (-fyōō'də-tŏr'ĕ, -tŏr'ĕ) adj.

sub-ir-ri-gate (süb-îr'î-gāt') v. tr. sub-ir-ri-gat-ed, sub-ir-ri-gat-ing, sub-ir-ri-gates. To irrigate from beneath, as by underground pipes. —sub-ir-ri-ga'tion n.

su-bi-to (sōō'bē-tō') adv. Music. Quickly; suddenly. Used chiefly as a direction. [Italian, from Latin subitō, from neuter ablative sing. of subitus, sudden from past participle of subīre, to come secretly. See SUDDEN.]

subj. abbr. 1. Subject. 2. Subjective. 3. Subjunctive.

sub-ja-cent (süb-jā'sənt) adj. 1. Located beneath or below; underlying.

2. Lying at a lower level but not directly beneath. [Latin subiacēns, subiacent- present participle of subiacēre, to lie beneath : sub-, sub- + iacēre, to lie; see yē- in Appendix.] —sub-ja'cen-cy n.

sub-ject (süb'jikt) adj. 1. Being in a position or in circumstances that place one under the power or authority of another or others: All citizens in this nation are subject to the law. 2. Prone; disposed: a child who is subject to colds. 3. Likely to incur or receive; exposed: a directive that could be subject to misinterpretation.

4. Contingent or dependent: Your vacation is subject to the changing weather patterns. — n. Abbr. subj. 1. One who is under the rule of another or others, especially one who owes allegiance to a government or ruler.

2. a. One concerning which something is said or done: She is a subject of gossip in the office.

b. Something that is treated or indicated in a work of art. c. Music. A theme of a composition, especially a fugue. 3. A course or area of study: Math is her best subject. 4. A basis for action; a cause. 5. a. One that experiences or is subjected to something: They made him the subject of ridicule. b. One that is the object of clinical study: The experiment involved 12 subjects. c. One who is under surveillance: The subject was observed leaving the scene of the murder. d. A corpse intended for study and dissection. 6. Grammar. The noun, noun phrase, or pronoun in a sentence or clause that denotes the doer of the action or what is described by the predicate and that in some languages, such as English, can be identified by its characteristic position in simple sentences and in other languages, such as Latin, by inflectional endings. 7. Logic. The term of a proposition about which something is affirmed or denied. 8. Philosophy. a. The essential nature or substance of something as distinguished from its attributes. b. The mind or thinking part as distinguished from the object of thought. — v. tr.

sub-ject-ed, sub-ject-ing, sub-jects (səb-jëkt'). 1. To submit for consideration. 2. To submit to the authority of. 3. To expose to something: The patients on that ward were subjected to infection. 4. To cause to experience: The campers were subjected to extreme weather. 5. To subjugate; subdue. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin sūbiectus, from past participle of sūbicere, to subject : sub-, sub- + iacere, to throw; see yē- in Appendix.] —sub-jec'tion (səb-jëk'shən) n.

SYNONYMS: subject, matter, topic, theme. These nouns denote the principal idea or point of a speech, a piece of writing, or an artistic work. Subject is the most general: “Well, honor is the subject of my story” (Shakespeare). Matter refers to the material that is the object of thought or discourse: “This distinction seems to me to go to the root of the matter” (William James). A topic is a subject of discussion, argument, or conversation: “They would talk of nothing but high life... with other fashionable topics, such as pictures, taste, Shakespeare” (Oliver Goldsmith). Theme refers especially to a subject, an idea, a point of view, or a perception that is developed and expanded on in a work of art: “To produce a mighty book, you must choose a mighty theme” (Herman Melville). See also Synonyms at citizen dependent sub·jec·tive (səb-jĕk'tĭv) adj. Abbr. subj. 1. a. Proceeding from or taking place within a person's mind such as to be unaffected by the external world. b. Particular to a given person; personal: subjective experience. 2. Moodily introspective. 3. Existing only in the mind; illusory. 4. Psychology. Existing only within the experiencer's mind. 5. Medicine. Of, relating to, or designating a symptom or condition perceived by the patient and not by the examiner. 6. Expressing or bringing into prominence the individuality of the artist or author. 7. Grammar. Relating to or being the nominative case. 8. Relating to the real nature of something; essential. —sub·jec'tive·ly adv. —sub·jec'tive·ness, sub·jec'tiv/i·ty (sŭb'jĕk-tĭv'ĭ-tē) n.

subjective idealism (səb-jĕk'tĭv ĭ-dĕ'ə-lĭz'əm) n. Philosophy. The theory that nature has no objective existence independent of the minds that perceive it.

sub·jec'tiv·ism (səb-jĕk'tə-vĭz'əm) n. 1. The quality of being subjective. 2. a. The doctrine that all knowledge is restricted to the conscious self and its sensory states. b. A theory or doctrine that emphasizes the subjective elements in experience. 3. The theory that individual conscience is the only valid standard of moral judgment. —sub·jec'tiv·ist n. —sub·jec'tiv·is'tic adj.

subject matter (sŭb'jĭkt măt'ər) n. Matter under consideration in a written work or speech; a theme.

subject quote (sŭb'jĭkt kwōt) n. Business. See nominal quote.

sub·join (səb-join') v. tr. sub·joined, sub·join·ing, sub·joins. To add at the end; append. [Obsolete French subjoindre, from Latin subiungere: sub-, sub- + iungere, to join; see yeug- in Appendix.]

sub·join·der (səb-join'dər) n. Something subjoined. [From SUBJOIN (on the model of REJOINER).]

sub ju·di·ce (sŭb jōō'dĭ-sē', soŭb yōō'dĭ-kā') adv. Law. Under judicial deliberation; before a judge or court of law. [Latin sub iudice: sub, beneath, before + iudice ablative of iudex, iudic-, judge.]

sub·ju·gate (süb'jə-gāt') v. tr. sub·ju·gat·ed, sub·ju·gat·ing, sub·ju·gates. 1. To bring under control; conquer. See Synonyms at defeat.

2. To make subservient; enslave. [Middle English subjugaten, from Latin subiugāre, subiugāt- : sub-, sub- + iugum, yoke; see yeug- in Appendix.] —sub·ju·ga'tion n. —sub·ju·ga'tor n.

sub·junc·tion (səb-jüŋk'shən) n. 1. The act of subjoining or the condition of being subjoined. 2. Something subjoined. [Late Latin subiunctiō, subiunctiōn-, from Latin subiunctus, past participle of subiungere, to subjoin. See SUBJOIN.] sub·junc·tive (səb-jüŋk'tiv) Grammar. adj. Abbr. subj. Of, relating to, or being a mood of a verb used in some languages for contingent or hypothetical action, action viewed subjectively, or grammatically subordinate statements. — n. Abbr. subj. 1. The subjunctive mood. 2. A subjunctive construction. See Usage Note at if. [Late Latin subiunctivus, from Latin subiunctus, past participle of subiungere, to subjoin, subordinate. See SUBJOIN.] sub·king·dom (süb'king'dəm) n. Biology. A taxonomic category of related organisms constituting a major division of a kingdom.

sub·late (süb'lāt') v. tr. sub·lat·ed, sub·lat·ing, sub·lates. Logic. To negate, deny, or contradict. [From Latin sublātus, past participle of tollere, to take away : sub-, sub- + lātus, taken; see tel- in Appendix.]

sub·lease (süb'lēs') *v. tr. sub·leased, sub·leas·ing, sub·leas·es. 1. To sublet (property). 2. To rent (property) under a sublease. — n. (süb'lēs') A lease of property granted by a lessee.*

sub·let (süb'lēt') *v. tr. sub·let, sub·let·ting, sub·lets. 1. To rent (property one holds by lease) to another. 2. To subcontract (work). — n. (süb'lēt') Property, especially an apartment, rented by a tenant to another party.*

sub·le·thal (süb-lē'thəl) adj. Less than lethal: sublethal dosages.
—sub·le'thal·ly adv.

sub·li·cense (süb-lī'səns) n. A license giving rights of production or marketing of products or services to a person or company that is not the primary holder of such rights. — v. tr. sub·li·censed, sub·li·cens·ing, sub·li·cens·es. To grant a sublicense to or for. —sub·li·cen·see' n.

sub·li·mate (süb'lə-māt') v. sub·li·mat·ed, sub·li·mat·ing, sub·li·mates.
— v. tr. 1. Chemistry. To cause (a solid or gas) to change state without becoming a liquid. 2. Psychology. To modify the natural expression of (an instinctual impulse, especially a sexual one) in a socially acceptable manner. — v. intr. Chemistry. To transform directly from the solid to the gaseous state or from the gaseous to the solid state without becoming a liquid. [Latin sublimāre, sublimāt-, to elevate, from sublimis, uplifted.]

sub·li·ma·tion (süb'lə-mā'shən) n. 1. The act or process of sublimating. 2. Something that has been sublimated.

sub·lime (sə-blīm') adj. 1. Characterized by nobility; majestic. 2. a. Of high spiritual, moral, or intellectual worth. b. Not to be excelled; supreme. 3. Inspiring awe; impressive. 4. Archaic. Raised aloft; set high. 5. Obsolete. Of lofty appearance or bearing; haughty: “not terrible,/That I should fear... /But solemn and sublime” (John Milton). — n. 1. Something sublime. 2. An ultimate example. — v. sub·limed, sub·lim·ing, sub·limes. — v. tr. 1. To render sublime. 2. Chemistry. To cause to sublime. — v. intr. Chemistry. To sublime. [French, from Old French, sublimated, from Latin sublimis, uplifted.] — sub·lime'ly adv. — sub·lime'ness, sub·lim'i·ty (sə-blīm'ī-tē) n.

sub·lim·i·nal (süb-līm'ə-nəl) adj. Psychology. 1. Below the threshold of conscious perception. Used of stimuli. 2. Inadequate to produce conscious awareness but able to evoke a response: subliminal propaganda. [SUB- + Latin limen, līmin-, threshold.] — sub·lim'i·nal·ly adv.

sub·lim·it (süb-līm'it) n. A limit or ceiling placed on a subdivision of a larger category, especially of nuclear weapons: negotiating sublimits on the number of land-based, intermediate-range missiles. Also called subceiling sub·lin·gual (süb-līng'gwəl) adj. Situated beneath or on the underside of the tongue. — n. A sublingual part, such as a gland, an artery, or a duct.

— sub·lin'gual·ly adv.

sub·lit·er·ar·y (süb-līt'ə-rēr'-ē) adj. 1. Of, relating to, having the qualities of, or producing subliterate. 2. Not written as or intended to be literature: subliterary works such as letters and diaries.

sub·lit·er·ate (süb-līt'ər-īt) adj. 1. Not interested in or able to read artistic literature. 2. Of, relating to, or being language that is dialectal, slangy, or full of jargon.

sub·lit·er·a·ture (süb'līt'ər-chōōr', -chər) n. Writings, such as romance novels and mysteries, that appeal to popular tastes and are considered inferior in style and content to more artistic literature.

sub·lit·to·ral (süb-līt'ər-əl) adj. 1. Of or situated near the seashore. 2. Lying between the low tide line and the edge of the continental shelf or ranging in depth to about 100 fathoms or 200 meters (660 feet).

sub·lu·na·ry (süb-lōō'nə-rē, süb'lōō-nēr'ē) also sub·lu·nar (-lōō'nər) adj. 1. Situated beneath the moon. 2. Of this world; earthly. [Late Latin sublūnāris: Latin sub-, sub- + Latin lūna, moon; see leuk- in Appendix.]

sub·lux·a·tion (süb'lük-sā'shən) n. Incomplete or partial dislocation of a bone in a joint.

sub·ma·chine gun (süb'mə-shēn' gūn) n. A lightweight automatic gun fired from the shoulder or hip.

sub·man·dib·u·lar (süb'män-dīb'yə-lər) adj. Submaxillary.

sub·mar·gin·al (süb-mär'jə-nəl) adj. 1. Near the margin of a body, an organ, or a part: submarginal tentacles. 2. Of low productivity; infertile.

sub·ma·rine (süb'mə-rēn', süb'mə-rēn') n. 1. A ship capable of operating submerged. Also called *sub*¹ 2. A large sandwich consisting of a long roll split lengthwise and filled with layers of meat, cheese, tomatoes, lettuce, and condiments. In this sense, also called *Regional. bomberRegional., Cuban sandwichRegional., grinder, heroRegional., hoagieRegional., ItalianRegional., Italian sandwichRegional., poor boy, sub*¹*Regional., torpedoRegional., wedgeRegional., zep.* — adj. Beneath the surface of the water; undersea. — v. sub·ma·rined, sub·ma·rin·ing, sub·ma·rines. — v. tr. 1. To attack by submarine, especially with torpedoes. 2. Sports. To knock down with a blow to the legs. 3. Baseball. To pitch (a ball) with an underhand motion. — v. intr. 1. To operate a submarine. 2. To slide, drive, or throw under something.

REGIONAL NOTE: The long sandwich featuring layers of meat and cheese on a crusty Italian roll goes by a variety of names. Submarine, sub, and hero are widespread terms, not assignable to any particular region. Most of the localized terms are clustered in the northeast United States, where the greatest numbers of Italian Americans live. Jane Stern, having studied the great variety of American names for this sandwich, finds that upstate New Yorkers call it a bomber, while speakers downstate refer to a wedge. In the Delaware Valley, including Philadelphia and southern New Jersey, the sandwich is called a hoagie. In Italian restaurants in New England the menu is likely to include a grinder. Speakers in Miami use the name Cuban sandwich and in Maine, Italian sandwich, but in the southern Midwest, according to Stern, the name Italian is common, with both Italian and Italian sandwich recapturing the authentic nationality of the sandwich. In New Orleans the same sandwich is called a poor boy and is likely to be offered in a most un-Italian version featuring fried oysters.

submarine chaser (süb'mə-rēn' chā'sər) n. A small, fast ship equipped to pursue and attack submarines.

sub·ma·rin·er (süb-mə-rē'nər, süb'mär'ə-nər) n. A member of the crew of a submarine.

sub·mar·ket (süb'mär'kīt) n. A geographic, economic, or specialized subdivision of a market. — adj. Being below what is usual in a particular market: submarket wages; submarket interest rates.

sub·max·il·la (süb'māk-sil'ə) n. pl. sub·max·il·lae (-māk-sil'ē). The lower jaw or mandible, especially in human beings.

sub·max·il·lar·y (süb-māk'sə-lēr'ē) adj. 1. Of or relating to the lower jaw: a submaxillary fracture. 2. Situated beneath the maxilla: the submaxillary salivary glands. — n. pl. sub·max·il·lar·ies. An anatomical part, such as a gland or nerve, that is situated beneath the maxilla.

sub-me-di-ant (süb-mē'dē-ənt) n. Music. The sixth tone of a diatonic scale.

Also called superdominant sub-merge (səb-mûrj') v. submerged, sub-merg-ing, sub-merg-es. — v. tr. 1. To place under water. See Synonyms at dip. 2. To cover with water; inundate. 3. To hide from view; obscure. — v. intr. To go under or as if under water. [Latin submergere : sub-, sub- + mergere, to plunge.] —sub-mer'gence n.

submerged (səb-mûrjd') adj. 1. Botany. Growing or remaining under water: submerged leaves. 2. Living in poverty or misery. 3. Having been hidden.

sub-mer-gi-ble (səb-mûr'jə-bəl) adj. That can be immersed in or can remain under water: a submergible electric frying pan; a submergible research vehicle.

—sub-mer'gi-bil'i-ty n.

sub-merse (səb-mûrs') v. tr. sub-mersed, sub-mers-ing, sub-mers-es. To submerge. [Probably back-formation from submersion, act of submerging, from Late Latin submersiō, submersiōn-, from Latin submersus, past participle of submergere, to submerge. See SUBMERGE.] —sub-mer'sion (-mûr'zhən, -shən) n.

sub-mersed (səb-mûrst') adj. Botany. Growing or remaining under water.

sub-mers-i-ble (səb-mûr'sə-bəl) adj. Submergible. — n. A vessel capable of operating or remaining under water.

sub-mi-cro-scop-ic (süb'mī-krə-sköp'ik) adj. Too small to be resolved by an optical microscope. —sub'mi-cro-scop'i-cal-ly adv.

sub-min-i-a-ture (süb-mĭn'ē-ə-chōōr', -chər) adj. Smaller than miniature; exceedingly small.

sub-min-i-a-tur-ize (süb'mĭn'ē-ə-chə-rīz') v. tr. sub-min-i-a-tur-ized, sub-min-i-a-tur-iz-ing, sub-min-i-a-tur-iz-es. To make subminiature, especially to manufacture or design (electronic equipment) in subminiature size. —sub-min'i-a-tur-i-za'tion (-chər-ĭ-zā'shən) n.

sub-min-i-mum wage (süb'mĭn'ə-məm wāj, süb-mĭn'-) n. A wage paid under certain conditions to certain categories of workers, such as trainees, that is less than the established minimum wage.

sub-miss (səb-mĭs') adj. Archaic. Submissive. [Latin submitus, past participle of submittere, to set under. See SUBMIT.]

sub-mis-sion (səb-mĭsh'ən) n. 1. a. The act of submitting to the power of another: "Oppression that cannot be overcome does not give rise to revolt but to submission" (Simone Weil). b. The state of having submitted. See Synonyms at surrender. 2. The state of being submissive or compliant; meekness. 3. a. The act of submitting something for consideration. b. Something so submitted: read three fiction manuscripts and other such submissions. [Middle English submissioun, from Old French submission, from Latin submissiō, submissiōn-, a lowering, from submitus, past participle of submittere, to set under. See SUBMIT.]

sub-mis-sive (səb-mis'iv) adj. Inclined or willing to submit. See Synonyms at obedient. — sub-mis'sive-ly adv. — sub-mis'sive-ness n.

sub-mit (səb-mīt') v. sub-mit-ted, sub-mit-ting, sub-mits. — v. tr. 1. To yield or surrender (oneself) to the will or authority of another: "Nothing but contempt is due to those people who ask us to submit to unmerited oppression" (Christabel Pankhurst). 2. To subject to a condition or process. 3. To commit (something) to the consideration or judgment of another. See Synonyms at propose. 4. To offer as a proposition or contention: I submit that the terms are entirely unreasonable. — v. intr. 1. To give in to the authority, power, or desires of another. See Synonyms at yield. 2. To allow oneself to be subjected to something. [Middle English submitten, from Latin submittere, to set under : sub-, sub- + mittere, to cause to go.] — sub-mit'tal (-mīt'l) n. — sub-mit'ter n.

sub-mon-tane (süb'mön'tän', -mön-tän') adj. Located under or at the base of a mountain or mountain range.

sub-mu-co-sa (süb'myō-kō'sə) n. A layer of loose connective tissue beneath a mucous membrane. — sub'mu-co'sal adj. — sub'mu-co'sal-ly adv.

sub-mul-ti-ple (süb-mül'tə-pəl) n. Mathematics. A number that is an exact divisor of another number.

sub-net (süb'nět') n. A system of interconnections within a communications system that allows the components to communicate directly with each other.

sub-nor-mal (süb-nôr'məl) adj. Less than normal; below the average. — n. One who is regarded as subnormal in some respect, such as in intelligence or coordination. — sub'nor-mal'i-ty (-nôr-mäl'ĭ-tē) n.

sub-nu-cle-ar (süb-nōō'klē-ər, -nyōō'-) adj. Of or located within the nucleus of an atom; smaller than the nucleus.

sub-o-ce-an-ic (süb'ō-shē-än'ĭk) adj. Formed, situated, or occurring beneath the ocean or the ocean bed.

sub-or-bi-tal (süb-ôr'bĭ-tl) adj. 1. Having or following a trajectory of less than one orbit. Used of a rocket or spacecraft. 2. Anatomy. Situated on or below the floor of the orbit of the eye. — n. A suborbital part, such as a bone, nerve, or cartilage.

sub-or-der (süb'ôr'dər) n. 1. Biology. A taxonomic category of related organisms ranking between an order and a family. 2. A subdivision of a category termed an order.

sub-or-di-nate (sə-bôr'dn-ĭt) adj. 1. Belonging to a lower or inferior class or rank; secondary. 2. Subject to the authority or control of another. — n. One that is subordinate. — v. tr. sub-or-di-nat-ed, sub-or-di-nat-ing, sub-or-di-nates (sə-bôr'dn-āt'). 1. To put in a lower or inferior rank or class. 2. To make subservient; subdue. [Middle English subordinat, from Medieval Latin subordinātus, past participle of subordināre, to put in a lower rank : Latin sub-, sub- + Latin ordināre, to set in order (from ōrdō, ōrdin-, order); see ar- in subordinate clause (sə-bôr'dn-īt klôz) n. Grammar. See dependent clause.

Appendix.] —sub-or'di-nate-ly adv. —sub-or'di-nate-ness, sub-or'di-na'-tion (-nā'shən) n. —sub-or'di-na'tive (-nə'tiv) adj.

subordinate conjunction (sə-bôr'dn-īt kən-jüŋk'shən) n. Grammar. A conjunction, such as that, who, which, and where, that introduces a dependent clause.

sub-orn (sə-bôr'n) v. tr. sub-orned, sub-orn-ing, sub-orns. 1. To induce (a person) to commit an unlawful or evil act. 2. Law. a. To induce (a person) to commit perjury. b. To procure (perjured testimony). [Latin subörnäre : sub-, secretly; see SUB- + örnäre, to equip; see ar- in Appendix.] —sub'or-na'tion (süb'ôr-nā'shən) n. —sub-orn'er n.

Su-bo-ti-ca also Su-bo-ti-tsa (sōō'bə-tē'tsə, -bô-) A city of northeast Yugoslavia near the Hungarian border. It is a railroad junction and an industrial center. Population, 93,500.

sub-oxide (süb-ök'sid') n. An oxide containing a relatively small amount of oxygen.

sub-par (süb-pär') adj. 1. Not measuring up to traditional standards of performance, value, or production. 2. Sports. Below par in a hole, round, or game of golf.

sub-per-i-os-te-al (süb'pēr-ē-ös'tē-əl) adj. Beneath the periosteum: subperiosteal tooth implants.

sub-phy-lum (süb'fī'ləm) n. pl. sub-phy-la (-lə). Biology. A taxonomic category of related organisms ranking between a phylum and a class.

sub-plot (süb'plöt') n. 1. A plot subordinate to the main plot of a literary work or film. Also called counterplot, underplot. 2. A subdivision of a plot of land, especially a plot used for experimental purposes.

sub-poe-na (sə-pē'nə) Law. n. A writ requiring appearance in court to give testimony. — v. tr. sub-poe-naed, sub-poe-na-ing, sub-poe-nas. To serve or summon with such a writ. [Middle English suppena, from Medieval Latin sub poenā, under a penalty (from the opening words of the writ) : Latin sub, under; see SUB- + Latin poenā, ablative of poena, penalty from Greek poinë. See k^wei-¹ in Appendix.]

sub-pop-u-la-tion (süb'pöp-yə-lā'shən) n. A part or subdivision of a population, especially one originating from some other population: microbial subpopulations.

sub-po-ten-cy (süb-pöt'n-sē) n. 1. Reduction in potency, as of a drug. 2. Reduction in the power to transmit hereditary characteristics. —sub-po'tent adj.

sub-prin-ci-pal (süb-prīn'sə-pəl) n. 1. An assistant school principal. 2. An auxiliary or bracing rafter in a frame. 3. Music. An open diapason subbass in an organ.

sub-pro-fes-sion-al (süb'prə-fěsh'ə-nəl) n. A paraprofessional. —sub-'pro-fes'sion-al adj.

sub-pro-gram (süb'prō'grām, -grəm) n. Computer Science. A program contained within another program that operates semi-independently of the encasing program.

sub-re-gion (süb'rē'jən) n. A subdivision of a region, especially an ecological region. —sub/re'gion-al adj.

sub-rep-tion (süb-rěp'shən) n. 1. A calculated misrepresentation through concealment of the facts. 2. An inference drawn from such a misrepresentation. [Late Latin subreptiō, subreptiōn-, from Latin, theft, from subreptus, past participle of surripere, subripere, to take away secretly. See SURREPTITIOUS.] —sub-'rep-ti'tious (-tīsh'əs) adj.

sub-ring (süb'rīng') n. Mathematics. A subset of a ring that is itself a ring.

sub-ro-gate (süb'rō-gāt') v. tr. sub-ro-gat-ed, sub-ro-gat-ing, sub-ro-gates. To substitute (one person) for another. [Middle English subrogaten*, from Latin subrogāre, subrogāt- : sub-, instead of; see SUB- + rogāre, to ask; see reg- in Appendix.]

sub-ro-ga-tion (süb'rō-gā'shən) n. The substitution of one person for another, especially the legal doctrine of substituting one creditor for another.

sub ro-sa (süb rō'zə) adv. In secret; privately or confidentially: held the meeting sub rosa. [Latin sub rosā, under the rose (from the practice of hanging a rose over a meeting as a symbol of confidentiality) : sub, under + rosā, ablative of rosa, rose.]

sub-ro-sa (səb-rō'zə) adj. Secret, private, or confidential: a sub-rosa agreement.

sub-rou-tine (süb'rōō-tēn') n. Computer Science. A set of instructions that performs a specific task for a main routine, requiring direction back to the proper place in the main routine on completion of the task.

subs. abbr. Subscription.

sub-Sa-har-an (süb'sə-hār'ən, -här'-, -här'-) adj. Of, relating to, or situated in the region of Africa south of the Sahara.

sub-sam-ple (süb'sām'pəl) n. A sample drawn from a larger sample. — v. tr. sub-sam-pled, sub-sam-pling, sub-sam-ples (süb-sām'pəl). To take a sub-sample from (a larger sample).

sub-scap-u-lar (süb-skäp'yə-lər) Anatomy. adj. Situated below or on the underside of the scapula. — n. A subscapular part, such as an artery or a nerve.

sub-scribe (səb-skrīb') v. sub-scribed, sub-scrib-ing, sub-scribes. — v. tr. 1. To pledge or contribute (a sum of money). 2. To sign (one's name) at the end of a document. 3. To sign one's name to in attestation, testimony, or consent:

subscribe a will. — v. intr. 1. To contract to receive and pay for a certain number of issues of a publication, for tickets to a series of events or performances, or for a utility service, for example. 2. To promise to pay or contribute money: subscribe to a charity. 3. To feel or express hearty approval: I subscribe to your opinion. See Synonyms at assent. 4. To sign one's name. 5. To affix one's signature to a document as a witness or to show consent. [Middle English subscriben, from Latin subscribere: sub-, sub- + scribere, to write; see skribh- in Appendix.]

—sub-scrib'er n.

sub-script (süb'skript') n. A distinguishing character or symbol written directly beneath or next to and slightly below a letter or number. — adj. Written beneath. [From Latin subscriptus, past participle of subscribere, to subscribe. See SUBSCRIBE.]

sub-scrip-tion (səb-skrɪp'shən) n. Abbr. subs. 1. A purchase made by signed order, as for a periodical for a specified period of time or for a series of performances. 2. Acceptance, as of articles of faith, demonstrated by the signing of one's name. 3. a. The raising of money from subscribers. b. A sum of money so raised. 4. The signing of one's name, as to a document. 5. Something subscribed. [Middle English subscription, from Old French subscription, from Latin subscriptiō, subscriptiōn-, something written underneath, from subscriptus, past participle of subscribere, to subscribe. See SUBSCRIBE.] —sub-scrip'tive adj.

—sub-scrip'tive-ly adv.

sub-se-quence (süb'si-kwəns', -kwəns) n. 1. Something that is subsequent; a sequel. 2. The fact or quality of being subsequent. 3. (-sē'kwəns) Mathematics. A sequence that is contained in another sequence.

sub-se-quent (süb'si-kwənt', -kwənt) adj. Following in time or order; succeeding. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin subsequēns, subsequent- present participle of subsequi, to follow close after: sub-, close after; see SUB- + sequi, to follow; see sek^w-1 in Appendix.] —sub/se-quent'ly adv. —sub-se-quent'ness n.

sub-sere (süb'sîr') n. Ecology. A secondary series of ecological communities beginning after succession has been interrupted by fire, grazing, agriculture, or another destructive agent.

sub-serve (səb-sûrv') v. tr. sub-served, sub-serv-ing, sub-serves. To serve to promote (an end); be useful to. [Latin subservire: sub-, sub- + servire, to serve; see SERVE.]

sub-ser-vi-ent (səb-sûr'vĕ-ənt) adj. 1. Subordinate in capacity or function. 2. Obsequious; servile. 3. Useful as a means or an instrument; serving to promote an end. [Latin subserviēns, subservient- present participle of subservire, to subservise. See SUBSERVE.] —sub-ser/vi-ence, sub-ser/vi-en-cy n.

—sub-ser/vi-ent-ly adv.

sub-set (süb'sĕt') n. A set contained within a set.

sub-shell (süb/'shĕl') n. One or more orbitals in the electron shell of an atom.

sub-shrub (süb/'shrüb') n. 1. An herb having a woody lower stem. 2. A low shrub; an undershrub.

sub-side (səb-sīd') v. intr. sub-sid-ed, sub-sid-ing, sub-sides. 1. To sink to a lower or normal level. 2. To sink or settle down, as into a sofa. 3. To sink to the bottom, as a sediment. 4. To become less agitated or active; abate. See Synonyms at decrease. [Latin subsīdere : sub-, sub- + sīdere, to settle; see sed- in Appendix.] —sub-si'dence (səb-sīd'/ns, süb/'sī-dns) n.

sub-sid-i-ar-y (səb-sīd'ē-ēr'ē) adj. 1. Serving to assist or supplement; auxiliary. 2. Secondary in importance; subordinate. 3. Of, relating to, or of the nature of a subsidy. — n. pl. sub-sid-i-ar-ies. 1. One that is subsidiary to another. 2. A subsidiary company. 3. Music. A theme subordinate to a main theme or subject. [Latin subsidiārius, from subsidium, support. See SUBSIDY.] —sub-sid'i-ar'i-ly (-âr'ə-lē) adv.

subsidiary cell (səb-sīd'ē-ēr'ē sĕl) n. A plant epidermal cell that is associated with guard cells and differs morphologically from other epidermal cells. Also called accessory cell subsidiary company (səb-sīd'ē-ēr'ē kŭm'pə-nē) n. A company having more than half of its stock owned by another company.

sub-si-dize (süb/'sī-dīz') v. tr. sub-si-dized, sub-si-diz-ing, sub-si-diz-es.

1. To assist or support with a subsidy. 2. To secure the assistance of by granting a subsidy. —sub'si-di-za'tion (-dī-zā'shən) n. —sub'si-diz'er n.

sub-si-dy (süb/'sī-dē) n. pl. sub-si-dies. 1. Monetary assistance granted by a government to a person or group in support of an enterprise regarded as being in the public interest. See Synonyms at bonus. 2. Financial assistance given by one person or government to another. 3. Money formerly granted to the British Crown by Parliament. [Middle English subsīdie, from Anglo-Norman, from Latin subsidium, support : sub-, behind, beneath; see SUB- + sedēre, to sit; see sed- in Appendix.]

sub-sist (səb-sīst') v. sub-sist-ed, sub-sist-ing, sub-sists. — v. intr.

1. a. To exist; be. b. To remain or continue in existence. See Synonyms at be.

2. To maintain life; live: subsisted on one meal a day. 3. To be logically conceivable. — v. tr. To maintain or support with provisions. [Latin subsistere, to support : sub-, sub- + sistere, to stand; see stā- in Appendix.] —sub-sist'er n.

sub-sis-tence (səb-sīs'təns) n. 1. The act or state of subsisting. 2. A means of subsisting, especially means barely sufficient to maintain life. See Synonyms at livelihood. 3. Something that has real or substantial existence. 4. Theology. Hypostasis. —sub-sis'tent adj.

sub-soil (süb/'soil') n. The layer or bed of earth beneath the topsoil. — v. tr.

sub-soiled, sub-soil-ing, sub-soils. To plow or turn up the subsoil of.

—sub/soil'er n.

sub-so-lar (süb-sō'lär) adj. 1. Situated directly beneath the sun. 2. Located between the tropics; equatorial.

sub-son-ic (süb-sön'ik) adj. 1. Of less than audible frequency. 2. Having a speed less than that of sound in a designated medium.

subsp. abbr. Subspecies.

sub-spe-cial-ize (süb'spësh'ə-līz') v. intr. sub-spe-cial-ized, sub-spe-cial-iz-ing, sub-spe-cial-iz-es. To have or pursue a subspecialty: sub-specialize in cosmetic surgery. —sub-spe'cial-ist (-spësh'ə-līst) n. —sub-spe'cial-i-za'tion (-spësh'ə-lī-zā'shən) n.

sub-spe-cial-ty (süb'spësh'əl-tē) n. pl. sub-spe-cial-ties. A narrow field of study or work within a specialty, as pediatric dermatology or geriatric psychiatry.

sub-spe-cies (süb'spē'shēz, -sēz) n. pl. subspecies. Abbr. ssp., subsp. Biology. A subdivision of a taxonomic species, usually based on geographic distribution. —sub'spe-cif'ic (-spī-sif'ik) adj.

subst. abbr. 1. Substantive. 2. Substitute.

sub-stage (süb'stāj') n. The part of a microscope located below the stage on which attachments are held in place.

sub-stance (süb'stəns) n. 1. a. That which has mass and occupies space; matter. b. A material of a particular kind or constitution. 2. a. Essential nature; essence. b. Gist; heart. 3. That which is solid and practical in character, quality, or importance: a plan without substance. 4. Density; body: Air has little substance. 5. Material possessions; goods; wealth: a person of substance. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin substantia, from substāns, substant- present participle of substāre, to be present : sub-, sub- + stāre, to stand; see stā- in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: substance, burden², core, gist, pith, purport. The central meaning shared by these nouns is “the essential import or significance of something spoken or written”: the substance of her complaint; the burden of the President's speech; the core of an article; the gist of the prosecutor's argument; the pith and marrow of an essay; the purport of a document.

substance abuse (süb'stəns ə-byōōz') n. Excessive use of addictive substances, especially alcohol and narcotic drugs. Also called chemical abuse —sub-stance abuser n.

substance P (süb'stəns pē) n. A short-chain polypeptide that functions as a neurotransmitter especially in the transmission of pain impulses from peripheral receptors to the central nervous system.

sub-stan-dard (süb-stän'dərd) adj. 1. Failing to meet a standard; below standard. 2. Linguistics. a. Of, relating to, or indicating a pattern of linguistic usage that does not conform to that of the prestige group in a speech community or to that of the standard language. b. Not in accord with notions of good English; nonstandard. See Usage Note at nonstandard.

sub·stan·ti·a ge·lat·i·no·sa (səb-stăn'shē-ə jə-lăt'n-ō'sə) n. A narrow, dense, vertical band of gelatinous gray matter forming the dorsal part of the posterior column of the spinal cord and serving to integrate the sensory stimuli that give rise to the sensations of heat and pain. [New Latin substantia gelatinosa : Latin substantia, substance + New Latin gelatinosus, gelatinous.]

sub·stan·tial (səb-stăn'shəl) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or having substance; material. 2. True or real; not imaginary. 3. Solidly built; strong. 4. Ample; sustaining: a substantial breakfast. 5. Considerable in importance, value, degree, amount, or extent: won by a substantial margin. 6. Possessing wealth or property; well-to-do. — n. 1. An essential. Often used in the plural. 2. A solid thing. Often used in the plural. [Middle English substancial, from Old French substantiel, from Latin substantiālis, from substantia, substance. See SUBSTANCE.]

—sub·stan'ti·al'i·ty (-shē-ăl'i-tē), sub·stan'tial·ness (-shəl-nīs) n.

—sub·stan'tial·ly adv.

substantia ni·gra (səb-stăn'shē-ə nī'grə, nīg'rə) n. A layer of large, pigmented nerve cells in the mesencephalon that produce dopamine and whose destruction is associated with Parkinson's disease. [New Latin : Latin substantia, substance + Latin nigra, feminine of niger, black.]

sub·stan·ti·ate (səb-stăn'shē-āt') v. tr. sub·stan·ti·at·ed, sub·stan·ti·at·ing, sub·stan·ti·ates. 1. To support with proof or evidence; verify: substantiate an accusation. See Synonyms at confirm. 2. a. To give material form to; embody. b. To make firm or solid. 3. To give substance to; make real or actual. [New Latin substantiāre, substantiāt-, from Latin substantia, substance. See SUBSTANCE.] —sub·stan'ti·a'tion n.

sub·stan·ti·val (süb'stən-tī'vəl) adj. Grammar. Of or relating to the nature of a substantive. —sub'stan·ti'val·ly adv.

sub·stan·tive (süb'stən-tīv) adj. Abbr. s., sb., subst. 1. Substantial; considerable. 2. Independent in existence or function; not subordinate. 3. Not imaginary; actual; real. 4. Of or relating to the essence or substance; essential: substantive information. 5. Having a solid basis; firm. 6. Grammar. Expressing or designating existence; for example, the verb to be. 7. Grammar. Designating a noun or noun equivalent. — n. Abbr. s., sb., subst. Grammar. A word or group of words functioning as a noun. [Middle English substantif, self-sufficient, independent, from Old French, substantive, from Late Latin substantivus, from Latin substantia, substance. See SUBSTANCE.] —sub'stan·tive·ly adv.

—sub'stan·tive·ness n.

substantive right (süb'stən-tīv rīt) n. A basic right, such as life or liberty, seen as constituting part of the order of society and considered independent of and not subordinate to the body of human law.

sub-sta-tion (süb/'stā'shən) n. A subsidiary or branch station, as of a post office or an electric utility.

sub-stit-u-ent (səb-stīch/'ōō-ənt) n. An atom, a radical, or a group substituted for another in a chemical compound. — adj. Of or relating to such an atom or group. [Latin substituēns, substituent- present participle of substituere, to substitute. See SUBSTITUTE.]

sub-sti-tute (süb/'stī-tōōt', -tyōōt') n. Abbr. subst. 1. One that takes the place of another; a replacement: “Fantasies are more than substitutes for unpleasant reality” (Barbara Grizzuti Harrison). 2. Grammar. A word or construction used in place of another word, phrase, or clause. — v. sub-sti-tut-ed, sub-sti-tut-ing, sub-sti-tutes. — v. tr. To put or use (a person or thing) in place of another: “substituting moral power for physical force” (Elizabeth Cady Stanton). — v. intr. To take the place of another: “Only art can substitute for nature” (Leonard Bernstein). [Middle English, from Old French substitut, from Latin substitūtus, past participle of substituere, to substitute : sub-, in place of; see SUB- + statuere, to cause to stand; see stā- in Appendix.] — sub'sti-tut'a-bil'it-y n. — sub'sti-tut'a-ble adj.

sub-sti-tu-tion (süb/'stī-tōō'shən, -tyōō'-) n. 1. a. The act or an instance of substituting. b. The state of being substituted. 2. One that is substituted; a replacement. — sub'sti-tu'tion-al, sub'sti-tu'tion-ar'y adj. — sub'sti-tu'tion-al-ly adv.

sub-sti-tu-tive (süb/'stī-tōō'tiv, -tyōō'-) adj. Serving or capable of serving as a substitute.

sub-stra-ta (süb/'strā'tə, -strät'ə) n. A plural of substratum.

sub-strate (süb/'strät') n. 1. The material or substance on which an enzyme acts. 2. Biology. A surface on which an organism grows or is attached. 3. An underlying layer; a substratum. [From SUBSTRATUM.]

sub-strat-o-sphere (süb-strät'ə-sfîr') n. The upper portion of the troposphere. — sub'strat-o-spher'ic (-sfîr'ik, -sfēr'-) adj.

sub-stra-tum (süb/'strā'təm, -strät'əm) n. pl. sub-stra-ta (-strā'tə, -strät'ə) or sub-stra-tums. 1. a. An underlying layer. b. A layer of earth beneath the surface soil; subsoil. 2. A foundation or groundwork. 3. The material on which another material is coated or fabricated. 4. Philosophy. The characterless substance that supports attributes of reality. 5. Biology. A substrate. [New Latin, from neuter of Latin substrātus, past participle of substernere, to lay under : sub-, sub- + sternere, to stretch, spread; see ster-² in Appendix.] — sub-stra'tive adj.

sub-struc-tion (süb-strük'shən) n. A foundation; a substructure. [Latin substrūctiō, substrūctiōn-, from substrūctus, past participle of substruere, to build beneath : sub-, sub- + struere, to build, pile up; see ster-² in Appendix.]

— sub-struc'tion-al adj.

sub-structure (süb/'strük'chär) n. 1. The supporting part of a structure; the foundation. 2. The earth bank or bed supporting railroad tracks.

—sub-structur-al adj.

sub-sume (səb-sōōm') v. tr. sub-sumed, sub-sum-ing, sub-sumes. To classify, include, or incorporate in a more comprehensive category or under a general principle: “The evolutionarily later always subsumes and includes the evolutionarily earlier” (Frederick Turner). [Medieval Latin subsūmere : Latin sub-, sub- + Latin sūmere, to take; see em- in Appendix.] —sub-sum'a-ble adj.

sub-sump-tion (səb-sümp'shən) n. 1. a. The act of subsuming.

b. Something subsumed. 2. Logic. The minor premise of a syllogism. [Latin subsūptiō, subsūptiōn-, a subsuming, from subsūptus, past participle of subsūmere, to subsume. See SUBSUME.] —sub-sump'tive adj.

sub-sur-face (süb'sür'fəs, süb-sür'-) adj. Of, relating to, or situated in an area beneath a surface, especially the surface of the earth or of a body of water.

sub-teen (süb'tēn') adj. Relating to, intended for, or being a preadolescent child or children; preteen: a subteen dance. — n. 1. See preteen.

2. subteens. The preadolescent years.

sub-tem-per-ate (süb-tēm'pər-īt, -tēm'prīt) adj. Of, relating to, or occurring within the colder regions of the Temperate Zones.

sub-ten-ant (süb-těn'ənt) n. One that rents property, such as land or a house, from a tenant. —sub-ten'an-cy n.

sub-tend (səb-tënd') v. tr. sub-tend-ed, sub-tend-ing, sub-tends.

1. Mathematics. To be opposite to and delimit: The side of a triangle subtends the opposite angle. 2. To underlie so as to enclose or surround: flowers subtended by leafy bracts. [Latin subtendere, to extend underneath : sub-, sub- + tendere, to extend; see ten- in Appendix.]

sub-ter-fuge (süb'tər-fyōōj') n. A deceptive stratagem or device: “the paltry subterfuge of an anonymous signature” (Robert Smith Surtees). [French, from Old French suterfuge, from Late Latin subterfugium, from Latin subterfugere, to escape : subter, secretly, beneath; see upo in Appendix + fugere, to flee.]

sub-ter-mi-nal (süb-tür'mə-nəl) adj. Located or occurring near an end.

sub-ter-ra-ne-an (süb'tə-rā'nē-ən) adj. 1. Situated or operating beneath the earth's surface; underground. 2. Hidden; secret: subterranean motives for murder. [Latin subterrāneus : sub-, sub- + terra, earth; see ters- in Appendix.]

—sub'ter-ra'ne-an-ly adv.

sub-ter-res-tri-al (süb'tə-rēs'trē-əl) adj. Subterranean; underground.

sub-text (süb'tĕkst') n. 1. The implicit meaning or theme of a literary text.

2. The underlying personality of a dramatic character as implied or indicated by a script or text and interpreted by an actor in performance. —sub-tex-tu-al (-tĕks'chōō-əl) adj.

sub·ther·a·peu·tic (süb'thër-ə-pyō'tik) adj. Below the dosage levels used to treat diseases: subtherapeutic feeding of penicillin to livestock. —sub·'ther·a·peu'ti·cal·ly adv.

sub·thresh·old (süb-thrësh'öld', -höld') adj. Psychology. Not strong enough to be perceived or to produce a response. Used of a stimulus.

sub·tile (süt'l, süb'təl) adj. Subtle. [Middle English, from Old French subtil, from Latin subtilis, fine, delicate. See SUBTLE.] —sub'tile·ly adv. —sub·til'i·ty (səb-tīl'ī-tē), sub'tile·ness (süt'l-nīs, süb'təl-) , sub'til·ty (süt'l-tē, süb'təl-) n.

sub·ti·lin (süb'tə-līn) n. An antibiotic peptide obtained from the bacterium Bacillus subtilis that is active against gram-positive bacteria and various pathogenic fungi. [New Latin subtilis, species name (from Latin, delicate); see SUBTLE + -IN.]

sub·til·i·sin (süb-tīl'ə-sīn) n. An extracellular enzyme produced by certain strains of a soil bacterium (Bacillus amyloliquefaciens) that breaks down proteins into polypeptides and resembles trypsin in its action. [New Latin (Bacillus) subtilis, bacteria species; see SUBTILIN + -IN.]

sub·til·ize (süt'l-īz', süb'tə-līz') v. sub·til·ized, sub·til·iz·ing, sub·til·iz·es. — v. tr. To render subtle: “I need to tell stories. I find new friends, new listeners, subtilize my lies” (Helen Yglesias). — v. intr. To argue or discuss with subtlety; make fine distinctions. —sub'til·i·za'tion (-ī-zā'shən) n.

sub·ti·tle (süb'tīt'l) n. 1. A secondary, usually explanatory title, as of a literary work. 2. a. A printed translation of the dialogue of a foreign-language film shown at the bottom of the screen. b. A printed narration or portion of dialogue flashed on the screen between the scenes of a silent film. — v. tr. sub·ti·tled, sub·ti·tling, sub·ti·tles. 1. To give a subtitle to. 2. To provide with subtitles: a film that was subtitled for English-speaking audiences.

sub·tle (süt'l) adj. sub·tler, sub·tlest. 1. a. So slight as to be difficult to detect or analyze; elusive. b. Not immediately obvious; abstruse: “subtle smiles resulting from subjectively humorous experiences unguessed by the world at large” (Josephine Dodge Bacon). 2. Able to make fine distinctions: a subtle mind.

3. a. Characterized by skill or ingenuity; clever: “a journalist whose subtle views on the hard issues of our time are rooted in a tough mind and a demanding ethical sensibility” (New Republic). b. Crafty or sly; devious. c. Operating in a hidden, usually injurious way; insidious. [Middle English sotil, from Old French, from Latin subtilis. See teks- in Appendix.] —sub'tle·ness n. —sub'tly adv.

sub·tle·ty (süt'l-tē) n. pl. sub·tle·ties. 1. The quality or state of being subtle. 2. Something subtle, especially a nicety of thought or a fine distinction.

sub·ton·ic (süb-tön'ik) n. Music. The seventh tone of a diatonic scale, immediately below the tonic.

sub-top-ic (süb'töp'ík) n. One of the divisions into which a main topic may be divided.

sub-tor-rid (süb-tôr'ïd, -tôr'-) adj. Subtropical.

sub-to-tal (süb-tõt'l) adj. Less than total; incomplete. — n. (süb'tõt'l) The total of part of a series of numbers. — v. sub-to-taled also sub-to-talled, sub-to-tal-ing also sub-to-tal-ling, sub-to-tals also sub-to-tals (süb'tõt'l). — v. tr. To total part of (a series of numbers). — v. intr. To arrive at a subtotal.

sub-tract (səb-träkt') v. sub-tract-ed, sub-tract-ing, sub-tracts. — v. tr. To take away; deduct. — v. intr. Mathematics. To perform the arithmetic operation of subtraction. [Latin subtrahere, subtrāct- : sub-, sub- + trahere, to draw.] — sub-tract'er n.

sub-traction (səb-träkt'shən) n. 1. The act or process of subtracting; deduction. 2. Mathematics. The arithmetic operation of finding the difference between two quantities or numbers.

sub-trac-tive (səb-träkt'tiv) adj. 1. Producing or involving subtraction. 2. Color. Of or being a color produced by light passing through more than one colorant, each of which inhibits certain wavelengths, as in mixtures of pigments. 3. Of, relating to, or being a photographic process that produces a positive image by superposing or mixing substances that selectively absorb colored light.

sub-tra-hend (süb'trə-hënd') n. Mathematics. A quantity or number to be subtracted from another. [From Latin subtrahendum, neuter gerundive of subtrahere, to subtract. See SUBTRACT.]

sub-tribe (süb'trīb') n. A subdivision of a tribe.

sub-trop-i-cal (süb-tröp'ï-kəl) adj. Of, relating to, or being the geographic areas adjacent to the Tropics.

sub-trop-ics (süb-tröp'ïks) pl.n. Subtropical regions.

su-bu-late (sōō'byə-līt, -lāt', süb'yə-) adj. Biology. Tapering to a point; awl-shaped: a subulate leaf. [New Latin sūbulātus, from Latin sūbula, awl. See syū- in Appendix.]

sub-um-brel-la (süb'üm-brəl'ə) n. The concave underside of the body of a jellyfish.

sub-u-nit (süb'yōō'nīt) n. A subdivision of a larger unit.

sub-urb (süb'ûrb') *n. Abbr. sub. 1. A usually residential area or community outlying a city. 2. suburbs. The usually residential region around a major city; the environs. [Middle English suburbe, from Old French, from Latin suburbium : sub-, sub- + urbs, urb-, city.]*

sub-ur-ban (sə-bûr'bən) adj. Abbr. sub. 1. Of, relating to, or characteristic of a suburb. 2. Located or residing in a suburb. 3. Of, relating to, or characteristic of the culture, customs, and manners typical of life in the suburbs. — n. A suburbanite.

sub-ur-ban-ite (sə-bûr'bə-nīt') n. One who lives in a suburb.

sub-ur-ban-ize (sə-bûr'bə-nîz') v. tr. sub-urb-an-ized, sub-urb-an-iz-ing, sub-urb-an-izes. To render suburban; impart a suburban character to.

—sub-ur'ban-i-za'tion (-bə-nî-zā'shən) n.

sub-ur-bi-a (sə-bûr'bē-ə) n. 1. The suburbs. 2. a. Suburbanites considered as a group. b. Suburbanites considered as a cultural class.

sub-ven-tion (səb-vĕn'shən) n. 1. Provision of help, aid, or support. 2. An endowment or a subsidy, as that given by a government to an institution for research; a grant of financial aid. [Middle English subvencioun, a subsidy by the state, from Old French subvention, monetary assistance, from Late Latin subventiō, subventiōn-, assistance, from Latin subventus, past participle of subvenire, to come to help : sub-, beneath, behind; see SUB- + venire, to come; see g^wā- in Appendix.] —sub-ven'tion-ar'y adj.

sub-ver-sion (səb-vûr'zhən, -shən) n. 1. a. The act or an instance of subverting. b. The condition of being subverted. 2. Obsolete. A cause of overthrow or ruin. [Middle English subversioun, from Old French subversion, from Late Latin subversiō, subversiōn-, from Latin subversus, past participle of subvertere, to subvert. See SUBVERT.] —sub-ver'sion-ar'y adj.

sub-ver-sive (səb-vûr'siv, -ziv) adj. Intended or serving to subvert, especially intended to overthrow or undermine an established government: “Sex and creativity are often seen by dictators as subversive activities” (Erica Jong). — n. One who advocates or is regarded as advocating subversion. —sub-ver'sive-ly adv. —sub-ver'sive-ness n.

sub-vert (səb-vûrt') v. tr. sub-vert-ed, sub-vert-ing, sub-verts. 1. To destroy completely; ruin: “schemes to subvert the liberties of a great community” (Alexander Hamilton). 2. To undermine the character, morals, or allegiance of; corrupt. 3. To overthrow completely: “Economic assistance... must subvert the existing... feudal or tribal order” (Henry A. Kissinger). See Synonyms at over-throw. [Middle English subverten, from Old French subvertir, from Latin subvertere : sub-, sub- + vertere, to turn; see wer-² in Appendix.] —sub-vert'er n.

sub-vi-rus (süb-vî'rəs) n. pl. sub-vi-rus-es. A viral protein or other substance smaller than a virus and having some of the properties of a virus. —sub-vi'ral (-rəl) adj.

sub-vo-cal (süb-vō'kəl) adj. Characterized by movement of the lips or other speech organs without making audible sounds: subvocal speech. —sub-vo'-cal-ly adv.

sub-vo-cal-ize (süb-vō'kə-lîz') v. tr. intr. sub-vo-cal-ized, sub-vo-cal-iz-ing, sub-vo-cal-iz-es. To articulate or engage in articulation by moving the lips or other speech organs without making audible sounds, as in reading to oneself. —sub-vo'cal-i-za'tion (-kə-lî-zā'shən) n. —sub-vo'-cal-iz'er n.

sub-way (süb'wā') n. 1. a. An underground urban railroad, usually operated by electricity. b. A passage for such a railroad. 2. An underground tunnel or passage, as for a water main or for pedestrians.

suc-ce-da-ne-um (sük'sī-dā'nē-əm) n. pl. suc-ce-da-ne-a (-nē-ə). A substitute. [New Latin succēdāneum, from Latin, neuter sing. of succēdāneus, substituted, from succēdere, to succeed. See SUCCEED.]

suc-ceed (sək-sēd') v. suc-ceed-ed, suc-ceed-ing, suc-ceeds. — v. intr.

1. To come next in time or succession; follow after another, replace another in an office or a position: She succeeded to the throne. 2. To accomplish something desired or intended: "Success is counted sweetest/By those who ne'er succeed" (Emily Dickinson). 3. Obsolete. To devolve upon a person by way of inheritance. — v. tr.

1. To come after in time or order; follow. 2. To come after and take the place of. See Synonyms at follow. [Middle English succeden, from Old French succeder, from Latin succēdere: sub-, near; see SUB- + cēdere, to go; see ked- in Appendix.] — suc-ce'dent (sək-sēd'nt) adj. — suc-ceed'er n.

suc-cès d'es-time (sük-sĕ' dĕs-tĕm') n. An important but unpopular success or achievement. [French: succès, success + de, of + estime, esteem.]

suc-cès fou (sük-sĕ' fōo') n. A wild success. [French: succès, success + fou, mad.]

suc-cess (sək-sĕs') n. 1. The achievement of something desired, planned, or attempted: attributed their success in business to hard work. 2. a. The gaining of fame or prosperity: an artist spoiled by success. b. The extent of such gain. 3. One that is successful: The plan was a success. 4. Obsolete. A result or an outcome. [Latin successus, from past participle of succēdere, to succeed. See SUCCEED.]

suc-cess-ful (sək-sĕs'fəl) adj. 1. Having a favorable outcome: a successful heart transplant. 2. Having obtained something desired or intended: was successful in stopping the leak of oil. 3. Having achieved wealth or eminence: a successful architect. — suc-cess'ful-ly adv. — suc-cess'ful-ness n.

suc-ces-sion (sək-sĕsh'ən) n. 1. The act or process of following in order or sequence. 2. A group of people or things arranged or following in order; a sequence: "A succession of one-man stalls offered soft drinks" (Alec Waugh). See Synonyms at series. 3. a. The sequence in which one person after another succeeds to a title, throne, dignity, or estate. b. The right of a person or line of persons to so succeed. c. The person or line having such a right. 4. a. The act or process of succeeding to the rights or duties of another. b. The act or process of becoming entitled as a legal beneficiary to the property of a deceased person. 5. Ecology. The gradual and orderly process of ecosystem development brought about by changes in community composition and the production of a climax characteristic of a particular geographic region. [Middle English, from Old suc-ces-sive (sək-sēs'iv) adj. 1. Following in uninterrupted order; consecutive: on three successive days. 2. Of, characterized by, or involving succession: the government successive to the fallen monarchy. —suc-ces'sive-ly adv. —suc-ces'sive-ness n.

French, from Latin successiō, successiōn-, from successus, past participle of succēdere, to succeed. See SUCCEED.] —suc-ces'sion-al adj. —suc-ces'sion-al-ly adv.

successive approximation (sək-sēs'iv ə-prök'sə-mā'shən) n. Mathematics. A method for estimating the value of an unknown quantity by repeated comparison to a sequence of known quantities.

suc-ces-sor (sək-sēs'ər) n. One that succeeds another.

suc-ci-nate (sük'sə-nāt') n. A salt or an ester of succinic acid.

suc-cinct (sək-singkt') adj. suc-cinct-er, suc-cinct-est. 1. Characterized by clear, precise expression in few words; concise and terse: a succinct reply; a succinct style. 2. Archaic. Encircled as if by a girdle; girded. [Middle English succincte, girt, from Old French, from Latin succinctus, past participle of succingere, to gird from below : sub-, sub- + cingere, to gird; see kenk- in Appendix.]

—suc-cinct'ly adv. —suc-cinct'ness n.

suc-cin-ic acid (sək-sin'ik əs'id) n. A colorless crystalline dicarboxylic acid, $C_4H_6O_4$, occurring naturally in amber and important in the Krebs cycle. It is also synthesized for use in pharmaceuticals and perfumes. [French succinique, from Latin succinum, amber.]

suc-cin-yl-cho-line (sük'sə-nil-kō'lēn) n. A crystalline compound, $C_{14}H_{30}N_2O_4$, formed by esterification of succinic acid with choline and used medically to produce brief but complete muscular relaxation. [SUCCIN(IC ACID) + -YL + CHOLINE.]

suc-cin-yl-sul-fa-thi-a-zole (sük'sə-nil-sül'fə-thī'ə-zōl') n. An antibacterial drug, $C_{13}H_{13}N_3O_5S_2$, derived from sulfonamide and used in the prevention and treatment of gastrointestinal infections. [SUCCIN(IC ACID) + -YL + SULFA(NIL-AMIDE) + THIAZOLE.]

suc-cor (sük'ər) n. 1. Assistance in time of distress; relief. 2. One that affords assistance or relief. — v. tr. suc-cored, suc-coring, suc-cors. To give assistance to in time of want, difficulty, or distress. See Synonyms at help. [Middle English sucur, back-formation from sucurs (taken as pl.), from Old French secors, from Medieval Latin succursus, from past participle of Latin succurrere, to run to the aid of, succor : sub-, sub- + currere, to run; see kers- in Appendix.] —suc'-cor-a-ble adj. —suc'cor-er n.

suc-co-ry (sük'ə-rē) n. pl. suc-co-ries. See chicory (n., sense 1). [Perhaps alteration (influenced by Middle Low German suckerie, or Middle Dutch suckerieie), of Middle English cicoree. See CHICORY.]

suc-co-tash (sük'ə-təsh') n. A stew consisting of kernels of corn, lima beans, and tomatoes. [Narragansett msickquatash, boiled whole-kernel corn.]

Suc-coth also Suk-koth (sōök'əs, sōō-kōs', sōō-kôt') n. Judaism. A harvest festival commemorating the booths in which the Israelites resided during their 40 years in the wilderness, lasting for either 8 or 9 days and beginning on the eve of the 15th of Tishri. [Hebrew sukkôt, (feast of) booths (commemorating the temporary shelters of the Jews in the wilderness), pl. of sukkâ, booth.]

suc-cour (sŭk'ər) n. & v. Chiefly British. Variant of succor.

suc-cu-bus (sŭk'yə-bəs) also suc-cu-ba (-bə) n. pl. suc-cu-bus-es or suc-cu-bi (-bī', -bē') also suc-cu-bae (-bē', -bī'). 1. A female demon supposed to descend upon and have sexual intercourse with a man while he sleeps. 2. An evil spirit; a demon. [Middle English, from Medieval Latin, alteration (influenced by Late Latin incubus, incubus); see INCUBUS, of Latin succuba, paramour, from succubāre, to lie under : sub-, sub- + cubāre, to lie down.]

suc-cu-lent (sŭk'yə-lənt) adj. 1. Full of juice or sap; juicy. 2. Botany. Having thick, fleshy, water-storing leaves or stems. 3. Highly interesting or enjoyable; delectable: a succulent bit of gossip. — n. Botany. A succulent plant, such as a sedum or cactus. [Latin succulentus, from succus, juice. See seuə-² in Appendix.] —suc'cu-lence, suc'cu-len-cy n. —suc'cu-lent-ly adv.

suc-cumb (sə-kŭm') v. intr. suc-cumbed, suc-cumb-ing, suc-cumbs. 1. To submit to an overpowering force or yield to an overwhelming desire; give up or give in. See Synonyms at yield. 2. To die. [Middle English succumben, to bring down, from Old French succomber, from Latin succumbere, to lie under, yield : sub-, sub- + -cumbere, to lie down as in accumbere, to lie down.]

suc-cus (sŭk'əs) n. pl. suc-ci (sŭk'ī, -sī). A fluid, such as gastric juice or vegetable juice, contained in or secreted by living tissue.

suc-cus-sion (sə-kŭsh'ən) n. 1. The act or process of shaking violently, especially as a method of diagnosis to detect the presence of fluid and air in a body cavity. 2. The condition of being shaken violently. [Latin succussio, succussio-, from succussus, past participle of succutere, to toss up : sub-, up from below; see SUB- + quaterē, to shake; see kwēt- in Appendix.] —suc-cus'sa-to'ry (sə-kŭs'ə-tōr'ē, -tōr'ē) adj.

such (sŭch) adj. 1. a. Of this kind: a single parent, one of many such people in the neighborhood. b. Of a kind specified or implied: a boy such as yourself. 2. a. Of a degree or quality indicated: Their anxiety was such that they could not sleep. b. Of so extreme a degree or quality: never dreamed of such wealth. — adv. 1. To so extreme a degree; so: such beautiful flowers; such a funny character. 2. Very; especially: She has been in such poor health lately. — pron. 1. a. Such a person or persons or thing or things: was the mayor and as such presided over the council; expected difficulties, and such occurred. b. Itself alone or within itself: Money as such will seldom bring total happiness. 2. Someone or something implied or indicated: Such are the fortunes of war. 3. Similar things or people; the like: pins, needles, and such. — idiom. such as. For example. [Middle English, from Old English swylc. See swo- in Appendix.]

such and such (sŭch ənd sŭch) adj. Not specified; unnamed or undetermined: They agreed to meet at such and such an hour.

such-like (sŭch'lik') adj. Of the same kind; similar. — pron. Persons or things of such a kind.

Sü·chow (sōō'chou', sŭ'jō') See Xuzhou.

suck (sŭk) v. sucked, suck-ing, sucks. — v. tr. 1. To draw (liquid) into the mouth by movements of the tongue and lips that create suction. 2. a. To draw in by establishing a partial vacuum: a cleaning device that sucks up dirt. b. To draw in by or as if by a current in a fluid. c. To draw or pull as if by suction: teenagers who are sucked into a life of crime. 3. To draw nourishment through or from: suck a baby bottle. 4. To hold, moisten, or maneuver (a sweet, for example) in the mouth. 5. Vulgar Slang. To perform fellatio on. — v. intr. 1. To draw something in by or as if by suction: felt the drain starting to suck. 2. To draw nourishment; suckle. 3. To make a sound caused by suction. 4. Slang. To behave obsequiously; fawn. Often used with up. 5. Vulgar Slang. To be disgustingly disagreeable or offensive. — n. 1. The act or sound of sucking. 2. Suction. 3. Something drawn in by sucking. — phrasal verb. suck in. To take advantage of; cheat; swindle. [Middle English suken, from Old English sūcan. See seuə-² in Appendix.]

suck·er (sŭk'ər) n. 1. One that sucks, especially an unweaned domestic animal. 2. Informal. a. One who is easily deceived; a dupe. b. One that is indiscriminately attracted to something specified: "The nation's capital is a sucker for a symbolic gesture" (Jonathan Alter). 3. Slang. a. An unspecified thing. Used as a generalized term of reference, often as an intensive: "our goal of getting that sucker on the air before old age took the both of us" (Linda Ellerbee). b. A person. Used as a generalized term of reference, often as an intensive: He's a mean sucker. 4. A lollipop. 5. a. A piston or piston valve, as in a suction pump or syringe. b. A tube or pipe, such as a siphon, through which something is sucked. 6. Any of numerous chiefly North American freshwater fishes of the family Catostomidae, having a toothless jaw and a thick-lipped mouth adapted for feeding by suction. 7. Zoology. An organ or other structure adapted for sucking nourishment or for clinging to objects by suction. 8. Botany. A secondary shoot produced from the base or roots of a woody plant that gives rise to a new plant. — v. suck-ered, suck-er-ing, suck-ers. — v. tr. 1. To strip suckers or shoots from (plants). 2. Informal. To trick; dupe: sucker a tourist into a confidence game. — v. intr. Botany. To send out suckers or shoots.

suck·er·fish (sŭk'ər-fīsh') n. pl. suckerfish or suck-er-fish-es. See remora.

sucker punch (sŭk'ər pŭnch) n. Slang. An unexpected punch or blow.

suck·fish (sŭk'fĭsh') n. pl. suckfish or suck·fish·es. 1. See remora. 2. A clingfish (Caularchus maendricus) of the Pacific coast of the United States.

suck·ing (sŭk'ĭng) adj. Not yet weaned.

sucking louse (sŭk'ĭng lous) n. Any of various small wingless insects of the order Anoplura that have mouthparts adapted for piercing and sucking.

suck·le (sŭk'əl) v. suck·led, suck·ling, suck·les. — v. tr. 1. a. To cause or allow to take milk at the breast or udder; nurse. b. To take milk at the breast or udder of. 2. To take in as sustenance; have as nourishment. 3. To nourish as if with the milk of the breast; nurture: “a pagan suckled in a creed outworn” (William Wordsworth). — v. intr. To suck at the breast or udder. [Middle English suclen, perhaps from suklinge, suckling. See SUCKLING.]

suck·ler (sŭk'lər) n. 1. An unweaned mammal, especially a suckling calf. 2. An animal that suckles its young; a mammal.

suck·ling (sŭk'lĭng) n. A young mammal that has not been weaned. — adj. Unweaned. [Middle English suklinge: souken, suken, to suck; see SUCK + -ling, one that is young; see *-LING*¹.]

Suck·ling (sŭk'lĭng), Sir John. 1609-1642. English poet and courtier whose witty, unaffected works include Session of the Poets and Aglaura (both 1637).

su·crase (sōō'krās', -krāz') n. See invertase. [French sucre, sugar (from Old French sukere); see SUGAR + -ASE.]

su·cre (sōō'krā) n. A basic unit of currency in Ecuador. See Table at currency. [American Spanish, after Antonio Jos SUCREÉ DE.]

Su·cre (sōō'krā, -krĕ) The constitutional capital of Bolivia, in the south-central part of the country southeast of La Paz. Founded in 1538 as Chuquisaca, it was renamed in 1840 to honor the first president of the country. Population, 86,609.

Su·cre (sōō'krā), Antonio José de. 1795-1830. South American military leader who helped secure independence from Spain and served as the first president of Bolivia (1826-1828).

su·crose (sōō'krōs') n. A crystalline disaccharide carbohydrate, C₁₂H₂₂O₁₁, found in many plants but extracted as ordinary sugar mainly from sugar cane and sugar beets, widely used as a sweetener or preservative and in the manufacture of plastics and cellulose. Also called saccharose [French sucre, sugar; see SUCRASE + *-OSE*².]

sucrose polyester (sōō'krōs' pŏl'ē-ēs'tər) n. A complex synthetic compound of sucrose and fatty acids that the body is unable to digest or absorb, produced commercially as a partial substitute for fats in cooking oils, shortening, butter, and other high-calorie or high-cholesterol foods.

suc·tion (sŭk'shən) n. 1. The act or process of sucking. 2. A force that causes a fluid or solid to be drawn into an interior space or to adhere to a surface because of the difference between the external and internal pressures. — v. tr.

suc·tioned, suc·tion·ing, suc·tions. 1. To draw away or remove by the force of suction: suction fluid from the lungs. 2. To clean or evacuate (a body cavity, for example) by the force of suction. — adj. 1. Creating suction. 2. Operating or operated by suction. [Late Latin sūctiō, sūctiōn-, from Latin sūctus, past participle of sūgere, to suck. See seuə⁻² in Appendix.]

suction lipectomy (sŭk'shən lī-pĕk'tə-mĕ) n. See liposuction.

suction pump (sŭk'shən pŭmp) n. A pump for drawing up a liquid by means of suction produced by a piston drawn through a cylinder.

suction stop (sŭk'shən stŏp) n. Linguistics. See click (n., sense 3).

suc-to-ri-al (sŭk-tŏr'ĕ-əl, -tŏr'-) adj. 1. Adapted for sucking or clinging by suction: a suctorial organ. 2. Having organs or parts adapted for sucking or clinging. [From New Latin sūctŏrius, from Latin sūctus, past participle of sūgere, to suck. See seuə⁻² in Appendix.]

suc-to-ri-an (sŭk-tŏr'ĕ-ən, -tŏr'-) n. A protozoan of the class Suctoria, having in its immature form a small, round, ciliated body but in its adult form being stalked and sessile, lacking cilia, and feeding by means of suctorial tentacles. [From New Latin Suctoria, class name, from neuter pl. of suctorius, suctorial. See SUCTORIAL.]

Su-dan (sŏō-dăn') 1. A region of northern Africa south of the Sahara and north of the equator. It extends across the continent from the Atlantic coast to the mountains of Ethiopia. 2. A country of northeast Africa south of Egypt. Inhabited since prehistoric times, the region was conquered by Egypt in 1820-1822 and jointly administered by Great Britain and Egypt after 1899. Sudan achieved its independence in 1956. Khartoum is the capital and the largest city. Population, 20,564,364. — Su'da-nese' (sŏōd'n-ĕz', -ĕs') adj. & n.

su-da-to-ri-um (sŏō'də-tŏr'ĕ-əm, -tŏr'-) n. pl. su-da-to-ri-a (-tŏr'ĕ-ə, -tŏr'ĕ-ə). A hot-air room used for sweat baths. Also called sudatory [Latin sūdātŏrium, from neuter of sūdātŏrius, for sweating, from sūdātus, past participle of sūdāre, to sweat. See sweid- in Appendix.]

su-da-to-ry (sŏō'də-tŏr'ĕ, -tŏr'ĕ) adj. Sudorific. — n. pl. su-da-to-ries. 1. See sudatorium. 2. See sudorific.

Sud-bur-y (sŭd'bĕr'ĕ, -bə-rĕ) A city of southeast Ontario, Canada, north of Georgian Bay. It is the center of a rich mining region. Population, 91,829.

sudd (sŭd) n. A floating mass of vegetation that often obstructs navigation in tropical rivers. [Arabic, obstruction, sudd, from sadda, to obstruct.]

sud-den (sŭd'n) adj. 1. Happening without warning; unforeseen: a sudden storm. 2. Characterized by hastiness; abrupt or rash: a sudden decision. See Synonyms at impetuous. 3. Characterized by rapidity; quick and swift. — idiom.

all of a sudden. Very quickly and unexpectedly; suddenly. [Middle English sodain, from Old French, from Vulgar Latin subitānus*, from Latin subitāneus, from subitus, from past participle of subīre, to approach stealthily : sub-, secretly; see SUB- + īre, to go; see ei- in Appendix.] —sud'den·ly adv. —sud'den·ness n.

sudden death (sūd'n dēth) n. Sports. Extra play added to a tied game, the winner being the first to score. —sud'den·death' (sūd'n-dēth') adj.

sudden infant death syndrome (sūd'n ɪn'fənt dēth sɪn'drōm') n. Abbr.

SIDS A fatal syndrome that affects sleeping infants under a year old, characterized by a sudden cessation of breathing and thought to be caused by a defect in the central nervous system. Also called crib death

Su·de·ten (sōo-dā'tn, zōo-) also Su·de·tes (sōo-dē'tēz) A series of mountain ranges along the Czech-Polish border between the Elbe and Oder rivers. The mountains extend for about 298 km (185 mi) and rise to 1,603 m (5,256 ft).

Su·de·ten·land (sōo-dāt'n-länd', -lānt', zōo-) A historical region of northern Czech Republic along the Polish border. Seized by the Germans in September 1938, it was restored to Czechoslovakia in 1945.

Su·de·tes (sōo-dē'tēz) See Sudeten.

su·dor·if·er·ous (sōo'də-rif'ər-əs) adj. Producing or secreting sweat: sudoriferous glands. [From Late Latin sūdōrifēr : Latin sūdōr, sweat; see sweid- in Appendix + Latin -fer, -fer.]

su·dor·if·ic (sōo'də-rif'ik) adj. Causing or increasing sweat. — n. A sudorific medicine. Also called sudatory [New Latin sūdōrificus : Latin sūdōr, sweat; see sweid- in Appendix + Latin -ficus, -fic.]

Su·dra (sōo'drə) n. 1. The fourth of the four Hindu classes, comprising artisans, laborers, and menials. 2. A member of this caste. [Sanskrit sūdraḥ.]

suds (sūdz) pl.n. 1. Soapy water. 2. Foam; lather. 3. Slang. Beer. [Perhaps from obsolete Dutch zudse, marsh, from Middle Dutch sudse.]

suds·y (sūd'zē) adj. suds·i·er, suds·i·est. Full of or resembling suds.

sue (sōo) v. sued, su·ing, sues. — v. tr. 1. Law. a. To petition (a court) for redress of grievances or recovery of a right. b. To institute proceedings against (a person) for redress of grievances. c. To carry (an action) through to a final decision. 2. To court; woo. 3. Obsolete. To make a petition to; appeal to; beseech. — v. intr. 1. Law. To institute legal proceedings; bring suit. 2. To make an appeal or entreaty: “I sue for grace, and thou deny'st me” (Francis Quarles). 3. To pay court; woo. [Middle English sewen, from Anglo-Norman suer, from Vulgar Latin sequere*, to follow, from Latin sequi. See sek^w-1 in Appendix.] —su'er n.

Sue (sōo, sü), Eugène. Pen name of Marie Joseph Sue. 1804-1857. French writer known for his sensational novels that depict the sordid side of city life, including The Mysteries of Paris (1842-1843).

suede also suède (swād) n. 1. Leather with a soft napped surface. 2. Fabric made to resemble suede. [Short for Suède gloves, from French gants de Suède, gloves of Sweden, from Suède, Sweden.]

su-et (sōō'it) n. The hard fatty tissues around the kidneys of cattle and sheep, used in cooking and for making tallow. [Middle English, from Anglo-Norman suet*, accusative of sue, tallow, variant of Old French sieu, from Latin sēbum.]

Sue-to-ni-us (swē-tō'nē-əs), Originally Gaius Suetonius Tranquillus. fl. second century A.D. Roman historian whose major work, Lives of the Caesars, is an account of the lives of the first 12 Roman emperors.

Su-ez (sōō-ēz', sōō'ēz') A city of northeast Egypt at the head of the Gulf of Suez and the southern terminus of the Suez Canal. It became a major port after the opening of the canal. Population, 254,000.

Suez, Gulf of. An arm of the Red Sea off northeast Egypt west of the Sinai Peninsula.

Suez, Isthmus of. An isthmus of northeast Egypt connecting Africa and Asia. It is bordered by the Mediterranean Sea on the north and the Gulf of Suez on the south.

Suez Canal (sōō-ēz' kə-nāl') A ship canal, about 166 km (103 mi) long, traversing the Isthmus of Suez and linking the Red Sea and the Gulf of Suez with the Mediterranean Sea. Built under the supervision of Ferdinand de Lesseps, it was opened in November 1869 and after 1875 came under British control. The British withdrew in June 1956, and in July President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt nationalized the canal, precipitating a crisis in which Israel invaded Egypt and Great Britain and France sent armed forces to retake the canal. United Nations intervention forced an armistice, and the canal was reopened in April 1957. The canal was again closed in July 1967 during the Arab-Israeli War and remained closed until June 1975.

suf. abbr. 1. Sufficient. 2. Grammar. Suffix.

suff. abbr. 1. Sufficient. 2. Grammar. Suffix.

Suff. abbr. Suffragan.

suf-fer (sŭf'ər) v. suf-fered, suf-fer-ing, suf-fers. — v. intr. 1. To feel pain or distress; sustain loss, injury, harm, or punishment. 2. To tolerate or endure evil, injury, pain, or death. See Synonyms at bear¹. 3. To appear at a disadvantage: “He suffers by comparison with his greater contemporary” (Albert C. Baugh). — v. tr. 1. To undergo or sustain (something painful, injurious, or unpleasant): “Ordinary men have always had to suffer the history their leaders were making” (Herbert J. Muller). 2. To experience; undergo: suffer a change in staff. See Synonyms at experience. 3. To endure or bear; stand: would not suffer fools. 4. To permit; allow: “They were not suffered to aspire to so exalted a position as that of streetcar conductor” (Edmund S. Morgan). [Middle English suffren, from Old French sufrire, from Vulgar Latin sufferire*, from Latin sufferre: sub-, sub- + ferre, to carry; see bher¹ in Appendix.] —suf/fer-er n. —suf/fer-ing-ly adv.

USAGE NOTE: In general usage suffer is preferably used with from, rather than with, in constructions such as He suffered from hypertension. According to 94 percent of the Usage Panel, suffered with would be unacceptable in the preceding example. In medical usage suffer with is sometimes employed with reference to the actual pain or discomfort caused by a condition, while suffer from is used more broadly in reference to a condition, such as anemia, that is detrimental but not necessarily painful.

suf·fer·a·ble (sŭf'ər-ə-bəl, sŭf'rə-) adj. Possible to suffer, endure, or permit; tolerable: sufferable punishment; sufferable difficulties. —suf·fer·a·ble·ness n.
—suf·fer·a·bly adv.

suf·fer·ance (sŭf'ər-əns, sŭf'rəns) n. 1. Patient endurance, especially of pain or distress. 2. Suffering; misery. 3. Sanction or permission implied or given by failure to prohibit; tacit consent; tolerance. [Middle English suffrance, from Old French sufrance, from Latin sufferentia, from sufferēns, sufferent- present participle of sufferre, to suffer. See SUFFER.]

suf·fer·ing (sŭf'ər-ɪŋ, sŭf'rɪŋ) n. 1. The condition of one who suffers; pain or distress. 2. A source of pain or distress.

suf·fice (sə-fīs') v. suf·ficed, suf·fic·ing, suf·fic·es. — v. intr. 1. To meet present needs or requirements; be sufficient: These rations will suffice until next week. 2. To be equal to a specified task; be capable: No words will suffice to convey my grief. — v. tr. To satisfy the needs or requirements of; be enough for. [Middle English suffisen, from Old French suffire, suffis-, from Latin sufficere: sub-, sub- + facere, to make; see dhē- in Appendix.] —suf·fic'er n.

suf·fi·cien·cy (sə-fīsh'ən-sē) n. pl. suf·fi·cien·cies. 1. The condition or quality of being sufficient. 2. An adequate amount or quantity. 3. Adequate means to live in modest comfort.

suf·fi·cient (sə-fīsh'ənt) adj. 1. Abbr. suf., suff. Being as much as is needed. 2. Archaic. Competent; qualified. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin sufficiēns, sufficient- present participle of sufficere, to suffice. See SUFFICE.]
—suf·fi·cient·ly adv.

SYNONYMS: sufficient, adequate, enough. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “being what is needed without being in excess”: has sufficient income for a comfortable retirement; bought an adequate supply of food; drew enough water to fill the tub.

ANTONYM: insufficient suf·fix (sŭf'iks) Grammar. n. Abbr. suff., suf. An affix added to the end of a word or stem, serving to form a new word or functioning as an inflectional ending, such as -ness in gentleness, -ing in walking, or -s in sits. — v. tr. suf·fixed, suf·fix·ing, suf·fix·es. To add as a suffix. [New Latin suffixum, from Latin, neuter of suffixus past participle of suffigere, to fasten underneath, affix : sub-, sub- + figere, to fix, fasten; see dhīg^w- in Appendix.] —suf'fix·al adj.

—suf'fix'ion (sə-fīk'shən) n.

suf·fo·cate (sŭf'ə-kāt') v. suf·fo·cat·ed, suf·fo·cat·ing, suf·fo·cates. —
v. tr. 1. To kill or destroy by preventing access of air or oxygen. 2. To impair the respiration of; asphyxiate. 3. To cause discomfort to by or as if by cutting off the supply of fresh air. 4. To suppress the development, imagination, or creativity of; stifle: “The rigid formality of the place suffocated her” (Thackeray). — v. intr.

1. To die from lack of air or oxygen; be asphyxiated. 2. To feel discomfort from lack of fresh air. 3. To become or feel suppressed; be stifled. [Latin suffocāre, suffocāt- : sub-, sub- + faucēs, throat.] —suf'fo·ca'ting·ly adv. —suf'fo·ca'tion n. —suf'fo·ca'tive adj.

Suf·folk¹ (sŭf'ək) 1. A historical region of eastern England bordering on the North Sea. Settled in prehistoric times, it was part of the Anglo-Saxon kingdom of East Anglia. Its name means the “southern people,” as opposed to the “northern people” of Norfolk. 2. (also -ôk') An independent city of southeast Virginia southeast of Portsmouth, it was burned by the British in 1779 and occupied by Union forces in 1862. Population, 52,141.

Suf·folk² (sŭf'ək) n. 1. Any of an English breed of hornless sheep with black face and black legs, raised for high-quality mutton. 2. Any of a breed of English draft horses of a chestnut color, having short legs and a thickset heavy body. [After Suffolk, a county of eastern England.]

suf·fra·gan (sŭf'rə-gən) n. Abbr. Suff., Suffr. 1. A bishop elected or appointed as an assistant to the bishop or ordinary of a diocese, having administrative and episcopal responsibilities but no jurisdictional functions. 2. A bishop regarded in position as subordinate to an archbishop or a metropolitan. — adj. Of, being, or relating to a suffragan. [Middle English, from Old French, from Medieval Latin suffrāgāneus, voting, supporting, from Latin suffrāgium, support, right to vote, from suffrāgārī, to express support. See bhreg- in Appendix.]

—suf'fra·gan·ship' n.

suf·frage (sŭf'rīj) n. 1. a. The right or privilege of voting; the franchise. b. The exercise of such a right. 2. A vote cast in deciding a disputed question or in electing a person to office. 3. A short intercessory prayer. [Middle English, intercessory prayer, from Old French, from Medieval Latin suffrāgium, from Latin, the right to vote, from suffrāgārī, to express support. See bhreg- in Appendix.]

suf·fra·gette (sŭf'rə-jēt') n. An advocate of woman suffrage, especially in the United Kingdom. See Usage Note at -ette. —suf'fra·get'tism n.

suf·fra·gist (sŭf'rə-jīst) n. An advocate of the extension of political voting rights, especially to women. —suf'fra·gism n.

suf·fru·tes·cent (sŭf' rōō-tēs' ənt) also suf·fru·ti·cose (sŭf-rōō'tī-kōs') adj.
Botany. Having a stem that is woody only at the base; somewhat shrubby. [New Latin suffrutescēns, suffrutēscēt- : Latin sub-, sub- + New Latin frutēscēns, frutescent (from Latin frutex, shrub).]

suf·fuse (sə-fyōōz') v. tr. suf·fused, suf·fus·ing, suf·fus·es. To spread through or over, as with liquid, color, or light: “The sky above the roof is suffused with deep colors” (Eugene O'Neill). See Synonyms at charge. [Latin suffundere, suffūs- : sub-, sub- + fundere, to pour; see gheu- in Appendix.] —suf·fu'sion n. —suf·fu'sive (-fyōō'siv, -zīv) adj.

Su·fi (sōō'fē) Islam. n. A Muslim mystic. — adj. Of or relating to the Sufis. [Arabic Ṣūfīy, (man) of wool, Sufi, from ṣūf, wool (probably from their woolen garments).] —Su'fic (-fik), Su·fis'tic (-fis'tik) adj.

Su·fism (sōō'fiz'əm) n. Islamic mysticism.

sug·ar (shōōg'ər) n. 1. A sweet crystalline or powdered substance, white when pure, consisting of sucrose obtained mainly from sugar cane and sugar beets and used in many foods, drinks, and medicines to improve their taste. Also called table sugar 2. Any of a class of water-soluble crystalline carbohydrates, including sucrose and lactose, having a characteristically sweet taste and classified as monosaccharides, disaccharides, and trisaccharides. 3. A unit, such as a lump or cube, in which sugar is dispensed or taken. 4. Slang. Sweetheart. Used as a term of endearment. — v. sug·ared, sug·ar·ing, sug·ars. — v. tr. 1. To coat, cover, or sweeten with sugar. 2. To make less distasteful or more appealing. — v. intr. 1. To form sugar. 2. To form granules; granulate. 3. To make sugar or syrup from sugar maple sap. Often used with off. [Middle English sugre, from Old French sukere, from Medieval Latin succārum, from Old Italian zucchero, from Arabic sukkar, from Persian shakar, from Sanskrit śarkarā, grit, ground sugar.] —sug'ar·er n.

sugar apple (shōōg'ər əp'əl) n. See sweetsop.

sugar beet (shōōg'ər bēt) n. A form of the common beet (Beta vulgaris) having fleshy white roots from which sugar is obtained.

sug·ar·ber·ry (shōōg'ər-bēr'ē) n. See hackberry.

sug·ar·bird (shōōg'ər-bûrd') n. Any of various honeyeaters, especially a South African bird (Promerops cafer) with a long, curved bill that feeds mainly on the nectar of trees of the genus Protea.

sugar bush (shōōg'ər bōōsh) n. A grove of sugar maples used as a source of maple syrup or maple sugar. Also called sugar orchard sugar cane (shōōg'ər kăn) n. A tall tropical southeast Asian grass (Saccharum officinarum) having thick, solid, tough stems that are a chief commercial source of sugar.

- sug·ar·coat (shōög'ər-kōt') v. tr. sug·ar·coat·ed, sug·ar·coat·ing, sug·ar·coats. 1. To cause to seem more appealing or pleasant: a sentimental treatment that sugarcoats a harsh reality. 2. To coat with sugar: sugarcoat a pill.
- sugar corn (shōög'ər kōrn) n. See sweet corn.
- sug·ar·cured (shōög'ər-kyōörd') adj. Cured with a preparation of sugar, salt, and nitrate: a sugar-cured ham.
- sugar daddy (shōög'ər dād'ē) n. Slang. A wealthy, usually older man who gives expensive gifts to a young person in return for sexual favors or companionship.
- sugar diabetes (shōög'ər dī'ə-bē'tīs) n. Insulin-dependent diabetes mellitus.
- sug·ared (shōög'ərd) adj. 1. Sweetened with sugar. 2. Made more appealing or pleasant.
- sug·ar·house (shōög'ər-hous') n. A sugar refinery or processing plant, especially a building in which maple sap is boiled down to yield maple syrup and maple sugar.
- sug·ar·ing off (shōög'ər-ĭng ôf) n. 1. The process or an instance of boiling down maple sap to yield maple syrup and maple sugar. 2. An informal social gathering in which the guests help make maple sugar.
- sug·ar·less (shōög'ər-līs) adj. 1. Containing no sugar. 2. Sweetened with a substance other than sucrose: sugarless gum; sugarless candy.
- sugar loaf (shōög'ər lōf) n. 1. A large conical loaf of pure concentrated sugar. 2. Something, such as a mountain, that resembles a loaf of sugar in shape.
—sug'ar-loaf' (shōög'ər-lōf') adj.
- Sug·ar·loaf Mountain (shōög'ər-lōf' moun'tən) A rocky peak in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, at the entrance to Guanabara Bay. An aerial railroad leads to the summit, 395.3 m (1,296 ft) high.
- sugar maple (shōög'ər mā'pəl) n. 1. An eastern North American maple tree (Acer saccharum) having sap that is the source of maple syrup and maple sugar and variously grained hard wood used in cabinetmaking. 2. The wood of this tree Also called hard maple, rock maple.
- sugar of lead (shōög'ər ūv lēd) n. See lead acetate.
- sugar of milk (shōög'ər ūv mīlk) n. Lactose.
- sugar orchard (shōög'ər ôr'chərd) n. See sugar bush.
- sugar pea (shōög'ər pē) n. See snow pea.
- sugar pine (shōög'ər pīn) n. A tall evergreen timber tree (Pinus lambertiana) of the Pacific coast of North America, having needles with white lines on the back that are grouped in fascicles of five.
- sug·ar·plum (shōög'ər-plūm') n. A small round piece of sugary candy.
- sug·ar·y (shōög'ə-rē) adj. sug·ar·i·er, sug·ar·i·est. 1. Characterized by or containing sugar: sugary foods. 2. Tasting or looking like sugar. 3. Excessively or cloyingly sweet: sugary compliments; a sugary smile. —sug'ar-i-ness n.

sug-gest (səg-jĕst', sə-jĕst') v. tr. sug-gest-ed, sug-gest-ing, sug-gests.

1. To offer for consideration or action; propose: suggest things for children to do; suggested that we take a walk. 2. To bring or call to mind by logic or association; evoke: a cloud that suggests a mushroom; a ringlike symbol suggesting unity. 3. To make evident indirectly; intimate or imply: a silence that suggested disapproval.

4. To serve as or provide a motive for; prompt or demand: Such a crime suggests apt punishment. [Latin suggerere, suggest- : sub-, up; see SUB- + gerere, to carry.]

—sug-gest'er n.

SYNONYMS: suggest, imply, hint, intimate, insinuate. These verbs mean to convey thoughts or ideas by indirection. Suggest refers to the calling of something to mind as the result of an association of ideas or train of thought: "his erect and careless attitude suggesting assurance and power" (Joseph Conrad). To imply is to suggest a thought or an idea that is unexpressed but that can be inferred from something else, such as a statement, that is more explicit: The effusive praise the professor heaped on one of the students seemed to imply indifference toward or disapproval of the rest. Hint refers to an oblique or covert suggestion that often contains clues: He hinted that he would accept an invitation if it were extended. My imagination supplied the explanation you only hinted at. Intimate applies to indirect, subtle expression that often reflects discretion, tact, or reserve: She intimated that she and her husband were having marital problems. To insinuate is to suggest something, usually something unpleasant, in a covert, sly, and underhanded manner: The columnist insinuated—but never actually asserted—that the candidate had underworld ties.

sug-gest-i-bil-i-ty (səg-jĕs'tə-bĭl'ĭ-tē, sə-jĕs'-) n. Responsiveness or susceptibility to suggestion.

sug-gest-i-ble (səg-jĕs'tə-bəl, sə-jĕs'-) adj. Readily influenced by suggestion: suggestible young minds.

sug-ges-tion (səg-jĕs'chən, sə-jĕs'-) n. 1. The act of suggesting. 2. Something suggested: We ordered the shrimp, a suggestion of the waiter. 3. The sequential process by which one thought or mental image leads to another. 4. a. A psychological process by which an idea is induced in or adopted by another without argument, command, or coercion. b. An idea or response so induced. 5. A hint or trace: just a suggestion of makeup; the first suggestion of trouble ahead.

sug-ges-tive (səg-jĕs'tĭv, sə-jĕs'-) adj. 1. a. Tending to suggest; evocative: artifacts suggestive of an ancient society. b. Stimulating further thought: "Suggestive here is the Southern, often Western and rural locus of these tales" (Mark Muro). c. Conveying a hint or suggestion: conveyed the message with a few suggestive words. 2. Tending to suggest something improper or indecent: a controversial song with highly suggestive lyrics. —sug·ges'tive·ly adv. —sug·ges'tive·ness n.

Su·har·to (sə-här'tō, sōō-), Born 1921. Indonesian military and political leader who seized power from Sukarno (1967) and was elected president in 1968.

Suhl (zōōl) A city of central Germany south-southwest of Erfurt. It had a noted arms industry during the Thirty Years' War (1618-1648). Population, 51,731.

Sui (swā) A Chinese dynasty (581-618) that reunified China after a period of declining centralized government.

su·i·cid·al (sōō'ī-sīd'l) adj. 1. Causing, intending, or relating to suicide: a suicidal act; suicidal impulses. 2. Dangerous to oneself or to one's interests; self-destructive or ruinous: a suicidal corporate takeover strategy. —su·i·cid'al·ly adv.

su·i·cide (sōō'ī-sīd') n. 1. The act or an instance of intentionally killing oneself. 2. The destruction or ruin of one's own interests: It is professional suicide to involve oneself in illegal practices. 3. One who commits suicide. [Latin suī, of oneself; see s(w)e- in Appendix + -CIDE.] suicide watch (sōō'ī-sīd' wöch) n. A procedural tour of duty in a prison in which guards frequently check the cells of inmates suspected of suicidal tendencies.

su·i·cid·ol·o·gy (sōō'ī-sī-dōl'ə-jē) n. The study of suicide, suicidal behavior, and suicide prevention. —su·i·cid·ol'·o·gist n.

su·i ge·ne·ris (sōō'ī' jěn'ər-īs, sōō'ē) adj. Being the only example of its kind; unique: "sui generis works like Mary Chesnut's Civil War diary" (Linda Orr).

[Latin suī generis : suī, of its own + generis, genitive of genus, kind.]

sui ju·ris (swā jōōr'īs) adj. Law. Capable of managing one's own affairs. [Latin suī iūris : suī, of one's own + iūris, genitive of iūs, right, law.]

su·int (sōō'īnt, swīnt) n. A natural grease formed from dried perspiration found in the fleece of sheep, used as a source of potash. [French, from Old French, from swer, to sweat, from Latin sūdāre. See sweid- in Appendix.]

suit (sōōt) n. 1. a. A set of matching outer garments, especially one consisting of a coat with trousers or a skirt. b. A costume for a special activity: a diving suit; a running suit. 2. A group of things used together; a set or collection: a suit of sails; a suit of tools. 3. Games. Any of the four sets of 13 playing cards (clubs, diamonds, hearts, and spades) in a standard deck, the members of which bear the same marks. 4. Attendance required of a vassal at his feudal lord's court or manor. 5. Law. A court proceeding to recover a right or claim. 6. The act or an instance of courting a woman; courtship: She was inclined to accept his suit. — v. suit·ed, suit·ing, suits. — v. tr. 1. To meet the requirements of; fit: This candidate does not suit our qualifications. 2. To make appropriate or suitable; adapt: builders who suit the house to the owner's specifications. 3. To be appropriate for; befit: a color that suits you. 4. To please; satisfy: a choice that suits us all.

5. To provide with clothing; dress: The NCOs suited the recruits in green uniforms.
— v. intr. 1. To be suitable or acceptable. 2. To be in accord; agree or match.
—phrasal verb. suit up. To put on clothing designed for a special activity:
suits up in shorts for a jog. [Middle English sute, from Anglo-Norman, from Vulgar Latin sequita*, act of following, feminine of sequitus*, past participle of sequere*, to follow, from Latin sequi. See SUITOR.]

Su·i·ta (sōō-ē'tə, -tä) A city of southern Honshu, Japan, an industrial suburb of Osaka. Population, 348,946.

suit·a·ble (sōō'tə-bəl) adj. Appropriate to a purpose or an occasion. See Synonyms at fit¹. —suit'a·bil'i·ty, suit'a·ble·ness n. —suit'a·bly adv.

suit·case (sōōt'kās') n. A usually rectangular piece of luggage for carrying clothing.

suite (swēt) n. 1. A staff of attendants or followers; a retinue. 2. a. A group of related things intended to be used together; a set. b. (also sōōt) A set of matching furniture: a dining room suite. 3. A series of connected rooms used as a living unit. 4. Music. An instrumental composition consisting of a succession of dances in the same or related keys. [French, from Old French. See SUIT.]

suit·ing (sōō'tiŋ) n. Fabric from which suits are made.

Suit·land (sōōt'lənd) An unincorporated community of central Maryland, a suburb of Washington, D.C. Population, 35,111.

suit·or (sōō'tər) n. 1. A man who is courting a woman. 2. A person who makes a petition or request. 3. Law. A person who sues in court; a plaintiff; a petitioner. 4. A person or group seeking to purchase controlling interest in a company. [Middle English, plaintiff, from Anglo-Norman, from Latin secūtor, follower, from secūtus, past participle of sequi, to follow. See sek^{w-1} in Appendix.]

Su·kar·no (sōō-kär'nō), 1901-1970. Indonesian politician who obtained his country's independence from the Netherlands (1949), served as Indonesia's first president (1949-1967), and was ousted from office by a coup d'état.

Su·khu·mi (sōōk'ə-mē, sōō-KHōō'myī) A city of western Georgia on the Black Sea west-northwest of Tbilisi. It is a popular resort. Population, 126,000.

su·ki·ya·ki (sōō'kē-yä'kē, skē-yä'kē) n. A Japanese dish of sliced meat, bean curd, and vegetables seasoned and fried together. [Japanese.]

Suk·koth (sōōk'əs, sōō-kōs', sōō-kōt') n. Judaism. Variant of Succoth.

Su·la·we·si (sōō'lä-wä'sē) See Celebes.

sul·cate (sül'kāt') adj. Biology. Having narrow, deep furrows or grooves, as a stem or tissue. [Latin sulcātus, past participle of sulcāre, to furrow, from sulcus, furrow.]

sul·cus (sül'kəs) n. pl. sul·ci (-kī, -sī). 1. A deep, narrow furrow or groove, as in an organ or a tissue. 2. Anatomy. Any of the narrow fissures separating adjacent convolutions of the brain. [Latin.] —sul'cal adj.

Su-lei-man I (sōō'lā-män', -lə-), Known as "Suleiman the Magnificent." 1494?-1566. Sultan of Turkey (1520-1566) under whose governance the Ottoman Empire reached the height of its power.

sulf- pref. Variant of sulfo-.

sul·fa (sül'fə) adj. Of, relating to, or containing sulfanilamide or any sulfa drug: sulfa pills; a sulfa powder. [Short for SULFA(NILAMIDE).]

sul·fa·di·a·zine (sül'fə-dī'ə-zēn') n. A sulfa drug, C₁₀H₁₀N₄O₂S, used in the treatment of meningitis and other infections.

sulfa drug (sül'fə drüg) n. Any of a group of synthetic organic compounds, derived chiefly from sulfanilamide, chemically similar to PABA and capable of inhibiting bacterial growth and activity by interfering with the metabolic processes in bacteria that require PABA. Also called sulfonamide sul·fa·nil·a·mide (sül'fə-nīl'ə-mīd', -mīd) n. A white, odorless crystalline sulfonamide, C₆H₈N₂SO₂, used in the treatment of various bacterial infections. [SULF(O)- + ANIL(INE) + AMIDE.]

sul·fa·tase (sül'fə-tās') n. Any of a group of enzymes that catalyze the hydrolysis of sulfuric acid esters and are found in animal tissues and bacteria. [SULFAT(E) + -ASE.]

sul·fate (sül'fāt') n. A chemical compound containing the bivalent group SO₄. — v. sul·fat·ed, sul·fat·ing, sul·fates. — v. tr. 1. To treat or react with sulfuric acid or a sulfate. 2. Electricity. To cause lead sulfate to accumulate on (the plates of a lead-acid storage battery). — v. intr. To become sulfated. [French, from Latin sulfur, sulfur.]

sul·fa·thi·a·zole (sül'fə-thī'ə-zōl') n. A sulfa drug, C₉H₉N₃O₂S₂, once widely used in the treatment of gonorrhea, bacterial pneumonia, and other bacterial infections. It has been replaced by less toxic sulfonamides.

sul·fide (sül'fīd') n. A compound of bivalent sulfur with an electropositive element or group, especially a binary compound of sulfur with a metal.

sul·fin·pyr·a·zone (sül'fīn-pīr'ə-zōn') n. A drug, C₂₃H₂₀N₂O₃S, related to phenylbutazone, that promotes urinary excretion of uric acid and is used in the treatment of gout. [SULFIN(YL) + PYR(O)- + AZ(OLE) + -ONE.]

sul·fi·nyl (sül'fə-nīl') n. The bivalent group SO. Also called thionyl [SULF(O)- + -IN + -YL.]

sul·fite (sül'fīt') n. A salt or an ester of sulfurous acid. —sul·fit'ic (-fīt'ik) adj.

sulfo- or sulf- pref. Sulfur: sulfate. [From SULFUR.]

sulfon- pref. 1. Sulfonic: sulfonamide. 2. Sulfonyl: sulfonmethane. [From SULFONE.]

sul·fon·a·mide (sül-fōn'ə-mīd', -mīd) n. 1. Any of a group of organic sulfur compounds containing the radical O₂NH₂ and including the sulfa drugs. 2. See sulfa drug.

sul·fo·nate (sŭl'fə-nāt') n. A salt or an ester of sulfonic acid. — v. tr.

sul·fo·nat·ed, sul·fo·nat·ing, sul·fo·nates. 1. To introduce into (an organic compound) one or more sulfonic acid groups. 2. To treat with sulfonic acid.

—sul'fo·na'tion n.

sul·fone (sŭl'fōn') n. Any of various organic sulfur compounds having a sulfonyl group attached to two carbon atoms, especially such a compound formerly used as a drug to treat leprosy or tuberculosis.

sul·fon·ic (sŭl-fōn'ik) adj. Of or relating to the chemical group SO_2OH .

sulfonic acid (sŭl-fōn'ik əs'īd) n. Any of several organic acids containing one or more sulfonic groups.

sul·fo·ni·um (sŭl-fō'nē-əm) n. A positive ion or univalent radical containing trivalent sulfur, such as H_3S . [SULF(O)- + (AMM)ONIUM.]

sul·fon·meth·ane (sŭl'fōn-mēth'ān', -fōn-) n. A colorless crystalline or powdered compound, $\text{C}_7\text{H}_{16}\text{O}_4\text{S}_2$, used medicinally as a hypnotic.

sul·fo·nyl (sŭl'fə-nīl') n. The bivalent radical SO_2 . Also called sulfuryl sul·fo·nyl·u·re·a (sŭl'fə-nīl-yōō-rē'ə) n. Any of a group of hypoglycemic drugs, such as tolbutamide, that act on the beta cells of the pancreas to increase the secretion of insulin.

sulf·ox·ide (sŭl-fōk'sīd') n. Any of various organic compounds that contain a sulfinyl group.

sul·fur also sul·phur (sŭl'fər) n. Symbol S A pale yellow nonmetallic element occurring widely in nature in several free and combined allotropic forms. It is used in black gunpowder, rubber vulcanization, the manufacture of insecticides and pharmaceuticals, and in the preparation of sulfur compounds such as hydrogen sulfide and sulfuric acid. Atomic number 16; atomic weight 32.064; melting point (rhombic) 112.8°C ; (monoclinic) 119.0°C ; boiling point 444.6°C ; specific gravity (rhombic) 2.07; (monoclinic) 1.957; valence 2, 4, 6. — v. tr. sul·fured also sul·phured, sul·fur·ing also sul·phur·ing, sul·furs also sul·phurs. To treat with sulfur or a compound of sulfur. [Middle English, from Anglo-Norman sulfre, from Latin sulfur.] sul·fu·rate (sŭl'fə-rāt', -fyə-) v. tr. sul·fu·rat·ed, sul·fu·rat·ing, sul·fu·rates. To treat or combine with sulfur. —sul'fu·ra'tion n.

sulfur bacterium (sŭl'fər bāk-tīr'ē-əm) n. Any of several bacteria that oxidize inorganic sulfur compounds, especially a rod-shaped, gram-negative bacterium of the genus Thiobacillus.

sulfur dioxide (sŭl'fər dī-ōk'sīd) n. A colorless, extremely irritating gas or liquid, SO_2 , used in many industrial processes, especially the manufacture of sulfuric acid.

sul·fu·re·ous (sŭl-fyōōr'ē-əs) adj. Of or relating to sulfur; sulfurous.

sul·fu·ret (sŭl'fə-rēt', -fyə-) v. tr. sul·fu·ret·ed or sul·fu·ret·ted, sul·fu·ret·ing or sul·fu·ret·ting, sul·fu·rets or sul·fu·rets. To sulfurize. —

n. A sulfide. [From New Latin sulfurētum, sulfide : sulf-, sulfur (from Latin sulfur) + -urētum, obsolete chemical suff.]

sul·fu·ric (sül-fyöör'ík) adj. Of, relating to, or containing sulfur, especially with valence 6.

sulfuric acid (sül-fyöör'ík äs'íd) n. A highly corrosive, dense, oily liquid, H_2SO_4 , colorless to dark brown depending on its purity and used to manufacture a wide variety of chemicals and materials including fertilizers, paints, detergents, and explosives. Also called oil of vitriol, vitriol.

sul·fur·ize (sül'fə-rīz', -fyə-) v. tr. sul·fur·ized, sul·fur·iz·ing, sul·fur·iz·es.

1. To treat or impregnate with sulfur; sulfuret. 2. To bleach or fumigate with sulfur or sulfur dioxide. —sul'fur-i-za'tion (-fər-ī-zā'shən, -fyər-) n.

sul·fur·ous (sül'fər-əs, -fyər-, sül-fyöör'əs) adj. 1. Of, relating to, derived from, or containing sulfur, especially with valence 4. 2. Characteristic of or emanating from burning sulfur. 3. Also sul·phur·ous. Fiery; hellish.

sulfurous acid (sül'fər-əs äs'íd) n. A colorless solution of sulfur dioxide in water, H_2SO_3 , characterized by a suffocating sulfurous odor, used as a bleaching agent, preservative, and disinfectant.

sulfur trioxide (sül'fər trī-ök'sid') n. A corrosive compound, SO_3 , having three solid forms that may coexist in a given sample, used in the sulfonation of organic compounds.

sul·fur·yl (sül'fə-rīl', -fyə-) n. See sulfonyl.

sulfuryl chloride (sül'fə-rīl' klôr'id') n. A colorless liquid, SO_2Cl_2 , having a pungent odor, used as a chlorinating and dehydrating agent and in the manufacture of pharmaceuticals, dyestuffs, and poison gases.

sulk (sülk) v. intr. sulked, sulk·ing, sulks. To be sullenly aloof or withdrawn, as in silent resentment or protest. — n. A mood or display of sullen aloofness or withdrawal: stayed home in a sulk; a case of the sulks. [Back-formation from SULKY¹.]

sulk·y¹ (sül'kē) adj. sulk·i·er, sulk·i·est. 1. Sullenly aloof or withdrawn.

2. Gloomy; dismal: sulky weather. [Perhaps alteration of obsolete sulke, sluggish, perhaps ultimately from Old English āsolcen, from past participle of āseolcan, to become sluggish.] —sulk'i·ly adv. —sulk'i·ness n.

sulk·y² (sül'kē) n. pl. sulk·ies. A light, open two-wheeled vehicle accommodating only the driver and drawn by one horse, used especially in harness racing. [From SULKY¹ (from its having only one seat).]

Sul·la (sül'ə), Lucius Cornelius. 138-78 B.C. Roman general and dictator (82-79) who marched on Rome and seized power from his political rival Marius (88).

sul·lage (sül'ij) n. 1. Silt deposited by a current of water. 2. Waste materials or sewage; refuse. [Perhaps from French souiller, to soil. See SULLY.]

sul·len (sül'ən) adj. sul·len·er, sul·len·est. 1. Showing a brooding ill humor or silent resentment; morose or sulky. 2. Gloomy or somber in tone, color, or portent: sullen, gray skies. 3. Sluggish; slow: the sullen current of a canal. [Middle English solein, from Anglo-Norman solein, alone, from sol, single, from Latin sōlus, by oneself alone. See s(w)e- in Appendix.] —sul'len·ly adv.

—sul'len·ness n.

Sul·li·van (sŭl'ə-vən), Anne Mansfield. 1866-1936. American educator. Visually impaired herself, she was the teacher and lifelong companion of Helen Keller.

Sul·li·van (sŭl'ə-vən), Sir Arthur Seymour. 1842-1900. British composer known for a series of comic operas, including H.M.S. Pinafore (1878) and The Gondoliers (1889), written with the lyricist W.S. Gilbert.

Sul·li·van (sŭl'ə-vən), Edward Vincent. Known as “Ed.” 1902-1974. American columnist and host of The Ed Sullivan Show (1948-1971), a television variety show.

Sul·li·van (sŭl'ə-vən), Harry Stack. 1892-1949. American psychiatrist who theorized that personality is largely determined by one's interpersonal relations and the assimilation of societal values.

Sul·li·van (sŭl'ə-vən), John Lawrence. 1858-1918. American prizefighter who was the heavyweight champion from 1882 to 1892. In 1889 he fought the last bare-knuckles title bout.

Sul·li·van (sŭl'ə-vən), Louis Henry or Henri. 1856-1924. American architect known for his early steel-frame designs for skyscrapers and for his influential dictum “Form follows function.”

sul·ly (sŭl'ē) v. tr. sul·lied, sul·ly·ing, sul·lies. 1. To mar the cleanness or luster of; soil or stain. 2. To defile; taint. — n. pl. sul·lies. Archaic. Something that stains or spots. [Probably from French souiller, from Old French. See SOIL.²]

Sul·ly (sŭl'ē, sōō-lē', sŭ-), Duc de Title of Maximilien de Béthune. 1560-1641. French politician. As chief minister to Henry IV, he replenished the treasury and encouraged agriculture and industry.

Sul·ly (sŭl'ē), Thomas. 1783-1872. British-born American painter of portraits and historical scenes, such as Washington's Passage of the Delaware (c. 1818).

Sul·ly-Prud·homme (sŭl'ē-prōō'dəm, sŭ-lē'prü-dôm'), René François Armand. 1839-1907. French poet whose early works are melancholic, while his later poems are concerned with scientific and philosophical theories. He won the 1901 Nobel Prize for literature.

sul·phur¹ (sŭl'fər) n. Any of various butterflies of the genus Colias and related genera of the family Pieridae, having yellow or orange wings marked with black.

sul·phur² (sŭl'fər) n. & v. Variant of sulfur.

Sul·phur (sŭl'fər) A city of southwest Louisiana west of Lake Charles. It is a trade center in an oil and natural gas region. Population, 20,125.

sul·phur·bot·tom (sŭl'fər-bōt'əm) n. See blue whale.

sul·phur·ous (sŭl'fər-əs, -fyər-, sŭl-fyŭōr'əs) adj. Variant of sulfurous (adj., sense 3).

sul·tan (sŭl'tən) n. 1. A ruler of a Muslim country, especially of the former Ottoman Empire. 2. A powerful person: a sultan of vice and corruption.

[French, from Old French, ruler of Turkey, from Turkish, from Arabic sulṭān, from Aramaic šulṭānā, from šēlēt, to rule.]

sul·tan·a (sŭl-tăn'ə, -tā'nə) n. 1. a. The wife, mother, sister, or daughter of a sultan. b. The mistress of a sultan, king, or prince. 2. A small yellow seedless raisin of a kind originally produced in Asia Minor. [Italian, feminine of sultano, sultan, from Arabic sulṭān. See SULTAN.]

sul·tan·ate (sŭl'tə-nāt') n. 1. The office, power, or reign of a sultan. 2. A country ruled by a sultan.

sul·try (sŭl'trē) adj. sul·tri·er, sul·tri·est. 1. a. Very humid and hot: sultry July weather. b. Extremely hot; torrid: the sultry sands of the desert. 2. Sensual; voluptuous: a sultry look; a sultry dance. [From obsolete sulter, to swelter, possibly alteration of SWELTER.] —sul'tri·ly adv. —sul'tri·ness n.

Su·lu (sōō'lōō) n. pl. Su·lu or Su·lus. A member of a Muslim people inhabiting the Sulu Archipelago. [Sama sulu, current.]

Sulu Sea (sōō'lōō sē) An arm of the western Pacific Ocean between the Philippines and northern Borneo. The Sulu Archipelago, a chain of small islands belonging to the Philippines, separates the Sulu Sea from the Celebes Sea southwest of Mindanao.

Sulz·ber·ger (sŭlz'bŭr'gər, sŭlz'-), Arthur Hays. 1891-1968. American journalist who was publisher of the New York Times (1935-1961).

sum (sŭm) n. Mathematics. 1. a. An amount obtained as a result of adding numbers. b. An arithmetic problem: a child good at sums. 2. The whole amount, quantity, or number; an aggregate: the sum of the team's combined experience. 3. An amount of money: paid an enormous sum. 4. A summary: my view of the world, in sum. 5. The central idea or point; the gist. — v. tr. summed, sum·ming, sums. 1. Mathematics. To add. 2. To give a summary of; summarize. —phrasal verb. sum up. 1. To present the substance of (material) in a condensed form; summarize: sum up the day's news; concluded the lecture by summing up. 2. To describe or assess concisely: an epithet that sums up my feelings. [Middle English summe, from Old French, from Latin summa, from feminine of summus, highest. See uper in Appendix.]

su·mac also su·mach (sōō'māk, shōō'-) n. Any of various shrubs or small trees of the genus Rhus, having compound leaves, clusters of small greenish flowers, and usually red, hairy fruit. Some species, such as the poison ivy and poison oak, cause an acute itching rash on contact. [Middle English, preparation made from sumac, from Old French (possibly via Medieval Latin sumach), from Arabic summāq, sumac tree, probably from Aramaic sēmēq, to be red.]

Su·ma·tra (sōō-mä'trə) An island of western Indonesia in the Indian Ocean south of the Malay Peninsula. Visited by Marco Polo c. 1292, the island came under Dutch control in the 17th century although the English continued to press territorial claims. Sumatra joined newly independent Indonesia in 1949.

—Su·ma'tran adj. & n.

Sum·ba (sōōm'bə, -bä) An island of south-central Indonesia in the Lesser Sunda Islands south of Flores. First visited by Europeans in 1522, it passed to the Dutch in 1866.

Sum·ba·wa (sōōm-bä'wə, -wä) A volcanic island of south-central Indonesia in the Lesser Sunda Islands west of Flores. The Dutch gained control in 1905 after signing treaties with the local chieftains.

Su·mer (sōō'mər) An ancient country of southern Mesopotamia in present-day southern Iraq. Archaeological evidence dates the beginnings of Sumer to the fifth millennium B.C. By 3000 a flourishing civilization existed, which gradually exerted power over the surrounding area and culminated in the Akkadian dynasty founded (c. 2340) by Sargon I. Sumer declined after 2000 and was later absorbed by Babylonia and Assyria. The Sumerians are believed to have invented the cuneiform system of writing.

Su·me·ri·an (sōō-mír'ē-ən, -mēr'-) adj. Of or relating to ancient Sumer or its people, language, or culture. — n. 1. A member of an ancient people, probably of non-Semitic origin, who established a nation of city-states in Sumer in the fourth millennium B.C. that is one of the earliest known historic civilizations. 2. The language of the Sumerians, of no known linguistic affiliation.

Sum·ga·it (soōm'gä-ēt') A city of eastern Azerbaijan on the Caspian Sea northeast of Baku. It is an industrial center. Population, 223,000.

sum·ma cum lau·de (soōm'ə kōōm lou'də, -dā, -dē) adv. & adj. With the greatest honor. Used to express the highest academic distinction: graduated summa cum laude; a summa cum laude graduate. [Latin summā cum laude, with highest praise : summā, feminine ablative of summus, highest + cum, with + laude, ablative of laus, praise.]

sum·ma·rize (süm'ə-rīz') v. intr. tr. sum·ma·rized, sum·ma·riz·ing, sum·ma·riz·es. To make a summary or make a summary of.

—sum'ma·ri·za'tion (süm'ər-ī-zā'shən) n. —sum'ma·ri·zer n.

sum·ma·ry (süm'ə-rē) adj. 1. Presenting the substance in a condensed form; concise: a summary review. 2. Performed speedily and without ceremony: summary justice; a summary rejection. — n. pl. sum·ma·ries. A presentation of the substance of a body of material in a condensed form or by reducing it to its main points; an abstract. [Middle English, from Medieval Latin summārius, of or concerning the sum, from Latin summa, sum. See SUM.] —sum·mar'i·ly (sə-mēr'ə-lē) adv. —sum'ma·ri·ness n.

summary court-martial (sŭm'ə-rē kôrt'mär'shəl) n. A court-martial consisting of one officer, convened and held to try relatively minor offenses.

sum-mate (sə-māt') v. sum-ma-ted, sum-ma-ting, sum-mates. — v. tr. To sum up: summate a legal argument. — v. intr. To form or constitute a cumulative effect.

sum-ma-tion (sə-mā'shən) n. 1. The act or process of adding; addition. 2. A sum or an aggregate. 3. A concluding part of a speech or an argument containing a summary of principal points, especially of a case before a court of law.

4. Physiology. The process by which multiple or repeated stimuli can produce a response in a nerve, muscle, or other part that one stimulus alone cannot produce. [New Latin summātiō, summātiōn-, from Late Latin summātus, past participle of summāre, to sum up, from Latin summa, sum. See SUM.]

summer¹ (sŭm'ər) n. 1. The usually warmest season of the year, occurring between spring and autumn and constituting June, July, and August in the Northern Hemisphere, or, as calculated astronomically, extending from the summer solstice to the autumnal equinox. 2. A period of fruition, fulfillment, happiness, or beauty. 3. A year: a girl of 13 summers. — v. sum-mered, sum-mer-ing, sum-mers. — v. tr. To lodge or keep during the summer: summered the herd in the south meadow. — v. intr. To pass the summer: They summered at a beach resort. — adj. 1. Of, having to do with, occurring in, or appropriate to the season of summer: summer heat; summer attire. 2. Grown during the season of summer: summer crops. [Middle English sumer, from Old English sumor. See sem-² in Appendix.] — sum'mer-ly adv. & adj.

summer² (sŭm'ər) n. Architecture. 1. A heavy horizontal timber that serves as a supporting beam, especially for the floor above. 2. A lintel. 3. A large, heavy stone usually set on the top of a column or pilaster to support an arch or a lintel. [Middle English, beam, pack animal, from Anglo-Norman sumer, from Vulgar Latin saumārius*, from Late Latin sagmārius, pertaining to a packsaddle, pack-horse, from sagma, packsaddle. See SUMPTE.]

summer-ca-ter (sŭm'ər-kā'tər) n. Maine. A summer resident of Maine. Regional. Also called sport [Probably SUMMER¹ + (VA)CAT(ION) + -ER¹.]

REGIONAL NOTE: Since the Civil War Maine has been a favorite vacation spot for New Englanders and tourists from farther away. Predictably, certain words in the lexicon of Maine betray a wry Yankee impatience with these outsiders and city folks who come up to Maine only for summer relaxation. Along the coast the summer resident is called a summercater; inland, the word for a nonresident is sport. Or the Maine native may merely refer collectively to folks from away. Much Maine real estate is designated nonresident—that is, it is set aside for these summer residents on whom Maine's economy is so dependent.

- summer cypress (sŭm'ər sī'prīs) n. A Eurasian annual plant (Kochia scoparia) having narrow, dense foliage that turns bright red.
- summer flounder (sŭm'ər floun'dər) n. A fluke (Paralichthys dentatus) of the Atlantic coast of the United States, valued as a food and game fish.
- sum-mer-house (sŭm'ər-hous') n. A small, roofed structure in a park or garden affording shade and rest; a gazebo.
- sum-mer-sault (sŭm'ər-sôlt') n. & v. Variant of somersault.
- summer savory (sŭm'ər sāv'və-rē) n. See savory² (n., sense 1).
- summer school (sŭm'ər skōōl) n. An academic session held during the summer, chiefly for supplementary and remedial study.
- sum-mer-set (sŭm'ər-sēt') n. & v. Variant of somerset.
- summer solstice (sŭm'ər sōl'stīs) n. In the Northern Hemisphere, the solstice that occurs on about June 21.
- summer squash (sŭm'ər skwōsh) n. Any of several varieties of squash, such as the crookneck or the cymling, that are eaten shortly after being picked rather than kept in storage.
- summer stock (sŭm'ər stōk) n. Theatrical productions of stock companies presented during the summer.
- summer tanager (sŭm'ər tăn'ī-jər) n. A New World bird (Piranga rubra) that catches insects in flight and whose plumage is rose-red in the adult male and, in the female, yellowish olive-green above and light brownish-orange below.
- sum-mer-time (sŭm'ər-tīm') n. The summer season.
- sum-mer-wood (sŭm'ər-wōōd') n. Wood that is produced during the latter part of the growing season and is harder and less porous than springwood.
- sum-mer-y (sŭm'ə-rē) adj. Of, intended for, or suggesting summer.
- sum-ming-up (sŭm'ing-ŭp') n. pl. sum-mings-up (sŭm'ingz-). A summary, often including an assessment.
- sum-mit (sŭm'īt) n. 1. The highest point or part; the top. 2. The highest level or degree that can be attained. 3. a. The highest level, as of government officials. b. A summit conference. [Middle English somet, from Old French sommette, diminutive of som, top, from Latin summum, from neuter of summus, highest. See uper in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: summit, peak, pinnacle, acme, apex, zenith, climax. These nouns all mean the highest point. Summit denotes the highest level attainable: “This [appointment] had been the summit of Mr. Bertram’s ambition” (Sir Walter Scott). Peak usually refers to the uppermost point: “It was the peak of summer in the Berkshires” (Saul Bellow). Pinnacle denotes a towering height, as of achievement: The articulation of the theory of relativity catapulted Albert Einstein to the pinnacle of fame. Acme refers to an ultimate point, as of perfection: The artist’s gifts are at their acme. Apex is the culminating point: The Nazi regime represents the apex of oppression and intimidation. Zenith is the point of highest achievement, most complete development, or greatest power: “Chivalry was then in its zenith” (Henry Hallam). Climax refers to the point of greatest strength, effect, or intensity that marks the end point of an ascending process: The collapse of the government was merely the climax of a series of constitutional crises.

Sum-mit (sŭm'it) A city of northeast New Jersey west of Newark. It is mainly residential. Population, 19,757.

summit conference (sŭm'it kŏn'fər-əns) n. A conference of leaders, especially a conference of the highest-ranking officials of two or more governments.

sum-mit-eer (sŭm'ĩ-tĩr') n. An official who takes part in a summit conference.

sum-mit-ry (sŭm'ĩ-trē) n. 1. The holding of a summit conference: “Modern summitry began at Versailles in 1919” (George F. Will). 2. Participation in summit conferences.

sum-mon (sŭm'ən) v. tr. sum-moned, sum-mon-ing, sum-mons. 1. To call together; convene. 2. To request to appear; send for. See Synonyms at call.

3. Law. To order to appear in court by the issuance of a summons. 4. To order to take a specified action; bid: summon the captain to surrender. 5. To call forth; evoke: “He summoned up a smile, though it seemed to take all his strength” (Colin Turnbull). [Middle English somonen, from Old French somondre, from Vulgar Latin summonere*, from Latin summonēre, to remind privately, hint to : sub-, secretly; see SUB- + monēre, to warn; see men¹ in Appendix.] —sum'mon-er n.

sum-mons (sŭm'ənz) n. pl. sum-mons-es. 1. A call by an authority to appear, come, or do something. 2. Law. a. A notice summoning a defendant to appear in court. b. A notice summoning a person to report to court as a juror or witness.

— v. tr. sum-monsed, sum-mons-ing, sum-mons-es. Law. To serve a court summons to. [Middle English somons, from Old French somonse, from feminine past participle of somondre, to summon. See SUMMON.] sum-mum bo-num (sŏm'əm bŏ'nəm) n. The greatest or supreme good. [Latin : summum, neuter of summus, highest + bonum, good.]

Sum-ner (sŭm'nər), Charles. 1811-1874. American politician. A U.S. senator from Massachusetts (1851-1874), he was a brilliant orator with an uncompromising opposition to slavery.

Sum-ner (sŭm'nər), James Batcheller. 1887-1955. American biochemist. He shared a 1946 Nobel Prize for his pioneering work on crystallizing enzymes.

Sum-ner (sŭm'nər), William Graham. 1840-1910. American sociologist who developed the concepts of folkways and mores and is noted for his social Darwinist theories.

su-mo (sŏo'mō) n. Sports. A Japanese form of wrestling in which a fighter loses if forced from the ring or if any part of his body except the soles of his feet touches the ground. [Japanese sumō.]

sump (sŭmp) n. 1. a. A low-lying place, such as a pit, that receives drainage. b. A cesspool. 2. A hole at the lowest point of a mine shaft into which water is drained in order to be pumped out. 3. The crankcase or oil reservoir of an internal-combustion engine. [Middle English sompe, marsh, from Middle Low German sump, or from Middle Dutch somp. Sense 2, from German Sumpf, swamp, sump from Middle High German sumpf, swamp.]

sump-ter (sŭmp'tər) n. A pack animal, such as a horse or mule. [Middle English, driver of a packhorse, from Old French sometier, from Vulgar Latin saumatārius*, from Late Latin sagma, sagmat-, packsaddle, from Greek, from sattein, to pack.]

sump-tu-ar-y (sŭmp'tchō-ēr'ē) adj. 1. Regulating or limiting personal expenditures. 2. a. Regulating commercial or real-estate activities: sumptuary laws discouraging construction of large houses on small plots of land. b. Regulating personal behavior on moral or religious grounds: sumptuary laws forbidding gambling. [Latin sūmptuārius, from sūmptus, expense, from past participle of sūmere, to take, buy. See em- in Appendix.]

sump-tu-ous (sŭmp'tchō-əs) adj. Of a size or splendor suggesting great expense; lavish: "He likes big meals, so I cook sumptuous ones" (Anaïs Nin). [Middle English, from Old French sumptueux, from Latin sūmptuōsus, from sūmptus, expense. See SUMPTUARY.] —sump'tu-ous-ly adv. —sump'tu-ous-ness n.

Sum-ter (sŭm'tər) A city of central South Carolina east of Columbia. Founded in 1799, it is a trade and processing center. Population, 41,943.

Sum-ter (sŭm'tər), Thomas. 1734-1832. American Revolutionary general and politician who served as a U.S. representative (1789-1793 and 1797-1781) and senator (1801-1810) from South Carolina.

Su-my (sōō'mē) A city of northern Ukraine northwest of Kharkov. Its manufactures include mining equipment and heavy machinery. Population, 256,000.

sun (sŭn) n. 1. A star that is the basis of the solar system and that sustains life on Earth, being the source of heat and light. It has a mean distance from Earth of about 150 million kilometers (93 million miles), a diameter of approximately 1,390,000 kilometers (864,000 miles), and a mass about 330,000 times that of Earth. 2. A star that is the center of a planetary system. 3. The radiant energy, especially heat and visible light, emitted by the sun; sunshine. — v. sunned, sun-ning, suns. — v. tr. To expose to the sun's rays, as for warming, drying, or tanning. — v. intr. To expose oneself or itself to the sun. —idioms. in the sun. In the public eye. under the sun. On earth; in the world. [Middle English, from Old English sunne. See sāwel- in Appendix.]

Sun. abbr. Sunday.

sun-baked (sŭn'bākt') adj. Baked, dried, or hardened by exposure to sunlight: sunbaked bricks; the sunbaked salt flats.

sun-bath (sŭn'bāth', -bāth') n. An exposure of the body to sun.

sun·bathe (sŭn' bāth') v. intr. sun·bathed, sun·bath·ing, sun·bathes. To expose the body to the sun. —sun' bath'er (-bā' thər) n.

sun·beam (sŭn' bēm') n. A ray of sunlight. [Middle English sunnebeam, from Old English sunnebeām (translation of Late Latin columna lūcis, pillar of light) : sunne, sun; see SUN + bēam, tree, building post; see BEAM.]

WORD HISTORY: The period of European history from the 5th to the 11th century, although often called the Dark Ages, in fact did much to preserve and extend the light of civilization. One of the relatively minor contributions of the time, albeit a fortunate one for us, is the addition of the word sunbeam to the English language. The word is believed to have entered English in the 9th century through the work of the English king Alfred the Great. A scholar as well as a king, Alfred undertook a number of translations of great Latin writings, rendering them into the English of his time, now known as Old English. Among the works translated during Alfred's reign was a store of narratives and information about England's earliest connections with the Church, called the Historia Ecclesiastica Gentis Anglorum, or The Ecclesiastical History of the English People, a work composed by the Venerable Bede. Several times in his book Bede uses the Latin phrase columna lucis, which we would today translate as "a column of light." Since the Old English translator did not have the word column in his vocabulary, he substituted the word beam, which meant "a tree" or "a building post made from a tree." Columna lucis thus became sunnebeām, or "sun post," which survives as our sunbeam. If sunbeam is perhaps a less stately expression than "column of light," it has nevertheless served us well. From it the word beam alone came to mean "a ray or rays of light"; it subsequently became a verb meaning "to radiate." It now allows us not only to beam with pride or happiness but also to beam our broadcasts to other countries and ourselves, as some would have it, through space. Column would never do.

Sun·belt also Sun Belt (sŭn' bēlt') The southern and southwest United States.

sun·bird (sŭn' būrd') n. Any of various small, tropical Old World passerine birds of the family Nectariniidae, having a slender, downward-curving bill and often brightly colored plumage in the male.

sun bittern (sŭn bīt' ərn) n. A cranelike tropical American bird (Eurypyga helias), having mottled brownish plumage and often spreading its wings and tail in a showy display.

sun block also sun blocker (sŭn blök) n. A preparation, as of PABA, that prevents sunburn by filtering out the sun's ultraviolet rays, usually offering more protection than a sunscreen.

sun·bon·net (sŭn' bŏn' ĭt) n. A woman's wide-brimmed bonnet with a flap at the back to protect the neck from the sun.

sun·bow (sŭn' bō') n. A rainbowlike display of colors resulting from refraction of sunlight through a spray of water.

sun·burn (sŭn' bŭrn') n. Inflammation or blistering of the skin caused by overexposure to direct sunlight. — v. sun·burned or sun·burnt (-bŭrnt'), sun·burn·ing, sun·burns. — v. tr. intr. To affect or be affected with sunburn.

sun·burst (sŭn' bŭrst') n. 1. A sudden burst of sunlight, as through broken clouds. 2. a. A pattern or design consisting of a central disk with radiating spires projecting in the manner of sunbeams. b. A jeweled brooch with such a design.

Sun City (sŭn sĭt' ē) A community of south-central Arizona, a residential suburb of Phoenix. Population, 40,505.

sun·dae (sŭn' dē, -dā') n. A dish of ice cream with a topping such as syrup, fruits, nuts, or whipped cream. [Origin unknown.]

Sun·da Islands (sŭn' dā ī' lændz, sōn'-) A group of islands of the western Malay Archipelago between the South China Sea and the Indian Ocean. The Greater Sunda Islands include Sumatra, Borneo, Java, and Celebes; the Lesser Sunda Islands lie east of Java and extend from Bali to Timor. Sumatra and Java are separated by the Sunda Strait, a narrow channel linking the Indian Ocean with the Java Sea.

sun dance (sŭn dāns) n. A religious ceremony widely practiced among Native American peoples of the Great Plains, typically marked by several days of fasting and group dancing and sometimes including ritual self-torture, as in penance or to induce a trance or vision.

Sun·day (sŭn' dē, -dā') n. Abbr. S., Sun. 1. The first day of the week. 2. The Sabbath for many Christians. [Middle English, from Old English sunmandæg. See sāwel- in Appendix.]

Sunday, William Ashley. Known as “Billy.” 1862-1935. American evangelist. Originally a professional baseball player (1883-1891), he began preaching in 1896 and became a Presbyterian minister in 1903.

Sunday punch (sŭn' dē pŭnch) n. Slang. 1. A knockout blow. 2. Something that is capable of delivering a destructive blow to an opponent or opposing force.

Sunday school (sŭn' dē skōōl) n. Abbr. S.S. 1. A school, generally affiliated with a church or synagogue, that offers religious instruction for children on Sundays. 2. The teachers and pupils of such a school.

sun deck (sŭn dĕk) n. A roof, balcony, or terrace used for sunbathing.

sun·der (sŭn' dər) v. sun·dered, sun·der·ing, sun·ders. — v. tr. To break or wrench apart; sever. See Synonyms at separate. — v. intr. To break into parts. — n. A division or separation. [Middle English sundren, from Old English sundrian.] — sun·der·ance n.

Sun·der·land (sŭn' dər-lənd) A borough of northeast England on the North Sea east-southeast of Newcastle. It was established as a shipbuilding center in the 14th century on the site of a Saxon community. Population, 299,100.

sun·dew (sŭn'dōō', -dyōō') n. Any of several insectivorous plants of the genus Drosera, growing in wet ground and having leaves covered with sticky hairs. Also called drosera [Obsolete Dutch sondauw (translation of Latin rōs sōlis, dew of the sun) : son, sun (from Middle Dutch sonne); see sāwel- in Appendix + dauw, dew (from Middle Dutch dau); see dheu-¹ in Appendix.]

sun·di·al (sŭn'dī'əl) n. An instrument that indicates local apparent solar time by the shadow cast by a central projecting pointer on a surrounding calibrated dial.

sun disk (sŭn dīsk) n. An ancient Middle Eastern symbol consisting of a disk set between outspread wings, representing the sun god.

sun·dog (sŭn'dōg', -dōg') n. 1. A parhelion. 2. A small halo or rainbow near the horizon just off the parhelic circle.

sun·down (sŭn'doun') n. The time of sunset.

sun·down·er (sŭn'dou'nər) n. 1. Australian. A vagrant; a tramp. 2. Chiefly British. A drink taken at sundown.

sun·dress (sŭn'drēs') n. A light summer dress with a bodice that exposes the arms and shoulders.

sun·dries (sŭn'drēz) pl.n. Articles too small or numerous to be specified; miscellaneous items. [From SUNDRY.]

sun·drops (sŭn'drōps') pl.n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). See evening primrose.

sun·dry (sŭn'drē) adj. Various; miscellaneous: a purse containing keys, wallet, and sundry items. [Middle English sundri, from Old English syndrig, separate.]

Sunds·vall (sŭnts'vāl') A city of east-central Sweden on an inlet of the Gulf of Bothnia. Chartered in 1621, it is a major shipping center. Population, 50,600.

sun·fish (sŭn'fīsh') n. pl. sunfish or sun·fish·es. 1. Any of various small North American percoid freshwater fishes of the family Centrarchidae, having laterally compressed, often brightly colored bodies and including the crappies, black bass, bluegill, and pumpkinseed. 2. Any of several large marine fishes of the family Molidae, especially the ocean sunfish. [From its roundish body and bright colors.]

sun·flow·er (sŭn'flou'ər) n. 1. a. Any of several plants of the genus Helianthus, especially H. annuus, having tall coarse stems and large, yellow-rayed flower heads that produce edible seeds rich in oil. b. The seedlike fruit or the seeds of this plant. 2. Color. A brilliant yellow to strong or vivid orange yellow.

sung (sŭng) v. A past tense and the past participle of sing.

Sung (sōōng) See Song.

Sun·ga·ri (sōōng'gə-rē) See Songhua.

sun·glass (sŭn'glās') n. 1. A convex lens used to focus the sun's rays and produce heat, especially for ignition. 2. sunglasses. Eyeglasses with tinted or polarizing lenses to protect the eyes from the sun's glare.

sun·glow (sün'glō') n. A rose or yellow glow in the sky preceding sunrise or following sunset.

sun god (sün göd) n. Mythology. A god that personifies the sun.

sunk (süŋk) v. A past tense and the past participle of sink.

sunk·en (süŋg'kən) v. Obsolete. A past participle of sink. — adj.

1. Depressed, fallen in, or hollowed: sunken cheeks. 2. Situated beneath the surface of the water or ground; submerged: a sunken reef. 3. Below a surrounding level: a sunken meadow.

sunk fence (süŋk fēns) n. A ditch with a retaining wall set into it to divide lands without marring the landscape.

sun lamp (sün lämp) n. 1. A lamp that radiates ultraviolet rays used in therapeutic and cosmetic treatments. 2. A high-intensity lamp with parabolic mirrors, used in photography.

sun·less (sün'līs) adj. 1. Being without sunlight; dark or overcast: a sunless moor. 2. Gloomy; cheerless: a sunless life. — sun/less·ness n.

sun·light (sün'līt') n. The light of the sun; sunshine.

Sun·light Peak (sün'līt' pēk) A mountain, 4,288 m (14,059 ft) high, in the San Juan Mountains of southwest Colorado.

sun·lit (sün'līt') adj. Illuminated by the sun.

sun (sün) n. 1. A tropical Asian plant (Crotalaria juncea) having clusters of yellow flowers. 2. A tough fiber obtained from the stems of this plant, used for cordage. [Hindi san, from Sanskrit sāṇa-, hempen.]

Sun·na also Sun·nah (sōön'ə) n. Islam. 1. The way of life prescribed as normative in Islam, based on the teachings and practices of Mohammed and on exegesis of the Koran. 2. Mohammed's way of life viewed as a model for Muslims. [Arabic sunnah, custom, rule, Sunna.]

Sun·ni (sōön'ē) n. Islam. 1. The branch of Islam that accepts the first four caliphs as rightful successors of Mohammed. 2. pl. Sunni or Sun·nis. A Muslim belonging to this branch; a Sunnite. [Arabic sunnīy, adherent of the Sunna, from sunnah, Sunna.] — Sun'ni adj.

Sun·nite (sōön'īt') n. Islam. A Sunni Muslim. [From SUNNI.]

sun·ny (sün'ē) adj. sun·ni·er, sun·ni·est. 1. Exposed to or abounding in sunshine: a sunny room. 2. Cheerful; genial: a sunny smile. — sun'ni·ly adv. — sun'ni·ness n.

sun·ny·side up (sün'ē·sīd' ūp) adj. Fried only on one side. Used of eggs.

Sun·ny·vale (sün'ē·vāl') A city of western California west-northwest of San Jose. Its manufactures include electronic equipment and pharmaceuticals. Population, 117,229.

sun protection factor (sün prə-tēk'shən fāk'tər) n. Abbr. SPF, spf The degree to which a sun block, a sunscreen, suntan lotion, or a similar preparation protects the skin from ultraviolet rays.

sun-rise (sŭn' rīz') n. 1. The event or time of the daily first appearance of the sun above the eastern horizon. 2. An outset or emergence: the sunrise of classical art and sculpture.

Sun-rise (sŭn' rīz') A city of southeast Florida east of Fort Lauderdale. Population, 64,407.

Sunrise Manor (sŭn' rīz' măn' ər) A community of southeast Nevada, a suburb of Las Vegas. Population, 95,362.

Sun River (sŭn rīv' ər) A river, about 209 km (130 mi) long, of northwest Montana flowing south and east to the Missouri River.

sun-roof (sŭn' rōōf', -rōōf') n. A roof on a motor vehicle, such as an automobile, having a panel that can be slid back or raised.

sun-room (sŭn' rōōm', -rōōm') n. A room or an enclosed porch with glass or transparent plastic walls or numerous windows, oriented and designed to admit much sunlight. Also called sunspace sun-scald (sŭn' skōld') n. Localized injury or death of the tissues of a woody plant caused by excessive sun in summer and by the combined effects of sun and low temperatures in winter.

sun-screen (sŭn' skrēn') n. A preparation, often in the form of a cream or lotion, used to protect the skin from the damaging ultraviolet rays of the sun.
—sun/screen'ing adj.

sun-set (sŭn' sēt') n. 1. The event or time of the daily disappearance of the sun below the western horizon. 2. A decline or final phase: the sunset of an empire.
— adj. Providing for the automatic termination of a government program or agency unless deliberately reauthorized by law: a state-funded program with a sunset provision.

sun-shade (sŭn' shād') n. Something, such as an awning or a billed cap, that is used or worn as a protection from the sun's rays.

sun-shine (sŭn' shīn') n. 1. The light or the direct rays from the sun.
2. a. Radiant cheerfulness; geniality. b. A source of cheerfulness. — adj. Requiring governmental bodies to hold open meetings and sometimes to permit public access to records: a sunshine law. —sun/shin'y adj.

sun-space (sŭn' spās') n. See sunroom.

sun-spot (sŭn' spōt') n. Any of the relatively cool dark spots appearing periodically in groups on the surface of the sun that are associated with strong magnetic fields.

sun-stone (sŭn' stōn') n. See aventurine (n., sense 2).

sun-stroke (sŭn' strōk') n. Heat stroke caused by exposure to the sun and characterized by a rise in temperature, convulsions, and coma. Also called insolation, siriasis.

sun-tan (sŭn' tăn') n. A tan color on the skin resulting from exposure to the sun. —sun/tanned' adj.

sun-up (sŭn'ŭp') n. The time of sunrise.

Sun Valley (sŭn vāl'ē) A resort town of south-central Idaho east of Boise. Its lodge, opened in 1936, was built by the Union Pacific Railroad to attract passenger traffic to the West. Population, 545.

sun-ward (sŭn'wərd) adv. & adj. Toward or at the sun: a comet's sunward plunge; bathers facing sunward. —sun'wards adv.

Sun Yat-sen (sŏn' yät'sĕn'), 1866-1925. Chinese politician who served as provisional president of the republic after the fall of the Manchu (1911-1912) and later led the opposition to Yuan Shigai.

sup¹ (sŭp) v. tr. intr. supped, sup-ping, sups. To eat or drink (something) or engage in eating or drinking by taking small swallows or mouthfuls: supped the hot soup; supped away daintily. — n. A small swallow or mouthful of liquid food; a sip. [Middle English soupen, from Old English sūpan. See seuə-² in Appendix.]

sup² (sŭp) v. intr. supped, sup-ping, sups. To eat an evening meal; have supper. [Middle English soupen, from Old French souper, from soupe, soup. See SOUP.]

sup. abbr. 1. Superior. 2. Grammar. a. Superlative. b. Supine.

3. a. Supplement. b. Supplementary. 4. Supply. 5. Latin. Supra (above).

Sup.Ct. abbr. Law. 1. Superior court. 2. Supreme court.

su-per (sŏo'pər) n. 1. Informal. An article or a product of superior size, quality, or grade. 2. Informal. a. A superintendent in an apartment or office building.

b. A supernumerary. 3. Printing. A thin starched cotton mesh used to reinforce the spines and covers of books. — adj. Informal. 1. Very large, great, or extreme: “yet another super Skyscraper” (Dylan Thomas). 2. Excellent; first-rate: a super party. — adv. Informal. Especially; extremely: a super accurate missile; was super careful. — v. tr. su-pered, su-per-ing, su-pers. Printing. To reinforce (a book spine or cover) with super.

super. abbr. Superior.

super- pref. 1. Above; over; upon: superimpose. 2. Superior in size, quality, number, or degree: superfine. 3. a. Exceeding a norm: supersaturate.

b. Excessive in degree or intensity: supersubtle. c. Containing a specified ingredient in an unusually high proportion: superphosphate. 4. More inclusive than a specified category: superorder. [Latin, from super, over, above. See uper in Appendix.]

su-per-a-ble (sŏo'pər-ə-bəl) adj. Possible to overcome; surmountable: superable problems. [Latin superābilis, from superāre, to overcome, from super, over. See uper in Appendix.] —su'per-a-ble-ness n. —su'per-a-bly adv.

su-per-a-bound (sŏo'pər-ə-bound') v. intr. su-per-a-bound-ed, su-per-a-bound-ing, su-per-a-bounds. To be unusually or excessively abundant.

su·per·a·bun·dant (sōō'pər-ə-bŭn'dənt) adj. Abundant to excess.

—su'per·a·bun'dance n. —su'per·a·bun'dant·ly adv.

su·per·a·gen·cy (sōō'pər-ā'jən-sē) n. pl. su·per·a·gen·cies. A large government agency composed of or coordinating a number of smaller agencies.

su·per·al·loy (sōō'pər-ăl'oi) n. Any of several complex temperature-resistant alloys.

su·per·an·nu·ate (sōō'pər-ăn'yōō-āt') v. tr. su·per·an·nu·at·ed, su·per·an·nu·at·ing, su·per·an·nu·ates. 1. To allow to retire on a pension because of age or infirmity. 2. To set aside or discard as old-fashioned or obsolete. [Back-formation from SUPERANNUATED.]

su·per·an·nu·at·ed (sōō'pər-ăn'yōō-ā'tid) adj. 1. Retired or ineffective because of advanced age: “Nothing is more tiresome than a superannuated pedagogue” (Henry Adams). See Synonyms at elderly. 2. Outmoded; obsolete: superannuated laws. [From Medieval Latin superannuātus, over one year old : Latin super-, super- + Latin annus, year; see at- in Appendix.]

su·perb (sōō'pŭrb') adj. 1. Of unusually high quality; excellent: a superb wine; superb skill. 2. Majestic; imposing: The cheetah is a superb animal. 3. Rich; luxurious. [Latin superbus, arrogant, superior. See uper in Appendix.] —su·perb'ly adv. —su·perb'ness n.

super band (sōō'pər bænd) n. The range of radio frequencies from 216 to 600 megahertz, used primarily for citizens band and cable television transmission.

su·per·cal·en·der (sōō'pər-kăl'ən-dər) n. A calender with a number of rollers for giving a high finish or gloss to paper. — v. tr. su·per·cal·en·dered, su·per·cal·en·der·ing, su·per·cal·en·ders. To process (paper) in a supercalender.

su·per·car·go (sōō'pər-kär'gō) n. pl. su·per·car·goes or su·per·car·gos. An officer on a merchant ship who has charge of the cargo and its sale and purchase. [Alteration (influenced by SUPER-), of supracargo, alteration (influenced by SUPRA-), of Spanish sobrecargo : sobre-, over (from Latin super-); see SUPER- + cargo, cargo; see CARGO.]

su·per·charge (sōō'pər-chärj') v. tr. su·per·charged, su·per·charg·ing, su·per·charg·es. 1. To increase the power of (an engine, for example), as by fitting with a supercharger. 2. To charge heavily or excessively: an atmosphere that was supercharged with tension.

su·per·charg·er (sōō'pər-chär'jər) n. A blower or compressor, usually driven by the engine, for supplying air under high pressure to the cylinders of an internal-combustion engine.

su·per·cil·i·ar·y (sōō'pər-sil'ē-ēr'ē) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or being in the area of the eyebrow: the superciliary arch of the frontal bone. 2. Located over the eyebrow or the eye: a superciliary patch of color. [New Latin superciliāris, from Latin supercilium, eyebrow. See SUPERCILIOUS.]

- su-per-cil-i-ous (sōō'pär-sīl'ē-əs) adj. Feeling or showing haughty disdain. See Synonyms at proud. [Latin superciliōsus, from supercilium, eyebrow, pride : super-, super- + cilium, lower eyelid; see kel¹ in Appendix.]
—su'per-cil/i-ous-ly adv. —su'per-cil/i-ous-ness n.
- su-per-class (sōō'pär-klās') n. Biology. A taxonomic category of related organisms ranking below a phylum and above a class.
- su-per-clus-ter (sōō'pär-klūs'tər) n. A group of neighboring clusters of galaxies.
- su-per-col-lid-er (sōō'pär-kə-lid'ər) n. Physics. A high-energy particle accelerator.
- su-per-co-lum-nar (sōō'pär-kə-lüm'när) adj. Architecture. 1. Having one order of columns above another. 2. Situated above a colonnade or column.
- su-per-com-put-er (sōō'pär-kəm-pyōō'tər) n. Computer Science. A main-frame computer that is among the largest, fastest, or most powerful of those available at a given time.
- su-per-con-duc-tiv-i-ty (sōō'pär-kōn'dük-tiv'itē) n. The flow of electric current without resistance in certain metals, alloys, and ceramics at temperatures near absolute zero, and in some cases at temperatures hundreds of degrees above absolute zero. —su'per-con-duc'tive (-kən-dük'tiv) adj.
—su'per-con-duc'tor (-dük'tər) n.
- su-per-con-ti-nent (sōō'pär-kōn'tə-nənt) n. A large hypothetical continent, especially Pangaea, that is thought to have split into smaller ones in the geologic past. Also called protocontinent
- su-per-cool (sōō'pär-kōōl') v. su-per-cooled, su-per-cool-ing, su-per-cools. — v. tr. To cool (a liquid) below a transition temperature without the transition occurring, especially to cool below the freezing point without solidification. — v. intr. To become supercooled.
- su-per-cur-rent (sōō'pär-kûr'ənt, -kûr'-) n. An electrical current flowing through a superconductor.
- su-per-del-e-gate (sōō'pär-dēl'ĭ-gāt', -gīt) n. An elected official or political party leader who attends a presidential nominating convention and who may or may not have made a commitment to vote for a candidate.
- su-per-dom-i-nant (sōō'pär-dōm'ə-nənt) n. Music. See submediant.
- su-per-du-per (sōō'pär-dōō'pär) adj. Slang. Great; marvelous. [Reduplication of SUPER.]
- su-per-e-go (sōō'pär-ē'gō, -ĕg'ō) n. pl. su-per-e-gos. In Freudian theory, the division of the psyche that is formed through the internalization of moral standards of parents and society, and censors and restrains the ego. Mostly unconscious, it is composed of the ego ideal and the conscience.
- su-per-em-i-nent (sōō'pär-ĕm'ə-nənt) adj. Preeminent.
—su'per-em/i-nence n. —su'per-em/i-nent-ly adv.

su-per-er-o-gate (sōō'pər-ēr'ə-gāt') v. intr. su-per-er-o-gat-ed, su-per-er-o-gat-ing, su-per-er-o-gates. To do more than is required, ordered, or expected. [Late Latin superērogāre, superērogāt-, to spend over and above : Latin super-, super- + Latin ērogāre, to spend (ē-, ex-, ex- + rogāre, to ask); see reg- in Appendix.] —su'per-er'o-ga'tion (-gā'shən) n.

su-per-e-rog-a-to-ry (sōō'pər-ī-rōg'ə-tōr'ē, -tōr'ē) also su-per-e-rog-a-tive (-tīv) adj. 1. Performed or observed beyond the required or expected degree. 2. Superfluous; unnecessary: “It was supererogatory for her to gloat” (Mary McCarthy).

su-per-fam-i-ly (sōō'pər-fām'ə-lē) n. pl. su-per-fam-i-lies. Biology. A taxonomic category of related organisms ranking below an order or its subdivisions and above a family.

su-per-fec-ta (sōō'pər-fĕk'tə) n. Sports & Games. A method of betting in which the bettor, in order to win, must pick the first four finishers of a race in the correct sequence. [SUPER- + (PER)FECTA.]

su-per-fe-cun-da-tion (sōō'pər-fĕ'kən-dā'shən, -fĕk'ən-) n. Fertilization of more than one ovum within a single menstrual cycle by separate acts of coitus, especially by different males.

su-per-fe-tate (sōō'pər-fĕ'tāt') v. intr. su-per-fe-tat-ed, su-per-fe-tat-ing, su-per-fe-tates. To conceive when a fetus is already present in the uterus. [Latin superfētāre, superfētāt- : super-, super- + fētāre, to breed (from fētus, offspring); see dhē(i)- in Appendix.]

su-per-fe-ta-tion (sōō'pər-fĕ-tā'shən) n. Formation or development of a second fetus when one is already present in the uterus, occurring normally in some animal species.

su-per-fi-cial (sōō'pər-fīsh'əl) adj. 1. Of, affecting, or being on or near the surface: a superficial wound. 2. Concerned with or comprehending only what is apparent or obvious; shallow. 3. Apparent rather than actual or substantial: a superficial resemblance. 4. Trivial; insignificant: made only a few superficial changes in the manuscript. [Middle English, from Old French superficiel, from Latin superficiālis, from superficiēs, surface. See SUPERFICIES.]

—su'per-fi'ci-al'i-ty (-fīsh'ē-ăl'ī-tē), su'per-fi'cial-ness (-fīsh'əl-nīs) n.
—su'per-fi'cial-ly adv.

SYNONYMS: superficial, shallow, cursory. These adjectives mean lacking in depth or thoroughness. Superficial applies to people or their thoughts or actions and means concerned largely with what is obvious or on the surface: “Only the most superficial mind would assert nowadays that man is a reasonable creature” (H.G. Wells). Shallow emphasizes lack of intellectual or emotional profundity: “I do not take a great interest in many people... for I find most of them shallow” (Booth Tarkington). Cursory implies haste and lack of meticulous attention to detail: A cursory inspection of the house failed to reveal its structural flaws.

su-per-fi-cies (sōō'pər-fīsh'ēz, -fīsh'ē-ēz') n. pl. superficies. 1. The outer surface of an area or a body. 2. External appearance or aspect. [Latin superficiēs : super-, super- + faciēs, face; see FACE.]

su-per-fine (sōō'pər-fīn') adj. 1. Of exceptional quality or refinement. 2. Excessively delicate or refined. 3. Of extra fine texture: superfine sandpaper.
—su'per-fine'ness n.

su-per-flu-id (sōō'pər-flōō'īd) n. A fluid, such as a liquid form of helium, exhibiting a frictionless flow at temperatures close to absolute zero.
—su'per-flu-id'i-ty (-flōō-īd'ī-tē) n.

su-per-flu-i-ty (sōō'pər-flōō'ī-tē) n. pl. superfluities. 1. The quality or condition of being superfluous. 2. Something superfluous: could do without such superfluities as a second car. 3. Overabundance; excess.

su-per-flu-ous (sōō-pūr'flōō-əs) adj. Being beyond what is required or sufficient. [Middle English, from Old French superflueux, from Latin superfluus, from superfluere, to overflow : super-, super- + fluere, to flow; see bhleu- in Appendix.] —su-per'flu-ous-ly adv. —su-per'flu-ous-ness n.

SYNONYMS: superfluous, excess, extra, spare, supernumerary, surplus. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “being more than is needed, desired, required, or appropriate”: delete superfluous words; trying to lose excess weight; found some extra change on the dresser; sleeping in the spare room; supernumerary ornamentation; surplus cheese distributed to the needy.

su-per-gal-ax-y (sōō'pər-gāl'ək-sē) n. pl. supergalaxies. A very large group of galaxies.

su-per-gene (sōō'pər-jēn') n. A group of closely linked genes occupying a large chromosomal segment and frequently functioning as a genetic unit.

su-per-gi-ant (sōō'pər-jī'ənt) n. Any of various very large bright stars, such as Betelgeuse or Rigel, having a luminosity that is thousands of times greater than that of the sun.

super giant slalom (sōō'pər jī'ənt slä'ləm) n. Sports. A downhill skiing race that has fewer gates set farther apart than those used in a giant slalom.

su-per-graph-ics (sōō'pər-gräf'īks) n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). Brightly colored and simply designed graphic shapes of billboard proportions.

su-per-heat (sōō'pər-hēt') v. tr. su-per-heat-ed, su-per-heat-ing, su-per-heats. 1. To heat excessively; overheat. 2. To heat (steam or other vapor not in contact with its own liquid) beyond its saturation point at a given pressure. 3. To heat (a liquid) above its boiling point without causing vaporization. — n.

(sōō'pär-hēt') 1. The amount by which a vapor is superheated. 2. The heat imparted during the process of superheating. —su'per·heat'er n.

su·per·he·lix (sōō'pär-hē'liks) n. pl. su·per·he·lix·es or su·per·hel·i·ces (hēl'ī-sēz', hē'li-). A molecular structure, as of a protein or DNA, in which a helix is itself coiled into a helix. —su'per·hel'i·cal (-hēl'ī-kəl, -hē'li-) adj. —su'per·hel'i·cal·ly adv.

su·per·he·ro (sōō'pär-hîr'ō) n. pl. su·per·he·roes. A figure, especially in a comic strip or cartoon, endowed with superhuman powers and usually portrayed as fighting evil or crime.

su·per·het·er·o·dyne (sōō'pär-hēt'är-ə-dīn') adj. Of, relating to, or being a form of radio reception in which the frequency of an incoming radio signal is mixed with a locally generated signal and converted to an intermediate frequency in order to facilitate amplification and the rejection of unwanted signals. — n. A superheterodyne radio receiver. [SUPER(SONIC) + HETERODYNE.]

su·per·high frequency (sōō'pär-hī' frē'kwən-sē) n. Abbr. shf, SHF A radio frequency between 3,000 and 30,000 megahertz.

su·per·high·way (sōō'pär-hī'wā') n. 1. A broad highway, often with six or more lanes, used for high-speed traffic. 2. See expressway.

su·per·hu·man (sōō'pär-hyōō'mən) adj. 1. Above or beyond the human; preternatural or supernatural. 2. Beyond ordinary or normal human ability, power, or experience: “soldiers driven mad by superhuman misery” (John Reed).

—su'per·hu·man'i·ty (-măn'ī-tē) n. —su'per·hu'man·ly adv.

su·per·im·pose (sōō'pär-īm-pōz') v. tr. su·per·im·posed, su·per·im·pos·ing, su·per·im·pos·es. 1. To lay or place (something) on or over something else. 2. To add as a distinct feature, element, or quality: superimposed her own interpretation when she retold the story. —su'per·im·pos'a·ble adj. —su'per·im'po·si'tion (-īm'pə-zish'ən) n.

su·per·in·cum·bent (sōō'pär-īn-kūm'bənt) adj. Lying or resting on or above something. [Latin superincumbēns, superincumbent- present participle of superincumbere, to lie on top of : super-, super- + incumbere, to lie down; see INCUMBENT.] —su'per·in·cum'bence, su'per·in·cum'ben·cy n.

su·per·in·duce (sōō'pär-īn-dōōs', -dyōōs') v. tr. su·per·in·duced, su·per·in·duc·ing, su·per·in·duc·es. To introduce as an addition. [Latin superinducere : super-, super- + inducere, to lead in; see INDUCE.]

—su'per·in·duc'tion (-dūk'shən) n.

su·per·in·fect (sōō'pär-īn-fēkt') v. tr. su·per·in·fect·ed, su·per·in·fect·ing, su·per·in·fects. To cause (a cell, for example) to be further infected with a microorganism; infect a second time or more.

su·per·in·fec·tion (sōō'pär-īn-fēk'shən) n. 1. The act or process of superinfecting a cell or an organism. 2. An infection following a previous infection, especially when caused by microorganisms that have become resistant to the antibiotics used earlier.

su·per·in·tend (sōō'pär-în-tënd', sōō'prîn-) v. tr. su·per·in·tend·ed, su·per·in·tend·ing, su·per·in·tends. To oversee and direct; supervise. See Synonyms at supervise. [Late Latin superintendere: Latin super-, super- + Latin intendere, to direct one's attention to; see INTEND.] —su'per·in·ten'dence n.

su·per·in·ten·dent (sōō'pär-în-tën'dənt, sōō'prîn-) n. Abbr. supt., Supt.
1. A person who has the authority to supervise or direct. 2. A janitor or custodian in a building, especially in an apartment house. —su'per·in·ten'dent adj.

su·pe·ri·or (sōō-pîr'ē-ər) adj. Abbr. sup., super. 1. Higher than another in rank, station, or authority: a superior officer. 2. Of a higher nature or kind. 3. Of great value or excellence; extraordinary. 4. Greater in number or amount than another: an army defeated by superior numbers of enemy troops. 5. Affecting an attitude of disdain or conceit; haughty and supercilious. 6. Above being affected or influenced; indifferent or immune: "Trust magnates were superior to law" (Gustavus Myers). 7. Located higher than another; upper. 8. Botany.

Inserted or situated above the perianth. Used of an ovary. 9. Printing. Set above the main line of type. 10. Logic. Of wider or more comprehensive application; generic. Used of a term or proposition. — n. 1. One who surpasses another in rank or quality. 2. Ecclesiastical. The head of a religious community, such as a monastery, an abbey, or a convent. 3. Printing. A superior character, as the number 2 in x^2 . [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin, comparative of superus, upper, from super, over. See uper in Appendix.] —su·pe'ri·or'i·ty (-ôr'î-tē, -ôr'-) n. —su·pe'ri·or·ly adv.

Su·pe·ri·or (sōō-pîr'ē-ər) A city of northwest Wisconsin on Lake Superior opposite Duluth, Minnesota. The city grew after the discovery of iron ore nearby in the 1880's. Population, 27,134.

Superior, Lake. The largest and westernmost of the Great Lakes, between the north-central United States and southern Ontario, Canada. Probably first sighted by French explorers in the early 1600's, it is an important link in the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Seaway system.

superior conjunction (sōō-pîr'ē-ər kən-jüŋk'shən) n. The position of a celestial body when it is on the opposite side of the sun from Earth.

superior court (sōō-pîr'ē-ər kôrt) n. Abbr. Sup.Ct. Law. A court of general jurisdiction, above the inferior courts and below the higher courts of appeal.

superiority complex (sōō-pîr'ē-ôr'î-tē kəm-plĕks') n. 1. An exaggerated feeling of being superior to others. 2. A psychological defense mechanism in which feelings of superiority counter or conceal feelings of inferiority.

superior planet (sōō-pîr'ē-ər plăn'it) n. A planet whose mean distance from the sun is greater than that of Earth.

su·per·ja·cent (sōō'pär-jä'sənt) adj. Resting or lying immediately above or on something else. [Latin superiacēns, superiacent- present participle of superiacēre, to lie over : super-, super- + iacēre, to lie down; see yē- in Appendix.]

su·per·jet (sōō'pär-jět') n. A supersonic jet airplane.

su·per·la·tive (sōō-pûr'lə-tiv) adj. 1. Of the highest order, quality, or degree; surpassing or superior to all others. 2. Excessive or exaggerated. 3. Abbr. sup. Grammar. Of, relating to, or being the extreme degree of comparison of an adjective or adverb, as in best or brightest. — n. 1. Something of the highest possible excellence. 2. The highest degree; the acme. 3. Abbr. sup. Grammar. a. The superlative degree. b. An adjective or adverb expressing the superlative degree, as in brightest, the superlative of the adjective bright, or most brightly, the superlative of the adverb brightly. [Middle English superlatif, from Old French, from Late Latin superlātivus, from Latin superlātus, past participle of superferre, to carry over a person or thing, exaggerate : super-, super- + lātus, past participle of ferre, to carry; see telə- in Appendix.] — su·per·la·tive·ly adv.

su·per·li·ner (sōō'pär-lī'nər) n. 1. Nautical. A very large, luxurious oceangoing passenger ship. 2. a. A railway car that is fitted with more capacious, comfortable, or luxurious accommodations than usual. b. A railway train composed of such cars.

su·per·lu·na·ry (sōō'pär-lōō'nə-rē) also su·per·lu·nar (-nər) adj. Situated beyond the moon. [SUPER- + (SUB)LUNARY.]

su·per·lux·u·ry (sōō'pär-lŭg'zhə-rē, -lŭk'shə-) adj. Exhibiting great opulence: superluxury cars; superluxury hotels; a superluxury apartment.

su·per·ma·jor·i·ty (sōō'pär-mə-jôr'ī-tē, -jör'-) n. pl. su·per·ma·jor·i·ties. A percentage higher than 50 percent required for approval of a motion or an action determined by vote, as among the shareholders of a company.

su·per·man (sōō'pär-män') n. 1. A man with more than human powers. 2. An ideal superior man who, according to Nietzsche, forgoes transient pleasure, exercises creative power, lives at a level of experience beyond standards of good and evil, and is the goal of human evolution. In this sense, also called overman [Translation of German Übermensch : über-, super- + Mensch, man.]

WORD HISTORY: Overman and Beyondman hardly seem likely names for a superhero, but perhaps Overman might be “leaping tall buildings at a single bound” had the German word Übermensch been translated differently than it was. However, Nietzsche’s term for the ideal superior man was translated into English as superman, first recorded in a work by George Bernard Shaw published in 1903. Such a term comes to us through a process called loan translation, or calque formation, whereby the semantic components of a word or phrase in one language are literally translated into their equivalents in another language, German Übermensch, made up of über, “super-,” and Mensch, “man,” thus becoming superman.

Because über- can also be translated “beyond” and “over,” we also find overman and beyondman as calques for the word Übermensch, but they did not take root. Shaw, in a letter written before 1917, noted that “some of our most felicitous writers... had been using such desperate and unspeakable forms as Beyondman, when the glib Superman was staring them in the face all the time.” Hence, when it came to naming a new comic strip hero, Superman was the logical choice, a name first recorded in 1938.

su·per·mar·ket (sōō'pær-mär'kīt) n. A large self-service retail market that sells food and household goods.

su·per·mar·ket·er (sōō'pær-mär'kī-tər) n. One who owns or operates a supermarket.

su·per·mol·e·cule (sōō'pær-mōl'ī-kyōōl') n. See macromolecule.

su·per·mom (sōō'pær-mōm') n. Informal. A mother who performs the traditional duties of housework and childcare while also holding full-time employment.

su·per·nal (sōō-pûr'nəl) adj. 1. Celestial; heavenly. 2. Of, coming from, or being in the sky or high above. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin supernus. See uper in Appendix.] —su·per·nal·ly adv.

su·per·na·tant (sōō'pær-nāt'nt) adj. Floating on the surface. — n. also su·per·nate (sōō'pær-nāt') The clear fluid above a sediment or precipitate. [Latin supernatāns, supernatant- present participle of supernatāre, to float : super-, super- + natāre, to swim; see snā- in Appendix.]

su·per·nat·u·ral (sōō'pær-näch'ər-əl) adj. 1. Of or relating to existence outside the natural world. 2. Attributed to a power that seems to violate or go beyond natural forces. 3. Of or relating to a deity. 4. Of or relating to the immediate exercise of divine power; miraculous. 5. Of or relating to the miraculous. — n. That which is supernatural. —su·per·nat·u·ral·ly adv.
—su·per·nat·u·ral·ness n.

su·per·nat·u·ral·ism (sōō'pær-näch'ər-ə-līz'əm) n. 1. The quality of being supernatural. 2. Belief in a supernatural agency that intervenes in the course of natural laws. —su·per·nat·u·ral·ist n. —su·per·nat·u·ral·is'tic adj.

su·per·nor·mal (sōō'pær-nôr'məl) adj. 1. Greatly exceeding the normal or average but still obeying natural laws. 2. Paranormal.

su·per·no·va (sōō'pær-nō'və) n. pl. su·per·no·vae (-vē) or su·per·no·vas. A rare celestial phenomenon involving the explosion of most of the material in a star, resulting in an extremely bright, short-lived object that emits vast amounts of energy.

su·per·nu·mer·ar·y (sōō'pær-nōō'mə-rēr'ē, -nyōō'-) adj. 1. Exceeding a fixed, prescribed, or standard number; extra. 2. Exceeding the required or desired number or amount; superfluous. See Synonyms at superfluous. — n.

pl. su-per-nu-mer-ar-ies. 1. One that is in excess of the regular, necessary, or usual number. 2. An actor without a speaking part, as one who appears in a crowd scene. [Latin supernumerārius : super, above; see SUPER- + numerus, accusative of numerus, number; see nem- in Appendix.]

su-per-or-der (sōō'pər-ôr'dər) n. Biology. A taxonomic category of related organisms ranking below a class or subclass and above an order.

su-per-or-di-nate (sōō'pər-ôr'dn-īt) adj. 1. Of higher rank, status, or value. 2. Logic. Of or being the relation of a universal proposition to a particular proposition in which the terms are the same and occur in the same order. [SUPER- + (SUB)ORDINATE.] —su'per-or'di-nate n. —su'per-or'di-nate' (-ôr'dn-āt') v. —su'per-or'di-na'tion (-ôr'dn-ā'shən) n.

su-per-or-gan-ism (sōō'pər-ôr'gə-nīz'əm) n. A group of organisms, such as an insect colony, that functions as a social unit.

su-per-o-vu-late (sōō'pər-ō'vyə-lāt', -ōv'yə-) v. su-per-o-vu-lat-ed, su-per-o-vu-lat-ing, su-per-o-vu-lates. — v. intr. To produce mature ova at an accelerated rate or in a large number at one time. — v. tr. To cause (an animal) to superovulate. —su'per-o-vu-la'tion n.

su-per-par-a-sit-ism (sōō'pər-pär'ə-sī-tīz'əm, -sī-) n. Infestation of parasites by other parasites. —su'per-par'a-sit'ic (-sīt'ik) adj.

su-per-phos-phate (sōō'pər-fös'fāt') n. 1. An acid phosphate. 2. A mixture of gypsum and monobasic calcium phosphate resulting from the action of sulfuric acid on phosphate rock, used as a fertilizer.

su-per-phys-i-cal (sōō'pər-fīz'i-kəl) adj. 1. Exceeding or going beyond the purely physical. 2. Not explained by known physical laws; preternatural or supernatural.

su-per-pose (sōō'pər-pōz') v. tr. su-per-posed, su-per-pos-ing, su-per-pos-es. 1. To set or place (one thing) over or above something else.

2. Mathematics. To place (one geometric figure) over another so that all like parts coincide. [Probably French superposer, back-formation from superposition, superposition, from Late Latin superpositiō, superpositiōn-, from Latin superpositus, past participle of superpōnere, to place over : super-, super- + pōnere, to place; see POSITION.]

su-per-po-si-tion (sōō'pər-pə-zīsh'ən) n. 1. The act of superposing or the state of being superposed: "Yet another technique in the forensic specialist's repertoire is photo superposition" (Patrick Nuyghe). 2. Geology. The principle that in a group of stratified sedimentary rocks the lowest were the earliest to be deposited.

su-per-pow-er (sōō'pər-pou'ər) n. A powerful and influential nation, especially a nuclear power that dominates its allies or client states in an international power bloc.

su·per·re·al·ism (sōō'pər-rē'ə-līz'əm) n. An artistic and literary movement characterized by extreme realism. —su'per·re'al, su'per·re'al·is'tic adj.

—su'per·re'al·ist n.

su·per·rich (sōō'pər-rīch') adj. 1. Of, relating to, or being the wealthiest.

2. Containing the richest ingredients: superrich chocolate ice cream. — n. (used with a pl. verb). The most wealthy people considered as a group or class. Often used with the: Only the superrich were able to afford trips to that resort.

su·per·sat·u·rate (sōō'pər-säch'ə-rāt') v. tr. su·per·sat·u·rat·ed, su·per·sat·u·rat·ing, su·per·sat·u·rates. 1. To cause (a chemical solution) to be more highly concentrated than is normally possible under given conditions of temperature and pressure. 2. To cause (a vapor) to exceed the normal saturation vapor pressure at a given temperature. —su'per·sat'u·ra'tion n.

su·per·sav·er (sōō'pər-sā'vər) n. An airline ticket, purchased typically well ahead of the departure date, that affords the purchaser considerable savings over regular fare. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: supersaver fares; supersaver tickets.

su·per·scribe (sōō'pər-skrīb') v. tr. su·per·scribed, su·per·scrib·ing, su·per·scribes. 1. To write on the outside or upper part of (a letter, for example). 2. To write (a name or an address, for example) on the top or outside.

[Latin superscribere, to write over : super-, super- + scribere, to write; see skribh- in Appendix.]

su·per·script (sōō'pər-skrīpt') n. A character set, printed, or written above and immediately to one side of another: In x^2 the superscript is 2. [Latin superscriptus, past participle of superscribere, to write over. See SUPERSCRIBE.]

—su'per·script adj.

su·per·scrip·tion (sōō'pər-skrīp'shən) n. 1. Something written above or outside something else. 2. The act of superscribing. 3. The part of a prescription that bears the Latin word recipe represented by the symbol \mathcal{R} .

su·per·sede (sōō'pər-sēd') v. tr. su·per·sed·ed, su·per·sed·ing, su·per·sedes. 1. To take the place of; replace. 2. To cause to be set aside, especially to displace as inferior or antiquated. See Synonyms at replace. [Middle English superceden, to postpone, from Old French superceder, from Latin supercedere, to refrain from : super-, super- + sedere, to sit; see sed- in Appendix.]

—su'per·sed'er n. —su'per·ses'sion (-sěsh'ən) n.

su·per·se·de·as (sōō'pər-sē'dē-əs) n. Law. A writ containing a command to stay legal proceedings, as in the halting or delaying of the execution of a sentence. [Middle English, from Medieval Latin, from Latin supersedeās, you must desist (from the writ), second person sing. present subjunctive of supersedere, to desist from. See SUPERSEDE.]

su-per-se-dure (sōō'pər-sē'jər) n. 1. The act or process of superseding.

2. Replacement of a queen bee that has grown old or weak by one that is younger or more vigorous.

su-per-sen-si-ble (sōō'pər-sən'sə-bəl) adj. Beyond or above perception by the senses. —su'per-sen'si-bly adv.

su-per-son-ic (sōō'pər-sŏn'ik) adj. 1. Having, caused by, or relating to a speed greater than the speed of sound in a given medium, especially air. 2. Of or relating to sound waves beyond human audibility. —su'per-son/i-cal-ly adv.

su-per-son-ics (sōō'pər-sŏn'iks) n. (used with a sing. verb). The study of phenomena produced by the motion of a body through a medium at velocities greater than that of sound.

supersonic transport (sōō'pər-sŏn'ik trāns-pôrt') n. Abbr. SST A large transport airplane engineered to operate at supersonic speeds.

su-per-star (sōō'pər-stār') n. 1. A widely acclaimed star, as in movies or sports, who has great popular appeal. 2. One that is extremely popular or prominent or that is a major attraction. —su'per-star'dom (sōō'pər-stār'dəm) n.

su-per-sta-tion (sōō'pər-stā'shən) n. A television or radio station that broadcasts to a nationwide audience by satellite, cable, or both.

su-per-sti-tion (sōō'pər-stīsh'ən) n. 1. An irrational belief that an object, an action, or a circumstance not logically related to a course of events influences its outcome. 2. a. A belief, practice, or rite irrationally maintained by ignorance of the laws of nature or by faith in magic or chance. b. A fearful or abject state of mind resulting from such ignorance or irrationality. c. Idolatry. [Middle English supersticion, from Old French superstition, from Latin superstitiō, superstitiōn-, from superstes, superstit-, standing over. See stā- in Appendix.]

su-per-sti-tious (sōō'pər-stīsh'əs) adj. 1. Inclined to believe in superstition. 2. Of, characterized by, or proceeding from superstition. —su'per-sti'tiously-ly adv. —su'per-sti'tious-ness n.

su-per-store (sōō'pər-stôr', -stôr') n. A very large supermarket that stocks extremely diversified merchandise, such as food and automotive parts, together and in quantity.

su-per-stra-tum (sōō'pər-strā'təm, -strāt'əm) n. pl. su-per-stra-ta (-strā'tə, -strāt'ə). 1. One layer or stratum superimposed on another. 2. Linguistics. The language of a later, invading people imposed on and leaving features in an indigenous language.

su-per-string (sōō'pər-strīng') n. Physics. A hypothetical particle consisting of a very short one-dimensional string existing in ten dimensions. It is the elementary particle in a theory of space-time incorporating supersymmetry.

[SUPER(SYMMETRY) + STRING.]

su-per-struc-ture (sōō'pər-strūk'chər) n. 1. A physical or conceptual structure extended or developed from a basic form. 2. The part of a building or other structure above the foundation. 3. Nautical. The parts of a ship's structure above the main deck. 4. The rails, sleepers, and other parts of a railway. 5. In Marxist theory, the ideologies or institutions of a society as distinct from the basic processes and direct social relations of material production and economics.

su-per-sym-me-try (sōō'pər-sīm'ī-trē) n. Physics. A hypothetical symmetry that relates fermions to bosons and gravitational force to forces that operate on the subatomic level.

su-per-tank-er (sōō'pər-tāng'kər) n. Nautical. A very large ship, usually between 100,000 and 400,000 displacement tons, used for transporting oil and other liquids in large quantities.

su-per-ti-tle (sōō'pər-tīt'l) n. A written translation of the dialogue or lyrics of a foreign-language performance of an opera or a choral work, for example, shown on a screen above the performers. Also called surtitle —su'per-ti'tled adj.

su-per-ton-ic (sōō'pər-tōn'ik) n. Music. The second tone of a diatonic scale.

Su-per Tuesday (sōō'pər tōōz'dē) n. The day on which, in a presidential election year, a number of states hold their primary presidential elections.

su-per-vene (sōō'pər-vēn') v. intr. su-per-vened, su-per-ven-ing, su-per-venes. 1. To come or occur as something extraneous, additional, or unexpected. See Synonyms at follow. 2. To follow immediately after; ensue. [Latin supervenire: super-, super- + venire, to come; see g^wā- in Appendix.]

—su'per-ven'ient (-vēn'yənt) adj. —su'per-ven'tion (-vən'shən) n.
su-per-vise (sōō'pər-vīz') v. tr. su-per-vised, su-per-vis-ing, su-per-vis-es. To have the charge and direction of; superintend. [Middle English supervisen*, from Medieval Latin supervidēre, supervīs-: Latin super-, super- + Latin vidēre, to see; see weid- in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: supervise, boss, overlook, oversee, superintend. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to have the direction and oversight of the performance of others”: supervised a team of investigators; bossed a construction crew; overlooking farm hands; overseeing plumbers and electricians; superintend a household staff.

su-per-vi-sion (sōō'pər-vīzh'ən) n. The act, process, or function of supervising. See Synonyms at care.

su-per-vi-sor (sōō'pər-vī'zər) n. Abbr. supvr. 1. One who supervises. 2. One who is in charge of a particular department or unit, as in a governmental agency or school system. 3. One who is an elected administrative officer in certain U.S. counties and townships. —su'per-vi'so-ry (-vī'zə-rē) adj.

su-per-wom-an (sōō'pər-wōōm'ən) n. 1. A woman who performs all the duties typically associated with several different full-time roles, such as wage earner, graduate student, mother, and wife. 2. A woman with more than human powers.

su·pi·nate (sōō'pə-nāt') v. su·pi·nat-ed, su·pi·nat-ing, su·pi·nates. — v. tr. 1. To turn (the hand and forearm) so that the palm is upward or forward. 2. To turn (the foot or leg) so that the sole is outward. — v. intr. To be supinated; undergo supination. [Latin supīnāre, supīnāt-, from supīnus, backward. See SUPINE.] —su'pi-na'tion n.

su·pi·na·tor (sōō'pə-nā'tər) n. A muscle, especially in the forearm, that effects or assists supination.

su·pine (sōō-pīn', sōō'pīn') adj. 1. Lying on the back or having the face upward. See Synonyms at prone. 2. Having the palm upward. Used of the hand. 3. Marked by or showing lethargy, passivity, or blameworthy indifference. See Synonyms at inactive. 4. Inclined; sloping. — n. Abbr. sup. Grammar. A defective Latin verbal noun of the fourth declension, having very limited syntax and only two cases, an accusative in -tum or -sum and an ablative in -tū or -sū. The accusative form is sometimes considered to be the fourth principal part of the Latin verb. [Middle English supin, Latin verbal noun, from Late Latin supī-num, from neuter of Latin supīnus, lying on the back, going back. See upo in Appendix.] —su·pine/ly adv. —su·pine/ness n.

supp. abbr. 1. Supplement. 2. Supplementary.

sup·per (sŭp'ər) n. 1. a. A light evening meal when dinner is taken at midday. b. A light meal eaten before going to bed. 2. A dance or social affair where supper is served. [Middle English, from Old French souper, to sup, supper. See SUP².]

sup·per·time (sŭp'ər-tīm') n. The time of day during which supper is usually eaten.

suppl. abbr. 1. Supplement. 2. Supplementary.

sup·plant (sə-plānt') v. tr. sup·plant-ed, sup·plant-ing, sup·plants. 1. To usurp the place of, especially through intrigue or underhanded tactics. 2. To displace and substitute for (another): The word processor has largely supplanted electric typewriters. See Synonyms at replace. [Middle English supplanten, from Old French supplanter, from Latin supplantāre, to trip up : sub-, sub- + planta, sole of the foot; see plat- in Appendix.]

sup·ple (sŭp'əl) adj. sup·pler, sup·plest. 1. Readily bent; pliant. 2. Moving and bending with agility; limber. 3. Yielding or changing readily; compliant or adaptable. See Synonyms at flexible. — v. tr. intr. sup·pled, sup·pling, sup·ples. To make or become supple. [Middle English souple, from Old French, from Latin supplex, suppliant. See plāk⁻¹ in Appendix.] —sup'ple·ness n. —sup'ply, sup'ple·ly adv.

sup·ple·ment (sŭp'lə-mənt) n. Abbr. sup., supp., suppl. 1. Something added to complete a thing, make up for a deficiency, or extend or strengthen the whole. 2. A section added to a book or document to give further information or to correct errors. 3. A separate section devoted to a special subject inserted into a periodical, such as a newspaper. 4. Mathematics. The angle or arc that when added to a given angle or arc makes 180° or a semicircle. In this sense, also called-supplementary angle — v. tr. sup-ple-ment-ed, sup-ple-ment-ing, sup-ple-ments (-mĕnt'). To provide or form a supplement to. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin supplĕmentum, from supplĕre, to complete. See SUPPLY.] —sup'ple-men-tar'i-ty (-târ'î-tĕ) n. —sup'ple-men'ta-ry (-mĕn'tə-rĕ, -trĕ), sup'ple-men'tal (-mĕn'tl) adj. —sup'ple-men-ta'tion (-mĕn-tā'shən) n.

supplementary angle (sŭp'lə-mĕn'tə-rĕ äng'gəl) n. Mathematics. See supplement (n., sense 4).

sup-ple-tion (sə-plĕ'shən) n. Linguistics. The use of an unrelated form to complete a paradigm, as the past tense went of the verb go, goes, going, gone. [From Latin supplĕtus, past participle of supplĕre, to supply. See SUPPLY.]

sup-pli-ant (sŭp'lĕ-ənt) adj. Asking humbly and earnestly; beseeching. — n. A supplicant. [From Middle English, one who supplicates, from Old French, present participle of supplier, to entreat, from Latin supplicāre. See SUPPLICATE.] —sup'pli-ance n. —sup'pli-ant-ly adv.

sup-pli-cant (sŭp'lĭ-kənt) n. One who supplicates; a suppliant. — adj. Supplicating. [From Latin supplicāns, supplicant- present participle of supplicāre, to kneel down. See SUPPLICATE.]

sup-pli-cate (sŭp'lĭ-kāt') v. sup-pli-cat-ed, sup-pli-cat-ing, sup-pli-cates. — v. tr. 1. To ask for humbly or earnestly, as by praying. 2. To make a humble entreaty to; beseech. — v. intr. To make a humble, earnest petition; beg. [Middle English supplicaten, from Latin supplicāre, supplicāt-, from supplex, supplic-, suppliant. See SUPPLE.] —sup'pli-ca'tion n. —sup'pli-ca-to'ry (-kə-tôr'ĕ, -tôr'ĕ) adj.

sup-ply (sə-plĭ') v. sup-plied, sup-ply-ing, sup-plies. — v. tr. 1. To make available for use; provide. 2. To furnish or equip with: supplied sheets for every bed. 3. To fill sufficiently; satisfy: supply a need. 4. To make up for (a deficiency, for example); compensate for. 5. To serve temporarily as a substitute in (a church, for example). — v. intr. To fill a position as a substitute. — n. pl.

sup-plies. Abbr. sup. 1. The act of supplying. 2. Something that is or can be supplied. 3. An amount available or sufficient for a given use; stock. 4. Often supplies. Materials or provisions stored and dispensed when needed.

5. Economics. The amount of a commodity available for meeting a demand or for purchase at a given price. 6. A cleric serving as a substitute or temporary pastor. [Middle English supplien, to help, complete, furnish with additional troops, from Old French soupleer, to fill up, from Latin supplĕre: sub-, from below; see SUB- + plĕre, to fill; see pelə⁻¹ in Appendix.] —sup-pli'er n.

sup-ply-side (sə-plī'sīd') adj. Of, relating to, or being an economic theory that increased availability of money for investment, achieved through reduction of taxes especially in the higher tax brackets, will increase productivity, economic activity, and income throughout the economic system. —supply side n.

—sup-ply/-sid'er n.

sup-port (sə-pôrt', -pôrt') v. tr. sup-port-ed, sup-port-ing, sup-ports.

1. To bear the weight of, especially from below. 2. To hold in position so as to keep from falling, sinking, or slipping. 3. To be capable of bearing; withstand. 4. To keep from weakening or failing; strengthen. 5. To provide for or maintain, by supplying with money or necessities. 6. To furnish corroborating evidence for. 7. To aid the cause, policy, or interests of. 8. To endure; tolerate. 9. a. To act (a part or role). b. To act in a secondary or subordinate role to (a leading performer). — n. 1. a. The act of supporting. b. The state of being supported. 2. One that supports. 3. Maintenance, as of a family, with the necessities of life. [Middle English supporten, from Old French supporter, from Latin supportāre, to carry : sub-, from below; see SUB- + portāre, to carry; see per-² in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: support, uphold, back, advocate, champion. These verbs are compared as they mean to give aid or encouragement to a person or cause. Support is the most general: is being supported by friends in her effort to surmount the tragedy; "the policy of Cromwell, who supported the growing power of France against the declining power of Spain" (William E.H. Lecky). To uphold is to maintain or affirm in the face of a challenge or strong opposition: "The Declaration of Right upheld the principle of hereditary monarchy" (Edmund Burke). Back suggests material or moral support intended to contribute to or assure success: "There is only one proved method of assisting the advancement of pure science—that of picking men of genius, backing them heavily, and leaving them to direct themselves" (James B. Conant). Advocate implies verbal support, often in the form of pleading or arguing: Scientists advocate a reduction in saturated fats in the human diet. To champion is to fight for one that is under attack or lacks the strength or ability to act in its own behalf: "championed the government and defended the system of taxation" (Samuel Chew). See also Synonyms at livelihood sup-port-a-ble (sə-pôrt'ə-bəl, -pôrt'-) adj. Bearable; endurable: supportable burdens. —sup-port'a-bil/i-ty n. —sup-port'a-bly adv.

sup-port-er (sə-pôrt'ətər, -pôrt'-) n. 1. One that supports, as a structural member of a building. 2. One who promotes or advocates; an adherent: a supporter of capitalism. 3. An athletic supporter. 4. Heraldry. An animal or a figure that supports a shield in a coat of arms.

support group (sə-pôrt' grōōp) n. A group of people, sometimes led by a therapist, who provide each other moral support, information, and advice on problems relating to some shared characteristic or experience: a support group for incest survivors.

support hose (sə-pôrt' hōz) pl.n. Elasticized stockings designed to reduce stress on the blood vessels in the legs, as for people with varicose veins. Also called support stockings sup·por·tive (sə-pôrt'tiv, -pôr'-) adj. Furnishing support or assistance.

—sup·por'tive·ly adv. —sup·por'tive·ness n.

support level (sə-pôrt' lěv'l) n. A price at which a security or the market becomes attractive to investors.

support stockings (sə-pôrt' stök'ingz) pl.n. See support hose.

support system (sə-pôrt' sīs'təm) n. A network of personal or professional contacts available to a person or an organization for practical or moral support when needed.

sup·pos·a·ble (sə-pō'zə-bəl) adj. That can be supposed or conjectured: a supposable outcome. —sup·pos'a·bly adv.

sup·pose (sə-pōz') v. sup·posed, sup·pos·ing, sup·pos·es. — v. tr. 1. To assume to be true or real for the sake of argument or explanation: Suppose we win the lottery. 2. a. To believe, especially on uncertain or tentative grounds: Scientists supposed that large dinosaurs lived in swamps. b. To consider to be probable or likely: I suppose it will rain. 3. To imply as an antecedent condition; presuppose: "Patience must suppose pain" (Samuel Johnson). 4. To consider as a suggestion: Suppose we dine together. — v. intr. To imagine; conjecture. [Middle English supposen, from Old French supposer, alteration (influenced by poser, to place); see POSE¹, of Medieval Latin suppōnere, from Latin, to put under : sub-, sub- + pōnere, to place; see apo- in Appendix.]

sup·posed (sə-pōzd', -pō'zīd) adj. 1. Presumed to be true or real without conclusive evidence. 2. Intended: medication that is supposed to relieve pain.

3. a. Required: He is supposed to go to the store. b. Permitted: We are not supposed to smoke here. c. Firmly believed; expected: You're supposed to be my friend.

—sup·pos'ed·ly (-pō'zīd-lē) adv.

SYNONYMS: supposed, conjectural, hypothetical, putative, reputed, suppositious, supposititious. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is "put forth or accepted as being true on inconclusive grounds": the supposed cause of inflation; conjectural criticism; the site of a hypothetical colony; a foundling's putative father; the reputed author of the article; suppositious reconstructions of dead languages; supposititious hypotheses.

ANTONYM: certain

sup·pos·ing (sə-pō'zīng) conj. Assuming that: Supposing we're right, what should we do?

sup-po-si-tion (sŭp'ə-zīsh'ən) n. 1. The act of supposing. 2. Something supposed; an assumption. —sup'po-si'tion-al adj. —sup'po-si'tion-al-ly adv.

sup-po-si-tious (sŭp'ə-zīsh'əs) adj. Supposititious. See Synonyms at supposed.

sup-pos-i-tious (sə-pöz'ī-tīsh'əs) adj. 1. Substituted with fraudulent intent; spurious. 2. Hypothetical; supposed. See Synonyms at supposed.

[From Latin suppositicius, from suppositus, past participle of supponere, to substitute. See SUPPOSE.] —sup-pos'i-tious-ly adv. —sup-pos'i-tious-ness n.

sup-pos-i-tive (sə-pöz'ī-tīv) adj. Of the nature of, including, or involving supposition. — n. Grammar. A conjunction, such as if or providing, that introduces a supposition. —sup-pos'i-tive-ly adv.

sup-pos-i-to-ry (sə-pöz'ī-tôr'ē, -tôr'ē) n. pl. sup-pos-i-to-ries. Medicine. A small plug of medication designed to melt at body temperature within a body cavity other than the mouth, especially the rectum or vagina. Also called bougie [Middle English, from Old French suppositorie, from Medieval Latin suppositorium, from Late Latin, neuter of suppositorius, placed under, from Latin suppositus, past participle of supponere, to put under. See SUPPOSE.]

sup-press (sə-prēs') v. tr. sup-pressed, sup-press-ing, sup-press-es. 1. To put an end to forcibly; subdue. 2. To curtail or prohibit the activities of. 3. To keep from being revealed, published, or circulated. 4. To deliberately exclude (unacceptable desires or thoughts) from the mind. 5. To inhibit the expression of (an impulse, for example); check: suppress a smile. 6. To reduce the incidence or severity of (a hemorrhage or a cough, for example); arrest. [Middle English suppressen, from Latin supprimere, suppress- : sub-, sub- + premere, to press; see per⁴ in Appendix.] —sup-press'ant n. —sup-press'i-ble adj.

SYNONYMS: suppress, stifle, repress. These verbs mean to hold in check something requiring or struggling to find an outlet. Suppress suggests the exercise of force that drastically inhibits or crushes: “There is the world of ideas and the world of practice; the French are often for suppressing the one and the English the other; but neither is to be suppressed” (Matthew Arnold). To stifle is to keep back something, such as an impulse or an emotion, as if by smothering it: “This was a sinful curiosity, and I stifled it to the best of my ability” (John Galt). Repress often implies keeping something under control by an act of volition: “To save his life he could not repress a chuckle” (Booth Tarkington).

sup-press-er (sə-prēs'ər) n. Variant of suppressor (n., sense 1).

sup-pres-sion (sə-prēsh'ən) n. 1. The act of suppressing. 2. The state of being suppressed. 3. Psychiatry. Conscious exclusion of unacceptable desires, thoughts, or memories from the mind. 4. Botany. The failure of an organ or part to develop.

sup-pres-sive (sə-prēs'iv) adj. Tending or serving to suppress.

sup-pres-sor (sə-prēs'ər) n. 1. Or sup-press-er. One that suppresses: a suppressor of free speech. 2. A gene that suppresses the phenotypic expression of another gene, especially of a mutant gene. 3. A device, such as a resistor or grid, that is used in an electrical or electronic system to reduce unwanted currents.

suppressor T cell (sə-prēs'ər tē sēl) n. A T cell that reduces or suppresses the immune response of B cells or of other T cells to an antigen.

sup-pu-rate (sŭp'yə-rāt') v. intr. sup-pu-rat-ed, sup-pu-rat-ing, sup-pu-rates. To form or discharge pus. [Middle English suppuraten, from Latin suppurāre, suppurāt- : sub-, sub- + pūs, pūr-, pus; see pū- in Appendix.]

sup-pu-ra-tion (sŭp'yə-rā'shən) n. 1. The formation or discharge of pus.

2. Pus. —sup'pu-ra'tive adj.

supr. abbr. Supreme.

supra- pref. 1. Above; over; on top of: suprarenal. 2. Greater than; transcending: supramolecular. [Latin, from suprā, above, beyond. See uper in Appendix.]

su-pra-cel-lu-lar (sōō'prə-sēl'yə-lər) adj. Above the level of a cell or cells: supracellular biology.

su-pra-gen-ic (sōō'prə-jěn'ik) adj. Above the level of the gene or genes: supragenetic functions of a chromosome.

su-pra-glot-tal (sōō'prə-glōt'l) adj. 1. Above or anterior to the glottis.

2. Linguistics. Designating a phone or phoneme produced by the speech organs anterior to the glottis.

su-pra-lim-i-nal (sōō'prə-līm'ə-nəl) adj. Being above the threshold of consciousness or of sensation. Used of stimuli.

su-pra-max-il-la (sōō'prə-māk-sil'ə) n. pl. su-pra-max-il-lae (-māk-sil'ē).

The upper jaw or jawbone. —su'pra-max'il-lar'y (-māk'sə-lēr'ē) adj. & n.

su-pra-mo-lec-u-lar (sōō'prə-mə-lēk'yə-lər) adj. 1. Consisting of more than one molecule. 2. Of greater complexity than a molecule.

su-pra-na-tion-al (sōō'prə-nāsh'ə-nəl, -nāsh'nəl) adj. Extending beyond or transcending established borders or spheres of influence held by separate nations: a supranational economy; supranational federations.

su-pra-or-bi-tal (sōō'prə-ôr'bī-tl) adj. Located above the orbit of the eye: the supraorbital ridge.

su-pra-re-nal (sōō'prə-rē'nəl) adj. Located on or above the kidney. — n. A suprarenal part, especially an adrenal gland.

suprarenal gland (sōō'prə-rē'nəl gländ) n. See adrenal gland.

su-pra-scap-u-lar (sōō'prə-skäp'yə-lər) adj. Located above the scapula, as an artery or a nerve.

su-pra-vi-tal (sōō'prə-vīt'l) adj. Relating to or capable of staining living cells after their removal from a living or recently dead organism: a supravital stain.

su-prem-a-cist (sōō-prēm'ə-sĭst) n. One who believes that a certain group is or should be supreme.

su-prem-a-cy (sōō-prēm'ə-sē) n. pl. su-prem-a-cies. 1. The quality or condition of being supreme. 2. Supreme power or authority.

su-prem-a-tism (sōō-prēm'ə-tĭz'ən) n. A school and theory of geometric abstract art that originated in Russia in the early 20th century and influenced constructivism. [Russian suprematĭzm, from French suprĕmatĭe, supremacy, from SUPREMACY.] —su-prem'a-tist adj. & n.

su-preme (sōō-prēm') adj. su-prem-er, su-prem-est. Abbr. supr. 1. Greatest in power, authority, or rank; paramount or dominant. 2. Greatest in importance, degree, significance, character, or achievement. 3. Ultimate; final: the supreme sacrifice. [Latin suprĕmus, superlative of superus, upper, from super, over. See uper in Appendix.] —su-preme'ly adv. —su-preme'ness n.

su-prĕme (sōō-prēm', -prēm') n. 1. A rich velouté made with chicken stock, cream, and egg yolks. Also called sauce suprĕme 2. A dish made or served with this sauce, especially the breast and wing of chicken or other fowl. Also called suprĕme de volaille 3. a. A sherbet glass with a large bowl. b. A dessert served in such a glass. 4. a. A container, such as a glass bowl, used for serving cold food in an inner container that nestles on crushed or cracked ice. b. Food served in such a vessel. [French, supreme, suprĕme, from Latin suprĕmus, supreme. See SUPREME.]

Su-preme Being (sōō-prēm' bĕ'ĭng) n. God.

Supreme Court (sōō-prēm' kōrt) n. Abbr. S.C., Sup.Ct. Law. 1. The highest federal court in the United States, consisting of nine justices and having jurisdiction over all other courts in the nation. 2. supreme court. The highest court in most states within the United States. In this sense, also called high court suprĕme de vo-laille (sōō-prēm' də vō-lĭ') n. See suprĕme (n., sense 2). [French : suprĕme, suprĕme + de, of + volaille, fowl.]

Supreme Soviet (sōō-prēm' sō'vĕ-ĕt') n. The legislature of the Soviet Union, consisting of two houses, one whose members are elected on the basis of population and another whose members are elected by the constituent national republics.

su-pre-mo (sōō-prĕ'mō', sə-) n. pl. su-pre-mos. Chiefly British. One who is highest in authority or command, as of an organization. [Spanish, and Italian, supreme, supremo from Latin suprĕmus. See SUPREME.]

supt. or Supt. abbr. Superintendent.

supvr. abbr. Supervisor.

Su-qua-mish (sə-kwä'mĭsh) n. pl. Suquamish or Su-qua-mish-es. 1. a. A Native American people inhabiting an area of the eastern shore of Puget Sound. b. A member of this people. 2. The Salish language of the Suquamish.

sur. abbr. 1. Surface. 2. Surplus.

Sur. abbr. Suriname.

sur- pref. 1. Over; above; upon: surprint. 2. Additional: surtax. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin super-. See uper in Appendix.]

su-ra (söör'ə) n. Islam. Any of the 114 chapters or sections of the Koran. [Arabic sūrah, from Hebrew šûrâ, row, line.]

Su-ra·ba-ya also Su-ra·ba-ja (söör'ə-bä'yə) A city of northeast Java, Indonesia, on the Java Sea. It is an important naval base. Population, 2,027,913.

su-rah (söör'ə) n. A soft twilled fabric of silk or of a blend of silk and rayon. [French surat, after Surat.]

Su-ra·kar-ta (söör'ə-kär'tə) A city of south-central Java, Indonesia, east of Bandung. It is a market and processing center noted for its vast, walled palace built by the former sultans of the region. Population, 469,888.

su-ral (söör'əl) adj. Of or relating to the calf of the leg. [New Latin sūrālis, from Latin sūra, calf of the leg.]

Su-rat (söör'ət, sə-rät') A city of west-central India on the Gulf of Cambay north of Bombay. Once the chief port of India, it is now a railroad junction and manufacturing center. Population, 776,583.

sur·base (sûr'bās') n. Architecture. A molding or border above the base of a structure such as a baseboard.

sur·based¹ (sûr'bāst') adj. Architecture. Having a surbase.

sur·based² (sûr'bāst') adj. Architecture. Of or relating to an arch with a rise less than half its span. [From French surbaissé, past participle of surbaisser, to flatten : sur-, intensive pref. (from Old French); see SUR- + baisser, to lower (from Old French baissier, from Vulgar Latin bassiāre*); see ABASE.]

sur·cease (sûr'sēs', sə-r-sēs') v. tr. intr. sur·ceased, sur·ceas·ing, sur·ceas·es. To bring or come to an end; stop. — n. Cessation. [Middle English surcesen, variant (influenced by cesen, to cease); see CEASE, of sursesen, from Anglo-Norman surseser, from Old French surseoir, sursis-, to refrain, from Latin supersedere. See SUPERSEDE.]

sur·charge (sûr'chärj') n. 1. An additional sum added to the usual amount or cost. 2. An overcharge, especially when unlawful. 3. An additional or excessive burden; an overload. 4. a. A new value or denomination overprinted on a postage or revenue stamp. b. The stamp to which a new value has been applied.

5. Law. The act of surcharging. — v. tr. sur·charged, sur·charg·ing, sur·charg·es. 1. To charge (a person) an additional sum. 2. To overcharge (a person). 3. To place an excessive burden on; overload. 4. To fill beyond usual capacity; overfill. 5. To print a surcharge on (a postage or revenue stamp).

6. Law. To show an omission of a credit in (an account). 7. To require (a person) to reimburse funds spent without authorization. [Middle English, from surchar-gen, to overtax, from Old French surcharger : sur-, sur- + chargier, to charge; see CHARGE.]

sur-cin-gle (sûr/'sɪŋ'gəl) n. 1. A girth that binds a saddle, pack, or blanket to the body of a horse. 2. Archaic. The fastening belt on a clerical cassock; a cincture. [Middle English sursengle, from Old French surcengle : sur-, sur- + cengle, belt (from Latin cingula, from cingere, to gird); see CINGULUM.] —sur/'cin'gle v.

sur-coat (sûr/'kōt') n. 1. A loose outer coat or gown. 2. A tunic worn in the Middle Ages by a knight over his armor. [Middle English surcote, from Old French : sur-, sur- + cote, coat; see COAT.]

sur-cu-lose (sûr/'kyə-lōs') adj. Botany. Producing suckers: a surculose shrub. [Latin surculōsus, woody, from surculus, diminutive of surus, branch, post.]

surd (sûrd) n. 1. Mathematics. An irrational number, such as 2. 2. Linguistics. A voiceless sound in speech. — adj. Linguistics. Voiceless, as a sound. [Medieval Latin surdus (from Latin, speechless), translation of Arabic (jaḍr) 'aşamm, deaf (root), surd, translation of Greek alogos, speechless, surd.]

sure (shōor) adj. sur-er, sur-est. 1. Impossible to doubt or dispute; certain. 2. Not hesitating or wavering; firm: sure convictions. 3. Confident, as of something awaited or expected: sure of ultimate victory. 4. a. Bound to come about or happen; inevitable: sure defeat. b. Having one's course directed; destined or bound: sure to succeed. 5. Certain not to miss or err; steady: a sure hand on the throttle. 6. a. Worthy of being trusted or depended on; reliable. b. Free from or marked by freedom from doubt: sure of her friends. 7. Careful to do something: asked me to be sure to turn off the stove. 8. Obsolete. Free from harm or danger; safe. — adv. Informal. Surely; certainly. —idioms. for sure. Informal. Certainly; unquestionably: We'll win for sure. make sure. To establish something without doubt; make certain: Make sure he writes it down. to be sure. Indeed; certainly. [Middle English, from Old French, safe, from Latin sēcūrus. See SECURE.] —sure/'ness n.

SYNONYMS: sure, certain, confident, positive. These adjectives are compared as they mean feeling or showing no doubt. Sure and certain are frequently used interchangeably; sure, however, is the more subjective term, whereas certain may imply belief based on experience or evidence: "Never teach a child anything of which you are not yourself sure" (John Ruskin). "In this world nothing is certain but death and taxes" (Benjamin Franklin). Confident suggests assurance founded on faith or reliance in oneself or in others: The senator is confident of reelection. Positive suggests full, emphatic certainty: The prosecutor had positive proof of the defendant's guilt. See also Synonyms at certain sure-fire (shōor/'fir') adj. Informal. Bound to be successful or perform as expected: a sure-fire solution to the problem.

sure-foot-ed or sure-foot-ed (shōor/'fōot/'id) adj. 1. a. Not liable to stumble or fall. b. Designed so as to hold well to the road: an automobile that is sure- footed on curves. 2. Confident and capable: “demonstrates a sure-footed storytelling talent” (Michiko Kakutani). —sure’-foot’ed·ly adv. —sure’-foot’ed·ness n.

sure·ly (shōor’lē) adv. 1. With confidence; unhesitatingly. 2. Undoubtedly; certainly: You surely can’t be serious. 3. Without fail: Slowly but surely spring returns.

sur·e·ty (shōor’ī-tē) n. pl. sur·e·ties. 1. The condition of being sure, especially of oneself; self-assurance. 2. Something beyond doubt; a certainty. 3. A pledge or formal promise made to secure against loss, damage, or default; a guarantee or security. 4. One who has contracted to be responsible for another, especially one who assumes responsibilities or debts in the event of default. [Middle English surte, from Old French, from Latin sēcūritās, from sēcūrus, sure. See SECURE.] —sur’e·ty·ship n.

surf (sûrf) n. The waves of the sea as they break upon a shore or reef. — v. intr. surfed, surf·ing, surfs. Sports. To engage in surfing. [Origin unknown.] —surf’y adj.

sur·face (sûr’fæs) n. Abbr. sur. 1. a. The outer or the topmost boundary of an object. b. A material layer constituting such a boundary. 2. Mathematics. a. The boundary of a three-dimensional figure. b. The two-dimensional locus of points located in three-dimensional space. c. A portion of space having length and breadth but no thickness. 3. The superficial or external aspect: “a flamboyant, powerful confidence man who lives entirely on the surface of experience” (Frank Conroy). 4. An airfoil. — adj. 1. Relating to, on, or at a surface: surface algae in the water. 2. a. Superficial. b. Apparent as opposed to real. — v.

sur·faced, sur·fac·ing, sur·fac·es. — v. tr. 1. To form the surface of: We used asphalt to surface over the driveway. 2. To apply a surface to: surface a road. 3. To provide with a surface. — v. intr. 1. To rise to the surface. 2. To emerge after concealment. 3. To work or dig a mine at or near the surface of the ground. —idiom. on the surface. To all intents and purposes; to all outward appearances: a soldier who, on the surface, appeared brave and patriotic. [French : sur-, above (from Old French); see SUR- + face, face (from Old French); see FACE.] sur·face·ac·tive (sûr’fæs-āk’tīv) adj. Of, relating to, or being a substance capable of reducing the surface tension of a liquid in which it is dissolved. Used especially of detergents.

sur·face·ef·fect ship (sûr’fæs-ī-fēkt’ shīp) n. A ground-effect vehicle that operates over water.

surface lift (sûr’fæs lift) n. Sports. A ski lift, such as a T-bar, that conveys skiers up a slope without raising them off the ground.

surface of revolution (sûr’fæs ÷v rēv’ə-lōō’shən) n. pl. surfaces of revolution. Mathematics. A surface generated by revolving a plane curve about an axis in its plane.

surface plate (sûr'fəs plāt) n. See planometer.

surface tension (sûr'fəs tĕn'shən) n. 1. A property of liquids arising from unbalanced molecular cohesive forces at or near the surface, as a result of which the surface tends to contract and has properties resembling those of a stretched elastic membrane. 2. A measure of this property.

sur·face-to-air missile (sûr'fəs-tōō-âr' mîs'əl) n. Abbr. SAM A guided missile launched from the ground against an airborne target.

sur·fac·tant (sər-fāk'tənt, sûr'fāk'-) n. 1. A surface-active substance. 2. A substance composed of lipoprotein that is secreted by the alveolar cells of the lung and serves to maintain the stability of pulmonary tissue by reducing the surface tension of fluids that coat the lung. [SURF(ACE)-ACT(IVE) + A(GE)NT.]

surf and turf (sûrf ənd tûrf) n. Seafood and beefsteak served as the main course of a meal, as in a restaurant.

surf-bird (sûrf'bûrd') n. A shore bird (Aphriza virgata) of the Pacific coast of North and South America, having dark, spotted plumage and a black tail with a broad white base.

surf-board (sûrf'bôrd', -bôrd') n. Sports. A long, narrow, somewhat rounded board, used for surfing.

surf-board-er (sûrf'bôrd'ɔr, -bôrd'-) n. Sports. See surfer.

surf-board-ing (sûrf'bôrd'ɔŋg, -bôrd'-) n. Sports. See surfing.

surf-boat (sûrf'bô't) n. Nautical. A strong, seaworthy boat that can be launched or landed in heavy surf.

surf-cast-ing (sûrf'kās'tiŋg) n. The activity of fishing from shore, especially by casting one's line into the surf. —surf'cast'er n.

surf clam (sûrf klām) n. Any of various usually large edible clams of the family Mactridae, commonly living in the surf of coastal waters.

surf duck (sûrf dŭk) n. A scoter, especially the surf scoter.

sur·feit (sûr'fĭt) v. sur·feit·ed, sur·feit·ing, sur·feits. — v. tr. To feed or supply to excess, satiety, or disgust. See Synonyms at satiare. — v. intr. Archaic. To overindulge. — n. 1. a. Overindulgence in food or drink. b. The result of such overindulgence; satiety or disgust. 2. An excessive amount. [Middle English surfeten, from surfait, excess, from Old French, from past participle of surfaire, to overdo : sur-, sur- + faire, to do (from Latin facere); see dhē- in Appendix.] —sur'feit·er n.

surf-er (sûr'fər) n. Sports. One who engages in surfing. Also called surfboarder surf-er's knobs (sûr'fərz nɔbz) pl.n. Tumorlike skin nodules just below the knees, on the tops of the feet, and often on the toes, common among surfers who paddle in a kneeling position. Also called surfer's knee, surfer's knots.

surf fish (sûrf fĭsh) n. See surfperch.

sur·fi·cial (sər-fĭsh'əl) adj. Of, relating to, or occurring on or near the surface of the earth. [SURF(ACE) + (SUPERF)ICIAL.]

surf-ing (sûr'fîng) n. Sports. The sport of riding on the crest or along the tunnel of a wave, especially while standing or lying on a surfboard. Also called surf-boarding surf-perch (sûrf'pûrch') n. pl. surfperch or surf-perch-es. Any of various viviparous marine fishes of the family Embiotocidae, found in shallow waters along the North American Pacific coast. Also called surf fish surf scoter (sûrf skô'tər) n. A North American sea duck (Melanitta perspicillata), the male of which is black with a white forehead and nape.

surf-side (sûrf'sîd') adj. Situated or sited at or near the seashore: surfside parties; a surfside road.

surg. abbr. Surgeon; surgery; surgical.

surge (sûrj) v. surged, surg-ing, surg-es. — v. intr. 1. To move in a billowing or swelling manner in or as if in waves. See Synonyms at rise. 2. To roll or be tossed about on waves, as a boat. 3. To move like advancing waves: The fans surged forward to see the movie star. 4. To increase suddenly. Used of electric current or voltage. 5. Nautical. To slip around a windlass. Used of a rope. — v. tr. Nautical. To loosen or slacken (a cable) gradually. — n. 1. A heavy, billowing, or swelling motion like that of great waves. 2. a. Wave motion with low height and a shorter period than a swell. b. A coastal rise in water level caused by wind. 3. A sudden onrush: a surge of joy. 4. A sudden, transient increase or oscillation in electric current or voltage. 5. An instability in the power output of an engine. 6. Astronomy. A brief, violent disturbance occurring during the eruption of a solar flare. 7. Nautical. a. The part of a windlass into which the cable surges. b. A temporary release or slackening of a cable. [Probably French sourdre, source- (from Old French), and French surgir, to rise (from Old French, to cast anchor, from Old Catalan) both from Latin surgere, to rise : sub-, from below; see SUB- + regere, to lead straight; see reg- in Appendix.]

sur-geon (sûr'jən) n. Abbr. surg. A physician specializing in surgery. [Middle English surgien, from Anglo-Norman, short for Old French cirurgien, from cirurgie, surgery. See SURGERY.]

sur-geon-fish (sûr'jən-fîsh') n. pl. surgeonfish or sur-geon-fish-es. Any of various bright-colored tropical marine fishes of the family Acanthuridae, having one or more sharp, erectile spines near the base of the tail. [From its lancet-like spines, which resemble surgeons' instruments.]

Sur-geon General (sûr'jən jěn'ər-əl) n. pl. Surgeons General. Abbr. SG 1. The chief general officer in the medical departments of the U.S. Army, Navy, or Air Force. 2. The chief medical officer in the U.S. Public Health Service or in a state public health service.

sur-geon's knot (sûr'jənz nۆt) n. pl. surgeons' knots. Any of several knots, especially one similar to a square knot, used in surgery for tying ligatures or stitching incisions.

sur-ger-y (sûr'jə-rē) n. pl. sur-ger-ies. Abbr. surg. 1. The branch of medicine that deals with the diagnosis and treatment of injury, deformity, and disease by manual and instrumental means. 2. A surgical operation or procedure, especially one involving the removal or replacement of a diseased organ or tissue. 3. An operating room or a laboratory of a surgeon or of a hospital's surgical staff. 4. The skill or work of a surgeon. 5. Chiefly British. a. A physician's, dentist's, or veterinarian's office. b. The period during which a physician, dentist, or veterinarian consults with or treats patients in the office. [Middle English surgerie, from Old French, short for cirurgerie, from cirurgie, from Latin chīrūrgia, from Greek kheirourgia, from kheirourgos, working by hand : kheir, hand; see ghesor- in Appendix + ergon, work; see werg- in Appendix.]

sur-gi-cal (sûr'ji-kəl) adj. Abbr. surg. 1. Of, relating to, or characteristic of surgeons or surgery. 2. Used in surgery. 3. Resulting from or occurring after surgery. [From SURGEON.] —sur'gi-cal-ly adv.

sur-gi-cen-ter (sûr'ji-sĕn'tər) n. A surgical facility for operations that do not require hospitalization. [SURGI(CAL) + CENTER.]

Sur-gut (sər-gōot') A city of western Russia on the Ob River north of Omsk. It is in an oil-producing region. Population, 203,000.

Su-ri-ba-chi (sōor'ə-bā'chē), Mount. A volcanic hill on Iwo Jima in the western Pacific Ocean. It is famous for the dramatic photograph of U.S. Marines raising the American flag on its summit on February 23, 1945, after the island was captured from the Japanese.

su-ri-cate (sōor'ī-kāt') n. A small, burrowing, carnivorous mammal (Suricata suricatta) of southern Africa, related to the mongoose and having grayish fur and a long tail, which it uses for balance when it stands on its hind legs. Also called sticktail [French, from obsolete Dutch surikat, macaque, probably of South African origin.]

su-ri-mi (sə-rē'mē, sō-) n. Minced, processed fish used in the preparation of imitation seafood, especially imitation crabmeat, lobster, and scallops. [Japanese, from suru, to process, mash.]

Su-ri-na-me (sü'rē-nā'mə) also Su-ri-nam (sōor'ə-nām', -nām') Formerly Dutch Gui-a-na (dŭch gē-än'ə, -ä'nə, gī-). Abbr. Sur. A country of northeast South America on the Atlantic Ocean. First colonized by the British, the region was ceded to the Dutch in 1667 and became an autonomous territory of the Netherlands in 1954. Full independence was achieved in 1975. Paramaribo is the capital and the largest city. Population, 354,860. —Su'ri-na-mese' (-nā-mēz', -mēs') adj. & n.

Suriname River also Surinam River (sü'rē-nā'mə rĭv'ər) A river of Suriname flowing about 644 km (400 mi) northward to the Atlantic Ocean.

sur-ly (sûr'lē) adj. sur-li-er, sur-li-est. 1. Sullenly ill-humored; gruff.

2. Obsolete. Arrogant; domineering. [Middle English sirly, masterful, lordly, from sir, lord. See SIR.] —sur/li-ly adv. —sur/li-ness n.

WORD HISTORY: The fact that the word surly means “churlish” nicely indicates its fall in status. Churlish derives from the word churl, which in its Old English form ceorl meant “a man without rank, a member of the lowest rank of free-men,” as well as “peasant” in general. In Old English ceorl may have been a term of contempt; it certainly became one in Middle English, where cherl meant “base fellow, boor,” with churlish descending in meaning accordingly. Surly, on the other hand, started its life at the top of the scale but fell just as far. Looking at instances of this word in Middle English and Early Modern English, we see that surly was only one spelling for this word, another spelling being sirly, which makes it clear that it came from the word sir, the term of honor for a knight or for a person of rank or importance in general. Thus sirly, the form under which the early spellings of the word are entered in the Oxford English Dictionary, first meant “lordly.” Surly, entered as a separate word in the OED and first recorded in 1566, meant perhaps “lordly, majestic,” in its earliest use, subsequently being used in the sense “masterful, imperious, arrogant.” As the gloss “arrogant” makes clear, the word sirly could have a negative sense, and it is this area of meaning that is responsible for the current “churlish” sense of the word.

sur-mise (sər-mīz') v. sur-mised, sur-mis-ing, sur-mis-es. — v. tr. To infer (something) without sufficiently conclusive evidence. — v. intr. To make a guess or conjecture. See Synonyms at conjecture. — n. An idea or opinion based on insufficiently conclusive evidence; a conjecture. [Middle English surmisen, to accuse, from Old French surmise, feminine past participle of surmettre: sur-, sur- + mettre, to put (from Latin mittere).]

sur-mount (sər-mount') v. tr. sur-mount-ed, sur-mount-ing, sur-mounts.

1. To overcome (an obstacle, for example); conquer. 2. To ascend to the top of; climb. 3. a. To place something above; top. b. To be above or on top of: The church steeple surmounts the square. 4. Obsolete. To surpass or exceed in amount. [Middle English surmonten, from Old French surmonter: sur-, sur- + monter, to mount; see MOUNT¹.] —sur-mount/a-ble adj. —sur-mount'er n.

sur-mul-let (sər-mül'it, sûr'mül'-) n. pl. surmullet or sur-mul-lets. See goatfish. [French surmulet, from Old French sormulet: probably sor, reddish brown (of Germanic origin) + mulet, mullet; see MULLET.]

sur-name (sûr'nām') n. 1. A name shared in common to identify the members of a family, as distinguished from each member's given name. Also called family name 2. A nickname or an epithet added to a person's name. — v. tr.

sur-named, sur-nam-ing, sur-names. To give a surname to. [Middle English, partial translation of Old French surnom : sur-, sur- + nom, name.]

sur-pass (sər-pās') v. tr. sur-passed, sur-pass-ing, sur-pass-es. 1. To be beyond the limit, powers, or capacity of; transcend: misery that surpasses comprehension. 2. To be or go beyond, as in degree or quality; exceed. See Synonyms at excel. [French surpasser, from Old French, to transgress : sur-, sur- + passer, pass; see PASS.]

sur-pass-ing (sər-pās'ing) adj. Exceptional; exceeding: monuments of surpassing splendor. —sur-pass'ing-ly adv.

sur-plice (sûr'plis) n. A loose-fitting, white ecclesiastical gown with wide sleeves, worn over a cassock. [Middle English surplis, from Anglo-Norman surpliz, variant of Old French sourpeliz, from Medieval Latin superpellicium : Latin super-, super- + Medieval Latin pellīcium, fur coat (from Latin, neuter of pellīcius, made of skin, from pellis, skin); see pel-³ in Appendix.]

sur-plus (sûr'pləs, -plūs') adj. Abbr. s., sur. Being more than or in excess of what is needed or required: surplus grain. See Synonyms at superfluous. — n. 1. An amount or a quantity in excess of what is needed. 2. Accounting.

a. Total assets minus the sum of all liabilities. b. Excess of a corporation's net assets over the face value of its capital stock. c. Excess of receipts over expenditures. [Middle English, an excess, surplus, from Old French, an excess, from Medieval Latin superplūs : Latin super-, super- + Latin plūs, more; see pel-¹ in Appendix.]

sur-plus-age (sûr'plə-sij) n. 1. Surplus; excess. 2. An excess of words; verbiage. 3. Law. Irrelevant matter in a pleading.

surplus value (sûr'pləs vāl'yōō) n. The difference between the value of the product produced by labor and the actual price of labor as paid out in wages in Marxian analysis of capitalism.

sur-print (sûr'prɪnt') v. tr. sur-print-ed, sur-print-ing, sur-prints. 1. To overprint. 2. To superimpose (a second negative) on a previously printed image of the first negative. —sur'print' n.

sur-pris-al (sər-prī'zəl) n. The act of surprising or the state of being surprised.

sur-prise also sur-prize (sər-prīz') v. tr. sur-prim-ed also sur-prim-ed, sur-prim-ing also sur-prim-ing, sur-prim-es also sur-prim-es. 1. To encounter suddenly or unexpectedly; take or catch unawares. 2. To attack or capture suddenly and without warning. 3. To cause to feel wonder, astonishment, or amazement, as at something unanticipated. 4. a. To cause (someone) to do or say something unintended. b. To elicit or detect through surprise. — n. 1. The act of surprising or the condition of being surprised. 2. Something, such as an unexpected encounter, event, or gift, that surprises. [Middle English surprisen, to overcome, from Old French surprise, feminine past participle of surprendre, to surprise : sur-, sur- + prendre, to take (from Latin prehendere, prendere, to seize);

see ghend- in Appendix.] —sur-pris'er n. —sur-pris'ing adj.
—sur-pris'ing-ly adv.

SYNONYMS: surprise, astonish, amaze, astound, dumbfound, flabbergast. These verbs mean to affect a person strongly as being unexpected or unusual. To surprise is to fill with often sudden wonder or disbelief as being unanticipated or out of the ordinary: “Never tell people how to do things. Tell them what to do and they will surprise you with their ingenuity” (George S. Patton). Astonish suggests overwhelming surprise: The sight of such an enormous crowd astonished us. Amaze implies astonishment and often bewilderment: The violinist’s virtuosity has amazed audiences all over the world. Astound connotes shock, as from something unprecedented in one’s experience: We were astounded at the high cost of traveling in Japan. Dumbfound adds to astound the suggestion of perplexity and often wordlessness: His denial that he had witnessed the accident dumbfounded me. Flabbergast is used as a more colorful equivalent of astound, astonish, or amaze: “The aldermen... were... flabbergasted; they were speechless from bewilderment” (Benjamin Disraeli).

surr. abbr. Surrender.

Sur-ratt (sə-răt'), Mary Eugenia Jenkins. 1820?-1865. American alleged conspirator in Abraham Lincoln’s assassination. She was convicted as a conspirator and executed along with three others, although it now appears that she knew nothing about the plot to kill the President.

sur-re-al (sə-rē'əl) adj. 1. Having qualities attributed to or associated with surrealism: “grim, surreal political critiques” (Lloyd Rose). 2. Having an oddly dreamlike quality. [Back-formation from SURREALISM.] —sur-re'al-ly adv.

sur-re-al-ism (sə-rē'ə-līz'əm) n. 1. A 20th-century literary and artistic movement that attempts to express the workings of the subconscious and is characterized by fantastic imagery and incongruous juxtaposition of subject matter. 2. Literature or art produced in this style. [French surréalisme : sur-, beyond (from Old French); see SUR- + réalisme, realism (from réalité, reality, from Medieval Latin reālītās, from reālis, real); see *REAL*¹.] —sur-re'al-ist n.

sur-re-al-is-tic (sə-rē'ə-līs'tik) adj. 1. Of or relating to surrealism. 2. Having an oddly dreamlike or unreal quality. —sur-re'al-is'ti-cal-ly adv.

sur-re-but-ter (sûr'rī-büt'ər) also sur-re-but-tal (-büt'l) n. Law. A plaintiff’s reply to a defendant’s rebuttal.

sur-re-join-der (sûr'rī-join'dər) n. Law. A plaintiff’s reply to a defendant’s rejoinder.

sur-ren-der (sə-rĕn'dər) v. sur-ren-dered, sur-ren-der-ing, sur-ren-ders.
— v. tr. 1. To relinquish possession or control of to another because of demand or compulsion. 2. To give up in favor of another. 3. To give up or give back (something that has been granted): surrender a contractual right. 4. To give up or abandon: surrender all hope. 5. To give over or resign (oneself) to something, as to an emotion: surrendered himself to grief. 6. Law. To restore (an estate, for example), especially to give up (a lease) before expiration of the term. — v. intr. To give oneself up, as to an enemy. — n. Abbr. surr. 1. The act or an instance of surrendering. 2. Law. a. The delivery of a prisoner, fugitive from justice, or other principal in a suit into legal custody. b. The act of surrendering or of being surrendered to bail. c. Restoration of an estate. [Middle English surrenderen, from Old French surrendre : sur-, sur- + rendre, to deliver; see RENDER.]

SYNONYMS: surrender, submission, capitulation. These nouns denote the act of giving up one's person, one's possessions, or people under one's command to the authority, power, or control of another. Surrender is the most general: "No terms except unconditional and immediate surrender can be accepted" (Ulysses S. Grant). Submission stresses the subordination of the side that has yielded: "Our cruel and unrelenting enemy leaves us only the choice of brave resistance, or the most abject submission" (George Washington). Capitulation implies surrender under specific prearranged conditions: Lack of food and ammunition forced the commander of the rebels to consider a capitulation. See also Synonyms at relinquish sur-rep-ti-tious (sûr'əp-tîsh'əs) adj. 1. Obtained, done, or made by clandestine or stealthy means. 2. Acting with or marked by stealth. See Synonyms at secret. [Middle English, from Latin surrepticius, from surreptus, past participle of surrîpere, to take away secretly : sub-, secretly; see SUB- + rapere, to seize; see rep- in Appendix.] — sur'rep-ti'tious-ly adv. — sur'rep-ti'tious-ness n.

sur-rey (sûr'ē, sûr'ē) n. pl. sur-reys. A four-wheeled horse-drawn pleasure carriage having two or four seats. [Short for Surrey cart, after Surrey, a county of southeast England.]

Sur-rey (sûr'ē, sûr'ē) A historical region of southeast England. Dominated by Mercia and Wessex in Anglo-Saxon times, it was overrun by the Danes in the ninth century.

Sur-rey (sûr'ē, sûr'ē), Earl of. See Henry Howard.

sur-ro-ga-cy (sûr'ə-gə-sē, sûr'-) n. pl. sur-ro-ga-cies. 1. The condition of being a surrogate, especially a surrogate mother. 2. Law. The office of a surrogate.

sur-ro-gate (sûr'ə-gît, -gât', sûr'-) n. 1. One that takes the place of another; a substitute. 2. a. A person or an animal that functions as a substitute for another, as in a social or family role. b. A surrogate mother. 3. Psychology. A figure of authority who takes the place of the father or mother in a person's unconscious or emotional life. 4. Law. A judge in New York and some other states having jurisdiction over the probate of wills and the settlement of estates. — adj. Substitute. — v. tr. sur-ro-gat-ed, sur-ro-gat-ing, sur-ro-gates (-gât'). 1. To put in the place of another, especially as a successor; replace. 2. To appoint (another) as a replacement for oneself. [Middle English, from Latin surrogātus, past participle of surrogāre, to substitute, variant of subrogāre. See SUBROGATE.]

surrogate mother (sûr'ə-gīt mŭth'ər) n. 1. A woman who is paid to bear a child for another woman, either through artificial insemination by the other woman's husband, or by carrying until birth the other woman's surgically implanted fertilized egg. 2. One that acts as, serves as, or is a mother substitute. —surrogate motherhood n.

sur-round (sə-round') v. tr. sur-round-ed, sur-round-ing, sur-rounds.

1. To extend on all sides of simultaneously; encircle. 2. To enclose or confine on all sides so as to bar escape or outside communication. — n. 1. Something, such as fencing or a border, that surrounds: a fireplace surround. 2. a. The area around a thing or place: inflammation extending to the surround of the eye.

b. Surroundings; environment: "It was the country, the flat agricultural surround, that so ravished me" (Listener). 3. A method of hunting wild animals by surrounding them and driving them to a place from which they cannot escape.

[Middle English surrounden, to inundate, from Old French suronder, from Late Latin superundāre: Latin super-, super- + Latin undāre, to rise in waves (from unda, wave); see wed-¹ in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: surround, circle, compass, encircle, encompass, environ, gird, girdle, ring. The central meaning shared by these verbs is "to lie around and bound on all sides": a city surrounded by suburbs; a crown circling a king's head; a mountain peak compassed by fog; a belt encircling her waist; a lake that encompasses an island; oases environed by the desert; a castle girded by a moat; gardens girdling a bird bath; a dinner table ringed with guests.

sur-round-ings (sə-roun'dĩngz) pl.n. The external circumstances, conditions, and objects that affect existence and development; the environment.

sur-tax (sûr'tăks') n. 1. An additional tax. 2. A tax levied on corporations or individuals after net income has exceeded a certain level. — v. tr. sur-taxed, sur-tax-ing, sur-tax-es. To levy a surtax on.

Sur-tees (sûr'tēz), Robert Smith. 1803-1864. British novelist whose humorous fiction includes Jorrocks's Jaunts and Jollities (1838) and Handley Cross (1843).

sur-ti-tle (sûr'tīt'l) n. See supertitle.

Su-ru-ga Bay (sōō'rōō-gä' bā) An inlet of the Pacific Ocean on the southeast coast of Honshu, Japan, southwest of Tokyo.

sur-veil (sər-vāl') v. tr. sur-veilled, sur-veil-ing, sur-veils. Usage Problem. To keep under surveillance. [Back-formation from SURVEILLANCE.]

USAGE NOTE: Surveil has encountered the same kind of critical resistance that was once accorded to other back-formations such as diagnose and donate. It remains to be seen whether it too will eventually come to be regarded as useful and unexceptionable.

sur·veil·lance (sər-vā'ləns) n. 1. Close observation of a person or group, especially one under suspicion. 2. The act of observing or the condition of being observed.

sur·veil·lant (sər-vā'lənt) adj. Exercising surveillance. — n. One that exercises surveillance. [French, present participle of surveiller, to watch over : sur-, over (from Old French); see SUR- + veiller, to watch (from Old French veillier, from Latin vigilāre, from vigil, watchful); see weg- in Appendix.]

sur·vey (sər-vā', sūr'vā') v. sur·veyed, sur·vey·ing, sur·veys. — v. tr. 1. To examine or look at in a comprehensive way. 2. To inspect carefully; scrutinize: "Two women were surveying the other people on the platform" (Thomas Wolfe). See Synonyms at see¹. 3. To determine the boundaries, area, or elevations of (land or structures on the earth's surface) by means of measuring angles and distances, using the techniques of geometry and trigonometry. 4. Chiefly British. To inspect and determine the structural condition of (a building). 5. To conduct a statistical survey on. 6. To range one's gaze leisurely over. — v. intr. To make a survey. — n. pl. sur·veys (sūr'vā'). 1. A detailed inspection or investigation. 2. A general or comprehensive view. 3. a. The process of surveying. b. A report on or map of what has been surveyed. [Middle English surveien, from Old French surveeir, from Medieval Latin supervidēre : Latin super-, super- + Latin vidēre, to look; see weid- in Appendix.] — sur·vey'or n.

survey course (sər-vā' kôrs) n. An academic course consisting of an overview of a broad topic or field of knowledge.

sur·vey·ing (sər-vā'ing) n. The measurement of dimensional relationships, as of horizontal distances, elevations, directions, and angles, on the earth's surface especially for use in locating property boundaries, construction layout, and map-making.

sur·vey·or's level (sər-vā'ərz lēv'əl) n. pl. surveyors' levels. An instrument having a telescope and attached spirit level mounted on a tripod and rotating around a vertical axis.

sur·viv·a·ble (sər-vī'və-bəl) adj. 1. Capable of surviving: survivable organisms in a hostile environment. 2. That can be survived: a survivable, but very serious, illness. — sur·viv'a·bil'i·ty n.

sur·viv·al (sər-vī'vəl) n. 1. a. The act or process of surviving. b. The fact of having survived. 2. Something, such as an ancient custom or belief, that has survived. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: survival techniques; survival equipment.

sur-vi-val-ist (sər-vī'vəl-ist) n. One who has personal or group survival as a primary goal in the face of difficulty, opposition, and especially the threat of natural catastrophe, nuclear war, or societal collapse.

survival of the fittest (sər-vī'vəl ÷v thē fit'ist) n. Natural selection conceived of as a struggle for life in which only those organisms best adapted to existing conditions are able to survive and reproduce.

sur-vive (sər-vīv') v. sur-vived, sur-viv-ing, sur-vives. — v. intr. To remain alive or in existence. — v. tr. 1. To live longer than; outlive: She survived her husband by five years. 2. To live or persist through: plants that can survive frosts. See Synonyms at outlive. [Middle English surviven, from Old French sourvivre, from Latin supervivere: super-, super- + vivere, to live; see g^wei- in Appendix.] —sur-vi'vor n.

sur-vi-vor-ship (sər-vī'vər-ship') n. 1. Law. The right of a person who survives a partner or joint owner to the entire ownership of something that was previously owned jointly. 2. The condition of being a survivor.

Su-sa (sōō'sə, -zə) A ruined city of southwest Iran south of Hamaden. It was the capital of the kingdom of Elam and a capital of the Persian Empire under Cyrus the Great.

Su-sah or Su-sa (sōō'sə, -zə) See Sousse.

Su-san B. An-tho-ny Day (sōō'zən bē' ən'thə-nē dā) n. February 15, observed in the United States in commemoration of the birth in 1820 of the women's suffrage leader and feminist Susan B. Anthony.

Su-sann (sōō-zän'), Jacqueline. 1921-1974. American novelist whose Valley of the Dolls (1966) was a worldwide best seller.

Su-san-na (sōō-zän'ə) In the Apocrypha, a captive in Babylon who was falsely accused of adultery and was rescued by Daniel.

sus-cep-tance (sə-sĕp'təns) n. Electronics. The imaginary part of the complex representation of admittance. [(electric) suscept(ibility), a measure of the ease of polarization of a dielectric + -ANCE.]

sus-cep-ti-bil-i-ty (sə-sĕp'tə-bil'ī-tē) n. pl. sus-cep-ti-bil-i-ties. 1. The quality or condition of being susceptible. 2. The capacity to be affected by deep emotions or strong feelings; sensitivity. 3. susceptibilities. Sensibilities; feelings.

sus-cep-ti-ble (sə-sĕp'tə-bəl) adj. 1. Easily influenced or affected: "She suddenly was too susceptible to her past" (Jimmy Breslin). 2. Likely to be affected with: susceptible to colds. 3. Especially sensitive; highly impressionable.

4. Capable of accepting or permitting: susceptible of proof. [Late Latin susceptibilis, from Latin susceptus, past participle of suscipere, to receive : sub-, from below; see SUB- + capere, to take; see kap- in Appendix.] —sus-cep'ti-ble-ness n. —sus-cep'ti-bly adv.

sus-cep-tive (sə-sĕp'tiv) adj. 1. Receptive. 2. Susceptible. —sus-cep-tive-ness, sus-cep'tiv/i-ty n.

su-shi (sōō'shē) n. Small cakes of cold cooked rice wrapped in seaweed, dressed with vinegar, and topped or wrapped with slices of raw or cooked fish, egg, or vegetables. [Japanese.]

Su-si-a-na (sōō'zē-ä'nə, -än'ə) See Elam.

sus-lik (sūs'līk) also sous-lik (sōōs'-) n. 1. Any of several ground squirrels of Europe and Asia, especially the small grayish European species Citellus citellus.

2. The pelt or fur of this animal. [Russian, from Old Russian susolŭ.]

sus-pect (sə-spēkt') v. sus-pect-ed, sus-pect-ing, sus-pects. — v. tr. 1. To surmise to be true or probable; imagine: I suspect they are very disappointed.

2. To have doubts about; distrust: I suspect his motives. 3. To think (a person) guilty without proof: The police suspect her of murder. — v. intr. To have suspicion. — n. (sūs'pēkt') One who is suspected, especially of having committed a crime. — adj. (sūs'pēkt', sə-spēkt') Open to or viewed with suspicion: a suspect policy; suspect motives. [Middle English suspecten, from Old French suspecter, from Latin suspectāre, frequentative of susplicere, to look up at, suspect : su-, sub-, from below; see SUB- + specere, to look at; see spek- in Appendix.]

sus-pend (sə-spēnd') v. sus-pend-ed, sus-pend-ing, sus-pends. — v. tr.

1. To bar for a period from a privilege, office, or position, usually as a punishment: suspend a student from school. 2. To cause to stop for a period; interrupt: suspended the trial. 3. a. To hold in abeyance; defer: suspend judgment. See Synonyms at defer¹. b. To render temporarily ineffective: suspend a jail sentence; suspend all parking regulations. 4. To hang so as to allow free movement: suspended the mobile from the ceiling. 5. To support or keep from falling without apparent attachment, as by buoyancy: suspend oneself in the water. — v. intr.

1. To cease for a period; delay. 2. To fail to make payments or meet obligations. [Middle English suspenden, from Old French suspendre, from Latin suspendere : sub-, from below; see SUB- + pendere, to hang; see (s)pen- in Appendix.]

sus-pend-ed animation (sə-spēn'dīd ən'ə-mā'shən) n. A temporary state of interrupted breathing and loss of consciousness resembling death, caused especially by asphyxia.

sus-pend-er (sə-spēn'dər) n. 1. One, such as a hook, that suspends something else. 2. An often elastic strap worn over the shoulders to support trousers. Often used in the plural. 3. Chiefly British. A garter.

sus-pense (sə-spēns') n. 1. The condition of being physically suspended.

2. a. The state or quality of being undecided, uncertain, or doubtful.

b. Pleasurable excitement and anticipation regarding an outcome, such as the ending of a mystery novel. 3. Anxiety or apprehension resulting from an uncertain, undecided, or mysterious situation. [Middle English, from Old French suspens, from Latin suspēnsus, past participle of suspendere, to suspend. See SUSPEND.] —sus-pense'ful adj.

suspense account (sə-spěns' ə-kount') n. A temporary account in which entries of credits or charges are made until their proper disposition can be determined.

sus-pen-sion (sə-spěn'shən) n. 1. The act of suspending or the condition of being suspended, especially: a. A temporary abrogation or deferment. b. A debarment, as from office or privilege. c. A postponement of judgment, opinion, or decision. See Synonyms at pause. 2. Music. a. The prolongation of one or more tones of a chord into a following chord to create a temporary dissonance. b. The tone so prolonged. 3. A device from which a mechanical part is suspended. 4. The system of springs and other devices that insulates the chassis of a vehicle from shocks transmitted through the wheels. 5. Chemistry. A relatively coarse, noncolloidal dispersion of solid particles in a liquid.

suspension bridge (sə-spěn'shən brīj) n. A bridge having the roadway suspended from cables that are anchored at either end and usually supported at intervals by towers.

suspension point (sə-spěn'shən point) n. One of a series of dots, usually three, used to indicate an incomplete statement or the omission of a word or words from a written text. Often used in the plural.

sus-pen-sive (sə-spěn'siv) adj. 1. Serving or tending to suspend or temporarily stop something. 2. Characterized by or causing suspense. —sus-pen-sive-ly adv. —sus-pen-sive-ness n.

sus-pen-sor (sə-spěn'sər) n. 1. Botany. A multicellular filamentous structure developed from a zygote in seed-bearing plants and connecting the embryo to the endosperm. 2. An athletic supporter. [New Latin suspēnsor, one that suspends, from Latin suspēnsus, past participle of suspendere, to suspend. See SUSPEND.]

sus-pen-so-ry (sə-spěn'sə-rē) adj. 1. Supporting or suspending: a suspensory bandage. 2. Delaying completion. — n. pl. sus-pen-so-ries. 1. A support or truss. 2. An athletic supporter.

suspensory ligament (sə-spěn'sə-rē lig'ə-mənt) n. A ligament that supports an organ or a body part, especially a fibrous membrane that holds the lens of the eye in place.

sus-pi-cion (sə-spīsh'ən) n. 1. The act of suspecting something, especially something wrong, on little evidence or without proof. 2. The condition of being suspected, especially of wrongdoing. 3. A state of uncertainty; doubt. See Synonyms at uncertainty. 4. A minute amount; trace. — v. tr. sus-pi-cioned, sus-pi-cion-ing, sus-pi-cions. Non-Standard. To suspect. [Middle English, alteration (influenced by Old French suspicion, from Latin suspīciō, suspīciōn-, from suspīcere, to watch), of suspecioun, from Anglo-Norman, variant of Old French soſpeçon, from Latin suspectiō, suspectiōn-, from suspectus, past participle of suspīcere, to watch. See SUSPECT.] —sus-pi'cion-al adj.

sus-pi-cious (sə-spīsh'əs) adj. 1. Arousing or apt to arouse suspicion; questionable: suspicious behavior. 2. Tending to suspect; distrustful: a suspicious nature. 3. Expressing suspicion: a suspicious look. —sus-pi'cious-ly adv.
—sus-pi'cious-ness n.

sus-pire (sə-spīr') v. intr. sus-pired, sus-pir-ing, sus-pires. 1. To breathe: “And from that one intake of fire/All creatures still warmly suspire” (Robert Frost). 2. To sigh. [Middle English suspiren, to sigh, from Old French, from Latin suspīrāre: sub-, from below; see SUB- + spīrāre, to breathe.] —sus/pi-ra'tion (sūs'pə-rā'shən) n.

Sus-que-han-na (sūs'kwə-hăn'ə) n. pl. Susquehanna or Sus-que-han-nas. See Susquehannock (n., sense 1).

Susquehanna River (sūs'kwə-hăn'ə rīv'ər) A river of the northeast United States rising in central New York and flowing about 714 km (444 mi) south through eastern Pennsylvania and northeast Maryland to Chesapeake Bay.

Sus-que-han-nock (sūs'kwə-hăn'ək) n. pl. Susquehannock or Sus-que-han-nocks. 1. a. A Native American people formerly located along the Susquehanna River in New York, Pennsylvania, and Maryland. The Susquehannock were extinct by 1763. b. A member of this people. Also called Conestoga, Susquehanna. 2. The Iroquoian language of the Susquehannock.

suss (sūs) v. tr. sussed, suss-ing, suss-es. Slang. 1. To infer or discover; figure out: “I think I'm good at sussing out what's going on” (Ry Cooder). 2. To size up; study: “Suss out the designers in whom you are interested” (Lucia van der Post). [Probably short for SUSPECT.]

Sus-sex (sūs'iks) An Anglo-Saxon kingdom of southern England bordering on the English Channel. Founded in the fifth century A.D., it was captured by the kingdom of Wessex in 825.

Sussex spaniel (sūs'iks spăn'yəl) n. A strong, stocky dog of a breed developed in Sussex, a county of southeast England, having long ears, short legs, and a silky golden-brown coat.

Suss-kind (sūs'kīnd'), David. 1920-1987. American talk-show host and television producer. He appeared on The David Susskind Show, a popular late-night program.

sus-tain (sə-stān') v. tr. sus-tained, sus-tain-ing, sus-tains. 1. To keep in existence; maintain. 2. To supply with necessities or nourishment; provide for. 3. To support from below; keep from falling or sinking; prop. 4. To support the spirits, vitality, or resolution of; encourage. 5. To bear up under; withstand: can't sustain the blistering heat. 6. To experience or suffer: sustained a fatal injury. See Synonyms at experience. 7. To affirm the validity of: The judge has sustained the prosecutor's objection. 8. To prove or corroborate; confirm. 9. To keep up (a joke or an assumed role, for example) competently. [Middle English sustenēn, from Old French sustenir, from Latin sustinēre: sub-, from below; see SUB- + ten- ēre, to hold; see ten- in Appendix.] —sus-tain'a-bil'i-ty n. —sus-tain'a-ble adj. —sus-tain'er n. —sus-tain'ment n.

sus-tained yield (sə-stānd' yēld) n. 1. The continuing yield of a biological resource, such as timber from a forest, by controlled periodic harvesting. 2. The quantity of a resource harvested in this manner.

sus-tain-ing pedal (sə-stā'nīng pēd'l) n. Music. The right pedal of a piano, which stops the action of the dampers and allows the strings to vibrate freely. Also called loud pedal, reverberation pedal.

sustaining program (sə-stā'nīng prō'grām') n. A radio or television program that is supported by the station or network on which it appears and that has no commercial announcements.

sus-te-nance (sūs'tə-nəns) n. 1. a. The act of sustaining. b. The condition of being sustained. 2. The supporting of life or health; maintenance: “to deliver in every morning six beeves, forty sheep, and other victuals for my sustenance” (Jonathan Swift). 3. Something, especially food, that sustains life or health. 4. Means of livelihood. See Synonyms at livelihood. [Middle English, from Old French, from sustenir, to sustain. See SUSTAIN.]

sus-ten-tac-u-lar (sūs'tən-tāk'yə-lər, -tēn-) adj. Anatomy. Serving to support: sustentacular muscle fibers. [From Late Latin sustentāculum, support, from Latin sustentāre, to support, frequentative of sustinēre, to sustain. See SUSTAIN.]

sustentacular cell (sūs'tən-tāk'yə-lər sēl) n. One of the supporting cells of an epithelial membrane or tissue.

sus-ten-ta-tion (sūs'tən-tā'shən, -tēn-) n. 1. Something that sustains; a support. 2. Sustenance. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin sustentātiō, sustentātiōn-, from sustentātus, past participle of sustentāre, to support. See SUSTENTACULAR.] —sus'ten-ta'tive (-tā'tiv) adj.

Su-su (sōō'sōō) n. pl. Susu or Su-sus. 1. A member of a West African people inhabiting parts of Guinea and Sierra Leone. 2. The Mande language of the Susu.

su-sur-ra-tion (sōō'sə-rā'shən) also su-sur-rus (sōō-sūr'əs, -sūr'-) n. A soft, whispering or rustling sound; a murmur. [Middle English susurracioun, from Late Latin susurrātiō, susurrātiōn-, from Latin susurrātus, past participle of susurrāre, to whisper, from susurrus, whisper, ultimately of imitative origin.] —su-sur'rant (sōō-sūr'ənt, -sūr'-), su-sur'rous (-sūr'əs, -sūr'-) adj.

Suth-er-land (sūth'ər-lənd), Earl Wilbur, Jr. 1915-1974. American physiologist. He won a 1971 Nobel Prize for research on the function of hormones.

Suth-er-land (sūth'ər-lənd), George. 1862-1942. British-born American jurist and politician. He served as a U.S. representative (1901-1903) and senator (1905-1917) from Utah and was an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1922-1938).

Suth·er·land (sŭth'ər-lənd), Joan. Born 1926. Australian operatic soprano noted especially for her interpretations of Gaetano Donizetti's Lucia di Lammermoor and Vincenzo Bellini's Norma.

Sutherland Falls (sŭth'ər-lənd fôlz) A waterfall, 581 m (1,904 ft) high, of southwest South Island, New Zealand.

Sut·lej (sŭt'lĕj') A river, about 1,448 km (900 mi) long, flowing from southwest Xizang (Tibet) through northern India and eastern Pakistan, where it is joined by the Chenab River. It is one of the five rivers of the Punjab.

sut·ler (sŭt'lər) n. An army camp follower who peddled provisions to the soldiers. [Obsolete Dutch soeteler, from Low German sudeler, suteler, from German sudeln, to dirty, from Middle High German sudelen.]

su·tra (sōō'trə) n. 1. Hinduism. Any of various aphoristic doctrinal summaries produced for memorization generally between 500 and 200 B.C. and later incorporated into Hindu literature. 2. Also sut·ta (sōōt'ə). Buddhism. A scriptural narrative, especially a text traditionally regarded as a discourse of the Buddha. [Sanskrit sūtram, thread, sutra. See syū- in Appendix.]

sut·tee also sa·ti (sŭ-tē', sŭt'ē') n. 1. The now illegal act or practice of a Hindu widow's cremating herself on her husband's funeral pyre in order to fulfill her true role as wife. 2. pl. sut·tees also sa·tis. A widow who commits such an act. [Sanskrit satī, virtuous woman, suttee, feminine of sant-, sat-, true, virtuous. See es- in Appendix.]

Sut·ter (sŭt'ər), John Augustus. 1803-1880. American pioneer, raised in Switzerland. The discovery of gold on his land led to the California gold rush (1848-1849).

Sutt·ner (zōōt'nər, sōōt'-), Bertha von. 1843-1914. Austrian pacifist who wrote the novel Lay Down Your Arms (1889). She was the first woman to receive the Nobel Peace Prize (1905).

su·ture (sōō'chər) n. 1. a. The process of joining two surfaces or edges together along a line by or as if by sewing. b. The material, such as thread, gut, or wire, that is used in this procedure. c. The line so formed. 2. Medicine. a. The fine thread or other material used surgically to close a wound or join tissues. b. The surgical method used to close a wound or join tissues. 3. Anatomy. The line of junction or an immovable joint between two bones, especially of the skull.

4. Biology. A seamlike joint or line of articulation, such as the line of dehiscence in a dry fruit or the spiral seam marking the junction of whorls of a gastropod shell. — v. tr. su·tured, su·tur·ing, su·tures. To join by means of sutures or a suture. [Middle English, from Latin sūtūra, from sūtus, past participle of suere, to sew. See syū- in Appendix.] —su'tur·al adj. —su'tur·al·ly adv.

Su·va (sōō'və, -və) The capital of Fiji, on the southeast coast of Viti Levu. It is a commercial and shipping center. Population, 74,000.

Su·vo·rov (sōō-vôr'əf), Count Aleksandr Vasilevich. 1729-1800. Russian field marshal who became famous for his successful campaigns in the Russo-Turkish War (1787-1792).

Su·wan·nee (sə-wä'nē) A river, about 386 km (240 mi) long, flowing from southeast Georgia across northern Florida to the Gulf of Mexico.

Su·won (sōō'wŭn') A city of northwest South Korea south of Seoul. It is a textile-manufacturing center. Population, 374,000.

su·ze·rain (sōō'zər-ən, -zə-rān') n. 1. A nation that controls another nation in international affairs but allows it domestic sovereignty. 2. A feudal lord to whom fealty was due. [French, from Old French suserain : probably sus, up (from Latin sūsum, sūsum, upward, from subsvorsum*, turned upward : subs-, sub-, from under; see sub- + vorsum, neuter of vorsus variant of versus, past participle of vertere, to turn); see VERSUS + souverain, sovereign; see SOVEREIGN.] —su'ze·rain adj.

su·ze·rain·ty (sōō'zər-ən-tē, -zə-rān'tē) n. pl. su·ze·rain·ties. The power or domain of a suzerain.

Su·zhou (sōō'jō') also Soo·chow (-chou', -jō') A city of eastern China west-northwest of Shanghai. Probably founded before the fifth century B.C., the old walled city was noted for its pagodas and silk manufacturing. Population, 695,500.

Su·zu·ki (sōō-zōō'kē), Zenko. Born 1911. Japanese politician who served as prime minister from 1980 to 1982.

SV40 (ēs'vē-fôr'tē) n. A virus that causes cancers in monkeys and that is used widely in genetic and medical research. [s(imian) v(irus) 40.]

Sval·bard (sväl'bär') A Norwegian archipelago comprising Spitsbergen and other islands in the Arctic Ocean north of the mainland. The islands are rich in mineral resources.

svc abbr. Service.

Sved·berg (svəd'bærg, -bër'ē), The. In full Theodor Svedberg. 1884-1971. Swedish chemist. He won a 1926 Nobel Prize for his work on disperse systems.

svelte (svělt) adj. svelt·er, svelt·est. Slender or graceful in figure or outline; slim. [French, from Italian svelto, from past participle of svellere, to stretch out, from Vulgar Latin exvellere*, from Latin ēvellere : ē, ex-, ex- + vellere, to pull.]

—svelte'ly adv. —svelte'ness n.

Sven·ga·li (svĕn-gä'lē, sfĕn-) n. pl. Sven·ga·lis. A person who, with evil intent, tries to persuade another to do what is desired: “a crafty Svengali who lures talented people with grand promises yet gives them little lasting operational authority” (Chris Welles). [After Svengali, the hypnotist villain in the novel Trilby by George du Maurier.]

Sverd·lovsk (sfěrd-lôfsk', svyïrd-) A city of west-central Russia in the eastern foothills of the Ural Mountains. Nicholas II and his family may have been executed here (1918) after the Russian Revolution. Population, 1,300,000.

Sver·drup (sfěr'drəp, svěr'-, svăr'drööp), Otto Neumann. 1855-1930. Norwegian explorer who led many expeditions to the Arctic and observed a number of previously unknown islands.

Sver·drup Islands (sfěr'drəp ī'lændz, svěr'-) A group of islands of the northern Northwest Territories, Canada, in the Arctic Ocean west of Ellesmere Island.

svgs. abbr. Savings.

sw abbr. Short wave.

SW abbr. 1. Southwest. 2. Southwestern.

sw. abbr. Switch.

Sw. abbr. Swedish.

swab also swob (swöb) n. 1. a. A small piece of absorbent material attached to the end of a stick or wire and used for cleansing or applying medicine. b. A specimen of mucus or other material removed with a swab. 2. A sponge or patch of absorbent material used to clean the bore of a firearm or cannon. 3. A mop used for cleaning floors or decks. 4. a. One who uses such a mop, especially on a ship. b. Slang. A sailor. Also called swabbie 5. A lout. — v. tr. swabbed also swobbed, swab·bing also swob·bing, swabs also swobs. 1. To use a swab on. 2. To clean with a swab. [Back-formation from swabber, mop for a ship's deck (from obsolete Dutch zwabber*, from zwabben, to mop), or from obsolete Dutch swabbe, mop (from Middle Dutch).]

swab·bie also swab·by (swöb'ē) n. pl. swab·bies. Slang. See swab (n., sense 4).

Swa·bi·a (swā'bē-ə) A historical region of southwest Germany that originally included parts of present-day France and Switzerland. It was divided into small principalities and fiefdoms after 1268, but its prosperous towns often banded together in defensive leagues, most notably the Swabian League of 1488 to 1534. — Swa'bi·an adj. & n.

swad·dle (swöd'l) v. tr. swad·dled, swad·dling, swad·dles. 1. To wrap or bind in bandages; swathe. 2. To wrap (a baby) in swaddling clothes. 3. To restrain or restrict. — n. A band or cloth used for swaddling. [Middle English swadlen, probably back-formation from swadling (band), swaddling (cloth), or swathelbonde both from swathel-, probably frequentative of Old English swathian, to swathe.]

swad·dling clothes (swöd'līng klōz) pl.n. 1. Strips of cloth wrapped around a newborn infant to hold its legs and arms still. 2. Restrictions imposed on the immature.

swag (swäg) n. 1. a. An ornamental drapery or curtain draped in a curve between two points. b. An ornamental festoon of flowers or fruit. c. A carving or plaster molding of such an ornament. 2. Slang. Stolen property; loot.

3. Australian. The pack or bundle containing the personal belongings of a swagman. 4. Slang. Herbal tea in a plastic sandwich bag sold as marijuana to an unsuspecting customer. — v. intr. swagged, swag-ging, swags. 1. Chiefly British. To lurch or sway. 2. Australian. To travel about with a pack or swag. [Probably of Scandinavian origin.]

swage (swāj) n. 1. A tool used in bending or shaping cold metal. 2. A stamp or die for marking or shaping metal with a hammer. 3. A swage block. — v. tr. swaged, swag-ing, swag-es. To bend or shape by or as if by using a swage. [Middle English, ornamental border, from Old French souage.]

swage block (swāj blök) n. A metal block with holes or grooves for shaping metal objects.

swag-ger (swäg'ər) v. swag-gered, swag-ger-ing, swag-gers. — v. intr. 1. To walk or conduct oneself with an insolent or arrogant air; strut. See Synonyms at strut. 2. To brag; boast. — v. tr. To browbeat or bully (someone). — n. 1. A swaggering movement or gait. 2. Boastful or conceited expression; braggadocio. [Probably frequentative of SWAG.] — swag'ger-er n. — swag'ger-ing-ly adv.

swagger stick (swäg'ər stīk) n. A short metal-tipped cane carried especially by officers in the armed forces.

swag-man (swäg'män') n. Australian. A man who seeks casual work while traveling about carrying his swag.

Swa-hi-li (swä-hē'lē) n. pl. Swahili or Swa-hi-lis. 1. A member of a predominantly Muslim people inhabiting the coast and islands of eastern Africa from Somalia to Mozambique. 2. The Bantu language of the Swahili that is the official language of Tanzania and is widely used as a lingua franca in eastern and east-central Africa. In this sense, also called Kiswahili [Swahili, from Arabic sawāḥilīy, belonging to the coasts : sawāḥil, pl. of sāḥil, coast + -īy, belonging to.] — Swa-hi-li-an adj.

swain (swān) n. 1. A country lad, especially a young shepherd. 2. A beau. [Middle English, young man, servant, from Old Norse sveinn. See s(w)e- in Appendix.]

Swain (swān), Clara A. 1834-1910. American medical missionary. After 1873 she practiced medicine in India and trained women in basic health care techniques. In 1874 she established India's first women's hospital.

Swain-son's hawk (swān'sənz hōk) n. A slender hawk (Buteo swainsoni) having long, pointed wings, found in the grasslands of the western United States. [After William Swainson (1789-1855), British naturalist.]

Swainson's thrush (swān'sənz thrūsh) n. See olive-backed thrush. [After William Swainson (1789-1855), British naturalist.]

swale (swāl) n. A low tract of land, especially when moist or marshy. [Perhaps from Middle English, shade, perhaps of Scandinavian origin; akin to Old Norse svaļr, cool.]

swal·low¹ (swŏl'ō) v. swal·lowed, swal·low·ing, swal·lows. — v. tr.

1. To cause (food or drink, for example) to pass through the mouth and throat into the stomach. 2. To put up with (something unpleasant): swallowed the insults and kept on working. 3. To refrain from expressing; suppress: swallow one's feelings. 4. To consume or destroy as if by ingestion; devour: a building that was swallowed up by fire. 5. Slang. To believe without question: swallowed the alibi. 6. To take back; retract: swallow one's words. — v. intr. To perform the act of swallowing. — n. 1. The act of swallowing. 2. An amount swallowed.

3. Nautical. The channel through which a rope runs in a block or a mooring chock. [Middle English swalowen, from Old English swelgan. See swel- in Appendix.] — swal'low·er n.

swal·low² (swŏl'ō) n. 1. Any of various small, graceful, swift-flying passerine birds of the family Hirundinidae, having long, pointed wings, a usually notched or forked tail, and a large mouth for catching flying insects and noted for their regular migrations in large numbers, often over long distances. 2. Any of various similar birds, such as a swift. [Middle English swalowe, from Old English swealwe.]

swal·low·tail (swŏl'ō-tāl') n. 1. a. The deeply forked tail of a swallow.

b. Something similar to the tail of a swallow. 2. Informal. A swallow-tailed coat.

3. Any of various colorful, widely distributed butterflies of the family Papilionidae, usually having an extension at the end of each hind wing that resembles the tails of certain swallows.

swal·low·tailed (swŏl'ō-tāld') adj. 1. Having a deeply forked tail. Used of various birds. 2. Resembling the tail of a swallow.

swallow-tailed coat (swŏl'ō-tāld' kōt) n. A man's black coat worn for formal daytime occasions and having a long rounded and split tail. Also called tail-coat swallow-tailed kite (swŏl'ō-tāld' kīt) n. A raptor (Elanoides forficatus) with bold black and white plumage and a deeply forked tail, found along the southeast and Gulf coasts of the United States and common in Florida.

swal·low·wort (swŏl'ō-wŭrt', -wōrt') n. 1. See celandine (n., sense 1).

2. Any of several vines of the genus Cynanchum, especially C. nigrum, native to Europe, having clusters of small brownish-purple flowers. [From the shape of its pod.]

swam (swām) v. Past tense of swim.

swa·mi (swā'mē) n. pl. swa·mis. 1. Hinduism. A religious teacher. 2. A mystic; a yogi. 3. Used as a form of address for such a person. [Hindi svāmī, master, swami, from Sanskrit svāmī, nominative sing. of svāmin-, being one's own master, possessing proprietary rights. See s(w)e- in Appendix.]

Swam-mer-dam (svä'mər-däm'), Jan. 1637-1680. Dutch naturalist known for his pioneering microscopic research. He was the first to describe red blood cells (1658).

swamp (swömp, swômp) n. 1. a. A seasonally flooded bottomland with more woody plants than a marsh and better drainage than a bog. b. A lowland region saturated with water. 2. A situation or place fraught with difficulties and imponderables: a corporate swamp; a financial swamp. — v. swamped, swamp-ing, swamps. — v. tr. 1. To drench in or cover with or as if with water. 2. To inundate or burden; overwhelm: She was swamped with work. 3. Nautical. To fill (a ship or boat) with water to the point of sinking it. — v. intr. To become full of water or sink. [Perhaps of Low German origin.]
—swamp/i-ness n. —swamp/y adj.

swamp boat (swömp bōt) n. Nautical. A flat-bottomed boat powered by an airplane propeller projecting above the stern and used in swamps or shallow waters. Also called airboat swamp-er (swömp'pər, swômp'-) n. 1. One who lives in or close to a swamp. 2. One who clears a swamp or forest. 3. a. A helper, as in a restaurant. b. A truck driver's assistant.

swamp fever (swömp fē'vər) n. 1. See malaria (n., sense 1). 2. A viral disease in horses marked by progressive anemia, a staggering gait, and fever. 3. See leptospirosis.

swamp-land (swömp'länd', swômp'-) n. Land of swampy consistency or having many swamps on it.

swamp pink (swömp pīŋk) n. An orchid (Arethusa bulbosa) of northeast North America having a solitary, usually rose-colored flower with a purple-spotted, yellow-crested lip. Also called arethusa, dragon's mouth.

swamp potato (swömp pə-tā'tō) n. Botany. Arrowhead.

swan (swön) n. 1. Any of various large aquatic birds of the family Anatidae chiefly of the genera Cygnus and Olor, having webbed feet, a long slender neck, and usually white plumage. 2. Swan. See Cygnus. — v. intr. swanned, swan-ning, swans. Chiefly British. To travel around from place to place: "Swanning around Europe nowadays, are we?" (Jeffrey Archer). [Middle English, from Old English. See swen- in Appendix.]

swan dive (swön dīv) n. Sports. A dive performed with the legs straight together, the back arched, and the arms stretched out from the sides.

swank (swängk) adj. swank-er, swank-est. 1. Imposingly fashionable or elegant; grand. See Synonyms at fashionable. 2. Ostentatious; pretentious. — n. 1. Smartness in style or bearing; elegance. 2. Swagger. — v. intr. swanked, swank·ing, swanks. To act in an ostentatious or pretentious way; swagger. See Synonyms at strut. [Perhaps akin to Middle High German swanken, to swing.]

swank·y (swäng'kē) adj. swank·i·er, swank·i·est. Swank. —swank'i·ly adv. —swank'i·ness n.

swan·ny (swön'ē) interj. Chiefly Southern U.S. Used to express surprise: Well, I swanny! [Probably alteration of dialectal Is' wan ye, I shall warrant ye.]

Swan River daisy (swön rīv'ər dā'zē) n. An Australian plant (Brachycome iberidifolia) of the composite family, cultivated for its showy blue, rose, or white flower heads. [After the Swan, a river of southwest Australia.]

swan's-down also swans-down (swönz'doun') n. 1. The soft down of a swan. 2. A soft woolen fabric used especially for baby clothes. 3. Flannelette.

Swan·sea (swän'zē, -sē) 1. A town of southeast Massachusetts, an industrial suburb of Fall River. Population, 15,411. 2. A borough of southern Wales west-northwest of Cardiff. It is an industrial port on Swansea Bay, an inlet of the Bristol Channel. Population, 188,500.

swan·skin (swön'skīn') n. 1. The skin of a swan with the feathers attached. 2. Any of several flannel or cotton fabrics with a soft nap.

Swan·son (swön'sən), Gloria. 1899-1983. American actress who appeared in numerous silent films and later made a heralded comeback in Sunset Boulevard (1950).

swan song (swön sōng) n. 1. A farewell or final appearance, action, or work. 2. The beautiful legendary song sung only once by a swan in its lifetime, as it is dying. [From the belief that the swan sings as it dies.]

swap also swop (swöp) Informal. v. swapped also swopped, swap·ping also swop·ping, swaps also swops. — v. intr. To trade one thing for another. — v. tr. To exchange (one thing) for another. — n. An exchange of one thing for another. [Middle English swappen, to strike, strike the hands together in closing a bargain.] —swap/per n.

swap meet (swöp mēt) n. An informal gathering for the barter or sale of used articles or handicrafts.

sward (swôrd) also swarth (swôrth) n. 1. Land covered with grassy turf. 2. A lawn or meadow. [Middle English, from Old English sweward, skin.]

sware (swâr) v. Archaic. A past tense of swear.

swarf (swôrf) n. Fine metallic filings or shavings removed by a cutting tool. [Of Scandinavian origin; akin to Old Norse svarf.]

swarm¹ (swôrm) n. 1. A large number of insects or other small organisms, especially when in motion. 2. A group of bees with a queen bee in migration to establish a new colony. See Synonyms at flock¹. 3. An aggregation of persons or animals, especially when in turmoil or moving in mass: A swarm of friends congratulated him. — v. swarmed, swarm·ing, swarms. — v. intr. 1. a. To move or emerge in a swarm. b. To leave a hive as a swarm. Used of bees. 2. To move or gather in large numbers. 3. To be overrun; teem: a riverbank swarming with insects. See Synonyms at teem¹. — v. tr. To fill with a crowd: sailors swarming the ship's deck. [Middle English, group of bees, from Old English swearm.] — swarm'er n.

swarm² (swôrm) v. swarmed, swarm·ing, swarms. — v. intr. To climb by gripping with the arms and legs. — v. tr. To climb (something) in this manner. [Origin unknown.]

swarm spore (swôrm spôr) n. See zoospore.

swart (swôrt) adj. Archaic. Swarthy. [Middle English swarte, from Old English sweart.]

swarth (swôth) n. Variant of sward.

swarth·y (swôr'thē) adj. swarth·i·er, swarth·i·est. Having a dark complexion or color. [Alteration of swarty, from SWART.] — swarth'i·ly adv. — swarth'i·ness n.

swash (swôsh, swôsh) n. 1. a. A splash of water or other liquid hitting a solid surface. b. The sound of such a splash. 2. a. A narrow channel through which tides flow. b. A bar over which waves wash freely. 3. a. Swagger or bluster. b. A swaggering or blustering person. — v. swashed, swash·ing, swash·es. — v. intr. 1. To strike, move, or wash with a splashing sound. 2. To swagger. — v. tr. 1. To splash (a liquid). 2. To splash a liquid against. [Probably imitative.]

swash·buck·ler (swôsh'bŭk'lər, swôsh'-) n. 1. A flamboyant swordsman or adventurer. 2. A sword-wielding ruffian or bully. 3. A dramatic or literary work dealing with a swashbuckler. [Probably from the striking of bucklers in fighting.] — swash'buck'ling adj.

swash letter (swôsh lēt'ər) n. Printing. An ornamental italic letter with elaborate, flowing flourishes and tails. [Origin unknown.]

swas·ti·ka (swôs'tī-kə) n. 1. The emblem of Nazi Germany, officially adopted in 1935. 2. An ancient cosmic or religious symbol formed by a Greek cross with the ends of the arms bent at right angles in either a clockwise or a counterclockwise direction. [Sanskrit svastikaḥ, sign of good luck, swastika, from svasti, well-being. See su- in Appendix.]

swat (swöt) v. tr. swat·ted, swat·ting, swats. To deal a sharp blow to; slap. — n. A sharp blow; a slap. [Alteration of SQUAT, to squash (obsolete and dialectal).]

swatch (swöch) n. A sample strip cut from a piece of material. [Origin unknown.]

swath (swöth, swôth) also swathe (swöth, swôth, swāth) n. 1. a. The width of a scythe stroke or a mowing-machine blade. b. A path of this width made in mowing. c. The mown grass or grain lying on such a path. 2. Something likened to a swath; a strip. — idiom. cut a swath. 1. To create a great stir, impression, or display: "He cut a bold and even sacrificial swath across American politics” (Gail Sheehy). 2. To extend in distinctive physical length and width: “the surprising 17th Arrondissement, which cuts a generous swath across northwest Paris” (Jean Rafferty). [Middle English swathe, from Old English swæth, track.]

swathe¹ (swōth, swôth, swāth) v. tr. swathed, swath-ing, swathes. 1. To wrap or bind with or as if with bandages. 2. To enfold or constrict. — n. A wrapping, binding, or bandage. [Middle English swathen, from Old English swathian.] —swath'er n.

swathe² (swōth, swôth, swāth) n. Variant of swath.

Swa·tow (swä'tou') See Shantou.

swat·ter (swöt'ər) n. 1. A fly swatter. 2. Baseball. A hard-hitting batter.

S wave (ēs' wāv) n. A secondary wave.

sway (swā) v. swayed, sway-ing, sways. — v. intr. 1. To swing back and forth or to and fro. See Synonyms at swing. 2. To incline or bend to one side; veer: She swayed and put out a hand to steady herself. 3. a. To incline toward change, as in opinion or feeling. b. To fluctuate, as in outlook. — v. tr. 1. To cause to swing back and forth or to and fro. 2. To cause to incline or bend to one side. 3. Nautical. To hoist (a mast or yard) into position. 4. a. To divert; deflect. b. To exert influence on or control over: His speech swayed the voters. 5. Archaic. a. To rule or govern. b. To wield, as a weapon or scepter. — n. 1. The act of moving from side to side with a swinging motion. 2. Power; influence. 3. Dominion or control. [Middle English sweien, probably of Scandinavian origin.] —sway'er n. —sway'ing-ly adv.

sway·back (swā'bāk') n. Excessive inward or downward curvature of the spine, especially in a horse. —sway'backed' adj.

sway bar (swā bär) n. See anti-sway bar.

Swayne (swān), Noah Haynes. 1804-1884. American jurist who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1862-1881).

Swaz. abbr. Swaziland.

Swa·zi (swä'zē) n. pl. Swazi or Swa·zis. 1. A member of a southeast African people of Swaziland and adjacent parts of South Africa. 2. The Nguni language of this people, closely related to Xhosa and Zulu.

Swa·zi·land (swä'zē-länd') Abbr. Swaz. A country of southeast Africa between South Africa and Mozambique. A British protectorate after 1903, it became independent in 1968. Mbabane is the capital and the largest city. Population, 585,000.

swbd or swbd. abbr. Switchboard.

SWbS abbr. Southwest by south.

SWbW abbr. Southwest by west.

Swe. abbr. Sweden; Swedish.

swear (swâr) v. swore (swôr, swörn), sworn (swôrn, swörn), swear-ing, swears. — v. intr. 1. To make a solemn declaration, invoking a deity or a sacred person or thing, in confirmation of and witness to the honesty or truth of such a declaration. 2. To make a solemn promise; vow. 3. To use profane oaths; curse. 4. Law. To give evidence or testimony under oath. — v. tr. 1. To declare or affirm solemnly by invoking a deity or a sacred person or thing. 2. To promise or pledge with a solemn oath; vow: He swore his oath of allegiance to the queen. See Synonyms at promise. 3. To utter or bind oneself to (an oath). 4. Law. To administer a legal oath to: All the witnesses have been sworn. 5. To say or affirm earnestly and with great conviction. —phrasal verbs. swear at. To use abusive, violent, or blasphemous language against; curse. swear by. 2. To have great reliance on or confidence in: He swears by his personal physician. 3. To have reliable knowledge of; be sure of: I think she said she was going to the library, but I couldn't swear by it. 4. To take an oath by: He swore by all the angels and saints of heaven. swear in. To administer a legal or official oath to: swear in a mayor. swear off. Informal. To pledge to renounce or give up: She has sworn off cigarettes. swear out. Law. To swear out (a warrant for arrest) by making a charge under oath. [Middle English sweren, from Old English swerian. See swer- in Appendix.] —swear'er n.

swear-word (swâr'wûrd') n. An obscene or blasphemous word.

sweat (swĕt) v. sweat-ed or sweat, sweat-ing, sweats. — v. intr. 1. To excrete perspiration through the pores in the skin; perspire. 2. To exude in droplets, as moisture from certain cheeses or sap from a tree. 3. To condense atmospheric moisture. 4. a. To release moisture, as hay in the swath. b. To ferment, as tobacco during curing. 5. Informal. a. To work long and hard. b. To suffer much, as for a misdeed. 6. Informal. To fret or worry. — v. tr. 1. To excrete (moisture) through a porous surface, such as the skin. 2. To gather and condense (moisture) on a surface. 3. To cause to perspire, as by drugs, heat, or strenuous exercise. 4. To make damp or wet with perspiration. 5. To cause to work excessively; overwork. 6. To overwork and underpay (employees). 7. Slang. a. To interrogate (someone) under duress: The secret police sweated the suspected spy for hours. b. To extract (information) from someone under duress: The police sweated the information out of the suspect. 8. Metallurgy. To join (metal parts) by interposing cold solder and then heating. 9. To steam (vegetables or other food). — n. 1. The colorless saline moisture excreted by the sweat glands; perspiration. 2. Condensation of moisture in the form of droplets on a surface. 3. a. The process of sweating. b. Slang. The condition of being sweated. 4. Strenuous, exhaustive labor; drudgery. 5. A run given to a horse as exercise before a race. 6. Informal. An anxious, fretful condition. 7. sweats. Informal. A sweat suit. —phrasal verb. sweat out. Slang. 1. To endure anxiously: sweat out an examination. 2. To await (something) anxiously: sweat out one's final grades. —idioms. no sweat. Slang. Easily done or handled. sweat blood. Informal. 2. To work diligently or strenuously. 3. To worry intensely. sweat bullets.

Slang. To sweat profusely. sweat of (one's) brow. Hard work: “keep what they produced by the sweat of their brow” (Mario Puzo). [Middle English sweten, from Old English swætan. See sweid- in Appendix.]

sweat-band (swět'bänd') n. 1. A band of fabric or leather sewn inside the crown of a hat as protection against sweat. 2. A band of material tied around the forehead or wrist to absorb sweat.

sweat-box (swět'böks') n. 1. A box in which something, such as hides or fruit, is fermented by sweating. 2. Slang. A confined place where a person sweats, especially: a. An interrogation room. b. A prison cell used for special punishment.

sweat-er (swět'ər) n. 1. One that sweats, especially profusely. 2. A jacket or pullover made especially of knit, crocheted, or woven wool, cotton, or synthetic yarn. 3. Something, especially a sudorific, that induces sweating.

sweat gland (swět gländ) n. Any of the numerous small, tubular glands that are found nearly everywhere in the skin of human beings and that secrete perspiration externally through pores to help regulate body temperature.

sweat-house (swět'hous') n. Any of various permanent or portable structures typically heated by fire or by pouring water over hot stones and used by certain Native American peoples to induce sweating, as for medicinal, spiritual, or social purposes. Also called sweat lodge sweat-pants (swět'pānts') pl.n. Cotton jersey pants usually having a drawstring or elasticized waist and elasticized cuffs worn especially for exercising.

sweat-shirt (swět'shîrt') n. A usually long-sleeved, collarless, oversize pullover made traditionally of heavy cotton jersey that has a fleeced backing.

sweat-shop (swět'shöp') n. A shop or factory in which employees work long hours at low wages under poor conditions.

sweat suit (swět sōt) n. A two-piece outfit consisting of a sweatshirt and sweat pants, usually worn for exercise.

sweat-y (swět'ē) adj. sweat-i-er, sweat-i-est. 1. Covered with or smelling of sweat. 2. Causing sweat: a sweaty job. —sweat'i-ly adv. —sweat'i-ness n.

Swed. abbr. Sweden.

swede (swēd) n. See rutabaga. [From its introduction from Sweden.]

Swede (swēd) n. A native or inhabitant of Sweden. [Low German (from Middle Low German Swēde), or Dutch Zweed (from Middle Dutch Swēde).]

Swe-den (swēd'n) Abbr. Swe., Swed. A country of northern Europe on the eastern Scandinavian Peninsula. By the 17th century it was a major European power, controlling most of the Baltic coast. Sweden lost much of its territory in the Great Northern War (1700-1721) and acknowledged Norway's independence in 1905. Stockholm is the capital and the largest city. Population, 8,342,621.

Swe-den-borg (swēd'n-bôrg', sväd'n-bôr'ē), Emanuel. 1688-1772. Swedish scientist and theologian whose visions and writings inspired his followers to establish the Church of the New Jerusalem after his death.

—Swe'den·bor'gi-an adj. & n.

Swed-ish (swē'dīsh) adj. Abbr. Sw. Of or relating to Sweden, the Swedes, or their culture or language. — n. Abbr. Sw., Swe. The North Germanic language of Sweden and Finland.

Swedish massage (swē'dīsh mə-sāzh') n. A system of therapeutic massage and exercise for the muscles and joints, developed in Sweden in the 19th century.

Swedish turnip (swē'dīsh tûr'nĭp) n. See rutabaga.

Swee·linck or Swe·linck (swā'lĭngk, svā'-), Jan Pieterzoon. 1562-1621.

Dutch organist and composer whose works laid the foundations for the development of German baroque organ music.

sweep (swēp) v. swept (swĕpt), sweep-ing, sweeps. — v. tr. 1. To clean or clear, as of dirt, with or as if with a broom or brush: sweep a chimney. 2. To clear away with or as if with a broom or brush: swept snow from the steps. 3. To clear (a path or space) with or as if with a broom. 4. a. To search thoroughly: The counselors swept the dormitory during the fire drill. b. Electronics. To search for and remove (eavesdropping devices) from a place: swept the room for bugs. 5. To touch or brush lightly, as with a trailing garment: willow branches sweeping the ground. 6. To pass over or through a surface or medium with a continuous movement: He swept the sponge over the tile. The conductor swept her baton through the air. 7. To clear, drive, or convey with relentless force: The flood waters swept away everything in their path. 8. To wipe out at a single stroke. Often used with away: The incident in effect swept away all her dreams. 9. To remove or carry off with a swift brushing motion: swept the cards off the table; swept the child into his arms. 10. To move across or through swiftly or with great intensity: News of the lunar landing swept the country. 11. To pass quickly across, as when searching: His gaze swept the horizon. 12. To drag the bottom of (a body of water). 13. a. To win all the stages of (a game or contest): swept the World Series. b. To win overwhelmingly in: The opposition party swept the election. — v. intr. 1. To clean or clear a surface with or as if with a broom or brush. 2. Electronics. To search for and remove eavesdropping devices. 3. To move swiftly with strong, steady force: The wind swept over the plain. 4. To move swiftly in a lofty manner, as if in a trailing robe: She swept by in silence. 5. To trail, as a long garment. 6. To extend gracefully, especially in a long curve: The hills sweep down to the sea. 7. To extend in a wide range: Searchlights swept across the sky. — n. 1. A clearing out or removal with or as if with a broom or brush. 2. Electronics. The act or an instance of searching for and removing eavesdropping devices, as in a room. 3. a. A wide curving motion: a sweep of the arm. b. The range or scope encompassed by sweeping: the sweep of a lantern beam. See Synonyms at range. 4. A broad reach or extent: a sweep of green lawn. 5. A curve or contour: the sweep of her hair. 6. One who sweeps, especially a chimney sweep. 7. Often sweeps.

Sweepings. 8. a. The winning of all stages of a game or contest. b. An overwhelming victory or success. 9. Nautical. A long oar used to propel a boat.

10. A long pole attached to a pivot and used to raise or lower a bucket in a well.

11. sweeps. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). Informal. Sweepstakes.

12. a. sweeps. The period each fall, winter, and spring when television ratings are accrued and studied and advertising rates are reset. b. The national survey of local stations that is conducted to determine these ratings. 13. Electronics. The steady motion of an electron beam across a cathode-ray tube. —idiom. sweep (one) off (one's) feet. To cause an immediate and strongly positive response in (a person); impress deeply. [Middle English swepen, perhaps from swepe, past tense of swopen, to sweep along. See SWOOP.] —sweep'er n.

sweep-back (swēp'băk') n. The backward slant of the leading edge of an airfoil.

sweep-ing (swē'pīng) adj. 1. Having wide-ranging influence or effect: sweeping changes. 2. Moving in or as if in a wide curve: a sweeping gesture; a sweeping glance. 3. Indiscriminate; wholesale: sweeping generalizations. 4. Overwhelming; complete: a sweeping victory. — n. 1. The action of one that sweeps.

2. sweepings. Things swept up; refuse. —sweep'ing-ly adv.

sweep-stakes (swēp'stāks') pl.n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). 1. A lottery in which the participants' contributions form a fund that is awarded as a prize to one or several winners. 2. An event or a contest, especially a horserace, the result of which determines the winner of such a lottery. 3. The prize won in such a lottery.

sweet (swēt) adj. sweet-er, sweet-est. 1. Having the taste of sugar or a substance containing or resembling sugar, as honey or saccharin. 2. a. Containing or derived from sugar. b. Retaining some natural sugar; not dry: a sweet wine. 3. a. Pleasing to the senses; agreeable: the sweet song of the lark; a sweet face. b. Pleasing to the mind or feelings; gratifying: sweet revenge. 4. Having a pleasing disposition; lovable: a sweet child. 5. Kind; gracious: It was sweet of him to help out. 6. Fragrant; perfumed: a sweet scent. 7. Not saline or salted: sweet water; sweet butter. 8. Not spoiled, sour, or decaying; fresh: sweet milk. 9. Free of acid or acidity: sweet soil. 10. Low in sulfur content: sweet fuel oil. 11. Music. Of, relating to, or being a form of jazz characterized by adherence to a melodic line and to a time signature. — adv. In a sweet manner; sweetly. — n.

1. Sweet taste or quality; sweetness. 2. Something sweet to the taste. 3. sweets. a. Foods, such as candy, pastries, puddings, or preserves, that are high in sugar content. b. Informal. Sweet potatoes: candied sweets. 4. Chiefly British. a. A sweet dish, such as pudding, served as dessert. b. A sweetmeat or confection. 5. A dear or beloved person. 6. Something pleasing to the mind or feelings. —idiom. sweet on. Informal. Enamored of; in love with. [Middle English swete, from Old English swēte. See swād- in Appendix.] —sweet'ly adv.

—sweet'ness n.

Sweet (swēt), Henry. 1845-1912. British phonetician and philologist. A founder of modern phonetics, he is known especially for his History of English Sounds (1874).

sweet acacia (swēt ə-kā'shə) n. A thorny shrub (Acacia farnesiana) of the pea family, native to tropical and subtropical America, having bipinnately compound leaves, small flower heads, and fragrant flowers that yield an essential oil used in perfumery.

sweet alyssum (swēt ə-lis'əm) n. A widely cultivated annual or perennial herb (Lobularia maritima) of the mustard family, native to the Mediterranean region, having racemes of long-lasting flowers varying in size and color. Also called alyssum sweet-and-sour (swēt'n-sour') adj. Flavored with a sauce containing sugar and vinegar: sweet-and-sour pork.

sweet basil (swēt bāz'əl) n. See basil (n., sense 1).

sweet bay (swēt bā) n. 1. A shrub or small tree (Magnolia virginiana) of the southeast United States and eastern coastal areas north to Massachusetts, having large fragrant white flowers and red fruit. 2. See laurel (n., sense 1).

sweet birch (swēt bûrch) n. 1. An eastern North American birch (Betula lenta) having aromatic stems with brownish bark that does not peel into papery flakes. 2. The wood of this tree. Also called black birch, cherry birch.

sweet-bread (swēt'brəd') n. The thymus gland or pancreas of a young animal, especially a calf or lamb, used for food.

sweet-bri-er also sweet-bri-ar (swēt'brī'ər) n. A Eurasian rose (Rosa eglantaria) having prickly stems, fragrant leaves, bright pink flowers, and scarlet hips. Also called eglantine sweet cherry (swēt chěr'ē) n. 1. A large, widely cultivated deciduous tree (Prunus avium) of the rose family, native to Eurasia, having red-brown birchlike bark, white flowers, and sweet edible fruit. 2. The fruit of the sweet cherry.

sweet cicely (swēt sīs'ə-lē) n. 1. Any of various perennial New World herbs of the genus Osmorhiza of the parsley family, having fleshy aromatic roots, compound leaves, and clusters of small white flowers. 2. An aromatic European perennial herb (Myrrhis odorata) having compound leaves and compound umbels of small white flowers. In this sense, also called myrrh [Middle English seseli, from Latin seselis, from Greek.]

sweet cider (swēt sī'dər) n. Unfermented cider.

sweet clover (swēt klō'vər) n. See melilot.

sweet corn (swēt kôrn) n. A variety of corn (Zea mays var. rugosa), the common table and canning corn, having kernels that are sweet when young. Also called sugar corn sweet-en (swēt'n) v. sweet-ened, sweet-en-ing, sweet-ens. — v. tr.

1. To make sweet or sweeter by adding sugar, honey, saccharin, or another sweet substance. 2. To make more pleasant or agreeable. 3. To soften or soothe: sweetened her mood. 4. To make bearable; alleviate. 5. Informal. a. To increase the value of (collateral for a loan) by adding more securities. b. To enhance the attractiveness or financial desirability of (an offer, for example). 6. Games. To increase the value of (an unwon poker pot) by adding stakes before reopening. 7. To make less acidic: sweeten the stomach with antacids. 8. To remove sulfur compounds from (fuel oil or gas). — v. intr. To become sweet.

sweet-en-er (swēt'n-ər) n. 1. Something that sweetens. 2. Informal. Something added as a further inducement or incentive.

sweet-en-ing (swēt'n-ĭng) n. 1. The act or process of making sweet. 2. Something that sweetens; a sweetener.

sweet fennel (swēt fĕn'əl) n. See finocchio.

sweet fern (swēt fûrn) n. An aromatic deciduous shrub (Comptonia peregrina) of eastern North America, having narrow, deeply lobed, fernlike leaves and minute flowers grouped in catkinlike heads.

sweet flag (swēt flăg) n. A hardy perennial herb (Acorus calamus) of the Northern Hemisphere, growing in marshy places and having grasslike leaves, minute greenish flowers borne on a thick spadix, and aromatic rhizomes. Also called calamus sweet gale (swēt gāl) n. A deciduous swamp shrub (Myrica gale) of northern Eurasia and North America, having aromatic resinous leaves used in medicine and tiny yellowish fruits clustered in catkins. Also called meadow fern sweet gum (swēt gŭm) n. 1. Any of several trees of the genus Liquidambar, especially L. styraciflua of North America and Central America, having palmately lobed leaves, prickly, ball-like, woody fruit clusters, and wood used to make furniture. 2. The aromatic resin obtained from this tree.

sweet-heart (swēt'härt') n. 1. One who is loved. 2. Used as a familiar term of endearment. 3. Informal. a. A person regarded as generous or lovable. b. Something cherished for its excellent qualities. — adj. Involving privileged treatment of a favored party; illegally or unethically favorable: “another land grab, another sweetheart deal based on political influence” (Village Voice).

sweet-ie (swē'tē) n. Informal. Sweetheart; dear.

sweet-ing (swē'tĭng) n. 1. A sweet apple. 2. Archaic. Sweetheart.

sweet marjoram (swēt măr'jər-əm) n. See marjoram.

sweet-meat (swēt'mēt') n. A sweet delicacy, such as a piece of candy or crystallized fruit.

sweet pea (swēt pē) n. An annual climbing herb (Lathyrus odoratus) of the pea family, native to Italy, cultivated for its variously colored, fragrant flowers.

sweet pepper (swēt pĕp'ər) n. The bell pepper.

sweet pepperbush (swēt pĕp'ər-bōōsh') n. A deciduous shrub (Clethra alnifolia) growing in moist ground from Maine to Florida and having long racemes of small, fragrant white flowers.

sweet potato (swēt pə-tā'tō) n. 1. a. A tropical American vine (Ipomoea batatas) having rose-violet or pale pink, funnel-shaped flowers, and cultivated for its fleshy, tuberous orange-colored root. b. The root of this vine, eaten cooked as a vegetable. Regional. Also called yam 2. Informal. An ocarina.

sweet-shop (swēt'shōp') n. Chiefly British. A candy store.

sweet shrub (swēt shrüb) n. Any of several North American deciduous shrubs of the genus Calycanthus, having opposite leaves, fragrant reddish-brown flowers with numerous petals and sepals, and many dry fruits enclosed in a cup.

sweet-sop (swēt'sōp') n. 1. A tropical American evergreen tree (Annona squamosa) widely cultivated in the lowlands for its yellowish-green fruit with sweet, edible pulp. 2. The fruit of this tree. Also called sugar apple sweet sorghum (swēt sōr'gəm) n. See sorgo.

sweet spot (swēt spōt) n. Sports. The place on a racket, club, bat, paddle, or ball where hits are most effective.

sweet sultan (swēt sŭl'tən) n. An Old World annual herb, (Centaurea moschata) in the composite family, widely cultivated for its showy, fragrant, varicolored flower heads.

sweet talk (swēt tōk) n. Informal. Flattery; cajolery.

sweet-talk (swēt'tōk') v. sweet-talked, sweet-talk-ing, sweet-talks.

Informal. — v. tr. To coax or cajole with flattery. — v. intr. To use flattery.

sweet tooth (swēt tōōth) n. Informal. A fondness or craving for sweets.

sweet William (swēt wīl'yəm) n. An annual, biennial, or perennial herb (Dianthus barbatus), native to Eurasia, widely cultivated as an ornamental for its flat-topped dense clusters of varicolored flowers.

sweet woodruff (swēt wōōd'rəf) n. See woodruff (n., sense 1).

Swe-linck (swā'līngk, svā'-), Jan Pieterzoon. See Jan Pieterzoon Sweelinck.

swell (swĕl) v. swelled, swelled or swol-len (swō'lən), swell-ing, swells.

— v. intr. 1. To increase in size or volume as a result of internal pressure; expand. 2. a. To increase in force, size, number, or degree: Membership in the club swelled. b. To grow in loudness or intensity: "The din in front swelled to a tremendous chorus" (Stephen Crane). 3. To bulge out, as a sail. 4. a. To rise or extend above the surrounding level, as clouds. b. To rise in swells, as the sea. 5. a. To be or become filled or puffed up, as with pride, arrogance, or anger. b. To rise from within: Rage swelled within me. — v. tr. 1. To cause to increase in volume, size, number, degree, or intensity: The governor's full public disclosure only swelled the chorus of protests. 2. To fill with emotion. — n. 1. a. The act or process of swelling. b. The condition of being swollen. 2. A swollen part; a bulge or protuberance. 3. A long wave on water that moves continuously without breaking. 4. A rise in the land; a rounded elevation. 5. Informal. One who is fashionably dressed or socially prominent: society swells. 6. Music. a. A crescendo followed by a gradual diminuendo. b. The sign indicating such a crescendo. c. A device on an instrument, such as an organ or a harpsichord, for regulating volume. — adj. swell-er, swell-est. Informal. 1. Fashionably elegant; stylish. 2. Excellent; wonderful: had a swell time. [Middle English swellen, from Old English swellan.] swell box (swĕl böks) n. Music. A chamber housing one or more sets of organ pipes and having shutters that can be opened or shut to regulate the volume.

swelled head (swĕld hĕd) n. Informal. An unduly high opinion of oneself.

swell-fish (swĕl'fish') n. pl. swellfish or swell-fish-es. See puffer.

swell-head (swĕl'hĕd') n. Informal. A person regarded as arrogant or conceited. — swell/head'ed adj. — swell/head'ed-ness n.

swelling (swĕl'ing) n. 1. The state of being swollen. 2. Something swollen, especially an abnormally swollen body part or area.

swel-ter (swĕl'tər) v. swel-tered, swel-ter-ing, swel-ters. — v. intr. To suffer from oppressive heat. — v. tr. 1. To affect with oppressive heat.

2. Archaic. To exude (venom, for example). — n. A condition of oppressive heat. [Middle English swelteren, frequentative of swelten, to faint from heat, from Old English sweltan, to perish.]

swel-ter-ing (swĕl'tər-ing) adj. 1. Oppressively hot and humid; sultry.

2. Suffering from oppressive heat. — swel/ter-ing-ly adv.

swel-try (swĕl'trĕ) adj. swel-tri-er, swel-tri-est. Sweltering.

swept (swĕpt) v. Past tense and past participle of sweep.

swept-back (swĕpt'băk') adj. 1. Angled rearward from the points of attachment. Used especially of aircraft wings. 2. Having wings of this type. Used of an aircraft.

swept-wing (swĕpt'wĭng') adj. Having sweptback wings. Used of an aircraft. — n. A sweptback wing.

swerve (swŭrv) v. tr. intr. swerved, swerv-ing, swerves. To turn aside or be turned aside from a straight course. — n. The act of swerving. [Middle English swerven, from Old English sweorfan, to rub, scour.]

SYNONYMS: swerve, depart, deviate, digress, diverge, stray, veer. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to turn away from a straight or prescribed course”: eyes that never once swerved from her face; won't depart from family traditions; deviated from their original plan; digressing from the principal topic; opinions that diverged; straying from the truth; veered the conversation away from politics.

SWG abbr. Standard wire gauge.

swift (swift) adj. swift-er, swift-est. 1. Moving or capable of moving with great speed; fast. See Synonyms at fast¹. 2. Coming, occurring, or accomplished quickly; instant: a swift retort. 3. Quick to act or react; prompt: swift to take steps. — adv. Swiftly. Often used in combination: swift-running. — n. 1. a. A cylinder on a carding machine. b. A reel used to hold yarn as it is being wound off. 2. Any of various small, dark, insect-eating birds of the family Apodidae, related to the hummingbirds and noted for their long, strong wings and swift flight. 3. Any of various small, fast-moving North American lizards of the genera Sceloporus and Uta. [Middle English, from Old English.] —swift/ly adv. —swift/ness n.

Swift (swift), Gustavus Franklin. 1839-1903. American meatpacker who was the first to use refrigerated railroad cars (1877).

Swift (swift), Jonathan. 1667-1745. Irish-born English writer known for his satirical works, including Gulliver's Travels (1726) and A Modest Proposal (1729).

swig (swig) Informal. n. A deep draft, especially of liquor; a gulp. — v. tr. intr. swigged, swig-ging, swigs. To drink (liquid) or engage in drinking liquid in great gulps. [Origin unknown.] —swig/ger n.

swill (swil) v. swilled, swill-ing, swills. — v. tr. 1. To drink greedily or grossly: “Unshaven horsemen swill the great wines of the Chateaux” (W.H. Auden). 2. To flood with water, as for washing. 3. To feed (animals) with swill. — v. intr. To drink or eat greedily or to excess. — n. 1. A mixture of liquid and solid food, such as table scraps, fed to animals, especially pigs; slop. 2. Kitchen waste; garbage. 3. A deep draft of liquor. 4. Nonsense; rubbish. [Middle English swilian, to wash out, from Old English swilian. See swel- in Appendix.] —swill'er n.

swim (swim) v. swam (swām), swum (swūm), swim-ming, swims. — v. intr. 1. To move through water by means of the limbs, fins, or tail. 2. To move as though gliding through water. 3. To float on water or another liquid. 4. a. To be covered or flooded with or as if with a liquid: chicken swimming in gravy. b. To possess a superfluity; abound: After winning the lottery, she was swimming in money. 5. To experience a floating or giddy sensation; be dizzy: “his brain still swimming with the effects of the last night's champagne” (Robert Smith Surtees). 6. To appear to spin or reel lazily: The room swam before my eyes. — v. tr. 1. To move through or across (a body of water) by swimming: She swam the channel. 2. To execute (a particular stroke) in swimming. 3. To cause to swim or float. — n. 1. a. The act of swimming. b. A period of time spent swimming. 2. A gliding motion. 3. A state of dizziness. 4. An area, as of a river, abounding in fish. — adj. Of, relating to, or used for swimming: a swim mask. —idioms. in the swim. Active in the general current of affairs. swim against the stream. To move counter to a prevailing trend. [Middle English swimmen, from Old English swimman.] —swim'ma·ble adj. —swim'mer n.

swim bladder (swĭm blăd'ər) n. See air bladder (n., sense 1).

swim·mer·et (swĭm'ə-rĕt', swĭm'ə-rĕt') n. One of the paired abdominal appendages of certain aquatic crustaceans, such as shrimp, lobsters, and isopods, that function primarily for carrying the eggs in females and are usually adapted for swimming. Also called pleopod swim·mer's itch (swĭm'ərz ɪch) n. An itching inflammation of the skin caused by parasitic larval forms of certain schistosomes that penetrate into the skin, occurring after bathing in infested fresh or salt water.

swim·ming (swĭm'ɪŋ) n. The act, sport, or technique of one that swims. — adj. 1. Relating to or used in swimming. 2. That swims: swimming insects.

swim·ming·ly (swĭm'ɪŋ-lĕ) adv. With great ease and success: Things are going swimmingly.

swimming pool (swĭm'ɪŋ pōol) n. A structure, often a concrete-lined excavation of rectangular shape, that is filled with water and used for swimming.

swim·suit (swĭm'sōot') n. A garment worn while swimming. Also called bathing suit swim·wear (swĭm'wâr') n. Clothing designed to be worn for swimming or with swimsuits.

Swin·burne (swĭn'bûrn'), Algernon Charles. 1837-1909. British poet and critic who wrote musical, often erotic verse in which he attacked the conventions of Victorian morality.

swin·dle (swĭn'dl) v. swin·dled, swin·dling, swin·dles. — v. tr. 1. To cheat or defraud of money or property. 2. To obtain by fraudulent means: swindled money from the company. — v. intr. To practice fraud as a means of obtaining money or property. — n. The act or an instance of swindling. [Back-formation from swindler, one who swindles, from German Schwindler, giddy person, cheat, from schwindeln, to be dizzy, swindle, from Middle High German, from Old High German swintilōn, frequentative of swintan, to languish.]

—swin'dler n.

Swin·don (swĭn'dən) A municipal borough of south-central England east-northeast of Bristol. It has an important locomotive industry. Population, 151,600.

swine (swĭn) n. pl. swine. 1. Any of various omnivorous, even-toed ungulates of the family Suidae, including pigs, hogs, and boars, having a stout body with thick skin, a short neck, and a movable snout. 2. A person regarded as brutish or contemptible. [Middle English, from Old English swīn. See sū- in Appendix.]

swine flu (swĭn flō) n. A highly contagious form of human influenza caused by a filterable virus identical or related to a virus formerly isolated from infected swine.

swine-herd (swīn'hûrd') n. One who tends swine.

swine-pox (swīn'pōks') n. An acute infectious disease of domesticated swine caused by a virus and characterized by skin lesions.

swing (swĭng) v. swung (swŭng), swing-ing, swings. — v. intr. 1. To move back and forth suspended or as if suspended from above. 2. To hit at something with a sweeping motion of the arm: swung at the ball. 3. To move laterally or in a curve: The car swung over to the curb. 4. To turn in place on or as if on a hinge or pivot. 5. To move along with an easy, swaying gait: swinging down the road. 6. To propel oneself from one place or position to another by grasping a fixed support: swinging through the trees. 7. To ride on a swing. 8. To shift from one attitude, interest, condition, or emotion to another; vacillate. 9. Slang. To be put to death by hanging. 10. Music. a. To have a subtle, intuitively felt rhythm or sense of rhythm. b. To play with a subtle, intuitively felt sense of rhythm. 11. Slang. a. To be lively, trendy, and exciting. b. To engage freely in promiscuous sex. c. To exchange sex partners. Used especially of married couples. — v. tr. 1. To cause to move back and forth, as on a swing. 2. To cause to move in a broad arc or curve: swing a bat; swung the car over. 3. a. To cause to move with a sweeping motion: swinging his arms. b. To lift and convey with a sweeping motion: swung the cargo onto the deck. 4. To suspend so as to sway or turn freely: swung a hammock between two trees. 5. a. To suspend on hinges: swing a shutter. b. To cause to turn on hinges: swung the door shut. 6. To cause to shift from one attitude, position, opinion, or condition to another. 7. Informal. a. To manage or arrange successfully: swing a deal. b. To bring around to the desired result: swing an election. 8. Music. To play (music) with a subtle, intuitively felt sense of rhythm. — n. 1. The act or an instance of swinging; movement back and forth or in one particular direction. 2. The sweep or scope of something that swings: The pendulum's swing is 12 inches. 3. A blow or stroke executed with a sweeping motion of the arm. 4. The manner in which one swings something, such as a bat or golf club. 5. A shift from one attitude, position, or condition to another: a swing to conservatism. 6. Freedom of action: The children have free swing in deciding what color to paint their room. 7. a. A swaying, graceful motion: has a swing to her walk. b. A sweep back and forth: the swing of a bird across the sky. 8. A course or tour that returns to the starting point: a swing across the state while campaigning. 9. A seat suspended from above, as by ropes, on which one can ride back and forth for recreation. 10. The normal rhythm of life or pace of activities: back in the swing. 11. A steady, vigorous rhythm or movement, as in verse. 12. A regular movement up or down, as in stock prices. 13. Music. a. A type of popular dance music developed about 1935 and based on jazz but employing a larger band and simpler harmonic and rhythmic patterns. b. A ballroom dance performed to this music. c. A subtle, intuitively felt rhythmic quality or sense of rhythm. — adj. 1. Music. Relating to or performing swing: a swing band.

2. Determining an outcome; decisive: the swing vote. —idiom. in full swing. At the highest level of activity or operation. [Middle English swingen, to beat, brandish, from Old English swingan, to flog, strike, swing.] —swing'y adj.

SYNONYMS: swing, oscillate, sway, rock, vibrate, fluctuate, undulate, waver. These verbs mean to move in a back-and-forth, up-and-down, or to-and-fro pattern. Swing usually applies to arclike movement of something attached at one extremity and free at the other: The ship's lanterns swung violently in the raging storm. The shutter swung open. Her purse swings from her shoulder on a long strap. Oscillate refers to steady, uninterrupted back-and-forth motion, as that of a pendulum; in an extended sense it denotes vacillation, as between conflicting purposes: “a king... oscillating between fear of Rome and desire of independence” (Walter Besant). Sway suggests the movement of something unsteady, light, or flexible: “thousands of the little yellow blossoms all swaying to the light wind” (W.H. Hudson). To rock is to swing gently or rhythmically or sway or tilt violently: “The ruins of the ancient church seemed actually to rock and threaten to fall” (Sir Walter Scott). Vibrate usually implies quick periodic oscillations; it often suggests trembling, pulsating, or quivering: “Music, when soft voices die, / Vibrates in the memory” (Percy Bysshe Shelley). Fluctuate is most often used figuratively to imply fairly constant alternating change: “Prices fluctuated violently from the irregularity of the crops” (Lesley B. Simpson). Undulate implies smooth wavelike movement: The ripe wheat undulated in the breeze like the incoming tide. Waver suggests unsteady, uncertain movement: “He stood with wavering hands, unable for a moment to begin” (H.G. Wells).

swing-by (swɪŋg'bi) n. pl. swing-bys. An interplanetary mission in which a space vehicle uses planetary gravitation for changes in course.

swinge (swɪŋj) v. tr. swunged, swinge-ing also swing-ing, swing-es.

Archaic. To punish with blows; thrash; beat. [Middle English swengen, to shake, dash, from Old English swengan.] —swing'er (swɪn'jər) n.

swing'er (swɪŋg'ər) n. 1. One that swings: a good swinger of baseball bats.

2. Slang. a. A person who actively seeks excitement and moves with the latest trends. b. A person who engages freely in promiscuous sex. c. A member of a couple, especially a married couple, who exchanges sexual partners.

swing-ing (swɪŋg'ɪŋ) Slang. adj. 1. Spirited; up-to-date. 2. Attracting a lively, trendy crowd: a swinging nightclub. 3. Slang. a. Sexually promiscuous.

b. Practicing exchange of partners, especially spouses, for sex.

swin-gle-tree (swɪŋg'gəl-trē) n. See whiffletree. [From English swingle, wooden instrument used for beating flax, from Middle English, from Middle Dutch swinghel.]

swing-man (swɪŋg'mən) n. Basketball. A team member who can play effectively in two different positions, especially forward and guard.

swing shift (swɪŋʃɪft) n. The work shift between the day and the night shifts, usually 4 P.M. to midnight.

swing-wing (swɪŋ'wɪŋ') adj. Of, relating to, or being an airplane with wings constructed to allow the outer portion to fold back along the fuselage to produce streamlining at high speeds.

swin-ish (swī'nɪʃ) adj. 1. Resembling or befitting swine. 2. Bestial or brutish.

swipe (swīp) n. 1. A sweeping blow or stroke. 2. Informal. A critical remark.

3. A lever, especially one that raises the bucket in a well. — v. swiped, swip-ing, swipes. — v. tr. 1. To hit with a sweeping motion. 2. Informal. To steal; filch. See Synonyms at steal. — v. intr. To make a sweeping stroke. [Perhaps variant of SWEEP.]

swirl (swûrl) v. swirled, swirl-ing, swirls. — v. intr. 1. To move with a twisting or whirling motion; eddy. 2. To be dizzy; swim. 3. To be arranged in a spiral, whorl, or twist. — v. tr. 1. To cause to move with a twisting or whirling motion. See Synonyms at turn. 2. To form into or arrange in a spiral, whorl, or twist. — n. 1. A whirling or eddying motion or mass: a swirl of white water. 2. Something, such as a curl of hair, that coils, twists, or whirls. 3. Whirling confusion or disorder: "high-pressure farce built around the swirl of mistaken identities" (Jay Carr). [Middle English swyrl, eddy, probably of Low German or Scandinavian origin.] — swirl'y adj.

swish (swɪʃ) v. swished, swish-ing, swish-es. — v. intr. 1. To move with a hissing or whistling sound, as a whip. 2. To rustle, as silk. — v. tr. 1. To cause to make a swishing sound. 2. To strike or cut with a swishing sound. 3. To whip with a rod. — n. 1. a. A sharp whistling or rustling sound: the swish of scythes. b. A movement making such a sound. 2. a. A rod used for flogging. b. A stroke made with such a rod. 3. Offensive Slang. Used as a disparaging term for a gay or homosexual man. — adj. 1. Informal. Fashionable; posh: "a swish pastry shop on the Rue du Bac" (Julia Child). 2. Slang. Effeminate. [Imitative.] swish-y (swɪʃ'ē) adj. swish-i-er, swish-i-est. 1. Producing a swishing sound. 2. Slang. Effeminate.

Swiss (swɪs) adj. Of or relating to Switzerland or its people or culture. — n. 1. pl. Swiss. A native or inhabitant of Switzerland. 2. Also swiss. A crisp, sheer cotton fabric used for curtains or light garments. 3. A firm white or pale yellow cheese with a nutlike flavor and many holes, originally produced in Switzerland. [French Suisse, from Middle High German Swīzer, from Swīz, Switzerland.]

Swiss chard (swɪs çärd) n. A variety of beet (Beta vulgaris var. cicla) having large succulent leaves used as a vegetable.

Swiss Guard (swɪs gärd) n. A member of a corps of soldiers of Swiss birth employed at the Vatican as bodyguards to the pope.

Swiss steak (swɪs stāk) n. A round steak pounded with flour and braised in stock with vegetables.

switch (swĭch) n. 1. A slender flexible rod, stick, or twig, especially one used for whipping. 2. The bushy tip of the tail of certain animals: a cow's switch. 3. A thick strand of real or synthetic hair used as part of a coiffure. 4. A flailing or lashing, as with a slender rod. 5. Abbr. sw. A device used to break or open an electric circuit or to divert current from one conductor to another. 6. Abbr. sw. A device consisting of two sections of railroad track and accompanying apparatus used to transfer rolling stock from one track to another. 7. a. The act or process of operating a switching device. b. The result achieved by such an act. 8. An exchange or a swap, especially one done secretly. 9. A transference or shift, as of opinion or attention. — v. switched, switch-ing, switch-es. — v. tr.

1. Chiefly Southern U.S. To whip with or as if with a switch, especially in punishing a child. 2. To jerk or swish abruptly or sharply: a cat switching its tail. 3. To shift, transfer, or divert: switched the conversation to a lighter subject. 4. To exchange: asked her brother to switch seats with her. 5. To connect, disconnect, or divert (an electric current) by operating a switch. 6. To cause (an electric current or appliance) to begin or cease operation: switched the lights on and off.

7. Informal. To produce as if by operating a control. Often used with on: switched on the charm. 8. To move (rolling stock) from one track to another; shunt. — v. intr.

1. To make or undergo a shift or an exchange: The office has switched from typewriters to word processors. 2. To swish sharply from side to side. — phrasal verb. switch off. Informal. To stop paying attention; lose interest. [Probably of Low German or Flemish origin.] — switch/a-ble adj. — switch'er n.

switch-back (swĭch'băk') n. 1. A road, trail, or railroad track that ascends a steep incline in a zigzag course. 2. A sharp bend in a road or trail ascending a steep incline. 3. Chiefly British. A roller coaster.

switch-blade (swĭch'blād') n. A pocketknife having a spring-operated blade that opens instantly when a release on the handle is pressed. Also called switch-blade knife, switch knife.

switch-board (swĭch'bôrd', -bôrd') n. Abbr. swbd, swbd. 1. One or more panels accommodating control switches, indicators, and other apparatus for operating electric circuits. 2. See telephone exchange.

switch-er-oo (swĭch'ə-rōō') n. pl. switch-er-oos. Slang. An unexpected variation or reversal. [Alteration of SWITCH.]

switch hitter (swĭch hĭt'ər) n. Baseball. A player who can bat either right-handed or left-handed. — switch/-hit' (swĭch'hĭt') v.

switch knife (swĭch nĭf) n. See switchblade.

switch-man (swĭch'mən) n. A man who operates railroad switches.

switch-o-ver (swĭch'ō'vər) n. A complete shift, as from one system to another.

switch-yard (swĭch'yărd') n. An area where railroad cars are switched and trains assembled.

Switz. abbr. Switzerland.

Swit-zer (swīt'sər) n. 1. A Swiss. 2. A Swiss Guard. [Ultimately from Middle High German Swīzer. See SWISS.]

Swit-zer-land (swīt'sər-lənd) Abbr. Switz. A country of west-central Europe. It became part of the Holy Roman Empire in the 10th century but by 1499 had achieved independence as a confederation of cantons. Switzerland later adopted a federal constitution (1848) and maintained a policy of neutrality through both World Wars. Bern is the capital and Zurich the largest city. Population, 6,455,900.

swiv-el (swīv'əl) n. 1. A link, pivot, or another fastening so designed that it permits the free turning of attached parts. 2. A pivoted support that allows an attached object, such as a chair or gun, to turn in a horizontal plane. 3. A gun that turns on a pivot. — v. swiv-eled or swiv-elled, swiv-el-ing or swiv-el-ling, swiv-els or swiv-els. — v. tr. 1. To turn or rotate on or as if on a swivel. 2. To secure, fit, or support with a swivel. — v. intr. To turn on or as if on a swivel. [Middle English swyvel.]

swivel chair (swīv'əl châr) n. A chair that swivels on its base.

swiv-el-hipped (swīv'əl-hīpt') adj. Characterized by an exaggerated swinging movement of the hips.

swiv-et (swīv'it) n. Informal. Extreme distress or discomposure. [Origin unknown.]

swiz-zle (swīz'əl) n. Any of various tall mixed drinks usually made with rum. [Origin unknown.]

swizzle stick (swīz'əl stīk) n. A small, thin rod for stirring mixed drinks.

swob (swɔb) n. & v. Variant of swab.

swol-len (swɔl'ən) v. A past participle of swell. — adj. 1. Expanded by or as if by internal pressure; distended: a swollen toe. 2. Overblown; bombastic: swollen rhetoric. swoon (swōn) v. intr. swooned, swoon-ing, swoons. 1. To faint. 2. To be overwhelmed by ecstatic joy. — n. 1. A fainting spell; syncope. See Synonyms at blackout. 2. A state of ecstasy or rapture. [Middle English swounen, probably from iswowen, in a swoon, from Old English geswōgen, past participle of ·swōgan, to suffocate.]

swoop (swōp) v. swooped, swoop-ing, swoops. — v. intr. 1. To move in a sudden sweep: The bird swooped down on its prey. 2. To make a rush or an attack with or as if with a sudden sweeping movement. Often used with down: The children swooped down on the pile of presents. — v. tr. To seize or snatch in or as if in a sudden sweeping movement. — n. The act or an instance of swooping. [Middle English swopen, to sweep along, from Old English swāpan, to sweep, swing.]

swoosh (swōosh, swōosh) v. swooshed, swoosh-ing, swoosh-es. — v. intr. 1. To move with or make a rushing sound. 2. To flow or swirl copiously. — v. tr. To cause to move with or make a rushing or swirling sound. [Imitative.]

swop (swɔp) v. & n. Variant of swap.

Swope (swɔp), Herbert Bayard. 1882-1958. American journalist who received a Pulitzer Prize (1917) for his work as a correspondent for the New York World during World War I.

sword (sɔrd) n. 1. A weapon consisting typically of a long, straight or slightly curved, pointed blade having one or two cutting edges and set into a hilt. 2. An instrument of death or destruction. 3. a. The use of force, as in war. b. Military power or jurisdiction. —idioms. at swords' points. Ready for a fight. put to the sword. To kill; slay. [Middle English, from Old English sweord.]

sword bayonet (sɔrd bā'ə-nīt) n. A short sword that can be attached to the muzzle of a rifle for use as a bayonet.

sword-bill (sɔrd'bīl') n. A hummingbird (Ensifera ensifera) of South America, having a slender bill that is longer than the head and body combined.

sword cane (sɔrd kān) n. A cane with a hollow shaft in which a sword can be concealed.

sword dance (sɔrd dāns) n. A dance performed with swords, especially one performed around swords laid on the ground.

sword fern (sɔrd fûrn) n. Any of various ferns of the genus Nephrolepis, including the Boston fern, having bipinnately compound fronds and sori at the vein tips.

sword-fish (sɔrd'fīsh') n. pl. swordfish or sword-fish-es. A large marine food and game fish (Xiphias gladius) having a long swordlike extension of the upper jaw that is used chiefly as a means of defense and attack.

sword grass (sɔrd grās) n. Any of various grasses or grasslike plants having pointed, swordlike leaves.

sword knot (sɔrd nɔt) n. A decorative loop or tassel attached to the hilt of a sword.

sword lily (sɔrd līl'ē) n. Botany. See gladiolus (n., sense 1).

sword of Damocles (sɔrd ðv dām'ə-klēz') n. Constant threat; imminent peril: “the Latin American debt, overhanging American banks like the sword of Damocles” (Arthur M. Schlesinger, Jr.). [After DAMOCLES.]

sword-play (sɔrd'plā') n. The act or art of using a sword, as in fencing.

swords-man (sɔrdz'mən) n. 1. A man who is skilled in the use of swords. 2. A fencer. —swords'man-ship' n.

sword-tail (sɔrd'tāl') n. A small, brightly colored, live-bearing freshwater fish (Xiphophorus helleri) of Central America, having a long, tapering extension of the caudal fin in the male and popular in home aquariums.

swore (swôr, swōr) v. Past tense of swear.

sworn (swôrn, swōrn) v. Past participle of swear. — adj. 1. Having been asserted as true under oath: sworn statements by witnesses. 2. Bound or empowered by an oath: a sworn official. 3. Avowed: a sworn friend.

swum (swŭm) v. Past participle of swim.

swung (swŭng) v. Past tense and past participle of swing.

swung dash (swŭng dăsh) n. Printing. A character (~) used to stand for all or part of a word that has previously been spelled out.

Syb·a·ris (sīb'ə-rĭs) An ancient Greek city of southern Italy on the Gulf of Taranto. Noted for its wealth and luxury, it was destroyed in warfare with Crotona in 510 B.C.

Syb·a·rite (sīb'ə-rĭt) n. 1. Often sybarite. A person devoted to pleasure and luxury; a voluptuary. 2. A native or inhabitant of Sybaris. [Latin Sybarīta, native of Sybaris, from Greek Subarītēs, from Subaris, Sybaris.] —syb'a-rit-ism (-rĭ-tĭz'əm) n.

syb·a·rit·ic (sīb'ə-rĭt'ĭk) adj. 1. Devoted to or marked by often excessive or effete luxury. See Synonyms at sensuous. 2. Sybaritic. Of or relating to Sybaris or its people. —syb'a-rit'i-cal·ly adv.

syc·a·mine (sĭk'ə-mĭn', -mĭn') n. A tree mentioned in the New Testament, thought to be a species of mulberry. [Latin sĭcamĭnus, from Greek sukaminos, of Semitic origin.]

syc·a·more (sĭk'ə-mŏr', -mŏr') n. 1. Any of various deciduous trees of the genus Platanus, especially P. occidentalis of eastern North America, having palmately lobed leaves, ball-like, nodding, hairy fruit clusters, and bark that flakes off in large colorful patches. Also called buttonball, buttonwood. 2. A Eurasian deciduous maple tree (Acer pseudoplatanus) having palmately lobed leaves, winged fruits, and greenish flowers. 3. A fig tree (Ficus sycomorus) of Africa and adjacent southwest Asia, mentioned in the Bible, having clusters of figs borne on short leafless twigs. [Middle English sicamour, a kind of fig tree, from Old French sicamor, from Latin sĭcomorus, from Greek sukomoros : sukon, fruit of the fig + moron, black mulberry.]

syce (sīs) n. A stableman or groom, especially in India. [Hindi sā'is, from Arabic, from sāsa, to administer.]

sy·cee (sī-sē') n. Lumps of pure silver bearing the stamp of a banker or an assayer and formerly used in China as money. [Chinese (Cantonese) sai sz, fine silk (so called because the pure silver can be spun into fine threads), corresponding to Mandarin xì sī : xì, thin, fine + sī, silk, thread.]

sy·co·ni·um (sī-kŏ'nĕ-əm) n. pl. sy·co·ni·a (-nĕ-ə). The fleshy multiple fruit of the fig, consisting primarily of the enlarged, hollow, globose floral receptacle open at the apex and containing numerous fruitlets. [New Latin, from Greek sukon, fig.]

syc·o·phan·cy (sĭk'ə-fən-sē, sĭ'kə-) n. pl. sy·co·phan·cies. The fawning behavior of a sycophant; servile flattery.

syc·o·phant (sĭk'ə-fənt, sĭ'kə-) n. A servile self-seeker who attempts to win favor by flattering influential people. [Latin sĭcophanta, informer, slanderer, from Greek sukophantēs, informer : sukon, fig + -phantēs, one who shows (from phainein, to show); see bhā⁻¹ in Appendix.] —syç'o·phan'tic (-fän'tik), syç'o·phan'ti·cal (-tī-kəl) adj. —syç'o·phan'ti·cal·ly adv.

syç'o·phan·tism (sīk'ə-fən-tīz'əm, sī'kə-) n. Sycophancy.

sy·co·sis (sī-kō'sis) n. A chronic inflammation of the hair follicles, especially of the beard, characterized by eruption of pimples and nodules. [Greek sukōsis, ulcer resembling a fig, from sukon, fig.]

Syd·en·ham's chorea (sīd'n-əmz kô-rē'ə) n. A nervous disorder occurring chiefly in childhood or during pregnancy, closely associated with rheumatic fever, and characterized by rapid, jerky, involuntary movements of the body. Also called Saint Vitus' dance [After Thomas Sydenham (1624-1689), English physician.]

Syd·ney (sīd'nē) 1. A city of southeast Australia on an inlet of the Tasman Sea. The largest city in Australia, it is the country's chief port and main cultural and financial center. Metropolitan area population, 3,358,550. 2. A city of Nova Scotia, Canada, on eastern Cape Breton Island. It is a commercial and industrial center. Population, 29,444.

sy·e·nite (sī'ə-nīt') n. An igneous rock composed primarily of alkali feldspar together with other minerals, such as hornblende. [Latin Syēnītēs (lapis), (stone) of Syene, from Syēnē, Syene, an ancient city of southern Egypt, from Greek Suēnē.] —sy'e·nit'ic (-nīt'ik) adj.

Syk·tyv·kar (sīk-tīf-kär') A city of northwest Russia east-southeast of Arkhangelsk. It is a major supplier of lumber. Population, 213,000.

syl. abbr. Syllable.

syll. abbr. Syllable.

syl·la·bar·y (sīl'ə-bēr'ē) n. pl. syl·la·bar·ies. 1. A list of syllables. 2. A list or set of written characters for a language, each character representing a syllable.

[New Latin syllabarium, from Latin syllaba, syllable. See SYLLABLE.]

syl·la·bi (sīl'ə-bī') n. A plural of syllabus.

syl·lab·ic (sī-läb'ik) adj. 1. Linguistics. a. Of, relating to, or consisting of a syllable or syllables. b. Designating a consonant that forms a syllable without a vowel, such as the (l) in riddle (rīd'l). c. Pronounced with every syllable distinct. 2. Of or being a form of verse based on the number of syllables in a line rather than on the arrangement of accents or quantities. — n. Linguistics. A syllabic sound. [Medieval Latin syllabicus, from Greek sullabikos, from sullabē, syllable. See SYLLABLE.] —syl·lab'i·cal·ly adv.

syl·lab·i·fy (sī-läb'i-fī') or syl·lab·i·cate (-kāt') v. tr. syl·lab·i·fied (-fīd') or syl·lab·i·cat·ed, syl·lab·i·fy·ing or syl·lab·i·cat·ing, syl·lab·i·fies (-fīz') or syl·lab·i·cates. To form or divide into syllables. —syl·lab'i·fi·ca'tion (-fī-kä'shən), syl·lab'i·ca'tion (-kä'shən) n.

syl·la·bism (sīl'ə-bīz'əm) n. 1. Division of a word or phrase into syllables.

2. Use of syllabic characters in writing. [Latin syllaba, syllable; see SYLLABLE + -ISM.]

syl·la·bize (sīl'ə-bīz') v. tr. syl·la·bized, syl·la·biz·ing, syl·la·biz·es. To syllabify. [Medieval Latin syllabizāre, to quibble, from Greek sullabizein, to syllabify, from sullabē, syllable. See SYLLABLE.]

syl·la·ble (sīl'ə-bəl) n. Abbr. syl., syll. 1. Linguistics. a. A unit of spoken language consisting of a single uninterrupted sound formed by a vowel, diphthong, or syllabic consonant alone, or by any of these sounds preceded, followed, or surrounded by one or more consonants. b. One or more letters or phonetic symbols written or printed to approximate a spoken syllable. 2. The slightest bit of spoken or written expression: Do not alter a syllable of this message. — v. tr.

syl·la·bled, syl·la·bling, syl·la·bles. Linguistics. To pronounce in syllables.

[Middle English sillable, from Anglo-Norman, alteration of Old French sillabe, from Latin syllaba, from Greek sullabē, from sullabein, second aorist of sullambanein, to combine in pronunciation : sun-, syn- + lambanein, to take.]

syl·la·bub also sil·la·bub (sīl'ə-büb') n. 1. A drink made of sweetened milk or cream curdled with wine or spirits. 2. A cold dessert made with sweetened cream thickened with gelatin and beaten with wine, spirits, or fruit juice. [Origin unknown.]

syl·la·bus (sīl'ə-bəs) n. pl. syl·la·bus·es or syl·la·bi (-bī'). 1. An outline or a summary of the main points of a text, lecture, or course of study. 2. Law. A short statement preceding a report on an adjudged case and containing a summary of the court's rulings on each point involved. [Medieval Latin, probably alteration (influenced by Greek sullambanein, to put together); see SYLLABLE, of Latin sillybus, parchment label, from Greek sillubos.]

syl·lep·sis (sī-lĕp'sis) n. pl. syl·lep·ses (-sēz). A construction in which a word governs two or more other words but agrees in number, gender, or case with only one, or has a different meaning when applied to each of the words, as in He lost his coat and his temper. [Late Latin syllēpsis, from Greek sullēpsis : sun-, syn- + lēpsis, a taking (from lambanein, to take).] — syl·lep'tic (-lĕp'tik) adj.

syl·lo·gism (sīl'ə-jīz'əm) n. 1. Logic. A form of deductive reasoning consisting of a major premise, a minor premise, and a conclusion; for example, All human beings are mortal, the major premise, I am a human being, the minor premise, therefore, I am mortal, the conclusion. 2. Reasoning from the general to the specific; deduction. 3. A subtle or specious piece of reasoning. [Middle English silogisme, from Old French, from Latin sylogismus, from Greek sullogismos, from sullogizesthai, to infer : sun-, syn- + logizesthai, to count, reckon (from logos, reason); see leg- in Appendix.]

syl·lo·gist (sīl'ə-jīst) n. One who uses or is skilled in syllogistic reasoning.

syl·lo·gis·tic (sīl'ə-jis'tik) also syl·lo·gis·ti·cal (-tī-kəl) adj. Of, relating to, resembling, or consisting of a syllogism or syllogisms. —syl'lo·gis'ti·cal·ly adv.

syl·lo·gize (sīl'ə-jīz') v. syl·lo·gized, syl·lo·giz·ing, syl·lo·giz·es. — v. intr. To reason or argue by means of syllogisms. — v. tr. To deduce by syllogism.

—syl'lo·gi·za'tion (-jī-zā'shən) n. —syl'lo·giz'er n.

sylph (sīlf) n. 1. A slim, graceful woman or girl. 2. Any of a class of elemental, soulless beings that in the theories of Paracelsus were believed to inhabit the air. [New Latin sylpha, perhaps blend of Latin sylvestris, of the forest (from silva, sylva, forest), and Latin nympha, nymph; see NYMPH.]

sylph·id (sīl'fid) n. A young or diminutive sylph. — adj. Relating to or resembling a sylph. [French sylphide, from sylphe, sylph, from New Latin sylpha. See SYLPH.]

syl·va (sīl'və) n. Variant of silva.

syl·van also sil·van (sīl'vən) adj. 1. Relating to or characteristic of woods or forest regions. 2. Located in or inhabiting a wood or forest. 3. Abounding in trees; wooded. — n. One that lives in or frequents the woods. [Medieval Latin sylvānus, from Latin Silvānus, god of the woods, from silva, forest.]

Syl·va·nia (sīl-vān'yə) A city of northern Ohio on the Michigan border northwest of Toledo. It is a manufacturing center. Population, 17,301.

syl·van·ite (sīl'və-nīt') n. A pale brass-yellow to silver-white ore of gold and silver, chiefly (Au,Ag)Te₂. [French, after Transylvania.]

Syl·va·nus (sīl-vā'nəs) n. Roman Mythology. Variant of Silvanus.

syl·vat·ic (sīl-vāt'ik) adj. 1. Affecting only wild animals: sylvatic rabies; sylvatic and domestic bacterial strains. 2. Sylvan. [Latin sylvāticus, of the forest, wild, from silva, sylva, forest.]

syl·vite (sīl'vīt') also syl·vine (-vēn') or syl·vin·ite (-vī-nīt') n. A colorless vitreous potassium chloride mineral, the major ore of potassium. [Alteration of sylvine, from French, from New Latin (sal digestivus) Sylvii, (digestive salt) of Sylvius, probably after Franz de la Boë, or Franciscus Sylvius (1614-1672), German-born Dutch physician.]

sym. abbr. 1. Symbol. 2. Symmetrical. 3. Music. Symphony.

sym- pref. Variant of syn-. sym·bi·ont (sīm'bē-ōnt', -bī-) n. An organism in a symbiotic relationship. Also called symbiote [Greek sumbiōn, sumbiount- present participle of sumbioun, to live together. See SYMBIOSIS.] —sym'bi-on'tic adj.

sym·bi·o·sis (sīm'bē-ō'sīs, -bī-) n. pl. sym·bi·o·ses (-sēz). 1. Biology. A close, prolonged association between two or more different organisms of different species that may, but does not necessarily, benefit each member. 2. A relationship of mutual benefit or dependence. [Greek sumbiōsis, companionship, from sumbioun, to live together, from sumbios, living together : sun-, syn- + bios, life; see g^wei- in Appendix.] —sym'bi-ot'ic (-ōt'ik), sym'bi-ot'i-cal (-i-kəl) adj.

—sym'bi-ot'i-cal-ly adv.

sym-bi-ote (sĭm'bē-ōt', -bī-) n. See symbiont. [French, from Greek sum-biōtēs, companion, from sumbioun, to live together. See SYMBIOSIS.]

sym-bol (sĭm'bəl) n. Abbr. sym. 1. Something that represents something else by association, resemblance, or convention, especially a material object used to represent something invisible. 2. A printed or written sign used to represent an operation, an element, a quantity, a quality, or a relation, as in mathematics or music. — v. tr. sym-boled, sym-bol-ing, sym-bols. To symbolize. [Middle English symbole, creed, from Old French, from Latin symbolum, token, mark, from Greek symbolon, token for identification (by comparison with a counterpart) : sun-, syn- + ballein, to throw; see g^welə- in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: symbol, attribute, emblem. The central meaning shared by these nouns is “something associated with and standing for, representing, or identifying something else”: scales, the symbol of justice; the scepter, an attribute of royal power; the thistle, the emblem of Scotland.

sym-bol-ic (sĭm-bōl'ik) also sym-bol-i-cal (-i-kəl) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or expressed by means of symbols or a symbol. 2. Serving as a symbol. 3. Using symbolism: symbolic art. —sym-bol'i-cal-ly adv. —sym-bol'i-cal-ness n.

symbolic address (sĭm-bōl'ik ə-drēs') n. Computer Science. An address expressed in symbolic form as a convenience to the programmer.

sym-bol-i-cal (sĭm-bōl'i-kəl) adj. Variant of symbolic.

symbolic language (sĭm-bōl'ik lǎng'gwij) n. Computer Science. A high-level programming language.

symbolic logic (sĭm-bōl'ik löj'ik) n. A treatment of formal logic in which a system of symbols is used to represent quantities and relationships. Also called mathematical logic sym-bol-ism (sĭm'bə-līz'əm) n. 1. The practice of representing things by means of symbols or of attributing symbolic meanings or significance to objects, events, or relationships. 2. A system of symbols or representations. 3. A symbolic meaning or representation. 4. Revelation or suggestion of intangible conditions or truths by artistic invention. 5. Symbolism. The movement, theory, or practice of the late 19th-century Symbolists.

sym-bol-ist (sĭm'bə-līst) n. 1. One who uses symbols or symbolism. 2. a. One who interprets or represents conditions or truths by the use of symbols or symbolism. b. Often Symbolist. Any of a group of chiefly French writers and artists of the late 19th century who expressed their ideas and emotions indirectly through symbols. — adj. 1. Of or relating to symbolism. 2. Often Symbol- ist. Of or relating to the Symbolists. —sym'bol-is'tic adj.

—sym'bol-is'ti-cal-ly adv.

sym·bol·ize (sĭm'bə-līz') v. sym·bol·ized, sym·bol·iz·ing, sym·bol·iz·es.
— v. tr. 1. To serve as a symbol of: “Munich, the 1938 Hitler-Chamberlain meeting that now symbolizes the idea of appeasement” (Jonathan Alter). 2. To represent or identify by a symbol. — v. intr. To use symbols. —sym'bol-i-za'tion (-bə-lī-zā'shən) n. —sym'bol-iz'er n.

sym·bol·o·gy (sĭm-bŏl'ə-jē) n. 1. The study or interpretation of symbols or symbolism. 2. The use of symbols.

Sy·ming·ton (sī'mĭng-tən), (William) Stuart. Born 1901. American politician and public official. He served as secretary of the air force (1947-1950) and as a U.S. senator from Missouri (1953-1976).

sym·met·all·ism (sĭm-mĕt'l-īz'əm) n. A system of coinage in which a unit of currency is pegged to a combination of two or more metals in fixed proportions.

sym·met·ri·cal (sĭ-mĕt'rĭ-kəl) also sym·met·ric (-rĭk) adj. Abbr. sym. Of or exhibiting symmetry. —sym·met'rĭ-cal-ly adv.

symmetric group (sĭ-mĕt'rĭ-k grŏp) n. Mathematics. A group consisting of all possible permutations of a given number of items.

symmetric matrix (sĭ-mĕt'rĭ-k mā'trĭks) n. Mathematics. A matrix that is its own transpose.

sym·me·trize (sĭm'ī-trīz') v. tr. sym·me·trized, sym·me·triz·ing, sym·me·triz·es. To give symmetry to; make symmetrical or proportional. —sym'me-tri-za'tion (-trī-zā'shən) n.

sym·me·try (sĭm'ī-trĕ) n. pl. sym·me·tries. 1. Exact correspondence of form and constituent configuration on opposite sides of a dividing line or plane or about a center or an axis. See Synonyms at proportion. 2. A relationship of characteristic correspondence, equivalence, or identity among constituents of an entity or between different entities: the narrative symmetry of the novel.

3. Beauty as a result of balance or harmonious arrangement. [Latin symmetria, from Greek summetria, from summetros, of like measure : sun-, syn- + metron, measure; see mē⁻² in Appendix.]

Sym·onds (sĭm'əndz, sī'məndz), John Addington. 1840-1893. British writer noted for his seven-volume series The Renaissance in Italy (1875-1886).

Sy·mons (sī'mənz), Arthur. 1865-1945. British poet and literary critic who translated many French symbolist works into English and wrote The Symbolist Movement in Literature (1899).

sym·pa·thec·to·my (sĭm'pə-thĕk'tə-mĕ) n. pl. sym·pa·thec·to·mies. Surgical removal of a part of the sympathetic nervous system. [SYMPATH(ETIC) + -ECTOMY.]

sym·pa·thet·ic (sĭm'pə-thĕt'ĭk) adj. 1. Of, expressing, feeling, or resulting from sympathy: a sympathetic glance. 2. Favorably inclined: not at all sympa- thetic to her proposal. 3. Agreeably suited to one's disposition or mood; congenial: sympathetic surroundings. 4. Of, relating to, or acting on the sympathetic nervous system: a sympathetic neuron; sympathetic stimulation. 5. a. Relating to or being vibrations, especially musical tones, produced in one body by energy from a nearby vibrating body and having the same frequency as the vibration of the nearby body. b. Emitting such vibrations: sympathetic strings. [Greek sumpathētikos, from sumpatheia, sympathy. See SYMPATHY.] —sym'pa-thet'i-cal-ly adv.

sympathetic ink (sĭm'pə-thĕt'ĭk ɪŋk) n. See invisible ink.

sympathetic nervous system (sĭm'pə-thĕt'ĭk nŭr'vəs sĭs'təm) n. Anatomy. The part of the autonomic nervous system originating in the thoracic and lumbar regions of the spinal cord that in general inhibits or opposes the physiological effects of the parasympathetic nervous system, as in tending to reduce digestive secretions, speeding up the heart, and contracting blood vessels.

sym·pa·thize (sĭm'pə-thīz') v. intr. sym·pa·thized, sym·pa·thiz·ing, sym·pa·thiz·es. 1. To feel or express compassion, as for another's suffering; commiserate. 2. To share or understand the feelings or ideas of another: sympathized with the goals of the committee. 3. To be in accord; correspond.

—sym'pa·thiz'er n. —sym'pa·thiz'ing·ly adv.

sym·pa·tho·lyt·ic (sĭm'pə-thō-līt'ĭk) adj. Opposing the physiological effects caused by stimulation of the sympathetic nervous system: a sympatholytic treatment. [SYMPATH(ETIC) + -LYTIC.]

sym·pa·tho·mi·met·ic (sĭm'pə-thō-mĭ-mĕt'ĭk, -mĭ-) adj. Producing physiological effects resembling those caused by the activity or stimulation of the sympathetic nervous system: a sympathomimetic hormone. — n. A sympathomimetic drug or agent. [SYMPATH(ETIC) + MIMETIC.]

sym·pa·thy (sĭm'pə-thē) n. pl. sym·pa·thies. 1. a. A relationship or an affinity between people or things in which whatever affects one correspondingly affects the other. b. Mutual understanding or affection arising from this relationship or affinity. 2. a. The act or power of sharing the feelings of another. b. Often sympathies. A feeling or an expression of pity or sorrow for the distress of another; compassion or commiseration. See Synonyms at pity. 3. Harmonious agreement; accord: He is in sympathy with their beliefs. 4. A feeling of loyalty; allegiance. Often used in the plural: His sympathies lie with his family. 5. Physiology. A relation between parts or organs by which a disease or disorder in one induces an effect in the other. [Latin sympathīa, from Greek sumpatheia, from sumpathēs, affected by like feelings : sun-, syn- + pathos, emotion; see k^went(h)- in Appendix.]

sympathy strike (sĭm'pə-thē strĭk) n. A strike by a body of workers for the purpose of supporting a cause or another group of strikers.

sym·pat·ric (sĭm-păt'ĭrĭk) adj. Ecology. Occupying the same or overlapping geographic areas without interbreeding. Used of populations of closely related species. [SYN- + Greek patra, fatherland (from patēr, father); see päter- in Appendix + -IC.] —sym·pat'ri-cal·ly adv.

sym·pat·ry (sĭm'păt'rē, -pə-trē) n. pl. sym·pat·ries. The occurrence of sympatric species or forms.

sym·pet·al·ous (sĭm-pět'l-əs) adj. Having united petals; gamopetalous.

sym·phon·ic (sĭm-fŏn'ĭk) adj. 1. Music. Relating to or having the character or form of a symphony. 2. Harmonious in sound.

symphonic poem (sĭm-fŏn'ĭk pŏ'əm) n. Music. A piece of music, most popular in the late 19th century, that is based on an extramusical theme, such as a story or nationalistic ideal, and consists of a single extended movement for a symphony orchestra. Also called tone poem sym·pho·ni·ous (sĭm-fŏ'nē-əs) adj. Being in a state of accord; harmonious. —sym·pho'ni·ous·ly adv.

sym·pho·nist (sĭm'fə-nĭst) n. Music. One who composes symphonies.

sym·pho·ny (sĭm'fə-nē) n. pl. sym·pho·nies. 1. Abbr. sym. Music. a. An extended piece in three or more movements for symphony orchestra, essentially a large-scale, complex sonata. b. An instrumental passage in a vocal or choral composition. c. An instrumental overture or interlude, as in early opera. 2. Music. a. A symphony orchestra. b. An orchestral concert. 3. Harmony, especially of sound or color. 4. Something characterized by a harmonious combination of elements. [Middle English symphonye, harmony, from Old French symphonie, from Latin symphōnia, from Greek sumphōnia, from sumphōnos, harmonious : sun-, syn- + phōnē, sound; see bhā-² in Appendix.]

symphony orchestra (sĭm'fə-nē ôr'kĭ-strə) n. Music. A large orchestra composed of string, wind, and percussion sections.

sym·phy·sis (sĭm'fĭ-sĭs) n. pl. sym·phy·ses (-sēz'). 1. a. A growing together of bones originally separate, as of the two pubic bones or the two halves of the lower jawbone. b. A line or junction thus formed. c. An articulation in which bones are united by cartilage without a synovial membrane. 2. The coalescence of similar parts or organs. [Greek sumphusis, from sumphuein, to cause to grow together : sun-, syn- + phuein, to cause to grow; see bheu- in Appendix.]

—sym'phy·se'al (sĭm'-fĭ-sē'əl), sym·phys'i·al (sĭm-fĭz'ē-əl) adj.

sym·po·di·um (sĭm-pŏ'dē-əm) n. pl. sym·po·di·a (-dē-ə). Botany. A primary axis that develops from a series of short lateral branches and often has a zigzag or irregular form, as in orchids of the genus Cattleya. Also called pseudaxis [New Latin : SYN- + Greek podion, base (from pous, pod-, foot); see ped- in Appendix.]

—sym·po'di·al (-dē-əl) adj. —sym·po'di·al·ly adv.

sym·po·si·a (sĭm-pŏ'zē-ə) n. A plural of symposium.

sym·po·si·ac (sĭm-pŏ'zē-ăk') adj. Of, relating to, or appropriate to a symposium. — n. Archaic. A symposium.

sym-po-si-arch (sĭm-pō'zē-ärk') n. 1. The master or director of a symposium, especially one in ancient Greece. 2. A toastmaster. [Greek sumposiarkhos : sumposion, symposium; see SYMPOSIUM + arkhos, ruler; see -ARCH.]

sym-po-si-ast (sĭm-pō'zē-äst', -əst) n. A participant in a symposium.

sym-po-si-um (sĭm-pō'zē-əm) n. pl. sym-po-si-ums or sym-po-si-a (-zē-ə).

1. A meeting or conference for discussion of a topic, especially one in which the participants form an audience and make presentations. 2. A collection of writings on a particular topic, as in a magazine. 3. A convivial meeting for drinking, music, and intellectual discussion among the ancient Greeks. [Latin, drinking party, from Greek sumposion : sun-, syn- + posis, drinking; see pō(i)- in Appendix.]

symp-tom (sĭm'təm, sĭmp'-) n. 1. A characteristic sign or indication of the existence of something else: "The affair is a symptom of a global marital disturbance; it is not the disturbance itself" (Maggie Scarf). See Synonyms at sign. 2. A sign or an indication of disorder or disease, especially when experienced by an individual as a change from normal function, sensation, or appearance. [Alteration (influenced by Late Latin symptōma), of Middle English sinthoma, symptom of a disease, from Medieval Latin sinthōma, from Late Latin symptōma, from Greek sumptōma, sumptōmat-, a happening, symptom of a disease, from sump-iptein, to coincide : sun-, syn- + piptein, to fall; see pet- in Appendix.] —symp/-tom-less adj.

symp-to-mat-ic (sĭm'tə-măt'ĭk, sĭmp'-) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or based on symptoms: symptomatic relief. 2. Constituting a symptom, as of a disease: the rash symptomatic of scarlet fever; a rise in unemployment symptomatic of a weakening economy. —symp'to-mat/i-cal-ly adv.

symp-tom-a-tize (sĭm'tə-mə-tĭz', sĭmp'-) v. Variant of symptomize.

symp-to-ma-tol-o-gy (sĭm'tə-mə-tōl'ə-jē, sĭmp'-) n. 1. The medical science of symptoms. 2. The combined symptoms of a disease. [New Latin symptomatologia : Greek sumptōma, sumptōmat-, symptom; see SYMPTOM + Latin -logia, -logy.] —symp'to-mat'o-log/i-cal (-măt'l-ōj'ĭ-kəl) adj.

—symp'to-mat'o-log/i-cal-ly adv.

symp-tom-ize (sĭm'tə-mĭz', sĭmp'-) or symp-tom-a-tize (-tə-mə-tĭz') v. tr. symp-tom-ized or symp-tom-a-tized, symp-tom-iz-ing or symp-tom-a-tiz-ing, symp-tom-iz-es or symp-tom-a-tiz-es. To be a symptom of: The infection is symptomized by chronic fatigue. High absenteeism often symptomizes job dissatisfaction.

syn. abbr. Synonym; synonymous; synonymy.

syn- or sym- pref. 1. a. Together; with: synecology. b. United: syncarp.

2. a. Same; similar: sympatric. b. At the same time: synesthesia. [Greek sun-, from sun. See ksun in Appendix.]

syn-aer-e-sis (sĭ-nĕr'ĭ-sĭs) n. Variant of syneresis.

syn·aes·the·sia (sɪnˈis-thēˈzhə) n. Variant of synesthesia.

syn·a·gogue also syn·a·gog (sɪnˈə-gŏgʹ, -gŏgʹ) n. 1. A building or place of meeting for worship and religious instruction in the Jewish faith. 2. A congregation of Jews for the purpose of worship or religious study. 3. The Jewish religion as organized or typified in local congregations. [Middle English, from Old French sinagoge, from Late Latin synagōga, from Greek sunagōgē, assembly, synagogue, from sunagein, to bring together : sun-, syn- + agein, to lead; see ag- in Appendix.] —synˈa·gogʹi·cal (-gŏjʹi-kəl), synˈa·gogʹal (-gŏgʹəl, -gŏgʹ-) adj.

syn·a·le·pha also syn·a·loe·pha (sɪnˈə-lēˈfə) n. The blending into one syllable of two successive vowels of adjacent syllables, especially to fit a poetic meter; for example, th' elite for the elite. [New Latin, from Greek sunaloiphē, from sunaleiphein, to coalesce, unite two syllables : sun-, syn- + aleiphein, to smear; see leip- in Appendix.]

syn·apse (sɪnˈəpsʹ, sɪ-nəpsʹ) n. The junction across which a nerve impulse passes from an axon terminal to a neuron, a muscle cell, or a gland cell. — v. intr. syn·apsed, syn·aps·ing, syn·aps·es. 1. To form a synapse. 2. To undergo synapsis. [Greek sunapsis, point of contact, from sunaptein, to join together : sun-, syn- + haptein, to fasten.]

syn·ap·sis (sɪ-nəpˈsɪs) n. pl. syn·ap·ses (-sēz). The side-by-side association of homologous paternal and maternal chromosomes during the early prophase of meiosis. [New Latin, from Greek sunapsis, point of contact. See SYNAPSE.]

syn·ap·tic (sɪ-nəpˈtɪk) adj. Of or relating to synapsis or a synapse: synaptic nerve endings; the synaptic phase in meiosis. [From Greek sunaptos, joined together, from sunaptein, to join together. See SYNAPSE.] —syn·apˈti·cal·ly adv.

synaptic gap (sɪ-nəpˈtɪk ɡăp) n. The minute space between the cell membrane of an axon terminal and that of the target cell with which it synapses.

syn·ap·ti·ne·mal complex also syn·ap·to·ne·mal complex (sɪ-nəpˈtə-nēmˈəl kəm-plēksʹ) n. A ribbonlike structure consisting of three protein components and extending across the region of synapsed chromosomes during the prophase of meiosis. [SYNAPTI(C) + Greek nēma, thread; see (s)nē- in Appendix + -AL¹.]

syn·ap·to·some (sɪ-nəpˈtə-sŏmʹ) n. A saclike structure formed by nerve endings at a synapse that remains intact after homogenization of nerve tissue.

—syn·apˈto·soˈmal adj.

syn·ar·thro·di·a (sɪnˈär-thrŏˈdē-ə) n. pl. syn·ar·thro·di·ae (-dē-ēˈ). Anatomy. See synarthrosis. [SYN- + Greek arthrōdia, a kind of articulation (from arthrōdēs, well-jointed, from arthron, joint); see SYNARTHROSIS.] —synˈar·throˈdi·al adj. —synˈar·throˈdi·al·ly adv.

syn·ar·thro·sis (sɪnˈär-thrŏˈsɪs) n. pl. syn·ar·thro·ses (-sēz). Anatomy. A form of articulation in which the bones are rigidly joined by fibrous tissue. Also called synarthrodia [Greek sunarthrōsis, from sunarthrousthai, to be joined by articulation : sun-, syn- + arthron, a joint; see ar- in Appendix.]

sync or synch (sɪŋk) Informal. n. 1. Synchronization: “an effect like that of stereo speakers slightly out of sync” (Time). 2. Harmony; accord: in sync with today’s fashions. — v. intr. tr. synced or synched, sync-ing or synch-ing, syncs or synchs. To synchronize.

syn-carp (sɪnˈkɑːrp) n. A fleshy compound fruit composed either of the fruits of several flowers, as in the pineapple and mulberry, or of several carpels of a single flower, as in the magnolia and raspberry.

syn-car-pous (sɪn-kɑːrˈpəʊs) adj. Having or consisting of united carpels. Used of a pistil. — syn-car-py n.

synch (sɪŋk) n. & v. Informal. Variant of sync.

syn-chon-dro-sis (sɪŋˈkɒn-drəʊˈsɪs, sɪnˈ-) n. pl. syn-chon-dro-ses (-sēz). A form of articulation in which the bones are rigidly fused by cartilage. [New Latin synchondrōsis, from Greek sunkhondrōsis : sun-, syn- + khondros, cartilage + -ōsis, -osis.]

syn-chro (sɪŋˈkrəʊ, sɪnˈ-) n. pl. syn-chros. A selsyn. [Short for SYNCHRONOUS.]

synchro- pref. Synchronized; synchronous: synchrotron.

syn-chro-cy-clo-tron (sɪŋˈkrəʊ-sɪˈklə-trɒn, sɪnˈ-) n. A cyclotron that accelerates protons and positive ions by using frequency modulation to synchronize the phase of the accelerating potential with the frequency of the accelerated particles to compensate for relativistic increases in particle mass at high speeds.

syn-chro-flash (sɪŋˈkrəʊ-flɑːʃ, sɪnˈ-) n. A device used in photography to synchronize the peak of a flash created by a flash lamp with the opening of the camera shutter. — syn-chro-flash adj.

syn-chro-mesh (sɪŋˈkrəʊ-mɛʃ, sɪnˈ-) n. 1. An automotive gear-shifting system in which the gears are synchronized at the same speeds before engaging to effect a smooth shift. 2. A gear in such a system. — syn-chro-mesh adj.

syn-chro-nal (sɪŋˈkrəʊ-nəl, sɪnˈ-) adj. Synchronous.

syn-chron-ic (sɪn-krɒnˈɪk, sɪŋ-) adj. 1. Synchronous. 2. a. Descriptive. b. Relating to or being the study of events of a particular time or era without reference to historical context. — syn-chron/i-cal-ly adv.

syn-chro-nic-i-ty (sɪŋˈkrəʊ-nɪsˈi-ti, sɪnˈ-) n. pl. syn-chro-nic-i-ties. 1. The state or fact of being synchronous or simultaneous; synchronism. 2. Coincidence of events that seem to be meaningfully related, conceived in the theory of Carl Jung as an explanatory principle on the same order as causality.

synchronic linguistics (sɪn-krɒnˈɪk lɪŋ-gwɪsˈtɪks) n. (used with a sing. verb). Descriptive linguistics.

syn-chro-nism (sɪŋˈkrəʊ-nɪzˈəm, sɪnˈ-) n. 1. Coincidence in time; simultaneousness. 2. A chronological listing of historical personages or events so as to indicate parallel existence or occurrence. 3. Representation in the same artwork of events that occurred at different times. —syn'chro-nis'tic, syn-'chro-nis'ti-cal (-tĭ-kəl) adj. —syn'chro-nis'ti-cal-ly adv.

syn·chro·nize (sĭng'krə-nīz', sĭn'-) v. syn·chro·nized, syn·chro·niz·ing, syn·chro·niz·es. — v. intr. 1. To occur at the same time; be simultaneous.

2. To operate in unison. — v. tr. 1. a. To cause to occur or operate with exact coincidence in time or rate: We synchronized our watches. b. To cause to occur or operate at the same time as something else: They synchronized their trip with the annual tulip festival. 2. To arrange (historical events) in a synchronism so as to indicate parallel occurrence. 3. To cause (soundtrack and action) to match exactly in a film. [Greek sunkhronizein, to be contemporary, from sunkhronos, contemporaneous. See SYNCHRONOUS.] —syn'chro-ni-za'tion (-nĭ-zā'shən) n.

syn·chro·nized swimming (sĭng'krə-nīzd' swĭm'ĭng, sĭn'-) n. Sports. A sport or an exhibition in which swimmers, singly or in groups, perform dancelike movements often in time with music.

syn·chro·niz·er (sĭng'krə-nī'zər, sĭn'-) n. 1. One that synchronizes: a synchronizer of a multitude of dramatic events. 2. Computer Science. A storage device that compensates for a difference between the rates at which information is processed in two or more devices.

syn·chro·nous (sĭng'krə-nəs, sĭn'-) adj. 1. Occurring or existing at the same time. See Synonyms at contemporary. 2. Moving or operating at the same rate. 3. a. Having identical periods. b. Having identical period and phase. [From Late Latin synchronus, from Greek sunkhronos : sun-, syn- + khronos, time.] —syn'chro-nous-ly adv. —syn'chro-nous-ness n.

synchronous motor (sĭng'krə-nəs mō'tər) n. A motor having a speed directly proportional to the frequency of the alternating-current power that operates it.

synchronous orbit (sĭng'krə-nəs ôr'bĭt) n. A geostationary orbit.

syn·chro·ny (sĭng'krə-nē, sĭn'-) n. pl. syn·chro·nies. Simultaneous occurrence; synchronism. [From SYNCHRONOUS.]

syn·chro·tron (sĭng'krə-trŏn', sĭn'-) n. An accelerator in which charged particles are accelerated around a fixed circular path by an electric field and held to the path by an increasing magnetic field.

synchrotron radiation (sĭng'krə-trŏn' rā'dē-ā'shən) n. Electromagnetic radiation emitted by high-energy particles when accelerated to relativistic speeds in a magnetic field.

syn·cli·nal (sĭn-kli'nəl) adj. 1. Sloping downward from opposite directions to meet in a common point or line. 2. Geology. Relating to, formed by, or forming a syncline.

syn·cline (sĭn'kli'n') n. Geology. A fold in rocks in which the rock layers dip inward from both sides toward the axis. [Back-formation from SYNCLINAL.]

syn-co-pate (sɪŋ'kə-pāt', sɪn'-) v. tr. syn-co-pat-ed, syn-co-pat-ing, syn-co-pates. 1. Grammar. To shorten (a word) by syncope. 2. Music. To modify (rhythm) by syncopation. [Late Latin syncopāre, syncopāt-, from syncopē, syncope. See SYNCOPE.] —syn/co-pa'tor n.

syn-co-pa-tion (sɪŋ'kə-pā'shən, sɪn'-) n. 1. Music. A shift of accent in a passage or composition that occurs when a normally weak beat is stressed.

2. Something, such as rhythm, that is syncopated. 3. Grammar. Syncope.

syn-co-pe (sɪŋ'kə-pē, sɪn'-) n. 1. Grammar. The shortening of a word by omission of a sound, letter, or syllable from the middle of the word; for example, bos'n for boatswain. 2. Pathology. A brief loss of consciousness caused by a temporary deficiency of oxygen in the brain; a swoon. See Synonyms at blackout. [Middle English syncopis, from syncopene, from Late Latin syncopēn, accusative of syncopē, from Greek sunkopē, from sunkoptein, to cut short : sun-, syn- + koptein, to strike.] —syn/co-pal (sɪŋ'kə-pəl, sɪn'-), syn-cop'ic (sɪn-köp'ik) adj.

syn-cre-tism (sɪŋ'krī-tiz'əm, sɪn'-) n. 1. Reconciliation or fusion of differing systems of belief, as in philosophy or religion, especially when success is partial or the result is heterogeneous. 2. Linguistics. The merging of two or more originally different inflectional forms. [Greek sunkrētismos, union, from sunkrētizein, to unite (in the manner of the Cretan cities) : sun-, syn- + Krēs, Krēt-, Cretan.]

—syn-cret'ic (-krēt'ik), syn'cre-tis'tic (-krī-tis'tik) adj. —syn'cre-tist n.

syn-cre-tize (sɪŋ'krī-tīz', sɪn'-) v. syn-cre-tized, syn-cre-tiz-ing, syn-cre-tiz-es. — v. tr. To reconcile and unite (differing religious beliefs, for example), especially with partial success or a heterogeneous result. — v. intr. To combine differing elements or beliefs, especially with partial success or a heterogeneous result. [Greek sunkrētizein, to unite against a common enemy. See SYNCRETISM.]

syn-cy-ti-um (sɪn-sɪsh'ē-əm) n. pl. syn-cy-ti-a (-sɪsh'ē-ə). A mass of cytoplasm with many nuclei but no internal cell boundaries. [New Latin : SYN- + CYT(O)- + -IUM.] —syn-cy/ti-al (-sɪsh'ē-əl) adj.

synd. abbr. Syndicate.

syn-dac-tyl (sɪn-dāk'təl) Biology. n. An animal, especially a bird or mammal, that has two or more fused digits. — adj. also syn-dac-ty-lous (-tə-ləs) Of, relating to, or characterized by syndactyly. [French syndactyle : Greek sun-, syn- + Greek daktulos, finger.]

syn-dac-ty-ly (sɪn-dāk'tə-lē) or syn-dac-tyl-ism (-tə-līz'əm) n. Biology.

1. The condition of having two or more fused digits, as occurs normally in certain mammals and birds. 2. A congenital anomaly in human beings characterized by two or more fused fingers or toes.

syn-des-mo-sis (sɪn'děz-mō'sis, -dēs-) n. pl. syn-des-mo-ses (-sēz). An articulation in which the bones are joined by a ligament. [New Latin, from Greek sundesmos, bond, ligament, from sundein, to bind together. See SYNETIC.]

—syn'des-mot'ic (-mōt'ik) adj.

syn-det-ic (sĭn-dĕt'ik) adj. 1. Serving to connect, as a conjunction; copulative or conjunctive. 2. Connected by a conjunction. [Greek sundetikos, from sundetos, bound together, from sundein, to bind together : sun-, syn- + dein, to bind.] —syn-det'i-cal-ly adv.

syn-dic (sĭn'dĭk) n. 1. One appointed to represent a corporation, a university, or another organization in business transactions; a business agent. 2. A civil magistrate or similar government official in some European countries. [French, from Old French sindiz, from Late Latin syndicus, from Greek sundikos, public advocate : sun-, syn- + dikē, justice; see deik- in Appendix.] —syn'di-cal adj.

syn-di-cal-ism (sĭn'dĭ-kə-lĭz'əm) n. A radical political movement that advocates bringing industry and government under the control of federations of labor unions by the use of direct action, such as general strikes and sabotage. [French syndicalisme, from (chambre) syndicale, trade union, feminine of syndical, of a labor union, from syndic, delegate. See SYNDIC.] —syn'di-cal-ist adj., n. —syn'di-cal-is'tic adj.

syn-di-cate (sĭn'dĭ-kĭt) n. Abbr. synd. 1. An association of people or firms authorized to undertake a duty or transact specific business. 2. An association of people or firms formed to engage in an enterprise or promote a common interest. 3. A loose affiliation of gangsters in control of organized criminal activities.

4. An agency that sells articles, features, or photographs for publication in a number of newspapers or periodicals simultaneously. 5. A company consisting of a number of separate newspapers; a newspaper chain. 6. The office, position, or jurisdiction of a syndic or body of syndics. — v. syn-di-cat-ed, syn-di-cat-ing, syn-di-cates (-kāt'). — v. tr. 1. a. To organize into or manage as a syndicate. b. To sell shares in. 2. To sell (a comic strip or column, for example) through a syndicate for simultaneous publication in newspapers or periodicals. 3. To sell (a television series, for example) directly to independent stations.

— v. intr. To join together in a syndicate. [French syndicat, from Old French, office of syndic, from Medieval Latin syndicātus, from Late Latin syndicus, syndic. See SYNDIC.] —syn'di-ca'tion n. —syn'di-ca'tor n.

syn-drome (sĭn'drōm') n. 1. A group of symptoms that collectively indicate or characterize a disease, a psychological disorder, or another abnormal condition.

2. a. A complex of symptoms indicating the existence of an undesirable condition or quality. b. A distinctive or characteristic pattern of behavior: Skipping breakfast and buying a cup of coffee on the way to work became a syndrome as the months wore on. [Greek sundromē, concurrence of symptoms, from sundromos, running together : sun-, syn- + dromos, a running.] —syn-drom'ic (-drō'mĭk, -drōm'ik) adj.

syne (sīn) Scots. adv. 1. Before now; ago. 2. Afterward; since then; since.

3. Thereupon; next. — conj. Since. — prep. Since. [Scots, from Middle English sitthen, from Old English siththan.]

syn-ec-do-che (sī-nĕk'də-kē) n. A figure of speech in which a part is used for the whole (as hand for sailor), the whole for a part (as the law for police officer), the specific for the general (as cutthroat for assassin), the general for the specific (as thief for pickpocket), or the material for the thing from which it is made (as steel for sword). [Middle English, alteration (influenced by Latin synecdochē), of Middle English synodoches, from Medieval Latin synodoche, alteration of Latin synecdochē, from Greek sunekdokhē, from sunekdekhesthai, to take on a share of : sun-, syn- + ekdekhesthai, to understand (ek-, out of; see eghs in Appendix + dekhesthai, to take); see dek- in Appendix.] —syn'ec-doch'ic (sīn'ĕk-dŏk'ĭk), syn'ec-doch'i-cal (-ĭ-kəl) adj.

syn-e-col-o-gy (sīn'ĭ-kŏl'ə-jĕ) n. The study of the ecological interrelationships among communities of organisms. —syn'e-co-log'ic (-kə-lŏj'ĭk), syn'e-co-log'i-cal (-ĭ-kəl) adj.

syn-er-e-sis also syn-aer-e-sis (sī-nĕr'ĭ-sĭs) n. pl. syn-er-e-ses (-sĕz').

1. Linguistics. The drawing together into one syllable of two consecutive vowels or syllables, as in the formation of a diphthong. 2. Chemistry. Exudation of the liquid component of a gel. [Late Latin synaeresis, from Greek sunairesis, from sunairein, to contract : sun-, syn- + hairein, to take, grasp.]

syn-er-get-ic (sīn'ər-jĕt'ĭk) also syn-er-gic (sī-nŭr'jĭk) adj. Synergistic.

syn-er-gid (sī-nŭr'jĭd, sīn'ər-) n. One of two small cells lying near the egg in the mature embryo sac of a flowering plant. [New Latin synergida, from Greek sunergos, working together. See SYNERGISM.]

syn-er-gism (sīn'ər-jĭz'əm) n. 1. Synergy. 2. Theology. The doctrine that individual salvation is achieved through a combination of human will and divine grace. [New Latin synergismus, from Greek sunergos, working together : sun-, syn- + ergon, work; see werg- in Appendix.]

syn-er-gist (sīn'ər-jĭst) n. 1. A synergistic organ, drug, or agent. 2. Theology. An adherent of synergism.

syn-er-gis-tic (sīn'ər-jĭs'tĭk) adj. 1. Of or relating to synergy: a synergistic effect. 2. Producing or capable of producing synergy: synergistic drugs.

3. Theology. Of or relating to synergism. —syn'er-gis'ti-cal-ly adv.

syn-er-gy (sīn'ər-jĕ) n. pl. syn-er-gies. 1. The interaction of two or more agents or forces so that their combined effect is greater than the sum of their individual effects. 2. Cooperative interaction among groups, especially among the acquired subsidiaries or merged parts of a corporation, that creates an enhanced combined effect. [From Greek sunergia, cooperation, from sunergos, working together. See SYNERGISM.]

syn·e·sis (sĭn'ī-sĭs) n. A construction in which a form, such as a pronoun, differs in number but agrees in meaning with the word governing it, as in If the group becomes too large, we can split them in two. [Greek sunesis, union, understanding, from sunienai, to understand, bring together : sun-, syn- + hienai, to send, hurl; see yē- in Appendix.]

syn·es·the·sia also syn·aes·the·sia (sĭn'īs-thē'zhə) n. 1. A condition in which one type of stimulation evokes the sensation of another, as when the hearing of a sound produces the visualization of a color. 2. A sensation felt in one part of the body as a result of stimulus applied to another, as in referred pain. 3. The description of one kind of sense impression by using words that normally describe another. —syn'es·thet'ic (-thēt'ĭk) adj.

syn·es·thete (sĭn'īs-thēt') n. A person who experiences synesthesia, as by having a secondary sensation of sound as color or of color as sound.

syn·fu·el (sĭn'fyōō'əl) n. A liquid or gaseous fuel derived from coal, shale, or tar sand, or obtained by fermentation of certain substances, such as grain. [SYN(THETIC) + FUEL.]

syn·ga·my (sĭng'gə-mē) n. The fusion of two gametes in fertilization.

—syn·gam'ic (sĭn-gām'ĭk), syn'ga·mous (sĭng'gə-məs) adj.

Synge (sĭng), John Millington. 1871-1909. Irish playwright whose works, based on rural Irish life, include The Playboy of the Western World (1907).

Synge (sĭng), Richard Laurence Millington. Born 1914. British biochemist. He shared a 1952 Nobel Prize for the development of partition chromatography.

syn·ge·ne·ic (sĭn'jə-nē'ĭk) adj. Genetically identical or closely related, so as to allow tissue transplant; immunologically compatible: syngeneic grafts; syngeneic animals. [From Greek sungeneia, kinship : syn-, syn- + genos, family; see gen- in Appendix.] —syn·ge·ne'i·cal·ly adv.

syn·gen·e·sis (sĭn-jĕn'ī-sĭs) n. Sexual reproduction. —syn'ge·net'ic (-jə-nĕt'ĭk) adj.

syn·i·ze·sis (sĭn'ī-zē'sĭs) n. pl. syn·i·ze·ses (-sēz). 1. Linguistics. The union in pronunciation of two adjacent vowels into one syllable without forming a diphthong. 2. Biology. The phase of meiosis in some species in which the chromatin contracts into a mass at one side of the nucleus. [Late Latin synizēsis, from Greek sunizēsis, from sunizein, to collapse : sun-, syn- + hizein, to settle down; see sed- in Appendix.]

syn·kar·y·on (sĭn-kār'ē-ŏn', -ē-ən) n. The nucleus of a fertilized egg immediately after the male and female nuclei have fused. [SYN- + Greek karuon, nut, seed; see kar- in Appendix.] —syn·kar'y·on'ic (-ŏn'ĭk) adj.

syn·ki·ne·sis (sĭn'kə-nē'sĭs, -kĭ-, sĭng'-) n. Involuntary movement of muscles or limbs accompanying a voluntary movement. —syn'ki·net'ic (-nĕt'ĭk) adj.

syn·od (sĭn'əd) n. 1. A council or an assembly of church officials or churches; an ecclesiastical council. 2. A council or an assembly. [Middle English, from Latin synodus, from Greek sunodos, meeting, assembly : sun-, syn- + hodos, way, course.] —syn'od'al (sɪn'ə-dl) adj.

syn·od·ic (sɪ-nōd'ɪk) or syn·od·i·cal (-nōd'ɪ-kəl) adj. 1. Of or relating to a synod; synodal. 2. Relating to the conjunction of celestial bodies, especially the interval between two successive conjunctions of a planet or the moon with the sun. —syn·od'i·cal·ly adv.

synodic month (sɪ-nōd'ɪk mʌnth) n. See lunar month.

syn·o·nym (sɪn'ə-nɪm') n. Abbr. syn. 1. A word having the same or nearly the same meaning as another word or other words in a language. 2. A word or an expression that serves as a figurative or symbolic substitute for another.

3. Biology. A scientific name of an organism or of a taxonomic group that has been superseded by another name at the same rank. [Middle English synonyme, from Old French synonyme, from Latin synōnymum, from Greek sunōnumon, from neuter of sunōnumos, synonymous. See SYNONYMOUS.] —syn'o·nym'ic, syn'o·nym'i·cal adj. —syn'o·nym'i·ty n.

syn·on·y·mist (sɪ-nōn'ə-mɪst) n. One who studies or discriminates synonyms.

syn·on·y·mize (sɪ-nōn'ə-mɪz') v. tr. syn·on·y·mized, syn·on·y·miz·ing, syn·on·y·miz·es. To analyze or provide the synonyms of (words or a word).

syn·on·y·mous (sɪ-nōn'ə-məs) adj. Abbr. syn. 1. Having the same or a similar meaning: synonymous words. 2. Equivalent in connotation: “a widespread impression that... Hollywood was synonymous with immorality” (Doris Kearns Goodwin). [Medieval Latin synōnymus, from Greek sunōnumos : sun-, syn- + onoma, onuma, name; see nō-men- in Appendix.] —syn·on'y·mous·ly adv.

syn·on·y·my (sɪ-nōn'ə-mē) n. pl. syn·on·y·mies. Abbr. syn. 1. The quality of being synonymous; equivalence of meaning. 2. Study and classification of synonyms. 3. A list, book, or system of synonyms. 4. Biology. A chronological list or record of the scientific names that have been applied to a species and its subdivisions.

syn·op·sis (sɪ-nöp'sɪs) n. pl. syn·op·ses (-sēz). A brief outline or general view, as of a subject or written work; an abstract or a summary. [Late Latin, from Greek sunopsis, general view : sun-, syn- + opsis, view; see ok^w- in Appendix.]

syn·op·size (sɪ-nöp'sɪz') v. tr. syn·op·sized, syn·op·siz·ing, syn·op·siz·es. To make a synopsis of; summarize. [Greek sunopsizein, to sum up, from sunopsis, general view. See SYNOPSIS.]

syn·op·tic (sɪ-nöp'tɪk) also syn·op·ti·cal (-tɪ-kəl) adj. 1. Of or constituting a synopsis; presenting a summary of the principal parts or a general view of the whole. 2. a. Taking the same point of view. b. Often Synoptic. Relating to or being the first three gospels of the New Testament, which correspond closely. [Greek sunoptikos, from sunopsis, general view. See SYNOPSIS.] —syn·op'ti·cal·ly adv.

syn·os·to·sis (sĭn'ōs-tō'sĭs) n. pl. syn·os·to·ses (-sēz). The fusion of normally separate skeletal bones. [SYN- + Greek osteon, bone; see ost- in Appendix + -OSIS.] —syn'os·tot'ic (-tōt'ĭk) adj.

syn·o·vi·a (sĭ-nō'vĕ-ə) n. A clear, viscid lubricating fluid secreted by membranes in joint cavities, sheaths of tendons, and bursae. [New Latin.]

—syn·o'vi·al adj.

syn·no·vi·tis (sĭ'nə-vī'tĭs) n. Inflammation of a synovial membrane. [New Latin synovium, synovia-secreting membrane (from SYNOVIA) + -ITIS.]

syn·sep·al·ous (sĭn-sĕp'ə-ləs) adj. Botany. Having united sepals; gamosepalous.

syn·tac·tic (sĭn-tāk'tĭk) or syn·tac·ti·cal (-tĭ-kəl) adj. 1. Of or relating to the rules of syntax. 2. Conforming to accepted patterns of syntax. [Greek suntaktikos, putting together, from suntaktos, constructed, from suntassein, to construct. See SYNTAX.] —syn·tac'ti·cal·ly adv.

syn·tac·tics (sĭn-tāk'tĭks) n. (used with a sing. verb). The branch of semiotics that deals with the formal properties of signs and symbols. [From SYNTACTIC.]

syn·tax (sĭn'täks') n. 1. a. The study of the rules whereby words or other elements of sentence structure are combined to form grammatical sentences. b. A publication, such as a book, that presents such rules. c. The pattern of formation of sentences or phrases in a language. d. Such a pattern in a particular sentence or discourse. 2. Computer Science. The rules governing construction of a machine language. 3. A systematic, orderly arrangement. [French syntaxe, from Late Latin syntaxis, from Greek suntaxis, from suntassein, put in order : sun-, syn- + tassein, tag-, to arrange.]

syn·te·ny (sĭn'tə-nĕ) n. The condition of two or more genes being located on the same chromosome whether or not there is demonstrable linkage between them. [SYN- + Greek tainia, band; see TAENIA.] —syn·ten'ic (-tĕn'ĭk) adj.

synth (sĭnth) Informal. n. A synthesizer.

syn·the·sis (sĭn'thĭ-sĭs) n. pl. syn·the·ses (-sēz'). 1. a. The combining of separate elements or substances to form a coherent whole. b. The complex whole so formed. 2. Chemistry. Formation of a compound from simpler compounds or elements. 3. Philosophy. a. Reasoning from the general to the particular; logical deduction. b. The combination of thesis and antithesis in the Hegelian dialectical process whereby a new and higher level of truth is produced. [Latin, collection, from Greek synthesis, from suntithenai, to put together : sun-, syn- + tithenai, to put; see dhē- in Appendix.] —syn'the·sist n.

synthesis gas (sĭn'thĭ-sĭs gās) n. A mixture of gases made as feedstock, especially a fuel produced by controlled combustion of coal in the presence of water vapor.

syn·the·size (sĭn'thĭ-sĭz') v. syn·the·sized, syn·the·siz·ing, syn·the·siz·es. — v. tr. 1. To combine so as to form a new, complex product:

“His works synthesize photography, painting and linguistic devices” (Paul Taylor).

2. To form or produce by chemical synthesis. — v. intr. To form a synthesis.

syn-the-sized (sɪn/ˈθiː-sīzd/) adj. Music. 1. Relating to or being an instrument whose sound is modified or augmented by a synthesizer. 2. Relating to or being compositions or a composition performed on synthesizers or synthesized instruments.

syn-the-siz-er (sɪn/ˈθiː-sīzər) n. 1. One that synthesizes: a synthesizer of varied ideas conceived by others. 2. Music. An electronic instrument, often played with a keyboard, that combines simple waveforms to produce more complex sounds, such as those of various other instruments.

syn-the-tase (sɪn/ˈθiː-tās/, -tāz/) n. See ligase. [SYNTHET(IC) + -ASE.]

syn-thet-ic (sɪn-thət/ɪk) adj. 1. Relating to, involving, or of the nature of synthesis. 2. Chemistry. Produced by synthesis, especially not of natural origin. 3. a. Not natural or genuine; artificial or contrived: “counterfeit rhetoric that flourishes when passions are synthetic” (George F. Will). b. Prepared or made artificially: synthetic leather. See Synonyms at artificial. 4. Linguistics. Relating to or being a language, such as Latin or Russian, that uses inflectional affixes to express syntactic relationships. 5. Logic & Philosophy. Relating to or being a proposition that attributes to a subject a predicate not inherent in the subject and that does not result in a contradiction if negated. — n. A synthetic chemical compound or material. [Greek sunthetikos, skilled in putting together, component, from sunthetos, combined, from suntithenai, to put together. See SYNTHESIS.]

—syn-thet/i-cal-ly adv.

synthetic division (sɪn-thət/ɪk dī-vīzh/ən) n. Mathematics. A method of dividing polynomials when the divisor is a polynomial of the first degree, by using only the coefficients of the terms.

syn-ton-ic (sɪn-tŏn/ɪk) adj. Psychology. Characterized by a high emotional responsiveness to the environment. [From Greek suntonos, high-strung, intense, attuned, from sunteinein, to draw tight : sun-, syn- + teinein, to stretch; see ten- in Appendix.]

syn-tro-phism (sɪn-trŏf/ɪz/əm) also syn-tro-phy (sɪn/trə-fē) n. A biological relationship in which microorganisms of two different species or strains are mutually dependent on one another for nutritional requirements.

sy-pher (sī/fər) v. tr. sy-phered, sy-pher-ing, sy-phas. To overlap and even (chamfered or beveled plank edges) so that they form a flush surface. [Alteration of CIPHER, to chamfer away.]

syph-i-lis (sɪf/ə-lɪs) n. A chronic infectious disease caused by a spirochete (Treponema pallidum), either transmitted by direct contact, usually in sexual intercourse, or passed from mother to child in utero, and progressing through three stages characterized respectively by local formation of chancres, ulcerous skin eruptions, and systemic infection leading to general paresis. [New Latin, from

Syphilis, sive Morbus Gallicus, “Syphilis, or the French Disease,” title of a poem by Girolamo Fracastoro (1478?-1553), from Syphilus, the poem’s protagonist.]

WORD HISTORY: In 1530 Girolamo Fracastoro, a physician, astronomer, and poet of Verona, published a poem entitled “Syphilis, sive Morbus Gallicus,” translated as “Syphilis, or the French Disease.” In Fracastoro’s poem the name of this dreaded venereal disease is an altered form of the hero’s name, Syphilus. The hero, a shepherd, is supposed to have been the first victim of the disease. Where the name Syphilus itself came from is not known for certain, but it has been suggested that Fracastoro borrowed the name from Ovid’s Metamorphoses. In Ovid’s work Sipylus (spelled Siphylus in some manuscripts) is the oldest son of Niobe, who lived not far from Mount Sipylon in Asia Minor. Fracastoro’s poem about Syphilus was modeled on the story of Niobe. Although the etymology involving Sipylus was known to the editors of the Oxford English Dictionary, it was not accepted as their last word on the subject. C.T. Onions, one of the dictionary’s editors, writing in the Oxford Dictionary of English Etymology, says that “Syphilus [the shepherd’s name] is of unkn[own] origin.” Fracastoro went on to use the term syphilis again in his medical treatise De Contagione, published in 1546. The word that Fracastoro used in Latin was eventually borrowed into English, being first recorded in 1718.

syph·i·lit·ic (sɪf’ə-lɪt’ɪk) adj. Of, relating to, or affected with syphilis. — n. A person affected with syphilis. [New Latin syphiliticus, from syphilis, syphilis. See SYPHILIS.]

syph·i·loid (sɪf’ə-loɪd’) adj. Characteristic of or resembling syphilis.

sy·phon (sɪ’fən) n. & v. Variant of siphon.

Syr. abbr. Syria.

Syr·a·cuse (sɪr’ə-kyoʊs’, -kyoʊz’) 1. A city of southeast Sicily, Italy, on the Ionian Sea south-southeast of Catania. Founded by colonists from Corinth in the eighth century B.C., it reached the height of its power in the fifth century but fell to the Romans in 212. Population, 117,689. 2. A city of central New York east-southeast of Rochester. Originally a trading post and saltworks, it is now a manufacturing and educational center. Population, 163,860.

Syr Dar·ya (sɪr dār’yə, dər-yä’) A river of southern Kirghiz, eastern Uzbekistan, northern Tadjikistan, and southern Kazakhstan rising in the Tien Shan and flowing about 2,220 km (1,380 mi) northwest to the Aral Sea.

Syr·ette (sɪ-rět’) A trademark used for a collapsible tube having an attached hypodermic needle containing a single dose of medicine.

Sy·ri·a (sɪr’ē-ə) Abbr. Syr. A country of southwest Asia on the eastern Mediterranean coast. Conquered by various powers in ancient times, it was a province of the Ottoman Empire (1516-1918) and became a French territory in 1920. Syria officially gained its independence in 1944. Damascus is the capital and the largest city. Population, 9,052,628. —Syr'i-an adj. & n.

Syr-i-ac (sîr'ē-āk') n. An ancient Aramaic language spoken in Syria from the 3rd to the 13th century that survives as the liturgical language of several Eastern Christian churches.

Syrian Desert (sîr'ē-ən dĕz'ərt) A desert region of northern Arabia occupying northern Saudi Arabia, western Iraq, southeast Syria, and eastern Jordan. It is crossed by a number of oil pipelines.

sy-rin·ga (sə-rîng'gə) n. The mock orange. [New Latin, from Greek surinx, sur-ing-, shepherd's pipe (from the use of its hollow stems to make pipes).]

sy-ringe (sə-rînj', sîr'inj) n. 1. A medical instrument used to inject fluids into the body or draw them from it. 2. A hypodermic syringe. [Middle English, alteration (influenced by Late Latin syringēs, pl. of syrinx, syrinx); see SYRINX, of syr-yn-g, from Medieval Latin syringa, from Late Latin, injection, from Greek surinx, sur-ing-, shepherd's pipe.]

sy-rin·ges (sə-rînj'jēz, -rîng'gēz) n. A plural of syrinx.

sy-rin·go·my·e·li·a (sə-rîng'gō-mī-ē'lē-ə) n. A chronic disease of the spinal cord characterized by the presence of fluid-filled cavities and leading to spasticity and sensory disturbances. [New Latin : Greek surinx, spinal cavity + Greek muelos, marrow (from mus, mouse, muscle); see mūs- in Appendix.]

—sy-rin'go·my·el'ic (-ĕl'ik) adj.

syr·inx (sîr'îngks) n. pl. sy-rin·ges (sə-rînj'jēz, -rîng'gēz) or syr·inx·es.

1. Music. See panpipe. 2. Zoology. The vocal organ of a bird, consisting of thin vibrating muscles at or close to the division of the trachea into the bronchi.

[Latin syrinx, from Greek surinx.] —sy-rin'ge·al (sə-rînj'jē-əl) adj.

Sy-ros (sî'rōs') also Sí-ros (sē'rōs') An island of Greece in the north-central Cyclades. It is the richest and most populous of the Cyclades.

syr·phid (sûr'fid) n. Any of numerous flies of the family Syrphidae, many of which have a form or coloration mimicking that of bees or wasps. Adult syrphids feed on the nectar and pollen of flowers while the larvae of various species feed on plants and aphids. Also called syrphus fly — adj. Of or belonging to the syrphids. [From New Latin Syrphidae, family name, from Syrphus, type genus, from Greek surphos, gnat.]

syr·phus fly (sûr'fəs flī) n. See syrphid. [New Latin Syrphus, fly genus. See SYRPHID.]

syr·up also sir·up (sîr'əp, sûr'-) n. 1. A thick, sweet, sticky liquid, consisting of a sugar base, natural or artificial flavorings, and water. 2. The juice of a fruit or plant boiled with sugar until thick and sticky. 3. A concentrated solution of sugar in water, often used as a vehicle for medicine. [Middle English sirup, from Old French sirop, from Medieval Latin siropus, from Arabic šarāb, from šariba, to drink.]

syr·up·y also sir·up·y (sĭr'ə-pē, sŭr'-) adj. 1. Resembling syrup in taste or consistency. 2. Cloyingly sweet or sentimental.

sys·sar·co·sis (sĭs'är-kō'sĭs) n. pl. sys·sar·co·ses (-sēz). The union or attachment of bones, such as the hyoid bone and lower jaw, by means of muscle. [Greek sussarkōsis, state of being overgrown with flesh, from sussarkousthai, to be overgrown with flesh : sun-, syn- + sarkousthai, passive of sarkoun, to make fleshy (from sarx, sark-, flesh).]

sys·t. abbr. System.

sys·tal·tic (sĭ-stōl'tĭk, -stäl'-) adj. Alternately contracting and dilating, as the heart; pulsating. [Late Latin systalticus, from Greek sustaltikos, from sustellein, to contract : sun-, syn- + stellein, to send; see stel- in Appendix.]

sys·tem (sĭs'təm) n. Abbr. syst. 1. A group of interacting, interrelated, or interdependent elements forming a complex whole. 2. A functionally related group of elements, especially: a. The human body regarded as a functional physiological unit. b. An organism as a whole, especially with regard to its vital processes or functions. c. A group of physiologically or anatomically complementary organs or parts: the nervous system; the skeletal system. d. A group of interacting mechanical or electrical components. e. A network of structures and channels, as for communication, travel, or distribution. 3. An organized set of interrelated ideas or principles. 4. A social, economic, or political organizational form. 5. A naturally occurring group of objects or phenomena: the solar system. 6. A set of objects or phenomena grouped together for classification or analysis. 7. A condition of harmonious, orderly interaction. 8. An organized and coordinated method; a procedure. See Synonyms at method. 9. The prevailing social order; the establishment. Used with the: You can't beat the system. [Late Latin systema, systemat-, from Greek sustēma, from sunistanai, to combine : sun-, syn- + histanai, set up, establish; see stā- in Appendix.]

sys·tem·at·ic (sĭs'tə-măt'ĭk) also sys·tem·at·i·cal (-ĭ-kəl) adj. 1. Of, characterized by, based on, or constituting a system. 2. Carried on using step-by-step procedures. 3. Purposefully regular; methodical. See Synonyms at orderly. 4. Of or relating to classification or taxonomy. —sys'tem-at-i-cal-ly adv.

sys·tem·at·ics (sĭs'tə-măt'ĭks) n. (used with a sing. verb). 1. The science of systematic classification. 2. A system of classification, as biosystematics. 3. Biology. The systematic classification of organisms and the evolutionary relationships among them; taxonomy.

sys·tem·a·tism (sĭs'tə-mə-tĭz'əm, sĭ-stēm'ə-) n. 1. The practice of classifying or systematizing. 2. Adherence to a system or systems.

sys·tem·a·tist (sĭs'tə-mə-tĭst, sĭ-stēm'ə-) n. 1. One who adheres to or formulates a system or systems. 2. A taxonomist.

sys·tem·a·tize (sĭs'tə-mə-tĭz') v. tr. sys·tem·a·tized, sys·tem·a·tiz·ing, sys·tem·a·tiz·es. To formulate into or reduce to a system: "The aim of science is surely to amass and systematize knowledge” (V. Gordon Childe). See Synonyms at arrange. —sys'tem-a-ti-za'tion (-tĭ-zā'shən) n. —sys'tem-a-tiz'er n.

sys·tem·ic (sĭ-stĕm'ĭk) adj. 1. Of or relating to systems or a system. 2. a. Of, relating to, or affecting the entire body or an entire organism: systemic symptoms; a systemic poison. b. Relating to or affecting a particular body system, especially the nervous system: a systemic lesion. c. Physiology. Of or relating to systemic circulation. —sys·tem'i-cal-ly adv.

systemic circulation (sĭ-stĕm'ĭk sŭr'kyə-lā'shən) n. Physiology. The general circulation of the blood through the body, as opposed to the circulation of the blood from the heart to the lungs and back to the heart.

systemic lupus er·y·the·ma·to·sus (sĭ-stĕm'ĭk lōō'pəs ər'ə-thĕ'mə-tō'sĭs) n. Abbr. SLE A chronic disease of the connective tissue, characterized by fever, skin eruptions, pain in the muscles and joints, and anemia, and often affecting the kidneys, spleen, and various other organs.

sys·tem·ize (sĭs'tə-mĭz') v. tr. sys·tem·ized, sys·tem·iz·ing, sys·tem·iz·es.

To systematize. —sys'tem-i-za'tion (-tə-mĭ-zā'shən) n. —sys'tem-iz'er n.

sys·tems analysis (sĭs'təmz ə-nāl'ĭ-sĭs) n. 1. The study of an activity or a procedure to determine the desired end and the most efficient method of obtaining this end. 2. The act, process, or profession of systems analysis.

systems analyst (sĭs'təmz ən'ə-lĭst) n. One who performs systems analysis.

sys·to·le (sĭs'tə-lĕ) n. The rhythmic contraction of the heart, especially of the ventricles, by which blood is driven through the aorta and pulmonary artery after each dilation or diastole. [Greek sustolē, contraction, from sustellein, to contract. See SYSTALTIC.] —sys·tol'ic (sĭ-stōl'ĭk) adj.

systolic pressure (sĭ-stōl'ĭk prĕsh'ər) n. Blood pressure within the arteries when the heart muscle is contracting.

Syz·ran (sĭz'rən) A city of western Russia on the Volga River west of Kuibyshev. It is a major river port and rail center. Population, 173,000.

syz·y·gy (sĭz'ə-jĕ) n. pl. syz·y·gies. 1. Astronomy. a. Either of two points in the orbit of a celestial body where the body is in opposition to or in conjunction with the sun. b. Either of two points in the orbit of the moon when the moon lies in a straight line with the sun and Earth. c. The configuration of the sun, the moon, and Earth lying in a straight line. 2. The combining of two feet into a single metrical unit in classical prosody. [Late Latin sŷzygia, from Greek suzugia, union, from suzugos, paired : sun-, syn- + zupon, yoke; see yeug- in Appendix.] —sy·zyg'i·al (sĭ-zĭj'ĕ-əl) adj.

Szce·cin (shchĕ'chĕn') also Stet·tin (stə-tĕn', shtĕ-) A city of northwest Poland near the mouth of the Oder River. It was ruled by Sweden from 1648 to 1720, when it was ceded to Prussia. After World War II the city became part of Poland. Population, 390,800.

Sze·chuan (sĕch'wän') See Sichuan.

Szechuan pepper or Szechwan pepper (sěch'wän' pěp'ər) n. A Chinese tree or shrub (Zanthoxylum simulans) having aromatic bark, pinnately compound leaves, and spicy, two-valved, reddish, dry fruits.

Sze-chwan (sěch'wän') See Sichuan.

Sze-ged (sěg'ěd') A city of southern Hungary on the Tisza River near the Yugoslavian border. It is a major river port and an agricultural center. Population, 178,591.

Szé-kes-fe-hér-vár (sā'kěsh-fě'hâr-vâr') A city of central Hungary on the Danube River south-southwest of Budapest. It was the coronation and burial place of Hungary's kings from 1027 to 1527. Population, 110,203.

Szell (sěl, zěl), George. 1897-1970. Hungarian-born American conductor who was best known as the musical director of the Cleveland Orchestra (1946-1970).

Szent-Györ-gyi (sânt-jôr'jē, sěnt-dyœr'dyĩ), Albert. 1893-1986. Hungarian-born American biochemist. He was the first to isolate vitamin C and won the 1937 Nobel Prize for discoveries relating to biological combustion.

Szi-ge-ti (sĩg'ĩ-tē, sĩ-gět'ē), Joseph. 1892-1973. Hungarian-born American violinist known especially for his interpretations of complex modern works, including compositions by Bartók and Prokofiev.

Szi-lard (zĩl'ərd, zə-lärd'), Leo. 1898-1964. Hungarian-born American physicist and biologist. A member of the Manhattan Engineering Project, he helped develop the first atomic bomb. Szilard was later opposed to the construction and use of all nuclear weapons and devoted himself to studying molecular biology.

Szold (zöld), Henrietta. 1860-1945. American Zionist leader who was a founder of Hadassah (1912), the Women's Zionist Organization of America.

Szol-nok (söl'nök') A city of central Hungary east-southeast of Budapest. It is an industrial and commercial center. Population, 79,619.

Szom-bat-hely (sōm'bôt-hā') A city of western Hungary near the Austrian border. Founded in Roman times, it is an industrial center and an important railroad junction. Population, 85,830.

- t¹ or T (tē) n. pl. t's or T's. 1. The 20th letter of the modern English alphabet. 2. Any of the speech sounds represented by the letter t. 3. The 20th in a series. 4. Something shaped like the letter T. —idiom. to a T. Perfectly; precisely:
This performer fits the role to a T.
- t² abbr. 1. Troy (system of weights). 2. Physics. Top quark.
- T¹ The symbol for the isotope tritium.
- T² abbr. 1. Temperature. 2. Tesla. 3. Mathematics. Time reversal.
- t. abbr. 1. Tare. 2. Teaspoon; teaspoonful. 3. Music. Tempo. 4. Latin. Tempore (in the time of). 5. Or T. Music. Tenor. 6. Grammar. Tense. 7. Terminal. 8. Or T. Territory. 9. Or T. Time. 10. Ton. 11. Or T. Town; township. 12. Transit. 13. Grammar. Transitive.
- T. abbr. 1. Tablespoon; tablespoonful. 2. Bible. Testament. 3. Tuesday.
- ta (tä) interj. Chiefly British. Used to express thanks. [Baby-talk alteration of thank you.]
- Ta The symbol for the element tantalum.
- TA abbr. Teaching assistant.
- Taal¹ (tä-äl') A lake of southwest Luzon, Philippines, south of Manila. It contains Volcano Island, the site of the active volcano Mount Taal.
- Taal² (tä) n. See Afrikaans. [Afrikaans, from Middle Dutch tāle, speech. See del-² in Appendix.]
- tab¹ (täb) n. 1. A projection, flap, or short strip attached to an object to facilitate opening, handling, or identification. 2. A small, usually decorative flap or tongue on a garment. 3. A small auxiliary airfoil that is attached to a larger one and that helps stabilize an aircraft. 4. A pull-tab. — v. tr. tabbed, tabbing, tabs. To supply with a tab or tabs. [Origin unknown.]
- tab² (täb) n. 1. Informal. A bill or check, such as one for a meal in a restaurant. 2. A tabulator on a typewriter. —idiom. keep tabs on. Informal. To observe carefully: Let's keep tabs on expenditures. [Short for TABLET, or TABULATION. Sense 2, short for TABULATOR.]
- tab. abbr. Table.
- ta-ba-nid (tä-bä'nid, -bän'id) n. Any of various bloodsucking dipterous flies of the family Tabanidae, which includes the horseflies. [New Latin Tabānidae, family name, from Latin tabānus, horsefly.] —ta-ba'nid adj.
- tab-ard (täb'ärd) n. 1. A short, heavy cape of coarse cloth formerly worn outdoors. 2. a. A tunic or capelike garment worn by a knight over his armor and emblazoned with his coat of arms. b. A similar garment worn by a herald and bearing his lord's coat of arms. 3. An embroidered pennant attached to a trumpet. [Middle English, from Old French tabart, or Old Spanish tabardo.]
- tab-a-ret (täb'ä-rät') n. A strong upholstery fabric having alternating stripes of satin and moiré. [Probably from TABBY.]

Tabasco (tə-bās'kō) A trademark used for a very spicy sauce made from a strong-flavored red pepper. This trademark occurs in print in figurative contexts: "It will likely be some time before normalcy is restored to classrooms after the Tabasco-tempered 11-day walkout" (Christian Science Monitor).

tabasco pepper (tə-bās'kō pĕp'ər) n. A very pungent pepper (Capsicum frutescens) grown principally in the Gulf Coast states for commercial production of hot sauces.

tabbouleh also tabbouli (tə-bōō'lē) n. A finely chopped Lebanese salad made with bulgur wheat, scallions, tomatoes, mint, and parsley. [Arabic tabbūlah.]

tabby (tăb'ē) n. pl. tabbies. 1. A rich watered silk. 2. A fabric of plain weave. 3. a. A domestic cat with a striped or brindled coat of a gray or tawny color. b. A domestic cat, especially a female. 4. A spinster. 5. A prying woman; a gossip. 6. South Atlantic U.S. A mixture of oyster shells, lime, sand, and water used as a building material. — adj. 1. Having light and dark striped markings: a tabby cat. 2. Made of or resembling watered silk. [French tabis, from Old French atabis, from Medieval Latin attabī, from Arabic 'attābī, after al-'Attābiya, a suburb of Baghdad, Iraq.]

tabernacle (tăb'ər-năk'əl) n. 1. Often Tabernacle. a. The portable sanctuary in which the Jews carried the Ark of the Covenant through the desert. b. The Jewish temple. 2. Often Tabernacle. A case or box on a church altar containing the consecrated host and wine of the Eucharist. 3. a. A place of worship. b. The Mormon temple. 4. A niche for a statue or relic. 5. Nautical. A boxlike support in which the heel of a mast is stepped. [Middle English, from Old French, from Late Latin tabernaculum, from Latin, tent, diminutive of taberna, hut. See TAVERN.] — tab'ernac'ular (-năk'yə-lər) adj.

tabes (tă'bēz) n. pl. tabes. 1. Progressive bodily wasting or emaciation. 2. Tabes dorsalis. [Latin tābēs.] — ta-bet'ic (tə-bĕt'ik) adj.

tabescent (tə-bĕs'ənt) adj. Progressively wasting away. [Latin tābescēns, tābescēt- present participle of tābescere, to waste away inchoative of tābēre, from tābēs, a wasting away.] — ta-bes'cence n.

tabes dorsalis (tă'bēz dôr-să'līs, -săl'is) n. A late form of syphilis resulting in a hardening of the dorsal columns of the spinal cord and characterized by shooting pains, emaciation, loss of muscular coordination, and disturbances of sensation and digestion. Also called locomotor ataxia [New Latin tābēs dorsālis: Latin tābēs, tabes + Late Latin dorsālis, dorsal.]

tabi (tă'bē) n. pl. tabi or tabis. A socklike cotton, silk, or nylon foot covering with a separate section for the big toe and a thick padded sole, worn in Japan with thong sandals, clogs, or zoris. [Japanese.]

tabla (tă'blə, tŭb'lə) n. Music. A small hand drum of India. [Hindi tablā, from Arabic ṭabla, from ṭabl, drum.]

Tab-las (tä'bläs) An island of the central Philippines east of Mindoro. It is the largest of the Romblon Islands.

tab-la-ture (täb'lä-chōōr', -chär) n. 1. An engraved tablet or surface.

2. Music. An early system of notation that used letters and symbols to indicate playing directions rather than tones. [French, alteration (influenced by Latin tabula, table), of Italian intavolatura, from intavolare, to put on a board : Latin in-, in- + tavola, table, board (from Latin tabula).]

ta-ble (tä'bəl) n. Abbr. tab. 1. a. An article of furniture supported by one or more vertical legs and having a flat horizontal surface. b. The objects laid out for a meal on this article of furniture. 2. The food and drink served at meals; fare: kept an excellent table. 3. The company of people assembled around a table, as for a meal. 4. Games. A piece of furniture serving as a playing surface, as for faro, roulette, or dice. Often used in the plural. 5. Games. a. Either of the leaves of a backgammon board. b. tables. Obsolete. The game of backgammon. 6. A plateau or tableland. 7. a. A flat facet cut across the top of a precious stone. b. A stone or gem cut in this fashion. 8. Music. The front part of the body of a stringed instrument. 9. Architecture. a. A raised or sunken rectangular panel on a wall. b. A raised horizontal surface or continuous band on an exterior wall; a stringcourse. 10. A part of the human palm framed by four lines, analyzed in palmistry. 11. An orderly arrangement of data, especially one in which the data are arranged in columns and rows in an essentially rectangular form. 12. An abbreviated list, as of contents; a synopsis. 13. An engraved slab or tablet bearing an inscription or a device. 14. Anatomy. The inner or outer flat layer of bones of the skull separated by the diploe. 15. tables. A system of laws or decrees; a code: the tables of Moses. — v. tr. ta-bled, ta-bling, ta-bles. 1. To put or place on a table. 2. To postpone consideration of (a piece of legislation, for example); shelve. 3. To enter in a list or table; tabulate. — idioms. on the table. 1. Up for discussion: Two new proposals are on the table. 2. Postponed or put aside for consideration at a later date. under the table. 3. In secret. 4. Into a completely intoxicated state: drank themselves under the table. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin tabula, board.]

tab-leau (täb'lō', tä-blō') n. pl. tab-leaux or tab-leaus (täb'lōz', tä-blōz').

1. A vivid or graphic description: The movie was a tableau of a soldier's life. 2. A striking incidental scene, as of a picturesque group of people: "New public figures suddenly abound in the hitherto faceless totalitarian tableaux" (John McLaughlin). 3. An interlude during a scene when all the performers on stage freeze in position and then resume action as before. 4. A tableau vivant. [French, from Old French tablel, diminutive of table, surface prepared for painting. See TABLE.]

tableau vi-vant (täb'lō' vē-vän') n. pl. tab-leaux vi-vants (tä-blō' vē-vän'). A scene presented on stage by costumed actors who remain silent and motionless as if in a picture. [French : tableau, picture + vivant, living.]

Table Bay (tā' bəl bā) n. An inlet of the Atlantic Ocean off southwest South Africa that forms the harbor of Cape Town.

table-cloth (tā' bəl-klōth', -klōth') n. A cloth to cover a table, especially during a meal.

table d'hôte (tā' bəl dōt', tā' blə) n. pl. tables d'hôte (tā' bəl dōt', tā' blə).

1. A communal table for all the guests at a hotel or restaurant. 2. A full-course meal offering a limited number of choices and served at a fixed price in a restaurant or hotel. In this sense, also called prix fixe [French : table, table + de, of + hôte, host.]

table-hop (tā' bəl-hōp') v. intr. table--hopped, table--hop-ping, table-hops. Informal. To move around from table to table greeting friends, as in a restaurant or nightclub. — table-hop'per n.

table-land (tā' bəl-länd') n. A flat, elevated region; a plateau or mesa.

table linen (tā' bəl līn' ən) n. Tablecloths and napkins.

table-mate (tā' bəl-māt') n. A person with whom one shares a table, as while dining.

table money (tā' bəl mūn' ē) n. Chiefly British. An allowance given especially to senior officers in the armed services for the official entertaining of visitors.

table salt (tā' bəl sōlt) n. See salt (n., sense 1).

table-side (tā' bəl-sīd') n. The area beside or around a table, especially in a restaurant. — adv. & adj. Made or prepared alongside a table: lamb that was carved tableside; a tableside recitation of the menu.

table-spoon (tā' bəl-spōōn') n. 1. A large spoon used for serving food. 2. Abbr. T., tbs., tbsp. A household cooking measure equal to 3 teaspoons, or 2 fluid ounce (15 milliliters). See Table at measurement.

table-spoon-ful (tā' bəl-spōōn-fōōl') n. pl. table-spoon-fuls. Abbr. T., tbs., tbsp. The amount that a tablespoon can hold.

table sugar (tā' bəl shōōg' ər) n. See sugar (n., sense 1).

tablet (tāb' līt) n. 1. A slab or plaque, as of stone or ivory, with a surface that is intended for or bears an inscription. 2. a. A thin sheet or leaf, used as a writing surface. b. A set of such leaves fastened together, as in a book. c. A pad of writing paper glued together along one edge. 3. A small flat pellet of medication to be taken orally. 4. A small flat cake of a prepared substance, such as soap. — v. tr. tablet-ed, tablet-ing, tablets. 1. To inscribe on a tablet. 2. To form into a tablet. [Middle English tablette, from Old French tablete, diminutive of table, table. See TABLE.]

table talk (tā' bəl tōk) n. Casual mealtime conversation.

table tennis (tā' bəl tēn' is) n. Sports & Games. A game similar to lawn tennis, played on a table with wooden paddles and a small hollow plastic ball.

table-top (tā' bəl-tōp') n. The flat surface of a table. — adj. Made or designed for use on the top of a table: a tabletop copier; tabletop sculpture.

ta·ble·ware (tā'bə'l-wâr') n. The dishes, glassware, and silverware used in setting a table for a meal.

table wine (tā'bə'l wīn) n. An unfortified wine considered suitable to be served with a meal.

tab·loid (tăb'loid') n. A newspaper of small format giving the news in condensed form, usually with illustrated, often sensational material. [From tabloid journalism, from Tabloid, trademark for a drug or chemical in condensed form.]

ta·boo also ta·bu (tə-bōō', tă-) *n. pl. ta·boos also ta·bus. 1. A ban or an inhibition resulting from social custom or emotional aversion. 2. a. A prohibition, especially in Polynesia and other South Pacific islands, excluding something from use, approach, or mention because of its sacred and inviolable nature. b. An object, a word, or an act protected by such a prohibition. — adj. Excluded or forbidden from use, approach, or mention: a taboo subject. — v. tr. ta·booed also ta·bued, ta·boo·ing also ta·bu·ing, ta·boos also ta·bus. To exclude from use, approach, or mention; place under taboo. [Tongan tabu, under prohibition.]*

WORD HISTORY: Among the many discoveries of Capt. James Cook was a linguistic one, the term taboo. Cook used this word in his journal of 1777 while he was in the Friendly Islands (now Tonga). Hence, even though similar words occur in other Polynesian languages, the form taboo from Tongan tabu is the form we have borrowed. The Tongans used tabu as an adjective; they spoke of persons or things that were tabu, that is, “under prohibition, forbidden, or set apart.” Cook, besides borrowing the word into English, also made it into a noun referring to the prohibition itself and a verb meaning “to make someone or something taboo.” From its origins in Polynesian society the word taboo has spread throughout the English-speaking world and has been applied in ways that never occurred to the people from whom Cook originally borrowed it.

ta·boo·li (tə-bōō'lē) n. Variant of tabbouleh.

ta·bor also ta·bour (tā'bər) n. Music. A small drum played by a fifer to accompany the fife. [Middle English tabur, from Old French, alteration of tambur. See TAMBOUR.]

tab·o·ret also tab·ou·ret (tăb'ə-rět', -rā') n. 1. A low stool without a back or arms. 2. A low stand or cabinet. 3. An embroidery frame. [French tabouret, from Old French taburet, diminutive of tabur, tabor. See TABOR.]

ta·bour (tā'bər) n. Music. Variant of tabor.

tab·ou·ret (tăb'ə-rět', -rā') n. Variant of taboret.

Ta·briz¹ (tə-brēz', tă-) A city of northwest Iran east of Lake Urmia. A commercial and industrial center, Tabriz has been subject to numerous devastating earthquakes since 858. Population, 852,000.

Ta·briz² (tä-brēz') n. A cotton and wool Persian rug with designs of stylized animals, hunting scenes, and floral motifs.

ta·bu (tä-bōō', tä-) n., adj. & v. Variant of taboo.

tab·u·lar (täb'yə-lər) adj. 1. Having a plane surface; flat. 2. Geology. Tending to split into thin flat pieces. 3. Organized as a table or list. 4. Calculated by means of a table. [Latin tabulāris, of boards, from tabula, board.] —tab'u·lar·ly adv.

tab·u·la ra·sa (täb'yə-lə rä'sə, -zə) n. pl. tab·u·lae ra·sae (täb'yə-lē' rä'sē, -zē). 1. a. The mind before it receives the impressions gained from experience. b. The unformed, featureless mind in the philosophy of John Locke. 2. A need or an opportunity to start from the beginning. [Medieval Latin tabula rāsa: Latin tabula, tablet + Latin rāsa, feminine of rāsus, erased.]

tab·u·lar·ize (täb'yə-lə-rīz') v. tr. tab·u·lar·ized, tab·u·lar·iz·ing, tab·u·lar·iz·es. To put into tabular form; tabulate. —tab'u·lar·i·za'tion (-lə-rī-zā'shən) n.

tab·u·late (täb'yə-lāt') v. tr. tab·u·lat·ed, tab·u·lat·ing, tab·u·lates. 1. To arrange in tabular form; condense and list. 2. To cut or form with a plane surface. — adj. (täb'yə-līt, -lāt') Having a plane surface. [Latin tabula, writing + -ATE¹.] —tab'u·la'tion n.

tab·u·la·tor (täb'yə-lā'tər) n. 1. One who tabulates: a tabulator of racing scores. 2. A machine that reads, sorts, and prints out information from punched cards. 3. A mechanism on a typewriter for setting automatic stops or margins for columns. 4. Computer Science. A device for reading data from punched cards and producing printed lists or totals of the result.

Tä·by (tē'bü) A city of southeast Sweden, an industrial suburb of Stockholm. Population, 52,771.

TAC abbr. Tactical Air Command.

tac·a·ma·hac (täk'ə-mə-häk') n. 1. Any of several aromatic resinous substances used in ointments and incense. 2. See balsam poplar. [Spanish tacamacaca, tacamahaca, from Nahuatl tecamaca.]

ta·cet (tä'sīt, täs'īt, tä'kēt') v. Music. Be silent. Used chiefly as a direction. [Latin, third person sing. present tense of tacēre, to be silent.]

tach (täk) n. Informal. A tachometer.

tache (täch) n. Archaic. A clasp or buckle. [Middle English, from Old French, of Germanic origin.]

tach·i·na fly (täk'ə-nə flī) n. Any of several bristly, usually grayish dipterous flies of the family Tachinidae, the larvae of which are parasitic on caterpillars and other insects. Also called tachinid [New Latin Tachina, type genus, from Greek takhinē, feminine of takhinos, swift, from takhos, speed.]

tach-i-nid (tăk'ə-nīd') n. See tachina fly. — adj. Of or belonging to the family Tachinidae. [New Latin Tachinidae, family name, from Tachina, type genus. See TACHINA FLY.]

tach-isme or tach-ism (tăsh'iz'əm) n. A French school of art originating in the 1950's and characterized by irregular dabs and splotches of color applied haphazardly to the canvas. [French tachisme, from tache, stain, from Old French teche, mark, of Germanic origin. See deik- in Appendix.] —tach'iste, tach'ist n.

ta-chis-to-scope (tă-kīs'tə-skōp', tə-) n. An apparatus that projects a series of images onto a screen at rapid speed to test visual perception, memory, and learning. [Greek takhistos, superlative of takhus, swift + -SCOPE.]

—ta-chis'to-scop'ic (-skōp'ik) adj. —ta-chis'to-scop'i-cal-ly adv.

tach-o-graph (tăk'ə-grăf') n. A machine that records the measurements of a tachometer, especially one in a vehicle recording its speed and the times at which it was driven. [Greek takhos, speed + -GRAPH.]

ta-chom-e-ter (tă-kōm'ī-tər, tə-) n. An instrument used to measure the rotations per minute of a rotating shaft. [Greek takhos, speed + -METER.]

—tach'o-met'ric (tăk'ə-mēt'rik) adj. —ta-chom'e-try n.

tachy- pref. Rapid; accelerated: tachymeter. [Greek takhu-, from takhus, swift.]

tach-y-ar-rhyth-mi-a (tăk'ē-ə-rīth'mē-ə) n. An excessively rapid heartbeat accompanied by arrhythmia.

tach-y-car-di-a (tăk'ī-kār'dē-ə) n. A rapid heart rate, especially one above 100 beats per minute in an adult. [TACHY- + Greek kardia, heart; see CARDIA.]

—tach'y-car'di-ac (-dē-ăk) adj. & n.

ta-chyg-ra-phy (tă-kīg'rə-fē, tə-) n. The art or practice of rapid writing or shorthand, especially the stenography of the ancient Greeks and Romans.

tach-y-lyte also tach-y-lite (tăk'ə-līt') n. A black, glassy basalt of volcanic origin. [German Tachylyt: Greek takhu-, tachy- + Greek lutos, soluble (from luein, to loosen); see leu- in Appendix.] —tach'y-lyt'ic (-līt'ik) adj.

ta-chym-e-ter (tă-kīm'ī-tər, tə-) n. A surveying instrument used for the rapid determination of distances, elevations, and bearings. —ta-chym'e-try n.

tach-y-on (tăk'ē-ōn') n. A hypothetical subatomic particle that travels faster than the speed of light. —tach'y-on'ic adj.

tach-y-phy-lax-is (tăk'ə-fī-lăk'sīs) n. pl. tach-y-phy-lax-es (-fī-lăk'sēz).

1. Rapid desensitization to a toxic substance produced by inoculation with a series of small doses. 2. A rapidly decreasing response to a drug following administration of the initial doses.

tach-yp-ne-a (tăk'īp-nē'ə, tăk'ī-nē'ə) n. Rapid breathing. [New Latin: TACHY- + Greek pnoiē, breathing (from pnein, to breathe); see pneu- in Appendix.]

ta-chys-ter-ol (tə-kīs'tə-rōl', -rōl', -rōl') n. An isomer of ergosterol that forms vitamin D₂ when irradiated with ultraviolet light.

tac-it (täs'it) adj. 1. Not spoken: indicated tacit approval by smiling and winking. 2. a. Implied by or inferred from actions or statements: Management has given its tacit approval to the plan. b. Law. Arising by operation of the law rather than through direct expression. 3. Archaic. Not speaking; silent. [Latin tacitus, silent, past participle of tacēre, to be silent.] —tac'it-ly adv. —tac'it-ness n.

tac-i-turn (tä's'i-tûrn') adj. Habitually untalkative. See Synonyms at silent. [French taciturne, from Old French, from Latin taciturnus, from tacitus, silent. See TACIT.] —tac'i-tur'ni-ty (-tûr'nĭ-tē) n. —tac'i-turn-ly adv.

Tac-i-tus (tä's'i-təs), Publius Cornelius. A.D. 55?-120?. Roman public official and historian whose two greatest works, Histories and Annals, concern the period from the death of Augustus (A.D. 14) to the death of Domitian (96).

tack¹ (tāk) n. 1. A short, light nail with a sharp point and a flat head.

2. Nautical. a. A rope for holding down the weather clew of a course. b. A rope for hauling the outer lower corner of a studdingsail to the boom. c. The part of a sail, such as the weather clew of a course, to which this rope is fastened. d. The lower forward corner of a fore-and-aft sail. 3. Nautical. a. The position of a vessel relative to the trim of its sails. b. The act of changing from one position or direction to another. c. The distance or leg sailed between changes of position or direction. 4. a. A course of action meant to minimize opposition to the attainment of a goal. b. An approach, especially one of a series of changing approaches. 5. A large, loose stitch made as a temporary binding or as a marker. 6. Stickiness, as that of a newly painted surface. — v. tacked, tack-ing, tacks. — v. tr. 1. To fasten or attach with or as if with a tack: tacked the carpet down. 2. To fasten or mark (cloth or a seam, for example) with a loose basting stitch. 3. To put together loosely and arbitrarily: tacked some stories together in an attempt to write a novel. 4. To add as an extra item; append: tacked two dollars onto the bill. 5. Nautical. To bring (a vessel) into the wind in order to change course or direction. — v. intr. 1. Nautical. a. To change the direction or course of a vessel: ready to tack on the captain's signal. b. To change tack: The ship tacked to starboard. 2. To change one's course of action. [Middle English tak, fastener, from Old North French taque, probably of Germanic origin.] —tack'er n.

—tack'less adj.

tack² (tāk) n. Food, especially coarse or inferior foodstuffs. [Origin unknown.]

tack³ (tāk) n. The harness for a horse, including the bridle and saddle. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a tack room; tack accessories.

[Short for TACKLE.]

tack hammer (tāk häm'ər) n. A light hammer used to drive tacks.

tack-ie (tāk'ē) n. South African. One of a pair of sneakers. [Origin unknown.]

tack·le (tăk'əl) n. 1. The equipment used in a sport or an occupation, especially in fishing; gear. See Synonyms at equipment. 2. (tăk'əl, tã'kəl) 3. Nautical. a. A system of ropes and blocks for raising and lowering weights of rigging and pulleys for applying tension. b. A rope and its pulley. 4. Football. a. Either of the two line players on a team positioned between the guard and the end. b. This position. c. The act of stopping an opposing player by seizing and throwing the player down. — v. tack·led, tack·ling, tack·les. — v. tr. 1. To take on and wrestle with (an opponent or a problem, for example). 2. Football. To seize and throw down (an opposing player). 3. To harness (a horse). — v. intr. Football. To seize and throw down an opponent. [Middle English takel, from Middle Dutch or Middle Low German perhaps akin to Middle Dutch taken, to seize, grasp.] — tack'ler n.

tack·ling (tăk'liŋ) n. Gear; tackle.

tack·y¹ (tăk'ē) adj. tack·i·er, tack·i·est. Slightly adhesive or gummy to the touch; sticky. [From TACK¹.] — tack'i·ness n.

tack·y² (tăk'ē) adj. tack·i·er, tack·i·est. Informal. 1. Neglected and in a state of disrepair: a tacky old cabin in the woods. 2. a. Lacking style or good taste; tawdry: tacky clothes. b. Distasteful or offensive; tasteless: a tacky remark. [From tackey, an inferior horse.] — tack'i·ly adv. — tack'i·ness n.

Tac·na (tăk'nə, tã'nä) A town of southern Peru north of Arica, Chile. The object of a long-standing dispute between Peru and Chile, it became part of Peru in 1929. Population, 97,173.

ta·co (tä'kō) n. pl. ta·cos. A corn tortilla folded around a filling such as ground meat or cheese. [American Spanish, from Spanish, plug, wad of bank notes.]

Ta·co·ma (tä-kō'mə) A city of west-central Washington on an arm of Puget Sound south of Seattle. A major seaport and railroad center, it is one of the chief industrial cities in the Northwest. Population, 176,664.

Ta·con·ic Mountains (tä-kōn'ik moun'tənz) A range of the Appalachian Mountains in southeast New York, western Massachusetts, and southwest Vermont rising to 1,163.9 m (3,816 ft).

tac·o·nite (tăk'ə-nīt') n. A variety of chert containing magnetite and hematite, mined as an iron ore. [After the Taconic (Mountains).]

tact (täkt) n. 1. Acute sensitivity to what is proper and appropriate in dealing with others, including the ability to speak or act without offending. 2. Archaic. The sense of touch. [French, from Old French, sense of touch, from Latin tāctus, from past participle of tangere, to touch. See tag- in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: tact, address, diplomacy, savoir-faire. These nouns denote the ability to deal with others with skill, sensitivity, and finesse. Tact implies fine discernment of what is appropriate and the ability to speak or act without giving offense: “He had... a tact that would preserve him from flagrant error in any society” (Francis Parkman). Address suggests deftness and grace in social situations: “With the charms of beauty she combined the address of an accomplished intriguer” (Charles Merivale). Diplomacy implies adroit, tactful management of difficult situations: Diplomacy secured the cooperation that confrontation had failed to elicit. Savoir-faire involves knowing the right or graceful thing to say or do, either instinctively or as a result of social experience: Living abroad taught him the savoir-faire that his rural upbringing had been unable to provide.

tact·ful (tăkt'fəl) adj. Possessing or exhibiting tact; considerate and discreet: a tactful person; a tactful remark. —tact'ful·ly adv. —tact'ful·ness n.

tac·tic (tăk'tik) n. An expedient for achieving a goal; a maneuver. [French tactique, tactics, from Greek taktika. See TACTICS.]

tac·ti·cal (tăk'tī-kəl) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or using tactics. 2. a. Of, relating to, used in, or involving military or naval operations that are smaller, closer to base, and of less long-term significance than strategic operations. b. Carried out in support of military or naval operations: tactical bombing. 3. Characterized by adroitness, ingenuity, or skill. —tac'ti·cal·ly adv.

tac·ti·cian (tăk-tīsh'ən) n. 1. One who is skilled in the planning and execution of military tactics. 2. A clever maneuverer.

tac·tics (tăk'tiks) n. 1. a. (used with a sing. verb). The military art that deals with securing objectives set by strategy, especially the technique of deploying and directing troops, ships, and aircraft in efficient maneuvers against an enemy: Tactics is a required course at all military academies. b. (used with a pl. verb). Maneuvers used against an enemy: Guerrilla tactics were employed during most of the war. 2. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). A procedure or set of maneuvers engaged in to achieve an end, an aim, or a goal. [New Latin tactica, from Greek taktika, from neuter pl. of taktikos, of order, from taktos, arranged, from tassein, tag-, to arrange.]

tac·tile (tăk'təl, -tīl') adj. 1. a. Perceptible to the sense of touch; tangible. b. Characterized by or conveying an illusion of tangibility: “Heaney must thus continue to be a poet rich in tactile language” (Helen Vendler). 2. Used for feeling: a tactile organ. 3. Of, relating to, or proceeding from the sense of touch; tactual: a tactile reflex. [From Latin tactilis, from tactus, past participle of tangere, to touch. See TACT.] —tac'tile·ly adv. —tac·til'i·ty (-tīl'ī-tē) n.

tactile corpuscle (tăk'təl kôr'pə-səl) n. Any of numerous minute oval end organs of touch in sensitive skin, as in the palms, fingertips, and soles of the feet. Also called tactile bud tactile hair (tăk'təl hâr) n. Sensory hair, such as that of an insect, that responds to pressure or touch.

tac·tion (tăk'shən) n. The act of touching; contact. [Latin tactiō, tactiōn-, from tactus, past participle of tangere, to touch. See TACT.]

tact-less (tăkt'lis) adj. Lacking or exhibiting a lack of tact; bluntly inconsiderate or indiscreet. —tact/less-ly adv. —tact/less-ness n.

tac-to-re-cep-tor (tăk'tō-rī-sĕp'tər) n. A receptor that responds to touch. [Latin tāctus, touch (from past participle of tangere, to touch); see tag- in Appendix + RECEPTOR.]

tac-tu-al (tăk'chōō-əl) adj. Tactile. [Latin tāctus, touch; see TACT + -AL¹.] —tac/tu-al-ly adv.

tad (tăd) n. Informal. 1. A small boy. 2. A small amount or degree; a bit. [Perhaps short for TADPOLE.]

tad-pole (tăd'pōl') n. The limbless aquatic larva of a frog or toad, having gills and a long flat tail. As the tadpole approaches the adult stage, legs and lungs develop, and the tail gradually disappears. Also called polliwog [Middle English taddepol: tadde, tode, toad; see TOAD + pol, head; see POLL.]

Ta-dzhik (tä-jĭk', tə-) n. & adj. Variant of Tajik.

Ta-dzhik-i (tä-jĭk'ē, tə-) n. & adj. Variant of Tajiki.

Ta-dzhik-i-stan or Ta-jik-i-stan (tä-jĭk'i-stăn', -stăn', tə-jĭ-kyĭ-stăn') A region and republic of west-central Asia bordering on Afghanistan and China. It was settled by the Tajik by the 10th century and conquered by the Mongols in the 13th century. The region was acquired by Russia in 1895 and was a constituent republic of the U.S.S.R. from 1929 to 1991. Dushanbe is the capital. Population, 4,499,000.

Tae-gu (tī-gōō') A city of southeast South Korea north-northwest of Pusan. It is an industrial and commercial center. Population, 2,031,000.

Tae-jon (tī-jôn', -jŏn') A city of central South Korea south-southeast of Seoul. It is an agricultural center and a railroad hub. Population, 800,000.

tae kwon do (tī' kwŏn' dō') n. A Korean art of self-defense; a style of karate. [Korean t'aekwōndo: tae-, to trample + kwŏn, fist + -do, way.]

tael (tāl) n. 1. Any of various units of weight used in eastern Asia, roughly equivalent to 38 grams (13 ounces). 2. A monetary unit formerly used in China, equivalent in value to this weight of standard silver. [Portuguese, from Malay tahil, tael.]

tae-ni-a also te-ni-a (tē'nē-ə) n. pl. tae-ni-ae (-nē-ē') or tae-ni-as. 1. A narrow band or ribbon for the hair that was worn in ancient Greece. 2. Architecture. A band in the Doric order that separates the frieze from the architrave. 3. Anatomy. A ribbonlike band of tissue or muscle. 4. A flatworm of the genus Taenia, which includes many tapeworms. [Latin, ribbon, tapeworm, from Greek tainia. See ten- in Appendix.]

tae-ni-a-cide also te-ni-a-cide (tē'nē-ə-sīd') n. An agent that kills tapeworms.

tae-ni-a-fuge also te-ni-a-fuge (tē'nē-ə-fyōōj') n. An agent that expels tapeworms from the body.

tae-ni-a-sis also te-ni-a-sis (tē-nī'ə-sīs) n. Infestation with tapeworms.

taf-fe-ta (täf'fī-tə) n. A crisp, smooth, plain-woven fabric with a slight sheen, made of various fibers, such as silk, rayon, or nylon, and used especially for women's garments. — adj. Made of or resembling this fabric. [Middle English, from Old French taffetas, from Old Italian taffetà, from Turkish tafta, from Persian tāftah, silk or linen cloth, from past participle of tāftan, to twist, spin.]

taffeta weave (täf'fī-tə wēv) n. See plain weave.

taf-fi-a (täf'fē-ə) n. Variant of tafia.

taff-rail (täf'räl', -rəl) n. Nautical. 1. The rail around the stern of a vessel.

2. The flat upper part of the stern of a vessel, made of wood and often richly carved. [Alteration of tafferel, carved panel, from Dutch tafereel, panel for carving or painting, from Middle Dutch tafeleel, tafereel, from Old French tablel. See TABLEAU.]

taffrail log (täf'räl' lôg) n. Nautical. See patent log.

taf-fy (täf'fē) n. pl. taf-fies. A sweet, chewy candy of molasses or brown sugar boiled until very thick and then pulled with the hands or by machine until the candy is glossy and holds its shape. [Origin unknown.]

taf-i-a also taf-fi-a (täf'fē-ə) n. A cheap rum distilled from molasses and refuse sugar in the West Indies. [French, perhaps of West Indian Creole origin.]

Taft (täft), Helen. 1861-1943. First Lady of the United States (1909-1913) as the wife of President William Howard Taft. She arranged for the planting of several thousand cherry trees around Washington, D.C.

Taft (täft), Lorado. 1860-1936. American sculptor and writer whose allegorical sculptures include The Fountain of Time in Chicago (1922). He wrote The History of American Sculpture (1903).

Taft (täft), Robert Alphonso. 1889-1953. American politician. As a U.S. Senator from Ohio (1939-1953) he was an outspoken conservative who opposed many New Deal policies, resisted American involvement in NATO, and endorsed Joseph McCarthy's investigations of Communist infiltration.

Taft (täft), William Howard. 1857-1930. The 27th President of the United States (1909-1913), whose term was marked by antitrust activity and passage of the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act (1909). He later served as the chief justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1921-1930).

tag¹ (täg) n. 1. A strip of leather, paper, metal, or plastic attached to something or hung from a wearer's neck to identify, classify, or label: sale tags on all coats and dresses. 2. The plastic or metal tip at the end of a shoelace. 3. The contrastingly colored tip of an animal's tail. 4. Sports. A bright piece of feather, floss, or tinsel surrounding the shank of the hook on a fishing fly. 5. a. A dirty, matted lock of wool. b. A loose lock of hair. 6. A rag; a tatter. 7. A small, loose fragment: I heard only tags and snippets of what was being said. 8. An ornamental flourish, especially at the end of a signature. 9. A designation or an epithet, especially an unwelcome one: He did not take kindly to the tag of pauper. 10. a. A brief quotation used in a discourse to give it an air of erudition or authority: Shakespearean tags. b. A cliché, saw, or similar short, conventional idea used to embellish a discourse: These tags of wit and wisdom bore me. c. The refrain or last lines of a song or poem. d. The closing lines of a speech in a play; a cue.

11. Computer Science. A label assigned to identify data in memory. 12. Slang. A graffito featuring a word or words, especially the author's name, rather than a picture: "Instead of a cursive linear tag, Super Kool painted his name along the exterior of a subway car in huge block pink and yellow letters" (Eric Scigliano). — v.

tagged, tag-ging, tags. — v. tr. 1. To label, identify, or recognize with or as if with a tag: I tagged him as a loser. See Synonyms at mark¹. 2. To put a ticket on (a motor vehicle) for a traffic or parking violation. 3. To charge with a crime: The suspect was tagged for arson. 4. To add as an appendage to: tagged an extra paragraph on the letter. 5. To follow closely: Excited children tagged the circus parade to the end of its route. 6. To cut the tags from (sheep). — v. intr. To follow after; accompany: tagged after me everywhere; insisted on tagging along.

[Middle English tagge, dangling piece of cloth on a garment, possibly of Scandinavian origin.]

tag² (tăg) n. 1. Games. A children's game in which one player pursues the others until he or she is able to touch one of them, who then in turn becomes the pursuer. 2. Baseball. The act of putting another player out by touching the player with the ball when he or she is not on base. 3. Sports. The act of touching a player as a substitute for tackling in touch football. — v. tr. tagged, tag-ging, tags. 1. To touch (another player) in the game of tag. 2. Baseball. To touch (a runner) with the ball in order to put that player out. 3. Sports. To touch (the runner) as a substitute for tackling in touch football. — phrasal verb. tag up. Baseball. To return to and touch a base with one foot before running to the next base after a fielder has caught a fly ball. [Perhaps variant of Scots tig, touch, tap, probably alteration of Middle English tek.]

TAG abbr. The Adjutant General.

Ta-ga-log (tə-gä'lôg, -læg) n. pl. Tagalog or Ta-ga-logs. 1. A member of a people native to the Philippines and inhabiting Manila and its adjacent provinces. 2. The Austronesian language of the Tagalog on which Filipino is based. [Tagalog : taga, native of + ilog, river.]

tag-a-long also tag-a-long (tăg'ə-lông', -lông') n. One that persistently follows another: "Technological change separates the innovators from the tag-alongs" (Thomas G. Exter).

Tag-an-rog (tăg'ən-rög', tə-gən-rôk') A city of southwest Russia on the Gulf of Taganrog, an arm of the Sea of Azov. Originally a colony of Pisa, it was annexed by Russia in 1769. Population, 289,000.

tag day (tăg dā) n. A day on which collectors for a charitable fund solicit contributions, giving each contributor a tag.

tag end (tǎg ěnd) n. 1. The very end. 2. Something left over; a remnant.

Tag-gard (tǎg'ǎrd), Genevieve. 1894-1948. American writer whose volumes of poetry include For Eager Lovers (1922) and Calling Western Union (1936).

tag-ger (tǎg'ǎr) n. 1. One that tags, especially the pursuer in the game of tag.

2. taggers. Very thin sheet iron, usually plated with tin.

tag line also tag-line (tǎg'līn') n. 1. An ending line, as in a play or joke, that makes a point. 2. An often repeated phrase associated with an individual, an organization, or a commercial product; a slogan.

tag-ma (tǎg'mə) n. pl. tag-ma-ta (-mə-tə). A distinct section of an arthropod, consisting of two or more adjoining segments, such as the cephalothorax of a spider. [Greek, arrangement, from tassein, tag-, to arrange.]

Ta-gore (tə-gōr', -gōr', tə-), Sir Rabindranath. 1861-1941. Bengali writer known especially for his collection of poetry Gitanjali (1912), based on traditional Hindu themes. He won the 1913 Nobel Prize for literature.

tag sale (tǎg sāl) n. See garage sale.

Ta-gus (tǎ'gəs) also Ta-jo (tǎ'hō) A river of the Iberian Peninsula rising in east-central Spain and flowing generally westward about 941 km (585 mi) through central Portugal to the Atlantic Ocean.

ta-hi-ni (tə-hē'nē) n. A thick paste made from ground sesame seeds. [Turkish tāhin, sesame flour or oil, from Arabic dialectal ṭahīne, from ṭahan, to grind.]

Ta-hi-ti (tə-hē'tē) An island of the southern Pacific Ocean in the Windward group of the Society Islands in French Polynesia. It was first settled by Polynesians in the 14th century. Gauguin's best-known works were painted here.

Ta-hi-tian (tə-hē'shən) adj. Of or relating to Tahiti or its people, language, or culture. — n. 1. A native or inhabitant of Tahiti. 2. The Polynesian language of Tahiti.

Ta-hoe (tǎ'hō), Lake. A lake on the California-Nevada border west of Carson City, Nevada. It is a popular resort area.

tahr (tār) n. Any of several goatlike mammals of the genus Hemitragus of mountainous regions of Asia, having curved horns and a shaggy coat. [Nepalese thār.]

tah-sil-dar also tah-seel-dar (tə-sēl'dār') n. A district official in India in charge of revenues and taxation. [Urdu taḥsildār, from Persian : taḥṣīl, collection, revenue (from Arabic, from ḥaṣala, to collect, from ḥaṣala, to acquire) + -dār, having; see dher- in Appendix.]

Tai (tī) also Dai (dī) n. pl. Tai or Tais also Dai or Dais. 1. A family of languages spoken in southeast Asia and southern China that includes Thai, Lao, and Shan.

2. A member of any of the Tai-speaking peoples of Thailand, Burma, Laos, China, and Vietnam. 3. Thai. — adj. 1. Of or relating to Tai, its speakers, or their culture. 2. Thai.

tai chi or Tai Chi (tī' chē', jē') also tai chi chuan or Tai Chi Chuan (chwän') n. A Chinese system of physical exercises designed especially for self-defense and meditation. [Short for Chinese (Mandarin) tài jí quán : tài, highest + jí, reach + quán, boxing.]

Tai-chung (tī'chōng', -jōong') also Tai-zhong (-jōng') A city of west-central Taiwan southwest of Taipei. It is a food-processing and distribution center. Population, 621,566.

tai-ga (tī'gə) n. A subarctic, evergreen coniferous forest of northern Eurasia located just south of the tundra and dominated by firs and spruces. [Russian taïga, of Altaic origin.]

Tai Hu (tī' hōo') A lake of east-central China west of Shanghai. Its basin is one of China's richest agricultural areas.

tail¹ (tāl) n. 1. The posterior part of an animal, especially when elongated and extending beyond the trunk or main part of the body. 2. The bottom, rear, or hindmost part: the tail of a shirt. 3. The rear end of a wagon or other vehicle. 4. a. The rear portion of the fuselage of an aircraft. b. An assembly of stabilizing planes and control surfaces in this rear portion. 5. The vaned rear portion of a bomb or missile. 6. An appendage to the rear or bottom of a thing: the tail of a kite. 7. The long luminous stream of gas and dust forced from the head of a comet when it is close to the sun. 8. A braid of hair; a pigtail. 9. Something that follows or takes the last place: the tail of a journey. 10. A train of followers; a retinue. 11. The end of a line of persons or things. 12. The short closing line of certain stanzas of verse. 13. The refuse or dross remaining from processes such as distilling or milling. 14. Printing. The bottom of a page; the bottom margin. 15. Often tails. (used with a sing. verb). The side of a coin not having the principal design and the date. 16. Informal. The trail of a person or an animal in flight. 17. Informal. A person assigned or employed to follow and report on someone else's movements and actions: The police put a tail on the suspected drug dealer. 18. tails. a. A formal evening costume typically worn by men. b. A swallow-tailed coat. 19. a. Slang. The buttocks. b. Vulgar Slang. A sexual partner, especially a woman or girl. — adj. 1. Of or relating to a tail or tails: tail feathers. 2. Situated in the tail, as of an airplane: a tail gunner. — v. tailed, tail-ing, tails. — v. tr. 1. To provide with a tail: tail a kite. 2. To deprive of a tail; dock. 3. To serve as the tail of: The Santa Claus float tailed the parade. 4. To connect (often dissimilar or incongruous objects) by or as if by the tail or end: tail two ideas together. 5. Architecture. To set one end of (a beam, board, or brick) into a wall. 6. Informal. To follow and keep under surveillance. — v. intr. 1. To become lengthened or spaced when moving in a line: The patrol tailed out in pairs. 2. Architecture. To be inserted at one end into a wall, as a floor timber or beam. 3. Informal. To follow: tailed after the leader. 4. Nautical. a. To go aground with the stern foremost. b. To lie or swing with the stern in a named direction, as when riding at anchor or on a mooring. — phrasal verbs. tail down. To ease a heavy load down a steep slope. tail off (or tail away). To diminish gradually; dwindle or subside: The fireworks tailed off into darkness.

[Middle English, from Old English tægel.] —tail/less adj.

tail² (tāl) Law. n. Limitation of the inheritance of an estate to a particular party.

— adj. Law. Being in tail: a tail estate. [Middle English taille, from Old French, division, from taillier, to cut. See TAILOR.]

tail-back (tāl'bāk') n. Football. The back on an offensive team who lines up farthest from the line of scrimmage.

tail beam (tāl bēm) n. Architecture. See tailpiece (n., sense 3).

tail-board (tāl'bôrd', -bôrd') n. See tailgate (n., sense 1).

tail-bone (tāl'bôn') n. See coccyx.

tail-coat (tāl'kô't') n. See swallow-tailed coat.

tailed frog (tāld frôg) n. A frog (Ascaphus turei) of the Pacific Northwest, having in the male an external cloaca that resembles a tail and serves as a copulatory organ at breeding time.

tail end (tāl ěnd) n. 1. The rear or hindmost part. 2. The very end; the conclusion.

tail fan (tāl fān) n. The fanlike posterior structure of a lobster, shrimp, or other crustacean, formed from the telson and the last pair of uropods and used for backward locomotion.

tail fin also tail-fin (tāl'fīn') n. 1. A fin at the posterior part of the body of a fish, crustacean, whale, or other aquatic animal. 2. An ornamental projection shaped like a fin on the rear fender of an automobile. Also called *fin*¹ tail-gate (tāl'gāt') n. 1. A hinged board or closure at the rear of a vehicle, such as a station wagon, that can be lowered during loading and unloading. Also called tailboard 2. One of the pair of gates downstream in a canal lock. — v.

tail-gat-ed, tail-gat-ing, tail-gates. — v. tr. 1. To drive so closely behind (another vehicle) that one cannot stop or swerve with ease in an emergency.

2. Slang. To follow closely behind (another person), as in gaining access to an area requiring the use of an electronic identification card. — v. intr. 1. To follow another vehicle too closely. 2. To participate in a picnic that is served from the tailgate of a vehicle, as before a sports event. —tail/gat'er n.

tail-heavy (tāl'hěv'ē) adj. tail-heavy-i-er, tail-heavy-i-est. Having too much weight at the rear, either from overloading or from poor design and construction: a tail-heavy cargo plane.

tail-ing (tāl'ling) n. 1. tailings. Refuse or dross remaining after ore has been processed. 2. Architecture. The portion of a tailed beam, brick, or board inside a wall.

tail lamp (tāl lămp) n. See taillight.

taille (tāl, tă'yə) n. A form of direct royal taxation that was levied in France before 1789 on nonprivileged subjects and lands and tended to weigh most heavily on the peasants. [French, from Old French, division. See TAIL².]

tail-light (tāl'lit') n. A red light or one of a pair mounted on the rear end of a vehicle. Also called tail lamp tai-lor (tā'lər) n. Abbr. tlr. One that makes, repairs, and alters garments such as suits, coats, and dresses. — v. tai-lored, tai-lor-ing, tai-lors. — v. tr. 1. To make (a garment), especially to specific requirements or measurements. 2. To fit or provide (a person) with clothes made to that person's measurements. 3. To make, alter, or adapt for a particular end or purpose: a speech that was tailored to an audience of business leaders. — v. intr. To pursue the trade of a tailor. [Middle English, from Anglo-Norman taillour, from Old French tailleur, from taillier, to cut, from Late Latin tāliāre, from Latin tālea, a cutting.]

tai-lor-bird (tā'lər-bûrd') n. Any of several Old World tropical passerine birds of the genus Orthotomus, that characteristically stitch leaves together with plant fibers to make nests.

tai-lored (tā'lərd) adj. 1. Made by a tailor; custom-made. 2. Simple, trim, or severe in line or design: a neat, tailored dress; tailored curtains.

tai-lor-made (tā'lər-mād') adj. 1. Made by a tailor. 2. Perfectly fitted to a condition, preference, or purpose; made or as if made to order: tailor-made renovations. — n. A garment made by a tailor.

tai-lor's chalk (tā'lərz chök) n. A thin piece of hard chalk used in tailoring for making temporary alteration marks on clothing.

tail-piece (tāl'pēs') n. 1. A piece forming an end; an appendage. 2. Printing. An engraving or a design placed as an ornament at the end of a chapter or at the bottom of a page. 3. Architecture. A beam tailed into a wall. Also called tail beam 4. Music. A triangular piece of ebony to which the lower ends of the strings of a violin or cello are attached.

tail-pipe also tail pipe (tāl'pīp') n. The pipe through which exhaust gases from an engine are discharged. Also called exhaust pipe tail-race (tāl'rās') n. 1. The part of a millrace below the water wheel through which the spent water flows. 2. A channel for floating away mine tailings and refuse.

tail-skid (tāl'skīd') n. A skid attached to the rear underside of certain airplanes to act as a runner.

tail-spin (tāl'spīn') n. 1. The rapid descent of an aircraft in a steep, spiral spin. 2. Informal. A loss of emotional control sometimes resulting in emotional collapse.

tail-stock (tāl'stök') n. The movable part of a lathe that supports the dead center.

tail wind or tail-wind (tāl'wīnd') n. A wind blowing in the same direction as that of the course of an aircraft, a ship, or another vehicle.

Tai·myr Peninsula also Tai·mir Peninsula or Tay·myr Peninsula (tī·mîr' pə·nĭn'syə·lə) A peninsula of north-central Russia extending northward between the Laptev and Kara seas.

tain (tān) n. 1. A type of paper-thin tin plate. 2. Tinfoil used as a backing for mirrors. [French, alteration of étain, tin, from Late Latin stannum. See STANNIC.]

Tai·nan (tī'nän') A city of southwest Taiwan on the South China Sea. Settled in 1590, it is Taiwan's oldest city. Population, 609,934.

Tai·na·ron (tā'nə·rôn', tĕ'nä-), Cape. Formerly, Cape. Mat·a·pan (mä'tə·pän'). A cape at the southernmost point of mainland Greece. The British won an important naval battle against the Italians off Cape Taínaron in 1941.

Taine (tān, tĕn), Hippolyte Adolphe. 1828-1893. French philosopher and historian who was a leading exponent of positivism and wrote the six-volume Origins of Contemporary France (1875-1893).

Tai·no (tī'nō) n. pl. Taino or Tai·nos. 1. A member of an Arawak people of the Greater Antilles and the Bahamas who became extinct under Spanish colonization during the 16th century. 2. The language of this people. [Spanish, of American Indian origin.]

taint (tānt) v. taint·ed, taint·ing, taints. — v. tr. 1. To affect with or as if with a disease. 2. To affect with decay or putrefaction; spoil. See Synonyms at contaminate. 3. To corrupt morally. 4. To affect with a tinge of something reprehensible. — v. intr. To become affected with decay or putrefaction; spoil. — n. 1. A moral defect considered as a stain or spot. See Synonyms at stain. 2. An infecting touch, influence, or tinge. [Partly from obsolete taynt, to color, dye (from Anglo-Norman teint, from past participle of teindre, from Latin tingere), and partly from Middle English tainten, to convict (from Old French ataint, past participle of ataindre, to attain, touch upon). See ATTAIN.] —taint'less adj. —taint'less·ly adv. —taint'less·ness n.

tai·pan¹ (tī'pän') n. 1. A foreign businessman or a trader in China. 2. A foreigner who is a chief executive of a business or company operating in China or Hong Kong; a tycoon. [Chinese tai pān : tai, big + pān, company.]

tai·pan² (tī'pän') n. A large, extremely venomous elapid snake (Oxyuranus scutellatus) of Australia and New Guinea, having long fangs and large venom glands. [Wik Munkan (Aboriginal language of northeast Australia) dhayban.]

Tai·pei also Tai·peh (tī'pā', -bā') The capital and largest city of Taiwan, in the northern part of the country. Founded in the 18th century, it was ruled by the Japanese from 1895 to 1945 and later became the headquarters of Chiang Kai-shek and the Chinese Nationalists when they fled mainland China (1949). Population, 2,327,641.

Tai·wan (tī'wän') Officially, Republic of. Chi·na (chī'nə). Formerly For·mo·sa (fôr·mō'sə). A country off the southeast coast of China comprising the island of Taiwan, the Pescadores, and other smaller islands. An important trade center in the 19th century, Taiwan was ceded to Japan in 1895 and regained by China after World War II (1945). Taiwan broke off from mainland China in 1949. Taipei is the capital and the largest city. Population, 18,457,923.

Tai·wan·ese (tī'wä-nēz', -nēs') adj. Of or relating to Taiwan or its peoples, languages, or cultures. — n. pl. Taiwanese. 1. A native or inhabitant of Taiwan. 2. The Minnan dialect of Chinese spoken on Taiwan.

Taiwan Strait (tī'wän' strät) See Formosa Strait.

Tai·yu·an also Tai·yü·an (tī'yöō-än', -yüän') A city of northeast China southwest of Beijing. It is a coal-mining and steel-manufacturing center. Population, 1,390,000.

Tai·zhong (tī'jông') See Taichung.

taj (täzh, täj) n. A tall conical cap worn by Muslims as a headdress of distinction. [Arabic tāj, from Persian, crown. See (s)teg- in Appendix.]

Ta·jik also Ta·dzhik (tä-jik', tə-) n. pl. Tajik or Ta·jiks also Tadzhik or Ta·dzhiks. 1. A member of a people inhabiting Tadzhikistan and neighboring areas in Afghanistan, and China. 2. Tajiki. — adj. Tajiki.

Ta·jik·i also Ta·dzhik·i (tä-jik'ē, tə-) n. The Iranian language of the Tajik people, closely related to Persian. — adj. Of or relating to the Tajik people or their language or culture.

Ta·jik·i·stan (tä-jik'i-stän', -stän', tə-jī-kyī-stän') See Tadzhikistan.

Ta·jo (tä'hō) See Tagus.

ta·ka (tä'kə) n. A basic unit of currency in Bangladesh. See Table at currency. [Bengali ṭākā, from Sanskrit ṭāṅkaḥ, stamped coin.]

ta·ka·he (tə-kä'ē, tə-kī') n. An almost extinct flightless bird (Notornis mantelli) of New Zealand, having a large bill and brightly colored plumage. [Maori takahē.]

Ta·ka·mat·su (tä'kä-mät'sōō) A city of northeast Shikoku, Japan, on the Inland Sea. It is a major seaport. Population, 327,001.

Ta·ka·sa·ki (tä'kä-sä'kē) A city of central Honshu, Japan, northwest of Tokyo. A silk-manufacturing center, the city is best known for its statue of Kannon, goddess of mercy. Population, 231,764.

Ta·ka·tsu·ki (tə-kät'sōō-kē, tä'kä-tsōō'kē) A city of southwest Honshu, Japan, a commercial center between Osaka and Kyoto. Population, 348,743.

take (tāk) v. took (tōök), tak·en (tä'kən), tak·ing, takes. — v. tr. 1. To get into one's possession by force, skill, or artifice, especially: a. To capture physically; seize: take an enemy fortress. b. To seize with authority; confiscate. c. To kill, snare, or trap (fish or game, for example). d. Sports & Games. To acquire in a game or competition; win: took the crown in horseracing. e. Sports & Games. To defeat: Our team took the visitors three to one. f. Sports. To catch (a ball in play), especially in baseball: The player took it on the fly. g. Baseball. To refrain from swinging at (a pitched ball). 2. To grasp with the hands; grip: Take your partner's hand. 3. To be affected with; come down with; contract: The child has taken the flu. 4. To encounter or catch in a particular situation; come upon; discover: Your actions took me by surprise. 5. To deal a blow to; strike or hit: The boxer took his opponent a sharp jab to the ribs. 6. To affect favorably or winsomely; charm or captivate: She was taken by the puppy. 7. a. To put (food or drink, for example) into the body; eat or drink: took a little soup for dinner. b. To draw in; inhale: took a deep breath. 8. To expose one's body to (healthful or pleasurable treatment, for example): take the sun; take the waters at a spa. 9. To bring or receive into a particular relation, association, or other connection: take a new partner into the firm; take a company national. 10. To engage in sex with. 11. To accept and place under one's care or keeping. 12. To appropriate for one's own or another's use or benefit; obtain by purchase; secure or buy: We always take season tickets. 13. To assume for oneself: take all the credit. a. To charge or oblige oneself with the fulfillment of (a task or duty, for example); commit oneself to: She took the position of chair of the committee. b. To pledge one's obedience to; impose (a vow or promise) upon oneself. c. To subject oneself to: We took extra time to do the job properly. d. To accept or adopt for one's own. e. To put forth or adopt as a point of argument, defense, or discussion. f. To require or have as a fitting or proper accompaniment: Intransitive verbs take no direct object. 14. To pick out; select or choose: take any card. a. To choose for one's own use; avail oneself of the use of: We took a rented car. b. To use (something) as when in operation: This camera takes 35mm film. c. To use (something) as a means of conveyance or transportation: take a train to Pittsburgh. d. To use (something) as a means of safety or refuge: take shelter from the storm. e. To choose and then adopt (a particular route or direction) while on foot or while operating a vehicle: Take a right at the next corner. The driver downshifted to take the corner. 15. To assume occupancy of: take a seat. 16. To require (something) as a basic necessity: It takes money to live in that town. 17. To obtain from a source; derive or draw: The book takes its title from the Bible. 18. To obtain, as through measurement or a specified procedure: took the patient's temperature. 19. To put down in shorthand or cursive writing: take a letter. 20. To put down an image, a likeness, or a representation of by or as by drawing, painting, or photography: took a picture of us. 21. a. To accept (something owed, offered, or given) either reluctantly or willingly: take criticism. b. To submit to (something inflicted); endure: didn't take his punishment very well. c. To withstand: The dam took the heavy flood waters. 22. a. To accept or believe (something put forth) as true: I'll take your word. b. To follow (advice, a suggestion, or a lead, for example). c. To accept, handle, or deal with in a particular way: He takes things in stride. d. To consider in a particular relation or from a particular viewpoint: take the bitter with the sweet. 23. To make or perform: Many crucial decisions were taken as the path of the hurricane was plotted. 24. a. To allow to come in; give access or admission to;

admit: The boat took a lot of water but remained afloat. b. To provide room for; accommodate: We can't take more than 100 guests. c. To become saturated or impregnated with (dye, for example). 25. a. To understand or interpret: May I take your smile as an indication of approval? b. To consider; assume: Take the matter as settled. c. To consider to be equal to; reckon: We take their number at 1,000. d. To perceive or feel; experience: I take pleasure in informing you that you have won the prize. 26. To carry, convey, lead, or cause to go along to another place: Don't forget to take your umbrella. This bus takes you to New York. See Usage Note at bring. 27. To remove from a place: take the dishes from the sink. 28. To secure by removing: The dentist took two molars. 29. To cause to die; kill or destroy: The blight took these tomatoes. 30. To subtract: take 15 from 30. 31. a. To commit and apply oneself to the study of: take art lessons; take Spanish. b. To study for with success: took a degree in law. 32. Informal. To swindle, defraud, or cheat: You've really been taken. — v. intr. 1. To acquire possession. 2. To engage or mesh; catch, as gears or other mechanical parts. 3. To start growing; root or germinate: Have the seeds taken? 4. To have the intended effect; operate or work: The transfusion apparently took. 5. To gain popularity or favor: The television series, which didn't take, was later canceled. 6. To become: He took sick. — n. 1. a. The act or process of taking. b. That which is taken. 2. a. A quantity collected at one time, especially the amount of profit or receipts taken on a business arrangement or venture. b. The number of fish, game birds, or other animals killed or captured at one time. 3. Sports. The amount of money collected as admission to a sporting event; the gate. 4. The uninterrupted running of a movie or television camera or a set of recording equipment in filming a movie or television program or cutting a record. 5. a. A scene filmed or televised without interrupting the run of the camera. b. A recording made in a single session. 6. a. A physical reaction, such as a rash, indicating a successful vaccination. b. A successful graft. 7. Slang. An attempt or a try: He got the answer on the third take. — phrasal verbs. take after. 1. To follow as an example. 2. To resemble in appearance, temperament, or character. take apart. 3. To divide into parts after disassembling. 4. To dissect or analyze (a theory, for example), usually in an effort to discover hidden or innate flaws or weaknesses. 5. Slang. To beat up; thrash. take back. To retract (something stated or written). take down. 7. To bring to a lower position from a higher one. 8. To take apart; dismantle: take down the Christmas tree. 9. To lower the arrogance or the self-esteem of (a person): really took him down during the debate. 10. To put down in writing. take for. 11. To regard as: Do you take me for a fool? 12. To consider mistakenly: Don't take silence for approval. take in. 13. To grant admittance to; receive as a guest or an employee. 14. To reduce in size; make smaller or shorter: took in the waist on the pair of pants. 15. To include or constitute. 16. To understand: couldn't take in the meaning of the word. 17. To deceive or swindle: was taken in by a confidence artist. 18. To look at thoroughly; view: took in the sights. 19. To accept (work) to be done in one's house for pay: took in typing. 20. To convey (a prisoner) to a police station. take off. 21. To remove, as clothing: take one's coat off; take off one's galoshes. 22. To release: took the brake off. 23. To deduct as a discount: took 20 percent off. 24. To carry off or away. 25. Slang. a. To go off; leave: took off in a hurry. b. To achieve wide use or popularity: a new movie that really took off. 26. To rise in flight: The plane took off on time. 27. To discontinue: took off the commuter special. 28. To withhold service due, as from one's work: I'm taking off three days during May. 29. Slang. a. To go off; leave: took off in a hurry. b. To achieve wide use or popularity: a new movie that really took off. take on. 30. To undertake or begin to handle: took on extra responsibilities. 31. To hire; engage: took on more workers during the harvest. 32. To oppose in competition: a wrestler who took on all comers. 33. Informal. To display violent or passionate emotion: Don't take on so! 34. To acquire (an appearance, for example) as or as if one's own: Over the years he has taken on the look of a banker. take out. 35. To extract; remove: took the splinter out. 36. To secure (a license, for example) by application to an authority. 37. Informal. To escort, as a date. 38. To give vent to: Don't take your frustration out in such an aggressive manner. 39. To obtain as an equivalent in a different form: took out the money owed in services. 40. Informal. To begin a course; set out: The police took out after the thieves. 41. Slang. a. To kill; murder: Two snipers took out an enemy platoon. b. To search for and destroy in an armed attack or other such encounter: Combat pilots, flying low to avoid radar, took out the guerrilla leader's bunker in a single mission. 42. Slang. a. To kill; murder: Two snipers took out an enemy platoon. b. To search for and destroy in an armed attack or other such encounter: Combat pilots, flying low to avoid radar, took out the guerrilla leader's bunker in a single mission. take over. To assume the control or management of. take to. 44. To have recourse to; go to, as for safety: took to the woods. 45. To develop as a habit or a steady practice: take to drink. 46. To become fond of or attached to: "Two keen minds that they are, they took to each other" (Jack Kerouac). take up. 47. To raise; lift. 48. To reduce in size; shorten or tighten: take up a gown. 49. To pay off an (outstanding debt, mortgage, or note). 50. To accept (an option, a bet, or a challenge) as offered. 51. To begin again; resume: Let's take up where we left off. 52. To use up, consume, or occupy: The extra duties took up most of my time. 53. To develop an interest in or devotion to: take up mountain climbing. 54. To deal with: Let's take up each problem one at a time. 55. To assume: took up a friendly attitude. 56. To absorb or adsorb: crops taking up nutrients. 57. To enter into (a profession or business): took up engineering. —idioms. on the take. Informal. Taking or seeking to take bribes or illegal income: "There were policemen on the take" (Scott Turow). take a bath. Informal. To experience serious financial loss: "Small investors who latched on to hot new issues took a bath in Wall Street” (Paul A. Samuelson). take account of. To take into consideration. take away from. To detract: Her stringy hair takes away from her lovely face. take care. To be careful: Take care or you will slip on the ice. take care of. To assume responsibility for the maintenance, support, or treatment of. take charge. To assume control or command. take effect. 8. To become operative, as under law or regulation: The curfew takes effect at midnight. 9. To produce the desired reaction: The antibiotics at last began to take effect. take exception. To express opposition by argument; object to: took exception to the prosecutor’s line of questioning. take five (or take ten). Slang. To take a short rest or break, as of five or ten minutes. take for granted. 12. To consider as true, real, or forthcoming; anticipate correctly. 13. To underestimate the value of: a publisher who took the editors for granted. take heart. To be confident or courageous. take hold. 15. To seize, as by grasping. 16. To become established: The newly planted vines quickly took hold. take it. 17. To understand; assume: As I take it, they won’t accept the proposal. 18. Informal. To endure abuse, criticism, or other harsh treatment: If you can dish it out, you’ve got to learn to take it. take it on the chin. Slang. To endure punishment, suffering, or defeat. take it or leave it. To accept or reject unconditionally. take it out on. Informal. To abuse (someone) in venting one’s own anger. take kindly to. 22. To be receptive to: take kindly to constructive criticism. 23. To be naturally attracted or fitted to; thrive on. take lying down. Informal. To submit to harsh treatment with no resistance: refused to take the snub lying down. take notice of. To pay attention to. take (one’s) breath away. To put into a state of awe or shock. take (one’s) time. To act slowly or at one’s leisure. take place. To happen; occur. take root. 29. To become established or fixed. 30. To become rooted. take shape. To take on a distinctive form. take sick. Chiefly Southern U.S. To become ill. take sides. To associate with and support a particular faction, group, cause, or person. take stock. 34. To take an inventory. 35. To make an estimate or appraisal, as of resources or of oneself. take stock in. To trust, believe in, or attach importance to. take the bench. Law. To assume a judicial position. take the cake. 38. To be the most outrageous or disappointing. 39. To win the prize; be outstanding. take the count. 40. To be defeated. 41. Sports. To be counted out in boxing. take the fall (or take the hit). Slang. To incur blame or censure, either willingly or unwillingly: a senior official who took the fall for the failed intelligence operation. take the floor. To rise to deliver a formal speech, as to an assembly. take the heat. Slang. To incur and endure heavy censure or criticism: had a reputation for being able to take the heat in a crisis. take to the cleaners. Slang. 45. To rob or swindle. 46. To take all the money or possessions of, as in a divorce action. 47. To subject to withering criticism. take up for. To support (a person or group, for example) in an argument. take up the cudgels. To join in a dispute, especially in defense of a participant.

take up with. Informal. To begin to associate with; consort with: took up with a fast crowd. [Middle English taken, from Old English tacan, from Old Norse taka.] —tak'a·ble adj.

take-a-way (tāk'ə-wā') n. 1. A concession, as in a lower level of health benefits, made by a labor union to a company in negotiating a new contract. 2. Sports. The act or an instance of taking away the ball or puck from the team on the offensive, as by recovery of a fumbled football or by interception of a passed puck.

take-a-way (tāk'ə-wā') adj. Chiefly British. Take-out.

take-charge (tāk'chärj') adj. Informal. Possessing or exhibiting strong qualities of initiative, leadership, and management: “take-charge people who are the center of all the action” (George F. Will).

take-down (tāk'daun') adj. Having the capability of being taken down or apart: a takedown rifle; a takedown scaffold. — n. 1. a. An article or apparatus that can be taken down or apart. b. The mechanism that allows an article or apparatus to be easily taken down. 2. Sports. A move or maneuver in wrestling or the martial arts in which a standing opponent is forced to the floor. 3. Informal. a. The act of humiliating a person. b. An instance of such humiliation: She gave you quite a takedown.

take-home pay (tāk'hōm' pā) n. The amount of one's salary remaining after federal, state, and often city income taxes and various other deductions have been withheld.

take-in (tāk'in') n. Informal. The act or an instance of swindling or cheating; a deception.

tak-en (tā'kən) v. Past participle of take.

take-off (tāk'ōf', -ōf') n. 1. The act of rising in flight. Used of an aircraft or a rocket. 2. The point or place from which one takes off. 3. Informal. An amusing imitative caricature or burlesque.

take-out also take-out (tāk'out') adj. 1. Intended to be eaten off the premises: takeout pizza. 2. Selling or intended for the sale of food products to be consumed off the premises: a takeout counter; takeout containers. —take'-out' n.

take-o-ver also take-o-ver (tāk'ō'vər) n. The act or an instance of assuming control or management of or responsibility for something, especially the seizure of power, as in a nation, political organization, or corporation. —take'o'ver adj.

tak-er (tā'kər) n. One that takes or takes up something, such as a wager or purchase: There were no takers on the bets.

take-up (tāk'ŭp') n. 1. The act of taking or tightening up. 2. A device for reducing slack or taking up lost motion, as one in a loom.

ta·kin (tä'kēn') n. A large ruminant mammal (Budorcas taxicolor) of the mountains of China, Burma, and the Himalayas, having backward-pointing horns and a shaggy coat. [Possibly of Tibeto-Burman origin.]

tak·ing (tā'kɪŋ) adj. 1. Capturing interest; fetching: a taking smile.

2. Contagious; catching. Used of an infectious disease. — n. 1. The act of one that takes. 2. Something taken, as a catch of fish. 3. takings. Informal. Receipts, especially of money.

ta·ki·ta·ki (tä'kē-tä'kē) n. See Sranantongo. [Probably alteration and reduplication of TALK.]

Tak·ka·kaw (tăk'ə-kô') A waterfall, 503.3 m (1,650 ft) high, in southeast British Columbia, Canada. It is the highest waterfall in Canada.

Ta·kli·ma·kan also Ta·kla·ma·kan (tä'klə-mə-kän') A desert of western China between the Tien Shan and the Kunlun Mountains.

Ta·ko·ma Park (tə-kō'mə pärk) A city of central Maryland, a residential suburb of Washington, D.C. Population, 16,231.

ta·la (tä'lə) n. A basic unit of currency in Western Samoa. See Table at currency. [Samoan, from English DOLLAR.]

tal·a·poin (tăl'ə-poin') n. A small African monkey (Cercopithecus talapoin), the smallest of the guenons, having a long tail and greenish fur. [French, from Portuguese talapões, pl. of talapão, monk.]

ta·lar·i·a (tə-lăr'ē-ə) pl.n. Winged sandals such as those worn by Hermes and Iris as represented in Greco-Roman painting and sculpture. [Latin tālāria, from neuter pl. of tālāris, of the ankles, from tālus, ankle.]

Ta·la·ud Islands (tə-lout' ī'ləndz, tə-lä'ōōd) or Ta·laur Islands (-lour', -lä'ōōr) A group of islands of northeast Indonesia northeast of Sulawesi. The islands first came under Dutch control in 1677.

Ta·la·ve·ra de la Rei·na (tä'lə-văr'ə də lä rā'nə, tä'lä-vě'rä thě lä rā'nä) A town of central Spain west-southwest of Madrid. The British and Spanish defeated the French here in 1809. Population, 67,216.

Tal·bot (tôl'bət, tăl'-) n. A large white or light-colored hound of an English variety, having long hanging ears and heavy jaws, formerly used for tracking and hunting. [Middle English, personal name, from Old French.]

Tal·bot (tôl'bət, tăl'-), William Henry Fox. 1800-1877. British inventor and pioneer in photography who made photographic prints on paper treated with silver chloride (1838) and produced the first book illustrated with photographs (1844-1846).

talc (tălk) n. A fine-grained white, greenish, or gray mineral, $Mg_3Si_4O_{10}(OH)_2$, having a soft soapy feel and used in talcum and face powder, as a paper coating, and as a filler for paint and plastics. — v. tr. talcked or talced, talck·ing or talc·ing, talcs or talcs. To apply this substance to (a photographic plate, for example). [French, from Medieval Latin talcum, and Old Spanish talco both from Arabic ṭalq, from Persian talk.]

Tal·ca (täl'kä) A city of central Chile between Santiago and Concepción. Chile's independence was proclaimed here in 1818. Population, 128,544.

Tal·ca·hua·no (täl'kä-wä'nō, -hwä'-, täl'kä-) A city of central Chile on the Pacific Ocean near Concepción. It is an important naval base. Population, 202,368.

talc·ose (täl'kōs') also talc·ous (-kəs) or talck·y (-kē) adj. Made of or containing talc.

tal·cum (täl'kəm) n. 1. Talc. 2. Talcum powder. [Medieval Latin. See TALC.]

talcum powder (täl'kəm pou'dər) n. A fine, often perfumed powder made from purified talc for use on the skin.

tale (täl) n. 1. A recital of events or happenings; a report or revelation: told us a long tale of woe. 2. A malicious story, piece of gossip, or petty complaint. 3. A deliberate lie; a falsehood. 4. A narrative of real or imaginary events; a story. 5. Archaic. A tally or reckoning; a total. [Middle English, from Old English talū. See del-² in Appendix.]

tale·bear·er (täl'bâr'ər) n. One who spreads malicious stories or gossip.
—tale·bear·ing adj. & n.

tal·ent (täl'ənt) n. 1. A marked innate ability, as for artistic accomplishment. See Synonyms at ability. 2. a. Natural endowment or ability of a superior quality. b. A person or group of people having such ability: The company makes good use of its talent. 3. A variable unit of weight and money used in ancient Greece, Rome, and the Middle East. [Middle English, inclination, disposition, from Old French, from Medieval Latin, from Latin, balance, sum of money, from Greek talanton; see telə- in Appendix. Sense 3, Middle English from Old English talente, from Latin talenta, pl. of talentum, from Greek talanton.] —tal'ent·ed adj.
—tal'ent·less adj. —tal'ent·less·ness n.

talent scout (täl'ənt skout) n. An agent who goes in search of talented people for acting, sports, or business.

talent show (täl'ənt shō) n. A show that features amateur performers whose talents may win them recognition or awards.

ta·ler also tha·ler (tä'lər) n. pl. taler or ta·lers also thaler or tha·lers. Any of numerous silver coins that served as a unit of currency in certain Germanic countries between the 15th and 19th centuries. [German. See DOLLAR.]

tales (tälz, tä'lēz) n. pl. tales. Law. 1. A group of people summoned to fill vacancies on a jury that has become deficient in number. 2. The writ allowing for a summons of jurors. [Middle English, from Medieval Latin tālēs dē circumstantibus, such (persons) from those standing about (a phrase used in the writ), from Latin, pl. of tālis, such. See to- in Appendix.]

tales·man (tālz'mən, tā'lēz-) n. Law. One who is summoned under a writ of tales.

tale·tell·er (tāl'tēl'ər) n. 1. One who tells stories; a storyteller. 2. A talebearer; a tattletale. — tale'tell'ing adj. & n.

ta·li (tā'lī') n. Plural of talus¹.

Ta·lien (tä'lyēn') See Dalian.

tal·i·on (tāl'ē-ən) n. A punishment identical to the offense, as the death penalty for murder. [Middle English talioun, from Anglo-Norman, from Latin tāliō, tāliōn-. See telə- in Appendix.]

tal·i·ped (tāl'ə-pēd') adj. Having a clubfoot; clubfooted. — n. A person with a clubfoot. [From New Latin tālīpēs, tālīped-, clubfoot. See TALIPES.]

tal·i·pes (tāl'ə-pēz') n. See clubfoot (n., sense 1). [New Latin tālīpēs, tālīped- : Latin tālus, ankle + Latin pēs, ped-, foot; see -PED.]

tal·i·pot (tāl'ə-pōt') n. A tall palm tree (Corypha umbraculifera) of India and Sri Lanka, having a spreading crown of very large fanlike leaves and a giant inflorescence that is the largest among the flowering plants. [Ultimately from Sanskrit tālapatram, palm leaf used for writing : tālah, fan palm; see TODDY + patram, leaf; see pet- in Appendix.]

tal·is·man (tāl'is-mən, -īz-) n. pl. tal·is·mans. 1. An object marked with magic signs and believed to confer on its bearer supernatural powers or protection. 2. Something that apparently has magic power: Beauty is sometimes a most powerful talisman. [French talisman, or Spanish talismán or Italian talismano all from Arabic ṭīlasm, from Late Greek telesma, from Greek, consecration ceremony, from telein, to consecrate, fulfill, from telos, result. See k^wel-¹ in Appendix.]

tal·is·man·ic (tāl'is-män'ik, -īz-) also tal·is·man·i·cal (-ī-kəl) adj. 1. Of or relating to talismans: talismanic formulas. 2. Possessing or believed to possess magic power: a talismanic amulet.

talk (tôk) v. talked, talk·ing, talks. — v. tr. 1. To articulate (words): The baby is talking sentences now. 2. To give expression to in words: talk treason. 3. To speak of or discuss (something): talk music; talk business. 4. To speak or know how to speak in (an idiom or a language): talked French with the flight crew. 5. To gain, influence, or bring into a specified state by talking: talked me into coming; talked their way out of trouble. 6. To spend (a period of time) by or as if by talking: talked the evening away. — v. intr. 1. To converse by means of spoken language: We talked for hours. See Synonyms at speak. 2. To articulate words: The baby can talk. 3. To imitate the sounds of human speech: The parrot talks. 4. To express one's thoughts or emotions by means of spoken language: talked about the pros and cons of the issue. 5. To convey one's thoughts in a way other than by spoken words: talk with one's hands. 6. To express one's thoughts in writing: Voltaire talks about London in this book. 7. To parley or negotiate with someone: Let's talk before continuing to fight. 8. To spread rumors; gossip: If you do that, people will talk. 9. To allude to something: Are you talking about last week? 10. To consult or confer with someone: I talked with the doctor. 11. To reveal information concerning oneself or others, especially under pressure: Has the prisoner talked? 12. Informal. To be efficacious: Money talks. — n. 1. An exchange of ideas or opinions; a conversation. 2. A speech or lecture. 3. Hearsay, rumor, or speculation: There is talk of bankruptcy. 4. A subject of conversation: a musical that is the talk of the town. 5. Often talks. A conference or negotiation: peace talks. 6. Jargon; slang: prison talk. 7. Empty speech or unnecessary discussion: much talk and no action. 8. A particular manner of speech: baby talk; hon-eyed talk. 9. Something, such as the sounds of animals, felt to resemble human talk: whale talk. —phrasal verbs. talk around. 1. To persuade: I talked them around to my point of view. 2. To speak indirectly about something: talked around the subject but never got to the point. talk at. To address someone orally with no regard for or interest in the person's reaction or response. talk back. 4. To make an impertinent reply: a saucy child who talked back. 5. To make a belligerent response: heavy guns talking back. talk down. 6. To depreciate: talked down the importance of the move. 7. To address someone with insulting condescension: talked down to her subordinates. 8. To silence (a person), especially by speaking in a loud and domineering manner. 9. To direct and control (the flight of an aircraft during an approach for landing) by radioed instructions either from the ground or a nearby aircraft. talk out. 10. To discuss (a matter) exhaustively: I talked out the problem with a therapist. 11. To resolve or settle by discussion. 12. Chiefly British. To block (proposed legislation) by filibustering. talk over. 13. To consider thoroughly in conversation; discuss: talked the matter over. 14. To win (someone) over by persuasion: talked them over to our side. talk up. 15. To speak in favor of; promote: talked the candidate up; talked up the new product. 16. To speak up in a frank, often insolent manner. —idioms. talk big. Informal. To brag. talk sense. To speak rationally and coherently. [Middle English talken. See del-² in Appendix.]

talk-a-thon (tôk'ə-thŏn') n. A lengthy session of discussions, speeches, or debate. [TALK + (MAR)ATHON.]

talk-a-tive (tô'kə-tiv) adj. Marked by or having a disposition to talk.
—talk'a-tive-ly adv. —talk'a-tive-ness n.

SYNONYMS: talkative, loquacious, garrulous, voluble, verbose, glib. These adjectives mean having or marked by an inclination to talk. Talkative is the most neutral and often merely suggests sociability: Rather quiet at first, she grew very talkative over her second glass of sherry. Loquacious stresses fluency or readiness of speech: "Jack became loquacious on his favorite topic" (Frederick Marryat). Garrulous implies excessive talkativeness and often suggests rambling, tiresome speech: "Old men are garrulous by nature” (Cicero). Voluble connotes a ready, sometimes unending flow of words: Her niece, an extremely voluble young woman, engages in soliloquies, not conversations. Verbose implies a great, usually excessive number of words: “a natural reserve accentuated by the verbose frankness of her husband” (W. Somerset Maugham). Glib refers to fluent, easy, and smooth speech that often suggests shallowness, lack of sincerity, or questionable motives: “Was I too glib about eternal things?” (Theodore Roethke).

talk-back (tôk'băk') n. A system of communications links in a television or radio studio that enables directions to be given while a program is being produced.

talk-er (tô'kər) n. One who talks, especially a loquacious or garrulous person.

talk-fest (tôk'fĕest') n. Informal. A lengthy, often enjoyable conversation or discussion.

talk-ie (tô'kē) n. Informal. A movie with a sound track.

talk-ing book (tô'kĭng böök) n. A phonograph record of a reading of a book, designed for use by the visually impaired.

talking head (tô'kĭng hĕd) n. Slang. 1. The image of a person, as on a television documentary or news show, who talks at length directly to the camera and usually appears on the screen with only the head and upper part of the body visible. 2. The person thus televised.

talking point (tô'kĭng point) n. Something, such as an especially persuasive point, that helps to support an argument or a discussion.

talk-ing-to (tô'kĭng-tōō') n. pl. talk-ing--tos. Informal. A scolding; a dressing-down.

talk show (tôk shō) n. A television or radio show in which noted people, such as authorities in a particular field, participate in discussions or are interviewed and often answer questions from viewers or listeners.

talk-y (tô'kē) adj. talk-i-er, talk-i-est. 1. Talkative; loquacious. 2. Containing or given to too much talk: a talky, boring play. —talk'i-ness n.

tall (tôl) adj. tall-er, tall-est. 1. a. Having greater than ordinary height: a tall woman. b. Having considerable height, especially in relation to width; lofty: tall trees. See Synonyms at high. 2. Having a specified height: a plant three feet tall. 3. Informal. Fanciful or exaggerated; boastful: tall tales of heroic exploits. 4. Impressively great or difficult: a tall order to fill. 5. Archaic. Excellent; fine. — adv. With proud bearing; straight: stand tall. [Middle English, brave, quick, from Old English getæl, swift. See del-² in Appendix.] —tall'ish adj. —tall'-ness n.

Tal-la-de-ga (tăl'ə-dĕ'gə) A city of east-central Alabama east of Birmingham. Incorporated in 1835, it is an agricultural, quarrying, and mining center. Population, 18,175.

tal·lage (täl'rij) n. An occasional tax levied by the Anglo-Norman kings on crown lands and royal towns. — v. tr. tal·laged, tal·lag·ing, tal·lag·es. To levy a tax on. [Middle English taillage, from Old French, from taillier, to cut, tax. See TAILOR.]

Tal·la·has·see (täl'ə-häs'ē) The capital of Florida, in the northwest part of the state. Originally a Native American village, it was settled by the Spanish after 1539 and founded as the capital of the Florida Territory in 1824. Population, 124,773.

Tal·la·hatch·ie (täl'ə-häch'ē) A river, about 371 km (230 mi) long, rising in northern Mississippi and flowing generally southwest to the Yazoo River.

Tal·la·poo·sa (täl'ə-pōō'sə) A river rising in northwest Georgia and flowing about 431 km (268 mi) generally southwest to central Alabama, where it joins the Coosa River to form the Alabama River.

tall·boy (tôl'boi') n. Chiefly British. A highboy.

Tall·chief (tôl'chēf'), Maria. Born 1925. American ballerina who danced with the New York City Ballet (1948-1960 and 1963-1965) and founded the Chicago City Ballet in 1980.

tall drink (tôl drīngk) n. A drink served in a tall glass and consisting typically of a liquor base with any of various mixes and flavorings.

Tal·ley·rand·Pé·ri·gord (täl'ē-ränd'pēr'i-gôr', tä-lē-rän-pā-rē-gôr'), Charles Maurice de. 1754-1838. French politician and diplomat known for his capacity to survive political change. He held a variety of public offices during the French Revolution, Napoleon's reign, the Bourbon restoration, and the reign of Louis Philippe.

Tal·linn also Tal·lin (täl'in, tä'līn) The capital of Estonia, in the northwest part of the country on the Gulf of Finland opposite Helsinki. A major port, Tallinn was a possession of the Livonian Knights (1346-1561) and Sweden (1561-1710) before being formally ceded to Russia (1721). Population, 464,000.

tal·lith also tal·lis (tä'līs, tä-lēt') n. pl. tal·lith·im (tä-lē'sīm, -lā'-, tä'lē-tēm') or tal·liths also tal·li·sim (tä-lē'sīm, -lā'-). Judaism. A shawl with ritually knotted fringe at each of four corners worn by Jews, especially at morning prayer. Also called prayer shawl [Mishnaic Hebrew ṭallit, cover, from Hebrew ṭillēl, to cover.]

Tall·madge (täl'māj) A city of northeast Ohio, an industrial suburb of Akron. Population, 15,269.

tall oil (täl oil, tôl) n. A resinous oily liquid composed of a mixture of rosin acids and fatty acids obtained as a byproduct in the treatment of pine pulp and used in soaps, emulsions, and lubricants. [Partial translation of German Tallöl, from partial translation of Swedish tallolja : tall, pine (from Old Norse thöll, young pine tree) + olja, oil.]

tal·low (täl'ō) n. 1. Hard fat obtained from parts of the bodies of cattle, sheep, or horses, and used in foodstuffs or to make candles, leather dressing, soap, and lubricants. 2. Any of various similar fats, such as those obtained from plants.

— v. tr. tal·lowed, tal·low·ing, tal·lows. 1. To smear or cover with tallow.

2. To fatten (animals) in order to obtain tallow. [Middle English talow.]

—tal/low·y adj.

tal·ly (tāl'ē) n. pl. tal·lies. 1. A reckoning or score. 2. a. A stick on which notches are made to keep a count or score. b. A stick on which notches were formerly made to keep a record of amounts paid or owed. 3. A mark used in recording a number of acts or objects, most often in series of five, consisting of four vertical lines canceled diagonally or horizontally by a fifth line. 4. A label, ticket, or piece of metal or wood used for identification or classification, especially in gardens and greenhouses. 5. Something that is very similar or corresponds to something else; a double or counterpart. 6. Nautical. A metal plate attached to a ship's machinery and bearing instructions for its use. — v.

tal·lied, tal·ly·ing, tal·lies. — v. tr. 1. To reckon or count. 2. To record by making a mark. 3. To label, as with a ticket, for identification or classification.

4. To cause to correspond or agree. — v. intr. 1. To be alike; correspond or agree: The report tallies with your description of the accident. 2. To keep score.

[Middle English taly, from Anglo-Norman tallie, from Medieval Latin tallia, from Latin tālea, stick.]

tal·ly·ho (tāl'ē-hō') interj. Used to urge hounds on during a fox hunt. — v.

tal·ly·hoed, tal·ly·ho·ing, tal·ly·hos. — v. tr. To urge (hounds) on during a fox hunt by shouting “tallyho” when the fox is sighted. — v. intr. To shout “tallyho” as a hunting cry. — n. pl. tal·ly·hos. 1. The cry of “tallyho.” 2. A fast coach drawn by four horses. [Probably alteration of French taïaut, from Old French thialau, taho.]

Tal·mi gold (tāl'mē göld) n. A composite metal made of gold and brass, used in making jewelry. [German Talmigold, partial translation of French Tal. mi-or, contraction of Tallois demi-or, Tallois half-gold : Tallois (after Tallois, 19th-century Parisian inventor) + demi-, demi- + or, gold.]

Tal·mud (tāl'mööd, tāl'məd) n. Judaism. The collection of ancient Rabbinic writings consisting of the Mishnah and the Gemara, constituting the basis of religious authority in Orthodox Judaism. [Mishnaic Hebrew talmûd, learning, instruction, from lāmad, to learn.] —Tal·mu'dic (tāl-mōō'dīk, -myōō'-, tāl-), Tal·mu'di·cal (-dī-kəl) adj. —Tal'mud·ist (tāl'mōō-dīst, tāl'mə-) n.

tal·on (tāl'ən) n. 1. a. The claw of a bird of prey. b. The similar claw of a predatory animal. 2. Something similar to or suggestive of an animal's claw. 3. The part of a lock that the key presses in order to shoot the bolt. 4. Games. The part of the deck of cards in certain card games left on the table after the deal.

5. Architecture. An ogee molding. [Middle English taloun, from Old French talon, heel, from Vulgar Latin tālō, tālōn-*, from Latin tālus, ankle.]

ta·lus¹ (tā'ləs) n. pl. ta·li (-lī'). 1. The bone of the ankle that articulates with the tibia and fibula to form the ankle joint. Also called anklebone, astragalus. 2. The ankle. [Latin tālus, ankle.]

ta·lus² (tā'ləs) n. pl. ta·lus·es. A sloping mass of rock debris at the base of a cliff. [French talus, from Old French talū, sloping side of an earthwork, from Latin talūtium, gold-bearing outcrop, perhaps of Celtic origin.]

tam (tām) n. A tam-o'-shanter.

ta·ma·le (tə-mä'lē) n. A Mexican dish made of fried chopped meat and crushed peppers, highly seasoned, rolled in cornmeal dough, wrapped in cornhusks, and steamed. [From American Spanish tamales, pl. of tamal, tamale, from Nahuatl tamalli.]

Ta·man (tə-män') A peninsula of southwest Russia projecting westward between the Sea of Azov and the Black Sea. It is rich in petroleum deposits.

ta·man·du·a (tə-män'dō-ə) n. Either of two small nocturnal anteaters (Tamandua tetradactyla or T. mexicana) of Central and South America, having thick, bristly fur and dwelling in trees during the day. [Portuguese tamanduá, from Tupi ta-monduá, from monduar, to catch.]

Tam·a·rac (tām'ə-rāk') A city of southeast Florida northwest of Fort Lauderdale. Population, 44,822.

tam·a·rack (tām'ə-rāk') n. A deciduous North American larch tree (Larix laricina) having short needles borne on spur shoots. [Canadian French tamarac, Probably of Algonquian origin.]

tam·a·rau also tam·a·rao (tām'ə-rou') *n. pl. tam·a·raus also tam·a·raos. A small, grayish black, short-horned buffalo (Bubalus mindorensis) of the island of Mindoro in the Philippines, closely related to the anoa. [Tagalog tamaráw.]*

ta·ma·ril·lo (tām'ə-rī'lō, -rē'yō) n. pl. ta·ma·ril·los. 1. A tree (Cyphomandra betacea) native to the Peruvian Andes and cultivated especially in New Zealand for its edible dark red or yellow plumlike fruit. 2. The fruit of this tree. [Alteration of TOMATILLO.]

tam·a·rin (tām'ə-rīn, -răn') n. Any of various small, long-tailed, arboreal monkeys of the genera Leontideus and Saguinus of Central and South America, closely related to and resembling the marmosets but having a larger body, longer limbs, and lower canines that extend well beyond the incisors. [French, from Galibi.]

tam·a·rind (tām'ə-rīnd') n. 1. A tropical Asian evergreen tree (Tamarindus indica) having pinnately compound leaves, pale yellow flowers, and thick, cinnamon-brown pods containing an edible acid pulp. 2. The fruit of this tree, eaten fresh or used in the preparation of chutney, curry, or soft drinks. [Middle English, from Old French tamarinde, from Arabic tamr hindī: tamr, date + hindī, of India.]

tam·a·risk (tām'ə-rīsk') n. Any of numerous African and Eurasian shrubs or small trees of the genus Tamarix, having small scalelike leaves and racemes of white, pink, or red flowers. [Middle English tamarisc, from Late Latin tamariscus, variant of Latin tamarix, tamaric-.]

Ta·ma·yo (tä-mä'yō), Rufino. 1899-1991. Mexican artist whose bold, textured works were influenced by pre-Columbian symbols as well as cubism and expressionism.

tam·bac (töm'bäk) n. Variant of tombac.

tam·ba·la (tä-m-bä'lə) n. A unit of currency in Malawi. See Table at currency. [Perhaps from Chewa, or Nyanja, cockerels.]

tam·bour (tä'm'bōor', täm-bōor') n. 1. Music. A drum or drummer. 2. a. A small wooden embroidery frame consisting of two concentric hoops between which fabric is stretched. b. Embroidery made on such a frame. 3. A rolling front or top for a desk or table, consisting of narrow strips of wood glued to canvas. 4. Architecture. a. The wall of a circular building surrounded with columns. b. The vertical part of a cupola. — v. tam·boured, tam·bour·ing, tam·bours. — v. tr. To do (embroidery) on a frame consisting of two concentric hoops. — v. intr. To embroider at or on such a frame. [Middle English, from Old French, ultimately from Arabic ṭanbūr, lute.]

tam·bou·ra or tam·bu·ra (tüm-bōor'ə) also tan·bur (tä'n-bōor') n. Music. An unfretted lute of India and Turkey, used as a harmonic drone. [Urdu ṭambūra, from Persian ṭanbūra, from Arabic ṭanbūr.]

tam·bou·rin (tä'm'bōō-rin, tä'n-bōō-rän') n. 1. Music. a. A long, narrow drum used in Provence. b. One who plays this drum. 2. A style of dance in lively two-beat rhythm, accompanied by this drum. [Provençal tambourin, from Old French, diminutive of tambour, tambour. See TAMBOUR.]

tam·bou·rine (tä'm'bə-rēn') n. Music. An instrument consisting of a small drumhead with jingling disks that are fitted into the rim. It is shaken with one hand and struck with the other. [French tambourin, small drum, from Old French. See TAMBOURIN.]

Tam·bov (tä'm-bôf', -bôv') A city of western Russia southeast of Moscow. Founded as a fortress in 1636, it is a manufacturing center and railroad junction. Population, 296,000.

tam·bu·ra (tüm-bōor'ə) n. Music. Variant of tamboura.

tam·bu·rit·za (tä'm-bōor'it-sə, tä'm'bə-rit'sə) n. Music. A Serbo-Croatian stringed instrument similar to a mandolin in shape and sound. [Serbo-Croatian tamburica, diminutive of tambura, stringed instrument, from Ottoman Turkish ṭambūra, from Persian ṭanbūra. See TAMBOURA.]

Tam·bur·laine (tä'm'bər-lān') See Tamerlane.

tame (tām) adj. tam·er, tam·est. 1. Brought from wildness into a domesticated or tractable state. 2. Naturally unafraid; not timid: “The sea otter is gentle and relatively tame” (Peter Matthiessen). 3. Submissive; docile; fawning: tame obedience. 4. Insipid; flat: a tame Christmas party. 5. Sluggish; languid; inactive:

a tame river. — v. tr. tamed, tam-ing, tames. 1. To make tractable; domesticate. 2. To subdue or curb. 3. To tone down; soften. [Middle English, from Old English tam. See demə- in Appendix.] —tam'a-ble, tame'a-ble adj.

—tame'ly adv. —tame'ness n. —tam'er n.

Tam-er-lane (tām'ər-lān') or Tam-bur-laine (-bər-), 1336-1405. Mongolian conqueror who led his nomadic hordes from their capital at Samarkand in central Asia to overrun vast areas of Persia, Turkey, Russia, and India.

Tam-il (tām'əl, tūm'-, tām'əl) n. pl. Tamil or Ta-mils. 1. A member of a Dravidian people of southern India and northern Sri Lanka. 2. The Dravidian language of the Tamil. — adj. Of or relating to the Tamil or their language or culture. [Tamil.]

Tamm (tām), Igor Yevgenevich. 1895-1971. Russian physicist. He shared a 1958 Nobel Prize for work leading to the development of a cosmic-ray counter.

Tam-muz also Tham-muz (tām'mōōz) n. The tenth month of the year in the Jewish calendar. See Table at calendar. [Hebrew Tammūz, from Babylonian Du'uzu, the name of a god.]

tam-o'-shan-ter (tām'ə-shān'tər) n. A tight-fitting Scottish cap or braided bonnet, sometimes having a pompon, tassel, or feather in the center. [After the hero of "Tam o' Shanter," a poem by Robert Burns.]

tamp (tāmp) v. tr. tamped, tamp-ing, tamps. 1. To pack down tightly by a succession of blows or taps. 2. To pack clay, sand, or dirt into (a drill hole) above an explosive. [Perhaps back-formation from tampin, variant of TAMPION.]

Tam-pa (tām'pə) A city of west-central Florida on Tampa Bay, an inlet of the Gulf of Mexico. First visited by Spanish explorers in 1528, Tampa is a port of entry, a processing and shipping hub, and a tourist center. Population, 280,015.

tam-per¹ (tām'pər) v. tam-pered, tam-per-ing, tam-pers. — v. intr. 1. To interfere in a harmful manner: tried to tamper with the decedent's will; tampering with the timing mechanism of the safe. 2. To tinker with rashly or foolishly: Don't tamper with my feelings. 3. To engage in improper or secret dealings, as in an effort to influence: tamper with a jury. See Synonyms at interfere. — v. tr. To alter improperly. [Probably alteration of TEMPER.] —tam'per-er n.

tam-per² (tām'pər) n. A neutron reflector in an atomic bomb that also delays the expansion of the exploding material, making possible a longer-lasting, more energetic, and more efficient explosion.

Tam-pe-re (tām'pə-rā', tām'-) A city of southwest Finland north-northwest of Helsinki. An important trade center since the 11th century, it is noted for its textile industry. Population, 168,150.

Tam-pi-co (tām-pē'kō, tām-) A city of east-central Mexico near the Gulf of Mexico north-northeast of Mexico City. Settled by the Spanish in the 1530's, it is a major port, manufacturing center, and tourist resort. Population, 267,957.

tam·pi·on (tām'pē-ən) also tom·pi·on (tōm'/-) n. A plug or cover for the muzzle of a cannon or gun to keep out dust and moisture. [Middle English, from Old French tampon, variant of tapon, rag for stopping a hole, of Germanic origin.]

tam·pon (tām'pŏn') n. A plug of absorbent material inserted into a body cavity or wound to check a flow of blood or to absorb secretions, especially one designed for insertion into the vagina during menstruation. — v. tr.

tam·poned, tam·pon·ing, tam·pons. To plug or stop with a tampon.

[French, from Old French. See TAMPION.]

tam·tam¹ (tūm'tūm', tām'tām') n. Music. A gong having a metal disk struck with a felt-covered hammer or stick used in a gamelan orchestra. [Ultimately of imitative origin.]

tam·tam² (tūm'tūm', tām'tām') n. Variant of tom·tom.

Tam·worth (tām'wūrth') A municipal borough of central England northeast of Birmingham. It is an industrial center. Population, 65,100.

tan¹ (tăn) v. tanned, tan·ning, tans. — v. tr. 1. To convert (hide) into leather, as by treating with tannin. 2. To make brown by exposure to the sun.

3. Informal. To thrash; beat. — v. intr. To become brown or tawny from exposure to sun. — n. 1. Color. A light or moderate yellowish brown to brownish orange. 2. The brown color that sun rays impart to the skin. 3. Tanbark.

4. a. Tannin. b. A solution derived from tannin. — adj. tan·ner, tan·nest.

1. Color. Light or moderate yellowish-brown to brownish-orange. 2. Having a suntan. 3. Used in or relating to tanning. [Middle English tannen, from Old English tannian*, from Medieval Latin tannāre, from tannum, tanbark, probably of Celtic origin.] — tan'nish adj.

tan² abbr. Mathematics. Tangent.

Tan (tăn) n. pl. Tan or Tans. See Tanka.

Ta·na (tä'nə, -nä), Lake. Also, Lake. Tsa·na (tsä'-). A lake of northwest Ethiopia. It is the largest lake in the country and the source of the Blue Nile.

tan·a·ger (tăn'i-jər) n. Any of various small New World passerine birds of the family Thraupidae, often having brightly colored plumage in the males and usually living in forests. [New Latin tanagra, alteration of Portuguese tangará, from Tupi tanagorá.]

Tan·a·gra (tăn'ə-grə, tə-năg'rə) An ancient city of east-central Greece in eastern Boeotia. The Spartans defeated Athenian forces here in 457 B.C.

tan·a·grine (tăn'ə-grīn) adj. Of, relating to, or belonging to the tanagers.

[New Latin tanagra, tanager; see TANAGER + -INE¹.]

Ta·na·ka (tə-nă'kə, tä'nă-kä'), Kakuei. 1918-1993. Japanese politician who served as prime minister (1972-1974) but was forced to resign after being implicated in a bribery scandal.

Tan·a·na (tăn'ə-nô') A river of eastern and southern Alaska flowing about 764 km (475 mi) from the Wrangell Mountains northwest to the Yukon River.

Ta·nan·a·rive (tə-năn'ə-rēv', tə-nä-nä-rēv') See Antananarivo.

Tana River (tä'nə rīv'ər) 1. A river, about 805 km (500 mi) long, of central Kenya flowing in an arc northeast and south to the Indian Ocean. 2. A river, about 322 km (200 mi) long, of northeast Norway forming part of the Norway-Finland border and emptying into an inlet of the Arctic Ocean.

tan·bark (tăn'bärk') n. 1. The bark of various trees used as a source of tannin. 2. Shredded bark from which the tannin has been extracted, used to cover circus arenas, racetracks, and other surfaces. 3. See tan oak.

tan·bur (tän-bōör') n. Music. Variant of tamboura.

Tan·cred (täng'krīd), 1078?-1112. Norman soldier. A leader in the First Crusade (1096-1099), he served as regent of the principality of Antioch (1101-1112).

tan·dem (tăn'dəm) n. 1. A two-wheeled carriage drawn by horses harnessed one before the other. 2. A team of carriage horses harnessed in single file. 3. A tandem bicycle. 4. An arrangement of two or more persons or objects placed one behind the other: driving horses in tandem. — adv. One behind the other. [Latin, at last, at length. See to- in Appendix.] —tan'dem adj.

tandem bicycle (tăn'dəm bī'sīk'əl) n. A bicycle built for two or more people sitting one behind the other.

tandem trailer (tăn'dəm trā'lər) n. A trucking rig consisting of a tractor pulling two trailers, one behind the other.

tan·door (tän-dōör') n. pl. tan·doors or tan·door·i (-dōör'ē). A cylindrical oven made of clay, heated to a high heat over charcoal or wood, and used in India for baking bread and roasting meat. [Hindi, and Urdu tandūr from Persian, variant of tannūr, from Middle Persian, from Arabic, from nūr, light, fire.]

tan·door·i (tän-dōör'ē) adj. Cooked in a tandoor. [Hindi tandūri, from tandūr, tandoor. See TANDOOR.]

Ta·ney (tô'nē), Roger Brooke. 1777-1864. American jurist who served as the chief justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1836-1864). In the Dred Scott decision (1857) he ruled that slaves and their descendants had no rights as citizens.

tang¹ (täng) n. 1. A distinctively sharp taste, flavor, or odor, as that of orange juice. See Synonyms at taste. 2. A distinctive quality that adds piquancy. 3. A trace, hint, or smattering. 4. A sharp point, tongue, or prong. 5. A projection by which a tool, such as a chisel or knife, is attached to its handle or stock. Also called shank 6. A surgeonfish. — v. tr. tanged, tang·ing, tangs. 1. To furnish with a tang. 2. To give a tang to. [Middle English tange, of Scandinavian origin; akin to Old Norse tangi, point, sting.] —tang'i·ness n. —tang'y adj.

tang² (täng) n. A loud ringing sound; a twang. — v. intr. tr. tanged, tang·ing, tangs. To twang or cause to twang; ring. [Imitative.]

Tang (täng) A Chinese dynasty (618-907) that was known for its wealth and its encouragement of the arts and literature.

Tan-gan-yi-ka (tǎn'gən-yē'kə, tǎng'-) A former country of east-central Africa.

A British mandate after 1920, it became independent in 1961 and joined with Zanzibar to form Tanzania in 1964. —Tan'gan-yi'kan adj. & n.

Tanganyika, Lake. A lake of east-central Africa between Zaire and Tanzania.

The British explorers John Speke and Sir Richard Burton first sighted the lake in 1858.

tan-ge-lo (tǎn'jə-lō') n. pl. tan-ge-los. 1. A hybrid citrus tree derived from grapefruit and tangerine, having aromatic fruit with a thin, smooth, moderately loose rind. 2. The fruit of this tree. [Blend of TANGERINE, and POMELO.]

tan-gen-cy (tǎn'jən-sē) also tan-gence (-jəns) n. The condition of being tangent.

tangent (tǎn'jənt) adj. 1. Making contact at a single point or along a line; touching but not intersecting. 2. Irrelevant. — n. 1. A line, curve, or surface touching but not intersecting another line, curve, or surface. 2. Abbr. tan Mathematics. The trigonometric function of an acute angle in a right triangle that is the ratio of the length of the side opposite the angle to the length of the side adjacent to the angle. 3. A sudden digression or change of course: went off on a tangent during the courtroom argument. 4. Music. An upright pin in a keyboard instrument, especially in a clavichord, that rises to sound a string when a key is depressed and stops the string at a preset length to set the pitch. [Latin (līnea) tangēns, tangent-, touching (line), present participle of tangere, to touch. See tag- in Appendix.]

tan-gen-tial (tǎn-jěn'shəl) also tan-gen-tal (-jěn'tl) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or moving along or in the direction of a tangent. 2. Merely touching or slightly connected. 3. Only superficially relevant; divergent: a tangential remark.

—tan-gen'ti-al/i-ty (-shē-ăl'i-tē) n. —tan-gen'tial-ly adv.

tangent plane (tǎn'jənt plān) n. Mathematics. The plane containing all the lines tangent to a specified point on a surface.

tan-ger-ine (tǎn'jə-rēn', tǎn'jə-rēn') n. 1. A small southeast Asian spiny evergreen tree (Citrus reticulata) having sweet edible fruit. 2. The small, loose-skinned fruit of this tree. Also called mandarin orange 3. Color. A strong reddish orange to strong or vivid orange. [Short for tangerine orange, after Tanger (Tangier), Morocco.] —tan'ger-ine' adj.

WORD HISTORY: The name tangerine is like the skin of an orange, which when peeled off reveals something of interest. The name reflects the geographic source of the fruit, Tangier, Morocco, from which port the first tangerines were shipped to Europe in 1841. The word tangerine, from Tangier or Tanger, was already an English word (first recorded in 1710), meaning “of or pertaining to Tangier.” This word had been formed with the suffix -ine, as in Florentine. The fruit was first called a tangerine orange, later reduced simply to tangerine. Confusion exists between the name tangerine and the name mandarin, and with good reason. The tangerine is a type of mandarin orange, so in fact the oranges shipped from Tangier could have been called mandarins. However, although both names can be used interchangeably in a general sense, there does now exist a particular type of orange called tangerine as distinguished from another type called specifically mandarin. The mandarin orange, which is native to China, is thought probably to have received its name because of its resemblance in color to the robes of a mandarin.

tan-gi-ble (tän'jə-bəl) adj. 1. a. Discernible by the touch; palpable: a tangible roughness of the skin. b. Possible to touch. c. Possible to be treated as fact; real or concrete: tangible evidence. 2. Possible to understand or realize: the tangible benefits of the plan. 3. Law. That can be valued monetarily: tangible property. — n. 1. Something palpable or concrete. 2. tangibles. Material assets. [Late Latin tangibilis, from Latin tangere, to touch. See tag- in Appendix.]

—tan'gi-bil'i-ty, tan'gi-ble-ness n. —tan'gi-bly adv.

Tan-gier (tän-jîr') also Tan-giers (-jîrz') A city of northern Morocco at the west end of the Strait of Gibraltar. Founded in Roman times and later controlled by a variety of powers, including Portugal and Great Britain, it was administered as part of an international zone from 1923-1924 until 1956. Population, 266,346.

tan-gle¹ (täng'gəl) v. tan-gled, tan-gling, tan-gles. — v. tr. 1. To mix together or intertwine in a confused mass; snarl. 2. To involve in hampering or awkward complications; entangle. 3. To catch and hold in or as if in a net; entrap. See Synonyms at catch. — v. intr. 1. To be or become entangled. 2. Informal. To enter into argument, dispute, or conflict: tangled with the law. — n. 1. A confused, intertwined mass. 2. A jumbled or confused state or condition. 3. A state of bewilderment. 4. Informal. An argument or altercation.

[Middle English tangilen, to involve in an embarrassing situation, variant of tag-ilen, probably of Scandinavian origin; akin to Swedish dialectal taggla, to entangle.] —tan'gly adj.

tan-gle² (täng'gəl) n. A large seaweed of the genus Laminaria. [Of Scandinavian origin; akin to Old Norse thöngull, seaweed.]

tan-gled (täng'gəld) adj. Complicated and difficult to unravel. See Synonyms at complex.

tan-go (täng'gō) n. pl. tan-gos. 1. A Latin American ballroom dance in 2/4 or 4/4 time. 2. The music for this dance. — v. intr. tan-goed, tan-go-ing, tan-gos. To perform this dance. [American Spanish, possibly of Niger-Congo origin; akin to Ibibio tamgu, to dance.] —tan'go-like' adj.

tan-go-re-cep-tor (täng'gō-rĭ-sĕp'tər) n. A cutaneous receptor that responds to touch and pressure. [Latin tangere, to touch; see tag- in Appendix + RECEPTOR.] tan-gram (tǎng'grəm) n. Games. A Chinese puzzle consisting of a square cut into five triangles, a square, and a rhomboid, to be reassembled into different figures. [Perhaps partial translation of Chinese táng tú: táng, Tang, a Chinese dynasty + tú, picture, diagram.]

Tang-shan (tǎng'shān', dǎng'-) A city of northeast China east-southeast of Beijing. It was devastated in 1976 by a massive earthquake in which an estimated 242,000 people were killed. Population, 921,100.

Tan-guy (tǎN-gē'), Yves. 1900-1955. French-born American surrealist painter whose works include Indefinite Divisibility (1942) and Chess Set (1950).

Ta-nim·bar Islands (tə-nīm'bär' ī'ləndz, tə-) An island group of southeast Indonesia in the southern Moluccas east-northeast of Timor. The islands were discovered by the Dutch in 1629.

Ta-nis (tā'nīs) An ancient city of Egypt in the eastern delta of the Nile River. Important during the XIX and XXI Dynasties, it was abandoned after the sixth century A.D.

tan-ist (tǎn'ist, thō'nist) n. The heir apparent to an ancient Celtic chief, elected during the chief's lifetime. [Irish Gaelic tánaiste, second, tanist, from Old Irish tānaise. See sed- in Appendix.] —tan'ist-ry n.

tank (tǎngk) n. 1. a. A large, often metallic container for holding or storing liquids or gases. b. The amount that this container can hold: buy a tank of gas.

2. A usually artificial pool, pond, reservoir, or cistern, especially one used to hold water for drinking or for irrigation. 3. An enclosed, heavily armored combat vehicle that is mounted with cannon and guns and moves on caterpillar treads.

4. Slang. A jail or jail cell. — v. tr. tanked, tank-ing, tanks. To place, store, or process in a tank. —phrasal verb. tank up. 1. Slang. To drink to the point of intoxication. 2. To fill the tank of a motor vehicle with gasoline. [Partly from Gujarati tānkh, cistern (from Sanskrit taḍāgaḥ, pond, perhaps of Dravidian origin), and partly from Portuguese tanque, reservoir (variant of estanque, from estancar, to dam up, from Vulgar Latin stanticāre*); see STANCH¹.] —tank'ful' (-fōol') n. —tank'less adj.

tan-ka¹ (tǎng'kə) n. A Japanese verse form in five lines, the first and third composed of five syllables and the rest of seven. [Japanese.]

tan-ka² n. A Tibetan religious painting on fabric, usually portraying the Buddha or lamas in stereotyped aspects. [Tibetan thänka, something rolled up.]

Tan·ka (tǎng'kə) n. pl. Tanka or Tan·kas. A member of a people in southern China and Hong Kong who live on small boats clustered in colonies. Also called Tan [Cantonese tan ka: tan, tribal name (represented by the character for "egg") + ka, family, people variant of Chinese (Mandarin) jiā.]

Tan·ka (tǎng'kə) n. pl. Tanka or Tan·kas. A member of a people in southern China and Hong Kong who live on small boats clustered in colonies. Also called Tan [Cantonese tan ka: tan, tribal name (represented by the character for "egg") + ka, family, people variant of Chinese (Mandarin) jiā.]

tan-ka (tǎng'kə) n. pl. Tanka or Tan·kas. A member of a people in southern China and Hong Kong who live on small boats clustered in colonies. Also called Tan [Cantonese tan ka: tan, tribal name (represented by the character for "egg") + ka, family, people variant of Chinese (Mandarin) jiā.]

tank-age (tǎng'kij) n. 1. a. The act or process of putting or storing in a tank. b. The amount that a tank can hold. c. A fee for tank storage. 2. Animal residues that remain after rendering fat in a slaughterhouse, used for fertilizer or feed.

tank·ard (tǎng'kǎrd) n. A large drinking cup having a single handle and often a hinged cover, especially a tall pewter or silver mug. [Middle English, of unknown origin.]

tank destroyer (tǎngk dǐ-stroi'ər) n. Abbr. TD A high-speed armored vehicle equipped with antitank guns.

tanked (tǎngkt) adj. Slang. Intoxicated; drunk.

tank·er (tǎng'kər) n. 1. A ship, plane, or truck constructed to transport liquids, such as oil, in bulk. 2. A member of a military tank crew.

tank farm (tǎngk färm) n. A group of tanks, as for the commercial storage of oil, sited together.

tank suit (tǎngk sōot) n. A simply designed one-piece swimsuit with shoulder straps.

tank top (tǎngk tōp) n. A sleeveless, tight-fitting, usually knit shirt with wide shoulder straps and no front opening. [From its resemblance to a TANK SUIT.]

tank town (tǎngk toun) n. A small town. [So called because trains would stop there only to replenish water.]

tank trailer (tǎngk trā'lər) n. A truck trailer equipped as a tanker, used to carry liquids such as oil, milk, or chemicals.

tan·nate (tǎn'āt') n. A salt or an ester of tannic acid. [TANN(IN) + -ATE².]

tan·ner¹ (tǎn'ər) n. One that tans hides.

tan·ner² (tǎn'ər) n. Chiefly British. A sixpenny coin formerly used in Britain; a sixpence. [Origin unknown.]

Tan·ner (tǎn'ər), Henry Ossawa. 1859-1937. American painter in Paris. His works include The Banjo Lesson (c. 1893) and Disciples at the Tomb (1906).

tan·ner·y (tǎn'ə-rē) n. pl. tan·ner·ies. An establishment where hides are tanned.

tan·nic (tǎn'ik) adj. Of, relating to, or obtained from tannin. [TANN(IN) + -IC.]

tannic acid (tǎn'ik əs'ɪd) n. 1. A white or yellowish astringent powder, C₁₄H₁₀O₉, derived from nutgalls and used as a denaturant and in tanning and textiles. 2. A lustrous yellowish to light brown amorphous, powdered, flaked, or spongy mass having the approximate composition C₇₆H₅₂O₄₆, derived from the bark and fruit of many plants and used in photography, as a mordant, and to clarify wine and beer.

tan·nif·er·ous (tǎ-nǐf'ər-əs) adj. Containing or yielding tannin.

tan·nin (tǎn'in) n. 1. Tannic acid. 2. Any of various chemically different substances capable of promoting tanning. [French, from tan, crushed oak bark, from Old French, from Medieval Latin tannum. See TAN¹.]

- tan·ning (tăn'ning) n. 1. The art or process of making leather from rawhides. 2. Browning of the skin by exposure to sun and weather. 3. Informal. A beating; a whipping.
- tan oak or tan-oak (tăn'ōk') n. An evergreen tree (Lithocarpus densiflorus) native to California and Oregon, having leathery leaves, erect male catkins, and tannin-yielding bark. Also called tanbark
- Ta·no·an (tä'nō-ən) n. An American Indian language family of New Mexico and northeast Arizona. [From Spanish Tano, name for the Southern Tewas of New Mexico, from Tewa.] —Ta'no-an adj.
- tan·rec (tăn'rĕk') n. Variant of tenrec.
- tan rot (tăn röt) n. A disease of the strawberry plant caused by the fungus Pezi-zella lythri and marked by the formation of tan indentations on the surface of the fruit.
- tan·sy (tăn'zē) n. pl. tan·sies. Any of several plants of the genus Tanacetum, especially T. vulgare, native to Eurasia, having corymbs of buttonlike yellow flower heads and aromatic, pinnately dissected leaves that are sometimes used medicinally. [Middle English, from Old French tanésie, from Vulgar Latin tanacēta*, from Late Latin tanacētum, wormwood.]
- Tan·ta (tăn'tä) A city of northern Egypt in the Nile River delta north of Cairo. It is a processing center and railroad hub. Population, 364,700.
- tan·tal·ic (tăn-täl'ik) adj. Of, relating to, or containing tantalum.
- tan·ta·lite (tăn'tə-līt') n. A black to red-brown mineral, (Fe,Mn)(Ta,Nb)₂O₆, distinguished from columbite by the predominance of tantalum over niobium and used as an ore of both elements. [TANTAL(UM) + -ITE¹.]
- tan·ta·lize (tăn'tə-līz') v. tr. tan·ta·lized, tan·ta·liz·ing, tan·ta·liz·es. To excite (another) by exposing something desirable while keeping it out of reach. [From Latin Tantalus, Tantalus. See TANTALUS.] —tan'ta·li·za'tion (-lī-zā'shən) n. —tan'ta·liz'er n. —tan'ta·liz'ing·ly adv.
- tan·ta·lum (tăn'tə-ləm) n. Symbol Ta A very hard, heavy, gray metallic element that is exceptionally resistant to chemical attack below 150°C. It is used to make light-bulb filaments, electrolytic capacitors, lightning arresters, nuclear reactor parts, and some surgical instruments. Atomic number 73; atomic weight 180.948; melting point 2,996°C; boiling point 5,425°C; specific gravity 16.6; valence 2, 3, 4, 5. [New Latin, from Latin Tantalus, Tantalus (from its high resistance to acids). See TANTALUS.]
- Tan·ta·lus (tăn'tə-ləs) n. Greek Mythology. A king who for his crimes was condemned in Hades to stand in water that receded when he tried to drink, and with fruit hanging above him that receded when he reached for it. [Latin, from Greek Tantalos. See telə- in Appendix.]
- tan·ta·mount (tăn'tə-mount') adj. Equivalent in effect or value: a request tantamount to a demand. [From obsolete tantamount, an equivalent, from

Anglo-Norman tant amunter, to amount to as much : tant, so much, so great (from Latin tantum, neuter of tantus, from tam, so); see to- in Appendix + amunter, to amount to variant of Old French amonter. See AMOUNT.]

tan·ta·ra (tăn-tă'r'ə, -tăr'ə) n. 1. a. Music. A trumpet or horn fanfare. b. A sound resembling such a fanfare. 2. A hunting cry. [Imitative.]

tan·tiv·y (tăn-tiv'ē) adv. At full gallop; at top speed. — n. pl. tan·tiv·ies. 1. A hunting cry. 2. A fast, furious gallop; top speed. [Origin unknown.]

tan·tra (tũn'trə, tăn'-) n. Any of a comparatively recent class of Hindu or Buddhist religious literature written in Sanskrit and concerned with mysticism and magic. [Sanskrit tantram, doctrine, loom. See ten- in Appendix.] —tan'tric (-trik) adj.

tan·trum (tăn'trəm) n. A fit of bad temper. Regional. Also called hissy fit [Origin unknown.]

Tan·tung (tăn'toõng') See Dandong.

Tan·za·ni·a (tăn'zə-nē'ə) Abbr. Tanz. A country of east-central Africa on the Indian Ocean. Inhabited since prehistoric times, most of the region became a German protectorate in 1891 and passed to the British in 1920 as Tanganyika. Zanzibar, a narrow strip along the coast, was a British protectorate after 1890. Tanganyika achieved independence in 1961 and joined with Zanzibar in 1964 to form Tanzania. Dar es Salaam is the de facto capital and the largest city; Dodoma is the official capital. Population, 17,557,000. —Tan·za'ni·an adj. & n.

tan·zan·ite (tăn'zə-nīt') n. A transparent variety of zoisite, used as a gem. [After Tanzania.]

Tao·ism (tou'iz'əm, dou'-) n. A principal philosophy and system of religion of China based on the teachings of Lao-tzu in the 6th century B.C. [From Chinese (Mandarin) dào, way.] —Tao'ist n. —Tao·is'tic adj.

Ta·or·mi·na (tä'ôr-mē'nä) A town of eastern Sicily, Italy, at the foot of Mount Etna overlooking the Ionian Sea. First founded in the eighth century B.C., it is a famous winter resort. Population, 10,085.

Taos¹ (tous, tä'ōs) n. pl. Taos. 1. a. A Pueblo people located north-northeast of Santa Fe, New Mexico. b. A member of this people. 2. The Tanoan language of the Taos people.

Taos² (tous, tä'ōs) 1. A town of northern New Mexico north-northeast of Santa Fe. It developed as an art colony after 1898 and has attracted many artists and writers, including John Marin and D.H. Lawrence. Population, 4,065. 2. A pueblo of northern New Mexico northeast of the town of Taos. Population, 1,030.

tap¹ (tăp) v. tapped, tap·ping, taps. — v. tr. 1. To strike gently with a light blow or blows: I tapped you on the shoulder to get your attention. 2. To give a light rap with: tap a pencil. 3. To produce with a succession of light blows: tap out a rhythm. 4. To select, as for membership in an organization; designate. See Synonyms at appoint. 5. a. To repair (shoe heels or toes) by applying a thin layer of leather or a substitute material. b. To attach metal plates to (shoe toes or heels).

— v. intr. 1. To deliver a gentle, light blow or blows. 2. To walk making light clicks. — n. 1. a. A gentle blow. b. The sound made by such a blow. 2. a. A thin layer of leather or a substitute applied to a worn-down shoe heel or toe. b. A metal plate attached to the toe or heel of a shoe, as for tap-dancing. [Middle English tappen, possibly from Old French taper.]

tap² (tăp) n. 1. A valve and spout used to regulate delivery of a fluid at the end of a pipe. 2. A plug for a bunghole; a spigot. 3. a. Liquor drawn from a spigot. b. Liquor of a particular brew, cask, or quality. 4. Medicine. The removal of fluid from a body cavity: a spinal tap. 5. A tool for cutting an internal screw thread. 6. A makeshift terminal in an electric circuit. — v. tr. tapped, tap-ping, taps. 1. To furnish with a spigot or tap. 2. To pierce in order to draw off liquid: tap a maple tree. 3. To draw (liquid) from a vessel or container. 4. Medicine. To withdraw fluid from (a body cavity). 5. To make a connection with or open outlets from: tap a water main. 6. a. To wiretap (a telephone). b. To establish an electric connection in (a power line), as to divert current secretly. 7. To cut screw threads in (a collar, socket, or other fitting). 8. Informal. To ask (a person) for money. — idiom. on tap. 1. Ready to be drawn; in a tapped cask: beer on tap. 2. Available for immediate use; ready: extra personnel on tap. [Middle English tappe, from Old English tæppa.]

ta·pa¹ (tä'pə, tăp'ə) n. 1. The inner bark of the paper mulberry. 2. A paperlike cloth made in the South Pacific islands by pounding this bark or similar bark. [Marquesan, and Tahitian.]

ta·pa² (tä'pə) n. Any of various small, often spicy dishes served as appetizers, typically in sherry bars in Spain. [Spanish, cap, appetizer, of Germanic origin.]

Ta·pa·jós also Ta·pa·józ (tăp'ə-zhôs', tă'pä-) A river, about 965 km (600 mi) long, of northern Brazil flowing northeast to the Amazon River.

tap dance (tăp dăns) n. A dance in which the rhythm is sounded out by the clicking taps on the heels and toes of a dancer's shoes. — tap dancer n.

tap-dance (tăp'dăns') v. intr. tap-danced, tap-danc-ing, tap-danc-es.
To perform a tap dance.

tape (tāp) n. 1. A narrow strip of strong woven fabric, as that used in sewing or bookbinding. 2. A continuous narrow, flexible strip of cloth, metal, paper, or plastic, such as adhesive tape, magnetic tape, or ticker tape. 3. A string stretched across the finish line of a racetrack to be broken by the winner. 4. A tape recording. — v. taped, tap-ing, tapes. — v. tr. 1. a. To fasten, secure, strengthen, or wrap with a tape. b. To bind together (the sections of a book) by applying strips of tape to. 2. To measure with a tape measure. 3. To record sounds or pictures on magnetic tape. — v. intr. To make a recording on magnetic tape. [Middle English, from Old English tæppe.] — tape'a·ble adj.
— tape'less adj.

tape cartridge (tāp kār'trīj) n. A cartridge containing an endless loop of magnetic tape and designed for automatic use on insertion into a compatible sound or video recorder or computer system.

tape deck (tāp dĕk) n. A tape recorder and player having no built-in amplifiers or speakers, used as a component in an audio system.

tape grass (tāp grās) n. See eelgrass.

tape-line (tāp'līn') n. See tape measure.

tape measure (tāp mĕzh'ər) n. A tape of cloth, paper, or steel marked off in a linear scale, as of inches or centimeters, for taking measurements. Also called tapeline ta-pé-nade (tā'pə-nād') n. A spread of Provençal origin consisting of capers, black olives, and anchovies puréed with olive oil. [French, from Provençal tapéno, capers, perhaps ultimately of Arabic origin.]

tape player (tāp plā'ər) n. A self-contained machine for playing back recorded magnetic tapes.

ta-per (tā'pər) n. 1. A small or very slender candle. 2. A long wax-coated wick used to light candles or gas lamps. 3. A source of feeble light. 4. a. A gradual decrease in thickness or width of an elongated object. b. A gradual decrease, as in action or force. — v. ta-pered, ta-per-ing, ta-pers. — v. intr. 1. To become gradually narrower or thinner toward one end. 2. To diminish or lessen gradually. Often used with off: The storm finally tapered off. — v. tr. 1. To make thinner or narrower at one end. 2. To make smaller gradually. — adj. Gradually decreasing in size toward a point. [Middle English, from Old English tapor, possibly ultimately from Latin papyrus, papyrus (sometimes used for candle-wicks). See PAPER.] — ta-per-ing-ly adv.

tape-re-cord (tāp'rī-kôrd') v. tr. tape-re-cord-ed, tape-re-cord-ing, tape-re-cords. To record on magnetic tape.

tape recorder (tāp rī-kôrd'ər) n. A mechanical device for recording on magnetic tape and usually for playing back the recorded material.

tape recording (tāp rī-kôrd'ĭng) n. 1. a. A magnetic tape on which sound or visual images have been recorded. b. The material recorded on a magnetic tape. 2. The act of recording on magnetic tape.

tap-es-try (tāp'ĩ-strĕ) n. pl. tap-es-tries. 1. A heavy cloth woven with rich, often varicolored designs or scenes, usually hung on walls for decoration and sometimes used to cover furniture. 2. Something felt to resemble a richly and complexly designed cloth: the tapestry of world history. — v. tr. tap-es-try-ed (-ĩ-strĕd), tap-es-try-ing, tap-es-tries (-ĩ-strĕz). 1. To hang or decorate with tapestry. 2. To make, weave, or depict in a tapestry. [Middle English tapiceri, tapstri, from Old French tapisserie, from tapisser, to cover with carpet, from tapis, carpet, from Greek tapĕtion, diminutive of tapĕs, perhaps of Iranian origin.]

ta-pe-tum (tə-pē'təm) n. pl. ta-pe-ta (-tə). 1. Botany. A nutritive tissue within the sporangium, particularly within an anther. 2. Anatomy. a. A membranous layer or region, especially the iridescent membrane of the choroid of certain mammals. b. A layer of fibers of the corpus callosum forming the roof of part of the lateral ventricle of the brain. [Medieval Latin tapētum, coverlet, from Latin tapēte, ·tapētum, from Greek tapēs, tapēt-. See TAPESTRY.] —ta-pe'tal (-pēt'l) adj.

tape-worm (tāp'wūrm') n. Any of various ribbonlike, often very long flatworms of the class Cestoda, that lack an alimentary canal and are parasitic in the intestines of vertebrates, including human beings.

ta-phon-o-my (tə-fŏn'ə-mē) n. 1. The study of the conditions and processes by which organisms become fossilized. 2. The conditions and processes of fossilization. [Greek taphē, grave + -NOMY.] —taph'o-nom'ic (tăf'ə-nŏm'ik) adj. —ta-phon'o-mist n.

tap house (tăp hous) n. A tavern or bar.

tap-i-o-ca (tăp'ē-ō'kə) n. A beady starch obtained from the root of the cassava, used for puddings and as a thickening agent in cooking. [Portuguese, from Tupi typióca : ty, juice + pyá, heart + oca, to remove.]

ta-pir (tā'pər, tə-pîr') n. Any of several large, chiefly nocturnal, odd-toed ungulates of the genus Tapirus of tropical America, the Malay Peninsula, and Sumatra, related to the horse and the rhinoceros, and having a heavy body, short legs, and a long, fleshy, flexible upper lip. [Perhaps French, ultimately from Tupi tapiira, tapir.]

tap-is (tăp'ē, tăp'is, tə-pē') n. Obsolete. Tapestry or comparable material used for draperies, carpeting, and furniture covering. —idiom. on the tapis. Under consideration. [Middle English, from Old French. See TAPESTRY.]

tap-off (tăp'ôf', -ôf') n. Basketball. See tip-off².

Tap-pan (tăp'ən), Arthur. 1786-1865. American merchant and abolitionist. With his brother Lewis (1788-1873) he founded the American Anti-Slavery Society (1833).

Tappan Zee (tăp'ən zē) A widening of the Hudson River in southeast New York. Maj. John André was hanged for treason in 1780 at the nearby village of Tappan.

tap-per (tăp'ər) n. One that taps.

tap-pet (tăp'it) n. A lever or projecting arm that moves or is moved by contact with another part, usually to communicate a certain motion, as between a driving mechanism and a valve. [Probably from TAP¹.]

tap-ping (tăp'ing) n. 1. a. The act of one that taps. b. The process or means by which something is tapped. 2. Something that is taken or drawn by tapping.

tap-pit-hen (tăp'it-hĕn') n. Scots. 1. A crested hen. 2. A large mug with a knobbed lid. [Scots tappit, crested (variant of topped, past participle of TOP¹) + HEN.]

tap-room (täp'róom', -róom') n. A bar or barroom.

tap-root (täp'róot', -róot') n. The main root of a plant, usually stouter than the lateral roots and growing straight downward from the stem.

taps (täps) pl.n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). A bugle call or drum signal sounded at night, as at a military camp, as an order to put out lights and also sounded at military funerals and memorial services. [Perhaps alteration of tap-too, tattoo, variant of TATTOO¹.]

tap-ster (täp'stär) n. One who draws and serves liquor for customers; a bartender.

tap water (täp wô'tär) n. Water drawn directly from a tap or faucet.

tar¹ (tär) n. 1. A dark, oily, viscous material, consisting mainly of hydrocarbons, produced by the destructive distillation of organic substances such as wood, coal, or peat. 2. Coal tar. 3. A solid residue of tobacco smoke containing byproducts of combustion. — v. tr. tarred, tar-ring, tars. To coat with or as if with tar. — idiom. tar and feather. 1. To punish (a person) by covering with tar and feathers. 2. To criticize severely and devastatingly; excoriate. [Middle English, from Old English teru. See deru- in Appendix.]

tar² (tär) n. Informal. A sailor. [Possibly short for TARPAULIN.]

Tar-a (tä'rə) A village of eastern Ireland northwest of Dublin. It was the seat of Irish kings from ancient times until the sixth century A.D.

tar-a·did·dle (tä'rə-did'l) n. Variant of tarradiddle.

Ta-ra·hu·ma·ra (tä'rə-hōō-mär'ə, tä'r'-) n. pl. Tarahumara or Ta-ra·hu·ma·ras. 1. A member of a Native American people of north-central Mexico. 2. The Uto-Aztecan language of the Tarahumara.

ta-ra·ma·sa·la·ta (tä'rä-mä-sä-lä'tä) or ta-ra·mo·sa·la·ta (-mō-) n. A Greek appetizer consisting of a light paste of fish roe, olive oil, lemon juice, and moistened bread crumbs or mashed potatoes. [Modern Greek : taramas, preserved roe (from Turkish tarama, soft roe) + salata, salad (from Italian insalata, from feminine past participle of insalare, to salt : Latin in-, in, on; see in⁻² + Vulgar Latin salāre*, to salt from Latin sāl, salt); see SAL.]

tar-an·tel·la (tä'rən-těl'ə) n. 1. A lively, whirling southern Italian dance once thought to be a remedy for tarantism. 2. The music for this dance, in 6/8 time. [Italian, after Taranto.]

tar-an·tism (tä'rən-tiz'əm) n. A disorder characterized by an uncontrollable urge to dance, especially prevalent in southern Italy from the 15th to the 17th century and popularly attributed to the bite of a tarantula. [New Latin tarantismus, after Taranto.]

Ta-ran·to (tä'rən-tō', tə-rän'tō, tä'rän-tô') A city of southeast Italy east-southeast of Naples on the Gulf of Taranto, an arm of the Ionian Sea. Founded by Greeks from Sparta in the eighth century B.C., it was known as Tarentum in Roman times. Ruled by varied powers over the centuries, it became part of Italy in 1860. Population, 242,774.

ta·ran·tu·la (tə-răn'chə-lə) n. pl. ta·ran·tu·las or tarantu·lae (-lē'). 1. Any of various large, hairy, chiefly tropical spiders of the family Theraphosidae, capable of inflicting a painful but not seriously poisonous bite. 2. A large wolf spider (Lycosa tarentula) of southern Europe, once thought to cause tarantism. [Medieval Latin, from Old Italian tarantola, after Taranto.]

Ta·ra·wa (tə-rä'wə, tə'rə-wä', tə'rä-) An atoll of Kiribati in the northern Gilbert Islands of the western Pacific Ocean. It was occupied by the Japanese in 1942 and retaken by U.S. Marines after a hard-fought battle in November 1943.

tar baby (tär bā'bē) n. A situation or problem from which it is virtually impossible to disentangle oneself. [After "Bre'r Rabbit and the Tar Baby," an Uncle Remus story by Joel Chandler Harris.]

Tar·bell (tär'bəl), Ida Minerva. 1857-1944. American muckraking writer and editor remembered for her investigations of industry, including History of the Standard Oil Company (1904).

Tarbes (tärb) A city of southwest France near the Pyrenees west-southwest of Toulouse. It is an industrial, commercial, and tourist center. Population, 51,422.

tar·boosh also tar·bush (tär-bōosh') n. A brimless, usually red felt cap with a silk tassel, worn by Muslim men, either by itself or as the base of a turban. [Arabic (Egyptian) ṭarbūs, from Turkish terposh, probably from Persian sarposh, head-dress : sar, head + pūsh, covering.]

tar camphor (tär kām'fər) n. See naphthalene.

Tar·dieu (tär-dyœ'), André Pierre Gabriel Amédée. 1876-1945. French politician and journalist who helped draft the Versailles Treaty of 1919 and served as premier of France (1929-1930 and 1932).

tar·di·grade (tär'dī-grād') n. Any of various slow-moving, microscopic invertebrates of the phylum Tardigrada, related to the arthropods and having four body segments and eight legs and living in water or damp moss. Also called water bear — adj. 1. Of or belonging to the Tardigrada. 2. Slow in action; slow-moving. [Latin tardigradus, slow-moving : tardus, slow + -gradus, walking, moving (from gradī, to go); see TRANSGRESS.]

tar·dive (tär'dīv) adj. Having symptoms that develop slowly or appear long after inception. Used of a disease. [French, feminine of tardif, from Old French, slow. See TARDY.]

tardive dyskinesia (tär'dīv dīs'kə-nē'zhə) n. A chronic disorder of the nervous system characterized by involuntary jerky movements of the face, tongue, jaws, trunk, and limbs, usually developing as a late side effect of prolonged treatment with antipsychotic drugs.

tar·dy (tär'dē) adj. tar·di·er, tar·di·est. 1. Occurring, arriving, acting, or done after the scheduled, expected, or usual time; late. 2. Moving slowly; sluggish.

[Alteration of Middle English tardive, slow, from Old French tardif, from Vulgar Latin tardivus*, from Latin tardus.] —tar'di·ly adv. —tar'di-ness n.

SYNONYMS: tardy, behindhand, late, overdue. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “not arriving, occurring, acting, or done at the scheduled, expected, or usual time”: tardy in making a dental appointment; behindhand with her car payments; late for the plane; an overdue bus.

ANTONYM: prompt

tare¹ (târ) n. 1. Any of various weedy plants of the genus Vicia, especially the common vetch. 2. Any of several weedy plants that grow in grain fields.

3. tares. An unwelcome or objectional element. [Middle English.]

tare² (târ) n. 1. Abbr. t. The weight of a container or wrapper that is deducted from the gross weight to obtain net weight. 2. A deduction from gross weight made to allow for the weight of a container. 3. Chemistry. A counterbalance, especially an empty vessel used to counterbalance the weight of a similar container. — v. tr. tared, tar-ing, tares. To determine or indicate the tare of, especially to weigh in order to find out the tare. [Middle English, from Old French, ultimately from Arabic ṭarḥah, that which is thrown away, from ṭaraḥa, to reject.]

targe (târj) n. Archaic. A light shield or buckler. [Middle English, from Old French. See TARGET.]

tar-get (târ'gĭt) n. Abbr. tgt. 1. a. An object, such as a padded disk with a marked surface, that is shot at to test accuracy in rifle or archery practice. b. Something aimed or fired at. 2. An object of criticism or attack. 3. One to be influenced or changed by an action or event. 4. A desired goal. 5. A railroad signal that indicates the position of a switch by its color, position, and shape. 6. The sliding sight on a surveyor's leveling rod. 7. A small, round shield. 8. a. A structure in a television camera tube with a storage surface that is scanned by an electron beam to generate a signal output current similar to the charge-density pattern stored on the surface. b. A usually metal part in an x-ray tube on which a beam of electrons is focused and from which x-rays are emitted. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a target group; a target market. — v. tr. tar-get-ed, tar-get-ing, tar-gets. 1. To make a target of. 2. To aim at or for. 3. To establish as a target or goal. — idiom. on target. Completely accurate, precise, or valid: observations that were right on target. [Middle English, small targe, from Old French targuete, variant of targete, diminutive of targe, light shield, of Germanic origin.]

tar-get-a-ble (târ'gĭ-tə-bəl) adj. That can be directed at a target: independently targetable nuclear warheads.

target date (tär'gīt dāt) n. A date established as a target or goal, as for the completion of a project.

target language (tär'gīt lǎng'gwīj) n. 1. The language into which a text written in another language is to be translated. 2. A language that a nonnative speaker is in the process of learning. 3. Computer Science. The computer language, often a machine language, into which a document written in another computer language is to be translated. Also called object language

Tar-gum (tär'gōöm', -gōöm') n. Any of several Aramaic translations or paraphrasings of the Old Testament. [Mishnaic Hebrew targûm, translation, interpretation, Targum, from Hebrew tirgēm, to interpret.]

Tar Heel or Tar-heel (tär'hēl') n. A native or resident of North Carolina. [Perhaps from the tar that was once a major product of the state.]

tar-iff (tär'if) n. 1. a. A list or system of duties imposed by a government on imported or exported goods. b. Duties or a duty imposed by a government on imported or exported goods. 2. A schedule of prices or fees. — v. tr.

tar-iffed, tar-iff-ing, tar-iffs. To fix a duty or price on. [Italian tariffa, from Old Italian, from Arabic ta'rīf, notification, from 'arafa, to know.]

Ta-rim He (tä'rēm' hə') A river of western China flowing about 2,092 km (1,300 mi) eastward to Lop Nur.

Tarim Pen-di (tä'rēm' pūn'dē') An arid basin of western China south of the Tien Shan and traversed by the Tarim He. The ancient Silk Road passed through the region.

Tar-king-ton (tär'kīng'tən), (Newton) Booth. 1869-1946. American writer whose novels include The Magnificent Ambersons (1918) and Alice Adams (1921), both of which won a Pulitzer Prize.

tar-la-tan also tar-le-tan (tär'lə-tən, -lə-tən) n. A thin, stiffly starched muslin in open plain weave. [French tarlatane, alteration of earlier tarnatane.]

tar-mac (tär'măk') n. A tarmacadam road or surface, especially an airport runway. — v. tar-macked, tar-mack-ing, tar-macs. — v. tr. To cause (an aircraft) to sit on a taxiway. — v. intr. To sit on a taxiway. Used of an aircraft. [Originally a trademark.]

tar-mac-ad-am (tär'mə-kăd'əm) n. A pavement consisting of layers of crushed stone with a tar binder pressed to a smooth surface.

tarn (tärn) n. A small mountain lake, especially one formed by glaciers. [Middle English tarne, of Scandinavian origin.]

Tarn (tärn) A river, about 378 km (235 mi) long, of southern France flowing generally west and southwest to the Garonne River.

tar-nal (tär'nəl) adj. & adv. Chiefly New England & Chiefly Upper Southern U.S. Damned. See Regional note at tarnation. [Alteration of ETERNAL.] —tar'nal-ly adv.

tar-na-tion (tär-nā'shən) New England & Southern U.S. n. The act of damning or the condition of being damned. — interj. Used to express anger or annoyance. [TARN(AL) + (DAMN)ATION.]

REGIONAL NOTE: The noun and interjection tarnation illustrate suffixation, the addition of a suffix to a word. Tarnation and darnation (the latter probably having come first) are both euphemistic forms of damnation. Tarnation seems to have been influenced by tarnal, another mild oath derived from (e)ternal! The Oxford English Dictionary cites late-18th-century examples of tarnation from New England, indicating that it has been part of American speech since colonial days.

tar-nish (tär'nish) v. tar-nished, tar-nish-ing, tar-nish-es. — v. tr. 1. To dull the luster of; discolor, especially by exposure to air or dirt. 2. a. To detract from or spoil; taint: a tragedy that tarnished our hopes. b. To cast aspersions on; sully: slander that tarnished the senator's image. — v. intr. 1. To lose luster; become discolored. 2. To diminish or become tainted. — n. 1. The condition of being tarnished. 2. Discoloration of a metal surface caused by corrosion or oxidation. 3. The condition of being sullied or tainted. [Middle English ternishen, from Old French ternir, terniss-, to dull, from terne, dull, of Germanic origin.] — tar'nish-a-ble adj.

Tar-nów (tär'nōōf') A city of southeast Poland east of Cracow. It was a religious and cultural center in the 15th and 16th centuries. Population, 113,200.

ta-ro (tär'ō, tär'ō) n. pl. ta-ros. 1. A widely cultivated tropical Asian plant (Colocasia esculenta) having broad, peltate leaves and a large, starchy, edible tuber. 2. The tuber of this plant. Also called cocoyam, dasheen, eddo. [Of Polynesian origin.]

tar-ok also tar-oc (tär'ək) n. Games. A card game developed in Italy in the 14th century, played with a 78-card pack consisting of four suits plus the 22 tarot cards as trumps. [Italian tarocchi, pl. of tarocco, tarot.]

tar-ot (tär'ō, tər-rō') n. Games. 1. Any of a set of 22 playing cards consisting of a joker plus 21 cards depicting vices, virtues, and elemental forces, used in fortunetelling and as trump in tarok. 2. tarots. Tarok. [French, from Italian tarocco.]

tarp (tärp) n. Informal. A tarpaulin.

tar-pa-per (tär'pā'pər) n. Heavy paper impregnated or coated with tar, used as a waterproof protective material in building.

tar-pau-lin (tär-pō'līn, tär'pə-) n. 1. Material, such as waterproofed canvas, used to cover and protect things from moisture. 2. A sheet of this material. [Probably alteration of TAR¹ + PALL¹ + -ING².]

tar pit (tär pīt) n. An accumulation of natural tar or asphalt at the earth's surface, especially one that acts as a trap for animals and preserves their bones.

tar·pon (tär'pən) n. pl. tarpon or tar-pons. Any of several fishes of the family Elopidae or Megalopidae, especially a large silvery game fish (Megalops atlanticus) of Atlantic coastal waters. [Origin unknown.]

Tar·quin·i·i (tär-kwĭn'ē-ī') An ancient city of central Italy northwest of Rome. Head of the Etruscan League, it was defeated by Roman forces in the fourth century B.C. and lost its independence in the third century. The modern village of Tarquinia has a museum displaying notable Etruscan antiquities.

tar·ra·did·dle also tar·a·did·dle (tär'ə-dĭd'l) n. 1. A petty falsehood; a fib. 2. Silly pretentious speech or writing; twaddle. [Origin unknown.]

tar·ra·gon (tär'ə-gŏn', -gən) n. 1. An aromatic Eurasian herb (Artemisia dracunculus) having linear to lance-shaped leaves and small, whitish-green flower heads arranged in loose, spreading panicles. 2. The leaves of this plant used as seasoning. [New Latin tarchon, from Medieval Greek tarkhōn, from Arabic tarḥūn, perhaps from Greek drakōn, dragon, tarragon.]

Tar·ra·go·na (tär'ə-gŏ'nə, tär'rä-gŏ'nä) A city of northeast Spain on the Mediterranean Sea west-southwest of Barcelona. A leading town of Roman Spain after the third century B.C., it fell to the Moors in A.D. 714. Population, 113,075.

Tar·ra·sa (tə-rä'sə, tä-rä'sä) A city of northeast Spain north-northwest of Barcelona. Founded in Roman times, it is an industrial center noted for its textiles. Population, 165,233.

tar·ri·ance (tär'ē-əns) n. Archaic. 1. The act of tarrying. 2. A temporary stay; a sojourn.

Tar River (tär rĭv'ər) A river, about 346 km (215 mi) long, of northeast North Carolina flowing generally southeast to an estuary of Pamlico Sound.

tar·ry¹ (tär'ē) v. tar-ried, tar-ry-ing, tar-ries. — v. intr. 1. To delay or be late in going, coming, or doing. See Synonyms at stay¹. 2. To wait. 3. To remain or stay temporarily, as in a place; sojourn. — v. tr. Archaic. To wait for; await. — n. A temporary stay; a sojourn. [Middle English tarien.] —tar'ri-er n.

tar·ry² (tär'ē) adj. tar-ri-er, tar-ri-est. Of, resembling, or covered with tar.

Tar·ry·town (tär'ē-toun') A village of southeast New York on the Hudson River north of New York City. Founded by the Dutch in the 17th century, it was the home of Washington Irving and the setting for many of his short stories. Population, 10,648.

tar·sal (tär'səl) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or situated near the tarsus of the foot: the tarsal bones. 2. Of or relating to the tarsus of the eyelid: the tarsal ligaments. [New Latin tarsālis, from tarsus, tarsus. See TARSUS.]

tarsal gland (tär'səl gländ) n. Any of the branched sebaceous glands located in the tarsus of the eyelid.

tarsal plate (tär'səl plāt) n. See tarsus (n., sense 2).

tar·si (tär'sī, -sē) n. Plural of tarsus.

tar·si·er (tär'sē-ər, -sē-ā') n. Any of several small nocturnal arboreal primates of the genus Tarsius, of the East Indies and the Philippines, having large round eyes, a long tail, and long fingers and toes tipped with soft disklike pads. [French, from tarse, tarsus (from its elongated ankles), from New Latin tarsus. See TARSUS.]

tar·so·met·a·tar·sus (tär'sō-mět'ə-tär'səs) n. pl. tar·so·met·a·tar·si (-sī, -sē). A compound bone between the tibia and the toes of a bird's leg, formed by fusion of the tarsal and metatarsal bones. —tar'so·met'a·tar'sal (-tär'səl) adj.

tar·sus (tär'səs) n. pl. tar·si (-sī, -sē). 1. a. The section of the vertebrate foot between the leg and the metatarsus. b. The bones making up this section, especially the seven small bones of the human ankle. 2. A fibrous plate that supports and shapes the edge of the eyelid. Also called tarsal plate 3. Zoology. a. The tarsometatarsus. b. The distal part of the leg of an arthropod, usually divided into segments. [New Latin, from Greek tarsos, ankle. See ters- in Appendix.]

Tar·sus (tär'səs) A city of southern Turkey near the Mediterranean Sea west of Adana. Settled in the Neolithic Period, it was one of the most important cities of Asia Minor under Roman rule (after 67 B.C.). Saint Paul was born in Tarsus. Population, 121,074.

tart¹ (tärt) adj. tart·er, tart·est. 1. Having a sharp, pungent taste; sour. See Synonyms at sour. 2. Sharp or bitter in tone or meaning; cutting. [Middle English, from Old English teart, severe. See der- in Appendix.] —tart'ly adv. —tart'ness n.

tart² (tärt) n. 1. a. A small open pie with a sweet filling, as of custard or cooked fruit. b. Chiefly British. A pie. 2. a. A prostitute. b. A woman considered to be sexually promiscuous. — v. tr. tart·ed, tart·ing, tarts. Chiefly British. To dress up or make fancy in a tawdry, garish way. [Middle English tarte, from Old French, perhaps alteration of tartane, from Late Latin torta, a kind of bread.]

tar·tan¹ (tär'tn) n. 1. a. Any of numerous textile patterns consisting of stripes of varying widths and colors crossed at right angles against a solid background, each forming a distinctive design worn by the members of a Scottish clan. b. A twilled wool fabric or garment having such a pattern. 2. A plaid fabric. [Middle English tartane, possibly from Old French tiretaine, linsey-woolsey, probably from tiret, a kind of cloth, from tire, silk cloth, from Latin Tyrius, Tyrian (cloth), from Tyrus, Tyre.] —tar'tan adj.

tar·tan² (tär'tn, tär-tän') n. Nautical. A small, single-masted Mediterranean ship with a large lateen sail. [French tartane, from Provençal tartano, from Old Provençal tartana, buzzard, of imitative origin.]

tar·tar (tär'tər) n. 1. Dentistry. A hard, yellowish deposit on the teeth, consisting of organic secretions and food particles deposited in various salts, such as calcium carbonate. 2. A reddish acid compound, chiefly potassium bitartrate, found in the juice of grapes and deposited on the sides of casks during winemaking. [Middle English tartre, potassium bitartrate, from Old French, from Medieval Latin tartarum, from Medieval Greek tartaron.]

Tar·tar (tär'tär) n. 1. Also Ta·tar (tä'tär). A member of any of the Turkic and Mongolian peoples of central Asia who invaded western Asia and eastern Europe in the Middle Ages. 2. Variant of Tatar. 3. Often tartar. A person regarded as ferocious or violent. —idiom. catch a Tartar. To grapple with an unexpectedly formidable opponent. [Middle English Tartre, from Old French Tartare, from Medieval Latin Tartarus, alteration (influenced by Latin Tartarus, Tartarus), of Persian Tātār, of Turkic origin.]

tartar emetic (tär'tär ĭ-mět'ĭk) n. A poisonous crystalline compound, $K(\text{SbO})\text{C}_4\text{H}_4\text{O}_6 \cdot 2\text{H}_2\text{O}$, used in medicine as an expectorant and in the treatment of parasitic infections, such as schistosomiasis.

tar·tar·e·ous (tär-tär'ē-əs) adj. Consisting of or resembling tartar.

tar·tare steak (tär-tär' stāk, tär'tär) n. See steak tartare.

tar·tar·ic (tär-tär'ĭk) adj. Of, relating to, or derived from tartar or tartaric acid.

tartaric acid (tär-tär'ĭk äs'id) n. Any of four isomeric crystalline organic compounds, $\text{C}_4\text{H}_6\text{O}_6$, used to make cream of tartar and baking powder, as a sequestrant, in tanning, and in effervescent beverages and photographic chemicals.

tar·tar·ize (tär'tä-rĭz') v. tr. tar·tar·ized, tar·tar·iz·ing, tar·tar·iz·es. To treat, impregnate, or combine with tartar. —tar'tar·i·za'tion (-tär-ĭ-zä'shən) n.

tar·tar·ous (tär'tär-əs) adj. Consisting of, derived from, or containing tartar.

tartar sauce (tär'tär sôs) n. Mayonnaise mixed with chopped onion, olives, pickles, and capers and served as a sauce with fish. [Translation of French sauce tartare: sauce, sauce + tartare, Tartar.]

Tar·ta·rus (tär'tär-əs) n. 1. Greek Mythology. The abysmal regions below Hades where the Titans were confined. 2. An infernal region; hell. [Latin, from Greek Tartaros.] —Tar·tar·e·an (-tär'ē-ən) adj.

Tar·ta·ry (tär'tä-rē) or Ta·ta·ry (tä'-) A vast region of eastern Europe and northern Asia controlled by the Mongols in the 13th and 14th centuries. It extended as far east as the Pacific Ocean under the rule of Genghis Khan.

tar·tine (tär-tēn') n. A French open-faced sandwich, especially one with a rich or fancy spread. [French, from Old French, diminutive of tarte, tart. See TART².]

tart·ish¹ (tär'tĭsh) adj. Somewhat tart: a tartish apple.

tart·ish² (tär'tĭsh) adj. Resembling or suggesting a prostitute: tartish attire.

tart·let (tärt'lĭt) n. A small pastry tart.

tar·trate (tär'trät') n. A salt or an ester of tartaric acid.

tar·trat·ed (tär'trä'tĭd) adj. Containing, combined with, or derived from tartaric acid.

Tar·tu (tär'tōō) A city of southeast Estonia southeast of Tallinn. Founded in 1030, it was a member of the Hanseatic League and became part of Russia in 1704. Population, 111,000.

tar·tuffe also tar·tufe (tär-tōōf', -tōōf') n. A hypocrite, especially one who affects religious piety. [After the protagonist of Tartuffe, a play by Molière.]

—tar·tuffe·ry n.

tart·y (tär'tē) adj. tart·i·er, tart·i·est. Of, relating to, or suggestive of a prostitute. —tart·i·ly adv. —tart·i·ness n.

Tar·vi·a (tär'vē-ə) A trademark used for a brand of asphalt pitch.

tar·weed (tär'wēd') n. 1. Any of several strong-smelling, resinous western American and Chilean plants of the genus Madia, having yellow, rayed flower heads. 2. Any of several similar or related plants.

TAS abbr. 1. Telephone answering system. 2. True airspeed.

Tas. abbr. Tasmania.

Tash·kent (täsh-kěnt', täsh-) A city of Eastern Uzbekistan west-southwest of Alma-Ata. One of the oldest cities of central Asia, it was ruled by Arabs and then Turks until 1865, when it was annexed by Russia. Population, 2,030,000.

task (täsk) n. 1. A piece of work assigned or done as part of one's duties. 2. A difficult or tedious undertaking. 3. A function to be performed; an objective. — v. tr. tasked, task·ing, tasks. 1. To assign a task to or impose a task on. 2. To overburden with labor; tax. —idiom. take to task (or call to task) (or bring to task). To reprimand or censure. [Middle English taske, imposed work, tax, from Old North French tasque, from Vulgar Latin tasca*, alteration of taxa*, from Latin taxāre, to feel, reproach, reckon. See TAX.]

SYNONYMS: task, job, chore, stint, assignment. These nouns denote a piece of work that one must do. A task is a well-defined responsibility that is usually imposed by another and that may be burdensome: "A man ought to read just as inclination leads him; for what he reads as a task will do him little good" (Samuel Johnson). Job often suggests a specific short-term undertaking: "did little jobs about the house with skill" (W.H. Auden). Chore generally denotes a minor, routine, or odd job: The farmer's morning chores included cleaning the stables and milking the cows. Stint refers to a person's prescribed share of work: Her stint as a lifeguard usually consumes three hours a day. Assignment generally denotes a task allotted by a person in authority: The reporter's assignment was to attend the trial and interview the principals at its conclusion.

task force (täsk fōrs) n. 1. A temporary grouping of military units or forces under one commander for the performance of a specific operation or assignment. 2. A temporary grouping of individuals and resources for the accomplishment of a specific objective: a presidential task force to fight drug trafficking.

task·mas·ter (täsk'mäs'tər) n. 1. A man who imposes tasks, especially burdensome or laborious ones. 2. A source of burden or responsibility: The profession of medicine is a stern taskmaster.

task·mis·tress (täsk'mis'tris) n. A woman who imposes tasks, especially burdensome or laborious ones.

Tas·man (täz'mən, täs'män), Abel Janszoon. 1603?-1659. Dutch navigator and explorer who was the first European to discover Tasmania and New Zealand (1642).

Tas·ma·ni·a (täz-mā'nē-ə, -mān'yə) Formerly Van Die·men's Land (vān dē'mənz, vān). Abbr. Tas. An island of southeast Australia separated from the mainland by Bass Strait. It was discovered by Abel Tasman in 1642 and renamed in his honor in 1853. Tasmania joined Australia in 1901. —Tas·ma'ni·an adj. & n.

Tasmanian devil (täz-mā'nē-ən dēv'əl) n. A burrowing nocturnal carnivorous marsupial (Sarcophilus harrisii) of Tasmania, having a predominantly blackish coat and a long, almost hairless tail.

Tasmanian wolf (täz-mā'nē-ən wōolf) n. A large wolflike carnivorous marsupial (Thylacinus cynocephalus) of Tasmania, having a pointed head and dark transverse stripes across its back. It is believed to be extinct. Also called Tasmanian tiger, thylacine.

Tas·man Sea (täz'mən sē) An arm of the southern Pacific Ocean between southwest Australia and western New Zealand.

tasse (täś) also tas·set (täś'it) n. One of a series of jointed overlapping metal splints hanging from a corselet, used as armor for the lower trunk and thighs. [Possibly French, pouch, from Old French, perhaps ultimately from Vulgar Latin tasca*, task, money pouch. See TASK.]

tas·sel (täś'əl) n. 1. A bunch of loose threads or cords bound at one end and hanging free at the other, used as an ornament on curtains or clothing, for example. 2. Something that resembles such an ornament, especially the pollen-bearing inflorescence of a corn plant. — v. tas·seled or tas·selled, tas·sel·ing or tas·sel·ling, tas·sels or tas·sels. — v. tr. To fringe or decorate with tassels. — v. intr. To put forth a tassellike inflorescence. Used especially of corn. [Middle English, from Old French, fastening, clasp, from Vulgar Latin tassellus*, blend of Latin tessella, small die; see TESSELLATE, and taxillus, diminutive of tālus, knucklebone, ankle.]

tas·set (täś'it) n. Variant of tasse.

Tas·so (täś'ō, tä'sō), Torquato. 1544-1595. Italian poet who wrote the epic Jerusalem Delivered (1581), an account of the capture of the city during the First Crusade.

taste (täst) v. tast·ed, tast·ing, tastes. — v. tr. 1. To distinguish the flavor of by taking into the mouth. 2. To eat or drink a small quantity of. 3. To partake of, especially for the first time; experience. 4. To perceive as if by the sense of taste. 5. Archaic. To appreciate or enjoy. — v. intr. 1. To distinguish flavors in the mouth. 2. To have a distinct flavor: The stew tastes salty. 3. To eat or drink a small amount. 4. To have experience or enjoyment; partake: tasted of the life of the very rich. — n. 1. a. The sense that distinguishes the sweet, sour, salty, and bitter qualities of dissolved substances in contact with the taste buds on the tongue. b. This sense in combination with the senses of smell and touch, which together receive a sensation of a substance in the mouth. 2. a. The sensation of sweet, sour, salty, or bitter qualities produced by or as if by a substance placed in the mouth. b. The unified sensation produced by any of these qualities plus a distinct smell and texture; flavor. c. A distinctive perception as if by the sense of taste: an experience that left a bad taste in my mouth. 3. The act of tasting. 4. A small quantity eaten or tasted. 5. A limited or first experience; a sample: “Thousands entered the war, got just a taste of it, and then stepped out” (Mark Twain). 6. A personal preference or liking: a taste for adventure. 7. a. The faculty of discerning what is aesthetically excellent or appropriate. b. A manner indicative of the quality of such discernment: a room furnished with superb taste. 8. a. The sense of what is proper, seemly, or least likely to give offense in a given social situation. b. A manner indicative of the quality of this sense. 9. Obsolete. The act of testing; trial. [Middle English tasten, to touch, taste, from Old French taster, from Vulgar Latin tastāre*, probably alteration of Latin taxāre*, probably frequentative of tangere, to touch. See tag- in Appendix.] —tast’able adj.

SYNONYMS: taste, flavor, relish, savor, smack, tang. The central meaning shared by these nouns is “a quality that can be perceived by the gustatory sense”: the salty taste of anchovies; the pungent flavor of garlic; the aromatic relish of freshly brewed coffee; the savor of rich chocolate; the spicy smack of curry sauce; the fresh tang of lemonade. See also Synonyms at culture experience taste bud (tāst būd) n. Any of numerous spherical or ovoid clusters of receptor cells found mainly in the epithelium of the tongue and constituting the end organs of the sense of taste.

taste-ful (tāst’fəl) adj. 1. Having, showing, or being in keeping with good taste. 2. Pleasing in flavor; tasty. —taste’ful-ly adv. —taste’ful-ness n.

taste-less (tāst’līs) adj. 1. Lacking flavor; insipid. 2. Not having or showing good taste. —taste’less-ly adv. —taste’less-ness n.

taste-mak-er (tāst’mā’kər) n. One that determines or strongly influences current trends or styles, as in fashion or the arts.

tast-er (tā’stər) n. 1. One that tastes, especially one who samples a food or beverage for quality. 2. Any of several devices or implements used in tasting.

tast·y (tā'stē) adj. tast·i·er, tast·i·est. 1. Having a pleasing flavor; savory.

2. Having or showing good taste; tasteful. — tast'i·ly adv. — tast'i·ness n.

tat¹ (tăt) v. intr. tr. tat·ted, tat·ting, tats. To do tatting or produce (something) by tatting. [Probably back-formation from TATTING.]

tat² also TAT (tăt) n. A gene in the AIDS virus that stimulates the host cell to replicate genetic components of the virus. [t(rans)a(c)t(ivator) (gene).]

TAT abbr. Thematic Apperception Test.

Ta·ta·bán·ya (tǒ'tǒ-bän'ya) A city of northwest Hungary west of Budapest. It is an industrial center. Population, 76,823.

ta·ta·mi (tä-tä'mē, tə-) n. pl. tatami or ta·ta·mis. Straw matting used as a floor covering especially in a Japanese house. [Japanese.]

Ta·tar (tä'tər) n. 1. Also Tar·tar (tär'tər). A member of a group of Turkic peoples inhabiting southeast Europe and west-central Asian. 2. Tartar. Any of the Turkic languages of the Tatars. 3. Variant of Tartar (n., sense 1). 4. tatar. A ferocious or violent person; a tartar.

Tatar Strait (tä'tər strāt) A channel of southeast Russia between Sakhalin Island and the mainland. It connects the Sea of Japan on the south with the Sea of Okhotsk on the north.

Ta·ta·ry (tä'tə-rē) See Tartary.

Tate (tāt), Allen. 1899-1979. American writer and editor. A leading exponent of New Criticism, he edited the Sewanee Review (1944-1946) and is known especially for his poetry, including "Ode to the Confederate Dead" (1926).

Tate (tāt), Nahum. 1652-1715. English poet and playwright who wrote a popular adaptation of Shakespeare's King Lear (1687) and was appointed poet laureate in 1692.

ta·ter (tā'tər) n. Upper Southern U.S. Variant of potato. See Regional note at holler². See Regional note at possum. [Shortening and alteration of POTATO.]

Ta·tra Mountains (tä'trə moun'tənz) A range of the Carpathian Mountains in east-central Europe along the Slovakian-Polish border. The Tatras are a popular resort area.

tat·ter¹ (tăt'ər) n. 1. A torn and hanging piece of cloth; a shred. 2. tatters. Torn and ragged clothing; rags. — v. tr. intr. tat·tered, tat·ter·ing, tat·ters. To make or become ragged. [Middle English tater, of Scandinavian origin.]

tat·ter² (tăt'ər) n. One that makes tatting, especially as a livelihood.

tat·ter·de·mal·ion (tăt'ər-dī-mäl'yən, -mäl'lē-ən) n. A person wearing ragged or tattered clothing; a ragamuffin. — adj. Ragged; tattered. [Probably TATTERED + -demalion, of unknown meaning.]

tat·tered (tăt'ərd) adj. 1. Torn into shreds; ragged. 2. Having ragged clothes; dressed in tatters. 3. a. Shabby or dilapidated. b. Disordered or disrupted.

tat·ter·sall also Tat·ter·sall (tăt'ər-sôl', -səl) n. 1. A pattern of dark lines forming squares on a light background. 2. Cloth woven or printed with this pattern. — adj. Having a pattern of dark lines forming squares on a light background. [After Tattersall's horse market, London, England, after Richard Tattersall (1724-1795), British auctioneer.]

tat·ting (tăt'ing) n. 1. Handmade lace fashioned by looping and knotting a single strand of heavy-duty thread on a small hand shuttle. 2. The act or art of making such lace. [Origin unknown.]

tat·tle (tăt'l) v. tat·tled, tat·tling, tat·tles. — v. intr. 1. To reveal the plans or activities of another; gossip. See Synonyms at gossip. 2. To chatter aimlessly; prate. — v. tr. To reveal through gossiping. — n. 1. Aimless chatter; prattle. 2. Gossip; talebearing. 3. A tattletale. [Middle English tatelen, to stammer, probably from Middle Dutch, of imitative origin.] — tat'tling·ly adv.

tat·tler (tăt'lər) n. 1. One who tattles. 2. Any of several shore birds related to and resembling the sandpipers, especially one of the genus Heteroscelus that is noted for its loud cry.

tat·tle·tale (tăt'l-tāl') n. One who tattles on others; an informer or a talebearer. — adj. Revealing; telltale.

tattletale gray (tăt'l-tāl' grā) n. Color. White tinged with gray; grayish white.

tat·too¹ (tă-tōō') n. pl. tat·toos. 1. A signal sounded on a drum or bugle to summon soldiers or sailors to their quarters at night. 2. A display of military exercises offered as evening entertainment. 3. A continuous, even drumming or rapping. — v. tat·tooed, tat·too·ing, tat·toos. — v. intr. To beat out an even rhythm, as with the fingers. — v. tr. To beat or tap rhythmically on; rap or drum on. [Alteration of Dutch taptoe, tap-shut (closing time for taverns), tattoo : tap, spigot, tap (from Middle Dutch tappe) + toe, shut (from Middle Dutch); see de- in Appendix.]

tat·too² (tă-tōō') n. pl. tat·toos. A permanent mark or design made on the skin by a process of pricking and ingraining an indelible pigment or by raising scars. — v. tr. tat·tooed, tat·too·ing, tat·toos. 1. To mark (the skin) with a tattoo. 2. To form (a tattoo) on the skin. [Of Polynesian origin.] — tat·too'er n. — tat·too'ist n.

WORD HISTORY: The practice of tattooing the body is prehistoric, but the English word tattoo was introduced fairly recently. Our word came from Polynesian languages such as Tahitian and Samoan and was introduced to English speakers by the explorer Capt. James Cook (who also gave us the word taboo). The earliest use of the verb tattoo in English is found in 1769 in his account of a voyage around the world from 1768 to 1771. Cook also used a noun in his writings of 1769 but treated it as a native word so he is not given credit for the first use of the noun in English (recorded in 1777). In any event, sailors introduced the custom into Europe from the Pacific societies in which it was practiced, and it has remained associated with sailors, although many other people have tattoos as well.

tat·ty (tăt'ē) adj. tat·ti·er, tat·ti·est. Somewhat worn, shabby, or dilapidated. [Probably from tat, a rag, shabby person.]

Ta·tum (tā'təm), Arthur. Known as "Art." 1910-1956. American jazz pianist whose harmonic and rhythmic innovations influenced many other jazz musicians.

Ta·tum (tā'təm), Edward Lawrie. 1909-1975. American biochemist. He shared a 1958 Nobel Prize for discovering how genes transmit hereditary characteristics.

Ta·tung (tä'toŋg') See Datong.

tau (tou, tō) n. 1. The 19th letter of the Greek alphabet. 2. An elementary particle of the lepton family, having a mass about 3,490 times that of the electron, a negative electric charge, and a mean lifetime of 3×10^{-13} seconds. [Greek, of Phoenician origin; akin to Hebrew tāw, tav.]

Tau·ba·té (tou'bä-tě') A city of southeast Brazil northeast of São Paulo. Founded in 1645, it is a commercial center with an important textile industry. Population, 155,376.

Taube (toub), Henry. Born 1915. Canadian-born American organic chemist. He won a 1983 Nobel Prize for his research on the transfer of electrons between molecules in chemical reactions.

tau cross (tou krōs) n. A cross in the form of a T. Also called Saint Anthony's cross taught (tôt) v. Past tense and past participle of teach.

tau neutrino (tou nō-trē'nō) n. A probably stable elementary particle in the lepton family having a mass less than 69 times that of the electron and no charge.

taunt¹ (tônt) v. tr. taunt·ed, taunt·ing, taunts. 1. To reproach in a mocking, insulting, or contemptuous manner. See Synonyms at ridicule. 2. To drive or incite (a person) by taunting. — n. A scornful remark or tirade; a jeer. [Origin unknown.] —taunt'er n. —taunt'ing·ly adv.

taunt² (tônt) adj. Nautical. Unusually tall. Used of masts. [Origin unknown.]

Taun·ton (tôn'tən, tōn'-) A city of southeast Massachusetts on the Taunton River north of Fall River. Settled in the 1630's, it is a metalworking and manufacturing center. Population, 49,832.

Tau·nus Mountains (tou'nəs moun'tənz, -nōos') A range of western Germany extending northeast from the Rhine River. The range includes notable vineyards and popular resort areas.

taupe (tōp) n. Color. A brownish gray. [French, from Old French, mole, from Latin talpa.] —taupe adj.

Tau·re·an (tôr'ē-ən) n. One born under sign of Taurus. —Tau're·an adj.

tau-rine¹ (tôr'īn') adj. Of, relating to, or resembling a bull. [Latin taurīnus, from taurus, bull. See tauro- in Appendix.]

tau-rine² (tôr'ēn') n. A colorless crystalline substance, C₂H₇NO₃S, formed by the hydrolysis of taurocholic acid and found in the fluids of the muscles and lungs of many animals. [Greek tauros, bull (from its having been obtained first from ox bile); see tauro- in Appendix + -INE².]

tau-ro-cho-lic acid (tôr'ō-kō'lik əs'īd, -kōl'īk) n. A crystalline acid, C₂₆H₄₅NO₇S, involved in the emulsification of fats and occurring as a sodium salt in the bile of human beings, oxen, and other mammals. [Greek tauros, bull (from its having been obtained first from ox bile); see tauro- in Appendix + CHOLIC ACID.]

Tau-rus (tôr'əs) n. 1. A constellation in the Northern Hemisphere near Orion and Aries. 2. a. The second sign of the zodiac. b. One who is born under this sign. Also called Bull [Middle English, from Latin, bull, the constellation Taurus. See tauro- in Appendix.]

Taurus Mountains (tôr'əs moun'tənz) A range of southern Turkey extending about 563 km (350 mi) parallel to the Mediterranean coast. It rises to 3,736.6 m (12,251 ft) and has important mineral deposits.

Tau-sug (tô'sōōg') n. An Austronesian language spoken in the Sulu Archipelago. [Tausug : ta'u, people + su:g, current.]

taut (tôt) adj. taut-er, taut-est. 1. Pulled or drawn tight; not slack. See Synonyms at tight. 2. Strained; tense: nerves taut with anxiety. 3. a. Kept in trim shape; neat and tidy. b. Marked by the efficient, sparing, and concise use of something, such as language or detail: a taut movie script. [Middle English tohte, distended, perhaps ultimately from Old English togian, to drag. See TOW¹.] —taut'ly adv. —taut'ness n.

taut- pref. Variant of tauto-.

tau-taug (tô'tôg', -tôg', tô-tôg', -tôg') n. Variant of tautog.

taut-en (tôt'n) v. tr. intr. taut-ened, taut-en-ing, taut-ens. To make or become taut.

tauto- or taut- pref. Same; identical: tautomerism. [Greek, from tauto, the same, contraction of to auto : to, the; see to- in Appendix + auto, neuter of autos, same, self.]

tau-tog also tau-taug (tô'tôg', -tôg', tô-tôg', -tôg') n. A dark-colored, edible marine fish (Tautoga onitis) found along the North American Atlantic coast. Also called blackfish [Narragansett tautaûg.]

tau-tol-o-gize (tô-tōl'ə-jīz') v. intr. tau-tol-o-gized, tau-tol-o-giz-ing, tau-tol-o-giz-es. To use tautology. —tau-tol'o-gist (-jīst) n.

tau-tol-o-gy (tô-tōl'ə-jē) n. pl. tau-tol-o-gies. 1. a. Needless repetition of the same sense in different words; redundancy. b. An instance of such repetition.

2. Logic. An empty or vacuous statement composed of simpler statements in a fashion that makes it logically true whether the simpler statements are factually true or false; for example, the statement Either it will rain tomorrow or it will not rain tomorrow. [Late Latin tautologia, from Greek, from tautologos, redundant : tauto-, tauto- + logos, saying; see -LOGY.] —tau'to-log'i-cal (tôt'l-øj'ī-kəl), tau'to-log'ic (-īk) adj. —tau'to-log'i-cal·ly adv.

tau·tom·er·ism (tô-tôm'ə-rīz'əm) n. Chemical isomerism characterized by relatively easy interconversion of isomeric forms in equilibrium. [TAUTO- + (ISO)MERISM.] —tau'to·mer (tôt'tə-mər) n. —tau'to·mer'ic (tôt'tə-mēr'īk) adj.

tau·to·nym (tôt'tə-nīm') n. A taxonomic designation, such as Gorilla gorilla, in which the genus and species names are the same, commonly used in zoology but no longer in botany. —tau'to·nym'ic, tau·ton'y·mous (tô-tôn'ə-məs) adj. —tau·ton'y·my n.

tav also taw (täf, tôf) n. The 23rd letter of the Hebrew alphabet. [Hebrew tāw, mark, cross (sense uncertain).]

tav·ern (täv'ərən) n. 1. An establishment licensed to sell alcoholic beverages to be consumed on the premises. 2. An inn for travelers. [Middle English taverne, from Old French, from Latin taberna, hut, tavern, probably from traberna*, from trabs, trab-, beam. See TRAVE.]

ta·ver·na (tə-vûr'nə, tä-vēr'nä) n. A café or small restaurant in Greece. [Modern Greek taberna, from Medieval Greek, from Late Greek, from Latin. See TAV-ERN.]

taw¹ (tô) v. tr. tawed, taw-ing, taws. To convert (skin) into white leather by mineral tanning, as with alum and salt. [Middle English tawen, from Old English tawian, to prepare.] —taw'er n.

taw² (tô) n. 1. Chiefly Southern U.S. A large, fancy marble used for shooting. 2. The line from which a player shoots in marbles. 3. A game of marbles. — v. intr. tawed, taw-ing, taws. To shoot a marble. [Origin unknown.]

taw³ (täf, tôf) n. Variant of tav.

taw·dry (tô'drē) adj. taw·dri·er, taw·dri·est. Gaudy and cheap in nature or appearance. See Synonyms at gaudy¹. — n. Cheap and gaudy finery. [From tawdry lace, lace necktie, alteration of Saint Audrey's lace (sold at the annual Saint Audrey's fair, Ely, England), after Saint Audrey (Saint Etheldreda), queen of Northumbria, who died in 679 of a throat tumor, supposedly because she delighted in fancy necklaces as a young woman.] —taw'dri·ly adv. —taw'dri·ness n.

Taw·ney (tô'nē), Richard Henry. 1880-1962. British economic historian noted for his studies of the development of capitalism, including Religion and the Rise of Capitalism (1926).

taw·ny (tô'nē) n. Color. A light brown to brownish orange. [Middle English, from Anglo-Norman taune, variant of Old French tane, from past participle of taner, to tan. See TAN¹.] —taw'ni-ness n. —taw'ny adj.

tawny owl (tô'nē owl) n. A common owl (Strix aluco) of Eurasia and northern Africa, having tawny wormlike markings.

tax (tăks) n. 1. A contribution for the support of a government required of persons, groups, or businesses within the domain of that government. 2. A fee or dues levied on the members of an organization to meet its expenses. 3. A burdensome or excessive demand; a strain. — v. tr. taxed, tax-ing, tax-es. 1. To place a tax on (income, property, or goods). 2. To exact a tax from. 3. Law. To assess (court costs, for example). 4. To make difficult or excessive demands upon: a boss who taxed everyone's patience. 5. To make a charge against; accuse: He was taxed with failure to appear on the day appointed. [Middle English, from taxen, to tax, from Old French taxer, from Medieval Latin taxāre, from Latin, to touch, reproach, reckon, frequentative of tangere, to touch. See tag- in Appendix.] —tax'er n.

tax- pref. Variant of taxo-.

ta·xa (tăk'sə) n. Plural of taxon.

tax·a·ble (tăk'sə-bəl) adj. Subject to taxation: taxable income. — n. One that is subject to taxation: taxables such as cigarettes and liquor. —tax'a·bil'i·ty, tax'a·ble·ness n. —tax'a·bly adv.

tax·a·tion (tăk-sā'shən) n. 1. a. The act or practice of imposing taxes. b. The fact of being taxed. 2. An assessed amount of tax. 3. Revenue gained from taxes.

Tax·co (tăs'kō) A town of southern Mexico south-southwest of Mexico City. An important mining town founded in 1529, it is a popular resort center. Population, 36,315.

tax·de·duct·i·ble (tăks'dī-dŭk'tə-bəl) adj. Exempt from inclusion in one's taxable income.

tax·eme (tăk'sēm') n. Linguistics. A minimal linguistic feature, such as the order or stress of words in a compound or phonemes in a word. —tax·e'mic adj.

tax·es (tăk'sēz) n. Biology & Medicine. A plural of taxis.

tax evasion (tăks ĭ-vā'zhən) n. Intentional avoidance of tax payment usually by inaccurately declaring taxable income.

tax·ex·empt (tăks'ĭg-zĕmpt') adj. 1. Not subject to taxation, as the capital or income of a philanthropic organization. 2. Producing interest that is exempt from income tax: tax-exempt bonds. — n. A tax-exempt security.

tax·free (tăks'frē') adj. Not subject to taxation; tax-exempt.

tax·i (tăk'sē) n. pl. tax-is or tax-ies. A taxicab. — v. tax-ied (tăk'sēd), tax-i-ing or tax-y-ing, tax-ies or tax-is (tăk'sēz). — v. intr. 1. To be transported by taxi. 2. To move slowly on the ground or on the surface of the water before takeoff or after landing: an airplane taxiing down the runway. — v. tr.

1. To transport (someone or something) by or as if by taxi: taxied the children to dance class; taxi documents to a law office. 2. To cause (an aircraft) to taxi. [Short for TAXIMETER, or TAXICAB.]

WORD HISTORY: “Taxi” is much easier to yell into the traffic than taximeter cabriolet, the form from which taxi has ultimately been shortened. Taximeter comes from the French word taximètre, ultimately derived from Medieval Latin taxāre, “to tax,” and the French combining form -metre. Taximètre originally meant, as did its English companion, “a device for measuring distance traveled,” but this device was soon adapted to measure waiting time and compute and indicate the fare as well. Taximeter, first recorded in English in 1898 (an earlier form, taxameter, borrowed through French from German, was recorded in 1894), joined forces with cab, a shortening (1827) of cabriolet, “a two-wheeled, one-horse carriage.” This word, first found in English in 1766, came from French cabriolet, of the same meaning, which in turn was derived from cabriole, “caper,” because the vehicle moves along with a springing motion. Cab, the shortened form, was applied to other vehicles as well, including eventually public conveyances. Fitted with a taximeter, such a vehicle, first horse-drawn and then motorized, was known as a taxameter cab (1899), a taximeter cab (1907), and a taxicab (1907), among other names, including taxi (1907), a shortening of either taximeter or taxicab. Interestingly enough, the fullest form possible, taximeter cabriolet, is not recorded until 1959.

taxi- pref. Variant of taxo-.

tax-i-cab (tăk'sē-kăb') n. An automobile that carries passengers for a fare, usually calculated by a taximeter. [TAXI(METER) + CAB¹.]

taxi dancer (tăk'sē dăn'sər) n. A woman employed, as by a dance hall or nightclub, to dance with the patrons for a fee. [From the fact that the dancers are hired, like taxis, for a short period of time.]

tax-i-der-my (tăk'sī-dûr'mē) n. The art or operation of preparing, stuffing, and mounting the skins of dead animals for exhibition in a lifelike state.

—tax'i-der'mal, tax'i-der'mic adj. —tax'i-der'mist n.

tax-i-me-ter (tăk'sē-mē'tər) n. An instrument installed in a taxicab to measure distance traveled and waiting time and to compute and indicate the fare. [French taximètre, alteration of taxamètre, from German Taxameter : Medieval Latin taxa, tax (from taxāre, to tax); see TAX + -meter, meter (from Greek metron, measure); see -METER.]

tax-i-met-rics (tăk'sə-mět'rīks) n. (used with a sing. verb). See numerical taxonomy.

tax-ing (tăk'sîng) adj. Burdensome; wearing: a taxing business schedule.

—tax'ing-ly adv.

tax-is (tăk'sîs) n. pl. tax-es (tăk'sēz). 1. Biology. The responsive movement of a free-moving organism or cell toward or away from an external stimulus, such as light. 2. Medicine. The moving of a body part by manipulation into normal position, as after a dislocation, fracture, or hernia. [Greek, arrangement, from tassein, tattein, tag-, to arrange.]

-taxis suff. 1. Order; arrangement: homotaxis. 2. Responsive movement; taxis: chemotaxis. [Greek, from taxis. See TAXIS.]

taxi squad (tăk'sē skwöd) n. Football. 1. A group of professional players who are under contract to and practice with a team but are ineligible to play in official games. 2. The four extra players on the roster of a professional team who are prepared to join the team on short notice, as to substitute for injured players.

taxi stand (tăk'sē stănd) n. A reserved area where waiting taxicabs are parked.

tax-i-way (tăk'sē-wā') n. A usually paved strip at an airport for use by aircraft in taxiing to and from a runway.

tax-man (tăks'măn') n. One that is responsible for the collection of federal, state, or local taxes.

taxo- or taxi- or tax- pref. Order; arrangement: taxidermy. [From Greek taxis. See TAXIS.]

Tax-ol (tăk'sôl') n. A trademark used for a drug developed from the toxin of specific types of yew trees and bushes and used to kill dividing cells, especially tumor cells.

tax-on (tăk'sôn') n. pl. ta-xa (tăk'sə). Biology. A taxonomic category or group, such as a phylum, order, family, genus, or species. [New Latin, back-formation from TAXONOMY.]

tax-o-nom-ic (tăk'sə-nôm'îk) also tax-o-nom-i-cal (-î-kəl) adj. Of or relating to taxonomy: a taxonomic designation. —tax'o-nom'i-cal-ly adv.

tax-on-o-my (tăk-sôn'ə-mē) n. pl. tax-on-o-mies. 1. The classification of organisms in an ordered system that indicates natural relationships. 2. The science, laws, or principles of classification; systematics. 3. Division into ordered groups or categories: “Scholars have been laboring to develop a taxonomy of young killers” (Aric Press). [French taxonomie: Greek taxis, arrangement; see TAXIS + -nomie, method (from Greek -nomia); see -NOMY.] —tax-on'o-mist n.

tax-pay-er (tăks'pā'ər) n. One that pays taxes or is subject to taxation.
—tax'pay'ing adj.

tax return (tăks rî-tûrn') n. See return (n., sense 16).

tax shelter (tăks shĕl'tər) n. A financial operation, such as the use of special depletion allowances, that reduces taxes on current earnings. —tax'-shel'-tered (tăks'shĕl'tərd) adj.

TAXONOMY OF LIFE

The taxonomic organization of species is hierarchical. Each species belongs to a genus, each genus belongs to a family, and so on through order, class, phylum, and kingdom. Associations within the hierarchy reflect evolutionary relationships, which are deduced typically from morphological and physiological similarities between species. So, for example, species in the same genus are more closely related and more alike than species in the same family.

Carolus Linnaeus, an eighteenth-century Swedish botanist, devised the system of binomial nomenclature used for naming species. In this system, each species is given a two-part Latin name, formed by appending a specific epithet to the genus name. By convention, the genus name is capitalized, and both the genus name and specific epithet are italicized, for example, Canis familiaris or simply C. familiaris.

Modern taxonomy recognizes five kingdoms, into which the estimated five million species of the world are divided. This table presents a familiar organism from each kingdom and the names of the taxonomic groups to which it belongs.

	DOG	SUGAR MAPLE	BREAD MOLD	INTESTINAL BACTERIUM	POND ALGA
KINGDOM	Animalia (animals)	Plantae (plants)	Fungi (fungi)	Prokaryotae (bacteria)	Protoctista (algae, protozoans, slime molds)
PHYLUM*	Chordata	Magnolio- phyta	Zygomycota	Omnibacteria	Chlorophyta
CLASS	Mammalia	Rosidae	Zygomycetes	Enterobacteria	Eucon- jugatae
ORDER	Carnivora	Sapindales	Mucorales	Eubacteriales	Zygnematales
FAMILY	Canidae	Aceraceae	Mucoraceae		Zygne- mataceae
GENUS	Canis	Acer	Rhizopus	Escherichia	Spirogyra
SPECIES	C. familiaris	A. saccharum	R. stolonifer	E. coli	S. crassa

*In botanical nomenclature, “division” is used instead of “phylum.”

Escherichia coli* does not have a family classification.

-taxy suff. Order; arrangement: *phyllo*taxy. [Greek -taxia, from taktos, arranged. See TAXIS.]

Tay (tā) A river of central Scotland rising in the Grampian Mountains and flowing about 190 km (118 mi) through Loch Tay to the Firth of Tay, an inlet of the North Sea.

Ta-yg-e-ta (tā-ij/i-tə) n. 1. Greek Mythology. One of the Pleiades. 2. One of the six visible stars in the Pleiades cluster. [Latin Tāygetē, from Greek Taugetē.]

Tay·lor (tā'lər) A city of southeast Michigan, a suburb of Detroit. Population, 70,811.

Tay·lor (tā'lər), David Watson. 1864-1940. American naval officer and architect who oversaw the design and construction of U.S. navy ships and aircraft from 1914 to 1922.

Tay·lor (tā'lər), Edward. 1645?-1729. English-born American Puritan cleric and poet. Although his works were unpublished until 1939, he is now recognized as one of colonial America's finest poets. His poems include "God's Determinations Touching His Elect" (c. 1685).

Tay·lor (tā'lər), Elizabeth. Born 1932. British-born American actress. A childhood star after her appearance in National Velvet (1944), she later won an Academy Award for Butterfield 8 (1960) and for Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf? (1966).

Tay·lor (tā'lər), Frederick Winslow. 1856-1915. American inventor, engineer, and efficiency expert noted for his innovations in industrial engineering and management.

Tay·lor (tā'lər), (James) Bayard. 1825-1878. American writer known especially for his travel books and his translation (1870-1871) of Goethe's Faust.

Tay·lor (tā'lər), Jeremy. 1613-1667. English bishop and writer whose most important works are The Rule and Exercises of Holy Living (1650) and The Rule and Exercises of Holy Dying (1651).

Tay·lor (tā'lər), (Joseph) Deems. 1885-1966. American composer and critic. He composed the suite for chamber ensemble Through the Looking Glass (1918) and wrote The Well-Tempered Listener (1940).

Tay·lor (tā'lər), Laurette. 1884-1946. American actress best known for her portrayal of Amanda Wingfield in Tennessee Williams's The Glass Menagerie.

Tay·lor (tā'lər), Paul. Born 1930. American choreographer whose avant-garde work includes Three Epitaphs (1956) and Orbs (1966).

Tay·lor (tā'lər), Richard E. Born 1929. Canadian physicist. He shared a 1990 Nobel Prize for research that confirmed the existence of quarks.

Tay·lor (tā'lər), Tom. 1817-1880. British playwright whose works include Our American Cousin (1858).

Tay·lor (tā'lər), Zachary. Known as "Old Rough and Ready." 1784-1850. The 12th President of the United States (1849-1850). An army officer in the Black Hawk War (1832) and the Second Seminole War (1835-1837), he became a national hero during the Mexican War (1846-1848) and was elected President in 1848. He died after less than two years in office.

Tay·lors·ville (tā'lərz-vīl') A community of north-central Utah, a suburb of Salt Lake City. Population, 52,351.

Tay·myr Peninsula (tī-mîr' pə-nî'n'syə-lə) See Taimyr Peninsula.

tay-ra (tī'rə) n. A small South American carnivore (Eira barbata) closely related to the marten, having a broad head, slender body, and short dense fur. [Portuguese, or Spanish taira.]

Tay-Sachs disease (tā'sāks' dī-zēz') n. A hereditary disease that affects young children almost exclusively of eastern European Jewish descent, in which an enzyme deficiency leads to the accumulation of gangliosides in the brain and nerve tissue, resulting in mental retardation, convulsions, blindness, and, ultimately, death. [After Warren Tay (1843-1927), British physician, and Bernard Sachs (1858-1944), American neurologist.]

taz-za (tät'sə, -tsä) n. A shallow ornamental vessel usually on a pedestal. [Italian, cup, tazza, from Arabic ṭašt, basin.]

Tb¹ The symbol for the element terbium.

Tb² abbr. Bible. Tobit.

TB also T.B. abbr. Tuberculosis.

t.b. abbr. 1. Trial balance. 2. Also T.B.. Tubercle bacillus.

TBA or tba abbr. To be announced.

T-ball also tee-ball (tē'bôl') n. A form of baseball played by young children in which the ball is not pitched but hit from a stationary position on top of a tee.

T-bar (tē'bär') n. Sports. A ski lift consisting of a bar suspended like an inverted T against which skiers lean while being towed uphill.

Tbi-li-si (tə-bə-lē'sē, -byī-lē'syī) also Tif-lis (tif'līs, tyə-flēs') The capital of Georgia, in the southeast part of the country on the Kura River west-northwest of Baku. An ancient city astride trade and migration routes between Europe and Asia Minor, it came under Russian control in 1801 and was a center of revolutionary activity in 1905. Population, 1,158,000.

T-bill (tē'bīl') n. A U.S. Treasury note.

T-bone (tē'bōn') n. A thick porterhouse steak taken from the small end of the loin and containing a T-shaped bone. Also called T-bone steak tbs. abbr. 1. Tablespoon. 2. Tablespoonful.

tbsp. abbr. 1. Tablespoon. 2. Tablespoonful.

Tc The symbol for the element technetium.

T cell (tē' sēl) n. A principal type of white blood cell that completes maturation in the thymus and that has various roles in the immune system, including the identification of specific foreign antigens in the body and the activation and deactivation of other immune cells. Also called T lymphocyte [t(hymus-derived) cell.]

Tchai-kov-sky (chī-kôf'skē), Peter Ilich. 1840-1893. Russian composer of often dramatic, richly expressive works, including the symphony Romeo and Juliet (1869), the ballets Swan Lake (1877) and The Nutcracker (1892), and the opera Eugene Onegin (1879). —Tchai-kov/sky-an, Tchai-kov/ski-an adj.

tchotch-ke (chöch'kə) n. Variant of chachka.

tchr. abbr. Teacher.

TD abbr. 1. Tank destroyer. 2. Also td. Football. Touchdown. 3. Also T.D.. Treasury Department.

TDD abbr. Telecommunications device for the deaf.

TDN also T.D.N. abbr. Total digestible nutrients.

TDY abbr. Temporary duty.

Te The symbol for the element tellurium.

tea (tē) n. 1. a. An eastern Asian evergreen shrub or small tree (Camellia sinensis) having fragrant, nodding, cup-shaped white flowers and glossy leaves. b. The young, dried leaves of this plant, prepared by various processes and used to make a hot beverage. 2. An aromatic, slightly bitter beverage made by steeping tea leaves in boiling water. 3. Any of various beverages, made as by steeping the leaves of certain plants or by extracting an infusion especially from beef. 4. Any of various plants having leaves used to make a tealike beverage. 5. Chiefly British. a. An afternoon refreshment consisting usually of sandwiches and cakes served with tea. b. High tea. 6. An afternoon reception or social gathering at which tea is served. 7. Slang. Marijuana. [Probably Dutch thee, from Malay teh, from Chinese (Amoy) te.]

tea bag (tē bǎg) n. A small porous sack holding enough tea leaves to make an individual serving of tea.

tea ball (tē bôl) n. A small perforated metal ball for holding tea leaves that are to be steeped in hot water.

tea-ber-ry (tē'běr'ē) n. 1. See wintergreen (n., sense 1a). 2. See withe rod. [From the use of its leaves as a tea substitute.]

tea biscuit (tē bīs'kīt) n. Any of various plain cookies or biscuits often served with tea. Also called teacake tea caddy (tē kăd'ē) n. A small box or container for holding loose tea.

tea-cake (tē'kāk') n. See tea biscuit.

tea-cart (tē'kărt') n. See tea wagon.

tea ceremony (tē sēr'ə-mō'nē) n. The Japanese ceremonial ritual for the preparation, serving, and drinking of tea; chanoyu.

teach (tēch) v. taught (tôt), teach-ing, teach-es. — v. tr. 1. To impart knowledge or skill to: teaches children. 2. To provide knowledge of; instruct in: teaches French. 3. To condition to a certain action or frame of mind: teaching youngsters to be self-reliant. 4. To cause to learn by example or experience: an accident that taught me a valuable lesson. 5. To advocate or preach: teaches racial and religious tolerance. 6. To carry on instruction on a regular basis in: taught high school for many years. — v. intr. To give instruction, especially as an occupation. [Middle English techen, from Old English tæcan. See deik- in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: teach, instruct, educate, train, school, discipline, drill. These verbs mean to impart knowledge or skill. Teach is the most widely applicable: teaching a child the alphabet; teaches political science. “We shouldn’t teach great books; we should teach a love of reading” (B.F. Skinner). Instruct usually suggests methodical teaching: A graduate student instructed the freshmen in the rudiments of music theory. Educate often implies formal instruction but especially stresses the development of innate capacities that leads to wide cultivation: “All educated Americans, first or last, go to Europe” (Ralph Waldo Emerson). Train suggests concentration on particular skills intended to fit a person for a desired role: The young woman attends vocational school, where she is being trained as a computer technician. School often implies an arduous learning process: The violinist had been schooled to practice slowly to assure accurate intonation. Discipline usually refers to the teaching of control, especially self-control: The writer has disciplined himself to work between breakfast and lunch every day. Drill implies rigorous instruction or training, often by repetition of a routine: The French instructor drilled the students in irregular verbs.

USAGE NOTE: Some grammarians have objected to the use of teach as a transitive verb when its object denotes an institution of learning, as in Kim teaches grade school. This usage has wide currency at all levels, however, and is supported by the analogy to phrases such as grade-school teacher. It should be regarded as entirely correct.

Teach (tēch) also Thatch (thăch), Edward. Known as “Blackbeard.” Died 1718. English pirate who established a base on the North Carolina coast after 1713 and conducted acts of piracy off the coast of the American colonies and in the Caribbean. He was killed by British naval forces.

teach·a·ble (tē’chə-bəl) adj. 1. That can be taught: teachable skills. 2. Able and willing to learn: teachable youngsters. —teach’·a·bil’i·ty, teach’·a·ble·ness n. —teach’·a·bly adv.

teach·er (tē’chər) n. Abbr. tchr. One who teaches, especially one hired to teach.

teacher bird (tē’chər būrd) n. See ovenbird (n., sense 1). [Imitative of the bird’s song.]

teach·er·ly (tē’chər-lē) adj. Of, relating to, or suggestive of a teacher: “The tone is teacherly, unflappable, optimistic” (Benjamin DeMott).

teach·ers college also teach·ers’ college (tē’chərz kōl’ij) n. A college with a special curriculum for training teachers.

teach·er’s pet (tē’chərz pět) n. pl. teacher’s pets or teachers’ pets. 1. A student in special favor with a teacher. 2. One who has gained favor with an authority.

teach·in (tēch’in’) n. An extended session, as on a college or university campus, for lectures and discussions on an important, usually controversial issue.

teach·ing (tē'chǐng) n. 1. The act, practice, occupation, or profession of a teacher. 2. a. Something taught. b. A precept or doctrine. Often used in the plural: the teachings of Buddha. — adj. 1. Of, involving, or used for teaching: teaching materials; teaching methods. 2. Working as a teacher or in teaching: teaching assistants.

teaching fellow (tē'chǐng fě'l'ō) n. A graduate student in a university or college who is awarded a fellowship that provides him or her with financial aid in exchange for teaching duties. — teaching fellowship n.

teaching hospital (tē'chǐng hōs'pī-tl) n. A hospital closely associated with a medical school and serving as a practical educational site for medical students, interns, and residents.

teaching machine (tē'chǐng mə-shēn') n. Any of various devices designed to teach by presenting the student with a planned sequence of statements and questions and providing an immediate response to his or her answers.

tea·cup (tē'küp') n. A small cup used with a saucer for serving tea.

tea·cup·ful (tē'küp-fōol') n. pl. tea·cup·fuls. The amount that a teacup can hold.

tea dance (tē dāns) n. A late-afternoon dance.

tea garden (tē gār'dn) n. 1. A garden open to the public where tea and light refreshments are served. 2. A tea plantation.

tea·house (tē'hous') n. A public establishment serving tea and light refreshments.

teak (tēk) n. 1. a. A tall evergreen tree (Tectona grandis) of southeast Asia, having hard, heavy, durable yellowish-brown wood. b. The wood of this tree, used especially for furniture and in shipbuilding. 2. Color. A grayish yellowish brown or grayish to moderate brown. [Portuguese teca, from Malayalam tēkka.] — teak adj.

tea·ket·tle (tē'kět'l) n. A covered kettle with a spout and handle, used for boiling water, as for tea.

teak·wood (tēk'wōod') n. Teak.

teal (tēl) n. pl. teal or teals. 1. Any of several small, short-necked freshwater ducks, especially of the genus Anas, that feed on the surface of the water and often have brightly marked plumage. 2. Color. A moderate or dark bluish green to greenish blue. [Middle English tele.] — teal adj.

team (tēm) n. 1. Sports & Games. A group on the same side, as in a game. 2. A group organized to work together: a team of engineers. 3. a. Two or more draft animals used to pull a vehicle or farm implement. b. A vehicle along with the animal or animals harnessed to it. 4. A group of animals exhibited or performing together, as horses at an equestrian show. 5. A brood or flock. 6. Obsolete. Offspring; lineage. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: team sports; a team effort. See Usage Note at collective noun. — v. teamed, team-ing, teams. — v. tr. 1. To harness or join together so as to form a team. 2. To transport or haul with a draft team. — v. intr. 1. To form a team or an association. Often used with up. 2. To drive a team or truck. [Middle English, team of draft animals, from Old English tēam. See deuk- in Appendix.]

team-mate (tēm'māt') n. A fellow member of a team.

team play (tēm plā) n. 1. Collective play participated in by team members. 2. Collective effort and mutual cooperation. — team player n.

team-ster (tēm'stər) n. 1. One who drives a truck for hauling loads, especially as an occupation. 2. One who drives a team.

team-teach (tēm'tēch') v. tr. intr. team--taught (-tôt'), team--teach-ing, team--teach-es. To teach cooperatively with other teachers or to engage in such teaching.

team teaching (tēm tē'chǐng) n. A method of classroom instruction in which several teachers combine their individual subjects into one course which they teach as a team to a single group of students.

team-work (tēm'wûrk') n. Cooperative effort by the members of a group or team to achieve a common goal.

Tea-neck (tē'něk') A township of northeast New Jersey east-southeast of Paterson. It is mainly residential. Population, 37,825.

tea party (tē pār'tē) n. An afternoon social gathering at which tea and light refreshments are served.

tea-pot (tē'põt') n. A covered pot with a spout in which tea is steeped and from which it is served.

Tea-pot Dome (tē'põt' dōm) A former U.S. Navy oil reserve in east-central Wyoming north of Casper. Secretly leased to Harry F. Sinclair's oil company by Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall in 1921, it became a symbol of the governmental scandals of the Harding administration.

tea-poy (tē'poi') n. 1. A small table for holding a tea service. 2. A small, decorative three-legged table. [Hindi tipāī, alteration (influenced by Hindi tir, three), of Persian si-pāya, three : si, three + Middle Persian pāī, foot; see ped- in Appendix.]

tear¹ (târ) v. tore (tôr, tōr), torn (tôrn, tōrn), tear-ing, tears. — v. tr. 1. To pull apart or into pieces by force; rend. 2. To make (an opening) by ripping: tore a hole in my stocking. 3. To lacerate (the skin, for example). 4. To separate forcefully; wrench: tore the wrappings off the present. 5. To divide or disrupt: was torn between opposing choices; a country that was torn by strife. — v. intr. 1. To become torn. 2. To move with heedless speed; rush headlong. — n. 1. The act of tearing. 2. The result of tearing; a rip or rent. 3. A great rush; a hurry. 4. Slang. A carousal; a spree. — phrasal verbs. tear around. Informal. 1. To move about in excited, often angry haste. 2. To lead a wild life. tear at. 3. To pull at or attack violently: The dog tore at the meat. 4. To distress greatly: Their plight tore at his heart. tear away. To remove (oneself, for example) unwillingly or reluctantly. tear down. 6. To demolish: tear down old tenements. 7. To take apart; disassemble: tear down an engine. 8. To vilify or denigrate. tear into. To attack with great vigor or violence: tore into the food; tore into his opponent. tear off. Informal. To produce hurriedly and casually: tearing off article after news article. tear up. 11. To tear to pieces. 12. To make an opening in: tore up the sidewalk to add a drain. —idiom. tear (one's) hair. To be greatly upset or distressed. [Middle English teren, from Old English teran. See der- in Appendix.]

—tear'er n.

SYNONYMS: tear, rip, rend, split, cleave. These verbs mean to separate or pull apart by force. Tear involves pulling something apart or into pieces: “She tore the letter in shreds” (Edith Wharton). Rip implies rough or forcible tearing apart or away, often along a dividing line such as a seam or joint: Carpenters ripped up the old floorboards. Rend usually refers to violent tearing or wrenching apart: “Come as the winds come, when/Forests are rended” (Sir Walter Scott). To split is to cut or break something into parts or layers, especially along its entire length or along a natural line of division: “They [wood stumps] warmed me twice—once while I was splitting them, and again when they were on the fire” (Henry David Thoreau). Cleave most often refers to splitting with or as if with a sharp instrument: “The apple's cleft right through the core” (J.C.F. von Schiller).

tear² (tîr) n. 1. a. A drop of the clear salty liquid that is secreted by the lachrymal gland of the eye to lubricate the surface between the eyeball and eyelid and to wash away irritants. b. tears. A profusion of this liquid spilling from the eyes and wetting the cheeks, especially as an expression of emotion. c. tears. The act of weeping: criticism that left me in tears. 2. A drop of a liquid or hardened fluid. — v. intr. teared, tear-ing, tears. To fill with tears. [Middle English, from Old English tēar. See dakru- in Appendix.]

tear-down (târ'down') n. The act or process of taking apart or demolishing.

tear-drop (tîr'dröp') n. 1. A single tear. 2. An object shaped like a tear.

tear-ful (tîr'fəl) adj. 1. Filled with or accompanied by tears: tearful eyes; a tearful farewell. 2. So piteous as to excite tears: a tearful melodrama. —tear'ful-ly adv. —tear'ful-ness n.

tear gas (tîr găs) n. Any of various agents that on dispersal, usually from grenades or projectiles, irritate the eyes and cause blinding tears.

tear-gas (tîr'găs') v. tr. tear-gassed, tear-gas-ing, tear-gas-es. To subject to tear gas: “tear-gassed and arrested antiwar demonstrators” (Pete Hamill).

tear-ing (târ'ing) adj. Marked by great or violent haste: in a tearing hurry.

tear-jerk-er (tîr'jûr'kær) n. Slang. A grossly sentimental story, drama, or performance. —tear'-jerk'ing adj.

tea-room (tē'rōōm', -rōōm') n. A restaurant or shop serving tea and other refreshments. Also called teashop tea rose (tē rōz) n. 1. Any of several cultivated roses derived from Rosa odorata, native to China, having fragrant yellowish or pink flowers. 2. Color. A pale to strong yellowish pink.

tear sheet (târ shēt) n. Printing. A page taken from a periodical and used chiefly to provide evidence to an advertiser of the publication of an advertisement.

tear-stain (tîr'stân') n. A track or mark left by tears. —tear'-stained' adj.

tear-y (tîr'ē) adj. tear-i-er, tear-i-est. 1. a. Filled or wet with tears: teary eyes.

b. Of or resembling tears. 2. Causing weeping: a teary movie; a teary good-bye.

3. Inclined to weep: He becomes teary when he reminisces. —tear'i-ly adv.

—tear'i-ness n.

tear-y-eyed (tîr'ē-īd') adj. 1. Having tears in the eyes, as from emotion:

teary-eyed wedding guests. 2. Marked by tears or weeping: a teary-eyed confession.

Teas-dale (tēz'dāl'), Sara. 1884-1933. American poet whose classically styled lyrical works appeared in Love Songs (1917) and other collections.

tease (tēz) v. teased, teas-ing, teas-es. — v. tr. 1. To annoy or pester; vex.

2. To make fun of; mock playfully. 3. To arouse hope, desire, or curiosity in without affording satisfaction. 4. a. To urge persistently; coax: teasing their mother for more candy. b. To gain by persistent coaxing: “the New York editor who could tease great books from the unpromising woolly jumble of an author's first draft” (Ian Jack). c. To deal with or have an effect on as if by teasing. 5. To cut (tissue, for example) into pieces for examination. 6. To disentangle and dress the fibers of (wool, for example). 7. To raise the nap of (cloth) by dressing, as with a fuller's teasel. 8. To ruffle (the hair) by combing from the ends toward the scalp for an airy, full effect. — v. intr. To annoy or make fun of someone persistently.

— n. 1. a. The act of teasing. b. The state of being teased. 2. One that teases, as: a. One given to playful mocking. b. A woman who behaves like a coquette.

c. A preliminary remark or act intended to whet the curiosity. —phrasal verb.

tease out. To get by or as if by untangling or releasing with a pointed tool or device: “It takes a carefully trained expert to tease out the truth” (Arthur Green).

[Middle English tesen, to comb apart, from Old English tāsan.] —teas'ing-ly adv.

tea-sel (tē'zəl) n. 1. Any of several plants of the genus Dipsacus, native to the Old World, having flower heads surrounded by spiny bracts. 2. a. The bristly flower head of D. sativus, used to produce a napped surface on wool and other fabrics. b. A wire device used to produce a napped surface. — v. tr. tea-seled or tea-selled, tea-sel-ing or tea-sel-ling, tea-sels or tea-sels. To produce a napped surface on (a fabric). [Middle English tesel, from Old English tāsel.]

- teas-er (tē'zər) n. 1. a. One that teases, as a device for teasing wool. b. One who engages in teasing; a tease. 2. A puzzling problem. 3. An advertisement that attracts customers by offering something extra or free. 4. Slang. An attention-getting vignette or highlight presented before the start of a television show.
- tea service (tē sūr'vīs) n. A set of articles, such as matching cups and a teapot, used in serving tea. Also called tea set
- tea-shop (tē'shɒp') n. 1. See tearoom. 2. Chiefly British. A luncheonette or small restaurant.
- tea-spoon (tē'spōon') n. 1. The common small spoon used especially in serving and consuming tea, coffee, and desserts. 2. Abbr. t., tsp., tsp A household cooking measure equal to 3 tablespoon (about 5 milliliters). See Table at measurement.
- tea-spoon-ful (tē'spōon-fōol') n. pl. tea-spoon-fuls. Abbr. t., tsp., tsp The amount that a teaspoon can hold.
- teat (tēt, tīt) n. A nipple of the mammary gland; a mamilla. [Middle English tete, from Old French, of Germanic origin.] —teat/ed adj.
- tea table (tē tā'bəl) n. A small table used for serving tea.
- tea-time (tē'tīm') n. The usual or traditional time for serving tea, as late afternoon.
- tea towel (tē tou'əl) n. A cloth for drying dishes; a dishtowel.
- tea tray (tē trā) n. A tray for holding a tea service.
- tea wagon (tē wāg'ən) n. A small table on wheels for serving tea or holding dishes. Also called teacart
- Te-bal-di (tə-bäl'dē, tē-), Renata. Born 1922. Italian-born operatic soprano known for her dramatic portrayal of heroines in works such as Tosca and Madame Butterfly.
- Te-bet or Te-beth (tā'vās, tē-vēt') n. Variants of Tevet.
- tec. abbr. 1. Technical. 2. Technician.
- tech. abbr. 1. Technical. 2. Technician.
- teched (tēcht) adj. Variant of tetched.
- tech-ie also tek-kie (tēk'ē) n. Informal. One who studies or is highly interested or proficient in a technical field, especially electronics.
- tech-ne-ti-um (tēk-nē'shē-əm, -shəm) n. Symbol Tc A silvery-gray radioactive metal, the first synthetically produced element, having 14 isotopes with masses ranging from 92 to 105 and half-lives up to 4.2×10^6 years. It is used as a tracer and to eliminate corrosion in steel. Atomic number 43; melting point 2,200°C; specific gravity 11.50; valence 0, 2, 4, 5, 6, 7. [From Greek tekhnētos, artificial, from teknasthai, to make by art, from tekhne, art. See TECHNICAL.]
- tech-ne-tron-ic (tēk'nī-trōn'ik) adj. Relating to or characterized by the changes effected by modern advances in technology and electronics: the technetronic era; our technetronic society. [TECHN(OLGY) + E(LEC)TRONIC.] tech·nic (tĕk'nik) n. 1. technics. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). The theory, principles, or study of an art or a process. 2. technics. (used with a pl. verb). Technical details, rules, or methods. 3. Variant of technique (n., sense 2). — adj. Technical. [From Greek tekhnikos, of art, from tekhnē, art. See TECHNICAL.]

tech·ni·cal (tĕk'ni-kəl) adj. Abbr. tec., tech. 1. Of, relating to, or derived from technique. 2. a. Having special skill or practical knowledge especially in a mechanical or scientific field: a technical adviser. b. Used in or peculiar to a specific field or profession; specialized: technical terminology. 3. a. Belonging or relating to a particular subject: technical expertise. b. Of, relating to, or involving the practical, mechanical, or industrial arts or the applied sciences: a technical school. 4. a. Abstract or theoretical: a technical analysis. b. Of, relating to, or employing the methodology of science; scientific. 5. According to principle; formal rather than practical: a technical advantage. 6. Industrial and mechanical; technological. 7. Indicating or relating to a stock market in which prices are determined or affected by internal manipulation and speculation. — n. Sports. A technical foul. [From Greek tekhnikos, of art, from tekhnē, art. See teks- in Appendix.] — tech'ni-cal-ly adv. — tech'ni-cal-ness n.

technical foul (tĕk'ni-kəl foul) n. Sports. A foul, especially in basketball, that is called on a player, coach, or team for unsportsmanlike conduct or infringement of a rule and does not usually involve physical contact with an opponent during play.

tech·ni·cal·i·ty (tĕk'ni-kəl'ī-tē) n. pl. tech·ni·cal·i·ties. 1. The quality or condition of being technical. 2. Something meaningful or relevant only to a specialist: a legal technicality.

technical knockout (tĕk'ni-kəl nŏk'out') n. Abbr. TKO Sports. A victory in boxing, with immediate termination of the match, awarded by the referee when it appears that one fighter is too badly injured to continue.

technical sergeant (tĕk'ni-kəl sār'jənt) n. Abbr. T. Sgt. 1. A noncommissioned rank in the U.S. Air Force that is above staff sergeant and below master sergeant. 2. One who holds this rank.

tech·ni·cian (tĕk-nish'ən) n. Abbr. tec., tech. An expert in a technique, as: a. One whose occupation requires training in a specific technical process: an electronics technician; an automotive technician. b. One who is known for skill in an intellectual or artistic technique.

Tech·ni·col·or (tĕk'ni-kŭl'ər) A trademark used for a method of making color motion pictures in which films sensitive to different primary colors are exposed simultaneously and are later superimposed to produce the full-color print. This trademark, capitalized and lowercased, often occurs in figurative contexts in print: "Trees in autumnal technicolor of crimson and gold turned suddenly white after a storm" (Washington Post). "In these garish, Technicolor vistas, in which the underlying rootlessness of Sargent's art is undiluted, he seems more neophyte tourist than lifelong traveler" (Newsweek).

tech·nique (tĕk-nĕk') n. 1. The systematic procedure by which a complex or scientific task is accomplished. 2. Also tech·nic (tĕk'nĭk). a. The way in which the fundamentals, as of an artistic work, are handled. b. Skill or command in handling such fundamentals. See Synonyms at art¹. [French, technical, technique, from Greek tekhnikos, technical. See TECHNICAL.]

tech·noc·ra·cy (tĕk-nŏk'rə-sē) n. pl. tech·noc·ra·cies. A government or social system controlled by technicians, especially scientists and technical experts. [Greek tekhnē, skill; see TECHNICAL + -CRACY.]

tech·no·crat (tĕk'nə-krăt') n. 1. An adherent or a proponent of technocracy. 2. A technical expert, especially one in a managerial or administrative position. —tech'no·crat'ic adj.

technol. abbr. Technology.

tech·no·log·i·cal (tĕk'nə-lŏj'ĭ-kəl) also tech·no·log·ic (-lŏj'ĭk) adj.

1. Relating to or involving technology, especially scientific technology.
2. Affected by or resulting from scientific and industrial progress.

—tech'no·log'i·cal·ly adv.

tech·nol·o·gist (tĕk-nŏl'ə-jĭst) n. A specialist in technology.

tech·nol·o·gize (tĕk-nŏl'ə-jĭz') v. tr. tech·nol·o·gized, tech·nol·o·giz·ing, tech·nol·o·giz·es. To modify or affect by technology; make technological.

tech·nol·o·gy (tĕk-nŏl'ə-jē) n. pl. tech·nol·o·gies. Abbr. technol. 1. a. The application of science, especially to industrial or commercial objectives. b. The scientific method and material used to achieve a commercial or industrial objective. 2. Anthropology. The body of knowledge available to a civilization that is of use in fashioning implements, practicing manual arts and skills, and extracting or collecting materials. [Greek tekhnologia, systematic treatment of an art or craft : tekhnē, skill; see teks- in Appendix + -logia, -logy.]

tech·no·struc·ture (tĕk'nŏ-strŭk'chər) n. 1. A large-scale corporate system. 2. A network of skilled professionals who control such a corporate system. [TECHNO(LOGY) + STRUCTURE.]

tech·y (tĕch'ē) adj. Variant of tetchy.

tec·ta (tĕk'tə) n. Plural of tectum.

tec·ton·ic (tĕk-tŏn'ĭk) adj. 1. Geology. Relating to, causing, or resulting from structural deformation of the earth's crust. 2. a. Relating to construction or building. b. Architectural. [Late Latin tectonicus, from Greek tektonikos, from tektōn, builder. See teks- in Appendix.] —tec·ton'i·cal·ly adv.

tec·ton·ics (tĕk-tŏn'ĭks) n. (used with a sing. verb). 1. The study of the earth's structural features. 2. The art or science of construction, especially of large buildings.

tec·ton·ism (tĕk'tə-nĭz'əm) n. Geology. 1. The structural behavior of an element of the earth's crust. 2. Crustal instability. [TECTON(IC) + -ISM.]

tec·trix (tĕk'trĭks) n. pl. tec·tri·ces (-trĭ-sēz'). One of the coverts of a bird's wing. Often used in the plural. [Latin tēctrix, feminine of tēctor, plasterer, from tēctus, past participle of tegere, to cover. See (s)teg- in Appendix.]

tec·tum (tĕk'təm) n. pl. tec·ta (-tə). A rooflike structure of the body, especially the dorsal part of the mesencephalon. [Latin tēctum, roof, from neuter past participle of tegere, to cover. See (s)teg- in Appendix.] —tec'tal (-təl) adj.

Te·cum·seh (tĭ-kŭm'sə) or Te·cum·tha (-thə), 1768-1813. Shawnee leader who attempted to establish a confederacy to unify Native Americans against white encroachment. He sided with the British in the War of 1812 and was killed in the Battle of the Thames.

ted (tĕd) v. tr. ted·ded, ted·ding, teds. Chiefly New England. To strew or spread (newly mown grass, for example) for drying. [Middle English tedden.]

REGIONAL NOTE: In 15th-century England the verb ted meant to spread newly cut hay to facilitate its drying. In the mid-19th century an American inventor produced a machine to ted the hay automatically and called it a tedder. Since modern English is inclined to make verbs out of nouns meaning implements or machines, the noun tedder became a verb with the same meaning as the original word ted. Tedder, a New England verb, also turns up in those parts of the Midwest that received settlers from New England.

ted·der (tĕd'ər) Chiefly New England. n. A machine that spreads newly mown hay for drying. See Regional note at ted. — v. tr. ted·dered, ted·der·ing, ted·ders. To ted.

Ted·der (tĕd'ər), Sir Arthur William First Baron Tedder of Glenguin. 1890-1967. British air marshal whose strategy of bombing German communication centers and providing air support for ground operations greatly aided Allied efforts during World War II.

ted·dy (tĕd'ē) n. pl. ted·dies. 1. A woman's undergarment combining a camisole top and panties. 2. A teddy bear.

teddy bear also Teddy bear (tĕd'ē bār) n. A child's toy bear, usually stuffed with soft material and covered with furlike plush. [After Teddy, nickname of Theodore Roosevelt, who was depicted in a cartoon sparing the life of a bear cub.]

Teddy boy (tĕd'ē boi) n. A tough British youth wearing a modified style of Edwardian clothes. [From the name Teddy, nickname for Edward, after EDWARD VII.]

Te De·um (tā' dā'əm, -ōm, tē' dē'əm) n. A hymn of praise to God sung as part of a liturgy. [From Late Latin Tē Deum (laudāmus), You, God, (we praise), the opening words of the hymn : Latin tē, you + Latin deum, accusative of deus, god.]

te·di·ous (tē'dē-əs) adj. 1. Tiresome by reason of length, slowness, or dullness; boring. See Synonyms at boring. 2. Obsolete. Moving or progressing very slowly. [Middle English, from Late Latin taediōsus, from Latin taedium, tedium. See TEDIUM.] —te'di·ous·ly adv. —te'di·ous·ness n.

te·di·um (tē'dē-əm) n. The quality or condition of being tedious; tediousness or boredom. See Synonyms at boredom. [Latin taedium, from taedēre, to weary.]

tee¹ (tē) n. 1. The letter t. 2. Something shaped like a T. 3. Sports & Games. A mark aimed at in certain games, such as curling or quoits. —idiom. to a tee. Perfectly; exactly: a plan that suits me to a tee.

tee² (tē) n. Sports. 1. A small peg with a concave top for holding a golf ball for an initial drive. 2. The designated area of each golf hole from which a player makes his or her first stroke. — v. tr. teed, tee-ing, tees. Sports. To place (a golf ball) on a tee. Often used with up. —phrasal verb. tee off. 1. Sports. To drive a golf ball from the tee. 2. Slang. To start or begin: They teed off the fundraising campaign with a dinner. 3. Slang. To make or become angry or disgusted: The impertinent remarks teed the speaker off. He was teed off because it rained all week-end. [Back-formation from obsolete Scots teaz (taken as a pl.).]

tee-ball (tē'bôl') n. Variant of T-ball.

tee-dle board (tēd'l bôrd) n. Northeastern Massachusetts. See seesaw (n., sense 1). See Regional note at teeter-totter. [Probably alteration of TEETER-BOARD.]

teem¹ (tēm) v. teemed, teem-ing, teems. — v. intr. 1. To be full of things; abound or swarm: A drop of water teems with microorganisms. 2. Obsolete. To be or become pregnant; bear or produce young. — v. tr. Archaic. To give birth to. [Middle English temen, to beget, bear, from Old English tīeman, tēman. See deuk- in Appendix.] —teem'er n. —teem'ing·ly adv.

SYNONYMS: teem, abound, bristle, crawl, overflow, swarm. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to be abundantly filled or richly supplied”: a street teeming with pedestrians; a garden abounding with flowers; roofs bristling with television antennas; a highway crawling with cars; a house overflowing with guests; a parade route swarming with spectators.

teem² (tēm) v. tr. teemed, teem-ing, teems. To pour out or empty: teemed the molten ore into a huge mold. [Middle English temen, from Old Norse tōma.]

teen¹ (tēn) n. 1. teens. a. The numbers 13 through 19. b. The 13th through 19th items in a series or scale, as years of a century or degrees of temperature. 2. A teenager. — adj. Teenage.

teen² (tēn) n. Archaic. Misery; grief. [Middle English tene, from Old English tēona.]

teen-age or teen-age (tēn'āj') also teen-aged or teen-aged (-āj'd') adj.
Of, relating to, or applicable to those aged 13 through 19.

teen-ag-er also teen-ag-er (tēn'ā'jər) n. A person between the ages of 13 and 19; an adolescent.

teen-er (tē'nər) n. 1. Informal. A teenager. 2. Slang. An entertainment, especially a movie, directed toward a teenage audience.

teen-sy (tēn'sē) adj. teen-si-er, teen-si-est. Informal. Variant of teeny.

teen-sy-ween-sy (tēn'sē-wēn'sē) or teen-y-ween-y (tē'nē-wē'nē) adj.
Informal. Tiny. [Alteration of teeny-weeny, reduplication and alteration of TEENY.]

tee-ny (tē'nē) also teen-sy (tēn'sē) adj. tee-ni-er also teen-si-er, tee-ni-est also teen-si-est. Informal. Tiny. [Alteration of TINY.]

teen-y-bop-per (tē'nē-böp'ər) n. Slang. 1. A young teenage girl. 2. A teenager who follows the latest fad or craze, as in dress or music. [TEEN¹ + -Y¹ + BOP² + -ER¹.]

tee-off (tē'ôf', -ôf') n. Sports. The act or an instance of teeing off in golf.

tee-pee (tē'pē) n. Variant of tepee.

Tees (tēz) A river, about 113 km (70 mi) long, of northeast England flowing generally east to the North Sea.

tee shirt (tē shûrt) n. Variant of T-shirt.

tee-ter (tē'tər) v. tee-tered, tee-ter-ing, tee-ters. — v. intr. 1. To walk or move unsteadily or unsurely; totter. 2. To alternate, as between opposing attitudes or positions; vacillate. 3. To seesaw. — v. tr. To cause to teeter or seesaw. — n. Northeastern U.S. 1. See seesaw (n., sense 1). See Regional note at teeter-totter. 2. A teetering motion. [Middle English titeren, probably from Old Norse titra, to shake.]

tee-ter-board (tē'tər-bôrd', -bôrd') n. Northeastern U.S. 1. See seesaw (n., sense 1). See Regional note at teeter-totter. 2. Sports. A board with one end raised so that when an acrobat or a tumbler jumps onto it, another performer standing on the opposite end is tossed into the air.

tee-ter-tot-ter (tē'tər-tôt'ər) n. Inland Northern U.S. & Western U.S. See seesaw (n., sense 1).

REGIONAL NOTE: The outdoor toy usually called a seesaw has a number of regional names, New England having the greatest variety in the smallest area. In southeast New England it is called a tilt or a tilting board. Speakers in northeast Massachusetts call it a teedle board; in the Narragansett Bay area the term changes to dandle or dandle board. Teeter or teeterboard is used more generally in the northeast United States, while teeter-totter, probably the most common term after seesaw, is used across the inland northern states and westward to the West Coast.

Both seesaw (from the verb saw) and teeter-totter (from teeter, as in to teeter on the edge) demonstrate the linguistic process called reduplication, where a word or syllable is doubled, often with a different vowel. Reduplication is typical of words that indicate repeated activity, such as riding up and down on a seesaw.

teeth (tēth) n. Plural of tooth.

teethe (tēth) v. intr. teethed, teeth-ing, teethes. To grow teeth; cut one's teeth. [Middle English tethen, from teth, pl. of tooth, tooth. See TOOTH.]

teeth-er (tē'thər) n. An object or a device, such as a teething ring, for a baby to bite on during teething.

teeth-ing (tē'thɪŋ) n. The eruption and cutting of teeth, especially the milk teeth; dentition.

teething ring (tē'thɪŋ rɪŋ) n. A ring of hard plastic or rubber upon which a teething baby can bite.

teeth-ridge (tēth'rij') n. The ridge of gum behind the upper front teeth.

tee-to-tal (tē'tōt'l) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or practicing complete abstinence from alcoholic beverages. 2. Total; absolute. [Probably partly TEE¹ (pronunciation of the first letter in total) + total (abstinence), and partly reduplication of TOTAL.] —tee-to'tal-ly adv.

tee-to-tal-er or tee-to-tal-ler (tē'tōt'l-ər) also tee-to-tal-ist (-ɪst) n. One who abstains completely from alcoholic beverages. —tee-to'tal-ism n.

tee-to-tum (tē-tō'təm) n. Games. A top, usually having four lettered sides, that is used to play various games of chance. [From earlier T totum (from the letter tee that appeared on one side of the toy), from totum, teetotum, from Latin tōtum, neuter sing. of tōtus, all. See teutā- in Appendix.]

te-fil-lin (tə-fil'in, -fē-lēn') pl.n. The phylacteries worn by Jewish men. [Hebrew tēpīlīn, from Aramaic, attachments.]

TEFL abbr. Teaching English as a foreign language.

Tef-lon (tēf'lɒn') A trademark used for a waxy, opaque material, polytetrafluoroethylene, employed as a coating on cooking utensils and in industrial applications to prevent sticking. This trademark often occurs in figurative contexts in print: "It would make of Gorbachev's stewardship a truly Teflon chairmanship, demonstrating that no Soviet actions, regardless of how egregious, will cling to him" (New Republic). "It's clear that because [he] doesn't aspire to saving the entire human race, he's not going to get what the other leaders get—a coating of moral and political Teflon" (Wall Street Journal).

teg also tegg (tæg) n. A sheep in its second year or before its first shearing. [Origin unknown.]

teg-men (tæg'mən) n. pl. teg-mi-na (-mə-nə). A covering or an integument, such as the tough, leathery forewing of certain insects or the inner coat of a seed.

Also called tegmentum [Latin, covering, from tegere, to cover. See (s)teg- in Appendix.]

teg-men-tum (tĕg-mĕn'təm) n. 1. See tegmen. 2. A part of the mesencephalon consisting of white fibers running lengthwise through gray matter. [Latin, covering, from tegere, to cover. See (s)teg- in Appendix.] —teg-men'tal (-təl) adj.

teg-mi-na (tĕg'mə-nə) n. Plural of tegmen.

te-gu (tĭ-gōō') n. A large, swift teiid lizard (Tupinambis nigropunctatus) of Colombia and Brazil, having yellow spots and stripes over a bluish-black body. [Portuguese tejú, from Tupi teyú.]

te-gua (tā'gwä, tā'wä) n. An ankle-high moccasin worn in parts of Mexico and the Southwest. [Origin unknown.]

Te-gu-ci-gal-pa (tə-gōō'sə-gäl'pə, tĕ-gōō'sē-gäl'pä) The capital and largest city of Honduras, in the south-central part of the country. Founded in the late 16th century as a mining center, it became capital of the country in 1880. Population, 532,500.

teg-u-lar (tĕg'yə-lər) also teg-u-lat-ed (-lā'tĭd) adj. Relating to or resembling a tile. [From Latin tĕgula, tile, from tegere, to cover. See (s)teg- in Appendix.] —teg'u-lar-ly adv.

teg-u-ment (tĕg'yə-mənt) n. A natural outer covering; an integument. [Middle English, from Latin tegumentum, from tegere, to cover. See (s)teg- in Appendix.] —teg'u-men'ta-ry (-mĕn'tə-rĕ, -mĕn'trĕ), teg'u-men'tal (-mĕn'tl) adj.

Te-hach-a-pi Mountains (tə-häch'ə-pĕ moun'tənz) A range of southern California extending from east to west between the Sierra Nevada and the Coast Ranges north of Los Angeles.

Teh-ran or Te-he-ran (tĕ'ə-rän', -rän', tĕ-rän', -rän') The capital and largest city of Iran, in the north-central part of the country south of the Caspian Sea. A commercial and industrial center, it became capital in the late 1700's. Population, 5,734,199.

Te-huan-te-pec (tə-wän'tə-pĕk', tĕ-wän'tĕ-), Isthmus of. An isthmus of southern Mexico between the Bay of Campeche and the Gulf of Tehuantepec, a wide inlet of the Pacific Ocean.

Te-huel-che (tə-wĕl'chĕ, tā-wĕl'chā) n. pl. Tehuelche or Te-huel-ches. 1. A member of a South American Indian people of Patagonia, virtually exterminated by the European settlers. 2. The language of the Tehuelche. —Te-huel'che-an (-chĕ-ən) adj.

teig-lach (täg'läKH', tĭg'-) pl.n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). A confection consisting of bits of dough cooked briefly in a mixture of honey, brown sugar, and nuts, then cooled and rolled into balls. [Yiddish teyglekh, from teygl, diminutive of teyg, dough, from Middle High German teig, from Old High German teic. See dheigh- in Appendix.]

tei-id (tē'ɪd) adj. Of or belonging to the Teiidae, a large family of mainly tropical American lizards characterized by a long forked tongue and the absence of bony plates beneath the scales. — n. A lizard of the family Teiidae. [From New Latin Teiidae, family name, from Teius, type genus, from Portuguese tejú, tegu. See TEGU.]

Teil-hard de Char-din (tā-yär' də šär-dän'), Pierre. 1881-1955. French priest, paleontologist, and philosopher who maintained that the universe and humankind are evolving toward a perfect state. His written works include The Phenomenon of Man (first published 1955).

Teisse-renc de Bort (tēs-rän' də bôr'), Léon Philippe. 1855-1913. French meteorologist who pioneered the use of weather balloons and discovered the stratosphere (1900).

Te Ka-na-wa (tī kā'nə-wə), Dame Kiri. Born 1944. New Zealand operatic soprano noted for her rich, lyric voice and her leading roles, such as Desdemona in Verdi's Otello.

tek-kie (tĕk'ē) n. Informal. Variant of techie.

tek-tite (tĕk'tīt') n. Any of numerous generally small, rounded, dark brown to green glassy objects that are composed of silicate glass and are thought to have been formed by the impact of a meteorite with the earth's surface. [Greek tēktos, molten (from tēkein, to melt) + -ITE¹.] — tek-tit'ic (-tīt'ik) adj.

tel. abbr. 1. Telegram. 2. Telegraph. 3. Telegraphic. 4. Telephone.

tel-¹ pref. Variant of tele-.

tel-² pref. Variant of telo-.

tel-aes-the-sia (tĕl'is-thē'zhə) n. Variant of telesthesia.

tel-a-mon (tĕl'ə-mŏn') n. pl. tel-a-mon-es (-mŏ'nēz). Architecture. A figure of a man used as a supporting pillar. [Latin telamōn, from Greek, bearer. See telə- in Appendix.]

Tel-a-mon (tĕl'ə-mən, -mŏn') n. Greek Mythology. One of the Argonauts and the father of Ajax.

tel-a-mon-es (tĕl'ə-mŏ'nēz) n. Architecture. Plural of telamon.

tel-an-gi-ec-ta-sia (tĕl-än'jē-ĕk-tā'zhə) also tel-an-gi-ec-ta-sis (-ĕk'tə-sīs) n. Chronic dilation of groups of capillaries causing elevated dark red blotches on the skin. [New Latin : TEL(O)- + Greek angeion, vessel; see ANGIO- + Greek ektasis, expansion (from ekteinein, to stretch out : ek-, ex, ex- + teinein, to stretch); see ten- in Appendix.] — tel-an'gi-ec-tat'ic (-tāt'ik) adj.

Tel A-viv-Jaf-fa (tĕl' ə-vĕv'-jăf'ə, -yăf'ə, ä-vĕv'-) A city of west-central Israel on the Mediterranean Sea west-northwest of Jerusalem. Tel Aviv was founded in 1909 by settlers from the ancient city of Jaffa. The communities merged in 1950, forming what is now the largest city in Israel. Population, 323,400.

tele- or tel- pref. 1. Distance; distant: telesthesia. 2. a. Telegraph; telephone: telegram. b. Television: telecass. [Greek tēle-, from tēle, far off. See k^wel-² in Appendix.]

tel·e·cam·er·a (tĕl'ī-kām'ər-ə, -kām'rə) n. A television camera.

tel·e·cast (tĕl'ī-kāst') v. tel·e·cast or tel·e·cast·ed, tel·e·cast·ing, tel·e·casts. — v. intr. To broadcast a television program. — v. tr. To broadcast (a program) by television. — n. A television broadcast. — tel'·e·cast'er n.

tel·e·com (tĕl'ī-kōm') n. Informal. Telecommunication.

tel·e·com·mu·ni·cate (tĕl'ī-kə-myōō'nī-kāt') v. tel·e·com·mu·ni·cat·ed, tel·e·com·mu·ni·cat·ing, tel·e·com·mu·ni·cates. — v. tr. To transmit (data, for example) by telecommunication. — v. intr. To communicate by means of telecommunication: telecommunicating with an overseas firm. — tel'·e·com·mu'ni·ca'tor n.

tel·e·com·mu·ni·ca·tion (tĕl'ī-kə-myōō'nī-kā'shən) n. 1. Often telecommunications. (used with a sing. verb). The science and technology of communication at a distance by electronic transmission of impulses, as by telegraph, cable, telephone, radio, or television: Telecommunications is an important area of professional growth. 2. Often telecommunications. (used with a pl. verb). The electronic systems used in transmitting messages, as by telegraph, cable, telephone, radio, or television: Telecommunications were disrupted by the brownout. 3. A message so transmitted.

tel·e·com·mute (tĕl'ī-kə-myōōt') v. intr. tel·e·com·mut·ed, tel·e·com·mut·ing, tel·e·com·mutes. Computer Science. To engage in telecommuting. — tel'·e·com·mut'er n.

tel·e·com·mut·ing (tĕl'ī-kə-myōō't'ing) n. Computer Science. The practice of working at home by using a modem and a computer terminal connected with one's business office.

tel·e·con·fer·ence (tĕl'ī-kōn'fər-əns, -frəns) n. A conference held among people in different locations by means of telecommunications equipment, such as closed-circuit television. — v. intr. tel·e·con·fer·enced, tel·e·con·fer·enc·ing, tel·e·con·fer·enc·es. To hold or participate in a teleconference. — tel'·e·con'fer·enc·ing n.

Tel·e·cop·ier (tĕl'ə-kōp'ē-ər) A trademark used for a transmitting and receiving telecommunication device for producing facsimile copies of documents.

tel·e·course (tĕl'ī-kōrs', -kōrs') n. A course of televised lectures, as one offered by a university.

tel·e·dra·ma (tĕl'ī-drā'mə, -drām'ə) n. A drama intended especially for television presentation.

tel·e·du (tĕl'ī-dōō') n. A small carnivorous mammal (Mydaus javanensis) of Sumatra, Borneo, and Java, having a blackish coat and white forehead and characteristically emitting an offensive odor when disturbed. [Malay tĕledu.]

tel·e·fac·sim·i·le (tĕl'ə-făk-sĭm'ə-lē) n. A method for the electronic transmission and reproduction of graphic images or printed matter via signals sent over telephone lines.

tel·e·film (tĕl'ə-fĭlm') n. A film produced for television broadcasting.

teleg. abbr. 1. Telegram. 2. Telegraph. 3. Telegraphic. 4. Telegraphy.

tel·e·gen·ic (tĕl'ə-jĕn'ĭk) adj. Having a physical appearance and exhibiting personal qualities that are deemed highly appealing to television viewers: "Do we insist on a telegenic President?" (William F. Buckley, Jr.). —tel'·e·gen'·i·cal·ly adv.

te·leg·o·ny (tə-lĕg'ə-nē) n. The supposed genetic influence of a previous sire on offspring of a subsequent sire from the same mother. —tel'·e·gon'·ic (tĕl'ə-gŏn'ĭk), te·leg'·o·nous (tə-lĕg'ə-nəs) adj.

tel·e·gram (tĕl'ī-grām') n. Abbr. tel., teleg. A message transmitted by telegraph. — v. tr. intr. tel·e·grammed, tel·e·gram·ming, tel·e·grams. To telegraph (something) or be telegraphed.

tel·e·graph (tĕl'ī-grăf') n. Abbr. tel., teleg. 1. A communications system that transmits and receives simple unmodulated electric impulses, especially one in which the transmission and reception stations are directly connected by wires. 2. A message transmitted by telegraph; a telegram. — v. tel·e·graphed, tel·e·graph·ing, tel·e·graphs. — v. tr. 1. To transmit (a message) by telegraph. 2. To send or convey a message to (a recipient) by telegraph. 3. a. To make known (a feeling or an attitude, for example) by nonverbal means: telegraphed her derision with a smirk. b. To make known (an intended action, for example) in advance or unintentionally: By massing troops on the border, the enemy telegraphed its intended invasion to the target country. — v. intr. To send or transmit a telegram. —te·leg'·ra·pher (tə-lĕg'rə-fər), te·leg'·ra·phist (-fĭst) n.

tel·e·graph·ic (tĕl'ī-grăf'ĭk) also tel·e·graph·i·cal (-ĭ-kəl) adj. 1. Abbr. tel., teleg. Of, relating to, or transmitted by telegraph. 2. Brief or concise: a telegraphic style of writing. —tel'·e·graph'·i·cal·ly adv.

telegraph plant (tĕl'ī-grăf' plānt) n. A tropical Asian plant (Desmodium motorium) having trifoliolate compound leaves, whose lateral leaflets are very small and move by jerks under the influence of sunshine.

te·leg·ra·phy (tə-lĕg'rə-fē) n. Abbr. teleg. Communication by means of the telegraph.

Tel·e·gu (tĕl'ə-gōō') n. & adj. Variant of Telugu.

tel·e·ki·ne·sis (tĕl'ĭ-kĭ-nĕ'sĭs, -kĭ-) n. The movement of objects by scientifically inexplicable means, as by the exercise of an occult power. —tel'e·ki·net'ic (-nĕt'ĭk) adj. —tel'e·ki·net'i·cal·ly adv.

Te·lem·a·chus (tə-lĕm'ə-kəs) n. Greek Mythology. The son of Odysseus and Penelope, who helped his father kill Penelope's suitors.

Te·le·mann (tā'lə-män'), Georg Philipp. 1681-1767. German composer of the late baroque period. He wrote orchestral suites, chamber works, and operas.

tel·e·mark (tĕl'ə-märk') Sports. n. A downhill turn performed on cross-country skis in which the knees are bent, the inside heel is lifted, and the weight is on the outside ski, which is advanced ahead of the other and angled inward until the turn is complete. — v. intr. tel·e·marked, tel·e·mark·ing, tel·e·marks. To execute a telemark turn or to ski using this turn. [Norwegian, after Telemark, a region of southern Norway.] —tel'e·mark'er n.

tel·e·mar·ket·ing (tĕl'ə-mär'kĭ-tĭng) n. Use of the telephone in marketing goods or services. —tel'e·mar'ket·er n.

tel·e·me·ter (tĕl'ə-mĕ'tər, tə-lĕm'ĭ-tər) n. A measuring, transmitting, and receiving device used in telemetry. — v. tr. tel·e·me·tered, tel·e·me·ter·ing, tel·e·me·ters (tĕl'ə-mĕ'tər). To measure, transmit, and receive (data) automatically from a distant source, as from a spacecraft or an electric power grid.

te·lem·e·try (tə-lĕm'ĭ-trĕ) n. The science and technology of automatic measurement and transmission of data by wire, radio, or other means from remote sources, as from space vehicles, to receiving stations for recording and analysis. —tel'e·met'ric (tĕl'ə-mĕt'ĭk), tel'e·met'ri·cal (-rĭ-kəl) adj. —tel'e·met'ri·cal·ly adv.

tel·en·ceph·a·lon (tĕl'ĕn-sĕf'ə-lŏn', -lən) n. The anterior portion of the forebrain, constituting the cerebral hemispheres and related parts. Also called endbrain —tel'en·ce·phal'ic (-sə-fäl'ĭk) adj.

tel·e·ol·o·gy (tĕl'ĕ-ŏl'ə-jĕ, tĕ'lĕ-) n. pl. tel·e·ol·o·gies. 1. Philosophy. The study of design or purpose in natural phenomena. 2. The use of ultimate purpose or design as a means of explaining natural phenomena. 3. Purposeful development, as in nature or history, toward a final end. [Greek teleios, teleos, perfect, complete (from telos, end, result); see k^wel⁻¹ in Appendix + -LOGY.] —tel'e·o·log'i·cal (-ə-lŏj'ĭ-kəl), tel'e·o·log'ic (-ĭk) adj. —tel'e·o·log'i·cal·ly adv. —tel'e·ol'o·gist n.

tel·e·ost (tĕl'ĕ-ŏst', tĕ'lĕ-) also tel·e·os·te·an (-ŏs'tĕ-ən) adj. Of or belonging to the Teleostei or Teleostomi, a large group of fishes with bony skeletons, including most common fishes. The teleosts are distinct from the cartilaginous fishes such as sharks, rays, and skates. — n. A teleost fish. [From New Latin Teleostei, group name (Greek teleos, complete; see teleology + osteon, bone); see ost- in Appendix, and from New Latin Teleostomi, group name (Greek teleos, complete + Greek stoma, mouth).]

te·lep·a·thy (tə-lěp'ə-thē) n. Communication through means other than the senses, as by the exercise of an occult power. See Usage Note at mental telepathy. See Usage Note at redundancy. — tel'e·path'ic (těl'ə-păth'ik) adj. — tel'e·path'i·cal·ly adv. — te·lep'a·thist n.

tel·e·phone (těl'ə-fōn') n. Abbr. tel. An instrument that converts voice and other sound signals into a form that can be transmitted to remote locations and that receives and reconverts waves into sound signals. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: telephone connections; a telephone call. — v.

tel·e·phoned, tel·e·phon·ing, tel·e·phones. — v. tr. 1. To speak with (a person) by telephone. 2. To initiate or make a telephone connection with; place a call to. 3. To transmit (a message, for example) by telephone. — v. intr. To engage in communication by telephone. — tel'e·phon'er n.

WORD HISTORY: When one telephones someone else, one never gives a second thought to the linguistic and etymological processes illustrated by the word telephone. To begin with, the noun telephone is one of a class of technological and scientific words that are made up of combining forms, in this case tele- and -phone. These forms are derived from classical languages: tele- is from the Greek combining form tēle- or tēl-, a form of tēle, meaning “afar, far off,” while -phone is from Greek phōnē, “sound, voice.” Such words derived from classical languages can be put together in French or German, for example, as well as in English. Which language actually gave birth to them cannot always be determined. In this case French telephone (about 1830) seems to have priority. The word was used for an acoustic apparatus, as it originally was in English (1844). Alexander Graham Bell appropriated the word for his invention in 1876, and in 1877 we have the first instance of the verb telephone meaning “to speak to by telephone.” The verb is an example of a linguistic process called functional shift. This occurs when we use a noun as a verb, an adjective as a noun, or a noun as an adjective. Thus, we are changing the syntactic function of the word, just as we do when we telephone a friend.

telephone book (těl'ə-fōn' böök) n. A directory of the names of telephone subscribers with their telephone numbers and often their addresses.

telephone booth (těl'ə-fōn' böōth) n. A small enclosure containing a public telephone.

telephone exchange (těl'ə-fōn' iks-chānj') n. A central system of switches and other equipment that establishes connections between individual telephones. Also called switchboard telephone receiver (těl'ə-fōn' rī-sē'vər) n. The part of a telephone in which incoming electrical impulses are converted into sound.

tel·e·phon·ic (tĕl'ə-fŏn'ik) adj. 1. Of or relating to telephones.

2. Transmitted or conveyed by telephone. — tel'e·phon'i·cal·ly adv.

te·leph·o·ny (tə-lĕf'ə-nĕ) n. 1. The transmission of sound between distant stations, especially by radio or telephone. 2. The technology and manufacture of telephone equipment. — te·leph'o·nist n.

tel·e·pho·to (tĕl'ə-fō'tō) adj. 1. Of or relating to a photographic lens or lens system used to produce a large image of a distant object. 2. Of or relating to an instrument that electrically transmits photographs. — n. pl. tel·e·pho·tos.

1. A telephoto lens. 2. A photograph made with a telephoto lens; a telephotograph.

tel·e·pho·to·graph (tĕl'ə-fō'tə-grăf') n. 1. A telephoto. 2. A photograph transmitted and reproduced by telephotography. — v. tr.

tel·e·pho·to·graphed, tel·e·pho·to·graph·ing, tel·e·pho·to·graphs. 1. To photograph with a telephoto lens. 2. To transmit by telephotography.

tel·e·pho·tog·ra·phy (tĕl'ə-fə-tŏg'rə-fĕ) n. 1. The process or technique of photographing distant objects, using a telephoto lens on a camera. 2. The technique or process of transmitting charts, pictures, and photographs over a distance. — tel'e·pho'to·graph'ic (-fō'tə-grăf'ik) adj.

tel·e·play (tĕl'ə-plā') n. A play written or adapted for television.

tel·e·print·er (tĕl'ə-prĭn'tər) n. A teletypewriter.

tel·e·proc·ess·ing (tĕl'ə-prŏs'ĕs'ing, -prŏ'sĕs'-) n. Computer Science. Computer service by means of terminals remote from the central computer.

Tel·e·Promp·Ter (tĕl'ə-prŏmp'tər) A trademark used for a device employed in television to show an actor or a speaker an enlarged line-by-line reproduction of a script, unseen by the audience. This trademark often occurs in print in lowercase: "With [the President], an old hand at reading from the teleprompter, the gestures nearly always matched the rhetoric" (Boston Globe). "Although he was cheered loudly by most delegates, leftist hecklers and a faulty teleprompter gave him some anxious moments" (Chicago Tribune).

tel·e·ran (tĕl'ə-răn') n. An air-traffic control system in which the image of a ground-based radar unit is televised to aircraft in the vicinity so that pilots may see their positions in relation to other aircraft. [Originally a trademark, short for tele(vision) r(adar) a(ir) n(avigation).] tel·e·scope (tĕl'ĭ-skŏp') n. 1. An arrangement of lenses or mirrors or both that gathers visible light, permitting direct observation or photographic recording of distant objects. 2. Any of various devices, such as a radio telescope, used to detect and observe distant objects by their emission, transmission, reflection, or other interaction with invisible radiation. — v. tel·e·scoped, tel·e·scop·ing, tel·e·scopes. — v. tr. 1. To cause to slide inward or outward in overlapping sections, as the cylindrical sections of a small hand telescope do. 2. To make more compact or concise; condense. — v. intr. To slide inward or outward in or as if in overlapping cylindrical sections: a camp bucket that telescopes into a disk. [New Latin telescopium, or Italian telescopio both from Greek tēleskopos, far-seeing : tēle-, tele- + skopos, watcher; see spek- in Appendix.]

Tel·e·scope Peak (tĕl'ī-skōp' pĕk) A mountain, 3,370 m (11,049 ft) high, in the Panamint Range of the Sierra Nevada in southeast California near the Nevada border. It is the highest elevation in the range.

tel·e·scop·ic (tĕl'ī-skōp'īk) adj. 1. Of or relating to a telescope. 2. Seen or obtained by means of a telescope: telescopic data. 3. Visible only by means of a telescope: a bright star with a telescopic companion. 4. Capable of discerning distant objects: telescopic vision. 5. Extensible or compressible by or as if by the sliding of overlapping sections. —tel'e·scop'i·cal·ly adv.

Tel·e·sco·pi·um (tĕl'ī-skō'pĕ-əm) n. A constellation in the Southern Hemisphere between Pavo and Sagittarius. [New Latin, from telescopium, telescope. See TELESCOPE.]

te·les·co·py (tə-lĕs'kə-pĕ) n. The art or study of making and operating telescopes. —te·les'co·pist n.

tel·e·shop·ping (tĕl'ə-shōp'īng) n. The buying and selling of consumer products by way of television and telephone.

Te·les Pi·res (tĕl'īs pîr'īs) A river, about 965 km (600 mi) long, of central Brazil flowing northwest as a tributary of the Tapajós River.

tel·e·ster·e·o·scope (tĕl'ī-stĕr'ĕ-ə-skōp', -stîr'-) n. A binocular telescope for stereoscopic viewing of distant objects.

tel·es·the·sia also tel·aes·the·sia (tĕl'īs-thĕ'zhə) n. Response to or perception of distant stimuli by extrasensory means. —tel'es·thet'ic (-thĕt'īk) adj.

Te·les·to (tə-lĕs'tō) n. The satellite of Saturn that is ninth in distance from the planet. [Greek Telestō, a daughter of Oceanus and Tethys.]

tel·e·text (tĕl'ī-tĕkst') n. An electronic communications system in which printed information is broadcast by television signal to sets equipped with decoders.

tel·e·the·a·ter (tĕl'ə-thĕ'ə-tər) n. Sports & Games. A building in which horseraces are televised and off-track bets are placed.

tel·e·ther·mo·scope (tĕl'ə-thûr'mə-skōp') n. An apparatus for indicating or recording the temperatures of distant or inaccessible locations.

tel·e·thon (tĕl'ə-thŏn') n. A lengthy television program to raise funds for a charity. [TELE- + (MARA)THON.]

tel·e·tran·scrip·tion (tĕl'ə-trăn-skrip'shən) n. The transcription of television programs by means of a kinescope or videotape.

Tel·e·type (tĕl'ī-tīp') A trademark used for a teletypewriter.

tel·e·type·writ·er (tĕl'ī-tīp'rī'tər) n. Abbr. TT, TTY An electromechanical typewriter that either transmits or receives messages coded in electrical signals carried by telegraph or telephone wires.

te-leu-to-spore (tə-lōō'tə-spōr', -spōr') n. See teliospore. [Greek teleutē, termination (from telos, end); see k^wel-¹ in Appendix + SPORE.]

—te-leu'to-spor'ic (-spōr'ik, -spōr'ik) adj.

tel-e-van-gel-ist (tĕl'ĭ-văn'jə-lĭst) n. An evangelist who conducts religious telecasts. [Blend of TELEVISION, and EVANGELIST.] —tel'e-van'gel-ism n.

tel-e-vise (tĕl'ə-vīz') v. tr. intr. tel-e-vis-ed, tel-e-vis-ing, tel-e-vis-es. To broadcast or be broadcast by television. [Back-formation from TELEVISION.]

tel-e-vi-sion (tĕl'ə-vīzh'ən) n. 1. The transmission of visual images of moving and stationary objects, generally with accompanying sound, as electromagnetic waves and the reconversion of received waves into visual images. 2. a. An electronic apparatus that receives electromagnetic waves and displays the reconverted images on a screen. b. The integrated audible and visible content of the electromagnetic waves received and converted by such an apparatus. 3. The industry of producing and broadcasting television programs. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: television programs; television newscasters. [French télévision: télé-, far (from Greek tēle-, tele-) + vision, vision; see VISION.]

tel-e-vi-sor (tĕl'ə-vī'zər) n. 1. A television transmitter. 2. A broadcaster of television programs; a telecaster.

tel-ex (tĕl'ĕks') n. 1. A communications system consisting of teletypewriters connected to a telephonic network to send and receive signals. 2. A message sent or received by such a system. — v. tr. tel-ex-ed, tel-ex-ing, tel-ex-es. To send (a message) by tel-ex. [TEL(ETYPEWRITER) + EX(CHANGE).]

Tel-ford (tĕl'fərd) A borough of west-central England west-northwest of Birmingham. It is an industrial center in a coal-mining region. Population, 123,525.

te-li-a (tē'lĭə) n. Plural of telium.

tel-ic (tĕl'ik, tē'lĭk) adj. Directed or tending toward a goal or purpose; purposeful. [Greek telikos, from telos, end. See k^wel-¹ in Appendix.]

te-li-o-spore (tē'lĭə-spōr', -spōr') n. A thick-walled, usually blackish resting spore of some rusts and smuts, from which the basidium arises. Also called teleutospore [TELI(UM) + SPORE.] —te'li-o-spor'ic (-spōr'ik, -spōr'-) adj.

te-li-um (tē'lĭə-əm) n. pl. te-li-a (-lĭə). A pustulelike sorus formed on the tissue of a plant infected by a rust fungus and producing teliospores. [New Latin, from Greek teleios, complete. See TELEOLOGY.] —te'li-al (-lĭ-əl) adj.

tell (tĕl) v. told (tōld), tell-ing, tells. — v. tr. 1. To give a detailed account of; narrate: tell what happened; told us a story. 2. To communicate by speech or writing; express with words: tell the truth; tell one's love. 3. To make known; reveal: tell a secret; tell fortunes. 4. To notify; inform. 5. To inform positively; assure: I tell you, the plan will work. 6. To give instructions to; direct: told the customers to wait in line. 7. To discover by observation; discern: could easily tell that she was a newcomer. 8. To name or number one by one; count: telling one's blessings; 16 windows, all told. — v. intr. 1. To give an account or a revelation: was now pre- pared to break silence and tell. 2. To give evidence; inform: He promised not to tell on his friend. 3. To have an effect or impact: In this game every move tells.

—phrasal verb. tell off. Informal. To rebuke severely; reprimand. [Middle English tellen, from Old English tellan. See del⁻² in Appendix.] —tell/a-ble adj.

tell-er (tĕl'ər) n. 1. One who tells: a teller of tall tales. 2. a. A bank employee who receives and pays out money. b. A machine, as in a bank, that automatically conducts personal financial transactions in response to a client's use of a coded card. 3. A person appointed to count votes in a legislative assembly.

—tell'er-ship' n.

Tel·ler (tĕl'ər), Edward. Born 1908. Hungarian-born American physicist who helped develop the atomic bomb and provided the theoretical framework for the hydrogen bomb.

tell-ing (tĕl'ɪŋ) adj. Having force and producing a striking effect. See Synonyms at valid. —tell'ing-ly adv.

tell-tale (tĕl'tāl') n. 1. One who informs on another; a talebearer.

2. Something that indicates or reveals information; a sign. 3. Any of various devices that indicate or register information, especially: a. A time clock.

b. Nautical. One of the brightly colored lengths of yarn or string attached to the shrouds and stays of a sailboat, serving to indicate wind direction relative to the boat's motion. c. A row of strips hung above a railroad track to warn a passing train of low clearance ahead. 4. Sports. A resonant metal strip, 24 or 30 inches (61 or 76 centimeters) high, across the bottom of the front wall of a racquets or squash court above which the ball must be hit.

tellur- pref. Variant of telluro-.

tel·lu·ri·an (tĕ-lōōr'ē-ən) adj. Of, relating to, or inhabiting Earth. — n.

1. An inhabitant of Earth; a terrestrial. 2. Variant of tellurion.

tel·lu·ric (tĕ-lōōr'ɪk) adj. 1. Of or relating to Earth; terrestrial. 2. Derived from or containing tellurium, especially with valence 6.

telluric acid (tĕ-lōōr'ɪk əs'ɪd) n. A white, crystalline inorganic acid, H₆TeO₆, used as a chemical reagent.

tel·lu·ride (tĕl'yə-rīd') n. A binary compound of tellurium.

tel·lu·ri·on (tĕ-lōōr'ē-ŏn') also tel·lu·ri·an (-ən) n. An apparatus that shows how the movement of Earth on its axis and around the sun causes day and night and the seasons. [New Latin : TELLURO- + Greek -ion, diminutive suff.]

tel·lu·ri·um (tĕ-lōōr'ē-əm) n. Symbol Te A brittle, silvery-white metallic element usually found in combination with gold and other metals, produced commercially as a byproduct of the electrolytic refining of copper and used to alloy stainless steel and lead, in ceramics, and, in the form of bismuth telluride, in thermoelectric devices. Atomic number 52; atomic weight 127.60; melting point 449.5°C; boiling point 989.8°C; specific gravity 6.24; valence 2, 4, 6.

telluro- or tellur- pref. 1. Earth: tellurian. 2. Tellurium: tellurous. [From Latin tellūs, tellūr-, earth.]

tel·lu·rom·e·ter (tĕl'yə-rŏm'ī-tər) n. A surveying instrument that measures distance by measuring the round-trip travel time of reflected microwaves.

tel·lu·rous (tĕl'yər-əs, tĕ-lŏŕ'əs) adj. Of, relating to, or derived from tellurium, especially with valence 4.

tel·ly (tĕl'ē) n. pl. tel·lies. Chiefly British. A television set.

telo- or tel- pref. End: telophase. [From Greek telos, end. See k^wel-¹ in Appendix.]

tel·o·cen·tric (tĕl'ə-sĕn'trĭk, tĕ'lə-) adj. Having the centromere in a terminal position. Used of a chromosome.

tel·o·lec·i·thal (tĕl'ə-lĕs'ə-thəl, tĕ'lə-) adj. Having a yolk that is concentrated at one end: a telolecithal egg. [TELO- + Greek lekithos, egg yolk + -AL¹.]

tel·o·mere (tĕl'ə-mîr', tĕ'lə-) n. Either end of a chromosome; a terminal chromosome.

tel·o·phase (tĕl'ə-fāz', tĕ'lə-) n. The final stage of mitosis or meiosis during which the chromosomes of daughter cells are grouped in new nuclei.

—tel·o·phas'ic adj.

tel·o·tax·is (tĕl'ə-tāk'sĭs) n. Movement or orientation of an organism toward or away from a particular stimulus.

tel·pher (tĕl'fər) n. 1. A small traveling car, usually driven by electricity, suspended from or moving on an overhead rail or cable. 2. A transportation system using telfers. — v. tr. tel·phered, tel·pher·ing, tel·phers. To transport by telfer. [Alteration of telepher: TELE- + Greek pherein, to carry; see bher-¹ in Appendix.]

tel·son (tĕl'sən) n. 1. The rearmost segment of the body of certain arthropods. 2. An extension of this segment, such as the middle lobe of the tail fan of a lobster or the stinger of a scorpion. [Greek, limit.]

Tel·u·gu also Tel·e·gu (tĕl'ə-gŏŏ') n. pl. Telugu or Tel·u·gus also Telegu or Tel·e·gus. 1. A Dravidian language spoken in central India. 2. A member of the Dravidian people who speak Telugu. — adj. Of or relating to Telugu, its speakers, or their culture.

tem·blor (tĕm'blər, -blŏr') n. See earthquake. [Spanish, a trembling, earthquake, from temblar, to shake, from Vulgar Latin tremulāre*, from Latin tremulus, shaking. See TREMULOUS.]

tem·er·ar·i·ous (tĕm'ə-rār'ē-əs) adj. Presumptuously or recklessly daring: “I would never have been temerarious enough to make use of such a title on my own” (Brendan Gill). See Synonyms at reckless. [From Latin temerārius, from temere, rashly.] —tem'er-ar'i-ous·ly adv. —tem'er-ar'i-ous·ness n.

te·mer·i·ty (tə-mĕr'ī-tē) n. Foolhardy disregard of danger; recklessness. [Middle English temerite, from Old French, from Latin temeritās, from temere, rashly.]

SYNONYMS: temerity, audacity, effrontery, nerve, cheek, gall. These nouns refer to striking, often aggressive boldness. Temerity implies a foolhardy flouting of danger: Conducting the premiere of a symphony without a rehearsal requires temerity. Audacity suggests heedlessness of the restraints imposed by prudence, propriety, or convention: “In war nothing is impossible, provided you use audacity” (George S. Patton). Effrontery and nerve denote impudent, arrogant, or shameless boldness: He had the effrontery to suggest that she enjoyed being unhappy. A raise? When your work is so slipshod? You do have a nerve! Cheek connotes cool impertinence and brashness: Do you really have the cheek to insult your hosts? Gall suggests brazenness and unconscionable insolence: With unmitigated gall he crashed the party and then criticized the food.

Tem·in (tĕm'īn), Howard Martin. 1934-1994. American oncologist. He shared a 1975 Nobel Prize for research on the interaction of tumor viruses and genetic material.

Te·mir·tau (tā'mīr-tou', tyĭ-mĭr-tā'ōō) A city of central Kazakhstan northwest of Karaganda. It is a center for heavy industry. Population, 225,000.

Tem·ne (tĕm'nē) n. pl. Temne or Tem·nes. 1. A member of a people living in Sierra Leone. 2. The West Atlantic language of this people.

temp (tĕmp) n. Informal. A temporary worker, as in an office. [Short for temporary worker.] temp. abbr. 1. Temperance. 2. Temperature. 3. Template. 4. Temporal. 5. Temporary. 6. Latin. Tempore (in the time of).

Tem·pe (tĕm'pē') A city of south-central Arizona east of Phoenix. It is a resort and the seat of Arizona State University (established 1885). Population, 141,865.

Tempe, Vale of. A valley of northeast Greece between Mount Olympus and Mount Ossa. Strategically important in ancient times, it is noted for its rugged scenery.

tem·peh (tĕm'pā') n. A high-protein food of Indonesian origin made from partially cooked, fermented soybeans. [Indonesian tempe, from Javanese, soybean cakes.]

tem·per (tĕm'pər) v. tem·pered, tem·per·ing, tem·pers. — v. tr. 1. To modify by the addition of a moderating element; moderate: “temper its doctrine logic with a little practical wisdom” (Robert H. Jackson). See Synonyms at moderate. 2. To bring to a desired consistency, texture, hardness, or other physical condition by or as if by blending, admixing, or kneading: temper clay; paints that had been tempered with oil. 3. To harden or strengthen (metal or glass) by application of heat or by heating and cooling. 4. To strengthen through experience or hardship; toughen: soldiers who had been tempered by combat. 5. To adjust finely; attune: a portfolio that is tempered to the investor's needs. 6. Music.

To adjust (the pitch of an instrument) to a temperament. — v. intr. To be or become tempered. — n. 1. A state of mind or emotions; disposition: an even temper. See Synonyms at mood¹. 2. Calmness of mind or emotions; composure: lose one's temper. 3. a. A tendency to become easily angry or irritable: a quick temper. b. An outburst of rage: a fit of temper. 4. A characteristic general quality; tone: heroes who exemplified the medieval temper; the politicized temper of the 1930's. 5. a. The condition of being tempered. b. The degree of hardness and elasticity of a metal, chiefly steel, achieved by tempering. 6. A modifying substance or agent added to something else. 7. Archaic. A middle course between extremes; a mean. [Middle English temperen, from Old English temprian, from Latin temperāre, probably from temper-, variant of tempor-, stem of tempus, time, season.] —tem'per-a-bil'i-ty n. —tem'per-a-ble adj. —tem'per-er n.

tem-per-a (tĕm'pər-ə) n. 1. A painting medium in which pigment is mixed with water-soluble glutinous materials such as size or egg yolk. Also called poster color, poster paint. 2. Painting done in this medium. [Italian, from temperare, to mingle, from Latin temperāre. See TEMPER.]

tem-per-a-ment (tĕm'prə-mənt, tĕm'pər-ə-) n. 1. a. The manner of thinking, behaving, or reacting characteristic of a specific person: a nervous temperament. See Synonyms at disposition. b. The distinguishing mental and physical characteristics of a human being according to medieval physiology, resulting from dominance of one of the four humors. 2. Excessive irritability or sensitiveness: an actor with too much temperament. 3. Music. Equal temperament. [Middle English, from Latin temperamentum, from temperāre, to temper. See TEMPER.]

tem-per-a-men-tal (tĕm'prə-mĕn'tl, tĕm'pər-ə-) adj. 1. Relating to or caused by temperament: our temperamental differences. 2. Excessively sensitive or irritable; moody. 3. Likely to perform unpredictably; undependable: a temperamental motor. —tem'per-a-men'tal-ly adv.

tem-per-ance (tĕm'pər-əns, tĕm'prəns) n. Abbr. temp. 1. Moderation and self-restraint, as in behavior or expression. 2. Restraint in the use of or abstinence from alcoholic liquors. See Synonyms at abstinence.

tem-per-ate (tĕm'pər-īt, tĕm'prīt) adj. 1. Exercising moderation and self-restraint: learned to be temperate in eating and drinking. 2. Moderate in degree or quality; restrained: temperate criticism. 3. Characterized by moderate temperatures, weather, or climate; neither hot nor cold. [Middle English temperat, from Latin temperātus, from past participle of temperāre, to temper. See TEMPER.]

—tem'per-ate-ly adv. —tem'per-ate-ness n.

Tem-per-ate Zone (tĕm'pər-īt zōn, tĕm'prīt) Either of two intermediate latitude zones of the earth, the North Temperate Zone, between the Arctic Circle and the Tropic of Cancer, or the South Temperate Zone, between the Antarctic Circle and the Tropic of Capricorn.

tem·per·a·ture (tĕm'pər-ə-choōr', -chər, tĕm'prə-) n. Abbr. T, temp.

1. a. The degree of hotness or coldness of a body or an environment. b. A specific degree of hotness or coldness as indicated on or referred to a standard scale.

2. a. The degree of heat in the body of a living organism, usually about 37.0°C (98.6°F) in human beings. b. An abnormally high condition of body heat caused by illness; a fever. [Middle English, temperate weather, from Latin temperātūra, due measure, from temperātus, past participle of temperāre, to mix. See TEMPER.]

temperature gradient (tĕm'pər-ə-choōr' grā'dē-ənt) n. The rate of change of temperature with displacement in a given direction from a given reference point.

tem·pered (tĕm'pərd) adj. 1. Having a specified temper or disposition. Often used in combination: sweet-tempered; ill-tempered. 2. Adjusted or attuned by the addition of a counterbalancing element; moderated or measured: “prepare the country to expect hard choices and to appreciate tempered values and moderation in private and public life” (Haynes Johnson). 3. Made appropriately hard or flexible by tempering: a sword of tempered steel. 4. Having the requisite degree of hardness or elasticity. Used of glass or a metal. 5. Music. Tuned to temperament. Used of a scale, an interval, a semitone, or intonation.

tem·pest (tĕm'pĭst) n. 1. A violent windstorm, frequently accompanied by rain, snow, or hail. 2. Furious agitation, commotion, or tumult; an uproar: “The tempest in my mind/Doth from my senses take all feeling” (Shakespeare). — v. tr.

tem·pest·ed, tem·pest·ing, tem·pests. To cause a tempest around or in. — idiom. tempest in a teacup (or tempest in a teapot). A great disturbance or uproar over a matter of little or no importance. [Middle English, from Old French tempeste, from Vulgar Latin tempesta*, variant of Latin tempestās, from tempus, time.]

tem·pes·tu·ous (tĕm-pĕs'chōō-əs) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or resembling a tempest: tempestuous gales. 2. Tumultuous; stormy: a tempestuous relationship. [Middle English, from Late Latin tempestuōsus, from tempestūs, tempest, variant of tempestās. See TEMPEST.] — tem·pes'tu·ous·ly adv. — tem·pes'tu·ous·ness n.

tem·pi (tĕm'pē) n. A plural of tempo.

Tem·plar (tĕm'plər) n. 1. A Knight Templar. 2. templar. A lawyer or student of law having chambers in the Temple in London. [Middle English templer, from Anglo-Norman, from Medieval Latin templārius, from Latin templum, temple. See TEMPLE¹.]

tem·plate also tem·plet (tĕm'plĭt) n. Abbr. temp. 1. A pattern or gauge, such as a thin metal plate with a cut pattern, used as a guide in making something accurately, as in woodworking. 2. A horizontal piece of stone or timber used to distribute weight or pressure, as over a door frame. 3. Biochemistry. A molecule of a nucleic acid, such as DNA, that serves as a pattern or mold for the synthesis of a macromolecule, as of RNA. [Probably from French templet, diminutive of temple, temple of a loom. See TEMPLE³.]

tem·ple¹ (tĕm'pəl) n. 1. a. A building dedicated to religious ceremonies or worship. b. Temple. Either of two successive buildings in ancient Jerusalem serving as the primary center for Jewish worship. c. Judaism. A synagogue, especially of a Reform or Conservative congregation. d. Mormon Church. A building in which the sacred ordinances are administered. 2. Something regarded as having within it a divine presence. 3. A building used for meetings by any of several fraternal orders, especially the Knights Templars. 4. A building reserved for a highly valued function: the library, a temple of learning. 5. Temple. Either of two groups of buildings in London, the Inner Temple and the Middle Temple, that house two of the four Inns of Court and that occupy the site of the medieval Knights Templars establishment. [Middle English, from Old English tempel, from Latin templum. See tem- in Appendix.]

tem·ple² (tĕm'pəl) n. 1. The flat region on either side of the forehead. 2. Either of the sidepieces of a frame for eyeglasses that extends along the temple and over the ear. [Middle English, from Old French, from Vulgar Latin tempula*, from Latin tempora, pl. of tempus, temple of the head.]

tem·ple³ (tĕm'pəl) n. A device in a loom that keeps the cloth stretched to the correct width during weaving. [Middle English tempille, from Old French temple, possibly from Latin templum, small piece of timber. See tem- in Appendix.]

Tem·ple (tĕm'pəl) A city of central Texas south of Fort Worth. It is a processing and manufacturing center. Population, 46,109.

Tem·ple (tĕm'pəl), Shirley. See Shirley Temple Black.

Tem·ple (tĕm'pəl), Sir William. 1628-1699. English politician and writer whose prose style influenced Jonathan Swift and others.

Tem·ple City (tĕm'pəl sīt'ē) A city of southern California, a residential suburb of Los Angeles. Population, 31,100.

tem·plet (tĕm'plīt) n. Variant of template.

temple tree (tĕm'pəl trē) n. See frangipani (n., sense 1).

tem·po (tĕm'pō) n. pl. tem·pos or tem·pi (-pē). 1. Abbr. t. Music. The relative speed at which music is or ought to be played, often indicated on written compositions by a descriptive or metronomic direction to the performer. 2. A characteristic rate or rhythm of activity; a pace: “the tempo and the feeling of modern life” (Robert L. Heilbroner). [Italian, from Latin tempus, time.]

tem·po·ral¹ (tĕm'pər-əl, tĕm'prəl) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or limited by time: a temporal dimension; temporal and spatial boundaries. 2. Of or relating to the material world; worldly: the temporal possessions of the Church. 3. Lasting only for a time; not eternal; passing: our temporal existence. 4. Secular or lay; civil: lords temporal and spiritual. 5. Grammar. Expressing time: a temporal adverb.

[Middle English, from Old French, from Latin temporalis, from tempus, tempor-, time.] —tem'po-ral-ly adv.

tem-po-ral² (tĕm'pər-əl, tĕm'prəl) adj. Abbr. temp. Of, relating to, or near the temples of the skull. [Late Latin temporalis, from Latin tempora, pl. of tempus, temple.]

temporal bone (tĕm'pər-əl bōn) n. Either of a pair of compound bones forming the sides and base of the skull.

temporal lobe (tĕm'pər-əl lōb) n. The lower lateral lobe of either cerebral hemisphere, located in front of the occipital lobe and containing the sensory center of hearing in the brain.

tem-po-ral-i-ty (tĕm'pə-rāl'i-tē) n. pl. tem-po-ral-i-ties. 1. The condition of being temporal or bounded in time. 2. temporalities. Temporal possessions, especially of the Church or clergy.

tem-po-rar-y (tĕm'pə-rĕr'ē) adj. Abbr. temp. Lasting, used, serving, or enjoyed for a limited time. — n. pl. tem-po-rar-ies. Informal. One that serves for a limited time: an office staffed by temporaries. [Latin temporarius, from tempus, tempor-, time.] —tem'po-rar'i-ly adv. —tem'po-rar'i-ness n.

SYNONYMS: temporary, acting, ad interim, interim, provisional. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “assuming the duties of another for the time being”: a temporary chairperson; the acting dean; an ad interim admissions committee; an interim administration; a provisional mayor.

ANTONYM: permanent tem-po-rize (tĕm'pə-rīz') v. intr. tem-po-rized, tem-po-riz-ing, tem-po-riz-es. 1. To act evasively in order to gain time, avoid argument, or postpone a decision: “Colonial officials... ordered to enforce unpopular enactments, tended to temporize, to find excuses for evasion” (J.H. Parry). 2. To engage in discussions or negotiations, especially so as to achieve a compromise or gain time. 3. To yield to current circumstances or necessities; act to suit the time. [French temporiser, from Old French, from Medieval Latin temporizāre, to pass one’s time, from Latin tempus, tempor-, time.] —tem'po-ri-za'tion (-pər-ĭ-zā'shən) n. —tem'po-riz'er n.

tem-po-ro-man-dib-u-lar (tĕm'pə-rō-măn-dĭb'yə-lər) adj. Of, relating to, or formed by the temporal bone and the mandible.

temporomandibular joint syndrome (tĕm'pə-rō-măn-dĭb'yə-lər joint sĭn'drōm') n. Abbr. TMJ A disorder caused by faulty articulation of the temporomandibular joint and characterized by facial pain, headache, ringing ears, dizziness, and stiffness of the neck.

tempt (tĕmpt) v. tempt-ed, tempt-ing, tempts. — v. tr. 1. To try to get (someone) to do wrong, especially by a promise of reward. 2. To be inviting or attractive to: A second helping tempted me. We refused the offer even though it tempted us. See Synonyms at lure. 3. To provoke or to risk provoking: Don't tempt fate. 4. To cause to be strongly disposed: He was tempted to walk out. — v. intr. To be attractive or inviting: a meal that tempts. [Middle English tempten, from Old French tempter, from Latin temptāre, to feel, try.] —tempt'a-ble adj. —tempt'er n.

tempt-a-tion (tĕmp-tā'shən) n. 1. The act of tempting or the condition of being tempted. 2. Something tempting or enticing.

tempt-ing (tĕmp'tɪŋ) adj. Having strong appeal; enticing: a tempting repast. —tempt'ing-ly adv. —tempt'ing-ness n.

tempt-ress (tĕmp'trɪs) n. An alluring, bewitching woman. See Usage Note at -ess.

tem-pu-ra (tĕm'poo-rə, tĕm-poor'ə) n. A Japanese dish of vegetables and shrimp or other seafood dipped in batter and fried in deep fat. [Japanese.]

Te-mu-co (tĕ-moo'kō) A city of central Chile south-southwest of Concepción. Founded in 1881, it is a trade center. Population, 157,297.

ten (tĕn) n. 1. The cardinal number equal to 9 + 1. 2. The tenth in a set or sequence. 3. Something having ten parts, units, or members. 4. Games. A playing card marked with ten spots. 5. A ten-dollar bill. [Middle English, from Old English tĕn. See dekŋ in Appendix.] —ten adj. & pron.

ten. abbr. 1. Tenor. 2. Music. Tenuto.

ten-a-ble (tĕn'ə-bəl) adj. 1. Capable of being maintained in argument; rationally defensible: a tenable theory. 2. Capable of being held against assault; defensible: a tenable outpost. [French, from Old French, from tenir, to hold, from Latin tenēre. See ten- in Appendix.] —ten'a-bil'i-ty, ten'a-ble-ness n. —ten'a-bly adv.

ten-ace (tĕn'ās', tĕ-nās', tĕn'is) n. Games. A combination of two high cards of the same suit separated by two degrees, such as the king and jack of hearts, especially in a bridge or whist hand. [French, from Spanish tenaza, tongs, tenace, from tenaces, pl. of tenaz, tenacious, from Latin tenāx, tenāc-. See TENACIOUS.]

te-na-cious (tə-nā'shəs) adj. 1. Holding or tending to hold persistently to something, such as a point of view. See Synonyms at strong. 2. Holding together firmly; cohesive: a tenacious material. 3. Clinging to another object or surface; adhesive: tenacious lint on my jacket. 4. Tending to retain; retentive: a tenacious memory. [From Latin tenāx, tenāc-, holding fast, from tenēre, to hold. See ten- in Appendix.] —te-na'cious-ly adv. —te-na'cious-ness n.

te-nac-i-ty (tə-nās'i-tē) n. The state or quality of being tenacious. See Synonyms at perseverance.

te-nac-u-lum (tə-nāk'yə-ləm) n. pl. te-nac-u-la (-lə). A long-handled, slender, hooked instrument for lifting and holding parts, such as blood vessels, during surgery. [Late Latin tenāculum, holder, from Latin tenēre, to hold. See ten- in Appendix.]

ten-an-cy (tĕn'ən-sē) n. pl. ten-an-cies. 1. Possession or occupancy of lands, buildings, or other property by title, under a lease, or on payment of rent. 2. The period of a tenant's occupancy or possession. 3. A habitation held or occupied by a tenant.

ten-ant (tĕn'ənt) n. 1. One that pays rent to use or occupy land, a building, or other property owned by another. 2. A dweller in a place; an occupant. 3. Law. One who holds or possesses lands, tenements, or sometimes personal property by any kind of title. — v. tr. intr. ten-ant-ed, ten-ant-ing, ten-ants. To hold as a tenant or be a tenant. [Middle English, from Old French, from present participle of tenir, to hold, from Latin tenēre. See ten- in Appendix.]

tenant farmer (tĕn'ənt fār'mər) n. One who farms land owned by another and pays rent in cash or in kind.

ten-ant-ry (tĕn'ən-trē) n. 1. Tenants considered as a group. 2. The condition of being a tenant; tenancy.

ten-cent store (tĕn'sĕnt' stôr) n. See five-and-ten.

tench (tĕnch) n. pl. tench or tench-es. An edible Eurasian freshwater fish (Tinca tinca) having small scales and two barbels near the mouth. [Middle English tenche, from Old French, from Late Latin tinca, probably of Celtic origin.]

Ten Commandments (tĕn kə-mänd'mənts) pl.n. Bible. The ten injunctions given by God to Moses on Mount Sinai, serving as the basis of Mosaic Law.

tend¹ (tĕnd) v. intr. tend-ed, tend-ing, tends. 1. To have a tendency: paint that tends toward bubbling and peeling over time. 2. To be disposed or inclined: tends toward exaggeration. 3. To move or extend in a certain direction: Our ship tended northward. [Middle English tenden, from Old French tendre, from Latin tendere. See ten- in Appendix.]

tend² (tĕnd) v. tend-ed, tend-ing, tends. — v. tr. 1. To have the care of; watch over; look after: tend a child. 2. To manage the activities and transactions of; run: tend bar; tend a store in the owner's absence. — v. intr. 1. To be an attendant or a servant. 2. To apply one's attention; attend: no time to tend to my diary. [Middle English tenden, short for attenden, to wait on. See ATTEND.]

SYNONYMS: tend, attend, mind, minister, watch. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to have the care or supervision of”: tended her plants; attending the sick; minded the furnace; ministering to flood victims; watched the house while the owners were away.

ten-den-cious (tĕn-dĕn'shəs) adj. Variant of tendentious.

ten-den-cy (tĕn'dən-sē) n. pl. ten-den-cies. 1. Movement or prevailing movement in a given direction: observed the tendency of the wind; the shoreward tendency of the current. 2. A characteristic likelihood: fabric that has a tendency to wrinkle. 3. A predisposition to think, act, behave, or proceed in a particular way. 4. a. An implicit direction or purpose: not openly liberal, but that is the tendency of the book. b. An implicit point of view in written or spoken matter; a bias. [Medieval Latin tendentia, from Latin tendēns, tendent- present participle of tendere, to tend. See TEND¹.]

SYNONYMS: tendency, trend, current, drift, tenor, inclination. These nouns are compared as they refer to the direction or course of an action or a thought. Tendency implies a predisposition to proceed in a particular way: “The tendency of our own day is... towards firm, solid, verifiable knowledge” (William H. Mallock). Trend often applies to a general or prevailing direction, especially within a particular sphere: “the trend of religious thought in recent times” (James Harvey Robinson). Current suggests a course or flow, as of opinion, especially one representative of a given time or place: “[These] words... express the whole current of modern feeling” (James Bryce). A drift is a tendency that depends for its direction or course on the impetus of something likened to a shifting current of air or water: Political conservatives fear a drift toward communism in Latin America. Tenor implies a continuous, unwavering course: “His conduct was... uniform and unvarying in its tenor” (Frederick Marryat). Inclination usually refers to an individual’s propensity for or disposition toward one thing rather than another: “Man’s capacity for justice makes democracy possible, but man’s inclination to injustice makes democracy necessary” (Reinhold Niebuhr).

ten-den-tious also ten-den-cious (tĕn-dĕn'shəs) adj. Marked by a strong implicit point of view; partisan: a tendentious account of the recent elections. [From Medieval Latin tendentia, a cause. See TENDENCY.] —ten-den'tious-ly adv. —ten-den'tious-ness n.

ten-der¹ (tĕn'dər) adj. ten-der-er, ten-der-est. 1. a. Easily crushed or bruised; fragile: a tender petal. b. Easily chewed or cut: tender beef. 2. Young and vulnerable: of tender age. 3. Frail; delicate. 4. Sensitive to frost or severe cold; not hardy: tender green shoots. 5. a. Easily hurt; sensitive: tender skin. b. Painful; sore: a tender tooth. 6. a. Considerate and protective; solicitous: a tender mother; his tender concern. b. Characterized by or expressing gentle emotions; loving: a tender glance; a tender ballad. c. Given to sympathy or sentimentality; soft: a tender heart. 7. Nautical. Likely to heel easily under sail; crank. — v. tr. ten-dered, ten-der-ing, ten-ders. 1. To make tender. 2. Archaic. To treat with tender regard. [Middle English, from Old French tendre, from Latin tener. See ten- in Appendix.] —ten'der-ly adv. —ten'der-ness n.

ten-der² (tĕn'dər) n. 1. A formal offer, as: a. Law. An offer of money or service in payment of an obligation. b. A written offer to contract goods or services at a specified cost or rate; a bid. 2. Something, especially money, offered in payment. — v. tr. ten-dered, ten-der-ing, ten-ders. To offer formally: tender a letter of resignation. See Synonyms at offer. [From French tendre, to offer, from Old French, from Latin tendere, to hold forth, extend. See ten- in Appendix.]

—ten'der-er n.

tend-er³ (tĕn'dər) n. 1. One who tends something: a lathe tender. 2. Nautical. A vessel attendant on other vessels, especially one that ferries supplies between ship and shore. 3. A railroad car attached to the rear of a locomotive and designed to carry fuel and water.

ten-der-foot (tĕn'dər-fōt') n. pl. ten-der-foots or ten-der-feet (-fēt').

1. A newcomer not yet hardened to rough outdoor life; a greenhorn. 2. An inexperienced person; a novice. 3. Often Tenderfoot. A Boy Scout of the lowest rank.

ten-der-heart-ed (tĕn'dər-här'tid) adj. Easily moved by another's distress; compassionate. —ten'der-heart/ed-ly adv. —ten'der-heart/ed-ness n.

ten-der-ize (tĕn'də-rīz') v. tr. ten-der-ized, ten-der-iz-ing, ten-der-iz-es.

To make (meat) tender, as by marinating, pounding, or applying a tenderizer.

—ten'der-i-za'tion (-də-r-ĭ-zā'shən) n.

ten-der-iz-er (tĕn'də-rī'zər) n. A substance, such as a plant enzyme, applied to meat to make it tender.

ten-der-loin (tĕn'dər-loin') n. 1. The tenderest part of a loin of beef, pork, or similar cut of meat. 2. A city district notorious for vice and graft. [Sense 2, after the Tenderloin, an area of New York City (from the easy income it once afforded corrupt policemen).]

ten-di-ni-tis also ten-do-ni-tis (tĕn'də-nī'tis) n. Inflammation of a tendon. [New Latin tendō, tendin-, tendon; see TENDINOUS + -ITIS.]

ten-di-nous (tĕn'də-nəs) adj. 1. Of, having, or resembling a tendon.

2. Sinewy. [New Latin tendō, tendin-, tendon (from Medieval Latin tendō); see TENDON + -OUS.]

ten-don (tĕn'dən) n. A band of tough, inelastic fibrous tissue that connects a muscle with its bony attachment. [Medieval Latin tendō, tendōn-, alteration (influenced by Latin tendere, to stretch), of Greek tenōn. See ten- in Appendix.]

ten-do-ni-tis (tĕn'də-nī'tis) n. Variant of tendinitis.

tendon of Achilles (tĕn'dən ũv ə-kil'ēz) n. pl. tendons of Achilles. Achilles tendon.

ten-dril (tĕn'drəl) n. 1. A twisting, threadlike structure by which a twining plant, such as a grape or cucumber, grasps an object or a plant for support.

2. Something, such as a ringlet of hair, that is long, slender, and curling. [French tendrillon, from Old French, diminutive of tendron, young shoot, from tendre, tender. See TENDER¹.]

Ten·e·brae (tĕn'ə-brā', -brē') pl.n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). Roman Catholic Church. The office of matins and lauds sung on the last three days of Holy Week, with a ceremony of candles. [Medieval Latin, from Latin tenebrae, darkness.]

ten·e·brif·ic (tĕn'ə-brīf'īk) adj. 1. Serving to obscure or darken. 2. Gloomy; dark. [Latin tenebrae, darkness + -FIC.]

te·neb·ri·o·nid (tə-nĕb'rē-ə-nīd', tĕn'ə-brī'-) n. See darkling beetle.

[From New Latin Tenebriōnidae, family name, from Tenebriō, type genus, from Latin tenebriō, one who avoids light, from tenebrae, darkness.]

—te·neb'ri·o·nid' adj.

ten·e·brous (tĕn'ə-brəs) also te·neb·ri·ous (tə-nĕb'rē-əs) adj. Dark and gloomy. [Middle English, from Old French tenebreus, from Latin tenebrōsus, from tenebrae, darkness.] —ten'e·bros'i·ty (-brōs'ī-tē) n.

ten·e·ment (tĕn'ə-mənt) n. 1. A building for human habitation, especially one that is rented to tenants. 2. A rundown, low-rental apartment building whose facilities and maintenance barely meet minimum standards. 3. Chiefly British. An apartment or a room leased to a tenant. 4. Law. Property, such as land, rents, or franchises, held by one person leasing it from another. [Middle English, house, from Old French, from Medieval Latin tenēmentum, from Latin tenēre, to hold. See ten- in Appendix.] —ten'e·men'tal (-mĕn'tl), ten'e·men'ta·ry (-mĕn'tə-rē) adj.

Ten·er·ife (tĕn'ə-rīf', -rĕf', tĕ'nĕ-rĕ'fĕ) An island in the Canary Islands of Spain in the Atlantic Ocean. It is the largest island in the group.

te·nes·mus (tə-nĕz'məs) n. A painfully urgent but ineffectual attempt to urinate or defecate. [Medieval Latin tēnesmus, variant of Latin tēnesmos, from Greek teinesmos, from teinein, to strain, stretch. See ten- in Appendix.]

ten·et (tĕn'īt) n. An opinion, doctrine, or principle held as being true by a person or especially by an organization. See Synonyms at doctrine. [Probably from Medieval Latin, from Latin, third person sing. present indicative of tenēre, to hold. See ten- in Appendix.]

ten·gal·lon hat (tĕn'gāl'ən hăt) n. See cowboy hat. [Perhaps from Spanish galón, braid, galloon (wrapped in rows above the brim), from French galon. See GALLOON.]

Teng Hsiao-ping (tŭng' shyou'pĭng') See Deng Xiaoping.

te·ni·a (tĕ'nĕ-ə) n. Variant of taenia.

te·ni·a·cide (tĕ'nĕ-ə-sīd') n. Variant of taeniicide.

te·ni·a·fuge (tĕ'nĕ-ə-fyōōj') n. Variant of taeniafuge.

te·ni·a·sis (tĕ-nī'ə-sīs) n. Variant of taeniasis.

Te-niers (tə-nîrz', -nîrs', tĕ-nyā'), David. Known as “the Elder.” 1582-1649. Flemish painter of religious subjects. His son David (1610-1690), known as “the Younger,” painted landscapes, religious subjects, and genre scenes, such as Company at Table (1634).

Ten-nes-see (tĕn'ĭ-sē', tĕn'ĭ-sē') Abbr. TN, Tenn. A state of the southeast United States. It was admitted as the 16th state in 1796. First visited by the Spanish in 1540, the region was explored by Daniel Boone in 1769 and became part of the United States in 1783. The short-lived state of Franklin (1784-1788) formed the basis for the Territory of the United States South of the River Ohio (1790) and the later state of Tennessee. Nashville is the capital and Memphis the largest city. Population, 4,896,641. —Ten'nes-se'an adj. & n.

Tennessee River (tĕn'ĭ-sē' rĭv'ər) A river of the southeast United States rising in eastern Tennessee and flowing about 1,049 km (652 mi) through northern Alabama, western Tennessee, and western Kentucky to the Ohio River.

Tennessee walking horse (tĕn'ĭ-sē' wŏ'kĭŋ hŏrs) n. Any of a breed of lightly built saddle horse developed in Tennessee from Morgan and standard bred stock and having an easy gait. Also called Tennessee walker Tennessee warbler (tĕn'ĭ-sē' wŏr'blər) n. A small wood warbler (Vermivora peregrina) of North America, having greenish upper parts and a white underside.

Ten-niel (tĕn'yəl), Sir John. 1820-1914. British cartoonist and illustrator of Alice's Adventures in Wonderland (1865).

ten-nis (tĕn'ĭs) n. Sports. 1. A game played with rackets and a light ball by two players or two pairs of players on a rectangular court, as of grass, clay, or asphalt, divided by a net. Also called lawn tennis 2. Court tennis. [Middle English tenetz, tenyes, court tennis, from Anglo-Norman tenetz, and Old French tenez, pl. imperative of tenir, to hold from Latin tenĕre. See DETAIN.]

WORD HISTORY: Surprisingly, the origin of the word tennis is not precisely known, even though much is known about the history of this sport. The word in the form tenetz is first recorded in a work written around 1400. The game referred to is what is now called court tennis, or real tennis, which is played on a large indoor court with a specially marked-out floor and high cement walls off which the ball may be played. It seems likely that the Middle English form tenetz is from tenetz, an Anglo-Norman variant of the Old French word tenez, the imperative of tenir, “to hold,” and meaning “receive,” said by the server to his opponent. As this evidence indicates, tennis originated in medieval France, but the French called the game, then as now, la paume. By tennis we do not mean what tenetz or la paume meant but rather lawn tennis, a term first recorded around 1874, shortly after an early form of lawn tennis, descended from court tennis, was introduced. Unlike court tennis, which is traditionally associated with the rich and the royal, tennis is open to players from a wide spectrum of society, although it certainly is not unconnected with the rich and the royal.

tennis bracelet (tĕn'is brās'līt) n. A bracelet containing many small gemstones, such as diamonds, that are set and linked one after the other into a narrow chain.

tennis elbow (tĕn'is ɛl'bō') n. A painful inflammation of the tissue surrounding the elbow, caused by strain from playing tennis and other sports.

tennis shoe (tĕn'is shō) n. See sneaker.

Ten-ny-son (tĕn'ī-sən), Alfred First Baron Tennyson. Known as Alfred, Lord Tennyson. 1809-1892. British poet whose works, including In Memoriam (1850) and “The Charge of the Light Brigade” (1854), reflect Victorian sentiments and aesthetics. He was appointed poet laureate in 1850. —Ten'ny-so'ni-an (-sō'nē-ən) adj.

teno- pref. Tendon: tenotomy. [From Greek tenōn, tendon. See ten- in Appendix.]

Te-noch-ti-tlán (tĕ-nôch'tē-tlän') An ancient Aztec capital on the site of present-day Mexico City. Founded c. 1325, it was destroyed by the Spanish in 1521.

ten-on (tĕn'ən) n. A projection on the end of a piece of wood shaped for insertion into a mortise to make a joint. — v. tr. ten-oned, ten-on-ing, ten-ons.

1. To provide with a tenon. 2. To join with a tenon. [Middle English, from Old French, from tenir, to hold, from Latin tenēre. See ten- in Appendix.]

ten-o-ni-tis (tĕn'ə-nī'tis) n. Tendinitis.

ten-or (tĕn'ər) n. 1. A continuous, unwavering course. See Synonyms at tendency. 2. The word, phrase, or subject with which the vehicle of a metaphor is identified, as life in “Life's but a walking shadow” (Shakespeare). 3. a. The course of thought or argument running through something written or spoken.

b. General sense; purport. 4. Law. a. The exact meaning or actual wording of a document as distinct from its effect. b. An exact copy of a document. 5. Abbr.

ten., t., T. Music. a. The highest natural adult male voice. b. A part for this voice. c. One who sings this part. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a tenor solo; a tenor part. [Middle English, from Anglo-Norman, from Latin, uninterrupted course, from tenēre, to hold, continue. See ten- in Appendix.]

tenor clef (tĕn'ər klĕf) n. Music. The C clef positioned to indicate that the fourth line from the bottom of a staff represents the pitch of middle C.

te-nor-rha-phy (tĕ-nôr'ə-fē) n. pl. te-nor-rha-phies. The surgical uniting of divided tendons with sutures. [TENO- + Greek rhapḗ, suture (from rhaptein, to sew); see wer-2 in Appendix + -Y².]

Te-nos (tĕ'nōs', -nōs') See Tínos.

ten-o-syn-o-vi-tis (tĕn'ō-sĭn'ə-vī'tis) n. Inflammation of a tendon sheath.

te-not-o-my (tě-nöt'ə-mē) n. pl. te-not-o-mies. Surgical cutting or division of a tendon.

ten-pen-ny nail (tĕn'pĕn'ē nāl, -pə-nē) n. A nail 3.0 inches (7.6 centimeters) long. [From its original price per hundred.]

ten-pin (tĕn'pĭn') n. Sports & Games. 1. One of the bottle-shaped pins used in bowling. 2. tenpins. (used with a sing. verb). See bowling (n., sense 1a).

ten-pound-er (tĕn'poun'dər) n. See ladyfish.

ten-rec (tĕn'rĕk') also tan-rec (tän'-) n. Any of various insectivorous mammals of the family Tenrecidae, of Madagascar and adjacent islands, similar to the hedgehog but having a long pointed snout and often no tail. [French, from Malagasy tandraka.]

TENS (tĕnz) n. A technique used to relieve pain in an injured or diseased part of the body in which electrodes applied to the skin deliver intermittent stimulation to surface nerves, blocking the transmission of pain signals. [t(ranscutaneous) e(lectrical) n(erve) s(timulation).]

Ten-sas (tĕn'sô') A river, about 402 km (250 mi) long, of northeast Louisiana flowing south to the Ouachita River.

tense¹ (tĕns) adj. tens-er, tens-est. 1. Tightly stretched; taut. See Synonyms at stiff. See Synonyms at tight. 2. In a state of mental or nervous tension. 3. Characterized by nervous tension or suspense. 4. Linguistics. Enunciated with taut muscles, as the sound (t). — v. tr. intr. tensed, tens-ing, tens-es. To make or become tense. [Latin tĕnsus, past participle of tendere, to stretch. See ten- in Appendix.] —tense/ly adv. —tense/ness n.

tense² (tĕns) n. Abbr. t. Grammar. 1. Any one of the inflected forms in the conjugation of a verb that indicates the time, such as past, present, or future, as well as the continuance or completion of the action or state. 2. A set of tense forms indicating a particular time: the future tense. [Middle English tens, from Old French, time, from Latin tempus.]

ten-sile (tĕn'səl, -sĭl') adj. 1. Of or relating to tension. 2. Capable of being stretched or extended; ductile. [New Latin tĕnsilis, from Latin tĕnsus, stretched out. See TENSE¹.] —ten-sil/i-ty (tĕn-sĭl'ĭ-tē) n.

tensile strength (tĕn'səl strĕngkth) n. Abbr. T.S., t.s. The resistance of a material to a force tending to tear it apart, measured as the maximum tension the material can withstand without tearing.

ten-sim-e-ter (tĕn-sĭm'ĭ-tər) n. An apparatus for measuring differences in vapor pressure. [TENS(ON) + -METER.]

ten-si-om-e-ter (tĕn'sē-ŏm'ĭ-tər) n. 1. An instrument for measuring tensile strength. 2. An instrument used to measure the surface tension of a liquid. [TENSIO(N) + -METER.] —ten'si-o-met'ric (-ə-mĕt'rĭk) adj. —ten'si-om'e-try n.

ten-sion (tĕn'shən) n. 1. a. The act or process of stretching something tight. b. The condition of so being stretched; tautness. 2. a. A force tending to stretch or elongate something. b. A measure of such a force: a tension on the cable of 50 pounds. 3. The interplay of conflicting elements in a piece of literature, especially a poem. 4. a. Mental, emotional, or nervous strain: working under great tension to make a deadline. b. Barely controlled hostility or a strained relationship between people or groups: the dangerous tension between opposing military powers. c. Uneasy suspense: a comic scene that relieved the tension of the drama.

5. A balanced relation between strongly opposing elements: “the continuing, and essential, tension between two of the three branches of government, judicial and legislative” (Haynes Johnson). 6. A device for regulating tautness, especially a device that controls the tautness of thread on a sewing machine or loom. 7. Electricity.

Voltage or potential; electromotive force. — v. tr. ten-sioned, ten-sion-ing, ten-sions. To subject to tension; tighten. [Latin tēnsiō, tēnsiōn-, a stretching out, from tēnsus, past participle of tendere, to stretch. See TENSE¹.] — ten’sion-al adj.

ten-si-ty (tĕn’sī-tē) n. pl. ten-si-ties. The state of being tense; tenseness.

ten-sive (tĕn’siv) adj. 1. Of or causing tension. 2. Physiology. Giving or causing the sensation of stretching or tension.

ten-sor (tĕn’sər, -sôr’) n. 1. Anatomy. A muscle that stretches or tightens a body part. 2. Mathematics. A set of quantities that obey certain transformation laws relating the bases in one generalized coordinate system to those of another and involving partial derivative sums. Vectors are simple tensors. [New Latin tēnsor, from Latin tēnsus, past participle of tendere, to stretch. See TENSE¹.]

— ten-so’ri-al (-sôr’ē-əl, -sôr’-) adj.

ten-speed (tĕn’spĕd’) n. A bicycle that can be pedaled in ten different gears.

ten-strike (tĕn’strīk’) n. 1. Sports & Games. A strike in bowling. 2. Informal.

A remarkably successful stroke or act.

tent¹ (tĕnt) n. 1. A portable shelter, as of canvas, stretched over a supporting framework of poles with ropes and pegs. 2. Something resembling such a portable shelter in construction or outline: “her hair a dark tent, her face a thin triangle” (Anne Tyler). — v. tent-ed, tent-ing, tents. — v. intr. To camp in a tent.

— v. tr. 1. To form a tent over. 2. To supply with or put up in tents. [Middle English, from Old French tente, from Vulgar Latin tendita*, from feminine past participle of Latin tendere, to stretch out. See ten- in Appendix.]

tent² (tĕnt) n. A small, cylindrical plug of lint or gauze used to keep open or probe a wound or an orifice. — v. tr. tent-ed, tent-ing, tents. To keep (a wound or an orifice) open with such a plug. [Middle English tente, from Old French, from tenter, to probe, from Latin tentāre, to feel, try. See TENTATIVE.]

tent³ (tĕnt) v. tr. tent-ed, tent-ing, tents. Scots. 1. To pay heed to. 2. To attend; wait on. [Middle English tenten, from tent, attention, short for attent, from Old French attente, from Vulgar Latin attendita*, from feminine past participle of Latin attendere, to wait on. See ATTEND.]

ten·ta·cle (tĕn/'tə-kəl) n. 1. Zoology. An elongated, flexible, unsegmented extension, as one of those surrounding the mouth or oral cavity of the squid, used for feeling, grasping, or locomotion. 2. Botany. One of the sensitive hairs on the leaves of insectivorous plants, such as the sundew. 3. A similar part or extension, especially with respect to the ability to grasp or stretch: an espionage network with far-reaching tentacles. [New Latin tentāculum, from Latin tentāre, to feel, try. See TENTATIVE.] —ten·tac'ular (-tāk'yə-lər) adj.

ten·ta·cled (tĕn/'tə-kəld) adj. Provided with or having tentacles.

tent·age (tĕn/'tĭj) n. A group or supply of tents.

ten·ta·tive (tĕn/'tə-tĭv) adj. 1. Not fully worked out, concluded, or agreed on; provisional: just a tentative schedule. 2. Uncertain; hesitant. [Medieval Latin tentātīvus, from Latin tentātus, past participle of tentāre, to try, variant of temptāre.] —ten'ta·tive·ly adv. —ten'ta·tive·ness n.

tent caterpillar (tĕnt kăt'ər-pĭl'ər) n. Any of several destructive caterpillars of the family Lasiocampidae, especially of the genus Malacosoma, whose colonies construct silken, tentlike webs in the branches of trees.

tent·ed (tĕn/'tĭd) adj. 1. Covered with tents. 2. Sheltered in tents. 3. Resembling a tent.

ten·ter (tĕn/'tər) n. 1. A framework on which milled cloth is stretched for drying without shrinkage. 2. Archaic. A tenterhook. — v. tr. ten·tered, ten·ter·ing, ten·ters. To stretch (cloth) on a tenter. [Middle English teyntur, tentour, probably ultimately from Latin tentōrium, shelter made of stretched skins, from tendere, to stretch. See TENT¹.]

ten·ter·hook (tĕn/'tər-hōök') n. A hooked nail for securing cloth on a tenter. —idiom. on tenterhooks. In a state of uneasiness, suspense, or anxiety.

tenth (tĕnth) n. 1. The ordinal number matching the number ten in a series. 2. One of ten equal parts. [Middle English tenthe, alteration of tethe, from Old English tēoþa. See dekṃ in Appendix.] —tenth adv. & adj.

tent stitch (tĕnt stĭch) n. A short diagonal embroidery stitch that forms close, even, parallel rows to fill in a pattern or background.

ten·u·is (tĕn/'yōō-ĭs) n. pl. ten·u·es (-yōō-ĕz'). Linguistics. 1. A voiceless stop. 2. A voiceless, unaspirated stop in ancient Greek. [New Latin (translation of Greek psilos), from Latin, thin. See TENUOUS.]

te·nu·i·ty (tĕ-nōō/'ĭ-tē, -nyōō/-) n. The quality or condition of being tenuous; lack of thickness, density, or substance. [Middle English tenuite, from Old French, from Latin tenuitās, thinness, from tenuis, thin. See TENUOUS.]

ten·u·ous (tĕn/'yōō-əs) adj. 1. Long and thin; slender: tenuous strands. 2. Having a thin consistency; dilute. 3. Having little substance; flimsy: a tenuous argument. [Latin tenuis. See ten- in Appendix.] —ten'u·ous·ly adv. —ten'u·ous·ness n.

ten·ure (tĕn'yər, -yōōr') n. 1. a. The act, fact, or condition of holding something in one's possession, as real estate or an office; occupation. b. A period during which something is held. 2. The status of holding one's position on a permanent basis without periodic contract renewals: a teacher granted tenure on a faculty. [Middle English, from Old French teneure, from tenir, to hold, from Latin tenēre, to hold. See ten- in Appendix.] —ten·u'ri·al (-yōōr'ē-əl) adj. —ten·u'ri·al·ly adv.

ten·ured (tĕn'yərd, -yōōrd') adj. Having tenure: tenured civil servants; tenured faculty.

te·nu·to (tā-nōō'tō) adv. & adj. Abbr. ten. Music. So as to be held for the full time value; sustained. Used chiefly as a direction. [Italian, from past participle of tenere, to hold, from Latin tenēre. See ten- in Appendix.]

te·o·cal·li (tē'ə-kāl'ē, tē'ô-kāl'lē) n. pl. te·o·cal·lis. 1. A temple of ancient Mexico and Central America, usually built on a pyramidal mound. 2. The mound on which such a temple was built. [Nahuatl : teōtl, god + calli, house.]

te·o·sin·te (tē'ə-sĭn'tē, tā'ô-) n. A tall Mexican and Central American annual plant (Zea mexicana) related to corn and cultivated for fodder. [American Spanish, from Nahuatl teocintli : teōtl, sacred + cintli, dried ear of corn.]

Te·o·ti·hua·cán (tā'ə-tē'wā-kän', tē'ô-) An ancient city of central Mexico northeast of present-day Mexico City. Its ruins include the Pyramid of the Sun and the Temple of Quetzalcoatl.

te·pa (tē'pə) n. A crystalline organophosphorus compound, C₆H₁₂N₃OP, used as an insect sterilant and in the treatment of certain forms of cancer. [t(ri)e(thylene)p(hosphorus)a(mide).] te·pal (tē'pəl, tĕp'əl) n. Botany. A division of the perianth of a flower having a virtually indistinguishable calyx and corolla, as in tulips and lilies. [French tépale, alteration (influenced by sépale, sepal, from New Latin sepalum); see SEPAL, of pétale, petal, from New Latin petalum. See PETAL.]

tep·a·ry bean (tĕp'ə-rē bĕn) n. 1. An annual twining plant (Phaseolus acutifolius var. latifolius) of the southwest United States and adjacent Mexico, bearing edible beans. 2. The bean of this plant. [Origin unknown.]

te·pee also tee·pee or ti·pi (tē'pē) n. A portable dwelling of certain Native American peoples, especially on the Great Plains, consisting of a conical framework of poles covered with skins or bark. [Sioux t^hipi, dwelling.]

Te·pic (tĕ-pĕk') A city of western Mexico northwest of Guadalajara. It is a commercial and transportation center. Population, 145,741.

tep·id (tĕp'ĭd) adj. 1. Moderately warm; lukewarm. 2. Lacking in emotional warmth or enthusiasm; halfhearted: "the tepid conservatism of the fifties" (Irving Howe). [Middle English, from Latin tepidus, from tepĕre, to be lukewarm.]

—te·pid/i·ty, tep'id·ness n. —tep'id·ly adv.

Te·pli·ce (těp'li-tšě) A city of northwest Czech Republic in the Erzgebirge near the German border. It is a health resort with mineral springs known since Roman times. Population, 53,928.

TEPP (těp) n. A crystalline organophosphorus compound, $C_8H_{20}O_7P_2$, that inhibits the action of acetylcholinesterase and is used as an insecticide and in medicine as a stimulant of the parasympathetic nervous system.

[t(etra)e(thyl)p(yro)p(hosphate).]

Te·quen·da·ma Falls (tā'kən-dä'mə fôlz, tě'kěn-thä'mä) A waterfall, 129.6 m (425 ft) high, in central Colombia south of Bogotá.

te·qui·la (tə-kē'lə) n. An alcoholic liquor distilled from the fermented juice of the Central American century plant Agave tequilana. [American Spanish, after Tequila, a town of west-central Mexico.]

ter. abbr. 1. Terrace. 2. Territorial; territory.

tera- pref. One trillion (10^{12}): terahertz. [From Greek teras, monster. See k^wer- in Appendix.]

ter·a·byte (těr'ə-bīt') n. Computer Science. A unit of information equal to 2^{40} bytes (1,024 gigabytes).

ter·a·hertz (těr'ə-hûrts') n. Abbr. THz One trillion (10^{12}) hertz.

ter·a·ohm (těr'ə-ōm') n. One trillion (10^{12}) ohms.

ter·aph (těr'əf) n. pl. ter·a·phim (-ə-fīm). A small image or idol representing an ancient Semitic household god. [Back-formation from teraphim, teraphim, from Hebrew tērāpîm, household gods.]

ter·a·tism (těr'ə-tiz'əm) n. A congenital malformation. [Greek teras, terat-, monster; see TERATOID + -ISM.]

ter·a·to·car·ci·no·ma (těr'ə-tō-kär'sə-nō'mə) n. pl. ter·a·to·car·ci·no·mas or ter·a·to·car·ci·no·ma·ta (-mə-tə). A malignant teratoma, most often of the testes.

te·rat·o·gen (tə-răt'ə-jən, těr'ə-tə-) n. An agent, such as a virus, a drug, or radiation, that causes malformation of an embryo or a fetus. [Greek teras, terat-, monster; see k^wer- in Appendix + -GEN.]

ter·a·to·gen·e·sis (těr'ə-tə-jěn'ī-sīs) n. Development of malformed organisms or growths. [Greek teras, terat-, monster; see TERATOID + GENESIS.]

ter·a·to·gen·ic (těr'ə-tə-jěn'ik) adj. Of, relating to, or causing malformations of an embryo or a fetus. —ter·a·to·ge·nic'ity (-jə-nīs'ī-tē) n.

ter·a·toid (těr'ə-toid') adj. Biology. Resembling a monster; grotesquely deformed. [Greek teras, terat-, monster; see k^wer- in Appendix + -OID.]

ter·a·tol·o·gy (těr'ə-tōl'ə-jē) n. The biological study of malformations and monstrosities. [Greek teras, terat-, monster; see TERATOID + -LOGY.]

—ter·a·to·log'i·cal (-ə-tl-ōj'ī-kəl) adj. —ter·a·tol'o·gist n.

ter·a·to·ma (těr'ə-tō'mə) n. pl. ter·a·to·mas or ter·a·to·ma·ta (-mə-tə). A tumor consisting of different types of tissue, as of skin, hair, and muscle, caused by the development of independent germ cells. [Greek teras, terat- monster; see k^wer- in Appendix + -OMA.] — ter'a-to'ma-tous (-tō'mə-təs) adj.

ter·bi·um (tûr'bē-əm) n. Symbol Tb A soft, silvery-gray metallic rare-earth element, used in x-ray and color television tubes. Atomic number 65; atomic weight 158.924; melting point 1,356°C; boiling point 3,123°C; specific gravity 8.229; valence 3, 4. [After Ytterby, a town in Sweden.]

terbium metal (tûr'bē-əm mēt'l) n. Any of several rare-earth metals separable from other metals as a group and including europium, terbium, and gadolinium.

Ter·borch or Ter Borch (tər-bôrk', -bôrkH') , Gerard. 1617-1681. Dutch painter of portraits and genre scenes noted for their subtle light and color, including The Concert (c. 1675).

terce (tûrs) n. Variant of tierce (n., sense 1).

Ter·cei·ra (tər-sîr'ə, těr-sā'rə) A Portuguese island of the central Azores in the northern Atlantic Ocean.

ter·cel (tûr'səl) also tier·cel (tîr'səl) n. A male hawk used in falconry. [Middle English, from Old French terçuel, from Vulgar Latin tertiolus*, diminutive of Latin tertius, third. See trei- in Appendix.]

ter·cen·ten·a·ry (tûr'sĕn-tĕn'ə-rĕ, tər-sĕn'tə-nĕr'ĕ) n. pl.

ter·cen·ten·a·ries. A 300th anniversary or its celebration. — adj. Of or relating to a span of 300 years or to a 300th anniversary. [Latin ter, thrice; see TERN² + CENTENARY.]

ter·cen·ten·ni·al (tûr'sĕn-tĕn'ĕ-əl) n. A tercentenary. — adj. Tercentenary.

ter·cet (tûr'sĭt) n. 1. A group of three lines of verse, often rhyming together or with another triplet. 2. Music. See triplet (n., sense 4). [French, from Italian terzetto, from diminutive of terzo, third, from Latin tertius. See trei- in Appendix.]

ter·e·bene (tĕr'ə-bĕn') n. A mixture of terpenes prepared from oil of turpentine, used as an expectorant and antiseptic. [French térébène, from térébinthe, terebinth, from Old French terebinte. See TEREBINTH.]

te·reb·ic acid (tə-rĕb'ĭk əs'ĭd, -rĕ'bĭk) n. A white crystalline compound, C₇H₁₀O₄, resulting from the action of nitric acid on oil of turpentine. [TEREB(INTH) + -IC.]

ter·e·binth (tĕr'ə-bĭnth') n. A small Mediterranean tree (Pistacia terebinthus) that is a source of tanning material and turpentine. [Middle English terebinthe, from Old French terebinte, from Latin terebinthus, from Greek terebinthos.]

ter·e·bin·thine (tĕr'ə-bĭn'thĭn, -thĭn') also ter·e·bin·thic (-thĭk) adj. 1. Of or relating to the terebinth. 2. Relating to, consisting of, or resembling turpentine.

te·re·do (tə-rē'dō, -rā'dō) n. pl. te·re·dos. A shipworm of the genus Teredo. [New Latin Terēdō, mollusk genus, from Latin terēdō, a kind of worm, from Greek terēdōn. See terə-¹ in Appendix.]

Ter·ence (tēr'əns), 185?-159? B.C. Greek-born Roman playwright. Taken to Rome as the young slave of a senator, he was educated and then freed by his master. His comedies, such as Phormio and Adelphi, feature subtle humor and refined dialogue.

Te·re·sa (tə-rē'sə, -zə, -rā'-), Mother. Born 1910. Albanian-born Indian nun. Dedicated to relieving the suffering of India's desperately poor and dying people, she founded a Roman Catholic congregation of sisters, the Missionaries of Charity, in 1950. She won the 1979 Nobel Peace Prize.

Te·re·sa (tə-rē'sə, -zə, -rā'-), Saint. See Saint. Theresa.

Te·resh·ko·va (tə-rēsh-kō'və, tyĭ-ryĭ-shkō'və), Valentina Vladmirovna. Born 1937. Soviet cosmonaut who orbited the earth 48 times aboard Vostok 6 in June 1963, thereby becoming the first woman in space.

Te·re·si·na (tēr'ĭ-zē'nə) A city of northeast Brazil on the Parnaíba River east-southeast of Belém. Founded in 1852, it is a trade and distribution center. Population, 339,042.

te·rete (tē-rēt') adj. Cylindrical but usually slightly tapering at both ends, circular in cross section, and smooth-surfaced. [From Latin teres, teret-, rounded. See terə-¹ in Appendix.]

Te·reus (tĭr'ē-əs, tĭr'yōōs') n. Greek Mythology. A king of Thrace who raped Philomela and who was changed into a hoopoe.

ter·ga (tūr'gə) n. Plural of tergum.

ter·gite (tūr'gīt', -jīt') n. A sclerite forming one of the constituents of a tergum.

ter·giv·er·sate (tər-jĭv'ər-sāt', tūr'jĭ-vər-) v. intr. ter·giv·er·sat·ed, ter·giv·er·sat·ing, ter·giv·er·sates. 1. To use evasions or ambiguities; equivocate. 2. To change sides; apostatize. [Latin tergiversārī, tergiversāt- : tergum, the back + versāre, to turn; see wer-² in Appendix.] —ter'gi·ver·sa'tion n. —ter'gi·ver·sa'tor (-sā'tər) n.

ter·gum (tūr'gəm) n. pl. ter·ga (-gə). The upper or dorsal surface, especially of a body segment of an insect or other arthropod. [Latin, back.] —ter'gal (-gəl) adj.

ter·i·ya·ki (tēr'ē-yä'kē) n. A Japanese dish consisting of grilled or broiled slices of marinated meat or shellfish. [Japanese : teri, glaze + yaki, to broil.]

term (tūrm) n. 1. a. A limited period of time. b. A period of time that is assigned to a person to serve: a six-year term as senator. See Synonyms at period. c. A period when a school or court is in session. 2. a. A point in time at which something ends; termination: an apprenticeship nearing its term. b. The end of a normal gestation period: carried the fetus to term. c. A deadline, as for making a payment. 3. Law. a. A fixed period of time for which an estate is granted. b. An estate granted for a fixed period. 4. a. A word or group of words having a particular meaning: had to explain the term gridlock. b. terms. Language of a certain kind; chosen words: spoke in rather vague terms; praised him in glowing terms. 5. Often terms. One of the elements of a proposed or concluded agreement; a condition: offered favorable peace terms; one of the terms of the lease; the terms of a divorce settlement. 6. terms. The relationship between two people or groups; personal footing: on good terms with her in-laws. 7. Mathematics. a. One of the quantities composing a ratio or fraction or forming a series. b. One of the quantities connected by addition or subtraction signs in an equation; a member. 8. Logic. Each of the two concepts being compared or related in a proposition. 9. A stone or post marking a boundary, especially a squared and downward-tapering pillar adorned with a head and upper torso. — v. tr. termed, term-ing, terms. To designate; call. — idiom. in terms of. 1. As measured or indicated by; in units of: distances expressed in terms of kilometers as well as miles; cheap entertainment, but costly in terms of time wasted. 2. In relation to; with reference to: “facilities planned and programmed in terms of their interrelationships, instead of evolving haphazardly” (Wharton Magazine). [Middle English terme, from Old French, from Latin terminus, boundary. N., senses 4-8, from Middle English from Medieval Latin terminus, from Late Latin, mathematical or logical term, from Latin, boundary, limit.]

term. abbr. 1. Terminal. 2. Termination.

ter·ma·gant (tûr'mə-gənt) n. A quarrelsome, scolding woman; a shrew. — adj. Shrewish; scolding. [From Middle English Termagaunt, imaginary Muslim deity portrayed as a violent and overbearing character in medieval mystery plays, alteration of Tervagant, from Old French.]

term·er (tûr'mər) n. One that serves a specified term: a second term-er in the House of Representatives.

ter·mi·na·ble (tûr'mə-nə-bəl) adj. 1. Possible to terminate: terminable activities; terminable employees. 2. Terminating after a designated date: a terminable annuity. — ter'mi-na·bil'i·ty, ter'mi-na·ble·ness n. — ter'mi-na·bly adv.

ter·mi·nal (tûr'mə-nəl) adj. Abbr. term., t. 1. Of, relating to, situated at, or forming a limit, a boundary, an extremity, or an end. 2. Botany. Growing or appearing at the end of a stem, branch, stalk, or similar part. 3. Of, relating to, occurring at, or being the end of a section or series; final. See Synonyms at last¹. 4. Relating to or occurring in a term or each term: terminal inventories.

5. Causing, ending in, or approaching death; fatal: terminal cancer; terminal heart disease; a terminal patient. — n. Abbr. term., t. 1. A point or part that forms the end. 2. An ornamental figure or object placed at the end of a larger structure; a finial. 3. Electricity. a. A position in a circuit or device at which a connection is normally established or broken. b. A passive conductor at such a position used to facilitate the connection. 4. a. Either end of a railroad or other transportation line; a terminus. b. A station at the end of a transportation line or at a major junction on a transportation line. c. A town at the end of a transportation line. 5. Computer Science. A device, often equipped with a keyboard and a video display, through which data or information can enter or leave a computer system. [Middle English, from Latin terminālis, from terminus, boundary.]

—ter'mi-nal-ly adv.

ter-mi-nate (tûr'mə-nāt') v. ter-mi-nat-ed, ter-mi-nat-ing, ter-mi-nates.

— v. tr. 1. To bring to an end or a halt: “His action terminated the most hopeful period of reform in Prussian history” (Gordon A. Craig). 2. To occur at or form the end of; conclude or finish: a display of fireworks that terminated the festivities.

3. To discontinue the employment of; dismiss: a company that terminated 300 workers.

— v. intr. 1. To come to an end: The oil pipeline terminates at a shipping port. Negotiations terminated yesterday. See Synonyms at complete. 2. To have as an end or a result: “The Peloponnesian war... terminated in the ruin of the Athenian commonwealth” (Alexander Hamilton). [Latin termināre, termināt-, from terminus, end.]

ter-mi-na-tion (tûr'mə-nā'shən) n. Abbr. term. 1. The act of terminating or the condition of being terminated. 2. a. The end of something in time; the conclusion. b. An end of something in space; a limit or an edge. 3. A result; an outcome. 4. Linguistics. The end of a word, as an inflectional ending, a suffix, or a final morpheme. —ter'mi-na'tion-al adj.

ter-mi-na-tive (tûr'mə-nā'tiv) adj. Serving, designed, or tending to terminate; conclusive. —ter'mi-na'tive-ly adv.

ter-mi-na-tor (tûr'mə-nā'tər) n. 1. One that terminates: a terminator of unpopular policies. 2. The dividing line between the bright and shaded regions of the disk of the moon or an inner planet. 3. A sequence of nucleotides that signals the end of transcription and the completion of the synthesis of a nucleic acid molecule from a template.

ter-mi-ni (tûr'mə-nī') n. A plural of terminus.

ter-mi-nol-o-gy (tûr'mə-nōl'ə-jē) n. pl. ter-mi-nol-o-gies. 1. The vocabulary of technical terms used in a particular field, subject, science, or art; nomenclature. 2. The study of nomenclature. [German Terminologie, from Medieval Latin terminus, expression. See TERM.] —ter'mi-no-log'i-cal (-nə-lōj'ī-kəl) adj.

—ter'mi-no-log'i-cal-ly adv. —ter'mi-nol/o-gist n.

term insurance (tûrm ĩn-shōōr'əns) n. Insurance providing coverage for losses to the insured during a stated period but becoming void upon its expiration.

ter-mi-nus (tûr'mə-nəs) n. pl. ter-mi-nus-es or ter-mi-ni (-nī'). 1. The final point; the end. 2. An end point on a transportation line or the town in which it is located. 3. a. A boundary or border. b. A stone or post marking a border.

[Latin.]

ter·mi·tar·i·um (tûr'mî-târ'ē-əm) n. pl. ter·mi·tar·i·a (-ē-ə). A nest built by a colony of termites. Also called termitary ter·mi·tar·y (tûr'mî-těr'ē) n. pl. ter·mi·tar·ies. See termitarium.

ter·mite (tûr'mît') n. Any of numerous pale-colored, usually soft-bodied social insects of the order Isoptera that live mostly in warm regions and many species of which feed on wood, often destroying trees and wooden structures. Also called white ant [New Latin Termes, genus name, from Late Latin termes, termit-, wood-worm, alteration of Latin tarmes.]

ter·mit·ic (tər-mīt'ik) adj. Of, relating to, or formed by termites.

term·less (tûrm'lis) adj. 1. Having no bounds or limits; unending: termless suffering. 2. Unconditional: termless surrender.

term paper (tûrm pā'pər) n. A lengthy piece of written work required of a student on a topic drawn from the subject matter of a course of study.

tern¹ (tûrn) n. Any of various sea birds of the genus Sterna and related genera, related to and resembling the gulls but characteristically smaller and having a forked tail. [Of Scandinavian origin.]

tern² (tûrn) n. 1. Games. A set of three, especially a combination of three numbers that wins a lottery prize. 2. Nautical. A three-masted schooner. [Middle English terne, from Old French, from ternes, from Latin ternās, accusative pl. of ternī, three each, from ter, thrice. See trei- in Appendix.]

ter·na·ry (tûr'nə-rē) adj. 1. Composed of three or arranged in threes.

2. Mathematics. a. Having the base three. b. Involving three variables. — n. pl. ter·na·ries. A group of three. [Middle English, from Latin ternārius, from ternī, three each. See TERN².]

ter·nate (tûr'nāt', -nīt) adj. Arranged in or consisting of sets or groups of three, as a compound leaf with three leaflets. [New Latin ternātus, from Medieval Latin, past participle of ternāre, to treble, from Latin ternī, three each. See TERN².] — ter'nate'ly adv.

Ter·na·te (tər-nā'tā, těr-nā'tě) An island of eastern Indonesia in the northern Moluccas west of northeast Celebes. Settled by the Portuguese (1521-1574), it was subjugated by the Dutch in 1683.

terne (tûrn) n. Terneplate.

terne·plate (tûrn'plāt') n. Sheet iron or steel plated with an alloy of three or four parts of lead to one part of tin, used as a roofing material. [Probably French terne, dull (from Old French); see TARNISH + PLATE.]

Ter·ni (těr'nē) A city of central Italy north of Rome. It was part of the Papal States in the 14th century. Population, 111,401.

Ter·no·pol (těr-nō'pəl, těr-nô'-) A city of western Ukraine west-southwest of Kiev. Founded in 1540, it passed to Austria in 1772 and was later held by Poland (until 1939). Population, 182,000.

ter·pene (tûr'pēn') n. Any of various unsaturated hydrocarbons, C₁₀H₁₆, found in essential oils and oleoresins of plants such as conifers and used in organic syntheses. [Obsolete terp(entine), variant of TURPENTINE + -ENE.]

—ter·pe'nic adj. —ter'pe·noid' adj. & n.

ter·pin·e·ol (tər-pīn'ē-ōl', -ōl', -ōl') n. Any of three isomeric alcohols, C₁₀H₁₇OH, occurring naturally in the essential oils of certain plants and used as solvents in perfumes, soaps, and medicine. [TERP(ENE) + -INE² + -OL¹.]

ter·pin hydrate (tûr'pīn hī'drāt') n. A crystalline powder, C₁₀H₂₀O₂·H₂O, used in cough syrups as an expectorant or elixir. [TERP(ENE) + -IN.]

ter·pol·y·mer (tər-pōl'ə-mər) n. A polymer that consists of three distinct monomers. [Latin ter, thrice; see trei- in Appendix + POLYMER.]

Terp·sich·o·re (tûrp-sīk'ə-rē) n. 1. Greek Mythology. The Muse of dancing and choral singing. 2. terpsichore. The art of dancing. [Latin Terpsichorē, from Greek Terpsikhorē, from feminine of terpsikhoros, dance-loving : terpein, to delight + khoros, dance; see gher-¹ in Appendix.]

terp·si·cho·re·an (tûrp'sī-kə-rē'ən, tûrp'sī-kôr'ē-ən, -kôr'-) adj. Of or relating to dancing. — n. A dancer. [From TERPSICHORE.]

terr (těr) n. Slang. A terrorist.

terr. abbr. 1. Terrace. 2. Territorial; territory.

ter·ra (těr'ə) n. pl. ter·rae (těr'ē). A rough upland or mountainous region of the moon with a relatively high albedo. [Latin, earth, land. See TERRACE.]

terra al·ba (těr'ə əl'bə, əl'bə) n. 1. Finely pulverized gypsum used in making paper, paints, and as a nutrient for growing yeast. 2. Kaolin. [New Latin : Latin terra, earth + Latin albus, white.]

ter·race (těr'is) n. Abbr. ter., terr. 1. a. A porch or walkway bordered by colonnades. b. A platform extending outdoors from a floor of a house or an apartment building. 2. An open, often paved area adjacent to a house serving as an outdoor living space; a patio. 3. A raised bank of earth having vertical or sloping sides and a flat top: turning a hillside into a series of ascending terraces for farming. 4. A flat, narrow stretch of ground, often having a steep slope facing a river, lake, or sea. 5. a. A row of buildings erected on raised ground or on a sloping site. b. A section of row houses. c. A residential street on top of or climbing a slope. 6. A narrow strip of landscaped earth in the middle of a street. — v. tr.

ter·raced, ter·rac·ing, ter·rac·es. 1. To provide (a house, for example) with a terrace or terraces. 2. To form (a hillside or sloping lawn, for example) into terraces. [French, from Old French, from Old Provençal terrassa, from Vulgar Latin terrācea*, feminine of ·terrāceus, earthen, from Latin terra, earth. See ters- in Appendix.]

terra cot·ta (těr'ə kōt'ə) n. 1. a. A hard, semifired, waterproof ceramic clay used in pottery and building construction. b. Ceramic wares made of this material. 2. A brownish orange. [Italian : terra, earth (from Latin); see TERRACE + cotta, baked, cooked (from Latin cōcta, feminine past participle of coquere, to cook); see pek^w- in Appendix.] —ter'ra-cot'ta (těr'ə-kõt'tə) adj.

ter·rae (těr'ē) n. Plural of terra.

terra fir·ma (těr'ə fîr'mə) n. Solid ground; dry land. [New Latin : Latin terra, earth + Latin firmus, solid.]

ter·rain (tə-rān') n. 1. a. An area of land; ground: climbed a tree to view the surrounding terrain. b. A particular geographic area; a region: a guide who knows this terrain well. 2. The surface features of an area of land; topography: boots designed for rugged terrain. 3. (also těr'ān) Variant of terrane. [French, from Old French, from Vulgar Latin terrānum*, alteration of Latin terrēnum, from neuter of terrēnus, of the earth. See TERRENE.]

terra in·cog·ni·ta (těr'ə ɪn'kög-nē'tə, -kög'nī-tə) n. pl. terrae in·cog·ni·tae (ɪn'kög-nē'tē, -kög'nī-tē'). 1. An unknown land; an unexplored region: "a vast and virtually final terra incognita left to terrestrial explorers" (David F. Salisbury). 2. A new or unexplored field of knowledge. [New Latin : Latin terra, land + incognitus, unknown.]

Ter·ra·my·cin (těr'ə-mī'sɪn) A trademark used for oxytetracycline.

ter·rane also ter·rain (tə-rān', těr'ān) n. 1. A series of related rock formations. 2. An area having a preponderance of a particular rock or rock groups. [Alteration of TERRAIN.]

ter·ra·pin (těr'ə-pɪn) n. Any of various North American aquatic turtles of the family Emydiolae, especially the genus Malaclemys, which includes the diamond-back terrapin. [Alteration of torope, from Virginia Algonquian.]

ter·ra·que·ous (těr-ā'kwē-əs, -āk'wē-) adj. Composed of land and water. [Latin terra, earth; see ters- in Appendix + AQUEOUS.]

ter·rar·i·um (tə-rār'ē-əm) n. pl. ter·rar·i·ums or ter·rar·i·a (-ē-ə). A small enclosure or closed container in which selected living plants and sometimes small land animals, such as turtles and lizards, are kept and observed. [New Latin : Latin terra, earth; see TERRENE + -ARIUM.]

ter·raz·zo (tə-rāz'ō, těr-rāt'sō) n. A flooring material of marble or stone chips set in mortar and polished when dry. [Italian, perhaps from Old Provençal ter-rassa, terrace. See TERRACE.]

Ter·re Haute (těr'ə hōt', hüt', hôt') A city of western Indiana on the Wabash River west-southwest of Indianapolis. Founded as Fort Harrison in 1811, it is a commercial and industrial center and the seat of Indiana State University (established 1865). Population, 57,483.

ter·rene (těr-rēn', těr'ēn') adj. Of or relating to Earth; earthly. [Middle English, from Latin terrēnus, from terra, earth. See ters- in Appendix.]

ter·re·plein (těr'ə-plān') n. A platform or level ground surface on which heavy guns are mounted. [French terreplein, from Italian terrapieno, from terrapienare, to fill with earth : terra, earth (from Latin); see ters- in Appendix + pieno, full (from Latin plēnus); see pelə-¹ in Appendix.]

ter-res-tri-al (tə-rēs'trē-əl) adj. 1. Of or relating to Earth or its inhabitants.

2. Having a worldly, mundane character or quality. 3. Of, relating to, or composed of land. 4. Biology. Living or growing on land; not aquatic: a terrestrial plant or animal. — n. An inhabitant of Earth. [Middle English, from Latin terrestris, from terra, earth. See ters- in Appendix.] —ter-res'tri-al-ly adv.

—ter-res'tri-al-ness n.

terrestrial planet (tə-rēs'trē-əl plän'it) n. Any of the four planets, Mercury, Venus, Earth, or Mars, that are nearest the sun and have similar size and density.

terrestrial radiation (tə-rēs'trē-əl rā'dē-ā'shən) n. Electromagnetic radiation originating from Earth and its atmosphere.

ter-ret (tēr'it) n. 1. One of the metal rings on a harness through which the reins pass. 2. A ring on an animal's collar, used for attaching a leash. [Middle English teret, variant of toret, from Old French, diminutive of tour, tor, a round. See TOUR.]

terre-verte (tēr'vērt') n. An olive-green pigment commonly made from glauconite, used by artists. [French : terre, earth (from Latin terra); see ters- in Appendix + verte, feminine of vert, green (from Old French verd); see VERDANT.]

ter-ri-ble (tēr'ə-bəl) adj. 1. Causing great fear or alarm; dreadful: a terrible bolt of lightning; a terrible curse. 2. Extremely formidable: terrible responsibilities.

3. Extreme in extent or degree: "the life for which he had paid so terrible a price" (Leslie Fiedler). 4. a. Unpleasant; disagreeable: had a terrible time at the party; terrible food. b. Markedly objectionable: terrible hypocrisy. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin terribilis, from terrēre, to frighten.]

—ter'ri-ble-ness n. —ter'ri-bly adv.

ter-ric-o-lous (tēr-rik'ə-ləs) adj. Biology. Living on or in the ground: terricolous worms. [From Latin terricola, earth-dweller : terra, earth; see ters- in Appendix + -cola, -colous.]

ter-ri-er (tēr'ē-ər) n. Any of several typically small, active breeds of hunting dog originally developed for driving game from burrows. [Middle English, from Old French (chien) terrier, ground (dog), terrier, from Medieval Latin terrārius, of the earth, from Latin terra. See ters- in Appendix.]

ter-ri-fic (tə-rif'ik) adj. 1. Causing terror or great fear; terrifying: a terrific wail. 2. Very bad or unpleasant; frightful: a terrific headache. 3. Very good or fine; splendid: a terrific tennis player. 4. Awesome; astounding: terrific speed. [Latin terrificus : terrēre, to frighten + -ficus, -fic.] —ter-rif/i-cal-ly adv.

ter-ri-fy (tēr'ə-fī') v. tr. ter-ri-fied, ter-ri-fy-ing, ter-ri-fies. 1. To fill with terror; make deeply afraid; alarm. See Synonyms at frighten. 2. To menace or threaten; intimidate. [Latin terrificāre, from terrificus, terrific. See TERRIFIC.]

ter-rig-e-nous (tĕ-rĭj'ə-nəs) adj. Geology. Derived from the land, especially by erosive action. Used primarily of sediments. [From Latin terrigena, earth-born : terra, earth; see ters- in Appendix + -GENOUS.]

ter-rine (tə-rĕn') n. 1. An earthenware dish for cooking and serving food. 2. A food, especially a pâté or a mixture of chopped meat or fish and vegetables, that is cooked or served in such a dish. [French. See TUREEN.]

ter-ri-to-ri-al (tĕr'ĭ-tôr'ĕ-əl, -tôr'(-)) adj. Abbr. ter., terr. 1. Of or relating to the geographic area under a given jurisdiction: the territorial limits of a country.

2. Relating or restricted to a particular territory; regional: a territorial court. 3.

Often Territorial. Of or relating to an administrative territory: the territorial government of the U.S. Virgin Islands; Whitehorse, the territorial capital of the Yukon. 4. Often Territorial. Organized for national or home defense: the British Territorial Army. 5. Biology. Displaying territoriality; defending a territory from intruders: territorial behavior; a territorial species. — n. also Territorial ter-ri-to-ri-al-ism (tĕr'ĭ-tôr'ĕ-əl-ĭz'əm, -tôr'(-)) n. 1. A social system that gives authority and influence in a state to the landowners. 2. A system of church government based on primacy of civil power. —ter'ri-to'ri-al-ist n.

A member of a territorial army. —ter'ri-to'ri-ally adv.

ter-ri-to-ri-al-ity (tĕr'ĭ-tôr'ĕ-ăl'ĭ-tĕ, -tôr'(-)) n. pl. ter-ri-to-ri-al-ities. 1. The status of a territory. 2. A behavior pattern in animals consisting of the occupation and defense of a territory.

ter-ri-to-ri-al-ize (tĕr'ĭ-tôr'ĕ-əl-ĭz', -tôr'(-)) v. tr. ter-ri-to-ri-al-ized, ter-ri-to-ri-al-iz-ing, ter-ri-to-ri-al-iz-es. 1. To make a territory of; organize as a territory. 2. To extend by adding territory. —ter'ri-to'ri-al-iz-a'tion (-ə-lĭ-zā'shən) n.

territorial waters (tĕr'ĭ-tôr'ĕ-əl wô'tərz) pl.n. Inland and coastal waters under the jurisdiction of a nation or state, especially the ocean waters within 3 or 12 miles (4.8 or 19.3 kilometers) of the shoreline.

ter-ri-to-ry (tĕr'ĭ-tôr'ĕ, -tôr'ĕ) n. pl. ter-ri-to-ries. Abbr. ter., terr., t., T.

1. An area of land; a region. 2. The land and waters under the jurisdiction of a government. 3. a. A political subdivision of a country. b. A geographic region, such as a colonial possession, that is dependent on an external government: the territories of the Holy Roman Empire. 4. Often Territory. a. A subdivision of the United States that is not a state and is administered by an appointed or elected governor and elected legislature. b. A similarly organized political subdivision of Canada or Australia. 5. An area for which a person is responsible as a representative or an agent: a salesperson's territory. 6. Sports. The area of a field defended by a specified team: punted the ball deep into the opponent's territory. 7. Biology. An area occupied by a single animal, mating pair, or group and often vigorously defended against intruders, especially those of the same species. 8. A sphere of action or interest; a province. See Synonyms at field. [Middle English, from Latin territōrium, from terra, earth. See ters- in Appendix.]

ter·ror (tĕr'ər) n. 1. Intense, overpowering fear. See Synonyms at fear. 2. One that instills intense fear: a rabid dog that became the terror of the neighborhood. 3. The ability to instill intense fear: the terror of jackboots pounding down the street. 4. Violence committed or threatened by a group to intimidate or coerce a population, as for military or political purposes. 5. Informal. An annoying or intolerable pest: that little terror of a child. [Middle English terroure, from Old French terreur, from Latin terror, from terrĕre, to frighten.]

ter·ror·ism (tĕr'ər-rĭz'əm) n. The unlawful use or threatened use of force or violence by a person or an organized group against people or property with the intention of intimidating or coercing societies or governments, often for ideological or political reasons.

ter·ror·ist (tĕr'ər-ĭst) n. One that engages in acts or an act of terrorism. — adj. Of, relating to, or constituting terrorism. — ter'ror-is'tic adj.

ter·ror·ize (tĕr'ər-rĭz') v. tr. ter·ror·ized, ter·ror·iz·ing, ter·ror·iz·es. 1. To fill or overpower with terror; terrify. 2. To coerce by intimidation or fear. See Synonyms at frighten. — ter'ror-i-za'tion (-ər-ĭ-zā'shən) n. — ter'ror-iz'er n.

ter·ry (tĕr'ē) n. pl. ter·ries. 1. One of the uncut loops that form the pile of a fabric. 2. A pile fabric, usually woven of cotton, with uncut loops on both sides, used for bath towels and robes. In this sense, also called terry cloth [Origin unknown.]

Ter·ry (tĕr'ē), Dame Ellen Alice or Alicia. 1847-1928. British actress. The pre-eminent English-speaking actress of her day, she was known for her Shakespearean roles and her correspondence with George Bernard Shaw.

terse (tĕrs) adj. ters·er, ters·est. Brief and to the point; effectively concise: a terse one-word answer. [Latin tersus, past participle of tergĕre, to cleanse.] — terse'ly adv. — terse'ness n.

ter·tial (tĕr'shəl) adj. Of, relating to, or designating the third row of flight feathers on the basal section of a bird's wing. — n. A tertial feather. [Latin tertius, third; see TERTIARY + -AL¹.]

ter·tian (tĕr'shən) adj. Recurring every other day or, when considered inclusively, every third day: a tertian fever. — n. Pathology. A tertian fever, such as vivax malaria. [Middle English terciane, tertian fever, from Latin (febris) tertiāna, (fever) of the third (day), from tertius, third. See trei- in Appendix.]

ter·ti·ar·y (tĕr'shĕ-ĕr'ē) adj. 1. Third in place, order, degree, or rank. 2. Of, relating to, or designating the short flight feathers nearest the body on the rear edge of a bird's wing. 3. Chemistry. a. Of or relating to salts of acids containing three replaceable hydrogen atoms. b. Of or relating to organic compounds in which a group, such as an alcohol or amine, is bound to three nonelementary radicals. 4. Tertiary. Geology. Of, belonging to, or being the geologic time, system of rocks, and sedimentary deposits of the first period of the Cenozoic Era, extending from the Cretaceous Period of the Mesozoic Era to the Quaternary Period of the Cenozoic Era, characterized by the appearance of modern flora and of apes and other large mammals. — n. pl. ter-ti-ar-ies. 1. A tertiary feather.

2. Tertiary. Geology. The Tertiary Period or its system of deposits. 3. Roman Catholic Church. A member of a religious Third Order. [Latin tertiarius, from tertius, third. See trei- in Appendix.]

tertiary color (tûr'shē-ēr'ē kül'ər) n. A color resulting from the mixture of two secondary colors.

tertiary consumer (tûr'shē-ēr'ē kən-sōō'mər) n. Ecology. An animal that feeds on secondary consumers in a food chain.

tertiary syphilis (tûr'shē-ēr'ē sif'ə-lis) n. The final stage of syphilis, following a latent period that may last years, characterized by spread of the disease to many organs and tissues, including the skin, bones, joints, heart, brain, and spinal cord.

ter-ti-um quid (tûr'shē-əm kwid', tēr'tē-ōōm') n. Something that cannot be classified into either of two groups considered exhaustive; an intermediate thing or factor. [Late Latin : Latin tertium, neuter of tertius, third + quid, something.]

Ter-tul-lian (tər-tûl'yən, -tûl'ē-ən), A.D. 160?-230?. Carthaginian theologian who converted to Christianity (c. 193), broke with the Catholic Church (c. 207), and formed his own schismatic sect. His writings greatly influenced Western theology.

ter·va·lent (tər-vā'lənt, tûr'vā'-) adj. Trivalent.

ter·za ri·ma (těr'tsə rē'mə) *n. pl. ter·ze ri·me (těr'tsě rē'mě). A verse form of Italian origin consisting of tercets of 10 or 11 syllables with the middle line rhyming with the first and third lines of the following tercet. [Italian : terza, third + rima, rhyme.]*

TESL abbr. Teaching English as a second language.

tes·la (tēs'lə) n. Abbr. T The unit of magnetic flux density in the International System, equal to one weber per square meter. See Table at measurement.

[After Nikola TESLA.]

Tes·la (tēs'lə), Nikola. 1856-1943. Serbian-born American electrical engineer and physicist who discovered the principles of alternating current (1881) and invented numerous devices and procedures that were seminal to the development of radio and the harnessing of electricity.

tesla coil (tēs'lə kōil) n. An air-core transformer that is used as a source of high-frequency power, as for x-ray tubes. [After Nikola TESLA.]

TESOL abbr. Teachers of English to speakers of other languages.

tes·sel·late (tēs'ə-lāt') v. tr. tes·sel·lat·ed, tes·sel·lat·ing, tes·sel·lates. To form into a mosaic pattern, as by using small squares of stone or glass. [From Latin tessellātus, of small square stones, from tessella, small cube, diminutive of tessera, a square. See TESSERA.] —tes'sel-la'tion n.

tes-ser-a (tēs'ər-ə) n. pl. tes-ser-ae (tēs'ə-rē'). One of the small squares of stone or glass used in making mosaic patterns. [Latin, from Greek, neuter of tesserēs, variant of tessares, four. See k^wetwer- in Appendix.]

tes-ser-act (tēs'ə-räkt') n. The four-dimensional equivalent of a cube. [Greek tessera, neuter pl. of tesserēs, four; see TESSERA + aktis, ray of light; see ACTINO-.]

tes-si-tu-ra (tēs'ī-tōōr'ə) n. Music. The prevailing range of a vocal or instrumental part, within which most of the tones lie. [Italian, from Latin textūra, web, structure. See TEXTURE.]

test¹ (tĕst) n. 1. A procedure for critical evaluation; a means of determining the presence, quality, or truth of something; a trial: *a test of one's eyesight; subjecting a hypothesis to a test; a test of an athlete's endurance. 2. A series of questions, problems, or physical responses designed to determine knowledge, intelligence, or ability. 3. A basis for evaluation or judgment: "A test of democratic government is how Congress and the president work together" (Haynes Johnson). 4. *Chemistry.

a. A physical or chemical change by which a substance may be detected or its properties ascertained. b. A reagent used to cause or promote such a change.

c. A positive result obtained. 5. A cupel. — v. test-ed, test-ing, tests. — v.

tr. 1. To subject to a test; try: *tested the pen by scribbling on scrap paper; testing each mango for ripeness by pressing and smelling it; testing job applicants. 2. a. To determine the presence or properties of (a substance). b. To assay (metal) in a cupel. — v. intr. 1. To undergo a test. 2. To administer a test: *test for acid content; test for the presence of an antibody. 3. To achieve a score or rating on tests: *took the entrance examinations and tested high. 4. To exhibit a given characteristic when subjected to a test: test positive for the tubercle bacillus. [Middle English, cupel, from Old French, pot, from Latin testū, testum.] —test'a-bil'i-ty n.

—test'a-ble adj.

test² (tĕst) n. A hard external covering, as that of certain amoebas, dinoflagellates, and sea urchins. [Latin testa, shell.]

test. abbr. 1. Law. a. Testator. b. Testatrix. 2. Testimony.

Test. abbr. Bible. Testament.

tes-ta (tēs'tə) n. pl. tes-tae (-tē'). The often thick or hard outer coat of a seed. [Latin, shell.]

tes-ta-cean (tĕ-stā'shən) n. Any of various rhizopods of the order Testacea, characterized by the presence of a shell. [From New Latin Testācea, order name, from Latin, neuter pl. of testāceus, covered with a shell, from testa, shell.]

—tes-ta'cean adj.

tes-ta-ceous (tĕ-stā'shəs) adj. 1. Biology. a. Having a hard shell or shell-like outer covering: testaceous echinoderms. b. Composed of a shell or shell-like material: a testaceous operculum. 2. Color. Having the reddish-brown or brownish-yellow hue of bricks. [From Latin testāceus, from testa, shell.]

tes·ta·cy (tēs'tā-sē) n. Law. The condition of being testate.

tes·tae (tēs'tē') n. Plural of testa.

tes·ta·ment (tēs'tə-mənt) n. 1. Something that serves as tangible proof or evidence: The spacious plan of the city is a testament to the foresight of its founders.

2. A statement of belief; a credo: my political testament. 3. Law. A written document providing for the disposition of a person's property after death; a will.

4. Testament. Abbr. T., Test. Bible. Either of the two main divisions of the Bible.

5. Archaic. A covenant between human beings and God. [Middle English, a will, from Latin testāmentum, from testārī, to make a will, from testis, witness. See trei- in Appendix.] —tes'ta·men'tar·y (-mēn'tə-rē, -mēn'trē) adj.

tes·tate (tēs'tāt') adj. Law. Having made a legally valid will before death. [Middle English, from Latin testātus, past participle of testārī, to make one's will. See TESTAMENT.]

tes·ta·tor (tēs'tā'tər, tē-stā'tər) n. Abbr. test. Law. One who has made a legally valid will before death. [Middle English testatour, from Anglo-Norman, from Latin testātor, from testārī, to make one's will. See TESTAMENT.]

tes·ta·trix (tē-stā'trīks) n. pl. tes·ta·tri·ces (-trī-sēz'). Abbr. test. Law. A woman who has made a legally valid will before death. [Latin, feminine of testātor, testator. See TESTATOR.]

test case (těst kās) n. Law. A legal action whose outcome is likely to set a precedent or test the constitutionality of a statute.

test·cross (těst'krōs', -krōs') Genetics. n. A cross between an individual exhibiting the dominant phenotype of a trait and an individual that is homozygous recessive for that trait in order to determine the genotype of the dominant individual. — v. tr. test·crossed, test·cross·ing, test·cross·es. To subject to a testcross.

test·drive (těst'drīv') v. tr. test·drove (-drōv), test·driv·en (-drīv'ən), test·driv·ing, test·drives. To drive (a motor vehicle) to evaluate performance and condition.

test·er¹ (tēs'tər) n. One that tests: a battery tester; a taste tester.

tes·ter² (tēs'tər, tē'stər) n. A canopy, as over a bed or pulpit. [Middle English, from Medieval Latin testrum, from Late Latin testa, skull, from Latin, shell.]

tes·ter³ (tēs'tər) n. See teston (n., sense 2). [Alteration of TESTON.]

tes·tes (tēs'tēz) n. Plural of testis.

tes·ti·cle (tēs'tī-kəl) n. A testis, especially one contained within a scrotum.

[Middle English testicule, from Latin testiculus, diminutive of testis, testis. See TESTIS.]

tes·tic·u·lar (tē-stīk'yə-lər) adj. Of or relating to a testicle or testis.

tes·tic·u·late (tĕ-stĭk'yə-lĭt) adj. 1. Having the shape of a testicle; ovoid.

2. Botany. Having two oblong tubes, as some orchids. 3. Testicular.

tes·ti·fy (tĕs'tə-fĭ') v. test·i·fied, test·i·fy·ing, test·i·fies. — v. intr. 1. To make a declaration of truth or fact under oath; submit testimony: witnesses testifying before a grand jury. 2. To express or declare a strong belief, especially to make a declaration of faith. 3. To make a statement based on personal knowledge in support of an asserted fact; bear witness: the exhilaration of weightlessness, to which many astronauts have testified. 4. To serve as evidence: wreckage that testifies to the ferocity of the storm. — v. tr. 1. To declare publicly; make known: testifying their faith. 2. To state or affirm under oath: testified in court that he saw the defendant. 3. To bear witness to; provide evidence for. See Synonyms at indicate. [Middle English testifien, from Latin testificārī: testis, witness; see trei- in Appendix + -ficārī, -fy.] — tes'ti-fi-ca'tion (-fĭ-kā'shən) n. — tes'ti-fi'er n.

tes·ti·mo·ni·al (tĕs'tə-mō'nĕ-əl) n. 1. A statement in support of a particular truth, fact, or claim. 2. A written affirmation of another's character or worth; a personal recommendation. 3. Something given in appreciation of a person's service or achievement; a tribute. — adj. Relating to or constituting a testimony or testimonial: testimonial statements; a testimonial dinner. [Middle English, from Old French, of evidence, from Late Latin testimōniālis, of evidence, from Latin testimōnium, testimony. See TESTIMONY.]

tes·ti·mo·ny (tĕs'tə-mō'nĕ) n. pl. tes·ti·mo·nies. Abbr. test. 1. a. A declaration by a witness under oath, as that given before a court or deliberative body. b. All such declarations, spoken or written, offered in a legal case or deliberative hearing. 2. Evidence in support of a fact or an assertion; proof. 3. A public declaration regarding a religious experience. 4. a. The stone tablets inscribed with the Law of Moses. b. The ark containing these tablets. [Middle English, from Old French testimonie, from Latin testimōnium, from testis, witness. See TESTIFY.]

tes·tis (tĕs'tĭs) n. pl. tes·tes (-tĕz). 1. The reproductive gland in a male vertebrate, the source of spermatozoa and the androgens, normally occurring paired in an external scrotum in human beings and certain other mammals. 2. An analogous gland in an invertebrate animal, such as a hydra or a mollusk. [Latin, witness, testis. See TESTIFY.]

test match (tĕst mäch) n. Sports. A match in cricket or Rugby played by all-star teams from different countries.

tes·ton (tĕs'tŏn') also tes·toon (tĕ-stŏon') n. 1. A 16th-century French silver coin. 2. An English coin stamped with the image of Henry VIII's head. In this sense, also called *tester*³ [French, from Italian testone, augmentative of testa, head, from Late Latin, skull, from Latin, shell.]

tes·tos·ter·one (tĕs-tŏs'tə-rŏn') n. A white crystalline steroid hormone, C₁₉H₂₈O₂, produced primarily in the testes and responsible for the development and maintenance of male secondary sex characteristics. It is also produced synthetically for use in medical treatment. [TEST(IS) + STER(OL) + -ONE.]

test paper (tĕst pā'pər) n. 1. A paper bearing a student's work for an examination. 2. Paper saturated with a reagent, such as litmus, used in making chemical tests.

test pattern (tĕst păt'ərŋ) n. A geometric chart transmitted by a television station to assist viewers in adjusting reception.

test pilot (tĕst pī'lət) n. A pilot who flies aircraft of new or experimental design to test them.

test stand (tĕst stānd) n. A platform for static firing of rocket engines to test and determine performance characteristics.

test tube (tĕst tōōb) n. A clear, cylindrical glass tube usually open at one end and rounded at the other, used in laboratory experimentation.

test-tube (tĕst'tōōb', -tyōōb') adj. 1. Produced or cultivated in a test tube. 2. Conceived by or developed from artificial insemination.

test-tube baby (tĕst'tōōb' bā'bē) n. A baby developed from an egg that was fertilized outside the body and then implanted in the uterus of the biological or surrogate mother.

tes·tu·di·nal (tĕs-tōōd'n-əl, -tyōōd'-) adj. Testudinate.

tes·tu·di·nate (tĕs-tōōd'n-īt, -āt', -tyōōd'-) adj. Of, relating to, or resembling a turtle or tortoise. — n. A turtle or tortoise. [From New Latin Testudināta, order name, from Testūdō, Testūdin-, type genus, from Latin, tortoise. See TESTUDO.]

tes·tu·do (tĕ-stōō'dō, -styōō'-) n. pl. tes·tu·dos. 1. A Roman siege device consisting of a movable screen protecting the besiegers' approach to a wall. 2. A cover formed by the overlapping shields of besiegers and held over their heads. [Latin testūdō, from testa, shell.]

tes·ty (tĕs'tē) adj. tes·ti·er, tes·ti·est. Irritated, impatient, or exasperated; peevish: a testy cab driver; a testy refusal to help. [Alteration of Middle English testif, headstrong, from Old French testu, from teste, head, from Late Latin testa, skull. See TESTON.] —tes'ti·ly adv. —tes'ti·ness n.

WORD HISTORY: To the casual eye testy and heady seem to have no connection until one becomes less casual and notes that both words refer to the head. The head in heady is easy to see both in the form of the word and in the meanings of the word. The earliest sense, first recorded in a work composed before 1382, is “headlong, headstrong,” which is clearly a “head” sense but so is the better known current sense “apt to go to the head, intoxicating.” To see the head in testy, we must look back to the Old French word testu, the source of our word. Testu is derived from the Old French word teste, “head” (Modern French tête). In English testy developed another sense, “aggressive, contentious,” which passed into the sense we are familiar with, “irritable.”

Tet (tět) n. The lunar New Year as celebrated in Vietnam. [Vietnamese tết.]

te·tan·ic (tě-tăn'ík) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or causing tetanus. 2. Of, relating to, or causing tetany. —te·tan'i·cal·ly adv.

tet·a·nize (tět'-n-īz') v. tr. tet·a·nized, tet·a·niz·ing, tet·a·niz·es. To affect with tetanic convulsions; produce or induce tetanus in. —tet'a·ni·za'tion (-nĭ-zā'shən) n.

tet·a·nus (tět'n-əs) n. 1. An acute, often fatal disease characterized by spasmodic contraction of voluntary muscles, especially those of the neck and jaw, and caused by the toxin of the bacillus Clostridium tetani, which typically infects the body through a deep wound. Also called lockjaw 2. Physiology. A state of continuous muscular contraction, especially when induced artificially by rapidly repeated stimuli. [Middle English, from Latin, from Greek tetanos, rigid, tetanus. See ten- in Appendix.] —tet'a·nal (tět'n-əl) adj.

tet·a·ny (tět'n-ē) n. pl. tet·a·nies. An abnormal condition characterized by periodic painful muscular spasms and tremors, caused by faulty calcium metabolism and associated with diminished function of the parathyroid glands. [From TETANUS.]

tetched also teched (těcht) adj. Informal. Somewhat unbalanced mentally; touched. [Alteration (influenced by obsolete tached, of a given disposition), of TOUCHED.]

tetch·y also tech·y (těch'ē) adj. tetch·i·er, tetch·i·est. Peevish; testy: “As a critic gets older, he or she usually grows more tetchy and limited in responses” (James Wolcott). [Probably from Middle English tache, teche, blemish, from Old French tache, teche, from Vulgar Latin tacca*, from Gothic taikns, sign. See deik- in Appendix.] —tetch'i·ly adv. —tetch'i·ness n.

tête-à-tête (tāt'ə-tāt', tět'ə-tět') adv. & adj. Without the intrusion of a third person; in intimate privacy: talk tête-à-tête; a tête-à-tête supper. — n. 1. A private conversation between two persons. 2. A sofa for two, especially an S-shaped one allowing the occupants to face each other. [French : tête, head + à, to + tête, head.]

tête-bêche (tět'běsh') adj. Of, relating to, or being a pair of postage stamps printed with one upside-down in relation to the other, either deliberately or accidentally. [French : tête, head (from Old French teste, from Late Latin testa, skull); see TESTER² + bêche (short for obsolete béchevet, double head of a bed, from Old French : bes-, twice from Latin bis; see bis + chevet from Late Latin capitium, opening for the head in a tunic, from Latin, head covering, from caput, capit-, head); see TRICEPS.]

teth (tět, tēs) n. The ninth letter of the Hebrew alphabet. [Hebrew תֵּת.]

teth-er (tĕth'ər) n. 1. A rope or chain for holding an animal in place, allowing it a short radius in which to move about. 2. The extent or limit of one's resources, abilities, or endurance: drought-stricken farmers at the end of their tether. — v. tr. teth-ered, teth-er-ing, teth-ers. To fasten or restrict with or as if with a tether. [Middle English tedir, tethir, from Old Norse tjōðhr.]

teth-er-ball (tĕth'ər-bōl') n. Games. A game played by two people using the hands or paddles and a ball hung by a cord from an upright post, the objective being to wind the cord around the post.

Te-thys (tē'thĭs) n. 1. Greek Mythology. A Titaness and sea goddess who was both sister and wife of Oceanus. 2. Astronomy. The satellite of Saturn that is eighth in distance from the planet. [Greek Tēthus.]

Te-ton (tē'tōn') n. pl. Teton or Te-tons. 1. The largest and westernmost of the Sioux peoples, made up of seven groups including the Oglala, Hunkpapa, Brulé, and Miniconjou. The Teton became nomadic buffalo hunters after migrating westward in the 18th century and figured prominently in the resistance to white encroachment on the northern Great Plains. 2. A member of this people. Also called Lakota, Teton Dakota, Teton Sioux.

Teton Range (tē'tōn' rānj) A range of the Rocky Mountains in northwest Wyoming and southeast Idaho. The Tetons rise to 4,198.6 m (13,766 ft) at Grand Teton.

Teton River (tē'tōn' rĭv'ər) A river, about 230 km (143 mi) long, of north-west-central Montana flowing eastward to the Missouri River.

Teton Sioux (tē'tōn' sōō) n. See Teton.

tetr- pref. Variant of tetra-.

tet-ra (tĕt'rə) n. Any of numerous small, colorful tropical freshwater fish of the family Characidae, such as the neon tetra, found in South America and Africa, and often kept in home aquariums. Also called characin [Short for New Latin Tetragonopterini, group name : Late Latin tetragōnum, tetragon; see TETRAGON + Greek pteron, wing.]

tetra- or tetr- pref. 1. Four: tetrode. 2. Containing four of a specified kind of atom, radical, or group: tetrachloride. [Greek. See k^wetwer- in Appendix.]

tet-ra-ba-sic (tĕt'rə-bā'sĭk) adj. 1. Containing four replaceable hydrogen atoms in a molecule. Used of acids. 2. Containing four univalent basic atoms or radicals. Used of bases or salts. — tet'ra-ba-sic'i-ty (-sĭs'ĭ-tē) n.

tet-ra-bran-chi-ate (tĕt'rə-brāŋg'kē-ĭt, -āt') adj. Of, relating to, or being a cephalopod of the order Tetrabranchiata, characterized by two pairs of gills and including the chambered nautilus and many fossil species. — n. A tetrabranchiate cephalopod. [From New Latin Tetrabranchiāta, order name : TETRA- + Greek brankhia.]

tet-ra-caine (tĕt'rə-kān') n. A crystalline compound, C₁₅H₂₄N₂O₂, related to procaine and used as a local anesthetic.

tet·ra·chlo·ride (tět'rə-klôr'id', -klôr'-) n. A chemical compound containing four chlorine atoms per molecule.

tet·ra·chord (tět'rə-kôrd') n. Music. A series of four diatonic tones encompassing the interval of a perfect fourth. [Greek tetrakhordon, from neuter of tetrakhordos, four-stringed : tetra-, tetra- + khordē, string; see gherə- in Appendix.]
—tet'ra·chor'dal (-kôr'dl) adj.

te·trac·id (tě-träs'id) adj. 1. Capable of reacting with four molecules of a monobasic acid. Used of a base. 2. Containing four replaceable hydrogen atoms. Used of an acid or acid salt. — n. An acid containing four replaceable hydrogen atoms.

tet·ra·cy·cline (tět'rə-sī'klēn', -klīn) n. 1. A yellow crystalline compound, $C_{22}H_{24}N_2O_8$, synthesized or derived from certain microorganisms of the genus Streptomyces and used as a broad-spectrum antibiotic. 2. An antibiotic, such as chlortetracycline and oxytetracycline, having the same basic structure. [TETRA- + CYCL(IC) + -INE².]

tet·rad (tět'räd') n. 1. A group or set of four. 2. A tetravalent atom, radical, or element. 3. Biology. a. A group of four chromatids formed from each of a pair of homologous chromosomes that split longitudinally during the prophase of meiosis. b. Botany. A group of four cells, as of spores or pollen grains formed by division of one mother cell. [Greek tetras, tetrad-. See k^wetwer- in Appendix.]

tet·ra·dac·ty·lous (tět'rə-dāk'tə-ləs) adj. Zoology. Having four digits or claws on each extremity.

te·trad·y·mite (tě-träd'ə-mīt') n. A steel-gray mineral, chiefly Bi_2Te_2S . [German Tetradymit, from Late Greek tetradumos, fourfold (from the double twin crystals in which it usually is found) : Greek tetra-, tetra- + didumos, double; see dwo- in Appendix.]

tet·ra·dy·na·mous (tět'rə-dī'nə-məs) adj. Botany. Having six stamens, two of which are shorter than the others, as in most plants of the mustard family. [TETRA- + Greek dynamis, strength; see DYNAMIC + -OUS.]

tet·ra·eth·yl lead also tet·ra·eth·yl·lead (tět'rə-ěth'əl-lěd') n. A colorless, poisonous, oily liquid, $Pb(C_2H_5)_4$, used in gasoline for internal-combustion engines as an antiknock agent.

tetraethyl pyrophosphate (tět'rə-ěth'əl-lěd' pī'rə-fös'fāt') n. TEPP.

tet·ra·gon (tět'rə-gŏn') n. A four-sided polygon; a quadrilateral. [Late Latin tetragōnum, from Greek tetragōnon : tetra-, tetra- + -gonon, -gon.] —te·trag'o·nal (tě-träg'ə-nəl) adj. —te·trag'o·nal·ly adv.

Tet·ra·gram·ma·ton (tět'rə-grām'ə-tŏn') n. The four Hebrew letters usually transliterated as YHWH or JHVH (Yahweh or Jehovah), used as a biblical proper name for God. [Middle English Tetragramaton, from Greek tetragrammaton, four-letter word, from neuter of tetragrammatos, four-lettered : tetra-, tetra- + gramma, grammat-, letter; see gerbh- in Appendix.]

tet·ra·he·dra (tět' rə-hē'drə) n. A plural of tetrahedron.

tet·ra·he·dral (tět' rə-hē'drəl) adj. 1. Of or relating to a tetrahedron.

2. Having four faces. —tet'ra·he'dral·ly adv.

tet·ra·he·drite (tět' rə-hē'drīt') n. A grayish-black mineral, essentially $(\text{CuFe})_{12}\text{Sb}_4\text{S}_{13}$, often containing other elements, and used as an ore of copper. [German Tetraëdrit, from Greek tetraedros, four-faced (from its four-faced crystals). See TETRAHEDRON.]

tet·ra·he·dron (tět' rə-hē'drən) n. pl. tet·ra·he·drons or tet·ra·he·dra (-drə). A polyhedron with four faces. [Late Greek tetraedron, from Greek, neuter of tetraedros, four-faced : tetra-, tetra- + hedra, face of a geometric solid; see sed- in Appendix.]

tet·ra·hy·dro·can·nab·i·nol (tět' rə-hī'drə-kə-năb'ə-nôl', -nôl', -nôl') n. THC.

tet·ra·hy·drox·y (tět' rə-hī-drök'sē) adj. Having four hydroxyl groups in a molecule.

te·tral·o·gy (tě-trăl'ə-jē, -trôl'-) n. pl. te·tral·o·gies. 1. A series of four related dramatic, operatic, or literary works. 2. Medicine. A complex of four symptoms. [Greek tetralogia : tetra-, tetra- + -logia, -logy.]

tetralogy of Fal·lot (tě-trăl'ə-jē üv fă-lô') n. A congenital malformation of the heart characterized by a defect in the ventricular septum, misplacement of the origin of the aorta, narrowing of the pulmonary artery, and enlargement of the right ventricle. [After Étienne Falot (1850-1911), French physician.]

tet·ra·mer (tět' rə-mər) n. A polymer consisting of four identical monomers. —tet'ra·mer'ic (-mēr'ik) adj.

te·tram·er·ous (tě-trăm'ər-əs) adj. 1. Having or consisting of four similar parts. 2. Botany. Having flower parts, such as sepals, petals, and stamens, in sets of four, as in the evening primrose. —te·tram'er·ism n.

te·tram·e·ter (tě-trăm'ĭ-tər) n. 1. A line of verse consisting of four metrical feet. 2. A unit consisting of two pairs of feet in classical prosody. [Late Latin tetrametrus, from Greek tetrametron, from neuter of tetrametros, having four measures : tetra-, tetra- + -metron, measure; see -METER.] —te·tram'e·ter adj.

tet·ra·ploid (tět' rə-ploid') Genetics. adj. Having four times the haploid number of chromosomes in the cell nucleus: a tetraploid species. — n. A tetraploid individual. —tet'ra·ploi·dy n.

tet·ra·pod (tět' rə-pôd') adj. Having four feet, legs, or leglike appendages. — n. A vertebrate animal with four feet, legs, or leglike appendages. —tet'ra·pod' n.

te·trap·ter·ous (tě-trăp'tər-əs) adj. Having four wings, as certain insects.

tet·rarch (tět'rărk', tē'trărk') n. 1. a. A subordinate ruler. b. One of four joint rulers. 2. A governor of one of four divisions of a country or province, especially in the ancient Roman Empire. 3. The commander of a subdivision of a phalanx in ancient Greece. [Middle English tetrarche, a Roman tetrarch, from Old French, from Late Latin tetrarcha, from Latin tetrarchēs, from Greek tetrarkhēs: tetra-, tetra- + -arkhēs, -arch.] —te-trar'chic (tĕ-trär'kĭk, tĕ-) adj.

tet-rar-chy (tĕt'rär'kĕ, tĕ'trär'-) also tet-rar-chate (-kāt', -kĭt) n. pl.

tet-rar-chies also tet-rar-chates. 1. The area ruled by a tetrarch. 2. a. Joint rule by four governors. b. The four governors so ruling.

tet-ra-spo-ran-gi-um (tĕt'rə-spə-rän'jĕ-əm) n. pl. tet-ra-spo-ran-gi-a (-jĕ-ə). A unicellular sporangium found in certain red algae in which four tetraspores are produced from meiosis.

tet-ra-spore (tĕt'rə-spōr', -spōr') n. One of four spores produced from a tetrasporangium. —tet'ra-spor'ic (-spōr'ĭk, -spōr'-) adj.

tet-ra-tom-ic (tĕt'rə-tōm'ĭk) adj. 1. Having four atoms per molecule. 2. Having four replaceable univalent atoms or radicals.

tet-ra-valent (tĕt'rə-vālĕnt) adj. Chemistry. Having valence 4.

tet-raz-zi-ni also Tetrazzini (tĕt'rə-zĕ'nĕ) adj. Made with noodles, mushrooms, and almonds in a cream sauce topped with cheese: turkey tetrazzini. [After Luisa Tetrazzini (1871-1940), Italian operatic soprano.]

tet-rode (tĕt'rōd') n. A four-element electron tube containing an anode, a cathode, a control grid, and an additional electrode.

te-tro-do-tox-in (tĕ-trō'də-tōk'sĭn) n. A potent neurotoxin, C₁₁H₁₇N₃O₃, found in many puffers and certain newts. [New Latin Tetrodon, genus name (Greek tetra-, tetra- + New Latin -odon, -odon) + TOXIN.]

te-trox-ide (tĕ-trōk'sĭd') n. A chemical compound containing four oxygen atoms per molecule.

tet-ryl (tĕt'rəl) n. A yellow crystalline compound, C₇H₅N₅O₈, used as a detonator.

tet-ter (tĕt'ər) n. Chiefly Southern U.S. Any of various skin diseases, such as eczema, psoriasis, or herpes, characterized by eruptions and itching. [Middle English teter, from Old English. See der- in Appendix.]

Tet-zel or Te-zel (tĕt'səl), Johann. 1465?-1519. German monk who was appointed to sell indulgences to raise funds for the Catholic Church. His simplistic and unorthodox sermons, regarded by many as symptomatic of the abuses within the Church, provoked Martin Luther to write his 95 theses (1517).

tet-ter-bush (tĕt'ər-bōōsh') n. An evergreen shrub (Lyonia lucida) of the southeast United States, having sharply angled branches, leathery, dark green leaves, and white to pink flowers.

Teut. abbr. Teuton; Teutonic.

Teu-to-bur-ger Wald (tōō'tə-bûr'gər wōld', toi'tō-bōōr'gər vālt') A range of hills in northwest Germany between the upper Ems and the Weser rivers. A monument near Detmold commemorates the victory of Arminius over Roman legions in A.D. 9.

Teu·ton (tōōt'n, tyōōt'n) n. Abbr. Teut. 1. A member of an ancient people, probably of Germanic or Celtic origin, who lived in Jutland until about 100 B.C.

2. A member of any of the peoples speaking a Germanic language, especially a German. [Latin Teutōnī, Teutons. See teutā- in Appendix.]

Teu·ton·ic (tōō-tōn'ik, tyōō-) adj. Abbr. Teut. 1. Of or relating to the ancient Teutons. 2. Of or relating to the Germanic languages or their speakers. — n. Abbr. Teut. Germanic. [Latin Teutōnicus, from Teutōnī, Teutons. See TEUTON.]

Teu·ton·ism (tōōt'n-iz'əm, tyōōt'-) also Teu·ton·i·cism (tōō-tōn'i-siz'əm, tyōō-) n. 1. A German practice or idiom; a Germanism. 2. German character or civilization. — Teu'ton·ist n.

Teu·ton·ize (tōōt'n-iz', tyōōt'-) v. tr. Teu·ton·ized, Teu·ton·iz·ing, Teu·ton·iz·es. To make German; Germanize. — Teu'ton·i·za'tion (-izā'shən) n.

Te·vet also Te·bet or Te·beth (tā'vās, tē-vět') n. The fourth month of the year in the Jewish calendar. See Table at calendar. [Hebrew ṭēbēt, from Akkadian ṭebētu, the month Tebetu (December/January).]

Te·wa (tā'wə, tē'wə) n. pl. Tewa or Te·was. 1. a. A group of Pueblo peoples of northern New Mexico. b. A member of any of these peoples. 2. The group of Tanoan languages spoken by the Tewa.

Tewkes·bur·y (tōōks'bēr'ē, -bə-rē, -brē, tyōōks'-) A municipal borough of west-central England on the Severn River north-northeast of Gloucester. Edward IV's Yorkist forces defeated the Lancastrians here (1471) in the final battle of the Wars of the Roses. Population, 9,554.

Tewks·bur·y (tōōks'bēr'ē, -bə-rē, tyōōks'-) A town of northeast Massachusetts south of Lowell. It is mainly residential. Population, 27,266.

Tex. abbr. Texas.

Tex·ar·kan·a (tēk'sār-kān'ə) A city of southwest Arkansas on the Texas border southwest of Little Rock. Population, 22,631. It is adjacent to Texarkana, Texas, in the northeast part of that state. Population, 31,656. The twin cities form a trade and transportation center for the surrounding region.

tex·as (tēk'səs) n. Nautical. A structure on a river steamboat containing the pilothouse and the officers' quarters. [After Texas.]

Tex·as (tēk'səs) Abbr. TX, Tex. A state of the south-central United States. It was admitted as the 28th state in 1845. Explored by the Spanish in the 16th and 17th centuries, the region became a province of Mexico in the early 19th century. Texans won their independence in 1836 after a gallant but losing stand at the Alamo in February and a defeat of Santa Ana's forces at the Battle of San Jacinto (April 21). Denied admission as a state by antislavery forces in the U.S. Congress, the leaders of Texas formed an independent republic that lasted until 1845. Austin is the capital and Houston the largest city. Population, 17,059,805. — Tex'an adj. & n.

Texas bluebonnet (tĕk'səs blōō'bŏn'īt) n. See bluebonnet (n., sense 1).

Texas City (tĕk'səs sīt'ē) A city of southeast Texas, an industrial suburb of Galveston on Galveston Bay. Population, 40,822.

Texas fever (tĕk'səs fē'vər) n. An infectious disease of cattle first identified in Texas, characterized by high fever, anemia, and emaciation and caused by a parasitic protozoan (Babesia bigemina) that is transmitted by cattle ticks.

Texas leaguer (tĕk'səs lē'gər) n. Baseball. A fly ball that drops between an infielder and an outfielder for a hit. [After the Texas League, a baseball minor league.]

Texas Ranger (tĕk'səs rān'jər) n. 1. A member of a division of the Texas state highway patrol. 2. A member of a mounted force of Texans organized in 1835 and active in maintaining order on the frontier.

Texas tower (tĕk'səs tou'ər) n. An offshore radar tower. [After Texas (from its resemblance to an offshore oil rig along the coast of Texas).]

Tex-el (tĕk'səl, tĕs'əl) An island of northwest Netherlands in the North Sea in the southwest Frisian Islands. It is the largest of the West Frisian Islands and a popular resort area.

Tex-Mex (tĕks'mĕks') adj. Informal. Of or characterized by a blend of Mexican and southwest U.S. cultural elements: Tex-Mex music; Tex-Mex food.

text (tĕkst) n. 1. a. The original words of something written or printed, as opposed to a paraphrase, translation, revision, or condensation. b. The words of a speech appearing in print. 2. The body of a printed work as distinct from headings and illustrative matter on a page or from front and back matter in a book. 3. One of the editions or forms of a written work: After examining all three manuscripts, he published a new text of the poem. 4. A passage from the Scriptures or another authoritative source chosen for the subject of a discourse or cited for support in argument. 5. A passage from a written work used as the starting point of a discussion. 6. A subject; a topic. 7. A textbook. [Middle English texte, from Old French, from Late Latin, written account, from Latin, structure, context, body of a passage, from past participle of texere, to weave, fabricate. See teks- in Appendix.]

text-book (tĕkst'boōk') n. A book used in schools or colleges for the formal study of a subject. — adj. Being a characteristic example of its kind; classic: a textbook case of schizophrenia. — text'book'ish adj.

text edition (tĕkst ĭ-dĭsh'ən) n. An edition of a book designed especially for use in schools or colleges.

tex-tile (tĕks'tĭl', -təl) n. 1. A cloth, especially one manufactured by weaving or knitting; a fabric. 2. Fiber or yarn for weaving or knitting into cloth. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a textile weave; textile mills. [Latin, from neuter of textilis, woven, from textus, past participle of texere, to weave. See TEXT.] tex·tu·al (tĕks'chōō-əl) adj. Of, relating to, or conforming to a text.

—tex'tu·al·ly adv.

textual criticism (tĕks'chōō-əl krīt'ī-siz'əm) n. 1. The study of manuscripts or printings to determine the original or most authoritative form of a text, especially of a piece of literature. 2. Literary criticism stressing close reading and detailed analysis of a particular text.

tex·tu·al·ism (tĕks'chōō-əl-līz'əm) n. 1. Strict adherence to a text, especially of the Scriptures. 2. Textual criticism, especially of the Scriptures. —tex'tu·al·ist n.

tex·tu·ar·y (tĕks'chōō-ēr'ē) adj. Of, relating to, or contained in a text; textual. — n. pl. tex·tu·ar·ies. A specialist in the study of the Scriptures.

tex·ture (tĕks'chər) n. 1. A structure of interwoven fibers or other elements. 2. The basic structure or composition, especially of something complex or fine: the orderly texture of matter as seen through an electron microscope. 3. a. The appearance and feel of a surface: the smooth texture of soap; the rough texture of plowed fields. b. A rough or grainy surface quality: Brick walls give a room texture. 4. Distinctive or identifying character or characteristics: “the haunting contours and textures of the physical world” (Joyce Carol Oates). — v. tr. tex·tured, tex·tur·ing, tex·tures. To give texture to, especially to impart desirable surface characteristics to: texture a printing plate by lining and stippling it. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin textūra, from textus, past participle of texere, to weave. See TEXT.] —tex'tur·al adj. —tex'tur·al·ly adv. —tex'tured adj.

tex·tur·ize (tĕks'chə-rīz') v. tr. tex·tur·ized, tex·tur·iz·ing, tex·tur·iz·es.

To give a desired texture to by a special process: texturize polyester yarn. —tex'tur·iz'er n.

Te·zel (tĕt'səl), Johann. See Johann Tetzel.

T.F. abbr. Territorial Force.

tfr. abbr. Transfer.

TG abbr. Transformational grammar.

t.g. abbr. Type genus.

TGIF abbr. Thank God it's Friday.

T-group (tē'grōōp') n. A group engaged in sensitivity training in sessions with a trained leader. [t(raining) group.]

tgt. abbr. Target.

Th¹ The symbol for the element thorium.

Th² abbr. Bible. Thessalonians.

Th. abbr. Thursday.

-th¹ suff. Variant of -eth¹.

-th² suff. 1. Act; process: spilth. 2. State; quality: dearth. [Middle English, from Old English -thu, n. suff.]

-th³ also -eth suff. Used to form ordinal numbers: millionth. [Middle English -the, from Old English -tha, -the.]

Thack·er·ay (thăk'ə-rē, thăk'rē), William Makepeace. 1811-1863. British writer whose novels, including Vanity Fair (1847-1848), explore the ethical and social pretensions of largely amoral Victorian characters. —Thack'er·ay·an adj.

Thai (tī) n. pl. Thai or Thais. 1. a. A native or inhabitant of Thailand. b. A member of a Tai-speaking people who constitute the predominant ethnic group of Thailand. 2. The language of the Tai family that is the official language of Thailand. 3. Tai. — adj. 1. Of or relating to Thailand or its peoples, languages, or cultures. 2. Tai.

Thai·land (tī'länd', -lənd) Formerly Si·am (sī-ăm'). Abbr. Thai. A country of southeast Asia on the Gulf of Thailand (formerly the Gulf of Siam), an arm of the South China Sea. A Thai state was first established in the region in the mid-14th century but was often dominated by other powers during the succeeding centuries. It became a constitutional monarchy in 1932. Thailand was occupied by the Japanese in World War II and was a strong supporter of the United States in the Vietnam War. Bangkok is the capital and the largest city. Population, 49,515,074.

thal·a·men·ceph·a·lon (thăl'ə-mĕn-sĕf'ə-lŏn') n. Anatomy. See dienceph·alon. [THALAM(US) + ENCEPHALON.] —thal'a·men'ce·phal'ic (-sə-făl'ik) adj.

thal·a·mus (thăl'ə-məs) n. pl. thal·a·mi (-mī'). 1. Anatomy. A large ovoid mass of gray matter situated in the posterior part of the forebrain that relays sensory impulses to the cerebral cortex. 2. Botany. The receptacle of a flower. [Latin, inner chamber, from Greek thalamos.] —tha·lam'ic (thə-lăm'ik) adj.
—tha·lam'i·cal·ly adv.

thal·as·se·mi·a (thăl'ə-sĕ'mĕ-ə) n. An inherited form of anemia occurring chiefly among people of Mediterranean descent, caused by faulty synthesis of part of the hemoglobin molecule. [Greek thalassa, sea + -EMIA.]
—thal'as·se'mic adj.

tha·las·sic (thə-lăs'ik) adj. Of or relating to seas or oceans, especially smaller or inland seas. [French thalassique, from Greek thalassa, sea.]

thal·as·soc·ra·cy (thăl'ə-sŏk'rə-sĕ) n. pl. thal·as·soc·ra·cies. Naval or commercial supremacy on the seas. [Greek thalassokratia : thalassa, sea + -kratia, -cracy.] —tha·las'so·crat' (thə-lăs'ə-krăt') n.

tha·ler (tä'lər) n. Variant of taler.

Tha·les (thā'lēz), 624?-546? B.C. Greek philosopher who is traditionally considered the first Western philosopher and a founder of geometry and abstract astronomy. He maintained that matter is composed of water. —Tha·le'sian (thā-lē'zhən) adj.

Tha·li·a (thə-lī'ə, thā'lē-ə, thāl'yə) n. Greek Mythology. 1. The Muse of comedy and pastoral poetry. 2. One of the three Graces.

tha·lid·o·mide (thə-līd'ə-mīd') n. A sedative and hypnotic drug, C₁₃H₁₀N₂O₄, withdrawn from sale after it was found to cause severe birth defects, especially of the limbs, when taken during pregnancy. [(PH)THAL(IC ACID) + (IM)ID(E) + (I)MIDE.]

thall- pref. Variant of thallo-.

thal·li (thāl'i) n. A plural of thallus.

thal·lic (thāl'ik) adj. Of, relating to, or containing thallium, especially with valence 3.

thal·li·um (thāl'ē-əm) n. Symbol TI A soft, malleable, highly toxic metallic element, used in photocells, infrared detectors, low-melting glass, and formerly in rodent and ant poisons. Atomic number 81; atomic weight 204.37; melting point 303.5°C; boiling point 1,457°C; specific gravity 11.85; valence 1, 3. [THALL(O)-(from its green spectral line) + -IUM.]

thallo- or thall- pref. 1. a. Young, green shoot: thallium. b. Thallus: thalloid. 2. Thallium: thallous. [Greek, from thallos. See THALLUS.]

thal·loid (thāl'oid') also thal·loi·dal (thə-loīd'l) adj. Of, resembling, or constituting a thallus.

thal·lo·phyte (thāl'ə-fīt') n. Any of a group of plantlike organisms showing no differentiation into stem, root, or leaf, including the algae, fungi, and lichens, formerly regarded as constituting a major division of the plant kingdom.

—thal'lo·phyt'ic (-fīt'ik) adj.

thal·lous (thāl'əs) adj. Of, relating to, or containing thallium, especially with valence 1.

thal·lus (thāl'əs) n. pl. thal·li (thāl'i) or thal·lus·es. A plant body undifferentiated into stem, root, or leaf. [Latin, green stalk, from Greek thallos, from thal·lein, to sprout.]

Thames (tĕmz) 1. A river, about 257 km (160 mi) long, of southeast Ontario, Canada, flowing southwest to Lake St. Clair. In the War of 1812 Gen. William Henry Harrison defeated British and Native American forces in the Battle of the Thames (October 5, 1813). 2. A river of southern England flowing about 338 km (210 mi) eastward to a wide estuary on the North Sea. Navigable for large ships as far as London, it is the principal commercial waterway of the country. In its upper course above Oxford it is often called Isis. 3. (thāmz, tāmz) A tidal estuary of southeastern Connecticut flowing about 24 km (15 mi) southward to Long Island Sound.

Tham·muz (tä'mōöz') n. Variant of Tammuz.

than (thăn, thən) conj. Used to introduce the second element or clause of an unequal comparison: She is a better athlete than I. — prep. Usage Problem. In comparison with: disliked no one more than her. [Middle English, from Old English thanne, than. See to- in Appendix.]

USAGE NOTE: Since the 18th century grammarians have insisted that than should be regarded as a conjunction in all its uses, so that a sentence such as Bill is taller than Tom should be construed as an elliptical version of the sentence Bill is taller than Tom is. According to this view, the case of a pronoun following than is determined by whether the pronoun serves as the subject or object of the verb that is “understood.” Thus, the standard rule requires Pat is taller than I (not me) on the assumption that this sentence is elliptical for Pat is taller than I am but allows The news surprised Pat more than me, since this sentence is taken as elliptical for The news surprised Pat more than it surprised me. However, than is quite commonly treated as a preposition when followed by an isolated noun phrase, and as such occurs with a pronoun in the objective case: John is taller than me. Though this usage is still widely regarded as incorrect, it is predominant in speech and has reputable literary precedent. It is also consistent with the fact that than is clearly treated as a preposition in the than whom construction, as in a poet than whom (not than who) no one has a dearer place in the hearts of his countrymen. Still, the writer who risks a sentence such as Mary is taller than him in formal writing must be prepared to defend the usage against objections of critics who are unlikely to be dissuaded from their conviction that the usage is incorrect. • Comparatives using as... as can be analyzed in a parallel way to those using than. Traditional grammarians insist that I am not as tall as he is the only correct form, and though both literary precedent and syntactic arguments can be marshaled in support of the analysis of the second as as a preposition (which would license I am not as tall as him), one should treat this use of as as a conjunction in formal writing. See Usage Note at as¹.

Tha·na (tä'nə) A city of west-central India, a manufacturing suburb of Bombay. Population, 309,897.

than·age (thā'nij) n. 1. The rank, jurisdiction, or office of a thane. 2. The land held by a thane.

than·a·tol·o·gy (thän'ə-töl'ə-jē) n. The study of death and dying, especially in their psychological and social aspects. [Greek thanatos, death + -LOGY.]

—than'a-to-log'i-cal (-tl-ōj'ī-kəl) adj. —than'a-tol'o-gist n.

than·a·top·sis (thän'ə-töp'sis) n. A meditation upon death. [Greek thanatos, death + -OPSIS.]

Than·a·tos (thän'ə-tōs') n. 1. Death as a personification or as a philosophical notion. 2. Psychiatry. See death instinct (n., sense 1). [Greek.]

—than'a-tot'ic (-töt'ik) adj.

thane (thān) n. 1. a. A freeman granted land by the king in return for military service in Anglo-Saxon England. b. A man ranking above an ordinary freeman and below a nobleman in Anglo-Saxon England. 2. A feudal lord or baron in Scotland. [Middle English, from Old English thegn. See tek- in Appendix.]

—thane/ship' n.

Than-et (thăn'it), Isle of. A peninsula of southeast England on the North Sea separated from the mainland by arms of the Stour River.

thank (thăngk) v. tr. thanked, thank-ing, thanks. 1. To express gratitude to; give thanks to: He thanked her for the gift. 2. To hold responsible; credit: We can thank the parade for this traffic jam. [Middle English thanken, from Old English thancian. See tong- in Appendix.]

thank·ful (thăngk'fəl) adj. 1. Aware and appreciative of a benefit; grateful. 2. Expressive of gratitude: a thankful smile. —thank/ful-ly adv. —thank/ful-ness n.

thank-less (thăngk'līs) adj. 1. Not feeling or showing gratitude; ungrateful. 2. Not likely to be appreciated: a thankless job. —thank/less-ly adv. —thank/less-ness n.

thanks (thăngks) pl.n. 1. Grateful feelings or thoughts; gratitude: a heart full of thanks for our escape. 2. An expression of gratitude: gave thanks to God; a note of thanks to a contributor. — interj. Used to express thanks. —idioms. no thanks to. Without the benefit of help from: finally found the house, no thanks to these confusing directions. thanks to. On account of; because of: “our national good fortune in having avoided, thanks to the religion clauses of the First Amendment, the dismal possibilities of religious censorship” (Benno C. Schmidt, Jr.).

thanks-giv-ing (thăngks-giv'ing) n. 1. An act of giving thanks; an expression of gratitude, especially to God: a hymn of thanksgiving. 2. Thanksgiving. Thanksgiving Day.

Thanksgiving cactus (thăngks-giv'ing kăk'təs) n. A Brazilian epiphytic cactus (Schlumbergera truncata) having irregular flowers and jointed flat stems with sharply serrate margins. Also called crab cactus [From the time of year at which it blooms.]

Thanksgiving Day (thăngks-giv'ing dā) n. 1. The fourth Thursday of November, observed as a legal holiday in the United States to commemorate the feast held at Plymouth in 1621 by the Pilgrim colonists and members of the Wampanoag people and marked by the giving of thanks to God for harvest and health. 2. The second Monday of October, celebrated in Canada by the giving of thanks to God for harvest and health.

thank-wor·thy (thăngk'wûr'thē) adj. thank-wor·thi·er, thank-wor·thi·est. Worthy of or deserving thanks.

thank-you (thăngk'yōō') n. An expression of gratitude: said their thank-yous and departed.

thank-you-ma'am (thǎngk'yōō-mǎm') n. A bump or depression in a road.

Thant (thǎnt, thǎnt), U. 1909-1974. Burmese diplomat who served as the secretary-general of the United Nations (1961-1971).

Thap·sus (thǎp'səs) An ancient city of northern Africa on the Mediterranean Sea in present-day Tunisia. Julius Caesar defeated Pompey's forces here in 46 B.C.

Thar Desert (tǎr dǛz'ǎrt) also Great In·di·an Desert (ĩn'dē-ən) A sandy region of northwest India and southeast Pakistan between the Indus and Sutlej river valleys.

Tharp (thǎrp), Twyla. Born 1941. American dancer and choreographer whose works, such as Deuce Coupe (1973), are drawn from several dance traditions.

Thá·sos (thǎ'sōs', thǎ'sōs) An island of northeast Greece in the northern Aegean Sea. It was colonized by Phoenicians and later ruled by Athens, Rome, Byzantium, and Turkey. The island was ceded to Greece in 1913.

that (thǎt, thət) pron. pl. those (thōz). 1. a. Used to refer to the one designated, implied, mentioned, or understood: What kind of soup is that? b. Used to refer to the one, thing, or type specified as follows: The relics found were those of an earlier time. c. Used to refer to the event, action, or time just mentioned: After that, he became a recluse. 2. Used to indicate the farther or less immediate one: That is for sale; this is not. 3. Used to emphasize the idea of a previously expressed word or phrase: He was fed up, and that to a great degree. 4. The one, kind, or thing; something: She followed the calling of that she loved. 5. those. Used to indicate an unspecified number of people: those who refused to join. 6. Used as a relative pronoun to introduce a clause, especially a restrictive clause: the car that has the flat tire. 7. a. In, on, by, or with which: each summer that the concerts are performed. b. According to what; insofar as: He never knew her, that I know of. — adj. pl. those. 1. Being the one singled out, implied, or understood: that place; those mountains. 2. Being the one further removed or less obvious: That route is shorter than this one. — adv. 1. To such an extent or degree: Is your problem that complicated? 2. To a high degree; very: didn't take what he said that seriously. — conj. 1. Used to introduce a noun clause that is usually the subject or object of a verb or a predicate nominative: "That contemporary American English is exuberantly vigorous is undeniable" (William Arrowsmith). 2. Used to introduce a subordinate clause stating a result, wish, purpose, reason, or cause: She hoped that he would arrive on time. He was saddened that she felt so little for him. 3. a. Used to introduce an anticipated subordinate clause following the expletive it occurring as subject of the verb: It is true that dental work is expensive. b. Used to introduce a subordinate clause modifying an adverb or adverbial expression: will go anywhere that they are welcome. c. Used to introduce a subordinate clause that is joined to an adjective or noun as a complement: was sure that she was right; the belief that rates will rise soon. 4. Used to introduce an elliptical exclamation of desire: Oh, that I were rich! — idioms. at that. 1. In addition;

besides: lived in one room, and a small room at that. 2. Regardless of what has been said or implied: a long shot, but she just might win at that. that is. To explain more clearly; in other words: on the first floor, that is, the floor at street level. [Middle English, from Old English thæt. See to- in Appendix.]

USAGE NOTE: The standard rule is that that should be used only to introduce a restrictive (or “defining”) relative clause, which serves to identify the entity being talked about; in this use it should never be preceded by a comma. Thus, we say The house that Jack built has been torn down, where the clause that Jack built tells which house was torn down, or I am looking for a book that is easy to read, where that is easy to read tells what kind of book is desired. Only which is to be used with nonrestrictive (or “nondefining”) clauses, which give additional information about an entity that has already been identified in the context; in this use, which is always preceded by a comma. Thus, we say The students in Chemistry 10 have been complaining about the textbook, which (not that) is hard to follow. The clause which is hard to follow does not indicate which text is being complained about; even if it were omitted, we would know that the phrase the textbook refers to the text in Chemistry 10. The use of that in nonrestrictive clauses like this, though once common in writing and still frequent in speech, is best avoided in formal style. • Some grammarians have argued that symmetry requires that which should be used only in nonrestrictive clauses, as that is to be used only in restrictive clauses. Thus, they suggest that we should avoid sentences such as I need a book which will tell me all about city gardening, where the clause which will tell me all about city gardening indicates which sort of book is needed. Such use of which is useful where two or more relative clauses are joined by and or or, as in It is a philosophy in which the common man may find solace and which many have found reason to praise. Which is also preferred to introduce a restrictive relative clause when the preceding phrase itself contains a that, as in I can only give you that which I don’t need (not that that I don’t need) or We want to assign only that book which will be most helpful (preferred to that book that will be most helpful). • That may be omitted in a relative clause when the subject of the clause is different from the referent of the phrase preceding the clause. Thus, we may say either the book that I was reading or the book I was reading, where the subject of the clause (I) is not the referent of the phrase the book. Omission of that in these cases has sometimes been described as incorrect, but the practice is extremely common and has ample precedent in reputable writing. • There have also been occasional objections to the omission of that in its use to introduce a subordinate clause, as in I think we should try again. But this usage is entirely idiomatic and is in fact favored with some of the verb phrases that can introduce such clauses: thus, one would more normally write I take it she has passed the test than I take it that she has passed the test. That should not be omitted, however, when the subordinate clause begins with an adverbial phrase or any element other than the subject: She said that under no circumstances would she allow us to skip the meeting. The book argues that eventually the housing supply will increase. This last sentence would be ambiguous if that were omitted, since the adverb eventually could then be construed as modifying either argues or will increase. See Usage Note at doubt. See Usage Note at this. See Usage Note at whatever. See Usage Note at which. See Usage Note at who.

that·a·way (thăt'ə-wā') adv. Southern U.S. & Midland U.S. That way. [Alteration of that way.]

REGIONAL NOTE: The history of the English language is full of examples of epenthesis, the addition to a word of a vowel or consonant not part of the original word. This process is still active in regional dialects. Two examples now used chiefly in Southern and Midland dialects are thisaway and thataway, which show epenthetic vowels intruding between this way and that way. Another highly excoriated instance of vowel epenthesis, not regional, is the pronunciation of athlete as (ăth'ə-lēt').

thatch (thăch) n. 1. Plant stalks or foliage, such as reeds or palm fronds, used for roofing. 2. Something, such as a thick growth of hair on the head, that resembles thatch. 3. Dead turf, as on a lawn. — v. tr. thatched, thatch·ing, thatch·es. To cover with or as if with thatch. [Middle English thacche, alteration (influenced by thecchen, thacchen, to thatch, from Old English theccan, to cover), of thak, from Old English thæc. See (s)teg- in Appendix.] —thatch'er n. —thatch'y adj.

Thatch (thăch), Edward. See Edward Teach.

Thatch·er (thăch'ər), Margaret Hilda. Born 1925. British Conservative politician who served as prime minister (1979-1990). Her administration was marked by anti-inflationary measures, a brief war in the Falkland Islands (1982), and the passage of a poll tax.

thau·ma·tol·o·gy (thô'mə-tōl'ə-jē) n. pl. thau·ma·tol·o·gies. 1. The study of miracles. 2. A discourse on miracles. [Greek thauma, thaumat-, wonder + -LOGY.]

thau·ma·turge (thô'mə-tûrj') also thau·ma·tur·gist (-tûr'jĭst) n. A performer of miracles or magic feats. [Greek thaumatourgos : thauma, thaumat-, wonder + ergon, work; see werg- in Appendix.]

thau·ma·tur·gy (thô'mə-tûr'jē) n. The working of miracles or magic feats. —thau'ma·tur'gic, thau'ma·tur'gi·cal adj.

thaw (thô) v. thawed, thaw·ing, thaws. — v. intr. 1. To change from a frozen solid to a liquid by gradual warming. See Synonyms at melt. 2. To lose stiffness, numbness, or impermeability by being warmed: left the frozen turkey out until it thawed; thawed out by sitting next to the stove. 3. To become warm enough for snow and ice to melt. 4. To become less formal, aloof, or reserved. — v. tr. To cause to thaw. — n. 1. The process of thawing. 2. A period of warm weather during which ice and snow melt. 3. A relaxation of reserve, restraints, or tensions. [Middle English thawen, from Old English thawian.]

Thay·er (thā'ər, thâr), Sylvanus. 1785-1872. American soldier and educator who was superintendent (1817-1833) of the United States Military Academy at West Point, New York.

Th.B. abbr. Latin. Theologiae Baccalaureus (Bachelor of Theology).

THC (tē'äch-sē') n. A compound, C₂₁H₃₀O₂, obtained from cannabis or made synthetically, that is the primary intoxicant in marijuana and hashish.

[T(ETRA)H(YDRO)C(ANNABINOL).]

Th.D. abbr. Latin. Theologiae Doctor (Doctor of Theology).

the¹ (thē before a vowel; thə before a consonant) def.art. 1. a. Used before singular or plural nouns and noun phrases that denote particular, specified persons or things: the baby; the dress I wore. b. Used before a noun, and generally stressed, to emphasize one of a group or type as the most outstanding or prominent: considered Lake Shore Drive to be the neighborhood to live in these days. c. Used to indicate uniqueness: the Prince of Wales; the moon. d. Used before nouns that designate natural phenomena or points of the compass: the weather; a wind from the south. e. Used as the equivalent of a possessive adjective before names of some parts of the body: grab him by the neck; an infection of the hand. f. Used before a noun specifying a field of endeavor: the law; the film industry; the stage. g. Used before a proper name, as of a monument or ship: the Alamo; the Titanic. h. Used before the plural form of a numeral denoting a specific decade of a century or of a life span: rural life in the Thirties. 2. Used before a singular noun indicating that the noun is generic: The wolf is an endangered species. 3. a. Used before an adjective extending it to signify a class and giving it the function of a noun: the rich; the dead; the homeless. b. Used before an absolute adjective: the best we can offer. 4. Used before a present participle, signifying the action in the abstract: the weaving of rugs. 5. Used before a noun with the force of per: cherries at $1.50 the box. [Middle English, from Old English the, alteration (influenced by that, neuter demonstrative pron., thæs, genitive demonstrative pron., etc.), of se, masculine demonstrative pron.. See so- in Appendix.]

the² (thē before a vowel; thə before a consonant) adv. 1. Because of that. Used before a comparative: thinks the worse of you after this mistake. 2. To that extent; by that much: the sooner the better. 3. Beyond any other: enjoyed reading the most. [Middle English, from Old English thȳ, thē. See to- in Appendix.]

the- pref. Variant of theo-.

the-an-throp-ic (thē'än-thröp'ik) also the-an-throp-i-cal (-i-kəl) adj. Both divine and human in nature or quality. [From Late Greek theanthrōpos, god-man : Greek theo-, theo- + Greek anthrōpos, man.]

the-an-thro-pism (thē-än'thrə-pīz'əm) n. 1. Attribution of human traits to God; anthropomorphism. 2. Theology. The doctrine of the union of human and divine natures in Jesus. —the-an'thro-pist n.

the-ar-chy (thē'är'kē) n. pl. the-ar-chies. 1. Government or rule by a god or by priests; theocracy. 2. A hierarchy of gods.

theat. abbr. Theater; theatrical.

the-a-ter or the-a-tre (thē'ə-tər) n. Abbr. theat. 1. A building, room, or outdoor structure for the presentation of plays, films, or other dramatic performances. 2. A room with tiers of seats used for lectures or demonstrations: an operating theater at a medical school. 3. a. Dramatic literature or its performance; drama: the theater of Shakespeare and Marlowe. b. The milieu of actors and playwrights. 4. a. The quality or effectiveness of a theatrical production: good theater; awful theater. b. Dramatic material or the use of such material: "His summation was a great piece of courtroom theater" (Ron Rosenbaum). 5. The audience assembled for a dramatic performance. 6. A place that is the setting for dramatic events. 7. A large geographic area in which military operations are coordinated: the European theater during World War II. [Middle English theatre, from Old French, from Latin theātrum, from Greek theatron, from theasthai, to watch, from thea, a viewing.]

WORD HISTORY: Those who have theories about the theater are no doubt quite observant, at least the etymology of the word leads one to think so. The words theory and theater are related in ancestry if we look back to the Greek sources of our words. The Greek ancestor of theater is theatron, "a place for seeing, especially for dramatic representation, theater." Theatron is derived quite logically from the verb theasthai, "to gaze at, contemplate, view as spectators, especially in the theater," from thea, "a viewing." The Greek ancestor of theory is theōria, which meant among other things "the sending of theōroi (state ambassadors sent to consult oracles or attend games)," "the act of being a spectator at the theater or games," "viewing," "contemplation by the mind," and "theory or speculation." The source of theōria, theōros, "an envoy sent to consult an oracle, spectator," is a compound of thea, "viewing," and -oros, "seeing." Thus, viewing is at the root of a theory and the theater.

the-a-ter-go-er (thē'ə-tər-gō'ər) n. One who often attends the theater.

—the'a-ter-go'ing adj. & n.

the-a-ter-in-the-round (thē'ə-tər-īn-thə-round') n. pl. the-a-ter-s-in-the-round (thē'ə-tərz-). See arena theater.

theater of the absurd (thē'ə-tər ÷v thē əb-sûrd') n. A form of drama that emphasizes the absurdity of human existence by employing disjointed, repetitious, and meaningless dialogue, purposeless and confusing situations, and plots that lack realistic or logical development.

the-a-tre (thē'ə-tər) n. Variant of theater.

the-at-ri-cal (thē-ăt'ri-kəl) also the-at-ric (-rĭk) adj. 1. Abbr. theat. Of, relating to, or suitable for dramatic performance or the theater. 2. Marked by exaggerated self-display and unnatural behavior; affectedly dramatic. See Synonyms at dramatic. — n. 1. Often theatricals. Stage performances or a stage performance, especially by amateurs. 2. theatricals. Affectedly dramatic gestures or behavior; histrionics. —the-at'ri-cal/i-ty (-kăl'i-tē), the-at'ri-cal-ness (-kəl-nĭs) n. —the-at'ri-cal-ly adv.

the-at-ri-cal-ism (thē-ăt'ri-kə-lĭz'əm) n. Theatrical manner or style; showiness.

the-at-ri-cal-ize (thē-ăt'ri-kə-lĭz') v. tr. the-at-ri-cal-ized, the-at-ri-cal-iz-ing, the-at-ri-cal-iz-es. 1. To adapt to performance on the stage; dramatize: "All ethnic dance troupes theatricalize the dance of the folk" (Robert J. Pierce). 2. To make a spectacle of; display showily. —the-at'ri-cal-i-za-tion (-kə-lĭ-zā'shən) n. —the-at'ri-cal-iz'er n.

the-at-rics (thē-ăt'riks) n. 1. (used with a sing. verb). The art of the theater. 2. (used with a pl. verb). Theatrical effects or mannerisms; histrionics.

the-ba-ine (thē'bə-ēn', thĭ-bā'in) n. A poisonous alkaloid, C₁₉H₂₁NO₃, obtained from opium. Also called paramorphine [New Latin (herba) thēbaia, (herb of) Thebes, Egyptian opium (from Latin Thēbaea, feminine of Thēbaeus, Theban, from Thēbae, Thebes, from Greek Thēbai) + -INE².]

the-be (tĕ'bĕ) n. A unit of currency in Botswana. See Table at currency.

The-be (thē'bē) n. The satellite of Jupiter that is fifth in distance from the planet. [Latin Thēbē, a nymph, daughter of the river god Asopus, from Greek.]

Thebes (thēbz) 1. An ancient city of Upper Egypt on the Nile River in present-day central Egypt. It flourished from the mid-22nd to the 18th century B.C. as a royal residence and a religious center for the worship of Amen. Its archaeological remains include many splendid temples and the tomb of Tutankhamen in the nearby Valley of the Kings. 2. An ancient city of Boeotia in east-central Greece northwest of Athens. Originally a Mycenaen city, it reached the height of its power in the fourth century B.C. but was largely destroyed by Alexander in 336. —The/ban (thē'bən) adj. & n.

the-ca (thē'kə) n. pl. the-cae (-sē', -kē'). A case, covering, or sheath, such as the pollen sac of an anther, the spore case of a moss, or the outer covering of the pupa of certain insects. [Latin, case, receptacle, from Greek thēkē. See dhē- in Appendix.] —the/cal (-kəl) adj.

the-cate (thē'kāt') adj. Having a theca; encased or sheathed.

The Dalles (thē dälz) See The Dalles.

thee (thē) pron. The objective case of thou¹. 1. a. Used as the direct object of a verb. b. Used as the indirect object of a verb. 2. Used as the object of a preposition. 3. Used in the nominative as well as the objective case, especially by members of the Society of Friends.

thee·lin (thē'lin) n. See estrone. [Greek thēlus, female; see dhē(i)- in Appendix + -IN.]

thee·lol (thē'lól', -lól', -lól') n. See estriol. [THEEL(IN) + -OL².]

theft (thěft) n. 1. The act or an instance of stealing; larceny. 2. Obsolete. Something stolen. [Middle English, from Old English thīefth.]

Thei·ler (tī'lər), Max. 1899-1972. South African-born American microbiologist. He won a 1951 Nobel Prize for developing the vaccine for yellow fever.

their (thâr) adj. The possessive form of they. 1. Used as a modifier before a noun: their accomplishments; their home town. 2. Usage Problem. His, her, or its: "It is fatal for anyone who writes to think of their sex" (Virginia Woolf). See Usage Note at he¹. [Middle English, from Old Norse theira, theirs. See to- in Appendix.]

theirs (thârz) pron. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). 1. Used to indicate the one or ones belonging to them: The red house is theirs. If your car doesn't start, take theirs. 2. Usage Problem. His or hers: brought his own lunch and expected everybody else to bring theirs. See Usage Note at he¹. [Middle English, from their, their. See THEIR.]

the·ism (thē'iz'əm) n. Belief in the existence of a god or gods, especially belief in a personal God as creator and ruler of the world. —the·ist n. —the·is'tic, the·is'ti·cal adj. —the·is'ti·cal·ly adv.

The·lon (thē'lôn') A river, about 885 km (550 mi) long, of south-central Northwest Territories, Canada, east of Great Slave Lake.

them (thēm, thəm) pron. The objective case of they. 1. a. Used as the direct object of a verb: We saw them at the conference. b. Used as the indirect object of a verb: We gave them a round of applause. 2. Used as the object of a preposition: This letter is addressed to them. 3. Informal. Used as a predicate nominative: It's them. See Usage Note at be. See Usage Note at I¹. [Middle English, from Old Norse them, and Old English thæm; see to- in Appendix.]

the·mat·ic (thī-măt'ik) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or being a theme: a scene of thematic importance. 2. Linguistics. Of, constituting, or relating to the theme of a word: a thematic vowel. [Greek thematikos, from thema, themat-, theme. See THEME.] —the·mat'i·cal·ly adv.

The·mat·ic Apperception Test (thī-măt'ik äp'ər-sěp'shən tětst) n. Abbr.

TAT A projective test in which the subject tells a story suggested by each of a standard set of pictures showing everyday situations.

theme (thēm) n. 1. A topic of discourse or discussion. See Synonyms at subject. 2. A subject of artistic representation. 3. An implicit or recurrent idea; a motif: a theme of powerlessness that runs through the diary; a party with a tropical island theme. 4. A short composition assigned to a student as a writing exercise. 5. Music. The principal melodic phrase in a composition, especially a melody forming the basis of a set of variations. 6. Linguistics. A stem. [Middle English teme, theme, from Old French tesme, from Latin thema, from Greek. See dhē- in Appendix.] —theme/less adj.

theme park (thēm pārk) n. An amusement park in which all the settings and attractions have a central theme, such as the world of the future.

theme song (thēm sŏng) n. Music. 1. An often repeated song in a musical play that is identified with the work or one of its characters. 2. A song that is identified with a performer, group, or radio or television program.

The·mis·to·cles (thə-mīs'tə-klēz'), 527?-460? B.C. Athenian military and political leader. After persuading the Athenians to build a navy, he led the new fleet to victory over Persia in the Battle of Salamis (480).

them·selves (thēm-sēlvz', thəm-) pron. 1. Those ones identical with them: a. Used reflexively as the direct or indirect object of a verb or as the object of a preposition: prepared themselves for the trip; gave themselves plenty of time; were left to themselves. b. Used for emphasis: The cooks themselves eat after all the guests have finished. c. Used in an absolute construction: Newcomers themselves, they knew few people at the party. 2. Their normal or healthy condition: The members of the crew were themselves again after the crisis passed.

then (thĕn) adv. 1. At that time: I was still in school then. Come at noon; I'll be ready then. 2. Next in time, space, or order; immediately afterward: watched the late movie and then went to bed. 3. In addition; moreover; besides: It costs $20, and then there's the sales tax to pay. 4. Used after but to qualify or balance a preceding statement: The star was nervous, but then who isn't on the first night of a new play. 5. In that case; accordingly: If traffic is heavy, then allow extra time. 6. As a consequence; therefore: The case, then, is closed. — n. That time or moment: The bus leaves at four; until then let's walk. — adj. Being so at that time: the then chairman of the board. — idiom. and then some. Informal. With considerably more in addition: This project will take all our skill and then some. [Middle English, from Old English thenne. See to- in Appendix.]

then and there (thĕn ənd thâr) adv. At that precise time and place; on the spot: resigned then and there.

the·nar (thē'nār') n. The fleshy mass on the palm of the hand at the base of the thumb. — adj. Of or relating to the thenar. [Greek, palm of the hand.]

thence (thĕns, thĕns) adv. 1. From that place; from there: flew to Helsinki and thence to Moscow. 2. From that circumstance or source; therefrom. 3. Archaic. From that time; thenceforth. See Usage Note at whence. [Middle English thennes : thenne, from there (from Old English thanon); see to- in Appendix + -es, genitive sing. suff.; see -s³.]

thence-forth (thĕns-fōrth', -fōrth', thĕns-) adv. From that time forward; thereafter.

thence-for-ward (thĕns-fōr'wārd, thĕns-) also thence-for-wards (-wārdz) adv. 1. Thenceforth. 2. From that time or place onward.

theo- or the- pref. God: theomorphism. [Greek, from theos. See dhēs- in Appendix.]

the-o-bro-mine (thĕ'ō-brō'mĕn') n. A bitter, colorless alkaloid, $C_7H_8N_4O_2$, derived from the cacao bean, found in chocolate products and used in medicine as a diuretic, vasodilator, and myocardial stimulant. [New Latin Theobroma, genus of trees (Greek theo-, theo- + brōma, food) + -INE².]

the-o-cen-tric (thĕ'ō-sĕn'trĭk) adj. Centering on God as the prime concern: a theocentric cosmology.

the-oc-ra-cy (thĕ-ōk'rā-sĕ) n. pl. the-oc-ra-cies. 1. A government ruled by or subject to religious authority. 2. A state so governed.

the-o-crat (thĕ'ə-krāt') n. 1. A ruler of a theocracy. 2. A believer in theocracy. —the'o-crat'ic, the'o-crat'i-cal adj. —the'o-crat'i-cal-ly adv.

The-oc-ri-tus (thĕ-ōk'rĭ-təs), Third century B.C. Greek poet who composed the earliest known pastoral poems.

the-od-i-cy (thĕ-ōd'ī-sĕ) n. pl. the-od-i-cies. A vindication of God's goodness and justice in the face of the existence of evil. [After Théodicée, a work by Baron Gottfried Wilhelm von Leibnitz : Greek theo-, theo- + Greek dikē, order, right; see deik- in Appendix.]

the-od-o-lite (thĕ-ōd'ī-īt') n. An optical instrument consisting of a small mounted telescope rotatable in horizontal and vertical planes, used to measure angles in surveying, meteorology, and navigation. [New Latin theodolitus, theodelitus.] —the-od'o-lit'ic (-lĭt'ĭk) adj.

The-o-do-ra (thĕ'ə-dōr'ə, -dōr'-), 508?-548. Byzantine empress (525-548) as the wife and adviser of Justinian I.

The-od-o-ric (thĕ-ōd'ər-ĭk), Known as "the Great." A.D. 454?-526. King of the Ostrogoths (474-526) who founded the Ostrogoth kingdom in Italy (493).

The-o-do-sius I (thĕ'ə-dō'shəs, -shĕ-əs), Known as "Theodosius the Great." A.D. 346?-395. Emperor of Rome who ruled jointly (379-392) with Gratian and Valentinian II and independently (392-395). He prohibited pagan practices and in his will divided the empire between his two sons.

the-og-o-ny (thĕ-ōg'ə-nĕ) n. pl. the-og-o-nies. An account of the origin and genealogy of the gods. —the'o-gon'ic (-ə-gŏn'ĭk) adj.

theol. abbr. Theologian; theological; theology.

the-o-lo-gi-an (thĕ'ə-lŏ'jən) n. Abbr. theol. One who is learned in theology.

the-o-log-i-cal (thē'ə-lŏj'ī-kəl) also the-o-log-ic (-lŏj'ik) adj. Abbr. theol. Of or relating to theology or to specialized religious study. —the'o-log'i-cal-ly adv.

the-ol-o-gize (thē-ŏl'ə-jīz') v. the-ol-o-gized, the-ol-o-giz-ing, the-ol-o-giz-es. — v. tr. To make theological in form or significance. — v. intr. To speculate about theology. —the-ol'o-giz'er n.

the-ol-o-gy (thē-ŏl'ə-jē) n. pl. the-ol-o-gies. Abbr. theol. 1. The study of the nature of God and religious truth; rational inquiry into religious questions. 2. A system or school of opinions concerning God and religious questions. Protestant theology; Jewish theology. 3. A course of specialized religious study usually at a college or seminary. [Middle English theologie, from Old French, from Latin theologia, from Greek : theo-, theo- + -logia, -logy.]

the-om-a-chy (thē-ŏm'ə-kē) n. pl. the-om-a-chies. Strife or battle among gods, as in the Homeric poems. [Greek theomakhia : theo-, theo- + makhia, fighting (from makhē, battle).]

the-o-mor-phism (thē'ō-mŏr'fīz'əm) n. Depiction or conception of human beings as having the form of a god. —the'o-mor'phic adj.

the-oph-a-ny (thē-ŏf'ə-nē) n. pl. the-oph-a-nies. An appearance of a god to a human being; a divine manifestation. [Medieval Latin theophania, from Late Greek theophaneia : Greek theo-, theo- + Greek phainein, phan-, to show; see bhā-¹ in Appendix.]

The-o-phras-tus (thē'ə-frās'təs), 371?-287? B.C. Greek philosopher who succeeded Aristotle as leader of the Peripatetics and refined the work of Aristotle in botany and natural history.

the-oph-yl-line (thē-ŏf'ə-līn, thē'ō-fīl'ēn') n. A colorless crystalline alkaloid, C₇H₈N₄O₂H₂O, derived from tea leaves or made synthetically, used as a cardiac stimulant and diuretic. [THEO(BROMINE) + PHYLL(O)- + -INE².]

the-or-bo (thē-ŏr'bŏ) n. pl. the-or-bos. Music. A 17th-century lute having two sets of strings and an S-shaped neck with two sets of pegs, one set above and somewhat to the side of the other. [Italian tiorba, probably from Italian dialectal, traveling bag, from Slovenian torba, from Turkish, bag (from the bag in which mendicants carried it).]

The-o-rell (tā'ə-rĕl'), Axel Hugo Theodor. 1903-1982. Swedish biochemist. He won a 1955 Nobel Prize for research on the oxidation of enzymes.

the-o-rem (thē'ər-əm, thīr'əm) n. 1. An idea that is demonstrably true or is assumed to be so. 2. Mathematics. A proposition that has been or is to be proved on the basis of explicit assumptions. [Late Latin theōrēma, from Greek, from theōrein, to look at, from theōros, spectator. See THEORY.]

the-o-ret-i-cal (thē'ə-rĕt'ī-kəl) also the-o-ret-ic (-rĕt'ik) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or based on theory. 2. Restricted to theory; not practical: theoretical physics. 3. Given to theorizing; speculative. [Late Latin theōrēticus, from Greek theōrēti- kos, from theōrētos, observable, from theōrein, to look at. See THEOREM.]

—the'ō-ret'i-cal-ly adv.

SYNONYMS: theoretical, abstract, academic, hypothetical, speculative. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “concerned primarily with theories or hypotheses rather than practical considerations”: theoretical linguistics; abstract reasoning; a purely academic discussion; a hypothetical statement; speculative knowledge.

the·o·re·ti·cian (thē'ər-ĭ-tĭsh'ən, thĭr'ĭ-) n. One who formulates, studies, or is expert in the theory of a science or an art.

the·o·ret·ics (thē'ə-rĕt'ĭks) n. (used with a sing. verb). The theoretical part of a science or an art.

the·o·rist (thē'ər-ĭst, thĭr'ĭst) n. One who theorizes; a theoretician.

the·o·rize (thē'ə-rĭz', thĭr'ĭz) v. the·o·rized, the·o·riz·ing, the·o·riz·es. — v. intr. To formulate theories or a theory; speculate. — v. tr. To propose a theory about. —the'ō-ri-za'tion (-ər-ĭ-zā'shən) n. —the'ō-riz'er n.

the·o·ry (thē'ə-rĕ, thĭr'ĕ) n. pl. the·o·ries. 1. a. Systematically organized knowledge applicable in a relatively wide variety of circumstances, especially a system of assumptions, accepted principles, and rules of procedure devised to analyze, predict, or otherwise explain the nature or behavior of a specified set of phenomena. b. Such knowledge or such a system. 2. Abstract reasoning; speculation. 3. A belief that guides action or assists comprehension or judgment: rose early, on the theory that morning efforts are best; the modern architectural theory that less is more. 4. An assumption based on limited information or knowledge; a conjecture. [Late Latin theōria, from Greek, from theōros, spectator : probably thea, a viewing + -oros, seeing.] theory of games (thē'ə-rĕ ūv gāmz) n. See game theory.

the·os·o·phy (thē-ōs'ə-fĕ) n. pl. the·os·o·phies. 1. Religious philosophy or speculation about the nature of the soul based on mystical insight into the nature of God. 2. Often Theosophy. The beliefs of a religious sect, the Theosophical Society, founded in New York City in 1875, incorporating aspects of Buddhism and Brahmanism. [Medieval Latin theosophia, from Late Greek : Greek theo-, theo- + Greek sophia, wisdom.] —the'ō-soph'ic (-ə-sōf'ĭk), the'ō-soph'i-cal (-ĭ-kəl) adj. —the'ō-soph'i-cal-ly adv. —the·os·o·phist n.

therap. abbr. Therapeutic; therapeutics.

ther·a·peu·tic (thĕr'ə-pyōō'tĭk) also ther·a·peu·ti·cal (-tĭ-kəl) adj. Abbr.

therap. 1. Having or exhibiting healing powers: a therapeutic agent; therapeutic exercises. 2. Of or relating to therapeutics. [New Latin therapeuticus, from Greek therapeutikos, from therapeutēs, one who administers, from therapeuein, from theraps, therap-, attendant. See THERAPY.] —ther'a-peu'ti-cal-ly adv.

therapeutic abortion (thĕr'ə-pyōō'tik ə-bôr'shən) n. An abortion induced for medical reasons, as when pregnancy poses a danger to the woman's health.

therapeutic index (thĕr'ə-pyōō'tik ĭn'dĕks') n. The ratio between the toxic dose and the therapeutic dose of a drug, used as a measure of the relative safety of the drug for a particular treatment.

ther·a·peu·tics (thĕr'ə-pyōō'tiks) n. (used with a sing. verb). Abbr. therap. Medical treatment of disease; the art or science of healing. —ther'a-peu'tist n.

ther·a·pist (thĕr'ə-pĭst) n. One who specializes in the provision of a particular therapy.

the·rap·sid (thə-răp'sĭd) n. Any of various reptiles of the order Therapsida of the Permian and Triassic periods, many of which are considered to be direct ancestors of mammals. [From New Latin Thērapsida, order name : Greek thēr, wild animal; see THEROPOD + Greek hapsis, hapsid-, arch, vault (from the enlarged lower temporal opening characteristic of the order); see APSIS.] —the·rap'sid adj.

ther·a·py (thĕr'ə-pĕ) n. pl. ther·a·pies. 1. Treatment of illness or disability. 2. Psychotherapy. 3. Healing power or quality: the therapy of fresh air and sun. [New Latin therapia, from Greek therapeia, from therapeuein, to treat medically. See THERAPEUTIC.]

Ther·a·va·da (thĕr'ə-vă'də) n. Buddhism. See Hinayana. [Pali theravāda : thera, an elder (from Sanskrit, old, venerable, from sthaviraḥ, old man, from sthavira-, old, venerable); see stā- in Appendix + vāda, doctrine (from Sanskrit vādaḥ, statement, doctrine); see wed-² in Appendix.]

there (thâr) adv. 1. At or in that place: sit over there. 2. To, into, or toward that place: wouldn't go there again. 3. At that stage, moment, or point: Stop there before you make any more mistakes. 4. In that matter: I can't agree with him there. — pron. 1. Used to introduce a clause or sentence: There are numerous items. There must be another exit. 2. Used to indicate an unspecified person in direct address: Hello there. — adj. Used as an intensive: That person there ought to know the directions to town. — n. That place or point: stopped and went on from there. — interj. Used to express feelings such as relief, satisfaction, sympathy, or anger: There, now I can have some peace! [Middle English, from Old English thær, thēr. See to- in Appendix.]

USAGE NOTE: The standard rule states that when the pronoun there precedes a verb such as be, seem, or appear, the verb agrees in number with the following grammatical subject: There is a great Italian deli across the street. There are fabulous wildflowers in the hills. There seems to be a blueberry pie cooking in the kitchen. There seem to be a few trees between me and the green. Nonetheless, it is common in speech for the contraction there's to be used when technically a plural verb is called for, as in There's a couple of good reasons for going. There is also a tendency to use a singular verb when the phrase with which the verb must agree is a conjunction in which the subject closest to the verb is singular: To the left, there is a beautiful entry hall, a sitting room, and a sun porch. Although this usage is strictly incorrect, the attraction of the verb to the singular noun phrase following it is so strong that few writers manage to avoid the construction entirely. • The demonstrative forms that there and this here are nonstandard.

there·a·bouts (thâr'ə-bouts') also there·a·bout (-bout') adv. 1. Near that place, about there: somewhere in Kansas or thereabouts. 2. About that number, amount, or time.

there·af·ter (thâr-ăf'tər) adv. From a specified time onward; from then on.

there·a·gainst (thâr'ə-gĕnst') adv. Against or in opposition to that.

there·at (thâr-ăt') adv. 1. At that place; there. 2. At that event; on account of that.

there·by (thâr-bī') adv. 1. By that means; because of that. 2. In connection with that: "And thereby hangs a tale" (Shakespeare).

there·for (thâr-fôr') adv. For that: ordering goods and enclosing payment therefor.

there·fore (thâr'fôr', -fôr') adv. For that reason or cause; consequently or hence. [Middle English : there, there; see THERE + for, fore, fore; see FOR.]

there·from (thâr-frŭm', -frŏm') adv. From that place, time, or thing.

there·in (thâr-ĭn') adv. 1. In that place, time, or thing. 2. In that circumstance or respect.

there·in·af·ter (thâr'ĭn-ăf'tər) adv. In a later part, as of a speech or book.

ther·e·min (thĕr'ə-mĭn) n. Music. An electronic instrument played by moving the hands near its two antennas, often used for high tremolo effects. [After Leo Theremin (born 1896), Russian engineer and inventor.]

there·of (thâr-ŭv', -ŏv') adv. 1. Of or concerning this, that, or it. 2. From that cause or origin; therefrom.

there·on (thâr-ŏn', -ôn') adv. 1. On or upon this, that, or it. 2. Archaic. Following that immediately; thereupon.

The·re·sa or Te·re·sa (tə-rĕ'sə, -zə, -rā'-), Saint Known as "Theresa of Ávila." 1515-1582. Spanish nun and mystical writer who founded the reformed order of Carmelites (1562). Her works include The Way of Perfection, published posthumously.

Thé·rèse de Li·sieux (tā-rĕz' də lĕ-zyœ'), Saint Known as "the Little Flower." 1873-1897. French nun whose autobiography, Story of a Soul (1898), recounts her search for spiritual innocence. She was canonized in 1925.

there·to (thâr-tō') adv. 1. To that, this, or it. 2. Archaic. In addition to that; furthermore.

there·to·fore (thâr'tə-fôr', -fôr') adv. Until that time; before that.

there-un-der (thâr-ÿn'dær) adv. Under this, that, or it.

there-un-to (thâr'ÿn-tōo') adv. Archaic. To that, this, or it; thereto.

there-up-on (thâr'ə-pŏn', -pŏn') adv. 1. Concerning that matter; upon that.

2. Directly following that; forthwith. 3. In consequence of that; therefore.

there-with (thâr-wĭth', -wĭth') adv. 1. With that, this, or it. 2. In addition to that. 3. Archaic. Immediately thereafter.

there-with-al (thâr'wĭth-ôl', -wĭth-) adv. With all that, this, or it; besides.

the-ri-o-mor-phic (thîr'ē-ə-môr'fĭk) also the-ri-o-mor-phous (-fəs) adj.

Thought of as having the form of a beast. Used of a deity. [Greek thērion, diminutive of thēr, wild beast; see THEROPOD + -MORPHIC.]

therm (thûrm) n. 1. a. A unit of heat equal to 100,000 British thermal units.

b. A unit of heat equal to 1,000 large calories. 2. a. A unit of heat equal to the large calorie. b. A unit of heat equal to the small calorie. [Greek thermē, heat, from thermos, warm, hot. See g^wher- in Appendix.]

therm. abbr. Thermometer.

therm- pref. Variant of thermo-.

-therm suff. An animal having a specified kind of body temperature: poikilotherm. [From Greek thermē, heat, from thermos, warm, hot. See g^wher- in Appendix.]

ther-mal (thûr'məl) adj. 1. Of, relating to, using, producing, or caused by heat.

2. Intended or designed in such a way as to help retain body heat: thermal underwear. — n. A rising current of warm air. — ther'mal-ly adv.

thermal neutron (thûr'məl nōō'trŏn') n. See slow neutron.

thermal noise (thûr'məl noiz) n. Unwanted currents or voltages in an electronic component resulting from the agitation of electrons by heat. Also called Johnson noise thermal pollution (thûr'məl pə-lōō'shən) n. Industrial discharge of heated water into a river, lake, or other body of water, causing a rise in temperature that endangers aquatic life.

therm-an-es-the-sia (thûrm'ăn-ĭs-thē'zhə) n. Inability to feel hot or cold; insensitivity to variations in temperature.

therm-es-the-sia (thûrm'ĭs-thē'zhə) n. Ability to feel hot or cold; sensitivity to variations in temperature.

ther-mic (thûr'mĭk) adj. Thermal.

therm-i-on (thûr'mī'ən) n. An electrically charged particle, especially an electron, emitted by a conducting material at high temperatures. — therm'i-on'ic (-mī-ŏn'ĭk) adj.

thermionic current (thûr'mī-ŏn'ĭk kûr'ənt) n. A flow of thermions.

thermionic emission (thûr'mī-ŏn'ĭk ĭ-mĭsh'ən) n. Emission of thermions, especially electrons, from a conducting material at high temperatures.

therm-i-on-ics (thûr'mī-ōn'iks) n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). The physics of thermionic phenomena.

thermionic tube (thûr'mī-ōn'ik tōōb) n. An electron tube in which the source of electrons is a heated electrode.

therm-is-tor (thûr'mīs'tər) n. A resistor made of semiconductors having resistance that varies rapidly and predictably with temperature. [THERM(AL) + (RES)ISTOR.]

Ther-mit (thûr'mīt, -mīt') A trademark used for a welding and incendiary mixture of fine aluminum powder with a metallic oxide, usually iron, that when ignited yields an intense heat.

thermo- or therm- pref. 1. Heat: thermochemistry. 2. Thermoelectric: thermojunction. [From Greek thermē, heat, from thermos, warm, hot. See g^wher- in Appendix.]

ther-mo-cau-ter-y (thûr'mō-kô'tə-rē) n. pl. ther-mo-cau-ter-ies. Cauterization using heat, as with a heated wire.

ther-mo-chem-is-try (thûr'mō-kēm'ī-strē) n. The chemistry of heat and heat-associated chemical phenomena. —ther'mo-chem'i-cal (-ī-kəl) adj. —ther'mo-chem'ist n.

ther-mo-cline (thûr'mə-klīn') n. A layer in a large body of water, such as a lake, that sharply separates regions differing in temperature, so that the temperature gradient across the layer is abrupt.

ther-mo-co-ag-u-la-tion (thûr'mō-kō-ăg'yə-lā'shən) n. The use of heat produced by high-frequency electric current to bring about localized destruction of tissues.

ther-mo-cou-ple (thûr'mə-küp'əl) n. A thermoelectric device used to measure temperatures accurately, especially one consisting of two dissimilar metals joined so that a potential difference generated between the points of contact is a measure of the temperature difference between the points.

ther-mo-dur-ic (thûr'mō-dōōr'ik, -dyōōr'-) adj. Capable of surviving high temperatures, especially those of pasteurization. Used of a microorganism. [THERMO- + Latin dūrāre, to last; see deuə- in Appendix + -IC.]

ther-mo-dy-nam-ic (thûr'mō-dī-năm'ik) adj. 1. Characteristic of or resulting from the conversion of heat into other forms of energy. 2. Of or relating to thermodynamics. —ther'mo-dy-nam'i-cal-ly adv.

ther-mo-dy-nam-ics (thûr'mō-dī-năm'iks) n. 1. (used with a sing. verb). Physics that deals with the relationships between heat and other forms of energy. 2. (used with a pl. verb). Thermodynamic phenomena and processes.

ther-mo-e-lec-tric (thûr'mō-ī-lěk'trik) also ther-mo-e-lec-tri-cal (-trī-kəl) adj. Characteristic of, resulting from, or using electrical phenomena occurring in conjunction with a flow of heat. —ther'mo-e-lec'tri-cal-ly adv.

ther-mo-e-lec-tric-i-ty (thûr'mō-ĭ-lĕk-trĭs'ĭ-tē, -ĕ'lĕk-) n. Electricity generated by a flow of heat, as in a thermocouple.

ther-mo-e-lec-tron (thûr'mō-ĭ-lĕk'trŏn') n. An electron emitted by a material at high temperatures.

ther-mo-gen-e-sis (thûr'mō-jĕn'ĭ-sĭs, -mă-) n. Generation or production of heat, especially by physiological processes. —ther'mo-gen-et'ic (-jă-nĕt'ĭk), ther'mo-gen'ic (-jĕn'ĭk) adj.

ther-mo-gram (thûr'mă-gră'm') n. A record made by a thermograph.

ther-mo-graph (thûr'mă-grăf') n. 1. A thermometer that records the temperature it indicates. 2. The apparatus used in diagnostic thermography.

ther-mog-ra-phy (thĕr-mŏg'ră-fĕ) n. pl. ther-mog-ra-phies. 1. A process for producing raised lettering, as on stationery or calling cards, by application of a powder that is fused by heat to the fresh ink. 2. A diagnostic technique in which an infrared camera is used to measure temperature variations on the surface of the body, producing images that reveal sites of abnormal tissue growth. —ther'mo-graph'ic (-mă-grăf'ĭk) adj. —ther'mo-graph'ic-al-ly adv.

ther-mo-junc-tion (thûr'mō-jŭngk'shən) n. The point of contact between two dissimilar metals in a thermocouple at which a thermoelectric current is produced.

ther-mo-la-bile (thûr'mō-lă'bĭl, -bĭl') adj. Subject to destruction, decomposition, or great change by moderate heating. Used especially of biochemical substances. —ther'mo-la-bil'ity (-bĭl'ĭ-tē) n.

ther-mo-lu-mi-nes-cence (thûr'mō-lŏŏ'mă-nĕs'ĕns) n. A phenomenon in which certain minerals release previously absorbed radiation upon being moderately heated. —ther'mo-lu'mi-nes'cent adj.

ther-mol-y-sis (thĕr-mŏl'ĭ-sĭs) n. pl. ther-mol-y-ses (-sĕz'). 1. Physiology. Dissipation of heat from the body, as by evaporation. 2. Chemistry. Dissociation or decomposition of compounds by heat. —ther'mo-lyt'ic (thûr'mă-lĭt'ĭk) adj.

ther-mom-e-ter (thĕr-mŏm'ĭ-tĕr) n. Abbr. therm. An instrument for measuring temperature, especially one having a graduated glass tube with a bulb containing a liquid, typically mercury or colored alcohol, that expands and rises in the tube as the temperature increases.

ther-mom-e-try (thĕr-mŏm'ĭ-trĕ) n. 1. Measurement of temperature. 2. The technology of temperature measurement. —ther'mo-met'ric (thûr'mō-mĕt'ĭk) adj.

ther-mo-mo-tor (thûr'mō-mŏ'tŕ) n. An engine operated by heat, especially by the expansion of heated air.

ther-mo-nu-cle-ar (thûr'mō-nŏŏ'klĕ-ĕr, -nyŏŏ'-) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or derived from the fusion of atomic nuclei at high temperatures: thermonuclear reactions. 2. Of, relating to, or characterized by the use of atomic weapons based on fusion, especially as distinguished from those based on fission: thermonuclear war.

ther·mo·pe·ri·od·ism (thûr'mō-pîr'ē-ə-dîz'əm) also ther·mo·pe·ri·o·dic·i·ty (-dîs'î-tē) n. The effect on an organism of the rhythmic fluctuation of temperature, including responses associated with thermal changes accompanying the alternation of day and night.

ther·mo·phil·ic (thûr'mə-fîl'îk) adj. Requiring high temperatures for normal development, as certain bacteria. —ther'mo·phile' (-fîl') n.

ther·mo·pile (thûr'mə-pîl') n. A device consisting of a number of thermocouples connected in series or parallel, used for measuring temperature or generating current. [THERMO- + PILE¹.]

ther·mo·plas·tic (thûr'mə-plăs'tîk) adj. Becoming soft when heated and hard when cooled. — n. A thermoplastic resin, such as polystyrene or polyethylene.

—ther'mo·plas·tic'i·ty (-plă-stîs'î-tē) n.

Ther·mop·y·lae (thər-möp'ə-lē) A narrow pass of east-central Greece. It was the site of an unsuccessful Spartan stand against the Persians in 480 B.C.

ther·mo·re·cep·tor (thûr'mō-rî-sĕp'tər) n. Biology. A sensory receptor that responds to heat and cold.

ther·mo·reg·u·late (thûr'mō-rĕg'yə-lāt') v. intr. ther·mo·reg·u·lat·ed, ther·mo·reg·u·lat·ing, ther·mo·reg·u·lates. 1. To regulate body temperature. 2. To undergo thermoregulation.

ther·mo·reg·u·la·tion (thûr'mō-rĕg'yə-lā'shən) n. Maintenance of a constant internal body temperature independent from the environmental temperature: mammalian thermoregulation. —ther'mo·reg'u·la·to'ry (-rĕg'yə-lə-tôr'ē, -tôr'ē) adj.

Ther·mos (thûr'məs) A trademark used for a brand of vacuum bottles and other insulated containers.

ther·mo·set·ting (thûr'mō-sĕt'îng) adj. Permanently hardening or solidifying on being heated. Used of certain synthetic resins.

ther·mo·sphere (thûr'mə-sfîr') n. The outermost shell of the atmosphere, between the mesosphere and outer space, where temperatures increase steadily with altitude. —ther'mo·spher'ic (-sfîr'îk, -sfĕr'îk) adj.

ther·mo·sta·ble (thûr'mō-stā'bəl) also ther·mo·sta·bile (-bəl, -bîl') adj. Unaffected by relatively high temperatures, as certain ferments or toxins. —ther'mo·sta·bil'i·ty (-stə-bîl'î-tē) n.

ther·mo·stat (thûr'mə-stăt') n. A device, as in a home heating system, a refrigerator, or an air conditioner, that automatically responds to temperature changes and activates switches controlling the equipment. —ther'mo·stat'ic adj. —ther'mo·stat'i·cal·ly adv.

ther·mo·tax·is (thûr'mə-tăk'sîs) n. pl. ther·mo·tax·es (-tăk'sĕz).

1. Movement of a living organism in response to changes in temperature.

2. Normal regulation or adjustment of body temperature. —ther'mo-tac'tic (-tāk'tīk), ther'mo-tax'ic (-tāk'sīk) adj.

ther-mo-ther-a-py (thûr'mō-thēr'ə-pē) n. pl. ther-mo-ther-a-pies. Medical therapy involving the application of heat.

ther-mot-ro-pism (thər-mōt'rə-pīz'əm) n. Biology. The tendency of plants or other organisms to bend toward or away from heat. —ther'mo-trop'ic (thûr'mə-tröp'īk) adj.

-thermy suff. Heat: diathermy. [New Latin -thermia, from Greek thermē, heat, from thermos, warm, hot. See g^wher- in Appendix.]

the-ro-pod (thîr'ə-pōd') n. Any of various carnivorous dinosaurs of the suborder Theropoda, of the Jurassic and Cretaceous periods, characterized by short forelimbs. [From New Latin Theropoda, suborder name : Greek thēr, wild beast; see ghwer- in Appendix + New Latin -poda, -pod.] —the-rop'o-dan (thî-rōp'ə-dən) adj. & n.

the-sau-rus (thî-sôr'əs) *n. pl. the-sau-ri (-sôr'ī') or the-sau-rus-es. 1. A book of synonyms, often including related and contrasting words and antonyms. 2. A book of selected words or concepts, such as a specialized vocabulary of a particular field, as of medicine or music. [Latin thēsauros, treasury, from Greek thēsauros.]*

these (thēz) pron. & adj. Plural of this. [Middle English, from Old English thæs, variant of thās, pl. of thes, this, this. See to- in Appendix.]

the-ses (thē'sēz) n. Plural of thesis.

The-se-us (thē'sē-əs, -syōōs') n. Greek Mythology. A hero and king of Athens who slew the Minotaur and united Attica. —The-se'an (thî-sē'an) adj.

the-sis (thē'sīs) n. pl. the-ses (-sēz). 1. A proposition that is maintained by argument. 2. A dissertation advancing an original point of view as a result of research, especially as a requirement for an academic degree. 3. A hypothetical proposition, especially one put forth without proof. 4. The first stage of the Hegelian dialectic process. 5. a. The long or accented part of a metrical foot, especially in quantitative verse. b. The unaccented or short part of a metrical foot, especially in accentual verse. 6. Music. The accented section of a measure. [Latin, from Greek, from tithenai, to put; see dhē- in Appendix. Sense 5 and 6, Middle English from Late Latin, lowering of the voice, from Greek, downbeat, from tithenai, to put.]

thes-pi-an (thēs'pē-ən) adj. 1. Of or relating to drama; dramatic: thespian talents. 2. Thespian. Of or relating to Thespis. — n. An actor or actress.

Thes-pis (thēs'pīs), Sixth century B.C. Greek poet who reputedly originated Greek tragedy.

Thes-sa-lo-ni-ans (thēs'ə-lō'nē-ənz) pl.n. (used with a sing. verb). Abbr. Th, Thess. Bible. A book of the Bible. See Table at Bible.

Thes·sa·lo·ní·ki (thě'sä-lô-nē'kē) also Thes·sa·lo·ni·ca (-lô-nī'kə, -lôn'ī-kə) or Sa·lo·ni·ka (sə-lôn'ī-kə, sāl'ə-nē'kə) A city of northeast Greece on an inlet of the Aegean Sea. Founded c. 315 B.C., it flourished after c. 146 as the capital of the Roman province of Macedon. Today it is a major port and the second-largest city in Greece. Population, 406,413.

Thes·sa·ly (thěs'ə-lē) A region of east-central Greece between the Pindus Mountains and the Aegean Sea. Settled before 1000 B.C., it reached the height of its power in the sixth century B.C. but soon declined because of internal conflicts. —Thes·sa'lian (thě-sā'lē-ən, -sāl'yən), Thes'sa·lo'ni-an (-lô'nē-ən) adj. & n.
the·ta (thā'tə, thē'-) n. The eighth letter of the Greek alphabet. [Greek thēta, of Phoenician origin; akin to Hebrew tēt, teth.]

theta rhythm (thā'tə rīth'əm) n. A waveform on an electroencephalogram having a frequency of 4 to 8 hertz, recorded chiefly in the hippocampus of carnivorous mammals when they are alert or aroused. Also called theta wave thet·ic (thět'ik, thē'tik) also thet·i·cal (thět'ī-kəl, thē'tī-) adj. 1. Beginning with, constituting, or relating to the thesis in prosody. 2. Presented dogmatically; arbitrarily prescribed. [Greek thetikos, from thetos, placed, from tithenai, to put. See dhē- in Appendix.] —thet'ic·al·ly adv.

Thet·ford Mines (thět'fərd mīnz) A city of southern Quebec, Canada, south of Quebec City. It developed as a mining center after the discovery of extensive asbestos deposits in 1876. Population, 19,965.

The·tis (thē'tis) n. Greek Mythology. One of the Nereids, the wife of Peleus and mother of Achilles.

the·ur·gy (thē'ûr-jē) n. pl. the·ur·gies. 1. Divine or supernatural intervention in human affairs. 2. The performance of miracles with supernatural assistance. 3. Magic performed with the aid of beneficent spirits, as formerly practiced by the Neo-Platonists. [Late Latin theurgia, from Greek theourgia, sacramental rite, mystery : theo-, theo- + -ourgia, -urgy.] —the·ur'gic, the·ur'gi·cal adj. —the·ur'gi·cal·ly adv. —the'ur·gist n.

thew (thyō) n. 1. A well-developed sinew or muscle. 2. Muscular power or strength. Often used in the plural. [Middle English, a virtue, from Old English thēaw, a custom, habit.] —thew'y adj.

they (thā) pron. 1. Used to refer to the ones previously mentioned or implied. 2. Usage Problem. Used to refer to the one previously mentioned or implied, especially as a substitute for generic he: Every person has rights under the law, but they don't always know them. See Usage Note at he¹. 3. a. Used to refer to people in general. b. Used to refer to people in general as seen in a position of authority. [Middle English, from Old Norse their, masculine pl. demonstrative and personal pron.. See to- in Appendix.]

they'd (thād) 1. They had. 2. They would.

they'll (thāl) 1. They will. 2. They shall.

they're (thâr) They are.

they've (thāv) They have.

thi- pref. Variant of thio-.

thi·a·ben·da·zole (thī'ə-bĕn'də-zōl') n. A white compound, C₁₀H₇N₃S, used medically as an antifungal agent and as an anthelmintic. [THIA(ZOLE) + BEN(ZO)- + (IMI)D(E) + AZOLE.]

thi·a·mine (thī'ə-mĭn, -mĕn') also thi·a·min (-mĭn) n. A vitamin, C₁₂H₁₇ClN₄OS, of the vitamin B complex, found in meat, yeast, and the bran coat of grains, and necessary for carbohydrate metabolism and normal neural activity. Also called vitamin B₁ [Alteration of thiamin : THI(O)- + (VIT)AMIN.]

thi·a·zide (thī'ə-zīd', -zīd) n. Any of a group of drugs that block reabsorption of sodium in the distal tubules of the kidneys, used as diuretics in the treatment of hypertension. [THI(O)- + AZ(O)- + -IDE.]

thi·a·zine (thī'ə-zĕn') n. Any of a class of organic chemical compounds containing a ring composed of one sulfur atom, one nitrogen atom, and four carbon atoms, used in making dyes.

thi·a·zole (thī'ə-zōl') n. 1. A colorless or pale yellow liquid, C₃H₃NS, containing a five-member ring composed of a nitrogen atom, a sulfur atom, and three carbon atoms, used in making dyes and fungicides. 2. Any of various derivatives of this compound.

Thi·bo·doux (tĭb'ə-dō') A city of southeast Louisiana west-southwest of New Orleans. It is a commercial, industrial, and processing center. Population, 15,810.

thick (thĭk) adj. thick·er, thick·est. 1. a. Relatively great in extent from one surface to the opposite, usually in the smallest solid dimension; not thin: a thick board. b. Measuring a specified number of units in this dimension: two inches thick. 2. Heavy in form, build, or stature; thickset: a thick neck. 3. Having component parts in a close, crowded state or arrangement; dense: a thick forest. 4. Having or suggesting a heavy or viscous consistency: thick tomato sauce. 5. Having a great number; abounding: a room thick with flies. 6. Impenetrable by the eyes: a thick fog. 7. a. Not easy to hear or understand; indistinctly articulated: the thick speech of a drunkard. b. Producing indistinctly articulated sounds: the thick tongues of barbarians. 8. Noticeably affecting sound; conspicuous: a thick brogue. 9. Informal. Lacking mental agility; stupid. 10. Informal. Very friendly; intimate: thick friends. 11. Informal. Going beyond what is tolerable; excessive. — adv. 1. In a thick manner; deeply or heavily: Seashells lay thick on the beach. 2. In a close, compact state or arrangement; densely: Dozens of braids hung thick from the back of her head. 3. So as to be thick; thickly: Slice the bread thick for the best French toast. — n. 1. The thickest part. 2. The most active or intense part: in the thick of the fighting. — idiom. thick and thin. Good and bad times: They remained friends through thick and thin. [Middle thick-en (thɪk'ən) v. tr. intr. thick-ened, thick-en-ing, thick-ens. 1. To make or become thick or thicker: Thicken the sauce with cornstarch. The crowd thickened near the doorway. 2. To make or become more intense, intricate, or complex: The leader's departure thickens the problems. Our apprehension thickened. —thick-en-er n.

English thicke, from Old English thicce. See tegu- in Appendix.] —thick/ish adj.

—thick/ly adv.

thick-en-ing (thɪk'ə-nɪŋ) n. 1. The act or process of making or becoming thick. 2. Material used to thicken: stir in a thickening of flour and water. 3. A thickened part.

thick-et (thɪk'ɪt) n. 1. A dense growth of shrubs or underbrush; a copse. 2. Something suggestive of a dense growth of plants, as in impenetrability or thickness: "the thicket of unreality which stands between us and the facts of life" (Daniel J. Boorstin). [Old English thiccet, from thicce, thick. See THICK.]

thick-head (thɪk'hɛd') n. A person regarded as stupid; a blockhead. —thick-head/ed adj.

thick-knee (thɪk'nē') n. Any of various widely distributed, chiefly nocturnal, curlewlike shore birds of the family Burhinidae, having large heads, large yellow eyes, and knobby leg joints.

thick milk (thɪk mɪlk) n. Pennsylvania. See clabber.

thick-ness (thɪk'nɪs) n. 1. The quality or condition of being thick. 2. The dimension between two surfaces of an object, usually the dimension of smallest measure. 3. A layer, sheet, stratum, or ply: Each floor is a single thickness of concrete.

thick-set (thɪk'sɛt') adj. 1. Having a solid, stocky form or body; stout. 2. Positioned or placed closely together.

thick-skinned (thɪk'skɪnd') adj. 1. Having a thick skin or rind. 2. Not easily offended. 3. Largely unaffected by the needs and feelings of other people; insensitive.

thick-wit-ted (thɪk'wɪt'ɪd) adj. Stupid; dull.

thief (thēf) n. pl. thieves (thēvz). One who steals, especially one who steals movable property by stealth rather than force. [Middle English, from Old English thēof.]

Thiers (tē-ēr'), Louis Adolphe. 1797-1877. French politician and historian who was the first president (1871-1873) of the republic formed after the fall of Napoleon III.

thieve (thēv) v. tr. intr. thieved, thiev-ing, thieves. To take (something) by theft or commit theft. [Perhaps from Old English thēofian, from thēof, thief.]

thiev-er-y (thē'və-rē) n. pl. thiev-er-ies. The act or practice of thieving.

thieves (thēvz) n. Plural of thief.

thiev-ish (thē'vīsh) adj. 1. Given to thieving. 2. Of, similar to, or characteristic of a thief; furtive.

thigh (thī) n. 1. a. The portion of the human leg between the hip and the knee. b. The corresponding part of the hind leg of a quadruped or other vertebrate animal. 2. The second segment of a bird's leg, containing the tibia and fibula. 3. The femur of an insect's leg. [Middle English, from Old English thēoh. See teuə- in Appendix.]

thigh-bone (thī'bōn') n. See femur (n., sense 1).

thig-mo-tax-is (thīg'mə-tāk'sīs) n. See stereotaxis (n., sense 2). [Greek thigma, touch (from thinganein, to touch); see dheigh- in Appendix + -TAXIS.] —thig'mo-tac'tic (-tāk'tīk) adj. —thig'mo-tac'ti-cal-ly adv.

thig-mot-ro-pism (thīg-mōt'rə-pīz'əm) n. The turning or bending response of an organism upon direct contact with a solid surface or object. Also called stereotropism [Greek thigma, touch; see THIGMOTAXIS + -TROPISM.]

—thig'mo-trop'ic (thīg'mə-trōp'īk, -trō'pīk) adj.

thill (thīl) n. Either of the two long shafts between which an animal is fastened when pulling a wagon. [Middle English thille, perhaps from Old English thille, plank.]

thim-ble (thīm'bəl) n. 1. A small cup made of metal, ceramic, plastic, leather, or other hard material, worn for protection on the finger that pushes the needle in sewing. 2. Any of various tubular sockets or sleeves in machinery. 3. Nautical. a. A metal ring fitted in an eye of a sail to prevent chafing. b. A metal ring around which a rope splice is passed. [Middle English thimbil, alteration of Old English thymel, leather finger covering, from thūma, thumb. See teuə- in Appendix.]

thim-ble-ber-ry (thīm'bəl-bēr'ē) n. 1. Any of several North American raspberries, especially Rubus parviflorus, R. occidentalis, or R. odoratus of the rose family, having thimble-shaped aggregate fruit. 2. The fruit of any of these plants.

thim-ble-ful (thīm'bəl-fōōl') n. 1. A very small quantity. 2. The amount that a thimble can hold.

thim-ble-rig (thīm'bəl-rīg') Games. n. 1. See shell game (n., sense 1).

2. One who operates a thimble-rig. — v. tr. thim-ble-rigged, thim-ble-rig-ging, thim-ble-rigs. To swindle with or as if with a thimble-rig. —thim'ble-rig'ger n.

thim-ble-weed (thīm'bəl-wēd') n. Any of several North American plants of the genus Anemone, having cylindrical, thimblelike fruit clusters.

Thim-bu (thīm'bōō', tīm'-) also Thim-phu (-pōō') The capital of Bhutan, in the western part of the country in the eastern Himalaya Mountains. Population, 8,982.

thi·mer·o·sal (thī-mēr'ə-sāl') n. A cream-colored crystalline powder, $C_9H_9HgNaO_2S$, used as a local antiseptic for abrasions and minor cuts. [THI(O)- + MER(CURY) + -O- + SAL(ICYLATE).]

Thim·phu (thīm'pōō', tīm'f-) See Thimbu.

thin (thĭn) adj. thin·ner, thin·nest. 1. a. Relatively small in extent from one surface to the opposite, usually in the smallest solid dimension: a thin book.

b. Not great in diameter or cross section; fine: thin wire. 2. Lean or slender in form, build, or stature. 3. a. Not dense or concentrated; sparse: the thin vegetation of the plateau. b. More rarefied than normal: thin air. 4. a. Flowing with relative ease; not viscous: a thin oil. b. Watery: thin soup. 5. Sparsely supplied or provided; scanty: a thin menu; thin trading. 6. Lacking force or substance; flimsy: a thin attempt. 7. Lacking resonance or fullness; tinny: The piano had a thin sound. 8. Lacking radiance or intensity: thin light. 9. Not having enough photographic density or contrast to make satisfactory prints. Used of a negative.

— adv. 1. In a thin manner: Spread the varnish thin if you don't want it to wrinkle. 2. So as to be thin: Cut the cheese thin. — v. tr. intr. thinned, thin·ning, thins. To make or become thin or thinner. [Middle English, from Old English thynne. See ten- in Appendix.] —thin'ly adv. —thin'ness n. —thin'nish adj.

thine (thīn) pron. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). Used to indicate the one or ones belonging to thee. — adj. A possessive form of thou¹. Used instead of thy before an initial vowel or h: “The presidential candidates are practicing the first rule of warfare: know thine enemy” (Eleanor Clift). [Middle English, from Old English thīn. See tu- in Appendix.]

thing (thĭng) n. 1. An entity, an idea, or a quality perceived, known, or thought to have its own existence. 2. a. The real or concrete substance of an entity. b. An entity existing in space and time. c. An inanimate object. 3. Something referred to by a word, a symbol, a sign, or an idea; a referent. 4. A creature: the poor little thing. 5. An individual object: There wasn't a thing in sight. 6. a. Law. That which can be possessed or owned. Often used in the plural: things personal; things real. b. things. Possessions; belongings: packed her things and left. c. An article of clothing: Put on your things and let's go. 7. things. The equipment needed for an activity or a special purpose: Where are my cleaning things? 8. An object or entity that is not or cannot be named specifically: What is this thing for? 9. a. An act, deed, or work: promised to do great things. b. The result of work or activity: is always building things. 10. A thought, a notion, or an utterance: What a rotten thing to say! 11. A piece of information: wouldn't tell me a thing about the project. 12. A means to an end: just the thing to increase sales. 13. An end or objective: In blackjack, the thing is to get nearest to 21 without going over. 14. A matter of concern: many things on my mind. 15. A turn of events; a circumstance: The accident was a terrible thing. 16. a. things. The general state of affairs; conditions:

“Beneath the smooth surface of things, something was wrong” (Tom Wicker). b. A particular state of affairs; a situation: Let’s deal with this thing promptly.

17. Informal. A persistent illogical feeling, as a desire or an aversion; an obsession: has a thing about seafood. 18. Informal. The latest fad or fashion; the rage: Drag racing was the thing then. 19. Slang. An activity uniquely suitable and satisfying to one: Let him do his own thing. See Synonyms at forte¹. — idioms. first thing. Informal. Right away; before anything else: Do your assignments first thing in the morning. see things (or hear things). To have hallucinations. sure thing. Informal. 3. A certainty: His election is a sure thing. 4. Of course; certainly: Sure thing, I’ll be there! [Middle English, from Old English thing.]

thing-a-ma-bob or thing-u-ma-bob (thɪŋg’ə-mə-bɒb’) also thing-um-bob (thɪŋg’əm-bɒb’) n. Informal. A thingamajig. [Alteration of thingumbob: thingum (from THING) + BOB².]

thing-a-ma-jig also thing-um-a-jig (thɪŋg’ə-mə-jɪg’) n. Informal. Something difficult to classify or whose name has been forgotten or is not known. [Alteration of obsolete thingum (from THING) + JIG.]

thing-in-itself (thɪŋg’ɪn-ɪt-sɛlf’) n. pl. things-in-them-selves (thɪŋgz’ɪn-thəm-sɛlvz’). Philosophy. See noumenon (n., sense 2). [Translation of German Ding an sich.]

thing-u-ma-bob (thɪŋg’ə-mə-bɒb’) n. Variant of thingamabob.

thing-um-a-jig (thɪŋg’ə-mə-jɪg’) n. Variant of thingamajig.

thing-um-bob (thɪŋg’əm-bɒb’) n. Variant of thingamabob.

think (thɪŋk) v. thought (thɒt), think-ing, thinks. — v. tr. 1. To have or formulate in the mind. 2. a. To reason about or reflect on; ponder: Think how complex language is. Think the matter through. b. To decide by reasoning, reflection, or pondering: thinking what to do. 3. To judge or regard; look upon: I think it only fair. 4. To believe; suppose: always thought he was right. 5. a. To expect; hope: They thought she’d arrive early. b. To intend: They thought they’d take their time. 6. To call to mind; remember: I can’t think what her name was. 7. To visualize; imagine: Think what a scene it will be at the reunion. 8. To devise or evolve; invent: thought up a plan to get rich quick. 9. To bring into a given condition by mental preoccupation: He thought himself into a panic over the impending examination. 10. To concentrate one’s thoughts on: “Think languor” (Diana Vreeland). — v. intr. 1. To exercise the power of reason, as by conceiving ideas, drawing inferences, and using judgment. 2. To weigh or consider an idea: They are thinking about moving. 3. a. To bring a thought to mind by imagination or invention: No one before had thought of bifocal glasses. b. To recall a thought or an image to mind: She thought of her childhood when she saw the movie. 4. To believe; suppose: He thinks of himself as a wit. It’s later than you think. 5. To have care or consideration: Think first of the ones you love. 6. To dispose the mind in a given way: Do you think so? — adj. Informal. Requiring much thought to create or assimilate: a think book. — n. The act or an instance of deliberate or extended thinking; a meditation. — idioms. come to think of it. Informal. When one considers the matter; on reflection: Come to think of it, that road back there was the one we were supposed to take. think aloud (or think out loud). To speak one's thoughts audibly. think nothing of. To give little consideration to; regard as routine or usual: thought nothing of a 50-mile trip every day. think twice. To weigh something carefully: I'd think twice before spending all that money on clothes. [Middle English thenken, from Old English thencan. See tong- in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: think, cerebrated, cogitate, reason, reflect, speculate. The central meaning shared by these verbs is "to use the powers of the mind, as in conceiving ideas or drawing inferences": thought before answering; sat in front of the fire cerebrating; cogitating about business problems; reasons clearly; took time to reflect before deciding; speculating on what has happened.

think-a-ble (thɪŋk'kə-bəl) adj. Possible to consider or be considered; conceivable: plans that were not even thinkable. — think'a-bly adv.

think-er (thɪŋk'kər) n. 1. One who devotes much time to thought or meditation. 2. One who thinks or reasons in a certain way: a careful thinker.

think-ing (thɪŋk'kɪŋ) n. 1. The act or practice of one that thinks; thought. 2. A way of reasoning; judgment: To my thinking, this is not a good idea. — adj. Characterized by thought or thoughtfulness; rational: We are thinking animals.

thinking cap (thɪŋk'kɪŋ kăp) n. A state in which one thinks, especially carefully: put on one's thinking cap.

think piece (thɪŋk pēs) n. A newspaper article consisting of news analysis, background material, and personal opinions.

think tank also think-tank (thɪŋk'tæŋk') n. A group or an institution organized for intensive research and solving of problems, especially in the areas of technology, social or political strategy, or armament.

thin-ner (thɪn'ər) n. A liquid, such as turpentine, mixed with paint or varnish to reduce its viscosity and make it easier to apply.

thin-skinned (thɪn'skɪnd') adj. 1. Having a thin rind or skin.

2. Oversensitive, especially to criticism or insult.

thio- or thi- pref. Containing sulfur, used especially of a compound in which oxygen has been replaced by a divalent sulfur: thiourea. [Greek theo-, from theion, sulfur.]

thi-o-car-ba-mide (thī'ō-kär'bə-mīd') n. See thiourea.

thi-o-cy-a-nate (thī'ō-sī'ə-nāt') n. A salt or an ester of thiocyanic acid.

thi-o-cy-an-ic acid (thī'ō-sī-än'ik əs'īd) n. An unstable colorless liquid, HSCN, used in the form of esters as an insecticide.

Thi-o-kol (thī'ə-kōl', -kōl', -kōl') A trademark used for any of various polysulfide polymers in the form of liquids, water dispersions, and rubbers used in seals and sealants.

thi-ol (thī'ôl', -ôl', -ôl') n. See mercaptan.

thion- pref. Sulfur: thionic. [From Greek theion, sulfur.]

thi-on-ic (thī-ôn'ik) adj. Of, relating to, containing, or derived from sulfur.

thi-o-nyl (thī'ə-nīl') n. See sulfinyl.

thi-o-pen-tal sodium (thī'ō-pĕn'tāl' sō'dĕ-əm, -tôl') n. A yellowish-white hygroscopic powder, $C_{11}H_{17}N_2O_2SNa$, injected intravenously as a general anesthetic and used in psychotherapy to induce a relaxed state. [THIO- + PENT(OBARBIT)AL SODIUM.]

thi-o-phene (thī'ə-fĕn') n. A colorless liquid, C_4H_4S , used as a solvent. [THIO- + -phene (variant of PHENO-).]

thi-o-rid-a-zine (thī'ə-rīd'ə-zĕn') n. A white or yellow powder, $C_{21}H_{26}N_2S_2$, a derivative of phenothiazine, that is used orally as a tranquilizer to treat various psychotic conditions. [THIO- + (PIPE)RID(INE) + AZINE.]

thi-o-sul-fate (thī'ō-sŭl'fāt') n. A salt or an ester of thiosulfuric acid.

thi-o-sul-fu-ric acid (thī'ō-sŭl'fyōōr'ik äs'īd) n. An acid, $H_2S_2O_3$, formed by replacement of an oxygen atom by a sulfur atom in sulfuric acid, known only in solution or by its salts and esters.

thi-o-te-pa (thī'ō-tĕ'pə, -tĕp'ə) n. A crystalline compound, $C_6H_{12}N_3PS$, a sulfur-containing analogue of tepa, used to treat certain malignant tumors.

thi-o-ur-a-cil (thī'ō-yōōr'ə-sīl') n. A white crystalline compound, $C_4H_4N_2OS$, that interferes with the synthesis of thyroxine, used to reduce the action of the thyroid gland, especially in the treatment of hyperthyroidism.

thi-o-u-re-a (thī'ō-yōō-rĕ'ə) n. A lustrous white crystalline compound, $(NH_2)_2CS$, used as a developer in photography and photocopying and in various organic syntheses. Also called thiocarbamide

Thi-ra (thīr'ə, thĕ'rä) Formerly San-to-rin (săn'tə-rĕn'). An island of southeast Greece in the southern Cyclades Islands north of Crete. The volcanic island has remains of important Minoan settlements.

third (thŭrd) n. 1. The ordinal number matching the number three in a series. 2. One of three equal parts. 3. Music. a. An interval of three degrees in a diatonic scale. b. A tone separated by three degrees from a given tone, especially the third tone of a scale. 4. The transmission gear or gear ratio used to produce forward speeds next higher to those of second in a motor vehicle. 5. Baseball. Third base. 6. thirds. Merchandise whose quality is below the standard set for seconds. [Middle English thridde, therdde, third, from Old English thridda. See trei- in Appendix.] —third adv. & adj.

- third base (thûrd bās) n. Baseball. 1. The third of the bases on the diamond counterclockwise from home plate; the last base to be reached by a runner before home plate. 2. The position played by the third baseman.
- third baseman (thûrd bās'mən) n. Baseball. The infielder stationed near third base.
- third class (thûrd klās) n. 1. A class of mail in the U.S. postal system including all printed matter, except newspapers and magazines, that weighs less than 16 ounces and is unsealed. 2. Accommodations, as on a ship or train, of the third and usually lowest order of luxury and price. —third'-class' (thûrd'klās') adv. & adj.
- third degree (thûrd dī-grē') n. Mental or physical torture used to obtain information or a confession from a prisoner.
- third-de-gree burn (thûrd'dī-grē' bûrn) n. A severe burn in which the skin and underlying tissues are destroyed and sensitive nerve endings are exposed.
- third dimension (thûrd dī-měn'shən) n. 1. The quality of depth or thickness in an object or a space. 2. The quality of seeming real or lifelike. —third'-di-men'sion-al (thûrd'dī-měn'shə-nəl) adj.
- third eye (thûrd ī) n. A sensory structure capable of light reception, located on the dorsal side of the diencephalon in various reptiles. Also called pineal eye
- third eyelid (thûrd ī'līd') n. See nictitating membrane.
- third force (thûrd fôrs) n. A group of people or nations that mediates between two opposed groups, such as hostile nations.
- third-hand (thûrd'händ') adj. 1. Acquired from or through two intermediate sources: a thirdhand report. 2. a. Previously used by two other owners. b. Dealing in merchandise previously used by two other owners. —third'hand' adv.
- third house (thûrd hous) n. A legislative lobby. [From its role with respect to the two houses of which many legislatures consist.]
- third-ly (thûrd'lē) adv. In the third place, rank, or order.
- Third Order (thûrd ôr'dər) n. Roman Catholic Church. A confraternity of laypersons associated with a religious order.
- third party (thûrd pär'tē) n. 1. A political party organized as opposition to the existing parties in a two-party system. 2. One other than the principals involved in a transaction: I pay rent to a third party, not directly to the landlord.
- third person (thûrd pûr'sən) n. Grammar. 1. a. A set of grammatical forms used in referring to a person or thing other than the speaker or the one spoken to. b. A grammatical form belonging to such a set. 2. Reference of a grammatical form to a person or thing other than the speaker or the one spoken to.
- third rail (thûrd rāl) n. The rail that supplies the high voltage to power a train on an electric railway.

third-rate (thûrd/'rāt') adj. Of third quality or value, especially of less quality or value than second-rate.

third-stream (thûrd/'strēm') adj. Music. Of, relating to, or being music that blends classical music with jazz improvisation. —third stream n.

Third World also third world (thûrd wûrld) n. 1. Underdeveloped or developing countries, especially those not allied with Communist countries.

2. Minority groups as a whole within a larger prevailing culture. —Third World'er (wûrl/'dər) n.

thirst (thûrst) n. 1. a. A sensation of dryness in the mouth and throat related to a need or desire to drink. b. The desire to drink. 2. An insistent desire; a craving: a thirst for knowledge. — v. intr. thirst-ed, thirst-ing, thirsts. 1. To feel a need to drink. 2. To have a strong craving; yearn. See Synonyms at yearn.

[Middle English, from Old English thurst. See ters- in Appendix.] —thirst'er n.

thirst-y (thûr/'stē) adj. thirst-i-er, thirst-i-est. 1. Desiring to drink. 2. Arid; parched: thirsty fields. 3. Craving something: thirsty for news. 4. Very absorbent: a thirsty sponge. —thirst'i-ly adv. —thirst'i-ness n.

thir-teen (thûr-tēn') n. 1. The cardinal number that is equal to the sum of 12 + 1. 2. The 13th in a set or sequence. 3. Something having 13 parts, units, or members. [Middle English thyrtene, alteration of thrittene, from Old English thrēotīne. See trei- in Appendix.] —thir-teen' adj. & pron.

thir-teenth (thûr-tēnth') n. 1. The ordinal number matching the number 13 in a series. 2. One of 13 equal parts. —thir-teenth' adv. & adj.

thir-ti-eth (thûr'tē-ĭth) n. 1. The ordinal number matching the number 30 in a series. 2. One of 30 equal parts. —thir'ti-eth adv. & adj.

thir-ty (thûr'tē) n. pl. thir-ties. 1. The cardinal number equal to 3×10 . 2. thirties. a. Often Thirties. The decade from 30 to 39 in a century. b. A decade or the numbers from 30 to 39: They settled down in their thirties. The temperature fell into the thirties. 3. An indication of the end of a news story, usually written 30. 4. Sports. The second point that is scored by one side in tennis. [Middle English thritty, thirty, from Old English thrītig. See trei- in Appendix.] —thir'ty adj. & pron.

thir-ty-second note (thûr'tē-sĕk'ənd nōt) n. Music. A musical note with a time value equivalent to $\frac{1}{32}$ of a whole note.

thir-ty-two-mo (thûr'tē-toō'mō) n. pl. thir-ty-two-mos. Printing. 1. The page size (32 by 52 inches) that results when a printer's sheet is folded into 32 equal sections. 2. A book composed of pages of this size.

this (thĭs) pron. pl. these (thēz). 1. a. Used to refer to the person or thing present, nearby, or just mentioned: This is my cat. These are my tools. b. Used to refer to what is about to be said: Now don't laugh when you hear this. c. Used to refer to the present event, action, or time: said he'd be back before this. 2. Used to indicate the nearer or the more immediate one: This is mine and that is yours.

— adj. pl. these. 1. Being just mentioned or present in space, time, or thought: She left early this morning. 2. Being nearer or more immediate: this side and that side. 3. Being about to be stated or described: Just wait till you hear this story. 4. Informal. Used as an emphatic substitute for the indefinite article: looking for this book of recipes. — adv. To this extent; so: never stayed out this late. [Middle English, from Old English. See to- in Appendix.]

USAGE NOTE: This and that are both used as demonstrative pronouns to refer to a thought expressed earlier: The letter was unopened; that (or this) in itself casts doubt on the inspector's theory. That is sometimes prescribed as the better choice in referring to what has gone before (as in the preceding example). When the referent is yet to be mentioned, only this is used: This (not that) is what bothers me. We have no time to consider late applications. • This is often used in speech and informal writing as an emphatic substitute for the use of the indefinite article to refer to a specific thing or person: You should talk to this friend of mine at the Department of Motor Vehicles. I have this terrible feeling that I forgot to turn off the gas. This informal usage is best avoided in formal writing except where conversational tone is deliberately being sought. See Usage Note at that.

this-a-way (thɪs'ə-wā') adv. Southern U.S. & Midland U.S. This way. See Regional note at thataway.

This-be (thɪz'bē) n. Greek Mythology & Roman Mythology. The young woman of Babylon who killed herself after the suicide of her lover, Pyramus.

this-tle (thɪs'əl) n. 1. Any of numerous weedy plants, chiefly of the genera Cirsium, Carduus, or Onopordum of the composite family, having prickly leaves and variously colored flower heads surrounded by prickly bracts. 2. Any of various similar or related plants. [Middle English, from Old English thistel.]

thistle butterfly (thɪs'əl bʊt'ər-flī') n. See painted lady. [So called because its larvae eat thistles.]

this-tle-down (thɪs'əl-doun') n. The silky down attached to the seedlike fruit of a thistle; pappus.

thith-er (thɪθ'ər, thɪθ'-) adv. To or toward that place; in that direction; there: running hither and thither. — adj. Located or being on the more distant side; farther: the thither side of the pond. [Middle English, from Old English thider. See to- in Appendix.]

thith-er-to (thɪθ'ər-tō, thɪθ'-) adv. Up to that time; until then.

thith-er-ward (thɪθ'ər-wərd, thɪθ'-) adv. In that direction; thither.

thix-ot-ro-py (thɪk-sət'rə-pē) n. The property exhibited by certain gels of becoming fluid when stirred or shaken and returning to the semisolid state upon standing. [Greek thixis, touch (from thinganein, thig-, to touch); see dheigh- in Appendix + -TROPY.] — thix'o-trop'ic (thɪk'sə-trɒp'ɪk) adj.

Th.M. abbr. Latin. Theologiae Magister (Master of Theology).

tho also tho' (thō) conj. & adv. Informal. Though.

Tho·hoy·an·dou (tō-hoi'ān-dōō') The capital of Venda, an enclave in north-east South Africa. Population, 2,366.

thole (thōl) n. Nautical. A thole pin.

thole pin (thōl pīn) n. Nautical. A wooden peg set in pairs in the gunwales of a boat to serve as an oarlock. [Middle English tholle, from Old English thol. See teuə- in Appendix.]

Thom·as (tōm'əs), Saint. One of the 12 Apostles. According to the New Testament, he doubted that Jesus had risen from the dead until he saw the wounds.

Thom·as (tō-mă'), Ambroise. 1811-1896. French composer noted for his operas, particularly Mignon (1866).

Thom·as (tōm'əs), Augustus. 1857-1934. American playwright whose works include The Capital (1895) and The Witching Hour (1907).

Thom·as (tōm'əs), Clarence. Born 1948. American jurist who was appointed an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court in 1991.

Thom·as (tōm'əs), Dylan Marlais. 1914-1953. Welsh poet known for his bardic voice experiments with syllabic verse. He wrote highly personal poems, such as "Fern Hill" (1946), as well as essays, short fiction, and works for radio, including Under Milk Wood (1954).

Thom·as (tōm'əs), E(dward) Donnall. Born 1920. American physician. He shared a 1990 Nobel Prize for developing techniques for transplanting bone marrow.

Thom·as (tōm'əs), George Henry. 1816-1870. American Union general who fought at the Battle of Shiloh (1862) and was renowned for his stalwart defense during the Union defeat at Chickamauga (1863).

Thom·as (tōm'əs), Isaiah. 1749-1831. American publisher who founded the Massachusetts Spy, an anti-British newspaper (1770), and produced many books, including the first English Bible printed in the colonies.

Thom·as (tōm'əs), Lowell Jackson. 1892-1981. American radio commentator who was a correspondent during both World Wars, broadcast a nightly news program (1930-1976), and wrote and lectured widely on his travel adventures.

Thom·as (tōm'əs), Martha Carey. 1857-1935. American educator. A founder of Bryn Mawr College (1885), she also campaigned for woman's suffrage.

Thom·as (tōm'əs), Norman Mattoon. 1884-1968. American socialist leader. A founder of the American Civil Liberties Union (1920), he was the Socialist Party candidate for President six times between 1928 and 1948.

Thom·as (tōm'əs), Seth. 1785-1859. American clockmaker and a pioneer in the mass production of clocks.

Thomas à Kem·pis (tõm'əs ə kēm'pīs, ä), 1380?-1471. German ecclesiastic and writer of devotional literature, most probably including The Imitation of Christ (1426).

Thomas A·qui·nas (tõm'əs ə-kwī'nəs), Saint. See Saint Thomas Aquinas.

Thomas of Er·cel·doune (tõm'əs üv ûr'səl-dõn'), Known as "Thomas the Rhymer." fl. 1220-1297. Scottish poet and seer. The reputed author of the romance Sir Tristram, he is associated with Merlin and other legendary soothsayers.

Thom·as·ville (tõm'əs-vīl') A city of southern Georgia south-southwest of Moultrie. It is a farm trade center and winter resort. Population, 17,457.

Tho·mism (tõ'mīz'əm) n. The theological and philosophical system of Saint Thomas Aquinas, a system that dominated scholasticism. —Tho'mist n. —Tho-mis'tic adj.

Thomp·son (tõmp'sən, tõm'-), Benjamin Count Rumford. 1753-1814.

American-born British public official and physicist who conducted numerous experiments on heat and friction, concluding that heat is produced by moving particles.

Thomp·son (tõmp'sən, tõm'-), David. 1770-1857. Canadian explorer who followed the Columbia River to its mouth (1811) and mapped much of western Canada.

Thomp·son (tõmp'sən, tõm'-), Dorothy. 1894-1961. American journalist whose radio broadcasts and widely syndicated column "On the Record" (1936-1941) informed Americans of the impending threat of Nazi Germany.

Thomp·son (tõmp'sən, tõm'-), Francis. 1859-1907. British poet whose works, influenced by Keats and Shelley, include "The Hound of Heaven" (1893).

Thomp·son (tõmp'sən, tõm'-), Sir John Sparrow David. 1844-1894. Canadian politician who served as prime minister (1892-1894).

Thomp·son (tõmp'sən, tõm'-), Smith. 1768-1843. American jurist who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1823-1843).

Thompson River (tõmp'sən rīv'ər) A river, about 489 km (304 mi) long, of southern British Columbia, Canada, formed by the confluence of northern and southern branches and flowing west and southwest to the Fraser River. It was discovered by Simon Fraser in 1808.

Thompson submachine gun (tõmp'sən süb'mə-shēn' gūn) n. A.45-caliber submachine gun. [After John Taliaferro Thompson (1860-1940), American army officer.]

Thom·son (tõm'sən), Elihu. 1853-1937. British-born American electrical engineer and inventor who with Thomas Edison formed the General Electric Company (1892). His inventions include the street arc lamp.

Thom·son (tǒm'sən), Sir George Paget. 1892-1975. British physicist. He shared a 1937 Nobel Prize for the discovery of the diffraction of electrons by crystals.

Thom·son¹ (tǒm'sən), James. 1700-1748. Scottish-born British poet whose works, most notably The Seasons (1726-1730) and The Castle of Indolence (1748), presaged romanticism.

Thom·son² (tǒm'sən), James. Pen name “Bysshe Vanolis” or “B.V.” Known as “the Poet of Despair.” 1834-1882. Scottish-born British poet whose pessimistic works include The City of Dreadful Night (1874).

Thom·son (tǒm'sən), Sir Joseph John. 1856-1940. British physicist. He won a 1906 Nobel Prize for investigating the electrical conductivity of gases.

Thom·son (tǒm'sən), Virgil Garnett. 1896-1989. American composer and music critic known for the opera Four Saints in Three Acts (1927), with a libretto by Gertrude Stein.

Thom·son's gazelle (tǒm'sənz gə-zěl') n. A small gazelle (Gazella thomsoni) of eastern Africa, having a broad black stripe on each side of the body. [After Joseph Thomson (1858-1895), Scottish geologist and explorer.]

thong (thông, thǒng) n. 1. A narrow strip, as of leather, used for binding or lashing. 2. A whip of plaited leather or cord. 3. A sandal held on the foot by a strip that fits between the first and second toes and is connected to a strap usually passing over the top or around the sides of the foot. [Middle English, from Old English thwong.]

Thor (thôr) n. Mythology. The Norse god of thunder. [Old Norse Thōrr. See (s)tenə- in Appendix.]

tho·ra·ces (thôr'ə-sēz', thōr'-) n. A plural of thorax.

tho·rac·ic (thə-rās'ik) adj. Of, relating to, or situated in or near the thorax: the thoracic vertebrae; the thoracic cavity. —tho·rac'i·cal·ly adv.

thoracic duct (thə-rās'ik dūkt) n. The main duct of the lymphatic system, ascending through the thoracic cavity in front of the spinal column and discharging lymph and chyle into the blood through the left subclavian vein.

tho·ra·co·lum·bar (thôr'ə-kō-lūm'bər, -bār, thōr'-) adj. 1. Of or relating to the thoracic and lumbar parts of the spinal column. 2. Of or relating to the thoracic and lumbar nerves.

tho·ra·co·plas·ty (thôr'ə-kō-plās'tē, thōr'-) n. pl. tho·ra·co·plas·ties. Surgical removal of part of the ribs to cause the collapse of a diseased lung. [Latin thōrāx, thōrāc-, thorax; see THORAX + -PLASTY.]

tho·ra·cot·o·my (thôr'ə-kōt'ə-mē, thōr'-) n. pl. tho·ra·cot·o·mies. Surgical incision of the chest wall. [Latin thōrāx, thōrāc-, thorax + -TOMY.]

tho·rax (thôr'āk's, thōr'-) n. pl. tho·rax·es or tho·ra·ces (thôr'ə-sēz', thōr'-). 1. The part of the human body between the neck and the diaphragm, partially encased by the ribs and containing the heart and lungs; the chest. 2. A part in other vertebrates that corresponds to the human thorax. 3. The second or middle region of the body of an arthropod, between the head and the abdomen, in insects bearing the true legs and wings. [Middle English, from Latin thōrāx, breastplate, chest, from Greek thōrax.]

Tho·ra·zine (thôr'ə-zēn', thōr'-) A trademark used for chlorpromazine.

Tho·reau (thə-rō', thōr'ō), Henry David. 1817-1862. American writer. A seminal figure in the history of American thought, he spent much of his life in Concord, Massachusetts, where he became associated with the New England transcendentalists and lived for two years on the shore of Walden Pond (1845-1847). His works include "Civil Disobedience" (1849) and Walden (1854).

—Tho·reau'vi·an (-vĕ-ən) adj.

Tho·rez (tô-rĕz'), Maurice. 1900-1964. French politician who led the French Communist Party from 1930 to 1964.

Thor·finn Karl·sef·ni (thôr'fĭn kār'l'sĕv-nĕ), fl. c. 1000. Icelandic navigator and explorer of the northeast coast of North America.

tho·ri·a (thôr'ĕ-ə, thōr'-) n. See thorium dioxide. [From THORIUM.]

tho·ric (thôr'ĭk, thōr'-, thōr'-) adj. Of, relating to, or containing thorium.

[THOR(IUM) + -IC.]

tho·rite (thôr'īt', thōr'-) n. A vitreous brownish-yellow to black radioactive mineral, essentially ThSiO_4 , an ore of thorium. [THOR(IUM) + -ITE¹.]

tho·ri·um (thôr'ĕ-əm, thōr'-) n. Symbol Th A radioactive silvery-white metallic element that is recovered commercially from monazite. Its longest-lived isotope, the only one that occurs naturally, is Th 232 with a half-life of 1.41×10^{10} years. It is used in magnesium alloys, and isotope 232 is a source of nuclear energy.

Atomic number 90; atomic weight 232.038; approximate melting point $1,750^\circ\text{C}$; approximate boiling point $4,500^\circ\text{C}$; approximate specific gravity 11.7; valence 4.

[After THOR.]

thorium dioxide (thôr'ĕ-əm dī-ōk'sīd) n. A heavy white powder, ThO_2 , obtained from monazite and used mainly in ceramics, glass, and gas mantles and as a catalyst. Also called thoria thorn (thôrn) n. 1. Botany. a. A modified branch in the form of a sharp, woody spine. b. Any of various shrubs, trees, or woody plants bearing sharp, woody spines. 2. Any of various sharp, spiny protuberances; a prickle. 3. One that causes sharp pain, irritation, or discomfort: He is a thorn in my side. 4. The runic letter originally representing either sound of the Modern English th, as in the and thin, used in Old English and Middle English manuscripts. [Middle English, from Old English.] —thorn'less adj.

thorn apple (thôrn äp'əl) n. See datura.

thorn·back (thôrn'băk') n. 1. A European ray (Raja clavata) having spines along the back. 2. A fish (Platyrrhoidis triseriata) of Pacific waters, related to the guitarfish.

Thorn-dike (thôrn/'dik'), Edward Lee. 1874-1949. American educational psychologist noted for his study of animal intelligence and his methods of measuring intelligence.

Thorn-dike (thôrn/'dik'), Dame Sybil. 1882-1976. British actress who created the title role in George Bernard Shaw's Saint Joan (1924) and was known for her great versatility.

Thorn-ton (thôrn/'tən) A city of north-central Colorado, a suburb of Denver. Population, 55,031.

Thorn-ton (thôrn/'tən), William. 1759-1828. American architect of the original design of the U.S. Capitol (1792). He was also the first superintendent of the U.S. Patent Office (1802-1828).

thorn-y (thôr/'nē) adj. thorn-i-er, thorn-i-est. 1. Full of or covered with thorns. 2. Spiny. 3. Painfully controversial; vexatious: a thorny situation; thorny issues. —thorn/i-ly adv. —thorn/i-ness n.

Tho-rol (thôr/'æld, thôr'/-) A city of southeast Ontario, Canada, on the Welland Ship Canal southeast of St. Catharines. It is an industrial center. Population, 15,412.

tho-ron (thôr/'ön', thôr'/-) n. A radioactive isotope of radon, Rn 220, having a half-life of 54.5 seconds and produced by the disintegration of thorium.
[THOR(IUM) + -ON².]

thor-ough (thûr/'ō, thûr'ō) adj. 1. Exhaustively complete: a thorough search. 2. Painstakingly accurate or careful: thorough research. 3. Absolute; utter: a thorough pleasure. — prep. & adv. Archaic. Variant of through. [Middle English thorow, through, thorough, from Old English thuruh, from end to end, through. See terə-² in Appendix.] —thor'ough-ly adv. —thor'ough-ness n.

thor-ough-bass or thor-ough bass (thûr/'ō-bās', thûr'ə-, thûr'/-) n. Music. See continuo.

thorough brace (thûr/'ō brās) n. One of several leather bands passed from front to back of a carriage, supporting it and serving as a spring. —thor'ough-braced' (thûr/'ō-brāst', thûr'/-) adj.

thor-ough-bred (thûr/'ō-brēd', thûr'ə-, thûr'/-) n. 1. A purebred or pedigreed animal, especially a horse. 2. Thoroughbred. Any of a breed of horses, bred chiefly for racing, originating from a cross between Arabian stallions and English mares. 3. A well-bred person. — adj. 1. Bred of pure stock; purebred. 2. Thoroughbred. Relating or belonging to horses of the Thoroughbred. 3. Thoroughly trained or educated; well bred.

thor-ough-fare (thûr/'ō-fâr', thûr'ə-, thûr'/-) n. 1. A main road or public highway. 2. a. A place of passage from one location to another. b. Right to such passage. 3. A heavily traveled passage, such as a waterway, strait, or channel. [Middle English thurghfare: thurgh, thorow, through; see THOROUGH + fare, road (from Old English faru, fær, from faran, to go); see FARE.]

thor·ough·go·ing (thûr'ô-gô'ing, thûr'ə-, thûr'-) adj. 1. Very thorough; complete: thoroughgoing research. 2. Unmitigated; unqualified: a thoroughgoing villain.

thor·ough·paced (thûr'ô-pâst', thûr'ə-, thûr'-) adj. 1. Trained in all paces or gaits, as a horse. 2. Thoroughgoing; complete.

thor·ough·pin (thûr'ô-pîn', thûr'ə-, thûr'-) n. An abnormal swelling on either side of the hock joint of horses and related animals.

thor·ough·wort (thûr'ô-wûrt', -wôrt', thûr'ə-, thûr'-) n. See boneset.
[THOROUGH, through (from the fact that its branches appear to grow through the leaves) + WORT¹.]

thorp (thôrp) n. Archaic. A hamlet. [Middle English, from Old English thorp. See treb- in Appendix.]

Thorpe (thôrp), James Francis. Known as "Jim." 1888-1953. American athlete. An outstanding collegiate football player, he later played professional football and baseball. He won the decathlon and pentathlon in the 1912 Olympics but was later disqualified because of his professional status.

Thor·vald·sen or Thor·wald·sen (tôr'wôl'sən, thôr'-, tōor'vâl'-), (Albert Bertel. 1768?-1844. Danish sculptor. A leading neoclassicist, he executed sculptures of mythological characters, including Hebe (1806), and monuments, such as the Lion of Lucerne (1819).

those (thōz) pron. & adj. Plural of that. [Middle English thos, from Old English thās, these. See THESE.]

Toth (thōth, tōt) n. Mythology. The Egyptian god of the moon and of wisdom and learning.

thou¹ (thou) pron. Used to indicate the one being addressed, especially in a literary, liturgical, or devotional context. [Middle English, from Old English thū, second person nominative sing. personal pron.. See tu- in Appendix.]

thou² (thou) n. Slang. A thousand, especially of dollars.

though (thō) conj. 1. Despite the fact that; although: He still argues, though he knows he's wrong. Even though it was raining, she walked to work. 2. Conceding or supposing that; even if: Though they may not succeed, they will still try. See Usage Note at although. — adv. 1. However; nevertheless: Snow is not predicted; we can expect some rain, though. 2. Informal. Used as an intensive: Wouldn't that beat all, though? [Middle English, of Scandinavian origin. See to- in Appendix.]

thought (thôt) v. Past tense and past participle of think. — n. 1. The act or process of thinking; cogitation. 2. A product of thinking. See Synonyms at idea. 3. The faculty of thinking or reasoning. 4. The intellectual activity or production of a particular time or group: ancient Greek thought; deconstructionist thought. 5. Consideration; attention: didn't give much thought to what she said. 6. a. Intention; purpose. There was no thought of coming home early. b. Expectation or conception: She had no thought that anything was wrong. 7. A trifle; a bit: You could be a thought more considerate. [Middle English, from Old English gethōht, thōht. See tong- in Appendix.]

thought·ful (thôt'fəl) adj. 1. Engrossed in thought; contemplative.

2. Exhibiting or characterized by careful thought: a thoughtful essay. 3. Having or showing heed for the well-being or happiness of others and a propensity for anticipating their needs or wishes. —thought'ful-ly adv. —thought'-ful-ness n.

SYNONYMS: thoughtful, considerate, attentive, solicitous. These adjectives mean having or showing concern for the well-being of others. Although thoughtful and considerate are often used interchangeably, thoughtful implies a tendency to anticipate needs or wishes, whereas considerate stresses sensitivity to another's feelings: It was thoughtful of you to bring flowers. Apartment dwellers who have considerate neighbors are fortunate. Attentive suggests devoted, assiduous attention: The nurse was attentive to his patient, constantly checking to be sure she was comfortable. Solicitous implies deep concern that often verges on anxiety or expresses itself in exaggerated and sometimes cloying attentiveness: For heaven's sake, Mother, I am an adult! Stop being so solicitous. See also Synonyms at pensive thought·less (thôt'lis) adj. 1. Marked by or showing lack of due thought or care; careless. See Synonyms at careless. 2. Inconsiderate; inattentive: a thoughtless remark. 3. Lacking thought: The debate turned into thoughtless bickering. —thought'less-ly adv. —thought'less-ness n.

thought reading (thôt rē'dɪŋ) n. Mind reading.

thou·sand (thou'zənd) n. The cardinal number equal to 10×100 or 10^3 . [Middle English, from Old English thūsend. See teuə- in Appendix.]

—thou'sand adj. & pron.

Thou·sand Island dressing (thou'zənd ī'lənd drēs'ɪŋ) n. A salad dressing made with mayonnaise, chili sauce, and seasonings. [Perhaps after the Thousand Islands.]

Thousand Islands (thou'zənd ī'ləndz) A group of more than 1,800 islands of northern New York and southeast Ontario, Canada, in the St. Lawrence River at the outlet of Lake Ontario. The islands, some of which are privately owned, are a popular resort area.

Thousand Oaks (thou'zənd ōks) A city of southern California west of Los Angeles. Mainly residential, it has some light industry. Population, 104,352.

thou·sandth (thou'zəndth, -zənth) n. 1. The ordinal number matching the number 1,000 in a series. 2. One of 1,000 equal parts. —thou'sandth adv. & adj.

thp also t.hp. abbr. Thrust horsepower.

Thrace (thrās) A region and ancient country of the southeast Balkan Peninsula north of the Aegean Sea. In ancient times it extended as far north as the Danube River. The region was colonized by Greeks in the seventh century B.C. and later passed under the control of Rome, Byzantium, and Ottoman Turkey. Northern Thrace was annexed by Bulgaria in 1885, and eastern Thrace passed to Turkey in 1923.

Thra·cian (thrā'shən) adj. Of or relating to Thrace or its people. — n. 1. A native or inhabitant of Thrace. 2. The Indo-European language of the ancient Thracians.

Thrale (thrāl), Mrs. See Hester Lynch Piozzi.

thrall (thrôl) n. 1. a. One, such as a slave or serf, who is held in bondage. b. One who is intellectually or morally enslaved. 2. Servitude; bondage: “a people in thrall to the miracles of commerce” (Lewis H. Lapham). — v. tr. thralled, thrall·ing, thralls. Archaic. To enslave. [Middle English, from Old English thræl, from Old Norse thræll.] —thrall/·dom, thral/·dom n.

thrash (thrāsh) v. thrashed, thrash·ing, thrash·es. — v. tr. 1. To beat with or as if with a flail, especially as a punishment. See Synonyms at beat. 2. To swing or strike in a manner suggesting the action of a flail: The alligator thrashed its tail. 3. To defeat utterly; vanquish. 4. To thresh. 5. Nautical. To sail (a boat) against opposing winds or tides. — v. intr. 1. To move wildly or violently: thrashed about all night. 2. To strike or flail. 3. To thresh. 4. Nautical. To sail against opposing tides or winds. — n. The act or an instance of thrashing. —phrasal verb. thrash out. To discuss fully. [Variant of THRESH.] —thrash/·er n.

thrash·er (thrāsh'ər) n. Any of various New World songbirds of the genus Toxostoma, related to the mockingbird and having a long tail, a long curved beak, and usually a brown head and back. [Perhaps alteration of THRUSH¹.]

thrash·ing (thrāsh'ing) n. A severe beating.

thra·son·i·cal (thrā-sōn'ī-kəl, thrə-) adj. Boastful. [After Thrasō, a character in Eunuchus, a play by Terence.] —thra·son/·i·cal·ly adv.

Thras·y·bu·lus (thrās'ə-byōō'ləs), Died c. 389 B.C. Athenian military and political leader who led the overthrow (403) of the tyrannical oligarchy established by Sparta in Athens.

thread (thrēd) n. 1. a. Fine cord of a fibrous material, such as cotton or flax, made of two or more filaments twisted together and used in needlework and the weaving of cloth. b. A piece of such cord. 2. a. A thin strand, cord, or filament of natural or manufactured material. b. Something that suggests the fineness or thinness of such a strand, cord, or filament: a thread of smoke. c. Something that suggests the continuousness of such a strand, cord, or filament: lost the thread of his argument. 3. A helical or spiral ridge on a screw, nut, or bolt. 4. threads. Slang. Clothes. — v. thread·ed, thread·ing, threads. — v. tr. 1. a. To pass one end of a thread through the eye of (a needle, for example). b. To pass (something) through in the manner of a thread: thread the wire through the opening. c. To pass a tape or film into or through (a device): thread a film projector. d. To pass (a tape or film) into or through a device. 2. To connect by running a thread through; string: thread beads. 3. a. To make one's way cautiously through: threading dark alleys. b. To make (one's way) cautiously through something. 4. To occur here and there throughout; pervade: "More than 90 geologic faults thread the Los Angeles area" (Science News). 5. To machine a thread on (a screw, nut, or bolt). — v. intr. 1. To make one's way cautiously: threaded through the shoals and sandbars. 2. To proceed by a winding course. 3. To form a thread when dropped from a spoon, as boiling sugar syrup. [Middle English, from Old English thræd. See terə⁻¹ in Appendix.] —thread'er n.

thread·bare (thrēd'bâr') adj. 1. Having the nap worn down so that the filling or warp threads show through; frayed or shabby: threadbare rugs. 2. Wearing old, shabby clothing. 3. Overused to the point of being worn out; hackneyed: threadbare excuses. See Synonyms at trite.

thread·fin (thrēd'fīn') n. pl. threadfin or thread·fins. Any of various chiefly tropical marine fishes of the family Polynemidae, having threadlike rays extending from the lower part of the pectoral fin.

thread·worm (thrēd'wûrm') n. See pinworm.

thread·y (thrēd'ē) adj. thread·i·er, thread·i·est. 1. Consisting of or resembling thread; filamentous. 2. Capable of forming or tending to form threads; viscid. 3. Medicine. Weak and shallow. Used of a pulse. 4. Lacking fullness of tone; thin: a thready voice. —thread/i·ness n.

threat (thrēt) n. 1. An expression of an intention to inflict pain, injury, evil, or punishment. 2. An indication of impending danger or harm. 3. One that is regarded as a possible danger; a menace. — v. tr. threat·ed, threat·ing, threats. Archaic. To threaten. [Middle English, from Old English thrēat, oppression. See treud- in Appendix.]

threat·en (thrēt'n) v. threat·ened, threat·en·ing, threat·ens. — v. tr. 1. To express a threat against. 2. To be a source of danger to; menace. 3. To give signs or warning of; portend. 4. To announce the possibility of in a threat. — v. intr. 1. To express or use threats. 2. To indicate danger or harm. —threat'en·er n. —threat'en·ing·ly adv.

SYNONYMS: threaten, menace, intimidate. These verbs mean to foretell or give signs of impending peril, evil, or injury. Threaten most often refers to an indication of something disquieting or ominous, to appearance or action calculated or serving to deter, or to something that is a source of danger: "a crack that threatened to become a split" (Booth Tarkington). "No future peace can be maintained if... armaments continue to be employed by nations which threaten, or may threaten, ag- gression outside of their frontiers” (Atlantic Charter). “The heretics were persecuted... because their beliefs threatened the vested interest of that day” (James Harvey Robinson). Menace frequently stresses a frightening or hostile intention, effect, or result: “A new and formidable danger menaced the western frontier” (Macaulay). To intimidate is to threaten and fill with fear: “an overall strategy by [the country’s] leaders to reaffirm their revolutionary credentials in the eyes of the... world, to intimidate smaller countries in the region” (Elaine Sciolino).

threat-ened (thrēt’nd) adj. Ecology. At risk of becoming endangered. Used of a plant or an animal.

three (thrē) n. 1. The cardinal number equal to the sum of 2 + 1. 2. The third in a set or sequence. 3. Something having three parts, units, or members. [Middle English, from Old English thrī. See trei- in Appendix.] —three adj. & pron.

three-bag-ger (thrē’bäg’ər) n. Baseball. See three-base hit.

three-base hit (thrē’bās’ hīt) n. Baseball. A base hit that allows the batter to reach third base without being put out. Also called three-bagger, triple.

three-card monte (thrē’kärd mön’tē) n. Games. A gambling game in which the dealer shows a player three cards, then turns them face down and moves them around, and the player must guess the position of a particular card.

three-col-or (thrē’kül’ər) adj. Of, relating to, or being a color printing or photographic process in which three primary colors are transferred by three different plates or filters to a surface, reproducing all the colors of the subject matter.

3-D or 3D also three-D (thrē’dē’) adj. Three-dimensional. — n. A three-dimensional medium, display, or performance, especially a cinematic or graphic medium in three dimensions: They shot the movie in 3-D.

three-deck-er (thrē’dēk’ər) n. 1. Nautical. A ship having three decks, especially one of a class of sail-powered warships with guns on three decks.

2. Something with three levels or layers, as: a. A three-story apartment building.

b. A sandwich having three slices of bread.

three-di-men-sion-al (thrē’dī-měn’shə-nəl, -dī-) adj. 1. Of, relating to, having, or existing in three dimensions. 2. Having or appearing to have extension in depth. 3. Treating many aspects of a subject; lifelike: a three-dimensional account of conditions under the new government.

three-gait-ed (thrē’gā’tid) adj. Trained in the walk, trot, and canter. Used of a horse.

three-leg-ged race (thrē’lēg’id rās, -lēgd’) n. Games. A race in which contestants run in pairs with their near legs tied together.

Three Mile Island (thrē mīl ī’lənd) An island in the Susquehanna River in southeast Pennsylvania southeast of Harrisburg. It was the site of a major nuclear accident on March 28, 1979, when a partial meltdown released radioactive material and forced the evacuation of thousands of nearby residents.

- three-mile limit (thrē'mīl' līm'it) n. Law. The outer limit of the area extending three miles out to sea from the coast of a country, sometimes considered to constitute the country's territorial waters.
- three-pence (thrēp'əns, thrīp'-, thrūp'-) n. pl. threepence or three-penc-es. 1. A coin worth three pennies, formerly used in Great Britain. 2. The sum of three pennies.
- three-penny (thrēp'ə-nē, thrīp'-, thrūp'-) adj. 1. Worth or priced at threepence. 2. Very small; trifling.
- three-piece (thrē'pēs') adj. Made in or consisting of three parts or pieces, as a suit consisting of a jacket, trousers, and a vest.
- three-ply (thrē'plī') adj. Consisting of three layers or strands.
- three-point landing (thrē'point' lān'dɪŋ) n. An airplane landing in which the two main wheels and the nose wheel, tail wheel, or tailskid all touch the ground simultaneously.
- three-quarter (thrē'kwôr'tər) adj. 1. Relating to, consisting of, or extending to three fourths of the usual full length: a skirt of three-quarter length. 2. Depicting the subject turned slightly from a full frontal view: a three-quarter portrait.
- three-quarter binding (thrē'kwôr'tər bīn'dɪŋ) n. Printing. A bookbinding in which the leather or fabric covering the spine extends onto the covers for one third of their width.
- three-ring circus (thrē'rɪŋg' sūr'kəs) n. 1. A circus having simultaneous performances in three separate rings. 2. Informal. A situation characterized by confusing, engrossing, or amusing activity.
- three R's (thrē ärz) pl.n. Reading, writing, and arithmetic, considered as the fundamentals of elementary education. [From the phrase reading, 'riting, and 'rithmetic, alteration of reading, writing, and arithmetic.]
- three-score (thrē'skôr', -skōr') adj. Being three times twenty; sixty.
—three'score' n. & pron.
- three-some (thrē'səm) n. 1. A group of three persons or things. 2. An activity involving three people, especially a golf match in which one player competes against two others who alternate their play. — adj. Consisting of or performed by three.
- three-spine stickleback (thrē'spīn' stīk'əl-băk') also three-spined stickleback (-spīnd') n. A stickleback (Gasterosteus aculeatus) having three separate dorsal spines, found throughout most of the Northern Hemisphere in both salt water and fresh water.
- three-square (thrē'skwâr') adj. Having an equilateral triangular cross section: a three-square file.
- three-toed sloth (thrē'tōd' slôth) n. See sloth (n., sense 2a).

three-toed woodpecker (thrē'tōd' wōōd'pēk'ər) n. Either of two woodpeckers (Picoides arcticus or P. tridactylus) of northern North America, lacking the inner hind toe on each foot.

three-wheel-er (thrē'hwē'lər, -wē'-) n. A vehicle having three wheels, as a small, all-terrain motor vehicle.

threm·ma·tol·o·gy (thrēm'ə-tōl'ə-jē) n. The scientific breeding of domestic plants and animals. [Greek thremma, thremmat-, nursling + -LOGY.]

thren·o·dy (thrēn'ə-dē) n. pl. thren·o·dies. A poem or song of mourning or lamentation. [Greek thrēnōidia: thrēnos, lament + ōidē, song; see ODE.]

—thre·no'di·al (thrə-nō'dē-əl), thre·nod'ic (-nōd'ik) adj. —thren'o·dist n.

thre·o·nine (thrē'ə-nēn', -nīn) n. A colorless crystalline amino acid, C₄H₉NO₃, that is derived from the hydrolysis of protein and is an essential component of human nutrition. [Probably from threose, a kind of sugar (alteration of erythrose: ERYTHRO- + -OSE²) + -INE².]

thresh (thrēsh) v. threshed, thresh·ing, thresh·es. — v. tr. 1. a. To beat the stems and husks of (grain or cereal plants) with a machine or flail to separate the grains or seeds from the straw. b. To separate (grains or seeds) in this manner. 2. To discuss or examine (an issue, for example) repeatedly. 3. To beat severely; thrash. — v. intr. 1. To use a machine or flail to separate grain or seeds from straw. 2. To thrash about; toss. [Middle English thresshen, from Old English therscan. See terə-¹ in Appendix.]

thresh·er (thrēsh'ər) n. 1. One that threshes: a thresher of grain. 2. A threshing machine. 3. Any of various large sharks of the genus Alopias, especially A. vulpinus of the Atlantic and eastern Pacific oceans, having a tail with a long whip-like upper lobe with which it strikes the surface of the water. thresh·ing machine (thrēsh'ing mə-shēn') n. A farm machine used in threshing grain or seed plants.

thresh·old (thrēsh'ōld', -hōld') n. 1. A piece of wood or stone placed beneath a door; a doorsill. 2. An entrance or a doorway. 3. The place or point of beginning; the outset. 4. A point separating conditions that will produce a given effect from conditions of a higher or lower degree that will not produce the effect, as the intensity below which a stimulus is of sufficient strength to produce sensation or elicit a response: a low threshold of pain. [Middle English threshold, from Old English therscold, threscold. See terə-¹ in Appendix.]

WORD HISTORY: Perhaps the tradition of carrying the bride over the threshold is dying out, but knowledge of the custom persists, leading one to wonder about the -hold or the thresh- in the word threshold. Scholars are still wondering about the last part of the word, but the thresh- can be explained. It is related to the word thresh, which refers to an agricultural process. This process of beating the stems and husks of grain or cereal plants to separate the grain or seeds from the straw was at one time done with the feet of oxen or human beings. Thus, the Germanic word ·therskan, or by the switching of sounds called metathesis, ·threskan, meant “thresh” and “tread.” This association with the feet is probably retained in Old English therscold or threscold (Modern English threshold), “sill of a door (over which one treads).”

threw (thrō) v. Past tense of throw.

thrice (thrīs) adv. 1. Three times. 2. In a threefold quantity or degree.

3. Archaic. Extremely; greatly. [Middle English thries, adverbial genitive of thrie, from Old English thrīga. See trei- in Appendix.]

thrift (thrɪft) n. 1. Wise economy in the management of money and other resources; frugality. 2. Vigorous growth of living things, such as plants. 3. Any of several densely tufted plants of the genus Armeria, especially A. maritima, having white to pink flower heads with a funnel-shaped scarious calyx. 4. A savings and loan association, credit union, or savings bank. Also called thrift institution [Middle English, prosperity, perhaps from Old Norse, from thrifask, to thrive. See THRIVE.]

thriftless (thrɪft'lis) adj. 1. Careless in handling money; wasteful. 2. Archaic. Lacking usefulness or value. —thrift/less-ly adv. —thrift/less-ness n.

thrift shop (thrɪft shɒp) n. A shop that sells used articles, especially clothing, as to benefit a charitable organization.

thrift-y (thrɪf'tē) adj. trift-i-er, trift-i-est. 1. Practicing or marked by the practice of thrift; wisely economical. See Synonyms at sparing. 2. Industrious and thriving; prosperous. 3. Growing vigorously; thriving, as a plant. —thrift/i-ly adv. —thrift/i-ness n.

thrill (thrɪl) v. thrilled, thrill-ing, thrills. — v. tr. 1. To cause to feel a sudden intense sensation; excite greatly. 2. To give great pleasure to; delight. See Synonyms at enrapture. 3. To cause to quiver, tremble, or vibrate. — v. intr. 1. To feel a sudden quiver of excitement or emotion. 2. To quiver, tremble, or vibrate. — n. 1. A quivering or trembling caused by sudden excitement or emotion. 2. A source or cause of excitement or emotion. 3. Pathology. A slight palpable vibration that often accompanies certain cardiac and circulatory abnormalities. [Middle English thrillen, alteration of thirlen, to pierce, from Old English thýrlían, from thýrel, hole. See terə-² in Appendix.] —thrill/ing-ly adv.

thriller (thrɪl'ər) n. One that thrills, especially a sensational or suspenseful book, story, play, or movie.

thrips (thrɪps) n. pl. thrips. Any of various minute insects of the order Thysanoptera, having usually four narrow wings fringed with hairs, and many of which are major pests of cereals and fruit trees. [Latin, woodworm, from Greek.]

thrive (thrīv) v. intr. thrived or throve (thrōv), thrived or thriv-en (thrīvʹən), thriv-ing, thrives. 1. To make steady progress; prosper. 2. To grow vigorously; flourish: “the wild deer that throve here” (Tom Clancy). [Middle English thriven, from Old Norse thrīfask, reflexive of thrīfa, to seize.] —thriv'er n.

throat (thrōt) n. 1. The anterior portion of the neck. 2. Anatomy. The portion of the digestive tract that lies between the rear of the mouth and the esophagus and includes the fauces and the pharynx. 3. A narrow passage or part suggestive of the human throat: the throat of a horn. 4. Botany. The opening of a tubular corolla or calyx where the tube joins the limb. — v. tr. throat-ed, throat-ing, throats. To pronounce with a harsh or guttural voice. —idiom. ram down (someone's) throat (or shove down (someone's) throat). Informal. To compel to accept or consider: always ramming his political opinions down my throat. [Middle English throte, from Old English.]

throat-latch (thrōtʹlăchʹ) n. A strap passing under the neck of a horse for holding a bridle or halter in place.

throat-y (thrōʹtē) adj. throat-i-er, throat-i-est. Uttered or sounding as if uttered deep in the throat; guttural, hoarse, or husky. —throat'i-ly adv.
—throat'i-ness n.

throb (thrōb) v. intr. throbb-ed, throbb-ing, throbs. 1. To beat rapidly or violently, as the heart; pound. 2. To vibrate, pulsate, or sound with a steady pronounced rhythm: boat engines throbbing. See Synonyms at pulsate. — n. The act of throbbing; a beating, palpitation, or vibration. [Middle English throbben, of imitative origin.] —throbb-ing-ly adv.

throe (thrō) n. 1. A severe pang or spasm of pain, as in childbirth. See Synonyms at pain. 2. throes. A condition of agonizing struggle or trouble: a country in the throes of economic collapse. [Middle English throwe, perhaps alteration of thrawe, from Old English thrawu, genitive of thrēah, pain, affliction.]

thromb- pref. Variant of thrombo-.

throm-bi (thrōmʹbī) n. Plural of thrombus.

throm-bin (thrōmʹbīn) n. An enzyme in blood that facilitates blood clotting by reacting with fibrinogen to form fibrin.

thrombo- or thromb- pref. Blood clot; blood clotting: thromboplastic. [Greek, from thrombos, clot.]

throm-bo-cyte (thrōmʹbə-sītʹ) n. See platelet. —thromʹbo-cytʹic (-sītʹīk) adj.

throm-bo-cy-to-pe-ni-a (thrōmʹbə-sītʹə-pēʹnē-ə) n. An abnormal decrease in the number of platelets in circulatory blood. —thromʹbo-cyʹto-peʹnic adj.

throm-bo-em-bo-lism (thrōmʹbō-ēmʹbə-līzʹəm) n. The blocking of a blood vessel by a blood clot dislodged from its site of origin. —thromʹbo-em-bolʹic (-ēm-bōlʹīk) adj.

throm-bo-ki-nase (thrōmʹbō-kīʹnās, -nāz) n. See thromboplastin.

throm·bol·y·sis (thröm-böl'ī-sīs) n. pl. throm·bol·y·ses (-sēz). Dissolution or destruction of a thrombus. — throm'bo·lyt'ic (-bə-līt'ik) adj.

throm·bo·phle·bi·tis (thröm'bō-flī-bī'tis) n. Inflammation of a vein caused by or associated with the formation of a blood clot.

throm·bo·plas·tic (thröm'bō-pläs'tik) adj. 1. Causing or promoting blood clotting: a thromboplastic protein. 2. Of or relating to thromboplastin. — throm'bo·plas'ti·cal·ly adv.

throm·bo·plas·tin (thröm'bō-pläs'tin) n. An enzyme that converts prothrombin to thrombin in the early stages of blood clotting. Also called thrombokinase throm·bo·sis (thröm-bō'sīs) n. pl. throm·bo·ses (-sēz). The formation, presence, or development of a thrombus. [New Latin thrombōsis, from Greek, a clotting, from thrombousthai, to clot, from thrombos, clot.]

throm·bo·sthe·nin (thröm'bō-sthē'nin) n. A contractile protein in platelets that is active in the formation of blood clots. [THROMBO- + Greek sthenos, strength + -IN.]

throm·box·ane (thröm-bök'sān) n. Any of several compounds, originally derived from prostaglandin precursors in platelets, that stimulate aggregation of platelets and constriction of blood vessels. [THROMB(O)- + OX(O)- + -ANE.]

throm·bus (thröm'bəs) n. pl. throm·bi (-bī). A fibrinous clot formed in a blood vessel or in a chamber of the heart. [New Latin, from Greek thrombos, clot.]

throne (thrōn) n. 1. A chair occupied by an exalted personage, such as a sovereign or bishop, on state or ceremonial occasions, often situated on a dais and sometimes having a canopy and ornate decoration. 2. a. A personage who occupies a throne. b. The power, dignity, or rank of such a personage; sovereignty. 3. thrones. Theology. The third of the nine orders of angels. — v. tr. intr.

throned, thron·ing, thrones. To install in or occupy a throne. [Middle English, alteration of trone, from Old French, from Latin thronus, from Greek thronos. See dher- in Appendix.]

throng (thrông, thrông) n. 1. A large group of people gathered or crowded closely together; a multitude. See Synonyms at crowd¹. 2. A large group of things; a host. — v. thronged, throng·ing, throngs. — v. tr. 1. To crowd into; fill: commuters thronging the subway platform. 2. To press in on. — v. intr. To gather, press, or move in a throng. [Middle English, from Old English gethrang.]

thros·tle (thrös'təl) n. 1. Any of various Old World thrushes, especially a song thrush. 2. A machine formerly used for spinning fibers such as cotton or wool. [Middle English, from Old English.]

throt·tle (thrõt'l) n. 1. A valve that regulates the flow of a fluid, such as the valve in an internal-combustion engine that controls the amount of vaporized fuel entering the cylinders. 2. A lever or pedal controlling such a valve. — v. tr.

throt-tled, throt-ting, throt-tles. 1. a. To regulate the flow of (fuel) in an engine. b. To regulate the speed of (an engine) with a throttle. 2. To suppress: tried to throttle the press. 3. To strangle; choke. [Short for throttle valve, from throttle, to strangle, choke, from Middle English throtelen, probably from throte, throat. See THROAT.] —throt'tler n.

throt-tle·hold (thrōt'1-hōld') n. See stranglehold (n., sense 2).

through (thrō) prep. 1. In one side and out the opposite or another side of: went through the tunnel. 2. Among or between; in the midst of: a walk through the flowers. 3. By way of: climbed in through the window. 4. a. By the means or agency of: bought the antique vase through a dealer. b. Into and out of the handling, care, processing, modification, or consideration of: Her application went through our office. Run the figures through the computer. 5. Here and there in; around: a tour through France. 6. From the beginning to the end of: stayed up through the night. 7. At or to the end of; done or finished with, especially successfully: We are through the initial testing period. 8. Up to and including: a play that runs through December; a volume that covers A through D. 9. Past and without stopping for: drove through a red light. 10. Because of; on account of: She succeeded through hard work. He declined the honor through modesty. — adv.

1. From one end or side to another or an opposite end or side: opened the door and went through. 2. From beginning to end; completely: I read the article once through. 3. Throughout the whole extent or thickness; thoroughly: warmed the leftovers clear through; got soaked through in the rain; a letter that was shot through with the writer's personality. 4. Over the total distance; all the way: drove through to their final destination. 5. To a conclusion or an accomplishment: see a matter through. — adj. 1. Allowing continuous passage; unobstructed: a through street. 2. a. Affording transportation to a destination with few or no stops and no transfers: a through bus; a through ticket. b. Continuing on a highway without exiting: through traffic; through lanes. 3. Passing or extending from one end, side, or surface to another: a through beam. 4. Having finished; at completion: She was through with the project. 5. Having no further concern, dealings, or connection: I'm through with him. 6. Having no more use, value, or potential; washed up: That swimmer is through as an athlete. —idiom. through and through. 1. In every part; throughout: wet through and through. 2. In every aspect; completely: a success through and through. [Middle English thurh, through, from Old English thurh. See terə⁻² in Appendix.]

through-ly (thrō'lē) adv. Archaic. Thoroughly.

through-out (thrō-out') prep. In, to, through, or during every part of; all through: The road is kept open throughout the year. — adv. 1. In or through all parts; everywhere: The material is flawed throughout. 2. During the entire time or extent: Though unsure how her speech would be received, she remained calm and professional throughout.

through-put (thrōō'pōōt') n. Output or production, as of a computer program, over a period of time.

through-way (thrōō'wā') n. Variant of thruway.

throve (thrōv) v. A past tense of thrive.

throw (thrō) v. threw (thrōō), thrown (thrōn), throw-ing, throws. — v. tr. 1. To propel through the air with a motion of the hand or arm. 2. To discharge into the air by any means: a machine that throws tennis balls; ash that was thrown by an erupting volcano. 3. To hurl or fling with great force or speed: threw themselves on the food; jetsam that had been thrown up onto the shore. 4. a. To hurl to the ground or floor, as in a wrestling contest. b. To cause to fall off: The horse threw its rider. 5. Informal. To cause confusion or perplexity in; disconcert or nonplus: We didn't let our worries throw us. 6. To put on or off hastily or carelessly: throw on a jacket. 7. a. To put (suddenly or forcefully) into a given condition, position, or activity: threw him into a fit of laughter; threw some supper together; threw her leg over the arm of the chair. b. To devote, apply, or direct: threw all their resources into the new endeavor; threw the blame onto the others. 8. To form on a potter's wheel: throw a vase. 9. To twist (fibers) into thread. 10. Games. a. To roll (dice). b. To roll (a particular combination) with dice. c. To discard or play (a card). 11. To send forth; project: She threw me a look of encouragement. 12. To cause to fall on or over something; cast: The rising sun threw shadows across the lawn. We threw sheets over the furniture before we painted the ceiling. 13. To bear (young). Used of cows or horses, for example. 14. To arrange or give (a party, for example). 15. To move (a lever or switch) in order to activate, deactivate, or control a device. 16. Informal. To lose or give up (a contest, for example) purposely. 17. To abandon oneself to; have: heard the news and threw a fit. 18. To commit (oneself), especially for leniency or support: threw himself on the mercy of the court. 19. To deliver (a punch), as in boxing: threw a left hook. — v. intr. To cast, fling, or hurl something. — n. 1. The act or an instance of throwing. 2. The distance to which something is or can be thrown: a stone's throw away. 3. Games. a. A roll or cast of dice. b. The combination of numbers so obtained. 4. Informal. A single chance, venture, or instance: "could afford up to forty-five bucks a throw to wax sentimental over their heritage" (John Simon). 5. Sports. The act of throwing or a technique used to throw an opponent in wrestling. 6. a. A light coverlet, such as an afghan. b. A scarf or shawl. 7. a. The radius of a circle described by a crank, cam, or similar machine part. b. The maximum displacement of a machine part moved by another part, such as a crank or cam. 8. Geology. The amount of vertical displacement of a fault. — phrasal verbs. throw away. 1. a. To get rid of as useless: threw away yesterday's newspaper. b. Games. To discard: threw away two aces. 2. a. To fail to take advantage of: threw away a chance to make a fortune. b. To waste or use in a foolish way: threw away her inheritance. 3. To utter or perform in an offhand, seemingly careless way: The play's villain throws away the news that the house has burned down. 4. a. To get rid of as useless: threw away yesterday's newspaper. b. Games. To discard: threw away two aces. 5. a. To fail to take advantage of: threw away a chance to make a fortune. b. To waste or use in a foolish way: threw away her inheritance. throw back. 6. To hinder the progress of; check: The troops were thrown back. 7. To revert to an earlier type or stage in one's past. 8. To cause to depend; make reliant. throw in. 9. To insert or introduce into the course of something: threw in a few snide comments while they conversed. 10. To add (an extra thing or amount) with no additional charge. 11. To engage (a clutch, for example). throw off. 12. To cast out; rid oneself of: threw off all unpleasant memories. 13. To give off; emit: exhaust pipes throwing off fumes. 14. To distract, divert, or mislead: Crossing the stream, he threw the tracking dogs off. A wrong measurement threw her estimate off. 15. To do, finish, or accomplish in a casual or offhand way; toss off: threw off a quick response to the letter. throw open. To make more accessible, especially suddenly or dramatically: threw open the nomination. throw out. 17. To give off; emit: searchlights throwing out powerful beams. 18. To reject or discard: The committee threw out her proposal. 19. To get rid of as useless: threw out the garbage. 20. Informal. To offer, as a suggestion or plan: They sat around throwing out names of people they might want to invite to the party. 21. To force to leave a place or position, especially in an abrupt or unexpected manner: The convicted judge was thrown out of office. The headwaiter threw the disorderly guest out. 22. a. To disengage (a clutch, for example). b. To put out of alignment: threw my back out. 23. Baseball. To put out (a base runner) by throwing the ball to the player guarding the base to which the base runner is moving. 24. a. To disengage (a clutch, for example). b. To put out of alignment: threw my back out. throw over. 25. To overturn: threw the cart over. 26. To abandon: threw over her boyfriend of four years; threw over the company they themselves had founded. 27. To reject. throw up. 28. To vomit. 29. To abandon; relinquish. She threw up her campaign for mayor. 30. To construct hurriedly: shoddy houses that were thrown up in a few months. 31. To refer to something repeatedly: She threw up his past to him whenever they argued. 32. To project, play, or otherwise display (a slide, videotape, or other recorded image): threw the tape of vacation highlights up on the screen. —idioms. throw (one's) weight around. Slang. To use power or authority, especially in an excessive or heavy-handed way. throw the baby out with the bath water. Slang. To discard something valuable along with something not desired, usually unintentionally. throw up (one's) hands. To indicate or express utter hopelessness: He threw up his hands and abandoned the argument. [Middle English thrown, to turn, twist, hurl, from Old English thrāwan. See terə⁻¹ in Appendix.]

—throw'er n.

SYNONYMS: throw, cast, hurl, fling, pitch, toss, sling. These verbs mean to propel something through the air with a motion of the hand or arm. Throw is the least specific: throw a ball; threw the life preserver to the struggling swimmer; threw the book on the table. Cast usually refers to throwing something light: The angler cast her line into the stream. Hurl and fling mean to throw with great force: “Him the Almighty Power/Hurl'd headlong flaming from th' Ethereal Sky” (John Milton). The wedding guests were given confetti to fling at the bride and groom. Pitch often means to throw with careful aim: “a special basket in my study... into which I pitch letters, circulars, pamphlets and so forth” (H.G. Wells). Toss, in contrast, usually means to throw lightly or casually: “Campton tossed the card away” (Edith Wharton). Sling stresses force of propulsion: The cook's helper slung the peeled potatoes into a huge enamel pot. See also Synonyms at confuse throw-a-way (thrō'ə-wā') n. pl. throw-a-ways. 1. Something designed or likely to be discarded after use, as a free handbill distributed on the street. 2. A child or teenager who has been rejected, ejected, or abandoned by parents or guardians and lives on the streets. — adj. 1. a. Designed or intended to be discarded after use: throwaway packaging. b. Readily discarding things: a throwaway society. c. Having been rejected, ejected, or abandoned by parents or guardians: throwaway children living on the streets. 2. Written or delivered in a low-key or offhand manner: “a sentence fragment or quirky throwaway metaphor” (Joyce Carol Oates).

throw-back (thrō'bāk') n. 1. A reversion to a former type or ancestral characteristic. 2. See atavism (n., sense 2).

thrown (thrōn) v. Past participle of throw.

throw pillow (thrō pīl'ō) n. A small pillow used chiefly for decoration, as on a couch.

throw rug (thrō rūg) n. See scatter rug.

throw-ster (thrō'stər) n. One that twists fibers into thread.

throw-weight or throw weight (thrō'wāt') n. The total weight of the warhead or warheads, guidance systems, and other payload of a missile, not including the weight of the rocket.

thru (thrō) prep., adv. & adj. Informal. Through.

thrum¹ (thrüm) v. thrummed, thrum-ming, thrums. — v. tr. 1. Music. To play (a stringed instrument) idly or monotonously: thrummed a guitar. 2. To speak, repeat, or recite in a monotonous tone of voice; drone. — v. intr.

1. Music. To strum idly on a stringed instrument. 2. To speak in a monotonous tone of voice; drone. — n. A thrumming sound. [Imitative.]

thrum² (thrŭm) n. 1. a. The fringe of warp threads left on a loom after the cloth has been cut off. b. One of these threads. 2. A loose end, fringe, or tuft of thread. 3. thrums. Nautical. Short bits of rope yarn inserted into canvas to roughen the surface. — v. tr. thrummed, thrum-ming, thrums. 1. To cover or trim with thrums; fringe. 2. Nautical. To sew thrums in (canvas). [Middle English, from Old English (tunge)thrum, ligament (of the tongue).]

thrush¹ (thrŭsh) n. 1. Any of numerous migratory songbirds of the family Turdidae, usually having brownish upper plumage and a spotted breast and noted for a clear melodious song. 2. Any of various similar or related birds, as a water thrush or thrasher. 3. Slang. A woman who sings popular songs. [Middle English thrushe, from Old English thrysce.]

thrush² (thrŭsh) n. 1. A contagious disease caused by a fungus, Candida albicans, that occurs most often in infants and children, characterized by small whitish eruptions on the mouth, throat, and tongue, and usually accompanied by fever, colic, and diarrhea. 2. An infection of the frog of a horse's foot, characterized by a foul-smelling discharge and often resulting from unhygienic stall conditions. [Probably of Scandinavian origin.]

thrust (thrŭst) v. thrust, thrust-ing, thrusts. — v. tr. 1. To push or drive quickly and forcibly. See Synonyms at push. 2. To issue or extend: poplars thrusting their branches upward; thrust out his finger. 3. To force into a specified condition or situation: She thrust herself through the crowd. He was thrust into a position of awesome responsibility. 4. To include or interpolate improperly. 5. To force on an unwilling or improper recipient: "Some have greatness thrust upon them" (Shakespeare). 6. Archaic. To stab; pierce. — v. intr. 1. To shove something into or at something else; push. 2. To pierce or stab with or as if with a pointed weapon. 3. To force one's way. — n. 1. A forceful shove or push. 2. a. A driving force or pressure. b. The forward-directed force developed in a jet or rocket engine as a reaction to the high-velocity rearward ejection of exhaust gases. 3. A piercing movement made with or as if with a pointed weapon; a stab. 4. The essence; the point: The whole thrust of the project was to make money. 5. Architecture. Outward or lateral stress in a structure, such as an arch. 6. An attack or assault, especially by an armed force. [Middle English thrusten, from Old Norse thrýsta. See treud- in Appendix.] — thrust'er n. — thrust'ful adj.

thrust stage (thrŭst stāj) n. A stage that extends into the audience's portion of a theater beyond the usual location of the proscenium and often has seats facing it on three sides.

thru-way also through-way (thrŭwā'wā') n. See expressway.

Thu or Thu. abbr. Thursday.

Thu-cyd-i-des (thŭō-sīd'ī-dēz'), 460?-400? B.C. Greek historian. Considered the greatest historian of antiquity, he wrote a critical history of the Peloponnesian War that contains the funeral oration of Pericles.

thud (thüd) n. 1. A dull sound, as that of a heavy object striking a solid surface.

2. A blow or fall causing such a sound. — v. intr. thud-ded, thud-ding, thuds. To make a heavy, dull sound. [Perhaps from Middle English thudden, to strike with a weapon, from Old English thyddan, of imitative origin.]

thug (thüg) n. 1. A cutthroat or ruffian; a hoodlum. 2. One of a band of professional assassins formerly active in northern India. [Hindi thag, perhaps from Sanskrit sthagah, a cheat, from sthagati, sthagayati, he conceals. See (s)teg- in Appendix.] — thug/ger-y n. — thug/gish adj.

thu-ja (thōō'jə, thyōō'-) n. See arborvitae (n., sense 1). [New Latin Thuja, arborvitae genus, from Medieval Latin thuiā, cedar, from Greek.]

Thu-le¹ (thōō'lē) The most northerly region of the habitable world to ancient Greek geographers. Posited as an island north of Britain, it has been variously identified with Iceland, Norway, and the Shetland Islands.

Thu-le² (tōō'lē) A town of northwest Greenland northwest of Cape York. A U.S. naval base was built here during World War II. Population, 449.

thu-li-um (thōō'lē-əm, thyōō'-) n. Symbol Tm A bright, silvery rare-earth element obtained commercially from monazite, having an x-ray emitting isotope that is used in small portable medical x-ray units. Atomic number 69; atomic weight 168.934; melting point 1,545°C; boiling point 1,727°C; specific gravity 9.3; valence 2, 3. [After Thule¹.]

thumb (thŭm) n. 1. a. The short thick digit of the human hand, next to the index finger and opposable to each of the other four digits. b. A corresponding digit in other animals, especially primates. Also called pollex. 2. The part of a glove or mitten that covers the thumb. 3. Architecture. An ovolo. — v.

thumbed, thumb-ing, thumbs. — v. tr. 1. To scan (written matter) by turning over pages with or as if with the thumb. 2. To disarrange, soil, or wear by careless or frequent handling. 3. Informal. To solicit (a ride) from a passing vehicle by signaling with the thumb. — v. intr. 1. To scan written matter by turning over pages with or as if with the thumb: thumbed through the latest issue of the magazine. 2. Informal. To hitchhike. — idioms. all thumbs. Lacking physical coordination, skill, or grace; clumsy. thumb (one's) nose. To express scorn or ridicule by or as if by placing the thumb on the nose and wiggling the fingers.

thumbs down. An expression of rejection, refusal, or disapproval. thumbs up. An expression of approval, success, or hope. under (one's) thumb. Under the control of someone; subordinate to. [Middle English, from Old English thūma. See teuə- in Appendix.]

Thumb (thŭm), General Tom. See Charles Sherwood Stratton.

thumb-hole (thŭm'hōl') n. 1. An opening made to fit a thumb, as in a bowling ball. 2. Music. The hole on a wind instrument that is opened or closed with the thumb.

thumb index (thŭm ĭn'dĕks') n. Printing. A series of rounded indentations cut into the front edge of a book, each labeled, as with a letter, to indicate a section of the book. — thumb'-in'dex (thŭm'ĭn'dĕks) v.

thumb-nail (thŭm'nāl') n. The nail of the thumb. — adj. 1. Of, relating to, or of the size of a thumbnail. 2. Brief; cursory: a thumbnail biography.

thumb-nut (thŭm'nŭt') n. See wing nut.

thumb piano (thŭm pĕ-ăn'ō) n. Music. An African musical instrument, such as the kalimba or mbira, that has a small sound box fitted with a row of tuned tabs that are plucked with the thumbs.

thumb-print (thŭm'prĭnt') n. A print made by the thumb, especially by the pad of the thumb.

thumb-screw (thŭm'skrō') n. 1. A screw designed so that it can be turned with the thumb and fingers. 2. An instrument of torture formerly used to compress the thumb.

thumb-tack (thŭm'tăk') n. A tack with a smooth, rounded head that can be pressed into place with the thumb. — v. tr. thumb-tacked, thumb-tack-ing, thumb-tacks. To affix with a thumbtack.

thump (thŭmp) n. 1. A blow with a blunt object. 2. The muffled sound produced by or as if by a blow with a blunt object; a thud. — v. thumped, thump-ing, thumps. — v. tr. 1. To beat with or as if with a blunt object so as to produce a muffled sound or thud. 2. Informal. To beat soundly or thoroughly; drub. — v. intr. 1. To hit or fall in such a way as to produce a thump; pound. 2. To walk with heavy steps; stump. 3. To throb audibly. [Probably of imitative origin.] — thump'er n.

thump-ing (thŭm'pĭng) adj. Informal. Outstanding in size, degree, or quality: a thumping success; a thumping party. — thump-ing-ly adv.

Thun (tōn), Lake of. A lake of central Switzerland southeast of Bern at the foot of the Bernese Alps.

thun-der (thŭn'dĕr) n. 1. The crashing or booming sound produced by rapidly expanding air along the path of the electrical discharge of lightning. 2. A sound that resembles or suggests thunder. — v. thun-dered, thun-der-ing, thun-ders. — v. intr. 1. To produce thunder. 2. To produce sounds like thunder. 3. To utter loud, vociferous remarks or threats. — v. tr. To express violently, commandingly, or angrily; roar. [Middle English, from Old English thunor. See (s)tenə- in Appendix.] — thun'der-er n.

Thun-der Bay (thŭn'dĕr bā) A city of southwest Ontario, Canada, on Thun-der Bay, an inlet on the northwest shore of Lake Superior. A major port and industrial center, it was created in 1970 by the amalgamation of the twin cities of Port Arthur and Fort William. Population, 112,486.

thun-der-bird (thŭn'dĕr-bŭrd') n. A spirit of thunder, lightning, and rain in the form of a huge bird in the mythology of certain Native American peoples.

thun·der·bolt (thŭn'dər-bōlt') n. 1. A discharge of lightning accompanied by thunder. 2. A flash of lightning conceived as a bolt or dart hurled from the heavens. 3. a. One that acts with sudden and destructive fury. b. A startling, forceful action: “Every political campaign manager saves a thunderbolt for the last week before Election Day” (Art Buchwald).

thun·der·clap (thŭn'dər-klăp') n. 1. A single sharp crash of thunder.

2. Something, such as a startling or shocking piece of news, that is similar to a crash of thunder in suddenness or violence.

thun·der·cloud (thŭn'dər-kloud') n. 1. A large dark cloud charged with electricity and producing thunder and lightning; a cumulonimbus cloud.

2. Something menacing or dreadful: thunderclouds of impending war.

thun·der·head (thŭn'dər-hĕd') n. The swollen upper portion of a thundercloud, usually associated with the development of a thunderstorm.

thun·der·ous (thŭn'dər-əs) adj. 1. Producing thunder or a similar sound.

2. Loud and unrestrained in a way that suggests thunder: thunderous applause.

—thun·der·ous·ly adv.

thun·der·show·er (thŭn'dər-shou'ər) n. A brief rainstorm accompanied by thunder and lightning.

thun·der·stone (thŭn'dər-stōn') n. 1. Any of various mineral concretions, such as a belemnite, formerly supposed to be thunderbolts. 2. Archaic. A flash of lightning conceived as a stone; a thunderbolt.

thun·der·storm (thŭn'dər-stōrm') n. A transient, sometimes violent storm of thunder and lightning, often accompanied by rain and sometimes hail.

thun·der·struck (thŭn'dər-strŭk') adj. Affected with sudden astonishment or amazement.

thunk¹ (thŭngk) n. A dull, hollow sound: the thunk of a metal pipe striking a tree. — v. intr. thunked, thunk·ing, thunks. To make a dull, hollow sound: “Her hard shoes thunk on the stairs” (Carolyn Chute). [Imitative.]

thunk² (thŭngk) v. Non-Standard. A past tense and a past participle of think.

Thur. abbr. Thursday.

Thur·ber (thŭr'bər), James Grover. 1894–1961. American writer and cartoonist who was long associated with the New Yorker magazine. His essays, short stories, such as “The Secret Life of Walter Mitty” (1939), and drawings humorously depict the preoccupations of modern men and women.

thu·ri·ble (thoōr'ə-bəl) n. A censer used in certain ecclesiastical ceremonies or liturgies. [Middle English thorible, from Old French thurible, from Latin thūribulum, from thūs, thūr-, incense, from Greek thuos, from thuein, to sacrifice.]

thu·ri·fer (thoōr'ə-fər) n. An acolyte who carries a thurible. [Latin thūrifēr, incense-bearing : thūs, thūr-, incense; see THURIBLE + -fer, -fer.]

Thu·rin·gi·a (thōō-rĭn'jē-ə, -jə) A historical region of central Germany south of the Harz Mountains and crossed by the Thuringian Forest, a range of low, wooded mountains. The region fell to the Franks in the 6th century A.D. and became a principality of the Holy Roman Empire in the 11th century.

Thu·rin·gi·an (thōō-rĭn'jē-ən, -jən) adj. Of or relating to Thuringia or its people or culture. — n. 1. A member of an ancient tribe inhabiting central Germany until the sixth century A.D. 2. A native or inhabitant of Thuringia.

Thur·rock (thûr'ək, thûr'-) An urban district of southeast England on the Thames River east of London. It is a port and an industrial center. Population, 126,800.

Thurs·day (thûrz'dē, -dā') n. Abbr. Thur., Thurs., Thu, Thu., Th. The fifth day of the week. [Middle English, from Old English thūres dæg, alteration (influenced by Old Norse thōrsdagr, Thor's day), of thunres dæg, Thor's day (translation of Late Latin Iovis diēs, Jupiter's day) : thunres, genitive of thunor, thunder; see (s)tenə- in Appendix + dæg, day; see DAY.]

Thurs·day Island (thûrz'dē ī'lənd, -dā') An island of northeast Australia in Torres Strait northwest of Cape York. It is noted for its pearl fishing beds.

Thurs·ton Island (thûr'stən ī'lənd) An island off Antarctica between the Bellinghausen and Amundsen seas. Before 1961 it was thought to be a peninsula of the mainland.

thus (thūs) adv. 1. In this manner: Lay the pieces out thus. See Usage Note at thusly. 2. To a stated degree or extent; so. 3. Therefore; consequently: Thus it was necessary for me to resign. 4. For example: Few of the nation's largest cities are state capitals; thus neither New York nor Chicago is the seat of its state's government. [Middle English, from Old English. See to- in Appendix.]

thus·ly (thūs'lē) adv. Usage Problem. Thus.

USAGE NOTE: Thusly was introduced in the 19th century as an alternative for thus in sentences such as Hold it thus or He put it thus. The increasingly literary character of such uses of thus may have facilitated coinage of the new adverb thusly, particularly by poorly educated speakers who were straining for a stylish effect. Early citations for the word indicate clear association with rustic or illiterate speech, and though the word has subsequently gained some currency in educated usage, it is still widely regarded as incorrect. In an earlier survey the use of the word was judged unacceptable by a large majority of the Usage Panel. In formal writing thus can still be used as in the examples above; in other styles, expressions such as this way and like this are more natural.

Thut·mo·se III (thōōt-mō'sə), Died 1450 B.C. King of Egypt (1504?-1450) who conquered Syria and much of the Euphrates Valley and brought great wealth to Egypt.

thwack (thwăk) v. tr. thwacked, thwack-ing, thwacks. To strike or hit with a flat object; whack. — n. A hard blow with a flat object; a whack. [Imitative.]

thwart (thwôrt) v. tr. thwart-ed, thwart-ing, thwarts. 1. To prevent the occurrence, realization, or attainment of: They thwarted her plans. 2. To oppose and defeat the efforts, plans, or ambitions of. See Synonyms at frustrate. — n. Nautical. A seat across a boat on which a rower may sit. — adj. 1. Extending, lying, or passing across; transverse. 2. Eager to oppose, especially wrongly; perverse. — adv. & prep. Archaic. Athwart; across. [Middle English thwerten, from thwert, across, from Old Norse thvert, neuter of thverr, transverse. See terk^w- in Appendix.] — thwart'er n. — thwart'ly adv.

thy (thī) adj. The possessive form of thou. Used as a modifier before a noun. [Middle English, variant of thin, thine, from Old English thīn. See tu- in Appendix.]

Thy-es-te-an (thī-ēs'tē-ən, thī'ī-stē'ən) adj. Involving the eating of human flesh; cannibalistic: a Thyestean feast. [From THYESTES.]

Thy-es-tes (thī-ēs'tēz) n. Greek Mythology. A king of Mycenae who unknowingly ate the flesh of his own sons, served to him by his brother Atreus, as revenge for seducing his wife and usurping the throne. [Greek Thuestēs.]

thy-la-cine (thī'lə-sīn') n. See Tasmanian wolf. [From New Latin Thylacinus, genus name, from Greek thulakos, sack.]

thyme (tīm) n. 1. Any of several aromatic Eurasian herbs or low shrubs of the genus Thymus, especially T. vulgaris, of southern Europe, having small, white to lilac flowers grouped in headlike clusters. 2. The leaves of this plant, used as a seasoning. [Middle English, from Old French thym, from Latin thymum, from Greek thumon.]

thy-mec-to-my (thī-mĕk'tə-mē) n. pl. thy-mec-to-mies. Surgical removal of the thymus.

-thymia suff. State or condition of mind: schizothymia. [New Latin, from Greek, from thumos, mind, soul.]

thy-mic¹ (tī'mĭk, thī'-) adj. Of or relating to thyme.

thy-mic² (thī'mĭk) adj. Of or relating to the thymus: thymic nucleic acid.

thy-mi-dine (thī'mĭ-dēn') n. A nucleoside, C₁₀H₁₄N₂O₅, composed of thymine and deoxyribose. [THYM(INE) + -ID(E) + -INE².]

thy-mine (thī'mēn') n. A pyrimidine base, C₅H₆N₂O₂, that is an essential constituent of DNA. [THYM(US) + -INE².]

thy-mo-cyte (thī'mə-sīt') n. A lymphocyte that derives from the thymus and is the precursor of a T cell. [THYM(US) + -CYTE.]

thy-mol (thī'môl', -môl') n. A white, crystalline, aromatic compound, C₁₀H₁₄O, derived from thyme oil and other oils or made synthetically and used as an antiseptic, a fungicide, and a preservative.

thy·mo·ma (thī-mō'mə) n. A usually benign tumor of the thymus, composed of epithelial and lymphoid cells.

thy·mo·sin (thī'mə-sin) n. A hormone secreted by the thymus that stimulates development of T cells.

thy·mus (thī'məs) n. pl. thy·mus·es. A small glandular organ that is situated behind the top of the breastbone, consisting mainly of lymphatic tissue and serving as the site of T cell differentiation. The thymus increases gradually in size and activity until puberty, undergoing involution thereafter. [New Latin, from Greek thumos, warty excrescence, thymus.]

thyro- or thyr- pref. Thyroid: thyroxine. [From THYROID.]

thy·ro·ac·tive (thī'rō-āk'tiv) adj. Stimulating activity of the thyroid gland: a thyroactive agent.

thy·ro·cal·ci·to·nin (thī'rō-kāl'sī-tō'nin) n. See calcitonin.

thy·ro·glob·u·lin (thī'rō-glōb'γə-lin) n. A thyroid protein that stores iodine-containing hormones and is typically present in the colloid of thyroid gland follicles.

thy·roid (thī'roid') n. 1. The thyroid gland. 2. The thyroid cartilage. 3. A dried, powdered preparation of the thyroid gland of certain domestic animals, used in treatment of hypothyroid conditions. 4. An artery, a vein, a nerve, or another part associated with the thyroid gland or thyroid cartilage. [Greek thureoeidēs: thureos, oblong shield (from thura, door); see dhwer- in Appendix + -oeidēs, -oid.] —thy'roid' adj. —thy·roi'dal adj.

thyroid cartilage (thī'roid' kär'tl-ij) n. The largest cartilage of the larynx, having two broad processes that join anteriorly to form the Adam's apple.

thy·roid·ec·to·my (thī'roi-dēk'tə-mē) n. pl. thy·roid·ec·to·mies. Surgical removal of the thyroid gland. —thy'roid·ec'to·mize' v.

thyroid gland (thī'roid' gländ) n. A two-lobed endocrine gland found in all vertebrates, located in front of and on either side of the trachea in human beings, and producing various hormones, such as triiodothyronine and calcitonin.

thyroid hormone (thī'roid' hôr'môn') n. A hormone, especially thyroxine or triiodothyronine, produced by the thyroid gland.

thy·roid·i·tis (thī'roi-dī'tis) n. Inflammation of the thyroid gland.

thy·roid·stim·u·lat·ing hormone (thī'roid-stim'γə-lā'ting hôr'môn') n. Abbr. TSH See thyrotropin.

thy·ro·tox·i·co·sis (thī'rō-tōk'sī-kō'sis) n. A toxic condition resulting from excessive amounts of thyroid hormones in the body, as occurs in hyperthyroidism, for example.

thy·ro·tro·pin (thī'rə-trō'pīn, thī-rōt'rə-) also thy·ro·tro·phin (-fīn) n. A hormone secreted by the anterior lobe of the pituitary gland that stimulates and regulates the activity of the thyroid gland. Also called thyroid-stimulating hor- mone, thyrotropic hormone. [THYRO- + -TROP(HIC) + -IN.] —thy'ro-tro'pic (-trō'pĭk, -tröp'ĭk), thy'ro-tro'phic (-trō'fik, -tröf'ĭk) adj.

thy-ro-tro-pin-re-leas-ing hormone (thī'rə-trō'pĭn-rĭ-lē'sing hôr'-môn', thī-rōt'rə-) n. A hormone secreted by the hypothalamus that stimulates release of thyrotropin.

thy-rox-ine (thī-rök'sēn', -sĭn) also thy-rox-in (-rök'sĭn) n. An iodine-containing hormone, C₁₅H₁₁I₄NO₄, produced by the thyroid gland, that increases the rate of cell metabolism and regulates growth and that is made synthetically for treatment of thyroid disorders. [THYR(O)- + OX(Y)- + IN(DOLE).]

thyrese (thûrs) n. A dense, paniclelike flower cluster, as of the lilac, in which the lateral branches terminate in cymes. [Latin, thyrus. See THYRSUS.]

thyr-si (thûr'sī) n. Plural of thyrus.

thyr-soid (thûr'soid') also thyr-soid-al (thûr-soid'l) adj. Shaped like or similar to a thyrese.

thyr-sus (thûr'səs) n. pl. thyr-si (-sī). 1. Mythology. A staff tipped with a pine cone and twined with ivy, carried by Dionysus, Dionysian revelers, and satyrs.

2. Botany. A thyrese. [Latin, from Greek thursos.]

thy-sa-nu-ran (thī'sə-nōōr'ən, -nyōōr'-) n. A wingless insect of the order Thysanura, constituting the bristletails. — adj. Of, relating to, or belonging to the order Thysanura. [From New Latin Thysanura, order name : Greek thusanos, tassel + Greek -oura, neuter pl. of -ouros, tailed (from oura, tail); see -UROUS.]

thy-self (thī-sĕlf') pron. Archaic. Yourself. Used as the reflexive or emphatic form of thee or thou.

THz abbr. Terahertz.

ti¹ (tē) n. Music. The seventh tone in the diatonic scale in solfeggio. [Alteration of SI.]

ti² (tē) n. pl. tis. An eastern Asian tropical shrub (Cordyline terminalis) having a terminal tuft of long narrow leaves and panicles of white, yellowish, or reddish flowers. [Tahitian, and Maori.]

Ti The symbol for the element titanium.

Ti-a-hua-na-co (tē'ə-wə-nā'kō) A site of pre-Incan ruins in western Bolivia near the southern end of Lake Titicaca. The ruins, including statues, monoliths, and a temple of the sun, are evidence of a civilization that flourished here from c. 1000 to 1300.

Tian-an-men Square (tyän'än'mĕn' skwâr) An extensive open area in central Beijing, China, adjacent to the Forbidden City. It has long been the site of festivals, government rallies, parades, and demonstrations, particularly in 1989.

Tian-jin (tyän'jĭn') also Tien-tsin (tyĕn'tsĭn') A city of northeast China near the Gulf of Bo Hai southeast of Beijing. It developed rapidly after becoming a treaty port in 1860 but was badly damaged (1900) during the Boxer Rebellion. Today it is a major industrial center. Population, 5,380,000.

Tian Shan (tyän' shän') See Tien Shan.

ti·ar·a (tē-är'ə, -âr'ə, -är'ə) n. 1. An ornamental, often jeweled, crownlike semi-circle worn on the head by women on formal occasions. 2. The triple crown worn by the pope. [Latin tiāra, turban, headband, from Greek tiara.]

Tib·bett (tīb'tīt), Lawrence Mervil. 1896-1960. American baritone. A principal of the Metropolitan Opera (1925-1950), he was particularly known for his roles in Italian works.

Ti·ber (tī'bər) A river of central Italy flowing about 406 km (252 mi) south and southwest through Rome to the Tyrrhenian Sea at Ostia.

Ti·be·ri·as (tī-bîr'ē-əs), Lake. See Sea of Galilee.

Ti·be·ri·us (tī-bîr'ē-əs), 42 B.C.-A.D. 37. Emperor of Rome (A.D. 14-37). Chosen by Augustus to be heir to the throne, he was a suspicious, tyrannical ruler.

—Ti·be'ri·an (-ən) adj.

Ti·bet (tə-bět') 1. A historical region of central Asia between the Himalaya and Kunlun mountains. A center of Lamaist Buddhism, Tibet first flourished as an independent kingdom in the seventh century. It fell under Mongol influence from the 13th to the 18th century and later came under Chinese control (1720).

2. See Xizang.

Ti·bet·an (tī-bět'n) adj. Of or relating to Tibet, the Tibetans, or their language or culture. — n. a. A native or inhabitant of Tibet. b. A member of a Buddhist people constituting the predominant ethnic population of Tibet and neighboring regions in China, Bhutan, and Nepal, with large displaced populations in India.

Tibetan Buddhism (tī-bět'n bōō'dīz'əm) n. A form of Mahayana Buddhism with an admixture of indigenous animism that is practiced in Tibet, Mongolia, Bhutan, and neighboring areas.

Tibetan spaniel (tī-bět'n spän'yəl) n. Any of a breed of small dog that originated in Tibet, having a thick silky coat and a plumed tail that curls over the back.

Tibetan terrier (tī-bět'n tēr'ē-ər) n. Any of a breed of medium-sized dog that originated in Tibet, having thick, long hair over the eyes and a fluffy tail that curls over the back.

Ti·bet·o·Bur·man (tī-bět'ō-bûr'mən) n. A branch of the Sino-Tibetan language family that includes Tibetan and Burmese. —Ti·bet'o·Bur'man adj.

tib·i·a (tīb'ē-ə) n. pl. tib·i·ae (-ē-ē') or tib·i·as. 1. a. The inner and larger of the two bones of the lower human leg, extending from the knee to the ankle. b. A corresponding bone in other vertebrates. Also called shinbone 2. The fourth division of an insect's leg, between the femur and the tarsi. 3. Music. An ancient flute originally made from an animal's leg bone. [Latin tibia, pipe, shinbone.]

—tib'i·al adj.

tib·i·o·fib·u·lar (tīb'ē-ō-fīb'yə-lər) adj. Of, relating to, or involving both the tibia and the fibula: tibiofibular articulation.

tib·i·o·tar·sus (tĭb'ē-ō-tār'səs) n. A long bone in the leg of a bird between the femur and the tarsometatarsus, consisting of the tibia fused with the proximal bones of the tarsus.

Ti·bul·lus (tə-bŭl'əs), Albius. 54?-19? B.C. Roman poet of simple, elegant works, including elegies to two lovers.

Ti·bur (tī'bər) See Tivoli.

tic (tĭk) n. A habitual spasmodic muscular movement or contraction, usually of the face or extremities. — v. intr. ticced, tic-cing, tics. To have a tic; produce tics. [French.]

tic dou·lou·reux (tĭk dōō'lə-rōō') n. See trigeminal neuralgia. [French : tic, tic + douloureux, painful.]

Ti·ci·no (tĭ-chē'nō) A river, about 248 km (154 mi) long, of southern Switzerland and northern Italy flowing generally southward to the Po River. Hannibal defeated the Romans along the banks of the river in 218 B.C.

tick¹ (tĭk) n. 1. A light, sharp, clicking sound made repeatedly by a machine, such as a clock. 2. Chiefly British. A moment. 3. A light mark used to check off or call attention to an item. 4. Informal. A unit on a scale; a degree: when interest rates move up a tick. — v. ticked, tick-ing, ticks. — v. intr. 1. To emit recurring clicking sounds: as the clock ticked. 2. To function characteristically or well: machines ticking away; curious about what makes people tick. — v. tr. 1. To count or record with or as if with the sound of ticks: a clock ticking the hours; a taxi meter ticking the fare. 2. To mark or check off (a listed item) with a tick: ticked off each name as the roll was called. — phrasal verb. tick off. Informal. To make angry or annoyed: Constant delays ticked me off. [Middle English tek, light tap.]

tick² (tĭk) n. 1. Any of numerous small bloodsucking parasitic arachnids of the family Ixodidae, many of which transmit febrile diseases, such as Rocky Mountain spotted fever and Lyme disease. 2. Any of various usually wingless, louselike insects of the family Hippoboscidae that are parasitic on sheep, goats, and other animals. [Middle English teke, tik, perhaps from Old English ticca*.]

tick³ (tĭk) n. 1. a. A cloth case for a mattress or pillow. b. A light mattress without inner springs. 2. Ticking. [Middle English tikke, probably from Middle Dutch tīke, ultimately from Latin thēca, receptacle, from Greek thēkē. See dhē- in Appendix.]

tick⁴ (tĭk) n. Chiefly British. Credit or an amount of credit. [Short for TICKET.]

tick·bird (tĭk'bŭrd') n. See oxpecker.

tick·borne (tĭk'bōrn', -bōrn') adj. Carried or transmitted by ticks: a tick-borne disease.

tick·er (tĭk'ər) n. 1. a. A telegraphic instrument that receives news reports and prints them on paper tape. b. Any of various devices that receive and display similar information, such as stock market quotations, electronically. 2. Slang. A watch. 3. Slang. The heart.

ticker tape (tĭk'ər tāp) n. The paper strip on which a telegraphic ticker prints.

tick-et (tĭk'ĭt) n. 1. Abbr. tkt. A paper slip or card indicating that its holder has paid for or is entitled to a specified service, right, or consideration: a theater ticket; an airline ticket. 2. A certifying document, especially a captain's or pilot's license. 3. An identifying or descriptive tag attached to merchandise; a label.

4. A list of candidates proposed or endorsed by a political party; a slate. 5. A legal summons, especially for a traffic violation. 6. The proper or desirable thing: A change of scene would be just the ticket for us. 7. Informal. A means to an end: "He went to Washington... to become press secretary... it was his ticket out of the Delta" (Nicholas Lamann).

— v. tr. tick-et-ed, tick-et-ing, tick-ets. 1. To provide with a ticket for passage or admission: ticket all passengers through to Amsterdam. 2. To attach a ticket to; tag. See Synonyms at mark¹. 3. To designate for a specified use or end; destine: funds that have been ticketed for research. 4. To serve (an offender) with a legal summons: ticket a speeding motorist.

[Obsolete French etiquet, label, note, from Old French estiquet, notice, label, from Old Spanish etiqueta, from Old French estiquet, post serving as a target in certain sports, from estiquier, to stick, of Germanic origin. See steig- in Appendix.]

WORD HISTORY: The resemblance in form between the words ticket and etiquette is not accidental. Both words have the same ultimate source, Old French estiquet, but each was borrowed into English at a different time and with a different meaning. Old French estiquet meant "a note, label." Having been changed in form to etiquet in French, the word was adopted into English in the 16th century (first recorded in 1528) in a form, tiket, without the initial e. The earliest uses of the word in English were in the senses "a short written notice," "a notice posted in a public place," and "a written certification." The word is first recorded with reference to something like a ticket of admission in 1673. In French, meanwhile, the word (in the form etiquette in the 18th century) came to mean "ceremonial"; court ceremonies were noted down or labeled in a book known as l'etiquette. The French word was borrowed again into English, this time in its French form, which is first recorded in 1750.

ticket puncher (tĭk'ĭt pŭn'chər) n. Slang. A career military officer or businessperson whose primary concern is personal advancement.

tick fever (tĭk fē'vər) n. Any of various febrile diseases transmitted by ticks, such as Rocky Mountain spotted fever and Texas fever.

tick-ing (tĭk'ĭng) n. A strong, tightly woven fabric of cotton or linen used to make pillow and mattress coverings.

tick·le (tik'əl) v. tick·led, tick·ling, tick·les. — v. tr. 1. To touch (the body) lightly so as to cause laughter or twitching movements. 2. a. To tease or excite pleasurably; titillate: suspense that tickles the reader's curiosity. b. To fill with mirth or pleasure; delight. See Synonyms at please. — v. intr. To feel or cause a tingling sensation. — n. 1. The act of tickling. 2. A tickling sensation. — idiom. tickle (one) pink. Informal. To please; delight: I was tickled pink by the compliment. [Middle English tikelen, perhaps frequentative of ticken, to touch lightly.]

tick·ler (tik'lər) n. A memorandum, book, or file to aid the memory.

tick·lish (tik'lish) adj. 1. Sensitive to tickling. 2. Easily offended or upset; touchy. 3. Requiring skillful or tactful handling; delicate: a ticklish matter. — tick'lish·ly adv. — tick'lish·ness n.

Tick·nor (tik'nər, -nôr') George. 1791-1871. American educator and historian. A professor at Harvard (1819-1835), he greatly improved the teaching of modern languages.

tick·seed (tik'sēd') n. 1. See coreopsis. 2. See beggar ticks (pl.n., sense 1a). [From TICK² (from its seed's shape).]

tick·tack also tic·tac (tik'tāk') n. 1. A steady ticking sound, as of a clock. 2. A prankster's device for tapping on a door or window from a distance. [Imitative.]

tick·tack·toe also tick-tack-toe (tik'tāk'tō') n. Games. A game played by two people, each trying to make a line of three X's or three O's in a boxlike figure with nine spaces. [Probably imitative of the sounds of the original children's game, in which players brought pencils down on a numbered slate with their eyes shut.]

tick·tock (tik'tōk') n. The ticking sound made by a clock. [Imitative.]

tick trefoil (tik trē'foil') n. Any of various plants of the genus Desmodium, usually having trifoliolate compound leaves, racemes of small purplish or white flowers, and jointed seedpods with easily separable, one-seeded segments. [From TICK² (from the way its pods adhere to animals).]

tick·y·tack·y (tik'ē-tāk'ē) n. Shoddy material, as for the construction of standardized housing. — adj. 1. Made of shoddy material; cheaply built.

2. a. Marked by a mediocre uniformity of appearance or style: ticky-tacky rows of look-alike houses. b. Tawdry; tacky. [Reduplication of TACKY².]

Ti·con·der·o·ga (tī'kōn-də-rō'gə) A resort village of northeast New York between Lake George and Lake Champlain. Fort Carillon, built by the French in 1755, was taken in 1759 by the British, who renamed it Fort Ticonderoga. American Revolutionary troops captured the fort in May 1775, but it was later abandoned without a struggle to British forces in July 1777 during the Saratoga Campaign.

tic·queur (tī-kûr') n. A person affected with a tic. [French tiqueur, from tic, tic.]

tic·tac (tik'tāk') n. Variant of ticktack.

t.i.d. abbr. Latin. Ter in die (three times a day).

tid·al (tīd'əl) adj. 1. Relating to or affected by tides: the tidal maximum; tidal pools; tidal waters. 2. Dependent on or scheduled by the time of high tide: a tidal ferry. —tid'al·ly adv.

tidal air (tīd'əl âr) n. Tidal volume.

tidal volume (tīd'əl vŏl'yōom) n. The volume of air inhaled and exhaled at each breath.

tidal wave (tīd'əl wāv) n. 1. An unusual rise or incursion of water along the seashore, as from a storm or a combination of wind and spring tide. 2. A tsunami. 3. An overwhelming manifestation; a flood: a tidal wave of illicit drugs; an emotional tidal wave.

tid·bit (tīd'bit') also tit·bit (tīt'-'-) n. A choice morsel, as of gossip or food: "The book is chock-full of colorful tidbits about theater and theater people" (Alec Guinness). [Perhaps obsolete and dialectal tid, tender + BIT¹.]

tid·dly·winks (tīd'lē-wīngks') also tid·dle·dy·winks (tīd'l-dē-) pl.n. (used with a sing. verb). Games. A game in which players try to snap small disks into a cup by pressing them on the edge with a larger disk. [Possibly dialectal tiddly, little + WINK.]

tide¹ (tīd) n. 1. a. The periodic variation in the surface level of the oceans and of bays, gulfs, inlets, and estuaries, caused by gravitational attraction of the moon and sun. b. A specific occurrence of such a variation: awaiting the next high tide.

c. Flood tide. 2. Stress exerted on a body or part of a body by gravitational attraction of another: atmospheric tide; the tides that wrack Saturn's moons.

3. Something that fluctuates like the waters of the tide: a rising tide of discontent.

See Synonyms at flow. 4. A time or season. Often used in combination: even-tide; Christmastide; Shrovetide. 5. A favorable occasion; an opportunity. — v.

tid·ed, tid·ing, tides. — v. intr. 1. To rise and fall like the tide. 2. Nautical. To drift or ride with the tide: tided off the reef; tiding up the Hudson. — v. tr. To carry along with or as if with the tide. —phrasal verb. tide over. To support through a difficult period: I asked for $100 to tide me over till payday. [Middle English, from Old English tīd, division of time. See dā- in Appendix.]

tide² (tīd) v. intr. tid·ed, tid·ing, tides. Archaic. To betide; befall. [Middle English tiden, from Old English tīdan. See dā- in Appendix.]

tide·land (tīd'länd') n. Coastal land submerged during high tide.

tide·mark (tīd'märk') n. 1. A line or an artificial indicator marking the high-water or low-water limit of the tides. 2. A trace or an indication of past activity: "Just along the highway into town is the last tidemark of the Nazi advance, a brutal tangle of brown sculpture" (Regina Nadelson).

tide·rip (tīd'rīp') n. See rip current.

tide·wait·er (tīd'wā'tər) n. A customs officer who boards incoming ships at a harbor.

tide-wa-ter (tīd'wô'tər, -wõt'ər) n. 1. Water that inundates land at flood tide.

2. Water affected by the tides, especially tidal streams. 3. Low coastal land drained by tidal streams.

tide-way (tīd'wā') n. A channel in which a tidal current runs.

tid-ing (tī'dĩng) n. A piece of information or news. Often used in the plural: tidings of great joy; sad tidings. See Synonyms at news. [Middle English tiding, perhaps from Old Norse tīdhendi, events, from tīdhr, occurring. See dā- in Appendix.]

ti-dy (tī'dē) adj. ti-di-er, ti-di-est. 1. Orderly and neat in appearance or procedure. See Synonyms at neat¹. 2. Informal. Adequate; satisfactory: a tidy arrangement. 3. Informal. Substantial; considerable: a tidy sum. — v. ti-died, ti-dy-ing, ti-dies. — v. tr. To put in order: tidied up the house. — v. intr. To make things tidy: tidied up after dinner. — n. pl. ti-dies. A decorative protective covering for the arms or headrest of a chair. [Middle English tidi, in season, healthy, from tide, time. See TIDE¹.] — ti'di-ly adv. — ti'di-ness n.

ti-dy-tips (tī'dē-tĭps') pl.n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). A Californian herb (Layia platyglossa) having daisylike flower heads.

tie (tī) v. tied, ty-ing, ties. — v. tr. 1. To fasten or secure with or as if with a cord, rope, or strap: tied the kite to a post; tie up a bundle. 2. To fasten by drawing together the parts or sides and knotting with strings or laces: tied her shoes. 3. a. To make by fastening ends or parts: tie a knot. b. To put a knot or bow in: tie a neck scarf. 4. To confine or restrict as if with cord: duties that tied him to the office. 5. To bring together in relationship; connect or unite: friends who were tied by common interests; people who are tied by blood or marriage.

6. a. To equal (an opponent or an opponent's score) in a contest. b. To equal an opponent's score in (a contest): tied the game with minutes remaining. 7. Music.

To join (notes) by a tie. — v. intr. 1. To be fastened or attached: The apron ties at the back. 2. To achieve equal scores in a contest. — n. 1. A cord, string, or other means by which something is tied. 2. Something that connects or unites; a link: a blood tie; marital ties. 3. A necktie. 4. A beam or rod that joins parts and gives support. 5. One of the beams, usually made of wood, that are laid across a railroad bed to secure the rails. 6. a. An equality of scores, votes, or performance in a contest: The election ended in a tie. b. A contest so resulting; a draw.

7. Music. A curved line above or below two notes of the same pitch, indicating that the tone is to be sustained for their combined duration. — phrasal verbs.

tie in. To bring into or have a close or effective relation; connect or coordinate: two events that do not tie in; tying the movie promotion in with the book sales. tie into. To attack energetically. tie up. 3. Nautical. To secure or be secured to a shore or pier; dock. 4. To impede the progress of; block: The accident tied up traffic. 5. To keep occupied; engage: She was tied up in a meeting all morning. The phone was tied up for an hour. 6. To place (funds) so as to make inaccessible for other uses: tied up her cash in long-term investments. —idioms. tie one on. Slang. To become intoxicated; go on a drinking spree. tie the knot. Slang. 2. To get married. 3. To perform a marriage ceremony. [Middle English tien, from Old English tīgan. See deuk- in Appendix.]

tie-back (tī'bāk') n. 1. A decorative loop of fabric, cord, or metal for parting and draping a curtain to the side. 2. tiebacks. A pair of curtains intended to be tied back.

tie beam (tī bēm) n. A horizontal beam that connects the rafters in a roof.

tie-break-er (tī'brā'kər) n. Sports & Games. An additional contest or period of play designed to establish a winner among tied contestants. —tie'break'ing adj.

Tieck (tēk), Ludwig. 1773-1853. German writer known for his early romantic works, such as Franz Sternbald's Wanderings (1798), and his later realistic works, including Life's Overflow (1837).

tie clasp (tī kläsp) n. An ornamental clasp that holds the ends of a necktie to the shirt front. Also called tie clip tie-dye (tī'dī') v. tr. tie--dyed, tie--dye-ing, tie--dyes. To dye (fabric) after tying parts of the fabric so that they will not absorb dye, giving the fabric a streaked or mottled look. — n. 1. The process of tie-dyeing. 2. A tie-dyed fabric or garment.

tie-in (tī'in') n. One thing that is related to or connected with another.

tie line (tī līn) n. 1. A communications link between extensions of a private telephone system. 2. A connection between systems, such as electrical power or communications systems.

Tien Shan (tyĕn' shän') also Tian Shan (tyän') A mountain range of central Asia extending about 2,414 km (1,500 mi) east-northeast through western Kirghiz, extreme southwest Kazakhstan, and northwest China. It rises to 7,443.8 m (24,406 ft) at Pobeda Peak.

Tien-tsin (tyĕn'tsĭn') See Tianjin.

Tie-po-lo (tē-ĕp'ə-lō', tyĕ'pô-lô'), Giovanni Battista. 1696-1770. Italian painter. With his command of perspective, light, color, and composition, he produced a large body of secular and ecclesiastical works, including The Banquet of Cleopatra and The Martyrdom of Saint Agatha (both 1750).

tier¹ (tîr) n. 1. One of a series of rows placed one above another: a stadium with four tiers of seats. 2. A rank or class. — v. tr. intr. tiered, tier-ing, tiers. To arrange (something) into or rise in tiers: tier a wedding cake; balconies that tier upward. [Middle English tire, row, rank, from Old French, from tirer, to draw out. See TIRADE.] ti-er² (tī'ər) n. One that ties: a tier of knots.

tierce (tîrs) n. 1. Also terce (tûrs). a. The third of the seven canonical hours. No longer in liturgical use. b. The time of day appointed for this service, usually the third hour after sunrise. 2. A measure of liquid capacity, equal to a third of a pipe, or 42 gallons (159 liters). 3. Games. A sequence of three cards of the same suit. 4. Sports. The third position from which a parry or thrust can be made in fencing. 5. Music. An interval of a third. [Middle English, from Old French, from feminine of tiers, third, from Latin tertius. See trei- in Appendix.]

tier-cel (tîr'səl) n. Variant of tercel.

Ti-er-ra del Fue-go (tē-ēr'ə dəl fwā'gō, tyēr'rā thēl fwě'gô) An archipelago off southern South America separated from the mainland by the Strait of Magellan. The main island, also called Tierra del Fuego, is divided between Chile and Argentina. Smaller islands of the archipelago are administered individually by the two countries. Ferdinand Magellan first sighted Tierra del Fuego in 1520.

tier table (tîr tā'bəl) n. A table having several shelflike tops, one above the other.

tie tack (tī tāk) n. A short pin with a decorative head, used to attach a tie to a shirt front by means of a snap or chain.

Tie-tê (tyə-tā', tyī-tě') A river, about 805 km (500 mi) long, of southeast Brazil flowing generally northwest to the Paraná River.

Tie-tze's syndrome (tē'tsēz sîn'drôm') n. Inflammation of the cartilage of the rib cage, causing pain in the chest similar to angina pectoris. [After Alexander Tietze (1864-1927), German surgeon.]

tie-up (tī'ŭp') n. A temporary immobilization, as of traffic, work, or mechanical operation.

tie vine (tī vīn) n. Lower Southern U.S. The wild morning glory.

tiff (tĭf) n. 1. A fit of irritation. 2. A petty quarrel. — v. intr. tiffed, tiff-ing, tiffs. To quarrel. [Origin unknown.]

tif-fa-ny (tĭf'ə-nē) n. pl. tif-fa-nies. A thin, transparent gauze of silk or cotton muslin. [Probably from obsolete French tiphanie, Epiphany, from Old French, from Late Latin theophania. See THEOPHANY.]

Tif-fa-ny (tĭf'ə-nē), Louis Comfort. 1848-1933. American artist who developed an opalescent colored glass that he used in stained-glass windows, lamps, and other decorations.

Tiffany glass (tĭf'ə-nē glās) n. Stained or iridescent glass of a kind popular in the early 1900's for vases and lampshades. [After Louis Comfort TIFFANY.]

tif-fin (tĭf'ĭn) n. Chiefly British. A meal at midday; a luncheon. [Short for tiff-ing, gerund of tiff, to sip.]

Tif-fin (tĭf'ĭn) A city of north-central Ohio south-southwest of Toledo. It is an industrial center. Population, 18,604.

Tif-lis (tĭf'līs, tyə-flēs') See Tbilisi.

ti-ger (tī'gər) n. 1. a. A large carnivorous feline mammal (Panthera tigris) of Asia, having a tawny coat with transverse black stripes. b. Any of various similar wild felines, such as the jaguar, mountain lion, or lynx. 2. A person regarded as aggressive, audacious, or fierce. [Middle English tigre, from Old English tigras, tigers, and from Old French tigre both from Latin tigris, from Greek. See steig- in Appendix.] —ti'ger-ish adj.

tiger beetle (tī'gər bēt'l) n. Any of numerous active, brightly colored, predatory beetles of the family Cicindelidae, chiefly of warm, sandy regions, having large jaws and sluggish larvae that live in vertical burrows.

tiger cat (tī'gər kăt) n. 1. Any of various small wild felines, such as the ocelot, margay, or jaguarundi, that resemble the tiger in appearance or behavior. 2. A domestic cat, especially a tabby, having markings like those of a tiger. 3. A spotted dasyure (Dasyurus maculatus), the largest carnivorous marsupial in Australia.

ti-ger-eye (tī'gər-ī') also ti-ger's-eye (tī'gərz-) n. A yellow-brown, semiprecious chatoyant gemstone consisting of quartz with parallel veins of silicified altered crocidolite.

tiger lily (tī'gər līl'ē) n. An eastern Asian perennial (Lilium lancifolium) having large black-spotted reddish-orange flowers with reflexed petals and purplish bulbils in the leaf axils.

tiger moth (tī'gər mōth) n. Any of numerous, often brightly colored moths of the family Arctiidae, characteristically having wings marked with spots or stripes.

tiger salamander (tī'gər sāl'ə-măn'dər) n. A large terrestrial salamander (Ambystoma tigrinum) found in most parts of North America and having distinctive light olive bars or spots.

ti-ger's-eye (tī'gərz-ī') n. Variant of tiger-eye.

tiger shark (tī'gər shärk) n. A large voracious shark (Galeocerdo cuvieri) of tropical waters, having a grayish-brown color with vertical bars along the sides.

tiger swallowtail (tī'gər swōl'ō-tāl') n. A large swallowtail butterfly (Papilio glaucus) of eastern North America, mostly yellow with narrow black bands across the wings.

tight (tīt) adj. tight-er, tight-est. 1. Fixed or fastened firmly in place: a tight lid; tight screws; a tight knot. 2. Stretched or drawn out fully: a tight wire; a tight drumhead. 3. Of such close construction as to be impermeable: cloth tight enough to hold water; warm in our tight little cabin. 4. a. Leaving little empty space through compression; compact: a tight suitcase; a tight weave. b. Affording little spare time; full: a tight schedule. 5. Closely reasoned or concise: a tight argument; a tight style of writing. 6. Fitting close or too close to the skin; snug: a tight collar; a fit that was much too tight. 7. Slang. Personally close; intimate: "me and the D.A., who happen to be very tight with one another" (Tom Wolfe).

8. Experiencing a feeling of constriction: a tight feeling in the chest. 9. Reluctant to spend or give; stingy. 10. a. Obtainable with difficulty or only at a high price: tight money. b. Affected by scarcity: a tight market. 11. Difficult to deal with or get out of: a tight spot. 12. Barely profitable: a tight bargain. 13. Closely contested; close: a tight match. 14. Chiefly British. Neat and trim in appearance or arrangement. 15. Marked by full control over elements or subordinates; firm: tight management; a tight orchestral performance. 16. Slang. Intoxicated; drunk. 17. Baseball. Inside. — adv. tighter, tightest. 1. Firmly; securely. 2. Soundly: sleep tight. 3. Snugly or with constriction: My shoes are laced too tight. [Middle English, dense, of Scandinavian origin.] —tight/ly adv. —tight-ness n.

SYNONYMS: tight, taut, tense. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “not slack or loose on account of being pulled or drawn out fully”: a tight skirt; taut sails; tense piano strings. See also Synonyms at stingy

USAGE NOTE: Tight is used as an adverb following verbs that denote a process of closure or constriction, as squeeze, shut, close, tie, and hold. In this use it is subtly distinct from the adverb tightly. Tight denotes the state resulting from the process, whereas tightly denotes the manner of its application. As such, tight is more appropriate when the focus is on a state that endures for some time after the activity has ended. The sentence She closed up the house tight suggests preparation for an impending blizzard. By the same token, it is more natural to say The windows were frozen tight than The windows were frozen tightly, since in this case the tightness of the seal is not likely to be the result of the manner in which the windows were frozen. With a few verbs tight is used idiomatically as an intensive and is the only possible form: sleep tight; sit tight. Tight can be used only following the verb: The house was tightly (not tight) shut.

tight-en (tīt'n) v. tr. intr. tight-ened, tight-en-ing, tight-ens. To make or become tight or tighter. —tight/en-er n.

tight end (tīt ěnd) n. Football. An offensive end who lines up close to a tackle.

tight-fist-ed (tīt'fis'tid) adj. Close-fisted; stingy. See Synonyms at stingy. —tight/fist/ed-ness n.

tight-lipped also tight-lipped (tīt'lip't) adj. 1. Having the lips pressed together. 2. Loath to speak; close-mouthed. See Synonyms at silent. —tight-lipped/ness n.

tight-rope (tīt'rōp') n. 1. A tightly stretched rope, usually of wire, on which acrobats perform high above the ground. 2. An extremely precarious course or situation.

tights (tīts) pl.n. 1. A snug stretchable garment covering the body from the waist or neck down, designed for general wear by women and girls. 2. A similar garment designed for athletic use, worn especially by acrobats and dancers.

tight-wad (tīt'wōd') n. Slang. A miser.

Tig-lath-pi-le-ser III (tīg'lāth-pə-lē'zər, -pī-), Died 727 B.C. King of Assyria (745-727) whose conquests greatly strengthened the empire.

tig·lic acid (tĭg'lik əs'īd) n. A thick, syrupy poisonous liquid, C₅H₈O₂, derived from croton oil, having a spicy odor and used in making perfumes and flavoring agents. [From New Latin tiglium, specific epithet of Croton tiglium, perhaps from Greek tilos, liquid feces (from the use of croton oil as a purgative).]

ti·glon (tī'glən) also ti·gon (gən) n. The hybrid offspring of a male tiger and a female lion. [TIG(ER) + L(I)ON.]

Ti·gre (tē'grā, -grē) A city of eastern Argentina, a suburb of Buenos Aires in a fruit-growing area. Population, 199,366.

Ti·gré (tē-grā') n. A Semitic language of northern Ethiopia.

ti·gress (tī'grīs) n. 1. A female tiger. 2. A woman regarded as daring or fierce.

Ti·gri·nya (tə-grēn'yə) n. A Semitic language of northern Ethiopia.

Ti·gris (tī'grīs) A river of southwest Asia rising in eastern Turkey and flowing about 1,850 km (1,150 mi) southeast through Iraq to the Euphrates River. It was a major transportation route in ancient times.

Ti·jua·na (tē'ə-wā'nə, tē-hwā'nä) A city of extreme northwest Mexico on the U.S. border south of San Diego. It is a popular tourist center. Population, 429,500.

Ti·kal (tē-käl') A ruined Mayan city of northern Guatemala. It was the largest of the Mayan cities and may also be the oldest. Excavation and restoration of the ruins began in 1956.

tike (tik) n. Variant of tyke.

ti·ki (tē'kē) n. pl. ti·kis. 1. Tiki. Mythology. A male figure in Polynesian myth, sometimes identified as the first man. 2. A wooden or stone image of a Polynesian god. 3. A Maori figurine representing an ancestor, often intricately carved from greenstone and worn about the neck as a talisman. [Maori.]

til¹ (tīl) n. See sesame. [Hindi, from Sanskrit tilaḥ.]

til² (tīl) prep. Until. — conj. Until. See Usage Note at till².

ti·la·pi·a (tə-lā'pē-ə, -lā'-) n. Any of various cichlid fishes of the genus Tilapia, native to Africa but introduced elsewhere as a valuable food fish. [New Latin Tilapia, genus name.]

Til·burg (tīl'bûrg', -bœrkH') A city of southern Netherlands near the Belgian border southeast of Rotterdam. It has a major textile industry. Population, 154,094.

til·bur·y (tīl'bēr'ē, -bə-rē) n. pl. til·bur·ies. A light, two-wheeled, open carriage with two seats, used in the 19th century. [After Tilbury, a 19th-century London coach builder.]

til·de (tīl'də) n. A diacritical mark (~) placed over the letter n in Spanish to indicate the palatal nasal sound (ny), as in cañón, or over a vowel in Portuguese to indicate nasalization, as in lã, pão. [Spanish, alteration of obsolete Catalan title, from Latin titulus, superscription.]

Til·den (tīl'dən), Samuel Jones. 1814-1886. American politician. The Democratic presidential nominee in 1876, he won the popular election but lost the presidency in an electoral college controversy that was settled by a Senate committee in favor of Rutherford B. Hayes.

Til-den (tĭl'dən), William Tatem, Jr. Known as “Big Bill.” 1893-1953. American tennis player who dominated the sport in the 1920's, winning the U.S. men's singles championship seven times (1920-1925 and 1929) and the Wimbledon championship three times (1920, 1921 and 1930).

tile (tĭl) n. 1. A thin, flat or convex slab of hard material such as baked clay or plastic, laid in rows to cover walls, floors, and roofs. 2. A short length of pipe made of clay or concrete, used in sewers and drains. 3. A hollow fired clay or concrete block used for building walls. 4. Tiles considered as a group. 5. Games. A marked playing piece, as in mahjong. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: tile floors; a tile roof. — v. tr. tiled, til-ing, tiles. To cover or provide with tiles. [Middle English, from Old English tigele, from Latin tēgula, from tegere, to cover. See (s)teg- in Appendix.]

tile-fish (tĭl'fĭsh') n. pl. tilefish or tile-fish-es. A reddish-blue percoid marine food fish (Lopholatilus chamaeleonticeps) of deep Atlantic waters, having a fleshy flap on the nape and small yellow spots on the upper sides and fins. [Tile- (short for New Latin Lopholatilus, genus name : Greek lophos, crest, fin + -latilus Latinized diminutive of Greek latos, a kind of perch) + FISH.]

til-er (tĭl'lər) n. 1. One who lays tiles. 2. The doorkeeper of a Masonic or other fraternal society's lodge.

til-ing (tĭl'ĭŋ) n. 1. The laying of tiles. 2. Tiles considered as a group. 3. A tiled surface.

till¹ (tĭl) v. tr. tilled, till-ing, tills. To prepare (land) for the raising of crops, as by plowing and harrowing; cultivate. [Middle English tilen, from Old English til-ian.] — till'a-ble adj.

till² (tĭl) prep. Until. — conj. Until. [Middle English, from Old English til, from Old Norse.]

USAGE NOTE: Till and until are generally interchangeable in both writing and speech, though as the first word in a sentence until is usually preferred: Until you get that paper written don't even think about going to the movies. • Till is actually the older word, with until having been formed by the addition to it of the prefix un-, meaning “up to.” In the 18th century the spelling 'till became fashionable, as if till were a shortened form of until. Although 'till is now nonstandard, 'til is sometimes used in this way and is considered acceptable, though it is etymologically incorrect.

till³ (tĭl) n. 1. A drawer, small chest, or compartment for money, as in a store. 2. A supply of money; a purse. [Middle English tille.]

till⁴ (tĭl) n. Glacial drift composed of an unconsolidated, heterogeneous mixture of clay, sand, pebbles, cobbles, and boulders. [Origin unknown.]

till-age (tĭl'ij) n. 1. Cultivation of land. 2. Land that has been tilled.

Til-la-mook Bay (tĭl'ə-mōök' bā) An inlet of the Pacific Ocean in northwest Oregon. The surrounding area is noted for its cheese.

til-land-si-a (tĭ-länd'zē-ə) n. Any of various usually epiphytic bromeliad plants of the genus Tillandsia, such as Spanish moss, of tropical and subtropical America. [New Latin Tillandsia, genus name, after Elias Tillands (1640-1693), Finno-Swedish botanist.]

till-er¹ (tĭl'ər) n. One that tills land: a tiller of soil.

til-ler² (tĭl'ər) n. Nautical. A lever used to turn a rudder and steer a boat. [Middle English tiler, stock of a crossbow, from Old French telier, from Medieval Latin tēlārium, weaver's beam, from Latin tēla. See teks- in Appendix.]

til-ler³ (tĭl'ər) n. A shoot, especially one that sprouts from the base of a grass.

— v. intr. til-lered, til-ler-ing, til-lers. To send forth shoots from the base.

Used of a grass. [Middle English tiller*, from Old English telgor.]

Til-lich (tĭl'ĭk, -ĭKH), Paul Johannes. 1886-1965. German-born American theologian and philosopher whose works, including Systematic Theology (1951-1963), bind Christianity to an understanding of modern culture.

Til-ly (tĭl'ē), Count of Title of Johann Tserclaas. 1559-1632. Flemish field marshal during the Thirty Years' War.

tilt¹ (tĭlt) v. tilt-ed, tilt-ing, tilts. — v. tr. 1. To cause to slope, as by raising one end; incline: tilt a soup bowl; tilt a chair backward. 2. a. To aim or thrust (a lance) in a joust. b. To charge (an opponent); attack. 3. To forge with a tilt hammer. — v. intr. 1. To slope; incline. See Synonyms at slant. 2. To favor one side over another in a dispute; lean: "His views tilt unmistakably to the Arab position" (William Safire). 3. a. To fight with lances; joust. b. To engage in a combat or struggle; fight: tilting at injustices. — n. 1. The act of tilting or the condition of being tilted. 2. a. An inclination from the horizontal or vertical; a slant: adjusting the tilt of a writing table. b. A sloping surface, as of the ground. 3. a. A tendency to favor one side in a dispute: the court's tilt toward conservative rulings. b. An implicit preference; a bias: "pitilessly illuminates the inaccuracies and tilts of the press" (Nat Hentoff). 4. a. A medieval sport in which two mounted knights with lances charged together and attempted to unhorse one another. b. A thrust or blow with a lance. 5. A combat, especially a verbal one; a debate. 6. A tilt hammer. 7. New England. See seesaw (n., sense 1). See Regional note at teeter-totter. — idiom. at full tilt. Informal. At full speed: a tank moving at full tilt. [Middle English tilten, to cause to fall, perhaps of Scandinavian origin.] — tilt'er n.

- tilt² (tĭlt) n. A canopy or an awning for a boat, wagon, or cart. — v. tr. tilt-ed, tilt-ing, tilts. To cover (a vehicle) with a canopy or an awning. [Middle English telte, tent, from Old English teld.]
- tilth (tĭlth) n. 1. Cultivation of land; tillage. 2. Tilled earth. [Middle English, from Old English tilth, from tilian, to labor.]
- tilt hammer (tĭlt hăm'ər) n. A heavy forge hammer having a pivoted lever by which it is tilted up and then allowed to drop.
- tilt-ing board (tĭl'tĭng bôrd) n. New England. See seesaw (n., sense 1). See Regional note at teeter-totter.
- tilt-yard (tĭlt'yărd') n. An enclosed yard for tilting contests.
- Tim. abbr. Bible. Timothy.
- tim-bal also tym-bal (tĭm'bəl) n. A kettledrum. [French timbale, from Old French, alteration (influenced by cymbale, cymbals), of tamballe, alteration (influenced by tambour, drum), of Old Spanish atabal, small drum, from Arabic aṭ-ṭabl, the drum.]
- tim-bale (tĭm'bəl, tĭm-bäl', tăm-) n. 1. A custardlike dish of cheese, chicken, fish, or vegetables baked in a drum-shaped pastry mold. 2. The pastry mold in which this food is baked. [French, timbal, mold. See TIMBAL.]
- tim-ber (tĭm'bər) n. 1. a. Trees or wooded land considered as a source of wood. b. Wood used as a building material; lumber. 2. a. A dressed piece of wood, especially a beam in a structure. b. Nautical. A rib in a ship's frame. 3. A person considered to have qualities suited for a particular activity: That trainee is executive timber. — v. tr. tim-bered, tim-ber-ing, tim-bers. To support or frame with timbers: timber a mine shaft. [Middle English, from Old English, building, trees for building. See dem- in Appendix.]
- tim-bered (tĭm'bərd) adj. 1. Covered with trees; wooded. 2. Made of or framed by timbers, especially exposed timbers.
- tim-ber-head (tĭm'bər-hĕd') n. Nautical. An upper end of a timber that projects above a deck and is used as a bollard.
- timber hitch (tĭm'bər hĭch) n. A knot used for fastening a rope around a spar or log to be hoisted or towed.
- tim-ber-ing (tĭm'bər-ĭng) n. Timber or objects and structures made of it.
- tim-ber-land (tĭm'bər-lănd') n. Forested land, especially land containing timber of commercial value.
- tim-ber-line (tĭm'bər-lĭn') n. 1. The elevation in a mountainous region above which trees do not grow. 2. The northern or southern latitude beyond which trees do not grow. Also called tree line
- timber rattlesnake (tĭm'bər răt'l-snāk') n. A venomous snake (Crotalus horridus subsp. horridus) of the United States, typically having a yellowish-brown color and wide transverse bands on the back.

timber right (tĭm' bər rīt) n. A claim to the trees on property belonging to another. Often used in the plural.

timber wolf (tĭm' bər wōōlf) n. See gray wolf.

tim-ber-work (tĭm' bər-wûrk') n. A structure made with timbers, as the framework of a boat or house.

tim-bre (tăm' bər, tĭm' -) n. 1. The quality of a sound that distinguishes it from other sounds of the same pitch and volume. 2. Music. The distinctive tone of an instrument or a singing voice. [French, from Old French, drum, clapperless bell, probably from Medieval Greek timbanon*, drum, from Greek tumpanon, kettle-drum.]

tim-brel (tĭm' brəl) n. Music. An ancient percussion instrument similar to a tambourine. [Diminutive of Middle English timbre, drum, from Old French. See TIMBRE.]

Tim-buk-tu (tĭm' bŭk-tōō', tĭm-bŭk'tōō) A city of central Mali near the Niger River northeast of Bamako. Founded in the 11th century, it became a major trading center (primarily for gold and salt) by the 14th century. Timbuktu was sacked in 1593 by invaders from Morocco and never recovered its former glory. Population, 19,166.

time (tīm) n. 1. Abbr. t., T. a. A nonspatial continuum in which events occur in apparently irreversible succession from the past through the present to the future. b. An interval separating two points on this continuum; a duration: a long time since the last war; passed the time reading. c. A number, as of years, days, or minutes, representing such an interval: ran the course in a time just under four minutes. d. A similar number representing a specific point on this continuum, reckoned in hours and minutes: checked her watch and recorded the time, 6:17 A.M. e. A system by which such intervals are measured or such numbers are reckoned: solar time. 2. a. Often times. An interval, especially a span of years, marked by similar events, conditions, or phenomena; an era: hard times; a time of troubles. b. times. The present with respect to prevailing conditions and trends: You must change with the times. 3. A suitable or opportune moment or season: a time for taking stock of one's life. 4. a. Periods or a period designated for a given activity: harvest time; time for bed. b. Periods or a period necessary or available for a given activity: I have no time for golf. c. A period at one's disposal: Do you have time for a chat? 5. An appointed or fated moment, especially of death or giving birth: He died before his time. Her time is near. 6. a. One of several instances: knocked three times; addressed Congress for the last time before retirement. b. times. Used to indicate the number of instances by which something is multiplied or divided: This tree is three times taller than that one. My library is many times smaller than hers. 7. a. One's lifetime. b. One's period of greatest activity or engagement. c. A person's experience during a specific period or on a certain occasion: had a good time at the party. 8. a. A period of military service. b. A period of apprenticeship. c. Informal. A prison sentence. 9. a. The customary period of work: hired for full time. b. The period spent working. c. The hourly pay rate: earned double time on Sundays. 10. The period during which a radio or television program or commercial is broadcast: “There’s television time to buy” (Brad Goldstein). 11. The rate of speed of a measured activity: marching in double time. 12. Music. a. The characteristic beat of musical rhythm: three-quarter time. b. The rate of speed at which a piece of music is played; the tempo. 13. Chiefly British. The hour at which a pub closes. 14. Sports. A time-out. — adj. 1. Of, relating to, or measuring time. 2. Constructed so as to operate at a particular moment: a time release. 3. Payable on a future date or dates. 4. Of or relating to installment buying: time payments. — v. tr. timed, tim-ing, times. 1. To set the time for (an event or occasion). 2. To adjust to keep accurate time. 3. To adjust so that a force is applied or an action occurs at the desired time: timed his swing so as to hit the ball squarely. 4. To record the speed or duration of: time a runner. 5. To set or maintain the tempo, speed, or duration of: time a manufacturing process. — idioms. against time. With a quickly approaching time limit: worked against time to deliver the manuscript before the deadline. at one time. 2. Simultaneously. 3. At a period or moment in the past. at the same time. However; nonetheless. at times. On occasion; sometimes. behind the times. Out-of-date; old-fashioned. for the time being. Temporarily. from time to time. Once in a while; at intervals. high time. Long overdue: It’s high time that you started working. in good time. 10. In a reasonable length of time. 11. When or before due. 12. Quickly. in no time. Almost instantly; immediately. in time. 14. Before a time limit expires. 15. Within an indefinite time; eventually: In time they came to accept the harsh facts. 16. Music. In the proper tempo. on time. 17. According to schedule; punctual or punctually. 18. By paying in installments. time after time. Again and again; repeatedly. time and again. Again and again; repeatedly. time of (one’s) life. A highly pleasurable experience: We had the time of our lives at the beach. time on (one’s) hands. An interval with nothing to do. time was. There was once a time: “Time was when [urban gangs] were part of a... subculture that inner-city adolescence outgrew” (George F. Will). [Middle English, from Old English tīma. See dā- in Appendix.]

time and a half (tīm ənd ā hāf) n. A rate of pay that is one and a half times the regular rate, as for overtime work.

time and motion study (tīm ənd mō’shən stüd’ē) n. An analysis of the efficiency with which an industrial operation is performed. Also called motion study, time study.

time bill (tīm bīl) n. A bill of exchange payable at an indicated future time.

time bomb (tīm böm) n. 1. A bomb with a detonating mechanism that can be set for a particular time. 2. Something that threatens to have an abruptly disastrous outcome in the future.

time capsule (tīm kăp'səl) n. A sealed container preserving articles and records of contemporary culture for perusal by scientists and scholars of the distant future.

time-card (tīm'kărd') n. A card, either filled out by an employee or stamped by a time clock, recording the employee's starting and quitting times each work day.

time clock (tīm klök) n. A clock that records the starting and quitting times of employees, usually by punching timecards.

time-con-sum-ing (tīm'kən-sōo'ming) adj. Taking up much time.

time deposit (tīm dĩ-pöz'it) n. A bank deposit that cannot be withdrawn before a date specified at the time of deposit.

time dilatation (tīm dĩl'ə-tă'shən) n. The relativistic slowing of a clock that moves with respect to a stationary observer. Also called time dilation timed-re-lease (tīmd'rī-lēs') or time-re-lease (tīm'-) adj. Releasing ingredients gradually to produce a sustained effect: a timed-release allergy medication; timed-release fertilizers.

time exposure (tīm ik-spō'zhər) n. 1. A photographic exposure made by leaving the shutter open a relatively long time, generally a second or more. 2. An image so made.

time frame (tīm frām) n. A period during which something takes place or is projected to occur: "a start of deployment in the 1993 time frame" (Harold Brown).

time-hon-ored (tīm'ōn'ərd) adj. Respected or adhered to because of age or age-old observance.

time immemorial (tīm im'ə-môr'ē-əl) n. pl. times immemorial. 1. Time long past, beyond memory or record. Also called time out of mind 2. Law. Time antedating legal records.

time-keep-er (tīm'kē'pər) n. 1. One who records time, as: a. Sports. One who keeps track of elapsed time in a sporting event. b. One who keeps records of the hours worked by employees. 2. A device for keeping time; a timepiece.

—time/keep'ing adj.

time-lapse (tīm'lăps') adj. Of, using, or being a technique that photographs a naturally slow process, such as plant growth, on movie film at intervals, so that continuous projection of the frames gives an accelerated view of the process.

time-less (tīm'līs) adj. 1. Independent of time; eternal. 2. Unaffected by time; ageless. See Synonyms at ageless. 3. Archaic. Untimely or premature.

—time/less-ly adv. —time/less-ness n.

time loan (tīm lōn) n. A loan to be paid within or by a specified time.

time lock (tīm lۆk) n. A lock, as for a bank vault, containing a mechanism that prevents its being opened before a fixed time.

time·ly (tīm'lē) adj. time·li·er, time·li·est. 1. Occurring at a suitable or opportune time; well-timed. See Synonyms at opportune. 2. Archaic. Coming too early; premature. — adv. 1. In time; opportunely. 2. Archaic. Early; soon. —time'li·ness n.

time machine (tīm mə-shēn') n. A fictional or hypothetical device by means of which one may travel into the future and the past.

time note (tīm nۆt) n. An instrument, such as a promissory note, that specifies dates or a date of payment.

time·ous (tī'məs) adj. Timely. —time'ous·ly adv.

time-out also time out (tīm'out') n. 1. Sports. A brief cessation of play at the request of a sports team or an official for rest, consultation, or making substitutions. 2. A short break from work or play.

time out of mind (tīm out ۆv mīnd) n. pl. times out of mind. See time immemorial (n., sense 1).

time·piece (tīm'pēs') n. An instrument, such as a clock or watch, that measures, registers, or records time.

tim·er (tī'mər) n. 1. One who keeps track of time; a timekeeper. 2. A timepiece, especially one used for measuring and signaling the end of time intervals, as on a stove. 3. A switch or regulator that controls or activates and deactivates another mechanism at set times. 4. A device that controls the timing of the sparks that ignite the fuel in an internal-combustion engine.

time-re·lease (tīm'rī-lēs') adj. Variant of timed-release.

time reversal (tīm rī-vũr'səl) n. Abbr. T Mathematics. An operation representing a transformation from a given physical system undergoing a given sequence of events to a system in which the exact reverse sequence of events takes place.

times (tīmz) prep. Mathematics. Multiplied by: Five times two is ten.

time·sav·ing (tīm'sā'vīng) adj. Serving to save time through an efficient method or a shorter route; expeditious. —time'sav'er n.

time·serv·er also time-serv·er (tīm'sũr'vər) n. One who conforms to the prevailing ways and opinions of one's time or condition for personal advantage; an opportunist. —time'serv'ing adj. & n.

time·share (tīm'shâr') v. time--shared, time--shar·ing, time--shares. — v. tr. 1. Computer Science. To use (a computer) by time-sharing. 2. To occupy (a vacation property) by time-sharing. — v. intr. To engage in time-sharing. — n. 1. Variant of time-sharing (n., sense 2). 2. A property jointly owned or leased by time-sharing. —time'shar'er n.

time·shar·ing (tīm'shâr'īng) n. 1. Computer Science. A technique permitting many users simultaneous access to a central computer through remote terminals.

2. Also time-share (-shâr'). Joint ownership or lease of vacation property by several people who take turns occupying the premises for fixed periods.

time sheet (tīm shēt) n. A sheet that records the number of hours worked by employees during a pay period.

time signature (tīm sĭg'nə-chər) n. Music. A sign placed on a staff to indicate the meter, commonly a numerical fraction of which the numerator is the number of beats per measure and the denominator represents the kind of note getting one beat.

times sign (tīmz sĭn) n. Mathematics. The symbol \times used to indicate multiplication.

Times Square (tīmz skwâr) An intersection in New York City formed by the juncture of Broadway, Seventh Avenue, and 42nd Street in midtown Manhattan. Long noted as a center of the city's entertainment district, it is the site of annual New Year's Eve celebrations.

time study (tīm stüd'ē) n. See time and motion study.

time-table (tīm'tā'bəl) n. A schedule listing the times at which certain events, such as arrivals and departures at a transportation station, are expected to take place.

time-tested (tīm'tēs'tĭd) adj. Proved effective over a long period of time: a time-tested recipe.

time warp (tīm wôrp) n. A hypothetical discontinuity or distortion occurring in the flow of time that would move events from one time period to another or suspend the passage of time.

time-work (tīm'wûrk') n. Work paid for at a rate per unit of time, as by the hour. —time/work'er n.

time-worn (tīm'wôrn', -wôrn') adj. 1. Showing the effects of long use or wear: timeworn lanes. 2. Used too often; trite: timeworn expressions.

time zone (tīm zôn) n. Any of the 24 longitudinal divisions of Earth's surface in which a standard time is kept, the primary division being that bisected by the Greenwich meridian. Each zone is 15° of longitude in width, with local variations, and observes a clock time one hour earlier than the zone immediately to the east.

Tim-gad (tĭm'găd') An ancient Roman city in northeast Algeria. Founded by Trajan in A.D. 100, it is sometimes called "the Pompeii of North Africa" because of its extensive, well-preserved ruins.

tim-id (tĭm'ĭd) adj. tim-id-er, tim-id-est. 1. Lacking self-confidence; shy.

2. Fearful and hesitant: problems that call for bold, not timid, responses. [Latin timidus, from timēre, to fear.] —ti-mid/i-ty, tim/id-ness n. —tim/id-ly adv.

SYNONYMS: timid, timorous. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is "hesitating to take action or assert oneself out of fear, apprehensiveness, or lack of self-confidence”: too timid to protest; timorous of venturing an opinion.

tim-ing (tī'mǐng) n. The art or operation of regulating occurrence, pace, or coordination to achieve the most desirable effects, as in music, the theater, athletics, or mechanics.

timing chain (tī'mǐng chān) n. The chain that drives the camshaft in an internal combustion engine.

Ti-mi-șoa-ra (tē'mē-shwār'ə) A city of western Romania near the Yugoslavian border west-northwest of Bucharest. First mentioned in 1247, it is a railroad hub and an industrial center. Population, 303,499.

Tim-mins (tīm'inz) A city of central Ontario, Canada, northeast of Sault Sainte Marie. It is a gold-mining center. Population, 46,114.

ti-moc-ra-cy (tī-mōk'rə-sē) n. pl. ti-moc-ra-cies. 1. A state described by Plato as being governed on principles of honor and military glory. 2. An Aristotelian state in which civic honor or political power is proportional to the property one owns. [Obsolete French tymocracie, from Medieval Latin timocratia, from Greek timokratia : timē, honor, value + -kratia, -cracy.] —ti'mo-crat'ic (tī'mə-krät'ik) adj.

Ti-mor (tē'môr, tē-môr') An island of southeast Indonesia, the easternmost of the Lesser Sundas. The western half of the island, formerly Netherlands Timor, became part of Indonesia in 1949. The eastern half was an overseas province of Portugal from 1914 until 1975.

tim-or-ous (tīm'ər-əs) adj. Full of apprehensiveness; timid. See Synonyms at timid. [Middle English, from Old French timoureux, from Medieval Latin timōrōsus, from Latin timor, timōr-, fear, from timēre, to fear.] —tim/or-ous-ly adv. —tim/or-ous-ness n.

Timor Sea (tē'môr sē) An arm of the Indian Ocean between Timor and Australia.

Ti-mo-shen-ko (tīm'ə-shěng'kō, tyī-mə-shě'n'kə), Semyon Konstantinovich. 1895-1970. Russian army officer who directed the defense of Moscow during World War II and repulsed the German advance on that city (1941).

tim-o-thy (tīm'ə-thē) n. pl. tim-o-thies. Any of several grasses of the genus Phleum, especially P. pratense, native to Eurasia, and P. alpinum, of North America, having a dense cylindrical inflorescence of compressed, one-flowered spikelets and widely cultivated for hay. [Probably after Timothy Hanson, an 18th-century American farmer.]

Tim-o-thy (tīm'ə-thē) n. Abbr. Tim., Tm Bible. A book of the Bible. See Table at Bible.

Tim-o-thy (tīm'ə-thē), Saint. First century A.D. Christian leader and companion of Saint Paul. Two epistles of the New Testament, ascribed to Paul, are addressed to him.

tim·pa·ni also tym·pa·ni (tĭm'pə-nē) pl.n. Music. A set of kettledrums. [Italian, pl. of timpano, kettledrum, from Latin tympanum, drum. See TYMPANUM.]

tim·pa·nist also tym·pa·nist (tĭm'pə-nĭst) n. Music. One who plays the kettledrums and other percussion instruments in an orchestra.

Tim·pa·no·gos (tĭm'pə-nō'gəs), Mount. The highest of the Wasatch Mountains in north-central Utah, rising to 3,662 m (12,008 ft).

tim·pa·num (tĭm'pə-nəm) n. Variant of tympa·num.

Tim·rod (tĭm'rōd'), Henry. 1828-1867. American poet known for his emotional works, including "Ethnogenesis" (1861). During the Civil War he was considered the poet laureate of the Confederacy.

Tim·u·cu·a (tĭm'ə-kōō'ə) n. pl. Timucua or Timu·cu·as. 1. a. A Native American people formerly inhabiting much of northern Florida, extinct since the early 18th century. b. A member of this people. 2. The extinct language of the Timucua.

tin (tĭn) n. 1. Symbol Sn A malleable, silvery metallic element obtained chiefly from cassiterite. It is used to coat other metals to prevent corrosion and is a part of numerous alloys, such as soft solder, pewter, type metal, and bronze. Atomic number 50; atomic weight 118.69; melting point 231.89°C; boiling point 2,270°C; specific gravity 7.31; valence 2, 4. 2. Tin plate. 3. A container or box made of tin plate. 4. Chiefly British. a. A container for preserved foodstuffs; a can. b. The contents of such a container. — v. tr. tinned, tin·ning, tins. 1. To plate or coat with tin. 2. Chiefly British. To preserve or pack in tins; can. — adj. 1. Of, relating to, or made of tin. 2. a. Constructed of inferior material. b. Spurious. [Middle English, from Old English.]

WORD HISTORY: The history of the word tin may take us back to a time before Europe had been settled by speakers of Indo-European languages, such as the Germanic and Celtic languages. Related words for this metal are found in almost all Germanic languages, such as German Zinn, Swedish tenn, and Old English tin (as in Modern English), but no other Indo-European language family has such a word. The word may have been borrowed into the Germanic languages from a pre-Indo-European language of Western Europe. Such borrowing is supported by the fact that during the Bronze Age the Near East imported most of its tin and copper from Europe, where the metals were produced and metal objects were manufactured. Lest we be too amazed by this accomplishment, we might remember another remarkable achievement of pre-Indo-European society, the construction of huge megalithic monuments such as Stonehenge.

tin·a·mou (tĭn'ə-mōō') n. Any of various chickenlike or quaillike birds of the family Tinamidae, living in grasslands and jungles of Central and South America. [French, perhaps of Galibi origin.]

Tin-ber-gen (tĭn'bĕr-gən, -bĕr'kHĕn), Jan. 1903-1994. Dutch economist. He shared a 1969 Nobel Prize for the application of mathematics and statistical methods to economics. His brother Nikolaas (born 1907), a Dutch-born British ethologist, shared a 1973 Nobel Prize for studies of individual and social behavior patterns.

tin-cal (tĭng'kəl) n. Crude borax. [Malay tingkal.]

tin can (tĭn kăn) n. 1. A container of tin-coated sheet metal used especially for preserving food. 2. Informal. A naval destroyer.

tinct (tĭngkt) n. A color or tint. — adj. Colored lightly or faintly; tinged.

[Middle English, a transforming elixir, from Latin tinctus, a dyeing, from past participle of tingere, to dye.]

tinct. abbr. Tincture.

tinc-to-ri-al (tĭngk-tŏr'ĕ-əl, -tŏr'-) adj. Relating to the processes of dyeing or coloring. [From Latin tinctorius, from tinctus, past participle of tingere, to dye.]

—tinc-to'ri-al-ly adv.

tinc-ture (tĭngk'chĕr) n. 1. A coloring or dyeing substance; a pigment. 2. An imparted color; a tint. 3. A quality that colors, pervades, or distinguishes. 4. A trace or vestige: “a faint tincture of condescension” (Robert Craft). 5. Abbr. tinct. An alcohol solution of a nonvolatile medicine: tincture of iodine. 6. Heraldry. A metal, color, or fur. — v. tr. tinc-tured, tinc-tur-ing, tinc-tures. 1. To stain or tint with a color. 2. To infuse, as with a quality; impregnate. [Middle English, from Latin tinctura, a dyeing, from tinctus, past participle of tingere, to dye.]

Tin-dal or Tin-dale (tĭn'dl), William. See William Tyndale.

tin-der (tĭn'dĕr) n. Readily combustible material, such as dry twigs, used to kindle fires. [Middle English, from Old English tynder.]

tin-der-box (tĭn'dĕr-bŏks') n. 1. A metal box for holding tinder. 2. A potentially explosive place or situation: referred to the crowded prison as a tinderbox of suppressed violence.

tine (tĭn) n. 1. A branch of a deer's antlers. 2. A prong on an implement such as a fork or pitchfork. [Middle English, from Old English tind.] —tined (tĭnd) adj.

tin-e-a (tĭn'ĕ-ə) n. Any of several infections of the skin, such as ringworm, caused by fungi. [Middle English, from Medieval Latin, from Latin, a gnawing worm.] —tin'e-al adj.

tinea bar-bae (tĭn'ĕ-ə bār'bĕ) n. See barber's itch. [New Latin : Medieval Latin tinea, tinea + Latin barbae, genitive of barba, beard.]

tinea cap-i-tis (tĭn'ĕ-ə kăp'ĭ-tĭs) n. A fungal infection of the scalp. [New Latin : Medieval Latin tinea, tinea + Latin capitis, genitive of caput, head.]

tinea cru-ris (tĭn'ĕ-ə krŏr'ĭs) n. A fungal infection of the skin of the groin, occurring especially in males. Also called jock itch [New Latin : Medieval Latin tinea, tinea + Latin crūris, genitive of crūs, leg.]

tin ear (tɪn ɪr) n. Informal. An insensitivity to music or to sounds of a given kind: a writer with a tin ear for dialogue.

tin-foil also tin foil (tɪn'fɔɪl') n. A thin, pliable sheet of aluminum or of tin-lead alloy, used as a protective wrapping.

ting (tɪŋ) n. A single light metallic sound, as of a small bell. — v. intr. tinged (tɪŋd), ting-ing, tings. To give forth a light metallic sound. [From Middle English tingen, to cause to ring, of imitative origin.]

Ting (tɪŋ), Samuel Chao Chung. Born 1936. American physicist. He shared a 1976 Nobel Prize for discovering a subatomic particle.

tinge (tɪnj) v. tr. tinged (tɪnjd), tinge-ing or ting-ing (tɪn'jɪŋ), ting-es.

1. To apply a trace of color to; tint. 2. To affect slightly, as with a contrasting quality: "The air was blowy and tinged with rain" (Joyce Carol Oates). — n. 1. A small amount of a color incorporated or added. 2. A slight added element, property, or influence: a tinge of regret. [Middle English tingen, from Latin tingere.]

tin-gle (tɪŋ'gəl) v. tin-gled, tin-gling, tin-gles. — v. intr. 1. To have a prickling, stinging sensation, as from cold, a sharp slap, or excitement: tingled all over with joy. 2. To cause a prickling, stinging sensation or feeling: The straw tingled. — v. tr. To cause to tingle. — n. A prickly or stinging sensation. [Middle English tinglen, alteration of tinklen. See TINKLE.] — tin'gler n. — tin'gly adj.

tin-horn (tɪn'hɔrn') n. Slang. A petty braggart who pretends to be rich and important. [From the horn-shaped metal can used by chuck-a-luck operators for shaking the dice.] — tin'horn' adj.

Ti-ni-an (tɪn'ē-ən', tē'nē-ən') An island of the western Pacific Ocean in the southern Mariana Islands. The planes that dropped atomic bombs on Hiroshima (August 6, 1945) and Nagasaki (August 9, 1945) were flown from Tinian.

tin-ker (tɪŋ'kər) n. 1. A traveling mender of metal household utensils. 2. One who enjoys experimenting with and repairing machine parts. 3. A clumsy repairer or worker; a meddler. — v. tin-kered, tin-ker-ing, tin-kers. — v. intr. 1. To work as a tinker. 2. To make unskilled or experimental efforts at repair; fiddle: tinkered with the engine, hoping to discover the trouble; tinkering with the economy by trying various fiscal policies. — v. tr. 1. To mend as a tinker. 2. To manipulate unskillfully or experimentally. [Middle English tinkere.]

tin-ker's damn also tin-ker's dam (tɪŋ'kərz dām) n. Slang. The smallest degree or amount: property that is not worth a tinker's damn. [Probably from the reputation of tinkers for cursing.]

Tin-ker-toy (tɪŋ'kər-toi') A trademark used for a construction toy consisting of pieces that fit together.

tin-kle (tɪŋ'kəl) v. tin-kled, tin-kl-ing, tin-kles. — v. intr. To make light metallic sounds, as those of a small bell. — v. tr. 1. To cause to tinkle. 2. To signal or call by tinkling. — n. 1. A light, clear metallic sound or a sound suggestive of it. 2. The act of tinkling. [Middle English tinklen, frequentative of tinken, to emit a brief metallic sound, perhaps of imitative origin.] —tin/'kly adj.

Tin-ley Park (tĭn'lē pārk) A city of northeast Illinois, a residential suburb of Chicago. Population, 37,121.

tin liz-zie (tĭn lĭz'ē) n. Slang. A dilapidated or cheap car. [From the name Liz-zie, a nickname for Elizabeth.]

tin-ner (tĭn'ər) n. 1. A tin miner. 2. One that makes or deals in tinware; a tin-smith.

tin-ni-tus (tĭ-nī'təs, tĭn'ī-) n. pl. tin-ni-tus-es. A sound in one ear or both ears, such as buzzing, ringing, or whistling, occurring without an external stimulus and usually caused by a specific condition, such as an ear infection, the use of certain drugs, a blocked auditory tube or canal, or a head injury. [Latin tinnĭtus, from past participle of tinnĭre, to ring, of imitative origin.]

tin-ny (tĭn'ē) adj. tin-ni-er, tin-ni-est. 1. Of, containing, or yielding tin.

2. Tasting or smelling of tin: tinny canned food. 3. Having a thin metallic sound: a high tinny voice. 4. Weak or thin; flimsy. —tin/'ni-ly adv. —tin/'ni-ness n.

Tĭ-nos (tē'nōs') also Te-nos (tē'nōs', -nōs') An island of southeast Greece in the Cyclades Islands east-southeast of Athens. It is a major producer of wine.

Tin Pan Alley (tĭn pān əl'ē) n. Music. 1. A district associated with musicians, composers, and publishers of popular music. 2. The publishers and composers of popular music considered as a group. [Probably from tin pan, tinny piano + ALLEY¹ (from the cheap pianos associated with music publishers' offices).]

tin plate (tĭn plāt) n. Thin sheet iron or steel coated with tin to prevent rusting, used especially to make cans and pots.

tin-plate (tĭn'plāt') v. tr. tin--plat-ed, tin--plat-ing, tin--plates. To coat with tin, either by dipping or electroplating. —tin/'plat'er n.

tin pyrites (tĭn pī-rī'tēz) n. See stannite.

tin-sel (tĭn'səl) n. 1. Very thin sheets, strips, or threads of a glittering material used as a decoration. 2. Something sparkling or showy but basically valueless: the tinsel of parties and promotional events. — adj. 1. Made of or decorated with tinsel. 2. Gaudy, showy, and basically valueless. — v. tr. tin-seled or tin-selled, tin-sel-ing or tin-sel-ling, tin-sels or tin-sels. 1. To decorate with or as if with tinsel: tinsel a Christmas tree. 2. To give a false sparkle to. [Middle English tinesseile, from Old French estincelle, spangle, spark. See STENCIL.]

tin-smith (tĭn'smith') n. One that makes and repairs things made of light metal.

tin-stone (tĭn'stōn') n. See cassiterite.

tint (tĭnt) n. 1. A shade of a color, especially a pale or delicate variation. 2. A gradation of a color made by adding white to it to lessen its saturation. 3. A slight coloration; a tinge. 4. A barely detectable amount or degree; a trace. 5. A shaded effect in engraving produced by fine, close, parallel lines. 6. Printing. A panel of light color on which matter in another color is to be printed, as in an illustration.

7. A dye for the hair. — v. tr. intr. tint-ed, tint-ing, tints. To give a tint to or take on a tint. [Alteration of TINCT.] — tint'er n.

Tin-tag-el Head (tĭn-tăj'əl hĕd) A promontory in southwest England north-east of Plymouth. The site of the ruins of a 12th century castle, it is said to be the birthplace of King Arthur.

tin-tin-nab-u-la (tĭn'tĭ-năb'yə-lə) n. Plural of tintinnabulum.

tin-tin-nab-u-lar (tĭn'tĭ-năb'yə-lər) also tin-tin-nab-u-lar-y (-lĕr'ĕ) or tin-tin-nab-u-lous (-ləs) adj. Of or relating to bells or the ringing of bells.

[From TINTINNABULUM.]

tin-tin-nab-u-la-tion (tĭn'tĭ-năb'yə-lā'shən) n. The ringing or sounding of bells. [From TINTINNABULUM.]

tin-tin-nab-u-lous (tĭn'tĭ-năb'yə-ləs) adj. Variant of tintinnabular.

tin-tin-nab-u-lum (tĭn'tĭ-năb'yə-ləm) n. pl. tin-tin-nab-u-la (-lə). A small, tinkling bell. [Middle English, from Latin tintinnābulum, from tintinnāre, to jingle, reduplication of tinnire, to ring, of imitative origin.]

WORD HISTORY: We may have little occasion to use the word tintinnabulum, “a small, tinkling bell,” but it nonetheless teaches us something important about the formation of words. The English word, first used in 1597, was adopted from Latin, in which tintinnābulum, meaning “a bell,” was derived from the verb tintinnāre, “to make a sound such as a ringing or jangling.” Tintinnāre was in turn derived from tinnire, “to ring or clang.” Tinnire is formed by a process called onomatopoeia, or the formation of words that imitate what they denote. In the case of tinnire we can hear the resemblance between tinn- and a jingle or a ring. The verb tintinnāre was created from tinnire by a process known as reduplication, in this case meaning that tin- duplicates tinn-. Tintinn- does indeed suggest a jingling, ringing sound. And a tintinnabulum makes such a sound.

Tin-to-ret-to (tĭn'tə-rĕt'ō, tĕn'tō-rĕt'tō), Originally Jacopo Robusti. 1518-1594. Italian painter of religious, mythological, and historical subjects as well as portraits. His works include Saint George and the Dragon (c. 1550).

tin-type (tĭn'tĭp') n. See ferrotype (n., sense 1).

tin-work (tĭn'wŭrk') n. 1. Articles made of tin or tin plate. 2. tinworks. (used with a sing. verb). A place where tin is smelted and rolled.

ti-ny (tĭ'nĕ) adj. ti-ni-er, ti-ni-est. Extremely small; minute. See Synonyms at small. [Alteration of Middle English tine.] — ti'ni-ness n.

tip¹ (tĭp) n. 1. The end of a pointed or projecting object. 2. A piece or an attachment, such as a cap or ferrule, meant to be fitted to the end of something else: the barbed tip of a harpoon. — v. tr. tipped, tip-ping, tips. 1. To furnish with a tip. 2. To cover or decorate the tip of: tip strawberries with chocolate. 3. To remove the tip of: tip artichokes. 4. To dye the ends of (hair or fur) in order to blend or improve appearance. —phrasal verb. tip in. Printing. To attach (an insert) in a book by gluing along the binding edge: tip in a color plate. [Middle English.]

tip² (tĭp) v. tipped, tip-ping, tips. — v. tr. 1. To push or knock over; overturn or topple: bumped the table and tipped a vase. 2. To move to a slanting position; tilt: tipped the sideview mirror slightly downward; a weight that tipped the balance. 3. To touch or raise (one's hat) in greeting. 4. Chiefly British. a. To empty (something) by overturning; dump. b. To dump (rubbish, for example). — v. intr. 1. To topple over; overturn. 2. To become tilted; slant. See Synonyms at slant. — n. 1. The act of tipping. 2. A tilt or slant; an incline. 3. Chiefly British. An area or a place for dumping something, such as rubbish or refuse, as from a mine. —idiom. tip the scales. 1. To register weight (at a certain amount). 2. To offset the balance of a situation. [Middle English tipen.]

tip³ (tĭp) v. tipped, tip-ping, tips. — v. tr. 1. To strike gently; tap. 2. a. Baseball. To hit (a pitched ball) with the side of the bat so that it glances off. b. Sports. To tap or deflect (a ball or puck, for example), especially in scoring. — v. intr. 1. Sports. To deflect or glance off. Used of a ball or puck. 2. Lower Southern U.S. To tiptoe. — n. 1. A light blow; a tap. 2. Baseball. A pitched ball that is tipped: a foul tip. [From Middle English tippe, a tap, perhaps of Low German origin.]

tip⁴ (tĭp) n. 1. A small sum of money given to someone for performing a service; a gratuity. 2. a. A piece of confidential, advance, or inside information: got a tip on the next race. b. A helpful hint: a column of tips on gardening. — v. tipped, tip-ping, tips. — v. tr. 1. a. To give a tip to: tipped the waiter generously. b. To give as a tip: He tipped a dollar and felt that it was enough. 2. To provide with a piece of confidential, advance, or inside information: a disgruntled gang member who tipped the police to the planned robbery. — v. intr. To give tips or a tip: one who tips lavishly. —idiom. tip (one's) hand. To reveal one's resources or intentions. [Origin unknown.] —tip/per n.

tip-cart (tĭp'kärt') n. A cart having a body that can be tilted to dump the contents.

ti-pi (tē'pē) n. Variant of tepee.

tip-in (tĭp'in') n. 1. Basketball. A field goal scored by tapping the ball into the basket with the fingertips. 2. Sports. A goal in hockey scored at close range by a short stroke of a stick.

tip-off¹ (tĭp'ɔf', -ɔf') n. Informal. 1. A piece of confidential, advance, or inside information. 2. An indication of an otherwise unknown fact or probability: The judge called for a pitcher of water, a tip-off that the session would be long.

tip-off² (tĭp'ɔf', -ɔf') n. Basketball. An act of starting play at the beginning of a period with a jump ball. Also called tap-off [TIP³ + (KICK)OFF.]

tip of the iceberg (tĭp ūv thē ĩs'bürg') n. pl. tips of the iceberg. A small evident part or aspect of something largely hidden: afraid that these few reported cases of the disease might only be the tip of the iceberg.

Tip-pe-ca-noe (tĭp'ē-kə-nō') A river, about 274 km (170 mi) long, rising in northeast Indiana and flowing generally southwest to the Wabash River. Gen. William Henry Harrison defeated the Shawnee in the Battle of Tippecanoe (1811).

Tip-per-ar-y (tĭp'ə-râr'ē) A town of south-central Ireland southwest of Dublin. The song "It's a Long Way to Tipperary" was used as marching music by the British Expeditionary Force in World War I. Population, 4,984.

tip-pet (tĭp'ĭt) n. 1. A covering for the shoulders, as of fur, with long ends that hang in front. 2. A long stole worn by members of the Anglican clergy. 3. A long hanging part, as of a sleeve, hood, or cape. [Middle English tipet, perhaps from tip, tip of an object.]

tip-ple¹ (tĭp'əl) v. tr. intr. tip-pled, tip-pling, tip-ples. To drink (alcoholic liquor) or engage in such drinking, especially habitually or to excess. — n. Alcoholic liquor. [Perhaps back-formation from Middle English tipeler, bartender.] — tip'pler n.

tip-ple² (tĭp'əl) n. 1. a. An apparatus for unloading freight cars by tipping them. b. The place where this is done. 2. A place for screening coal and loading it into trucks or railroad cars. [From dialectal tipple, to overturn, frequentative of TIP².]

Tip-poo Sa-hib (tĭp'ō sâ'ĭb, -ēb, -hĭb) See Tipu Sahib.

tip-py (tĭp'ē) adj. tip-pi-er, tip-pi-est. Likely to tip or tilt: a tippy racing shell; a tippy card table.

tip-staff (tĭp'stäf') n. pl. tip-staves (-stävz', -stävz') or tip-staffs. 1. A staff with a metal tip, carried as a sign of office. 2. An officer, such as a bailiff or constable, who carries a tipstaff. [Alteration of tipped staff.]

tip-ster (tĭp'stär) n. Informal. One who sells tips or information, as to bettors or speculators.

tip-sy (tĭp'sē) adj. tip-si-er, tip-si-est. 1. Slightly intoxicated. 2. Unsteady or crooked. [From TIP².] — tip'si-ly adv. — tip'si-ness n.

tip-toe (tĭp'tō') v. intr. tip-toed, tip-toe-ing, tip-toes. To walk or move quietly on one's toes. — n. The tip of a toe. — adj. 1. Standing or walking on one's toes. 2. Stealthy; wary. — adv. 1. On one's toes. 2. Stealthily; warily. — idiom. on tiptoe. Full of anticipation; eager: The children were on tiptoe before the birthday party.

tip-top (tĭp'töp') n. 1. The highest point; the summit. 2. The highest degree of quality or excellence. — adj. Excellent; first-rate: an athlete in tiptop condition. — adv. Very well; excellently.

Ti·pu Sa·hib (tē'pōō sā'ib, -ēb, -hīb) or Tip·poo Sahib (tīp'ōō), 1750?-1799. Sultan of Mysore (1782-1799) who resisted the increasing British military influence in his domain.

ti·rade (tī'rād', tī-rād') n. A long angry or violent speech, usually of a censorious or denunciatory nature; a diatribe. [French, from Old French, act of firing, from tirer, to draw out, endure, probably back-formation from martirant, present participle of martirer, to torture (influenced by mar, to one's misfortune, and tiranz, executioner, tyrant), from martir, martyr, from Late Latin martyr. See MARTYR.]

Ti·ran (tə-rän') A strait off the southern tip of the Sinai Peninsula in northeast Egypt connecting the Red Sea with the Gulf of Aqaba.

Ti·ra·në also Ti·ra·na (tə-rä'nə, tē-) The capital of Albania, in the west-central part of the country. An industrial center and the country's largest city, Tiranë became capital of Albania in 1920. Population, 206,100.

Ti·ras·pol (tə-räs'pəl) A city of southwest Moldavia on the Dniester River northeast of Kishinev. Founded c. 1792 as a Russian fortress on the site of a Moldavian settlement, it is an agricultural processing center. Population, 162,000.

tire¹ (tīr) v. tired, tir·ing, tires. — v. intr. 1. To grow weary. 2. To grow bored or impatient. — v. tr. 1. To diminish the strength or energy of; fatigue. 2. To exhaust the interest or patience of; bore. [Middle English tiren, from Old English tēorian, tyrian. See deu-¹ in Appendix.]

SYNONYMS: tire, weary, fatigue, exhaust, jade. These verbs mean to cause or undergo depletion of strength, energy, spirit, interest, or patience. Tire is the general, nonspecific term; it often suggests a state resulting from exertion, excess, dullness, or ennui: Long hours of arduous hiking tired the scouts. "When a man is tired of London, he is tired of life" (Samuel Johnson). Weary, like tire, is applicable to diminution of strength or endurance but often carries a stronger implication of dissatisfaction, as that resulting from what is irksome or boring: found the journey wearying; soon wearied of their constant bickering. Fatigue implies great weariness, as that caused by stress: fatigued by the day's labors; "nothing so fatiguing as the eternal hanging on of an uncompleted task" (William James). To exhaust is to wear out completely; the term connotes total draining of physical or emotional strength: "Like all people who try to exhaust a subject, he exhausted his listeners" (Oscar Wilde). Jade refers principally to dullness that most often results from overindulgence: Even an exquisitely prepared dinner couldn't revive her jaded palate.

tire² (tīr) n. 1. A covering for a wheel, usually made of rubber reinforced with cords of nylon, fiberglass, or other material and filled with compressed air. 2. A hoop of metal or rubber fitted around a wheel. [Middle English, iron rim of a wheel, probably from tir, attire, short for atire, from attiren, to attire. See ATTIRE.]

tire³ (tīr) Archaic. v. tr. tired, tir-ing, tires. To adorn or attire. — n. 1. Attire.
2. A headband or headdress. [Middle English tiren, short for attiren, to attire. See ATTIRE.]

tired (tīrd) adj. 1. a. Exhausted of strength or energy; fatigued. b. Impatient; bored: tired of the same old sandwiches. 2. Overused; hackneyed: a tired joke.
—tired/ly adv. —tired/ness n.

tire-less (tīr'līs) adj. Not yielding to fatigue; untiring or indefatigable. —tire/-less-ly adv. —tire/less-ness n.

SYNONYMS: tireless, indefatigable, unflagging, untiring, unwearied, weariless. The central meaning shared by these adjectives is “having or showing a capacity for prolonged and laborious effort”: a tireless worker; an indefatigable advocate of equal rights; unflagging pursuit of excellence; untiring energy; an unwearied researcher; a weariless defender of freedom of the press.

tire-some (tīr'səm) adj. Causing fatigue or boredom; wearisome. See Synonyms at boring. —tire/some-ly adv. —tire/some-ness n.

Tîr-gu-Mu-reş (tīr'gōō-mōōr'ēsh) A city of north-central Romania east-southeast of Cluj. It was ceded to Romania by Hungary in 1918. Population, 154,506.

Ti-rich Mir (tīr'īch mīr') A mountain, 7,695.2 m (25,230 ft) high, of the Hindu Kush in northern Pakistan. It is the highest elevation in the range.

ti-ro (tī'rō) n. Variant of tyro.

Ti-rol (tə-rōl', tī-, tī'rōl') See Tyrol.

Tir-pitz (tūr'pīts, tīr'-), Alfred von. 1849-1930. German admiral who organized the German navy of World War I.

Tir-so de Mo-li-na (tīr'sō dā mə-lē'nə, thě mō-lē'nä), Pen name of Gabriel Téllez. 1584?-1648. Spanish playwright whose popular works include The Seducer of Seville (1630), which introduced the character Don Juan.

Ti-ruch-chi-rap-pal-li (tīr'ə-chə-rā'pə-lē) A city of southeast India south-southwest of the Madras River. It is the site of a famous shrine to the Hindu god Shiva. Population, 362,045.

Tir-yns (tīr'īnz, tī'rīnz) An ancient city of southern Greece in the eastern Peloponnesus. It contains the ruins of pre-Homeric palaces as well as prehistoric structures.

'tis (tīz) It is.

Ti-sa (tē'sə) See Tisza.

ti·sane (tī-zăn', -zăn') n. A herbal infusion or similar preparation drunk as a beverage or for its mildly medicinal effect. [tisan, barley water, from Old French tisane, from Latin ptisana. See PTISAN.]

Ti·se·li·us (tē-sā'lē-əs), Arne Wilhelm Kaurin. 1902-1971. Swedish biochemist. He won a 1948 Nobel Prize for his study of serum proteins.

Tish·ri (tish'rē, -rā) n. The first month of the year in the Jewish calendar. See Table at calendar. [Hebrew tišrî, from Akkadian tašrîtu, the month Tashritu (September/October).]

Ti·siph·o·ne (tī-sīf'ə-nē) n. Greek Mythology & Roman Mythology. One of the three Furies.

tis·sue (tish'ōō) n. 1. A fine, very thin fabric, such as gauze. 2. Tissue paper. 3. A soft, absorbent piece of paper used as toilet paper, a handkerchief, or a towel. 4. An interwoven or interrelated number of things; a web; a network: “The text is a tissue of mocking echoes” (Richard M. Kain). 5. Biology. An aggregation of morphologically similar cells and associated intercellular matter acting together to perform one or more specific functions in the body. There are four basic types of tissue: muscle, nerve, epidermal, and connective. [Middle English tissu, a rich kind of cloth, from Old French, from past participle of tistre, to weave, from Latin texere. See teks- in Appendix.] —tis'su·ey adj. —tis'su·lar adj.

tissue culture (tish'ōō kŭl'chər) n. 1. The technique or process of keeping tissue alive and growing in a culture medium. 2. A culture of tissue grown by this technique or process.

tissue paper (tish'ōō pā'pər) n. Thin, translucent paper used for packing, wrapping, or protecting delicate articles.

tissue plasminogen activator (tish'ōō plāz-mīn'-ə-jən äk'tə-vā'tər) n. Abbr. TPA, tPA An enzyme that converts plasminogen to plasmin, used to dissolve blood clots rapidly and selectively, especially in the treatment of heart attacks.

Ti·sza (tīs'ô) also Ti·sa (tē'sə) A river of central Europe rising in the Carpathian Mountains in the western Ukraine and flowing about 965 km (600 mi) generally southward across eastern Hungary and northern Serbia to the Danube River.

tit¹ (tīt) n. 1. A titmouse. 2. Any of various small, similar or related birds. — adj. New England & Upstate New York. Small; undersized. [Short for TITMOUSE. Adj., Middle English tit- as in titmose, titmouse. See TITMOUSE.]

REGIONAL NOTE: Tit is an old Germanic word for “small” and is used in various northern European languages to refer to small objects, animals, or people, especially girls—for example, titta is a Norwegian dialect word for “little girl.” The word is most common in American English in combinations that denote various small birds, such as the titmouse or tomtit. A titman in the 19th century could mean a small or stunted person, as Henry David Thoreau indicates when he calls his generation “a race of tit-men.” Tit and titman are still used in New England, mostly by farmers to refer to the runt of a litter of pigs.

tit² (tīt) n. 1. Vulgar Slang. A woman’s breast. 2. A teat. [Middle English, from Old English titt.]

tit. abbr. Title.

Tit. abbr. Bible. Titus.

Ti-tan (tīt'n) n. 1. Greek Mythology. One of a family of giants, the children of Uranus and Gaea, who sought to rule heaven and were overthrown and supplanted by the family of Zeus. 2. titan. A person of colossal size, strength, or achievement: a titan of American industry. 3. The largest satellite of Saturn and the 14th in distance from the planet. It is the second largest satellite in the solar system. [Middle English, Helios, from Latin Tītān, from Greek Titan.]

ti-tan-ate (tīt'n-āt') n. A salt or an ester of titanic acid.

Ti-tan-ess (tīt'n-īs) n. Greek Mythology. One of the daughters of Gaea and Uranus who sought to rule heaven and were overthrown and supplanted by Zeus.

Ti-ta-ni-a (tī-tā'nē-ə, -tā'n'yə, tī-) n. 1. The queen of the fairies and wife of Oberon in medieval folklore. 2. The satellite of Uranus that is fourth in distance from the planet. [From Latin Tītānia, the goddess Diana, sister to the sun, from feminine of Tītānius, of the Titans, from Tītān, Titan. See TITAN.]

ti-tan-ic¹ (tī-tā'n'ik) adj. 1. Titanic. Of or relating to the Titans. 2. a. Having great stature or enormous strength; huge or colossal: titanic creatures of the deep. b. Of enormous scope, power, or influence: “a deepening sense that some titanic event lay just beyond the horizon” (W. Bruce Lincoln). —ti-tan'i-cal-ly adv.

ti-tan-ic² (tī-tā'n'ik, -tā'n'ik, tī-) adj. Relating to or containing titanium, especially with valence 4.

titanic acid (tī-tā'n'ik əs'īd, -tā'n'ik, tī-) n. A powdered white inorganic acid, H₂TiO₃, derived from an acid solution of titanates and used as a mordant.

ti-tan-if-er-ous (tīt'n-īf'ər-əs) adj. Containing or yielding titanium.

Ti-tan-ism (tīt'n-iz'əm) n. The spirit of revolt against an established order; rebelliousness.

ti-tan-ite (tīt'n-īt') n. See sphene.

ti-ta-ni-um (tī-tā'nē-əm, tī-) n. Symbol Ti A strong, low-density, highly corrosion-resistant, lustrous white metallic element that occurs widely in igneous rocks and is used to alloy aircraft metals for low weight, strength, and high-temperature stability. Atomic number 22; atomic weight 47.90; melting point 1,660°C; boiling point 3,287°C; specific gravity 4.54; valence 2, 3, 4. [From Latin Tītān, Titan. See TITAN.]

titanium dioxide (tī-tā'nē-əm dī-ōk'sīd) n. A white powder, TiO₂, used as an exceptionally opaque white pigment.

titanium white (tī-tā'nē-əm hwīt) n. A durable white paint pigment consisting of titanium dioxide.

ti-tan-o-saur (tī-tăn'ə-sôr', tīt'n-) n. Any of various plant-eating, amphibious sauropod dinosaurs of the genus Titanosaurus, common during the Cretaceous Period especially in South America. [New Latin Titanosaurus, genus name : Greek Titan, Titan + saurus, lizard; see SAURIAN.]

ti-tan-o-ther (tī-tăn'ə-thîr') n. Any of various extinct herbivorous hoofed mammals of the genus Brontotherium and related genera, of the Eocene and Oligocene epochs, resembling the rhinoceros. [New Latin Titanotherium, genus name : Greek Titan, Titan + Greek thērion, diminutive of thēr, wild beast; see THEROPOD.]

ti-tan-ous (tī-tăn'əs, -tā'nəs, tī-) adj. Relating to or containing titanium, especially with valence 3.

tit-bit (tīt'bit') n. Variant of tidbit.

ti-ter also ti-tre (tīt'tər) n. 1. Concentration of a substance in solution or the strength of such a substance determined by titration. 2. The minimum volume needed to cause a particular result in titration. [French titre, from Old French title, title. See TITLE.]

tit for tat (tīt fôr tăt) n. Repayment in kind, as for an injury; retaliation. [Probably alteration of tip for tap.]

tithe (tīth) n. 1. a. A tenth part of one's annual income contributed voluntarily or due as a tax, especially for the support of the clergy or church. b. The institution or obligation of paying tithes. 2. A tax or an assessment of one tenth.

3. a. A tenth part. b. A very small part. — v. tithed, tith-ing, tithes. — v. tr. 1. To contribute or pay a tenth part of (one's annual income). 2. To levy a tithe on. — v. intr. To pay a tithe. [Middle English, from Old English tēotha. See TENTH.] — tith'a-ble (tīt'θə-bəl) adj. — tith'er n.

tith-ing (tīt'thɪŋ) n. An administrative division consisting of ten householders in the old English system of frankpledge.

ti-ti¹ (tī'tī', tē'tē') n. pl. ti-tis. 1. A New World shrub or small tree (Cyrilla racemiflora) of warm swampy areas, having leathery leaves, yellow fruit, and white flowers in clustered racemes that are borne at the tip of the preceding season's growth. Also called leatherwood 2. An evergreen shrub or small tree (Cliftonia monophylla) of the southeast United States, having glossy leathery leaves, white to pinkish flowers clustered in racemes, and winged fruit. [Origin unknown.]

ti-ti² (tē-tē') n. pl. ti-tis. Any of various small, long-tailed, arboreal monkeys of the genus Callicebus, living in tropical regions of South America. [Spanish titi, from Aymara titi.]

ti-tian (tīsh'ən) n. Color. A brownish orange. [After TITIAN (from his frequent use of the color in his paintings).] — ti'tian adj.

Ti-tian (tĭsh'ən), Originally Tiziano Vecellio. 1488?-1576. Italian painter who introduced vigorous colors and the compositional use of backgrounds to the Venetian school. His works include the altarpiece The Assumption of the Virgin (1518). — Ti'tian-esque' adj.

Ti-ti-ca-ca (tĭt'ĭ-kä'kə, tē'tē-kä'kä), Lake. A freshwater lake of South America in the Andes on the Bolivia-Peru border.

tit-il-late (tĭt'ĭ-āt') v. tit-il-lat-ed, tit-il-lat-ing, tit-il-lates. — v. tr. 1. To stimulate by touching lightly; tickle. 2. To excite (another) pleasurably, superficially or erotically. — v. intr. To excite another, especially in a superficial, pleasurable manner: "Once you decide to titillate instead of illuminate... you create a climate of expectation that requires a higher and higher level of intensity" (Bill Moyers). [Latin tĭtillāre, tĭtillāt-, to tickle.] — tit'il-lat'er n. — tit'il-lat'ing-ly adv. — tit'il-la'tion n. — tit'il-la'tive adj.

tit-i-vate (tĭt'ə-vāt') v. tr. tit-i-vat-ed, tit-i-vat-ing, tit-i-vates. To make decorative additions to; spruce up. [Alteration of earlier tĭdivate : perhaps TIDY + (ELE)VATE.] — tit'i-va'tion n.

tit-lark (tĭt'lärk') n. See pipit. [tit- as in TIT(MOUSE) + LARK¹.]

ti-tle (tĭt'ĭ) n. Abbr. tit. 1. An identifying name given to a book, play, film, musical composition, or other work. See Synonyms at name. 2. A general or descriptive heading, as of a book chapter. 3. a. Often titles. Written material to be read by viewers that is included in a film or television show, typically presenting credits, narration, or dialogue. b. A written piece of translated dialogue superimposed at the bottom of the frame during a film; a subtitle. 4. Law. A heading that names a document, statute, or proceeding. 5. A division of a law book, declaration, or bill, generally larger than a section or article. 6. A written work that is published or about to be published: the titles in a press's fall catalog. 7. Law. a. The coincidence of all the elements that constitute the fullest legal right to control and dispose of property or a claim. b. The aggregate evidence that gives rise to a legal right of possession or control. c. The instrument, such as a deed, that constitutes this evidence. 8. a. Something that provides a basis for or justifies a claim. b. A legitimate or alleged right. See Synonyms at claim. 9. A formal appellation attached to the name of a person or family by virtue of office, rank, hereditary privilege, noble birth, or attainment or used as a mark of respect. 10. A descriptive name; an epithet. 11. Sports. A championship. 12. Ecclesiastical. a. A source of income or area of work required of a candidate for ordination in the Church of England. b. A Roman Catholic church in or near Rome having a cardinal for its nominal head. — v. tr. ti-tled, ti-ting, ti-tles. 1. To give a title to; entitle. 2. To call by a name; style. [Middle English, from Old English titul, superscription, and from Old French title, title both from Latin titulus.]

ti-tled (tĭt'ld) adj. Having a title, especially a noble title.

ti·tle·hold·er (tīt'l-hōl'dər) n. 1. One, especially a champion, who holds a title. 2. One that holds legal title to something, such as a motor vehicle.

title page (tīt'l pāj) n. Abbr. t.p. Printing. A page at the front of a book giving the complete title, the names of the author and publisher, and the place of publication.

ti·tlist (tīt'lɪst, -l-ɪst) n. The holder of a competitive title; a champion: a chess titlist.

tit·man (tīt'mən) n. New England & Upstate New York. 1. A runt, especially one of a litter of pigs. 2. A small person. See Regional note at tit¹. [TIT¹ + MAN.]

tit·mouse (tīt'mous') n. pl. tit·mice (-mīs'). Any of numerous small insect-eating passerine birds of the family Paridae, found in woodland areas throughout the world and including especially members of the genus Parus, such as the chickadee. See Regional note at tit¹. [Alteration (influenced by mous, mouse), of Middle English titmose: tit-* (probably from Old Norse tittr, titmouse) + mose, titmouse (from Old English māse, titmouse).]

Ti·to (tē'tō), Marshal Originally Josip Broz. 1892-1980. Yugoslavian politician who led the resistance to Nazi occupation during World War II, established independence from the U.S.S.R. (1948), and as president (1953-1980) pursued a national Communism that stressed neutrality in foreign affairs.

Ti·to·grad (tē'tō-grād', -grād') The capital of Montenegro, in the southeast part near the Albanian border. It is a commercial center. Population, 73,000.

Ti·to·ism (tē'tō-iz'əm) n. The post-World War II Communist policies and practices associated with Marshal Tito, especially the assertion by a Communist nation of its interests independently of or in opposition to the Soviet Union.

ti·trant (tī'trənt) n. A substance, such as a solution, of known concentration used in titration.

ti·trate (tī'trāt') v. tr. intr. ti·trat·ed, ti·trat·ing, ti·trates. To determine the concentration of (a solution) by titration or perform the operation of titration. [From French titrer, from titre, titer. See TITER.] —ti'trat'a·ble adj. —ti'tra'tor n.

ti·tra·tion (tī-trā'shən) n. The process, operation, or method of determining the concentration of a substance in solution by adding to it a standard reagent of known concentration in carefully measured amounts until a reaction of definite and known proportion is completed, as shown by a color change or by electrical measurement, and then calculating the unknown concentration.

ti·tre (tī'tər) n. Variant of titer.

ti·tri·met·ric (tī'trə-mēt'rik) adj. Of or relating to measurement by titration. [TITR(ATION) + -METRIC.] —ti'tri·met'ri·cal·ly adv.

tit·ter (tīt'tər) v. intr. tit·tered, tit·ter·ing, tit·ters. To laugh in a restrained, nervous way; giggle. — n. A nervous giggle. [Probably imitative.] —tit'ter·er n. —tit'ter·ing·ly adv.

tit·tle (tīt'1) n. 1. Linguistics. A small diacritic mark, such as an accent, a vowel mark, or a dot over an i. 2. The tiniest bit; an iota. [Middle English titil, from Medieval Latin titulus, diacritical mark, from Latin, title, superscription.]

tit·tle-tat·tle (tīt'1-tāt'1) n. Petty gossip; trivial talk. — v. intr. tit·tle-tat·tled, tit·tle-tat·tling, tit·tle-tat·tles. To talk idly or foolishly; gossip. [Reduplication of TATTLE.]

tit·tup (tīt'əp) v. intr. tit·tuped or tit·tupped, tit·tup·ing or tit·tup·ping, tit·tups or tit·tups. To move in a lively, capering manner; prance. — n. A lively, capering manner of moving or walking; a prance. [Perhaps imitative of the sound of a horse's hoofs.]

tit·u·ba·tion (tīch'ə-bā'shən) n. The staggering or stumbling gait characteristic of certain nervous disorders. [Latin titubātiō, titubātiōn-, a staggering, from titubātus, past participle of titubāre, to stagger.]

tit·u·lar (tīch'ə-lər) adj. 1. Relating to, having the nature of, or constituting a title. 2. a. Existing in name only; nominal: the titular head of the family. b. Bearing the title of a church or monastery that is no longer active. 3. Bearing a title: titular dignitaries. 4. Derived from a title: the titular role in a play. — n. One who holds a title. [From Latin titulus, title.]

tit·u·lar·y (tīch'ə-lēr'ē) n. pl. tit·u·lar·ies. A titleholder; a titular.

Ti·tus¹ (tī'təs), A.D. 39-81. Emperor of Rome (79-81) whose reign was marked by the capture of Jerusalem (70) and by the construction of the Roman Colosseum.

Ti·tus² (tī'təs) n. Abbr. Tit., Tt Bible. A book of the Bible. See Table at Bible.

Ti·tus (tī'təs), Saint. First century A.D. Christian leader and companion of Saint Paul. An epistle of the New Testament, ascribed to Paul, is addressed to him.

Ti·tus·ville (tī'təs-vīl') 1. A city of eastern Florida east of Orlando. Incorporated in 1886, it is a commercial and residential center. Population, 39,394. 2. A city of northwest Pennsylvania north-northeast of Pittsburgh. The first oil well in the United States was drilled here in August 1859. Population, 6,884.

Ti·u (tē'ōō) n. Mythology. The Germanic god of war and the sky. [Old English Tīw. See deiw- in Appendix.]

Ti·vo·li (tīv'ə-lē, tē'vô-lē) also Ti·bur (tī'bər) A city of central Italy east-northeast of Rome. Tivoli contains the ruins of several ancient Roman villas and is also noted for its waterfalls. Population, 50,969.

Ti·wa (tē'wə) n. pl. Tiwa or Ti·was. 1. a. A group of Pueblo peoples of northern New Mexico. b. A member of any of these peoples. 2. The group of Tanoan languages spoken by the Tiwa.

tiz·zy (tīz'ē) n. pl. tiz·zies. Slang. A state of nervous excitement or confusion; a dither. [Origin unknown.]

tk. abbr. Truck.

TKO (tē'kā-ō') abbr. Sports. A technical knockout.

tkt. abbr. Ticket.

Tl The symbol for the element thallium.

t.l. or t/l abbr. Total loss.

Tlal·ne·pan·tla (tläl'nə-pänt'lä, -ně-) A city of south-central Mexico north of Mexico City. It is a communications and industrial center. Population, 778,173.

Tla·que·pa·que (tlä'kě-pä'kě) A city of west-central Mexico southeast of Guadalajara. Tlaquepaque is noted for its folklore and crafts. Population, 133,500.

TLC abbr. Tender loving care.

Tlin·git (tling'gīt, tling'īt) n. pl. Tlingit or Tlin·gits. 1. a. A Native American people inhabiting the coastal and island areas of southeast Alaska. b. A member of this people. 2. The language of the Tlingit.

t.l.o. abbr. Total loss only.

tlr. abbr. Tailor.

T lymphocyte (tē'lim'fə-sīt') n. See T cell.

Tm¹ The symbol for the element thulium.

Tm² abbr. Bible. Timothy.

TM abbr. Trademark.

t.m. abbr. Mathematics. True mean.

T.M. abbr. Transcendental meditation.

T-maze (tē'māz') n. Psychology. An experimental maze in the shape of a T, one arm of which leads to the correct path, while the other is without an exit.

tme·sis (tmē'sīs, mē'-) n. pl. tme·ses (-sēz). Separation of the parts of a compound word by one or more intervening words; for example, where I go ever instead of wherever I go. [Late Latin tmēsis, from Greek, a cutting, from temnein, to cut. See tem- in Appendix.]

TMJ abbr. Temporomandibular joint.

TMJ syndrome (tē'ēm-jā' sīn'drōm') n. Temporomandibular joint syndrome.

TN abbr. Tennessee.

tn. abbr. 1. Ton. 2. Town. 3. Train.

tng. abbr. Training.

tnpk. abbr. Turnpike.

TNT (tē'ēn-tē') n. A yellow crystalline compound, $\text{CH}_3\text{C}_6\text{H}_2(\text{NO}_2)_3$, used mainly as a high explosive. [t(ri)n(itro)t(oluene).] to (tō; tə when unstressed) prep. 1. a. In a direction toward so as to reach: went to the city. b. Towards: turned to me. 2. a. Reaching as far as: The ocean water was clear all the way to the bottom. b. To the extent or degree of: loved him to distraction. c. With the resultant condition of: nursed her back to health. 3. Toward a given state: helping minority women to economic equality. 4. In contact with; against: their faces pressed to the windows. 5. In front of: stood face to face.

6. Used to indicate appropriation or possession: looked for the top to the jar.
7. Concerning; regarding: waiting for an answer to my letter. 8. In a particular relationship with: The brook runs parallel to the road. 9. As an accompaniment or a complement of: danced to the tune. 10. Composing; constituting: two cups to a pint. 11. In accord with: job responsibilities suited to her abilities. 12. As compared with: a book superior to his others. 13. a. Before: The time is ten to five.
b. Up till; until: worked from nine to five. 14. a. For the purpose of: went out to lunch. b. In honor of: a toast to the queen. 15. a. Used before a verb to indicate the infinitive: I'd like to go. b. Used alone when the infinitive is understood: Go if you want to. 16. a. Used to indicate the relationship of a verb with its complement: refer to a dictionary; refer me to a dictionary. b. Used with a reflexive pronoun to indicate exclusivity or separateness: had the plane to ourselves. — adv.
1. In one direction; toward a person or thing: owls with feathers wrong end to.
2. Into a shut or closed position: pushed the door to. 3. Into a state of consciousness: The patient came to. 4. Into a state of action or attentiveness: sat down for lunch and fell to. 5. Nautical. Into the wind. [Middle English, from Old English tō. See de- in Appendix.]

t.o. abbr. Turnover.

toad (tōd) n. 1. Any of numerous tailless amphibians chiefly of the family Bufonidae, related to and resembling the frogs but characteristically more terrestrial and having a broader body and rougher, drier skin. 2. The horned toad. 3. A person regarded as repulsive. [Middle English tadde, tode, from Old English tādige.]

toad-eat-er (tōd'ē'tər) n. A toady. [Originally referring to a charlatan's helper who ate (or pretended to eat) poisonous toads so that his employer could display his prowess in expelling the poison.]

toad-fish (tōd'fish') n. pl. toadfish or toad-fish-es. Any of various slow-moving, scaleless, sharp-toothed fishes of the family Batrachoididae, having a broad, flattened head and a wide mouth, found in tropical and temperate waters.

toad-flax (tōd'fläks') n. 1. Any of various plants of the genus Linaria, having narrow leaves and spurred, two-lipped flowers. 2. See butter-and-eggs.

toad-stone (tōd'stōn') n. A stone once worn as a charm and believed to have been formed in the body of a toad.

toad-stool (tōd'stōol') n. An inedible or poisonous fungus with an umbrella-shaped fruiting body.

toad-y (tō'dē) n. pl. toad-ies. A person who flatters or defers to others for self-serving reasons; a sycophant. — v. tr. intr. toad-ied (tō'dēd), toad-y-ing, toad-ies (tō'dēz). To be a toady to or behave like a toady. See Synonyms at fawn¹. [From TOAD.]

WORD HISTORY: A toady is not a pleasant individual, and the origin of the word makes being a toady even less pleasant. Toady is obviously derived from the word toad. The -y suffix can have diminutive force, and the earliest recorded sense (around 1690) of toady (now obsolete), “a little or young toad,” illustrates this force. The sense we know has nothing to do with baby toads but rather with the practice of certain quacks or charlatans who claimed that they could cast out poison. Toads were thought to be poisonous, so these charlatans would have an attendant eat a toad or pretend to eat one and then remove the poison from the attendant. Such an attendant is obviously a type of person who would do anything, and thus toadeater (first recorded 1629) was the perfect name for a flattering, fawning parasite. Toadeater and the verb derived from it, toadeat, influenced the sense of the noun and verb toad and the noun toady, so that both nouns could mean “sycophant” and the verb toady could mean “to act like a toady to someone.”

to and fro (tō ənd frō) adv. Back and forth.

to-and-fro (tō'ənd-frō') n. 1. Movement back and forth; reciprocating movement. 2. Debate over an issue; vacillation. — to'-and-fro' adj.

toast¹ (tōst) v. toast-ed, toast-ing, toasts. — v. tr. 1. To heat and brown (bread, for example) by placing in a toaster or an oven or close to a fire. 2. To warm thoroughly, as before a fire: toast one's feet. — v. intr. To become toasted: This bread toasts well. — n. Sliced bread heated and browned. [Middle English tosten, from Old French toster, from Vulgar Latin tostāre*, frequentative of Latin torrēre, to parch, burn. See ters- in Appendix.]

toast² (tōst) n. 1. a. The act of raising a glass and drinking in honor of or to the health of a person or thing. b. A proposal to drink to someone or something or a speech given before the taking of such a drink. c. The one honored by a toast. 2. A person receiving much attention or acclaim: the toast of Broadway. — v. toast-ed, toast-ing, toasts. — v. tr. To drink to the health or honor of. — v. intr. To propose or drink a toast. [Perhaps from TOAST¹, from the use of spiced toast to flavor drinks.]

toast-er (tō'stər) n. A mechanical device used to toast bread, especially by exposure to electrically heated wire coils.

toast-mas-ter (tōst'mäs'tər) n. A man who proposes the toasts and introduces the speakers at a banquet.

toast-mis-tress (tōst'mīs'trīs) n. A woman who proposes the toasts and introduces the speakers at a banquet.

toast-y (tō'stē) adj. toast-i-er, toast-i-est. Pleasantly warm.

to-bac-co (tə-bāk'ō) n. pl. to-bac-cos or to-bac-coes. 1. Any of various plants of the genus Nicotiana, especially N. tabacum, native to tropical America and widely cultivated for its leaves, which are used primarily for smoking. 2. The leaves of this plant, dried and processed chiefly for use in cigarettes, cigars, or snuff or for smoking in pipes. 3. Products made from these plants. 4. The habit of smoking tobacco: I gave up tobacco. 5. A crop of tobacco. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: tobacco products; tobacco fields. [Spanish tabaco, possibly of Caribbean origin, or perhaps from Arabic ṭabbâq, name of various medicinal herbs.]

tobacco budworm (tə-băk'ō būd'wūrm') n. The destructive larva of a noctuid moth (Heliothis virescens) that feeds on tobacco plants in the southern United States and cotton plants in Peru.

tobacco heart (tə-băk'ō härt) n. A rapid, irregular heart rate resulting from excessive use of tobacco.

tobacco hornworm (tə-băk'ō hôrn'wūrm') n. The destructive larva of a hawk moth (Manduca sexta) of the southern United States and the West Indies that feeds on the leaves of tobacco plants. Also called tobacco worm tobacco mosaic (tə-băk'ō mō-zā'ik) n. Any of several diseases of tobacco and nightshade caused by the tobacco mosaic virus and characterized by mottled leaves.

tobacco mosaic virus (tə-băk'ō mō-zā'ik vī'rəs) n. A retrovirus that causes mosaic in tobacco and some other plants, widely used in the study of viruses and viral diseases.

to-bac-co-nist (tə-băk'ə-nīst) n. A dealer in tobacco and smoking supplies.

tobacco road (tə-băk'ō rōd) n. A poverty-stricken rural community. [After Tobacco Road, a novel by Erskine Caldwell.]

tobacco worm (tə-băk'ō wūrm) n. See tobacco hornworm.

To-ba-go (tə-bā'gō) An island of Trinidad and Tobago in the southeast West Indies northeast of Trinidad. First visited by Columbus in 1498, it became a British colony in 1899 and gained independence with Trinidad in 1962.

to-be (tō-bē') adj. That is to be; future. Often used postpositively and in combination: a graduate-to-be.

To-bey (tō'bē), Mark. 1890-1976. American painter whose distinctive abstract style was inspired by Oriental calligraphy. His works include August Excitement (1953).

To-bin (tō'bīn, -bən), James. Born 1918. American economist. He won a 1981 Nobel Prize for his analyses of financial markets and their influence on the finances of families and businesses.

To-bit (tō'bīt) n. Bible. 1. In the Old Testament, a Hebrew captive in Nineveh. 2. Abbr. Tb A book of the Bible. See Table at Bible. [Greek Tōbit, from Hebrew Ṭōbīyāh: ṭōb, good + yāh, God.]

to-bog-gan (tə-bōg'ən) n. A long, narrow, runnerless sled constructed of thin boards curled upward at the front end. — v. intr. to-bog-ganed, to-bog-gan-ing, to-bog-gans. 1. To coast, ride, or travel on a toboggan.

2. Slang. To decline or fall rapidly: His good fortune has tobogganed. [Canadian French tobagan, from Micmac topaghan.] —to-bog'gan-er, to-bog'gan-ist n.

To-bol (tə-bôl') A river of north-central Kazakhstan and west-central Russia rising in the southeast foothills of the Ural Mountains and flowing about 1,690 km (1,050 mi) northeastward to the Irtysh River.

to-by also To-by (tô'bē) n. pl. to-bies. A drinking mug, usually in the shape of a stout man wearing a large three-cornered hat. [After Toby, a nickname for Tobias.]

To-can-tins (tô'kän-tēns') A river, about 2,639 km (1,640 mi) long, flowing from central Brazil near Brasília northward to the Pará River southwest of Belém.

toc-ca-ta (tə-kä'tə) n. Music. A composition, usually for the organ or another keyboard instrument, in free style with full chords and elaborate runs. [Italian, from feminine past participle of toccare, to touch, from Vulgar Latin toccāre*.]

To-char-i-an also To-khar-i-an (tô-kâr'ē-ən, -kär'-, -kär'-) n. 1. A member of a people of possible European origin, living in Chinese Turkistan until about the tenth century. 2. The language of this people, recorded in two dialects dating from the seventh century and forming its own branch within Indo-European. [From Latin Tocharī, the Tocharians, from Greek Tokharoi.]

to-col-o-gy also to-kol-o-gy (tô-kôl'ə-jē) n. The science of childbirth; midwifery or obstetrics. [Greek tokos, childbirth; see tek- in Appendix + -LOGY.]

to-coph-er-ol (tô-kôf'ə-rôl', -rôl', -rôl') n. Any of a group of closely related, fat-soluble alcohols that behave similar to vitamin E and are present in milk, lettuce, and wheat germ oil and certain other vegetable oils. [Greek tokos, offspring; see TOCOLOGY + Greek pherein, to carry; see bher-¹ in Appendix + -OL¹.]

Tocque-ville (tôk'vīl, tôk'-, tôk-vēl'), Alexis Charles Henri Clérel de.

1805-1859. French politician, traveler, and historian. After touring the United States (1831-1832), he wrote Democracy in America (1835), a widely influential study of American institutions.

toc-sin (tôk'sin) n. 1. a. An alarm sounded on a bell. See Synonyms at alarm. b. A bell used to sound an alarm. 2. A warning; an omen. [French, alteration of toquassen, from Old French touque-sain, from Old Provençal tocash : tocar, to strike (from Vulgar Latin toccāre*) + senh, bell (from Late Latin signum, from Latin, signal); see SIGN.]

tod (tôd) n. Chiefly British. 1. A unit of weight for wool, especially one equivalent to about 28 pounds (12.7 kilograms). 2. A bushy clump, as of ivy. [Middle English todde.]

to-day (tə-dā') n. The present day, time, or age: "Today's shocks are tomorrow's conventions" (Carolyn Heilbrun). — adv. 1. During or on the present day. 2. During or at the present time. — adj. Concerned with or relating to the present time: today issues; the today generation. [Middle English to dai, from Old English tō dæge : tō, to; see TO + dæge, dative of dæg, day; see agh- in Appendix.]

Todd (tôd), Sir Alexander Robertus. Born 1907. British chemist. He won a 1957 Nobel Prize for his study of nucleic acids and nucleotide structures.

Todd (tɒd), Thomas. 1765-1826. American jurist who served as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court (1807-1826).

tod·dle (tɒd'l) v. intr. tod·dled, tod·dling, tod·dles. 1. To walk with short, unsteady steps. 2. To walk leisurely; stroll. — n. An unsteady gait. [Origin unknown.]

tod·dler (tɒd'lər) n. 1. One who toddles, especially a young child learning to walk. 2. A size of clothing for children between the ages of about one and three years.

tod·dy (tɒd'ē) n. pl. tod·dies. 1. A hot toddy. 2. a. The sweet sap of several tropical Asian palm trees, especially palmyra and Caryota urens, used as a beverage. b. A liquor fermented from this sap. [Hindi tārī, sap of palm, from tār, palm, from Sanskrit tālah, perhaps of Dravidian origin.]

to·do (tə-dō') n. pl. to·dos (-dōz'). Informal. A commotion or stir.

to·dy (tō'dē) n. pl. to·dies. Any of various small birds of the family Todidae, of the West Indies, related to the kingfisher and the motmot and having colorful, predominantly green plumage and a bright red throat. [Probably from French todier, from New Latin Todus, genus name, from Latin todus, a kind of small bird.]

toe (tō) n. 1. a. One of the digits of a vertebrate. b. The forepart of a foot or hoof. c. The terminal segment of an invertebrate's limb. 2. The part of a sock, shoe, or boot that covers the digits of the foot. 3. Sports. The end of the head on a golf club. 4. The part of a vertical shaft that turns in a bearing. 5. The lowest part, as of an embankment or a dam. — v. toed, toe·ing, toes. — v. tr. 1. To touch, kick, or reach with the toe. 2. Sports. To drive (a golf ball) with the toe of the club. 3. a. To drive (a nail or spike) at an oblique angle. b. To fasten or secure with obliquely driven nails or spikes. — v. intr. To stand, walk, move, or be formed with the toes pointed in a specified direction: He toes out. — idioms. on (one's) toes. Ready to act; alert. step on (someone's) toes (or tread on (someone's) toes). To hurt, offend, or encroach on the feelings, actions, or province of. toe the line (or toe the mark). 3. To adhere to doctrines or rules conscientiously; conform. 4. Sports & Games. To touch a mark or line with the toe or hands in readiness for the start of a race or competition.

[Middle English, from Old English tā. See deik- in Appendix.]

toe·a (toi'ə) n. pl. toea. A unit of currency in Papua New Guinea. See Table at currency. [Perhaps Pidgin English, from English DOLLAR.]

toe·cap (tō'kăp') n. A reinforced covering of leather or metal for the toe of a shoe or boot.

toe crack (tō krăk) n. A sand crack in the front part of a horse's hoof.

toed (tōd) adj. 1. Having a toe, especially of a specified number or kind. Often used in combination: an even-toed ungulate. 2. a. Driven obliquely: a toed nail. b. Secured by obliquely driven nails: a toed beam.

toe dance (tō dāns) n. A dance that is performed on the toes, especially in ballet. — toe dancer n.

toe-hold (tō'hōld') n. 1. A small indentation or ledge on which the toe of a shoe can find support in climbing. 2. A slight or initial yet significant advantage useful for future progress: Family connections gave her a toehold in politics.

3. Sports. A wrestling hold in which one competitor wrenches the other's foot.

toe loop (tō lōōp) n. Sports. A jump in figure skating in which the skater, moving backwards, takes off from the back outer edge of one skate, makes a full spin in the air, and lands on the back outer edge of the same skate.

toe-nail (tō'nāl') n. 1. The thin, horny, transparent plate covering the upper surface of the end of a toe. 2. A nail driven obliquely, as to join vertical and horizontal beams. — v. tr. toe-nailed, toe-nail-ing, toe-nails. To secure (beams) with obliquely driven nails.

toff (tōf) n. Chiefly British. An elegantly dressed young man, often having exaggerated or affected manners: "champagne, once a raffish drink suitable for toffs and weddings" (Ian Jack). [Probably variant of TUFT, a gold tassel worn by titled students at Oxford and Cambridge.]

tof-fee (tō'fē, tōf'ē) n. A hard, chewy candy made of brown sugar or molasses and butter. [Alteration of TAFFY.]

toft (tōft, tōft) n. Chiefly British. 1. A homestead. 2. A hillock. [Middle English, from Old English, from Old Norse topt. See dem- in Appendix.]

to-fu (tō'fōō) n. A protein-rich food coagulated from an extract of soybeans and used in salads and various cooked foods. [Japanese tōfu, from Chinese dòufu : dòu, bean + fǔ, fermented, curdled.]

tog (tōg, tōg) Informal. n. 1. togs. Clothes: gardening togs. 2. A coat or cloak. — v. tr. togged, tog-ging, togs. To dress or clothe: togged herself in ski pants. [Short for obsolete togeman, from obsolete French togue, cloak, from Latin toga, garment. See TOGA.]

to-ga (tō'gə) n. 1. A loose one-piece outer garment worn in public by male citizens in ancient Rome. 2. A robe of office; a professional or ceremonial gown. [Latin. See (s)teg- in Appendix.] — to'gaed (tō'gəd) adj.

to-ga vi-ri-lis (tō'gə və-rē'līs, -rīl'īs) n. to-gae vi-ri-les (tō'jē vī-rē'lēz, -rīl'ēz, tō'gē, -gī). A white toga symbolizing manhood that boys of ancient Rome were allowed to wear at age 15. [Latin toga virilis : toga, toga + virilis, of a man.]

to-geth-er (tə-gēth'ər) adv. 1. In or into a single group, mass, or place: We gather together. 2. In or into contact: The cars crashed together. She mixed the chemicals together. 3. a. In association with or in relationship to one another; mutually or reciprocally: getting along together. b. By joint or cooperative effort: We ironed the entire load of clothes together. 4. Regarded collectively; in total: She is worth more than all of us together. Considered together, the proposals made little sense. 5. In or into a unified structure or arrangement: put the food processor together. 6. Simultaneously: The bells rang out together. 7. In harmony or accord: We stand together on this issue. 8. Informal. Into an effective, coherent condition: Get yourself together. — adj. Slang. 1. Emotionally stable and effective in performance: She's really together. 2. In tune with what is going on; hip. — idiom. get it all together (or put it all together). Slang. To unify and harmonize one's resources so as to perform with maximal effectiveness. [Middle English, from Old English tōgædere. See ghedh- in Appendix.] — to-geth'er-ness n.

USAGE NOTE: Together with, like in addition to, is often employed following the subject of a sentence or clause to introduce an addition. The addition, however, does not alter the number of the verb, which is governed by the subject: The king (singular), together with two aides, is expected in an hour. The same is true of along with, besides, and in addition to. See Usage Note at besides. See Usage Note at like².

tog-ger-y (tög'ə-rē, tō'gə-) n. pl. tog-ger-ies. 1. Clothing; togs. 2. A clothing store.

tog-gle (tög'əl) n. 1. A pin, rod, or crosspiece fitted or inserted into a loop in a rope, chain, or strap to prevent slipping, to tighten, or to hold an attached object. 2. A device or an apparatus with a toggle joint. — v. tog-gled, tog-gling, tog-gles. — v. tr. To furnish or fasten with a toggle. — v. intr. To alternate between two or more circuit configurations, usually by the operation of a single switch: This printer lets you toggle between one font and another. [Origin unknown.]

toggle bolt (tög'əl bōlt) n. A fastener consisting of a threaded bolt and a spring-loaded toggle, used to secure objects to thin or hollow walls.

toggle joint (tög'əl joint) n. A joint made of two arms attached by a pivot shaped like an elbow, allowing force to be exerted at the ends of the arms as the joint is expanded.

toggle switch (tög'əl swīch) n. A switch that uses a toggle joint with a spring to open or close an electric circuit as an attached lever is pushed through a small arc.

To-gliat-ti also Tol-yat-ti (tōl-yä'tē, tō-lyät'tē) A city of western Russia on the Volga River northwest of Kuibyshev. It is a manufacturing center. Population, 594,000.

To-gliat-ti also Tol-yat-ti (tōl-yä'tē, tō-lyät'tē), Palmiro. 1893-1964. Italian politician under whose leadership (1926-1964) the Italian Communist Party became the largest in western Europe.

To-go (tō'gō') A country of western Africa on the Gulf of Guinea. It became a French colony in 1922 and gained independence in 1960. Lomé is the capital and the largest city. Population, 2,742,945.

Togo Hei-ha-chi-ro (tō'gō' hā-hā'chē-rō'), Count. 1846-1934. Japanese admiral whose strategies established Japan's naval superiority during the Russo-Japanese War (1904-1905).

Togo Shi-ge-no-ri (tō'gō' shē-gě'nô-rē'), 1882-1950. Japanese politician who served as foreign minister (1940-1945) during World War II and was convicted as a war criminal.

togue (tōg) n. See lake trout. [Canadian French, from Micmac atoghwaasu.]

to-he-ro-a (tō'ə-rō'ə) n. pl. toheroa or to-he-ro-as. A large edible marine clam (Amphidesma ventricosum) native to New Zealand. [Maori.]

To-ho-no O'o-dham (tō-hō'nō ō'ə-dām) n. pl. Tohono O'odham or Tohono O'o-dhams. See Papago.

toil¹ (toil) v. intr. toiled, toiling, toils. 1. To labor continuously; work strenuously. 2. To proceed with difficulty: toiling over the mountains. — n.

1. Exhausting labor or effort: "A bit of the blackest and coarsest bread is... the sole recompense and the sole profit attaching to so arduous a toil" (George Sand). See Synonyms at work. 2. Archaic. Strife; contention. [Middle English toilen, from Anglo-Norman toiler, to stir about, from Latin tudiculāre, from tudicula, a machine for bruising olives, diminutive of tudēs, hammer.] — toil'er n.

toil² (toil) n. 1. Something that binds, snares, or entangles one; an entrapment. Often used in the plural: caught in the toils of despair. 2. Archaic. A net for trapping game. [French toile, cloth, from Old French teile, from Latin tēla, web. See teks- in Appendix.]

toile (twäl) n. A sheer fabric, such as linen or cotton. [French. See TOIL².]

toile de Jouy (twäl də zhwē') n. pl. toiles de Jouy (twäl). A usually light-colored fabric printed with a scenic pattern or design often used in upholstery or for curtains. [French, after Jouy-en-Josas, a town of north-central France.]

toi·let (toi'līt) n. 1. a. A fixture for defecation and urination, consisting of a bowl fitted with a hinged seat and connected to a waste pipe and a flushing apparatus; a privy. b. A room or booth containing such a fixture. 2. The act or process of dressing or grooming oneself. 3. Dress; attire; costume. 4. The cleansing of a body area as part of a surgical or medical procedure. 5. Archaic. A dressing table. [French toilette, clothes bag, from Old French tellette, diminutive of teile, cloth. See TOIL².]

toilet paper (toi'līt pā'pər) n. Thin, absorbent paper, usually in rolls, used to clean oneself after defecation or urination. Also called toilet tissue toi·let·ry (toi'lī-trē) n. pl. toi·let·ries. An article, such as toothpaste or a hairbrush, used in personal grooming or dressing.

toi·lette (twä-lēt') n. 1. The act or process of dressing or grooming oneself; toilet. 2. A person's dress or style of dress. 3. A gown or costume. [French. See TOI·LET.]

toilet tissue (toi'līt tīsh'ōō) n. See toilet paper.

toilet training (toi/'līt trā'ning) n. The process of training a child to use a toilet for defecation and urination.

toilet water (toi/'līt wō'tər) n. A scented liquid with a high alcohol content used in bathing or applied as a skin freshener.

toil-some (toil/'səm) adj. Characterized by or requiring toil. —toil'some-ly adv. —toil'some-ness n.

To-jo Hi-de-ki (tō'jō' hē'dě-kē), Originally Tojo Eiki. 1884-1948. Japanese army officer and politician who ruled as dictator (1941-1944) during World War II and was executed as a war criminal.

to-ka-mak (tō'kə-māk', tōk'ə-) n. A doughnut-shaped chamber used in fusion research in which a plasma is heated and confined by magnetic fields. [Russian, from to(roidal'naya) kam(era s) ak(sial'nym magnitnym polem), toroidal chamber with axial magnetic field.]

To-ka-ra Islands (tō-kār'ə ī'ləndz, -kär'rä) A group of islands of Japan in the northern Ryukyu group south of Kyushu.

To-kay (tō-kā') n. 1. A variety of grape originally grown near Tokaj (formerly Tokay), a town of eastern Hungary. 2. A wine made from these grapes.

toke (tōk) Slang. n. A puff on a cigarette, a marijuana cigarette, or a pipe containing hashish or another mind-altering substance. — v. tr. intr. toked, tok-ing, tokes. To puff or smoke (a marijuana cigarette, for example) or to engage in such activity. [Perhaps from Spanish toque, a hit, a turn, from tocar, to touch, from Vulgar Latin toccāre*.]

To-ke-lau Islands (tō'kə-lou' ī'ləndz) An island group of the central Pacific Ocean in the northern Ryukyu Islands north of Samoa. They became part of New Zealand in 1948.

to-ken (tō'kən) n. 1. Something serving as an indication, a proof, or an expression of something else; a sign: "Tears are queer tokens of happiness" (Eugene O'Neill). See Synonyms at sign. 2. Something that signifies or evidences authority, validity, or identity: The scepter is a token of regal status. 3. A distinguishing feature or characteristic. 4. One that represents a group, as an employee whose presence is used to deflect from the employer criticism or accusations of discrimination. 5. A keepsake or souvenir. 6. A piece of stamped metal used as a substitute for currency: subway tokens. — v. tr. to-kened, to-ken-ing, to-kens. To betoken or symbolize; portend. — adj. 1. Done as an indication or a pledge: a token payment. 2. a. Perfunctory; minimal: a token gesture of reconciliation; token resistance. b. Merely symbolic: a token woman on the board of directors. —idioms. by the same token. In like manner; similarly. in token of. As an indication of: a ring given in token of love. [Middle English, from Old English tācen. See deik- in Appendix.]

to-ken-ism (tō'kə-nīz'əm) n. 1. The policy of making only a perfunctory effort or symbolic gesture toward the accomplishment of a goal, such as racial integration. 2. The practice of hiring or appointing a token number of people from underrepresented groups in order to deflect criticism or comply with affirmative action rules: “Tokenism does not change stereotypes of social systems but works to preserve them, since it dulls the revolutionary impulse” (Mary Daly).

To-khar-i-an (tō-kâr'ē-ən, -kâr'-, -kâr'-) n. Variant of Tocharian.

To-klas (tō'kləs), Alice B. 1877-1967. American writer remembered as the secretary and longtime companion of Gertrude Stein. Her works include cookbooks and a volume of memoirs.

to-kol-o-gy (tō-kōl'ə-jē) n. Variant of tocology.

to-ko-no-ma (tō'kə-nō'mə) n. A niche or an alcove in a Japanese home for displaying a flower arrangement, kakemono, or other piece of art. [Japanese : toko, alcove + no, of + ma, room.]

To-ko-ro-za-wa (tō'kō-rō'zä-wä) A city of central Honshu, Japan, a commercial suburb of Tokyo. Population, 275,165.

Tok Pis-in (tök' pīs'in) n. A pidgin based on English and spoken in Papua New Guinea. [Pidgin English : TALK + PIDGIN.]

To-ku-shi-ma (tō'kə-shē'mä) A city of eastern Shikoku, Japan, on the Inland Sea. It is a major port and manufacturing center. Population, 257,886.

To-ky-o (tō'kē-ō', -kyō) Formerly E-do (ēd'ō). The capital and largest city of Japan, in east-central Honshu on Tokyo Bay, an inlet of the Pacific Ocean. Founded in the 12th century as Edo, Tokyo became the imperial capital in 1868. Much of the city was destroyed by an earthquake in 1923 and by bombing raids during World War II. Population, 8,353,674.

to-la (tō'lə, tō-lä') n. A unit of weight used in India, equal to the weight of one silver rupee (11.7 grams or 180 troy grains). [Hindi tolā, from Sanskrit tulā, weight. See telə- in Appendix.]

tol-booth also toll-booth (tōl'bōoth') n. Scots. A prison; a jail. [Middle English tolbothe, town hall containing customs offices and prison cells : tol, toll; see TOLL¹ + bothe, booth; see BOOTH.]

Tol-bu-khin (tōl-bōō'kīn, -KHĪn) A city of northeast Bulgaria north of Varna. It is a commercial and cultural center. Population, 105,000.

tol-bu-ta-mide (tōl-byōō'tə-mīd') n. A white powder, C₁₂H₁₈N₂O₃S, that lowers the level of sugar in the blood and is used in the treatment of diabetes. [TOL(U) + BUT- + AMIDE.]

told (tōld) v. Past tense and past participle of tell.

tole also tôle (tōl) n. A lacquered or enameled metalware, usually gilded and elaborately painted. [French tôle, sheet metal, variant of table, table, slab, from Old French, from Latin tabula, board.]

To-le-do¹ (tə-lē'dō) 1. (also tō-lē'thō) A city of central Spain near the Tagus River south-southwest of Madrid. It fell to the Romans in 193 B.C. and was later the capital of the Visigoth kingdom (534-712). As a Moorish capital (712-1031) it was a center of Arab and Hebrew learning. Population, 57,778. 2. A city of northwest Ohio on Lake Erie. Incorporated in 1837, it is one of the major ship-ping centers of the Great Lakes. Population, 332,943.

To·le·do² also to·le·do (tə-lē'dō) n. pl. To·le·dos. A fine-tempered sword or steel sword blade made in Toledo, Spain.

tol·er·a·ble (tɒl'ər-ə-bəl) adj. 1. Capable of being tolerated; enduring.

2. Fairly good; passable. See Synonyms at average. —tol'er-a-bil'i-ty, tol'er-a-ble-ness n. —tol'er-a-bly adv.

tol·er·ance (tɒl'ər-əns) n. 1. The capacity for or the practice of recognizing and respecting the beliefs or practices of others. 2. a. Leeway for variation from a standard. b. The permissible deviation from a specified value of a structural dimension, often expressed as a percent. 3. The capacity to endure hardship or pain. 4. Medicine. a. Physiological resistance to a poison. b. The capacity to absorb a drug continuously or in large doses without adverse effect; diminution in the response to a drug after prolonged use. 5. a. Acceptance of a tissue graft or transplant without immunological rejection. b. Unresponsiveness to an anti-gen that normally produces an immunological reaction. 6. The ability of an organism to resist or survive infection by a parasitic or pathogenic organism.

tol·er·ant (tɒl'ər-ənt) adj. 1. Inclined to tolerate the beliefs, practices, or traits of others; forbearing. See Synonyms at broad-minded. 2. Able to withstand or endure an adverse environmental condition: plants tolerant of extreme heat. [French tolérant, from Latin tolerāns, present participle of tolerāre, to bear. See TOLERATE.] —tol'er-ant-ly adv.

tol·er·ate (tɒl'ə-rāt') v. tr. tol·er·at·ed, tol·er·at·ing, tol·er·ates. 1. To allow without prohibiting or opposing; permit. 2. To recognize and respect (the rights, beliefs, or practices of others). 3. To put up with; endure. See Synonyms at bear¹. 4. Medicine. To have tolerance for (a substance or pathogen). [Latin tolerāre, tolerāt-, to bear. See tel- in Appendix.] —tol'er-a'tive adj.

—tol'er-a'tor n.

tol·er·a·tion (tɒl'ə-rā'shən) n. 1. Tolerance with respect to the actions and beliefs of others: "Toleration... is the greatest gift of the mind" (Helen Keller).

2. Official recognition of the rights of individuals and groups to hold dissenting opinions, especially on religion.

tol·i·dine (tɒl'i-dēn') n. Any of several isomeric bases, C₁₄H₁₆N₂, derived from toluene, one of which is used as a reagent to test for gold and for chlorine in water. [TOL(UENE) + -ID(E) + -INE².]

Tol·kien (tɒl'kēn', tɒl'-), J(ohn) R(onald) R(euel). 1892-1973. British philol-ogist and writer of the fantasies The Hobbit (1937) and The Lord of the Rings (1954-1955).

toll¹ (tɒl) n. 1. A fixed charge or tax for a privilege, especially for passage across a bridge or along a road. 2. A charge for a service, such as a long-distance telephone call. 3. The amount or extent of loss or destruction, as of life, health, or property, caused by a disaster. — v. tr. tolled, toll-ing, tolls. 1. To exact as a toll. 2. To charge a fee for using (a structure, such as a bridge). [Middle English, from Old English, variant of toln, from Medieval Latin tolōnīum, from Latin telōnēum, tollbooth, from Greek telōneion, from telōnēs, tax collector, from telos, tax. See telə- in Appendix.]

toll² (tōl) v. tolled, toll-ing, tolls. — v. tr. 1. To sound (a large bell) slowly at regular intervals. 2. To announce or summon by tolling. — v. intr. To sound in slowly repeated single tones. — n. 1. The act of tolling. 2. The sound of a bell being struck. [Middle English tollen, to ring an alarm, perhaps from tollen, to entice, pull, variant of tillen, from Old English -tyllan.]

toll-booth¹ (tōl'boōth') n. A booth where a toll is collected. Also called toll-house toll-booth² (tōl'boōth') n. Variant of tolbooth.

toll bridge (tōl brīj) n. A bridge at which a toll is charged for crossing.

toll call (tōl kōl) n. A telephone call for which a higher rate is charged than that standard for a local call.

Tol-ler (tō'lər, tōl'ər), Ernst. 1893-1939. German writer noted for his expressionistic plays, including Transfiguration (1919) and Man and the Masses (1920).

toll-gate (tōl'gāt') n. 1. A gate barring passage to a road, tunnel, or bridge until a toll is collected. 2. A tollbooth equipped with a gate.

toll-house (tōl'hous') n. 1. A house adjoining a tollgate and occupied by a toll collector. 2. See tollbooth¹.

tollhouse cookie (tōl'hous' kōök'ē) n. A cookie made with flour, brown sugar, semisweet chocolate chips, and often chopped nuts.

Tol-stoy or Tol-stoi (tōl'stoi, tōl'-, təl-stoi'), Count Leo or Lev Nikolayevich. 1828-1910. Russian writer and philosopher whose great novels War and Peace (1864-1869) and Anna Karenina (1873-1876) offer extraordinary detail and profound psychological insights. His later theories of ethics and morality recommended nonparticipation in and passive resistance to evil.

—Tol-stoy'an, Tol-stoi'an adj.

Tol-tec (tōl'těk', tōl'-) n. pl. Toltec or Tol-tecs. A member of a Nahuatl-speaking people of central and southern Mexico whose empire flourished from the 10th century until it collapsed under invasion by the Aztecs in the 12th century.

— adj. also Tol-tec-an (-těk'ən, tōl-) Of or relating to the Toltec or their culture. [Spanish tolteca, from Nahuatl toltecatl, artisan, mechanic.]

to-lu (tə-lōō') n. Balsam of Peru. [Spanish tolú, after Tolú, a seaport of north-west Colombia.]

tol-u-ate (tōl'yōō-āt') n. A salt or an ester of toluic acid. [TOLU(IC ACID) + -ATE².]

To·lu·ca (tə-lōō'kə, tō-lōō'kā) A city of south-central Mexico west of Mexico City. Established as a settlement by Hernando Cortés in 1530, it is a commercial center. Population, 199,778.

tol·u·ene (tōl'yōō-ēn') also tol·u·ol (-ôl', -ôl', -ôl') n. A colorless flammable liquid, $\text{CH}_3\text{C}_6\text{H}_5$, obtained from coal tar or petroleum and used in aviation fuel and other high-octane fuels, in dyestuffs, explosives, and as a solvent for gums and lacquers. Also called methylbenzene [TOLU (from which it was originally obtained) + -ENE.]

to·lu·ic acid (tə-lōō'ik äs'id) n. Any of three isomeric acids, $\text{C}_8\text{H}_8\text{O}_2$, derived from toluene. [TOLU(ENE) + -IC.]

to·lu·i·dine (tə-lōō'i-dēn') n. Any of three isomeric compounds, $\text{C}_7\text{H}_9\text{N}$, used to make dyes. [TOLU(ENE) + -ID(E) + -INE².]

tol·u·ol (tōl'yōō-ôl', -ôl', -ôl') n. Variant of toluene.

Tol·yat·ti (tōl-yä'tē, tō-lyät'tē) See Togliatti.

tol·yl (tōl'əl) n. The group C_7H_7 , derived from toluene. Also called cresyl [TOL(U) + -YL.]

tom (tōm) n. The male of various animals, especially a male cat or turkey. [Tom, nickname for Thomas.]

Tom (tōm) n. Slang. An Uncle Tom.

tom·a·hawk (tōm'ə-hôk') n. 1. A light ax formerly used as a tool or weapon by certain Native American peoples. See Regional note at pone. 2. A similar implement or weapon. — v. tr. tom·a·hawked, tom·a·hawk-ing, tom·a·hawks. To strike with or as if with a tomahawk. [Virginia Algonquian tamahaac.]

to·mal·ley (tə-mäl'ē, tōm'äl'ē) n. pl. to·mal·leys. The soft, green liver of cooked lobster, considered a delicacy. [Galibi tamali.]

Tom and Jer·ry (tōm ənd jēr'ē) n. pl. Tom and Jer·ries. A hot drink consisting of rum or another liquor, a beaten egg, milk or water, sugar, and spices. [After Corinthian Tom and Jerry Hawthorn, characters in Life in London, a novel by Pierce Egan (1772-1849).]

To·ma·szów Ma·zo·wiec·ki (tō-mä'shōōf mä'zō-vyēt'skē) A city of east-central Poland southeast of Łódź. It is a manufacturing center. Population, 66,100.

to·ma·til·lo (tō'mə-tē'yō, -tēl'yō) n. pl. to·ma·til·los. A species of ground cherry (Physalis ixocarpa) native to Mexico, widely naturalized in eastern North America, and having an edible, yellow to purple viscid fruit. [American Spanish, diminutive of tomate, tomato. See TOMATO.]

to·ma·to (tə-mā'tō, -mä'-) n. pl. to·ma·toes. 1. a. A widely cultivated South American plant (Lycopersicon esculentum) having edible, fleshy, usually red fruit. b. The fruit of this plant. 2. Slang. A woman regarded as attractive. [Alteration of Spanish tomate, from Nahuatl tomatl.]

WORD HISTORY: It has been said that the real contributions to world civilization were made by the unknown inhabitants of the Americas who domesticated plants such as the potato and squash and not by the great pre-Columbian civilizations, including that of the Aztecs. The tomato was another contribution, its name coming ultimately from the Nahuatl language spoken by the Aztecs as well as by other groups in Mexico and Central America. The Spanish, who conquered the area, brought back the tomato to Spain and, borrowing the Nahuatl word tomatl for it, named it tomate, a form shared in French, Portuguese, and early Modern English. Tomate, first recorded in 1604, gave way to tomato, a form created in English either because it was assumed to be Spanish or under the influence of the word potato. In any case, as is well known, people resisted eating this New World food at first because its membership in the Nightshade family made it suspect, but it is now eaten throughout the world while Aztec civilization is memorialized by ruins.

tomato fruit-worm (tə-mā'tō frōot'wûrm') n. The destructive larva of a noctuid moth (Heliothis zea) of the United States that burrows into the fruit of tomato plants.

tomato hornworm (tə-mā'tō hôrn'wûrm') n. The destructive larva of a North American hawk moth (Manduca quinquemaculata) that feeds on the leaves of tomato plants.

tomb (tōm) n. 1. A grave or other place of burial. 2. A vault or chamber for burial of the dead. 3. A monument commemorating the dead. [Middle English, from Old French tombe, from Late Latin tumba, from Greek tumbos. See teuə- in Appendix.]

tom·bac also tam·bac or tam·bak (tōm'bāk) n. An alloy of copper with zinc and sometimes other metals, used in making inexpensive jewelry. [French, from Dutch tombak, from Malay těmbaga.]

Tom·baugh (tōm'bô'), Clyde William. Born 1906. American astronomer who discovered the planet Pluto (1930).

Tom·big·bee (tōm-bĭg'bē) A river, about 644 km (400 mi) long, rising in northeast Mississippi and flowing generally southward through western Alabama to join the Alabama River and form the Mobile River.

tom·bo·lo (tōm'bə-lō') n. pl. tom·bo·los. A sandbar that connects an island to the mainland or to another island. [Italian, from Latin tumulus, mound. See TUMULUS.]

tom·boy (tōm'boi') n. A girl considered boyish or masculine in behavior or manner.

tomb·stone (tōm'stōn') n. A gravestone.

Tomb-stone (tōm'stōn') A city of southeast Arizona north-northwest of Bisbee. After silver was discovered here in 1877, Tombstone became one of the richest and most lawless frontier mining towns. Population, 1,220.

tom-cat (tōm'kăt') n. A male cat. — v. intr. tom-cat-ted, tom-cat-ting, tom-cats. Slang. To be sexually active with more than one partner. Used of men.

tom-cod (tōm'kōd') n. pl. tomcod or tom-cods. Either of two edible marine fishes, Microgadus tomcod of North American Atlantic waters or M. proximus of northern Pacific waters, related to and resembling the cod.

Tom Col-lins (tōm kōl'inz) n. A drink consisting of gin, lemon or lime juice, carbonated water, and sugar. [From the name Tom Collins.]

Tom, Dick, and Har-ry (tōm' dīk' ən hār'ē) n. Informal. Anybody at all; a member of the public at large: It's not a smart idea to admit every Tom, Dick, and Harry to the party.

tome (tōm) n. 1. One of the books in a work of several volumes. 2. A book, especially a large or scholarly one. [French, from Latin tomus, from Greek tomos, a cutting, section, from temnein, to cut. See tem- in Appendix.]

-tome suff. 1. Part; area; segment: dermatome. 2. Cutting instrument: micro-tome. [New Latin -tomus, from Greek -tomos, a cutting, from tomos. See TOME.]

to-men-ta (tō-měn'tə) n. Biology & Anatomy. Plural of tomentum.

to-men-tose (tō-měn'tōs', tō'mən-) adj. Biology. Covered with short, dense, matted hairs. [New Latin tōmentōsus, from Latin tōmentum, cushion stuffing.]

to-men-tum (tō-měn'təm) n. pl. to-men-ta (-tə). 1. Anatomy. A network of extremely small blood vessels passing between the pia mater and the cerebral cortex. 2. Biology. A covering of closely matted woolly hairs. [Latin tōmentum, cushion stuffing.]

tom-fool (tōm'fōol') n. A person considered stupid or foolish. — adj. Extremely foolish or stupid.

tom-fool-er-y (tōm-fōol'ə-rē) n. pl. tom-fool-er-ies. 1. Foolish behavior. 2. Something trivial or foolish; nonsense.

tom-my also Tom-my (tōm'ē) n. pl. tom-mies. Chiefly British. A British Soldier. [Short for Tommy Atkins, from Thomas Atkins, a name often used on sample forms.]

Tommy gun (tōm'ē gŭn) n. Informal. A Thompson submachine gun.

tom-my-rot (tōm'ē-rōt') n. Informal. Utter foolishness; nonsense. [Dialectal tommy, fool (from Tom, nickname for Thomas) + ROT.]

to-mog-ra-phy (tō-mōg'rə-fē) n. Any of several techniques for making detailed x-rays of a predetermined plane section of a solid object while blurring out the images of other planes. [Greek tomos, section; see TOME + -GRAPHY.]

—to'mo-gram' (tō'mə-grām') n. —to'mo-graph' (-gräf') n.

—to'mo-graph'ic adj.

To-mo-na-ga Shin-i-chi-ro (tō'mə-nä'gə shēn-ē'chē-rō', tō'mô-nä'gä), 1906-1979. Japanese physicist. He shared a 1965 Nobel Prize for research in quantum electrodynamics.

to-mor-row (tə-môr'ō, -mör'ō) n. 1. The day following today. 2. The near future. — adv. On or for the day following today: “I won't think of it now... I'll think of it tomorrow” (Margaret Mitchell). [Middle English to morow, from Old English tō morgenne, in the morning : tō, at, on; see TO + morgenne, dative of morgen, morning.]

tom-pi-on (tōm'pē-ən) n. Variant of tampion.

Tomp-kins (tōmp'kīnz, tōm'-), Daniel D. 1774-1825. Vice President of the United States (1817-1825) under James Monroe.

Tomsk (tōmsk, tōmsk) A city of central Russia northeast of Novosibirsk. It is a major river port and an industrial center. Population, 475,000.

Tom Thumb (tōm thŭm) n. 1. A hero of English folklore, who was no bigger than his father's thumb. 2. A person of very small physical stature.

tom-tit (tōm'tīt') n. A small bird, such as a titmouse. See Regional note at tit¹.

tom-tom (tōm'tōm') also tam-tam (tŭm'tŭm', tām'tām') n. 1. Any of various small-headed drums, usually long and narrow, that are beaten with the hands. 2. A monotonous rhythmical drumbeat or similar sound. [Hindi ṭamṭam, probably of imitative origin.]

-tomy suff. Act of cutting; incision: gastrotony. [New Latin -tomia, from Greek, from tomos, a cutting, from temnein, to cut. See tem- in Appendix.]

ton (tŭn) n. Abbr. t., tn. 1. A unit of weight equal to 2,000 pounds (0.907 metric ton or 907.18 kilograms). Also called net ton, short ton. 2. A unit of weight equal to 2,240 pounds (1.016 metric tons or 1,016.05 kilograms). Also called long ton. 3. A metric ton. See Table at measurement. 4. A unit of capacity for cargo in maritime shipping, normally estimated at 40 cubic feet. 5. A unit of internal capacity of a ship equal to 100 cubic feet. 6. A unit for measuring the displacement of ships, equal to 35 cubic feet, and supposed to equal the volume taken by a long ton of seawater. 7. Informal. A very large quantity: tons of fan mail. [Middle English tonne, a measure of weight. See TUN.]

to-nal (tō'nəl) adj. Of or relating to tones, a tone, or tonality. —to'nal-ly adv.

to-nal-i-ty (tō-nāl'ī-tē) n. pl. to-nal-i-ties. 1. Music. a. A system or an arrangement of seven tones built on a tonic key. b. The arrangement of all the tones and chords of a composition in relation to a tonic. 2. The scheme or interrelation of the tones in a painting.

Ton-a-wan-da (tōn'ə-wōn'də) A city of western New York, an industrial suburb of Buffalo. Population, 17,284.

ton-do (tōn'dō, tōn'-) n. pl. ton-dos also ton-di (-dē). A round painting, relief, or similar work of art. [Italian, short for rotondo, round, from Latin rotundus. See ROTUND.]

tone (tōn) n. 1. Music. a. A sound of distinct pitch, quality, and duration; a note. b. The interval of a major second in the diatonic scale; a whole step. c. A recitatory melody in a Gregorian chant. 2. a. The quality or character of sound. b. The characteristic quality or timbre of a particular instrument or voice. 3. a. The pitch of a word used to determine its meaning or to distinguish differences in meaning. b. The particular or relative pitch of a word, phrase, or sentence. 4. Manner of expression in speech or writing: took an angry tone with the reporters. 5. A general quality, effect, or atmosphere: a room with an elegant tone. 6. Color. a. A color or shade of color: light tones of blue. b. Quality of color: The green wallpaper had a particularly somber tone. 7. The general effect in painting of light, color, and shade. 8. Physiology. a. The normal state of elastic tension or partial contraction in resting muscles. b. Normal firmness of a tissue or an organ. — v. toned, ton-ing, tones. — v. tr. 1. To give a particular tone or inflection to. 2. To soften or change the color of (a painting or photographic negative, for example). 3. To sound monotonously; intone. — v. intr. 1. To assume a particular color quality. 2. To harmonize in color. — phrasal verbs. tone down. To make less vivid, harsh, or violent; moderate. tone up. To make or become brighter or more vigorous. [Middle English ton, from Old French, from Latin tonus, from Greek tonos, a stretching. See ten- in Appendix.]

Tone (tōn), (Theobald) Wolfe. 1763-1798. Irish nationalist who helped secure Parliament's passage of the Catholic Relief Act of 1793 and planned a French invasion of Ireland (1796).

tone arm (tōn ärm) n. The arm of a phonograph turntable that holds the cartridge.

tone cluster (tōn klüs'tər) n. Music. A dissonant group of close notes played at the same time.

tone color (tōn kül'ər) n. Music. The timbre of a singing voice or an instrument.

tone control (tōn kən-trōl') n. A circuit or device in an amplifier designed to increase or decrease the amplification in a specific frequency range without affecting other frequencies.

tone-deaf (tōn'dēf') adj. Unable to distinguish differences in musical pitch.

To-ne-ga-wa Su-su-mu (tō-ně'gä-wä sōō-sōō'mōō), Born 1939. Japanese molecular biologist. He won a 1987 Nobel Prize for discovering how certain cells of the immune system can genetically rearrange themselves to produce diverse antibodies.

tone language (tōn lāng'gwīj) n. A language that distinguishes meanings among words of similar form by variations in pitch and tone.

tone-less (tōn'līs) adj. 1. Lacking tone. 2. Lacking vitality; listless. — tone'-less-ly adv. — tone/less-ness n.

ton·eme (tō'nēm) n. A type of phoneme that occurs in languages that use tone to convey differences in lexical meaning.

tone poem (tōn pō'əm) n. Music. See symphonic poem.

ton·er (tō'nər) n. One that tones, as: a. A chemical bath used to change the color of a photographic print or to preserve black-and-white prints or movie film. b. A powdery ink used dry or suspended in a liquid to produce a photocopy. c. A mildly astringent cream or lotion used to refresh the skin.

tone row (tōn rō) n. Music. A unique, arbitrary series of notes used in the 12-tone system of composition.

ton·ey (tō'nē) adj. Variant of tony.

tong¹ (tōng, tōng) v. tr. tonged, tong-ing, tongs. To seize, hold, or manipulate with tongs. [Back-formation from TONGS.]

tong² (tōng, tōng) n. 1. A Chinese association or political party. 2. An association or a secret society of Chinese in the United States, believed to be involved in organized crime. [Chinese (Cantonese), assembly hall, familial relationship between cousins, equivalent to Mandarin táng.]

Ton·ga (tōng'gə) also Friend·ly Islands (frënd'lē) A country in the southwest Pacific Ocean east of Fiji comprising about 150 islands, some 36 of which are inhabited. It became a British protectorate in 1900 and gained independence in 1970. Nukualofa is the capital and the largest city. Population, 96,592.

Ton·gan (tōng'gən, tōng'ən) adj. Of or relating to Tonga or its people, language, or culture. — n. 1. A native or inhabitant of Tonga. 2. The Polynesian language of Tonga.

tongs (tōngz, tōngz) pl.n. (used with a sing. or pl. verb). A grasping device consisting of two arms joined at one end by a pivot or hingelike scissors. [Middle English tonges, pl. of tonge, from Old English tang, tong.]

tongue (tūng) n. 1. a. The fleshy, movable, muscular organ, attached in most vertebrates to the floor of the mouth, that is the principal organ of taste, an aid in chewing and swallowing, and, in human beings, an important organ of speech. b. An analogous organ or part in invertebrate animals, as in certain insects or mollusks. 2. The tongue of an animal, such as a cow, used as food. 3. A spoken language or dialect. 4. a. Speech; talk: If there is goodness in your heart, it will come to your tongue. b. The act or power of speaking: She had no tongue to answer. c. tongues. Speech or vocal sounds produced in a state of religious ecstasy. d. Style or quality of utterance: her sharp tongue. 5. The bark or baying of a hunting dog that sees game: The dog gave tongue when the fox came through the hedge. 6. Something resembling a tongue in shape or function, as: a. The vibrating end of a reed in a wind instrument. b. A flame. c. The flap of material under the laces or buckles of a shoe. d. A spit of land; a promontory. e. A bell clapper. f. The harnessing pole attached to the front axle of a horse-drawn vehicle. 7. A protruding strip along the edge of a board that fits into a matching groove on the edge of another board. — v. tongued, tongu-ing, tongues. — v. tr. 1. Music. To separate or articulate (notes played on a brass or wind instrument) by shutting off the stream of air with the tongue. 2. To touch or lick with the tongue. 3. a. To provide (a board) with a tongue. b. To join by means of a tongue and groove. 4. Archaic. To scold. — v. intr. 1. Music. To articulate notes on a brass or wind instrument. 2. To project: a spit of land tonguing into the bay. — idioms. hold (one's) tongue. To be or keep silent. lose (one's) tongue. To lose the capacity to speak, as from shock. on the tip of (one's) tongue. On the verge of being recalled or expressed. [Middle English, from Old English tunge. See dnghū- in Appendix.]

tongue and groove (tŭng ənd grōv) n. A joint made by fitting a tongue on the edge of a board into a matching groove on another board.

tongue depressor (tŭng dī-prēs'ər) n. A thin blade for pressing down the tongue during a medical examination of the mouth and throat; a spatula.

tongue-fish (tŭng'fish') n. pl. tonguefish or tongue-fish-es. Any of various marine flatfishes of the family Cynoglossidae, having the posterior part of the body tapering to a point. [From its tongue-shaped body.]

tongue-in-cheek (tŭng'ĭn-chēk') adj. Meant or expressed ironically or facetiously.

tongue-lash-ing (tŭng'lăsh'ĭng) n. Informal. A scolding.

tongue-less (tŭng'lis) adj. 1. Having no tongue. 2. Lacking the faculty of speech; mute. 3. Speechless; silent.

Tongue River (tŭng rĭv'ər) A river, about 396 km (246 mi) long, rising in northern Wyoming and flowing generally northeast to the Yellowstone River in southeast Montana.

tongue-tie (tŭng'tī') n. Restricted mobility of the tongue resulting from abnormal shortness of the frenum. — v. tr. tongue-tied, tongue-ty-ing, tongue-ties. To make tongue-tied.

tongue-tied (tŭng'tīd') adj. 1. Speechless or confused in expression, as from shyness, embarrassment, or astonishment. 2. Affected with tongue-tie.

tongue twister (tŭng twĭs'tər) n. 1. A word or group of words difficult to articulate rapidly, usually because of a succession of similar consonantal sounds, as in Shall she sell seashells? 2. Something difficult to pronounce.

tongue worm (tŭng wŭrm) n. Any of numerous tongue-shaped, soft-bodied, colorless invertebrates of the phylum Pentastoma that live embedded in the lungs, nostrils, or nasal sinuses of various mammals, reptiles, and birds, especially in tropical and subtropical regions. Also called pentastome tongu-ing (tŭng'ĭng) n. Music. Interruption of the wind stream through an instrument by movement of the tongue in order to articulate notes.

-tonia suff. Degree or state of tonicity: myotonia. [New Latin, from Latin tonus. See TONE.]

ton·ic (tɒn'ɪk) n. 1. An agent, such as a medication, that restores or increases body tone. 2. An invigorating, refreshing, or restorative agent or influence. 3. a. Quinine water. b. Boston. See soft drink. 4. Music. The first note of a diatonic scale; the keynote. 5. A tonic accent. — adj. 1. Producing or stimulating physical, mental, or emotional vigor. 2. a. Physiology. Of, relating to, or producing tone or tonicity in muscles or tissue: a tonic reflex. b. Medicine. Characterized by continuous tension or contraction of muscles: a tonic convulsion or spasm. 3. Music. Of or based on the keynote. 4. Stressed, as a syllable; accented. [New Latin tonicus, of tension or tone, from Greek tonikos, capable of extension, from tonos, a stretching, tone. See TONE.] —ton'i-cal·ly adv.

REGIONAL NOTE: Generic terms for carbonated soft drinks vary widely in the United States. Probably the two most common words competing for precedence are soda, used in the northeast United States, and pop, used from the Midwest westward. In the South all soft drinks, regardless of the flavor or brand name, are referred to as cold drinks. Speakers in Boston and its environs have a term of their own: tonic. Such a variety of regional equivalents is unusual for a product for which advertising is so aggressive and universal; usually advertising has the effect of squeezing out regional variants. On the other hand, because there are so many types and flavors of soft drinks, perhaps no single generic word has ever emerged to challenge the regionalisms.

tonic accent (tɒn'ɪk ək'sɛnt') n. Linguistics. A stress produced by a change, especially a rise, in pitch as distinguished from increased volume. Also called pitch accent to·nic·i·ty (tō-nɪs'ɪ-tē) n. pl. to·nic·i·ties. 1. Normal firmness or functional readiness in body tissues or organs. 2. The sustained partial contraction of resting or relaxed muscles.

tonic sol·fa (tɒn'ɪk sɒl-fə') n. Music. A system of notation that is based on relationships between tones in a key and that replaces the usual staff notation with solmization syllables, such as do, re, and mi, or their abbreviations.

to·night (tə-nīt') adv. On or during the present or coming night. — n. This night or the night of this day. [Middle English to night, from Old English tō niht, at night : tō, at, on; see TO + niht, night; see NIGHT.]

ton·ka bean (tɒŋg'kə bēn) n. 1. A tropical South American tree (Dipteryx odorata) having pulpy, egg-shaped, one-seeded pods and fragrant seeds used as a substitute for vanilla and for flavoring tobacco and candies. 2. The seed of this tree. [Perhaps from Galibi tonka.]

Ton·kin (tɒn'kɪn', tɒŋg'-) A historical region of southeast Asia on the Gulf of Tonkin, an arm of the South China Sea, now forming most of northern Vietnam.

It was part of French Indochina from 1887 to 1946. —Ton'kin-ese' (-ēz', -ēs') adj. & n.

Ton-le Sap (tɒn'lā sǎp', sǎp') A lake of central Cambodia. It is the largest lake in southeast Asia.

ton-mile (tʊn'mīl') n. A unit of freight transportation equivalent to a ton of freight moved one mile.

ton-nage (tʊn'ij) n. 1. The number of tons of water that a ship displaces when afloat. 2. The capacity of a merchant ship in units of 100 cubic feet. 3. A duty or charge per ton on cargo, as at a port or canal. 4. The total shipping of a country or port, figured in tons, with reference to carrying capacity. 5. Weight measured in tons. [TON + -AGE. Sense 3, Middle English from Old French, from tonne, tun. See TONNE.]

tonne (tʊn) n. A metric ton. [French, from Old French, tun, from Late Latin tunna, probably of Celtic origin.]

ton-neau (tə-nō', tɒn'ō') n. pl. ton-neaus. The rear seating compartment of an early type of automobile. [French, from Old French tonnel, cask. See TUNNEL.]

to-nom-e-ter (tō-nōm'ī-tər) n. 1. Any of various instruments for measuring pressure or tension. 2. An instrument for measuring hydrostatic pressure within the eyeball, used in the detection of glaucoma. 3. Music. An instrument, such as a graduated set of tuning forks, used to determine the pitch or vibration rate of tones. [Greek tonos, tension; see TONE + -METER.] —to'no-met'ric (tō'nə-mět'rik) adj. —to-nom'e-try n.

to-no-plast (tō'nə-pläst') n. The cytoplasmic membrane that surrounds a vacuole of a plant cell. Also called vacuolar membrane [Greek tonos, tension; see ten- in Appendix + -PLAST.]

ton-sil (tɒn'səl) n. A small oral mass of lymphoid tissue, especially either of two such masses embedded in the lateral walls of the opening between the mouth and the pharynx, of uncertain function, but believed to help protect the body from respiratory infections. [From Latin tōnsillae, tonsils.] —ton'sil-lar adj.

tonsill- pref. Variant of tonsillo-.

ton-sil-lec-to-my (tɒn'sə-lěk'tə-mē) n. pl. ton-sil-lec-to-mies. Surgical removal of tonsils or a tonsil.

ton-sil-li-tis (tɒn'sə-lī'tis) n. Inflammation of the tonsils. —ton'sil-lit'ic (-lit'ik) adj.

tonsillo- or tonsill- pref. Tonsil: tonsillectomy. [From Latin tōnsillae, tonsils.]

ton-sil-lot-o-my (tɒn'sə-lɒt'ə-mē) n. pl. ton-sil-lot-o-mies. Surgical incision of a tonsil.

ton-so-ri-al (tɒn-sôr'ē-əl, -sôr-) adj. Of or relating to barbering or a barber. [From Latin tōnsōrius, from tōnsor, barber, from tōnsus, past participle of tondēre, to shear. See tem- in Appendix.]

ton-sure (tɒn/'shər) n. 1. The act of shaving the head or part of the head, especially as a preliminary to becoming a priest or a member of a monastic order.

2. The part of a monk's or priest's head that has been shaved. — v. tr.

ton-sured, ton-sur-ing, ton-sures. To shave the head of. [Middle English, from Old French, from Medieval Latin tōnsūra, from Latin, a shearing, from tōn-sus, past participle of tōndēre, to shear. See tem- in Appendix.]

Ton-ti or Ton-ty (tɒn/'tē, tɒn'-'-, tɒN-tē'), Henry de. 1650-1704. French explorer, trader, and colonizer of the Mississippi River valley.

ton-tine (tɒn/'tēn', tɒN-tēn') n. 1. An investment plan in which participants buy shares in a common fund and receive an annuity that increases every time a participant dies, with the entire fund going to the final survivor or to those who survive after a specified time. 2. Each member's share of a tontine. 3. The subscribers to a tontine. [French, after Lorenzo Tonti (1635-1690?), Italian-born French banker.]

Ton-ty (tɒn/'tē, tɒn'-'-, tɒN-tē'), Henry de. See Henry de Tonti.

to-nus (tō/'nəs) n. pl. to-nus-es. Body or muscular tone; tonicity. [Latin, tone. See TONE.]

ton-y also ton-ey (tō/'nē) adj. ton-i-er, ton-i-est. Informal. Marked by an expensive, luxurious, or exclusive manner or quality. [From TONE.]

To-ny (tō/'nē) n. pl. To-nys. An annual award for outstanding achievement in the theater. [After Tony, nickname of Antoinette PERRY.]

too (tōō) adv. 1. In addition; also: He's coming along too. See Synonyms at also. 2. More than enough; excessively: She worries too much. 3. To a regrettable degree: My error was all too apparent. 4. Very; extremely; immensely: He's only too willing to be of service. 5. Informal. Indeed; so: You will too do it! [Middle English to, from Old English tō, to, furthermore. See de- in Appendix.]

USAGE NOTE: A number of commentators have objected to the use of not too as an equivalent of “not very,” as in She was not too pleased with the results. In many contexts this construction is entirely idiomatic and should pass without notice: It wasn't too long ago that deregulation was being hailed as the savior of the savings and loan industry. It was not too bright of them to build in an area where rock slides occur. In these cases not too adds a note of ironic understatement. • Negation of too by can't may sometimes lead to ambiguities, as in You can't check your child's temperature too often, which may mean either that the temperature should be checked only occasionally or that it should be checked as frequently as possible. • Too meaning “in addition” or “also” is sometimes used to introduce a sentence: There has been a cutback in federal subsidies. Too, rates have been increasing. This usage cannot be called incorrect, but some critics consider it awkward.

took (tōök) v. Past tense of take.

Tooke (tōök), (John) Horne. 1736-1812. British philologist and radical politician who petitioned Parliament to reform the government of the American colonies.

tool (tōol) n. 1. A device, such as a saw, used to perform or facilitate manual or mechanical work. 2. a. A machine, such as a lathe, used to cut and shape machine parts or other objects. b. The cutting part of such a machine. 3. Something regarded as necessary to the carrying out of one's occupation or profession: Words are the tools of our trade. 4. Something used in the performance of an operation; an instrument: "Modern democracies have the fiscal and monetary tools... to end chronic slumps and galloping inflations" (Paul A. Samuelson). 5. Vulgar Slang. A penis. 6. A person used to carry out the designs of another; a dupe. 7. a. A bookbinder's hand stamp. b. A design impressed on a book cover by such a stamp. 8. Computer Science. An application program in some computer systems. — v. tooled, tool-ing, tools. — v. tr. 1. To form, work, or decorate with a tool. 2. To ornament (a book cover) with a bookbinder's tool. 3. Slang. To drive (a vehicle): tooled the car at 80 miles an hour. — v. intr. 1. To work with a tool. 2. Slang. To drive or ride in a vehicle: tooled up and down the roads. — phrasal verb. tool up. To provide an industry or a factory with machinery and tools suitable for a particular job. [Middle English, from Old English tōl, possibly from Old Norse.]

SYNONYMS: tool, instrument, implement, utensil, appliance. These nouns refer to devices used in the performance of work. Tool applies broadly to a device that facilitates work; specifically it denotes a small manually operated device, such as a file, of the kind employed by carpenters and plumbers: a box full of tools for repair jobs. Instrument refers especially to one of the relatively small precision tools, such as a stethoscope or supersonic drill, used by trained professionals such as doctors and dentists: had to sterilize all the instruments. Implement is the preferred term for tools used in agriculture and certain building trades: rakes, hoes, and other implements. Utensil often refers to an implement, such as a pot or spoon, used in doing household work: cooking utensils laid out on the table. Appliance most frequently denotes a power-driven device, such as a toaster or refrigerator, that performs a specific function: a store selling modern appliances.

tool·box (tōol'böks') n. A case for carrying or storing tools.

tool·ing (tōol'liŋ) n. 1. Work or ornamentation done with tools, especially stamped or gilded designs on leather. 2. The process of providing a factory with machinery in preparation for production.

tool·mak·er (tōol'mā'kær) n. A skilled machinist trained in making and repairing tools and parts.

Toombs (tōōmz), Robert Augustus. 1810-1885. American politician. A U.S. representative (1845-1853) and senator (1853-1861) from Georgia, he was an outspoken supporter of the states' right to permit slavery. He served as Confederate secretary of state (1861).

toon (tōōn) n. 1. A tall tree (Cedrela toona) of tropical Asia and Australia, having dark red, aromatic wood. 2. The wood of this tree. [Hindi tūn, from Sanskrit tunnaḥ.]

toot (tōōt) v. toot-ed, toot-ing, toots. — v. intr. 1. To sound a horn or whistle in short blasts. 2. To make the sound of a horn or whistle blown in short blasts or a sound resembling it. 3. Slang. To snort cocaine. — v. tr. 1. To blow or sound (a horn or whistle). 2. To sound (a blast, for example) on a horn or whistle. 3. Slang. To snort (cocaine). — n. 1. A blast, as of a horn. 2. Slang. A drinking binge. 3. Slang. Cocaine, especially a small amount snorted at one time. [Ultimately of imitative origin.] —toot'er n.

tooth (tōōth) n. pl. teeth (tēth). 1. a. One of a set of hard, bonelike structures rooted in sockets in the jaws of vertebrates, typically composed of a core of soft pulp surrounded by a layer of hard dentin that is coated with cement or enamel at the crown and used for biting or chewing food or as a means of attack or defense. b. A similar structure in invertebrates, such as one of the pointed denticles or ridges on the exoskeleton of an arthropod or the shell of a mollusk. 2. A projecting part resembling a tooth in shape or function, as on a comb, gear, or saw. 3. A small, notched projection along a margin, especially of a leaf. Also called *dent*². 4. A rough surface, as of paper or metal. 5. a. Something that injures or destroys with force. Often used in the plural: the teeth of the blizzard. b. teeth. Effective means of enforcement; muscle: “This... puts real teeth into something where there has been only lip service” (Ellen Convisser). 6. Taste or appetite: She always had a sweet tooth. — v. toothed, tooth-ing, tooths (tōōth, tōōth). — v. tr. 1. To furnish (a tool, for example) with teeth. 2. To make a jagged edge on. — v. intr. To become interlocked; mesh. —idioms. get (one's) teeth into (or sink (one's) teeth into). Slang. To be actively involved in; get a firm grasp of. show (one's) teeth (or bare (one's) teeth). To express a readiness to fight; threaten defiantly. to the teeth. Lacking nothing; completely: armed to the teeth; dressed to the teeth. [Middle English, from Old English tōth. See dent- in Appendix.]

WORD HISTORY: Eating, biting, teeth, and dentists are all related, as is well known, but the relationship goes further than one might think, that is, into the roots of the words eat, tooth, and dentist. The Proto-Indo-European root ·ed-, meaning “to eat” and the source of our word eat, originally meant “to bite.” A participial form of ·ed- in this sense was ·dent-, “biting,” which came to mean “tooth.” Our word tooth comes from ·dont-, a form of ·dent-, with sound changes that resulted in the Germanic word ·tanthuz. This word became Old English tōth and Modern English tooth. Meanwhile the Proto-Indo-European form ·dent- itself became in Latin dēns (stem dent-), “tooth,” from which is derived our word dentist. We find a descendant of another Proto-Indo-European form ·(o)dont- in the word orthodontist.

tooth-ache (tōōth'āk') n. An aching pain in or near a tooth.

toothache tree (tōōth'āk' trē) n. An aromatic North American shrub or tree (Zanthoxylum americanum) whose dried bark has medicinal uses. Also called Northern prickly ash tooth and nail (tōōth ənd nāl) adv. With every available resource; with unremitting effort: “Bureaucrats would correctly see this as a curb on their power and would fight tooth and nail against it” (George R. Packard).

tooth-brush (tōōth'brūsh') n. A brush used for cleaning teeth.

toothed (tōōtht, tōōthd) adj. Having teeth, especially of a certain number or type. Often used in combination: saw-toothed.

toothed whale (tōōtht hwāl) n. Any of various whales of the suborder Odontoceti, having numerous conical teeth.

tooth fairy (tōōth fâr'ē) n. A fairy supposed to leave money under a child's pillow in place of a baby tooth that has just fallen out.

tooth-less (tōōth'lis) adj. 1. Lacking teeth. 2. Lacking force; ineffectual. —tooth/less-ly adv. —tooth/less-ness n.

tooth-paste (tōōth'pāst') n. A paste for cleaning teeth.

tooth-pick (tōōth'pik') n. A small piece of wood or other material for removing food particles from between the teeth.

tooth-pow-der (tōōth'pou'dər) n. Powder for cleaning teeth.

tooth shell (tōōth shēl) n. Any of various burrowing marine mollusks of the class Scaphopoda, having a long, tapering, slightly curved tubular shell. Also called scaphopod, tusk shell.

tooth-some (tōōth'səm) adj. 1. Delicious; luscious: a toothsome pie. See Synonyms at delicious. 2. Pleasant; attractive: a toothsome offer. 3. Sexually attractive or exciting. —tooth/some-ly adv. —tooth/some-ness n.

tooth-wort (tōōth'wûrt', -wôrt') n. 1. Any of several eastern North American plants of the genus Cardamine, such as the crinkleroot, having fleshy rhizomes and palmately divided leaves. 2. A parasitic European plant (Lathraea squamaria) having scaly cream-colored or pink stems and pinkish flowers. [From its tooth-shaped scales.]

tooth-y (tōō'thē) adj. tooth-i-er, tooth-i-est. Having or showing prominent teeth. —tooth/i-ly adv.

too-tle (tōōt'l) v. intr. toot-tled, toot-ting, toot-tles. 1. To toot softly and repeatedly, as on a flute. 2. Informal. To walk or drive in a leisurely manner; amble: spent the morning tootling around town. — n. The act or sound of toot-ing softly and repeatedly, as on a flute. —phrasal verb. tootle off. Informal.

To depart; go. [Frequentative of TOOT.]

toots (tōōts) n. Slang. Babe; sweetie. [Perhaps short for TOOTSIE.]

toot-sie (tōōt'sē) n. Slang. 1. Toots. 2. A girl or young woman. [Origin unknown.]

toot-sy (tōōt'sē) n. pl. toot-sies. Slang. A person's foot. [Alteration of footsy, from FOOT.]

top¹ (tōp) n. 1. The uppermost part, point, surface, or end. 2. The crown of the head: from top to toe. 3. The part of a plant, such as a rutabaga, that is above the ground. 4. Something, such as a lid or cap, that covers or forms an uppermost part. 5. The upper half of a two-piece garment, especially a sweater or knit shirt. 6. Nautical. A platform enclosing the head of each mast of a sailing ship, to which the topmast rigging is attached. 7. The highest degree, pitch, or point; the peak, acme, or zenith: "It had come at a time when he was not feeling at the top of his form" (Anthony Powell). 8. a. The highest position or rank: at the top of her profession. b. A person in this position. 9. Games. The highest card or cards in a suit or hand. 10. The best part. 11. The earliest part or beginning: She played the piece again, from the top. 12. Baseball. The first half of an inning. 13. Sports. a. A stroke that lands above the center of a ball, as in golf or tennis, giving it a forward spin. b. A forward spin on a ball resulting from such a stroke. — adj.

1. Situated at the top: the top shelf. 2. Of the highest degree, quality, or amount: in top form. 3. In a position of preeminence: the top historian in her department.

— v. topped, top-ping, tops. — v. tr. 1. To form, furnish with, or serve as a top. 2. To reach the top of. 3. To go over the top of. 4. To exceed or surpass.

5. To be at the head of: She topped her class. 6. To remove the top or uppermost part from; crop: topped the fruit trees. 7. Sports. a. To strike the upper part of (a ball), giving it forward spin. b. To make (a stroke) in this way. — v. intr. To make a finish, an end, or a conclusion. —phrasal verbs. top off.

1. To fill up (a container), especially when it is almost full to begin with. 2. To finish up. top out. 3. To put the framework for the top story on (a building). 4. To fill up (a ship, for example). 5. To cease rising: Interest rates topped out at 16 percent.

6. Informal. To give up one's career just as one becomes highly successful. —idioms. off the top of (one's) head. Informal. In an impromptu way: She recited the poem off the top of her head. on top. 2. At the highest point or peak.

3. In a dominant, controlling, or successful position. on top of. Informal. 4. In control of. 5. Fully informed about: a senator who is always on top of the issues.

6. In addition to; besides: On top of this, several other benefits are being offered.

7. Following closely on; coming immediately after: Hail came on top of a violent thunderstorm. on top of the world. Informal. In a position of great happiness or success.

over the top. 9. Surpassing a goal or quota. 10. Over the breast-work, as an attack in trench warfare: “a whole battalion, onto the beachhead, over the top” (Margaret Atwood). [Middle English, from Old English.]

top² (tɒp) n. A toy having one end tapered to a point, allowing it to be spun, as by suddenly pulling a string wound around it. [Middle English, from Old English.]

top- pref. Variant of topo-.

to·paz (tō'pāz') n. 1. a. A colorless, blue, yellow, brown, or pink aluminum silicate mineral, often found in association with granitic rocks and valued as a gemstone, especially in the brown and pink varieties. b. Any of various yellow gemstones, especially a yellow variety of sapphire or corundum. 2. A light yellow variety of quartz. 3. Either of two South American hummingbirds (Topaza pyra or T. pella) having colorful plumage. [Middle English topace, from Old French, from Latin topazus, from Greek topazos.]

top banana (tɒp bæ-nān'ə) n. Slang. 1. The main comic in a burlesque show. 2. The head person, as of a group or project. [So called from the presentation of a banana to the comedian who has the punch line in a three-man burlesque routine.]

top boot (tɒp bōt) n. A high boot usually having its upper part made of a different material or with leather of a contrasting color or texture.

top-coat (tɒp'kōt') n. A lightweight overcoat.

top dog (tɒp dɔg) n. Slang. One considered to have the dominant position or highest authority, especially as a result of a competitive victory. —top'-dog' (tɒp'dɔg', -dɔg') adj.

top-drawer (tɒp'drɔr') adj. Of the highest importance, rank, privilege, or merit.

top-dress (tɒp'drɛs') v. tr. top--dressed, top--dress-ing, top--dress-es.

1. To cover (a road surface) with loose material that is not worked in. 2. To cover (farmland) with fertilizer.

top dressing (tɒp drɛs'ɪŋ) n. 1. A covering of loose gravel on a road. 2. A covering of manure or other fertilizer spread on soil without being plowed under.

tope¹ (tōp) v. tr. intr. toped, top-ing, topes. To drink (liquor) habitually and excessively or engage in such drinking. [Possibly from obsolete tope, interjection used in proposing a toast.]

tope² (tōp) n. A small, rough-skinned, widely distributed shark (Galeorhinus galeus) having an elongated conical snout. [Origin unknown.]

tope³ (tōp) n. A dome-shaped monument, used to house Buddhist relics or to commemorate significant facts of Buddhism or Jainism. Also called stupa [Hindi top, probably from Prakrit thūpo, from Sanskrit stūpaḥ, tuft of hair, crown of the head, stupa.]

- to·pec·to·my (tə-pĕk'tə-mē) n. pl. to·pec·to·mies. Surgical removal of specific areas of the frontal lobe of the cerebral cortex as a treatment of certain mental disorders. [TOP(O)- + -ECTOMY.]
- to·pee (tō-pē', tō'pē) n. Variant of topi¹.
- To·pe·ka (tə-pē'kə) The capital of Kansas, in the northeast part of the state west of Kansas City. Founded in 1854, it became capital when Kansas was admitted to the Union in 1861. Population, 119,883.
- top·er (tō'pər) n. A chronic drinker.
- top·flight (tōp'flīt') adj. Informal. First-rate; excellent.
- top·gal·lant (tə-gāl'ənt, tōp-) adj. 1. Nautical. Of, relating to, or being the mast above the topmast, its sails, or its rigging. 2. Raised above adjacent parts or structures.
- top gun (tōp gŭn) n. Slang. One who performs at the pinnacle of professional ability; one who is the best at what one does.
- top·ham·per also top ham·per (tōp'hām'pər) n. 1. Nautical. Weight or materials, such as rigging, cables, and spars stored either aloft or on the upper decks. 2. Cumbersome, unnecessary matter.
- top hat (tōp hăt) n. A man's hat having a narrow brim and a tall cylindrical crown, usually made of silk. Also called high hat
- top·heav·y (tōp'hĕv'ē) adj. top·heav·i·er, top·heav·i·est. 1. Likely to topple because of an uneven distribution of weight, with the majority being at the top. 2. Accounting. Overcapitalized. 3. Having a disproportionately large number of administrators. —top'-heav'i-ness n.
- To·phet (tō'fĕt', -fīt) n. 1. Judaism. The underworld where wicked souls suffer torment after death. 2. An extremely unpleasant or painful condition or place. [Middle English, from Hebrew tōpet, a place where children were burned.]
- top·hole (tōp'hōl') adj. Chiefly British. First-rate; excellent.
- top·phus (tō'fəs) n. pl. to·phi (-fi). 1. Pathology. A deposit of urates in the skin and tissue around a joint or in the external ear, occurring in gout. Also called chalkstone 2. A concretion of mineral salts and organic matter deposited on the surface of the teeth. [Latin tōphus, tufa.]
- to·pi¹ also to·pee (tō-pē', tō'pē) n. pl. to·pis also to·pees. A pith helmet worn for protection against sun and heat. [Hindi ṭopī, hat.]
- to·pi² (tō'pē) n. pl. topi or to·pis. A sassaby (Damaliscus lunatus subsp. topi) of eastern Africa having a glossy dark brown coat. [Probably of Swahili origin.]
- to·pi·ar·y (tō'pē-ĕr'ē) adj. Of or characterized by the clipping or trimming of live shrubs or trees into decorative shapes, as of animals. — n. pl. to·pi·ar·ies. 1. Topiary work or art. 2. A topiary garden. [Latin topiārius, from topia, ornamental gardening, from Greek topia, pl. of topion, field diminutive of topos, place.]

top·ic (tɒp'ɪk) n. 1. The subject of a speech, an essay, a thesis, or a discourse.

2. A subject of discussion or conversation. 3. A subdivision of a theme, a thesis, or an outline. See Synonyms at subject. [Obsolete topic, rhetorical argument, sing. of Topics, title of a work by Aristotle, from Latin Topica, from Greek Topika, commonplaces, from neuter pl. of topikos, of a place, from topos, place.]

top·i·cal (tɒp'i-kəl) adj. 1. Of or belonging to a particular location or place; local. 2. Currently of interest; contemporary. 3. Medicine. Of or applied to an isolated or localized area of the body. 4. Of, arranged by, or relating to a particular topic or topics. [From Greek topikos, from topos, place.] —top'i-cal/i-ty (-kəl'i-tē) n. —top'i-cal·ly adv.

topic sentence (tɒp'ɪk sɛn'təns) n. The sentence within a paragraph or discourse that states the main thought, often placed at the beginning.

top·knot (tɒp'nɒt') n. 1. A crest or knot of hair or feathers on the crown of the head. 2. A decorative ribbon or bow worn as a headdress.

top·less (tɒp'lis) adj. 1. Having no top: a collection of topless jars. 2. So high as to appear to extend out of sight: the topless Alps. 3. Of, relating to, or wearing a garment that does not cover the breasts.

top·lev·el (tɒp'lɛv'əl) adj. 1. Of or relating to people of the highest office or rank. 2. Of or relating to the highest office or rank: a top-level job.

top·loft·y (tɒp'lɒf'tē, -lɒf'-) adj. top·loft·i·er, top·loft·i·est. Haughty; pretentious. —top'loft'i-ness n.

top·mast (tɒp'mæst, -mæst') n. Nautical. The mast below the topgallant mast in a square-rigged ship and highest in a fore-and-aft-rigged ship.

top·min·now (tɒp'mɪn'ō) n. 1. Any of several small New World freshwater fishes of the genus Fundulus, related to the killifishes. 2. Any of various small viviparous New World fishes of the family Poeciliidae, of fresh or brackish waters. [So called because it swims near the surface of the water.]

top·most (tɒp'mɒst') adj. Highest; uppermost.

top·notch (tɒp'nɒtʃ') adj. Informal. First-rate; excellent.

topo- or top- pref. Place; region: toponymy. [Greek, from topos, place.]

topog. abbr. topography to·pog·ra·pher (tə-pɒg'rə-fər) n. 1. One who is skilled in topography. 2. One who describes and maps the surface features of geographic regions.

to·pog·ra·phy (tə-pɒg'rə-fē) n. pl. to·pog·ra·phies. Abbr. topog.

1. Detailed, precise description of a place or region. 2. Graphic representation of the surface features of a place or region on a map, indicating their relative positions and elevations. 3. A description or an analysis of a structured entity, showing the relations among its components: In the topography of the economy, several depressed areas are revealed. 4. a. The surface features of a place or region.

b. The surface features of an object: The topography of a crystal. 5. The surveying of the features of a place or region. 6. The study or description of an anatomical region or part. —top'o-graph' (tɒp'ə-gräf') n. —top'o-graph'ic (-gräf'ik), top'o-graph'i-cal (-i-kəl) adj. —top'o-graph'i-cal-ly adv.

to·poi (tō'poi) n. Plural of topos.

to·pol·o·gy (tə-pōl'ə-jē) n. pl. to·pol·o·gies. 1. Topographic study of a given place, especially the history of a region as indicated by its topography.

2. Medicine. The anatomical structure of a specific area or part of the body.

3. Mathematics. The study of the properties of geometric figures or solids that are not normally affected by changes in size or shape. —top'o-log'ic (tɒp'ə-lɔj'ik), top'o-log'i-cal (-i-kəl) adj. —top'o-log'i-cal-ly adv. —to·pol'o·gist n.

top·o·nym (tɒp'ə-nim') n. 1. A place name. 2. A name derived from a place or region. [Back-formation from TOPONYMY.] —top'o·nym'ic, top'o·nym'i-cal adj.

to·pon·y·my (tə-pōn'ə-mē) n. pl. to·pon·y·mies. 1. a. The place names of a region or language. b. The study of such place names. 2. Anatomy. Nomenclature with respect to a region of the body rather than to organs or structures.

to·pos (tō'pōs, -pōs) n. pl. to·poi (-poi). A traditional theme or motif; a literary convention. [Greek, short for (koinos) topos, (common)place.]

top·o·type (tɒp'ə-tīp') n. Biology. A specimen of an organism taken from the type locality of that species.

top·per (tɒp'ər) n. 1. One that removes tops or puts tops on. 2. a. One that is exceedingly or surpassingly good of its kind. b. Slang. Something, such as a witticism, that surpasses all that has gone before. 3. A woman's short, lightweight coat. 4. Slang. A top hat.

top·ping (tɒp'ɪŋ) n. 1. A sauce, frosting, or garnish for food. 2. A part or layer that forms the top. 3. toppings. The cropped parts of plants or trees after pruning. — adj. 1. Highest in rank or eminence. 2. Chiefly British. First-rate; excellent.

top·ple (tɒp'əl) v. top·pled, top·pling, top·ples. — v. tr. To push or throw over; overturn or overthrow. See Synonyms at overthrow. — v. intr. 1. To totter and fall. 2. To lean over as if about to fall. [Frequentative of TOP¹.]

top quark (tɒp kwôrk) n. Abbr. t A hypothetical quark with a charge of +3 and a mass more than 100,000 times that of the electron. Also called truth quark top round (tɒp round) n. A cut of meat, such as a steak or roast, taken from the inner section of a round of beef.

tops (tɒps) adj. Slang. First-rate; excellent: Her new novel is tops.

top·sail (tɒp'səl, -sāl') n. Nautical. 1. A square sail set above the lowest sail on the mast of a square-rigged ship. 2. A triangular or square sail set above the gaff of a lower sail on a fore-and-aft-rigged ship.

topsail schooner (tɒp'səl skōō'nər) n. Nautical. A schooner carrying two or more square topsails on its foremast.

top-se-cret (tɒp'sē'krīt) adj. Containing information, the unauthorized disclosure of which poses the gravest threat to national security.

top-side (tɒp'sīd') n. 1. Often topsides. Nautical. The surface of a ship's hull above the water line. 2. The highest position of authority. — adv. & adj.

1. Nautical. On or to the upper parts of a ship; on deck. 2. In a position of authority.

top-sid-er (tɒp'sī'der) n. One who is at the highest level of authority.

Top-Sid-er (tɒp'sī'der) A trademark used for a soft leather or canvas shoe with a rubber sole. This trademark often occurs in print in the plural: “Slightly beat-up Top-Siders complete the look” (New York Times). “[He] strides through his domain in designer jeans and Top-Siders” (Fortune).

top-soil (tɒp'soil') n. The upper part of the soil. — v. tr. top-soiled, top-soil-ing, top-soils. To remove the surface layer of soil from (land).

top-spin (tɒp'spɪn') n. Sports. Forward rotation imparted to a ball by a stroke, as in tennis.

top-stitch (tɒp'stɪtʃ') v. tr. top-stitched, top-stitch-ing, top-stitch-es. To sew a row of stitching close to the seam or edge of (a garment) on the outer side of the fabric.

top-sy-tur-vy (tɒp'sē-tûr'vē) adv. 1. With the top downward and the bottom up; upside-down. 2. In a state of utter disorder or confusion: “turning our ordered life topsy-turvy” (Anne Tyler). — adj. top-sy-tur-vi-er, top-sy-tur-vi-est. Being in a confused or disordered condition. — n. pl. top-sy-tur-vies. The quality, the condition, or an instance of confusion or chaos.

[Probably from TOP¹ + obsolete terve, to overturn (from Middle English terven).]

—top'sy-tur'vi-ly adv. —top'sy-tur'vi-ness n.

toque (tɒk) n. 1. A woman's small, brimless, close-fitting hat. 2. A plumed velvet cap with a full crown and small rolled brim, worn in 16th-century France.

[French, from Spanish toca, perhaps from Arabic tâqa*, from Old Persian tâq, veil, shawl.]

tor (tôr) n. 1. A high rock or pile of rocks on the top of a hill. 2. A rocky peak or hill. [Middle English, from Old English torr, probably of Celtic origin.]

To-rah also to-rah (tôr'ə, tōr'ə, toir'ə, tô-rä') n. Judaism. 1. The entire body of religious law and learning including both sacred literature and oral tradition.

2. A scroll of parchment containing the first five books of the Hebrew Scriptures, used in a synagogue during services. 3. The first five books of the Hebrew Scriptures. See Table at Bible. [Hebrew tôrâ, law, instruction.]

Tor-bay (tôr-bā', tôr'bā') A borough of southwest England east-northeast of Plymouth. It is in a popular seaside resort area. Population, 112,400.

tor-bern-ite (tôr'bər-nīt') n. A green radioactive mineral that is a hydrous crystalline phosphate of uranium and copper. [After Torbern Olof Bergman (1735-1784), Swedish chemist.]

torch (tôrçh) n. 1. a. A portable light produced by the flame of a stick of resinous wood or of a flammable material wound about the end of a stick of wood; a flambeau. b. Chiefly British. A flashlight. 2. Something that serves to illuminate, enlighten, or guide. 3. Slang. An arsonist. 4. A portable apparatus that produces a very hot flame by the combustion of gases, used in welding and construction. — v. tr. torched, torch-ing, torch-es. Slang. To cause to burn or undergo combustion, especially with extraordinary rapidity, force, or thoroughness. [Middle English torche, from Old French, from Vulgar Latin torca*, alteration of Latin torqua, variant of torquēs, torque, from Latin torquēre, to twist. See terk^w- in Appendix.]

torch-bear-er (tôrçh'bâr'ər) n. 1. One that carries a torch. 2. One, such as the leader of a government, who imparts knowledge, truth, or inspiration to others.

tor-chère (tôr-shâr') also tor-chier or tor-chiere (-chîr') n. A usually tall floor lamp with a bowl-shaped part that diffuses the light or directs it upward. [French, from torche, torch. See TORCH.]

tor-chon lace (tôr'shôn' lās) n. Lace made of coarse linen or cotton thread twisted in simple geometric patterns. [French torchon, duster, from Old French, from torche, twisted straw, torch. See TORCH.]

torch song (tôrçh sông) n. Music. A sentimental love song, typically one in which the singer laments a lost love. —torch singer n.

torch-wood (tôrçh'woöd') n. 1. Any of several tropical American trees of the genus Amyris, especially A. balsamifera, having resinous wood that burns with a torchlike flame. 2. The wood of any of these trees.

tore¹ (tôr, tōr) v. Past tense of tear¹.

tore² (tôr, tōr) n. Mathematics. See torus (n., sense 4). [French, from Latin torus.]

tor-e-a-dor (tôr'ē-ə-dôr') n. A matador; a bullfighter. [Spanish, from torear, to fight bulls, from toro, bull, from Latin taurus. See tauro- in Appendix.]

to-re-ro (tə-râr'ō, tō-rĕ'rō) n. pl. to-re-ros. A matador or one of the supporting team. [Spanish, from Late Latin taurārius, from Latin taurus, bull. See tauro- in Appendix.]

to-reu-tics (tə-rōō'tiks) n. (used with a sing. verb). The art of working metal or other materials by the use of embossing and chasing to form minute detailed reliefs. [From Greek toreutikos, of metal work, from toreutos, worked in relief, from toreuein, to work in relief, from toreus, a boring tool. See terə⁻¹ in Appendix.] —to-reu'tic adj.

to-ri (tôr'ī, tōr'ī) n. Plural of torus.

tor-ic (tôr'ik, tōr'-) adj. Of, relating to, or shaped like a torus or part of a torus.

to·ri·i (tôr'ē-ē', tōr'-) n. pl. torii. The gateway of a Shinto temple, consisting of two uprights supporting a concave crosspiece with projecting ends and a straight crosspiece beneath it. [Japanese : tori, bird + i- (from iru, to dwell).]

To·ri·no (tô-rē'nô) See Turin.

tor·ment (tôr'měnt') n. 1. Great physical pain or mental anguish. 2. A source of harassment, annoyance, or pain. 3. The torture inflicted on prisoners under interrogation. — v. tr. tor·ment·ed, tor·ment·ing, tor·ments (tôr-měnt', tôr'měnt'). 1. To cause to undergo great physical pain or mental anguish. See Synonyms at afflict. 2. To agitate or upset greatly. 3. To annoy, pester, or harass. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin tormentum (from torquēre, to twist). See terk^w- in Appendix.] —tor·ment·ing·ly adv.

tor·men·til (tôr'mən-tīl') n. A perennial Eurasian plant (Potentilla erecta) having yellow flowers and astringent roots. [Middle English tormentille, from Medieval Latin tormentilla, feminine diminutive of Latin tormentum, torment (from its use as an analgesic). See TORMENT.]

tor·men·tor also tor·ment·er (tôr-měn'tər, tôr'měn'-) n. 1. One that torments. 2. A hanging at each side of a stage directly behind the proscenium that serves to block the wing area and sidelights from the audience. 3. A sound-absorbent screen used on a movie set, used to prevent echo.

torn (tôrn, tōrn) v. Past participle of tear¹.

tor·na·do (tôr-nā'dō) n. pl. tor·na·does or tor·na·dos. 1. A rotating column of air usually accompanied by a funnel-shaped downward extension of a cumulonimbus cloud and having a vortex several hundred yards in diameter whirling destructively at speeds of up to 500 miles (800 kilometers) per hour. 2. A violent thunderstorm in western Africa or nearby Atlantic waters. 3. A whirlwind or hurricane. [Alteration (perhaps influenced by Spanish tornar, to turn), of Spanish tronada, thunderstorm, from tronar, to thunder, from Latin tonāre. See (s)tenə- in Appendix.] —tor·na'dic (-nā'dīk, -nād'īk) adj.

Tor·ne (tôr'nə) also Tor·ni·o (tôr'nē-ō') A river of northern Sweden rising near the Norwegian border in Lake Torne and flowing about 402 km (250 mi) generally southeast to the Gulf of Bothnia. It forms the Swedish-Finnish border in its lower course.

tor·nil·lo (tôr-nīl'ō, -nē'ō) n. pl. tor·nil·los. See screw bean. [American Spanish, from Spanish, small lathe, screw, diminutive of torno, lathe, from Latin tornus. See TURN.]

Tor·ni·o (tôr'nē-ō') See Torne.

to·roid (tôr'oid', tōr'-) n. 1. Mathematics. a. A surface generated by a closed curve rotating about, but not intersecting or containing, an axis in its own plane. b. A solid having such a surface. 2. A body having the shape of a toroid. [TOR(US) + -OID.] —to·roi'dal (tô-roid'l) adj.

To-ron-to (tə-rŏn'tō) The capital and largest city of Ontario, Canada, in the southern part of the province on Lake Ontario. Originally a French trading post, it was founded as York by the British in 1793 and renamed as Toronto in 1834. Toronto is an important Great Lakes port and an industrial center. Population, 599,217.

to-rose (tôr'ōs', tōr'-) adj. Cylindrical and having ridges or swellings. [Latin torōsus, from torus, knot, bulge.]

tor-pe-do (tôr-pē'dō) n. pl. tor-pe-does. 1. A cigar-shaped, self-propelled underwater projectile launched from a submarine, an aircraft, or a ship and designed to detonate on contact with or in the vicinity of a target. 2. Any of various submarine explosive devices, especially a submarine mine. 3. A small explosive placed on a railroad track that is fired by the weight of the train to sound a warning of an approaching hazard. 4. An explosive fired in an oil or gas well to begin or increase the flow. 5. A small firework consisting of some gravel wrapped in tissue paper with a percussion cap that explodes when thrown against a hard surface. 6. See electric ray. 7. Slang. A professional assassin or thug. 8. Chiefly New Jersey. See submarine (n., sense 2). See Regional note at submarine. — v. tr. tor-pe-does, tor-pe-do-ing, tor-pe-does. 1. To attack, strike, or sink with a torpedo. 2. To destroy decisively; wreck: torpedo efforts at reform. [Latin torpēdō, numbness; electric ray, crampfish, from torpēre, to be stiff. See ster¹ in Appendix.]

torpedo boat (tôr-pē'dō bōt) n. A small, fast, thinly plated warship equipped for firing torpedoes.

tor-pe-do-boat destroyer (tôr-pē'dō-bōt' dī-stroi'ər) n. A large, heavily armed torpedo boat used in combat especially against other torpedo boats.

torpedo tube (tôr-pē'dō tōōb) n. A tube in the hull of a submarine or another naval vessel through which torpedoes are launched.

tor-pid (tôr'pid) adj. 1. Deprived of the power of motion or feeling; benumbed. 2. Dormant; hibernating. 3. Lethargic; apathetic. See Synonyms at inactive. [Latin torpidus, from torpēre, to be stiff. See ster¹ in Appendix.] —tor'pid-ly adv.

tor-pid-i-ty (tôr-pīd'ī-tē) n. The quality or state of being torpid. See Synonyms at lethargy.

tor-por (tôr'pər) n. 1. A state of mental or physical inactivity or insensibility. 2. Lethargy; apathy. See Synonyms at lethargy. 3. The dormant, inactive state of a hibernating or estivating animal. [Latin, from torpēre, to be stiff. See ster¹ in Appendix.] —tor'po-rif'ic (-pə-rīf'ik) adj.

tor-quate (tôr'kwāt') adj. Zoology. Having a ringlike or collarlike band or marking about the neck. [Latin torquātus, from torquēs, collar. See TORQUE².]

torque¹ (tôrk) n. 1. The moment of a force; the measure of a force's tendency to produce torsion and rotation about an axis, equal to the vector product of the radius vector from the axis of rotation to the point of application of the force.

2. A turning or twisting force. — v. tr. torqued, torqu-ing, torques. To impart torque to. [From Latin torquēre, to twist. See terk^w- in Appendix.]

—torqu'er n. —torque'y adj.

torque² (tôrk) n. A collar, a necklace, or an armband made of a strip of twisted metal, worn by the ancient Gauls, Germans, and Britons. [French, from Old French, from Latin torquēs, from torquēre, to twist. See terk^w- in Appendix.]

torque converter (tôrk kən-vûr'tər) n. A mechanical or hydraulic device for changing the ratio of torque to speed between the input and output shafts of a mechanism.

Tor-que-ma-da (tôr'kə-mă'də, tôr'kě-mă'thä), Tomás de. 1420-1498. Spanish Dominican monk who was appointed grand inquisitor by Pope Innocent VIII (1487). Under his authority, thousands of Jews, suspected witches, and others were killed or tortured during the Spanish Inquisition.

tor-ques (tôr'kwēz') n. Zoology. A band of feathers, hair, or coloration around the neck. [Latin torquēs, collar. See TORQUE².]

torr (tôr) n. pl. torr. A unit of pressure that is equal to approximately 1.316×10^{-3} atmosphere or 1,333 pascals. [After Evangelista TORRICELLI.]

Tor-rance (tôr'əns, tōr'-) A city of southern California south of Los Angeles. Founded c. 1912, it is a manufacturing center. Population, 133,107.

Tor-re An-nun-zi-a-ta (tôr'ā ə-nōon'sē-ă'tə, tôr'rě ä-nōon'tsē-ă'tä) A city of southern Italy on the Bay of Naples. Founded in the 14th century, the city was destroyed by an eruption of Vesuvius in 1631. It is now a port and seaside resort. Population, 57,097.

Torre de Cer-re-do (tôr'ā də sə-rā'dō, thě sě-rě'thō) A mountain, 2,649.8 m (8,688 ft) high, of the Cantabrian Mountains in northwest Spain. It is the highest elevation in the range.

Torre del Gre-co (tôr'ā dəl grěk'ō) A city of southern Italy on the Bay of Naples near Mount Vesuvius. It is a fishing port and tourist resort. Population, 102,890.

Tor-rens (tôr'ənz, tōr'-) A salt lake of south-central Australia north-northwest of Adelaide.

tor-rent (tôr'ənt, tōr'-) n. 1. A turbulent, swift-flowing stream. 2. A heavy downpour; a deluge. 3. A heavy, uncontrolled outpouring: a torrent of insults; torrents of mail. [Latin torrens, torrent- from present participle of torrēre, to burn. See ters- in Appendix.]

Tor-ren-te (tô-rěn'tě) A city of eastern Spain southwest of Valencia. It is a truck-farming center. Population, 55,028.

tor-ren-tial (tô-rěn'shəl, tə-) adj. 1. Resembling, flowing in, or forming torrents: torrential mountain streams; a torrential downpour. 2. Resulting from the action of fast-flowing streams: torrential erosion. 3. Flowing or surging abundantly; wild: torrential applause. —tor·ren'tial·ly adv.

Tor-re-ón (tôr'ē-ōn', -rē-ōn') A city of northern Mexico west of Monterrey. Founded in 1893, it is an agricultural center. Population, 328,086.

Tor-res Strait (tôr'is strāt) A strait between New Guinea and Cape York Peninsula of northeast Australia. It connects the Arafura Sea with the Coral Sea.

Tor-rey (tôr'ē, tōr'ē), John. 1796-1873. American botanist and chemist noted for his extensive study of North American flora.

Tor-reys Peak (tôr'ēz pēk, tōr'-) A mountain, 4,351.4 m (14,267 ft) high, in the Front Range of the Rocky Mountains in central Colorado.

Tor-ri-cel-li (tôr'ə-chěl'ē, tōr'ē-), Evangelista. 1608-1647. Italian mathematician and physicist who invented the mercury barometer.

tor-rid (tôr'īd, tōr'-) adj. tor-rid·er, tor-rid·est. 1. Parched with the heat of the sun; intensely hot. 2. Scorching; burning: the torrid noonday sun. 3. Passionate; ardent: a torrid love scene. 4. Hurried; rapid: set a torrid pace; torrid economic growth. [Latin torridus, from torrēre, to parch. See ters- in Appendix.] —tor-rid'i·ty, tor'rid·ness n. —tor'rid·ly adv.

Tor-rid Zone (tôr'īd zōn, tōr'-) The central latitude zone of the earth, between the Tropic of Cancer and the Tropic of Capricorn.

Tor-ri-jos Her-re-ra (tôr-rē'hôs ěr-rē'rā), Omar. 1929-1981. Panamanian military and political leader who seized power in a coup d'état and ruled as a virtual dictator (1968-1981).

Tor-ring-ton (tôr'īng-tən, tōr'-) A city of northwest Connecticut west of Hartford. The process of milk homogenization was invented here. Population, 33,687.

tor·sade (tôr-sād', -sād') n. A decorative trimming of twisted ribbon or cord, used especially on hats. [French, from tors, from Vulgar Latin torsus*, alteration of Latin tortus, past participle of torquēre, to twist. See terk^w- in Appendix.]

Tór-shavn (tôr'shouN') The capital of the Faeroe Islands, on southeast Straymoy Island. It is a major port and shipping center. Population, 14,443.

tor·si (tôr'sē) n. A plural of torso.

tor·sion (tôr'shən) n. 1. a. The act of twisting or turning. b. The condition of being twisted or turned. 2. The stress or deformation caused when one end of an object is twisted in one direction and the other end is held motionless or twisted in the opposite direction. [Middle English torcion, wringing pain in the bowels, from Old French torsion, from Late Latin torsiō, torsion-, a wringing pain, variant of Latin tortiō, from tortus, past participle of torquēre, to twist. See TOR·SADE.] —tor'sion·al adj. —tor'sion·al·ly adv.

torsion balance (tôr'shən bāl'əns) n. An instrument with which small forces, as of electricity or magnetism, are measured by means of the torsion they produce in a wire or slender rod.

torsion bar (tôr'shən bär) n. A part of an automotive suspension consisting of a bar that twists to maintain stability.

tor-so (tôr'sō) n. pl. tor-sos or tor-si (-sē). 1. The human body excluding the head and limbs; trunk. 2. A statue of the human body with the head and limbs omitted or removed. 3. A truncated or unfinished thing. [Italian, trunk of a statue, from Old Italian, stalk, stem, from Vulgar Latin tursus*, from Latin thyrsus, stalk. See THYRSUS.]

tort (tôrt) n. Law. Damage, injury, or a wrongful act done willfully, negligently, or in circumstances involving strict liability, but not involving breach of contract, for which a civil suit can be brought. [Middle English, injury, from Old French, from Medieval Latin tortum, from Latin, neuter past participle of torquere, to twist. See terk^w- in Appendix.]

torte (tôrt, tôr'tə) n. A rich cake made with many eggs and little flour and usually containing chopped nuts. [Probably German, perhaps from Italian torta, cake, tart, from Late Latin tôrta, a kind of bread.]

tor-tel-li-ni (tôr'tl-ē'nē) n. Small ring-shaped pasta stuffed usually with meat or cheese and served in soup or with a sauce. [Italian, diminutive of tortelli, a kind of pasta pl. diminutive of torta, cake, from Late Latin torta, a kind of bread.]

tor-ti-col-lis (tôr'tī-kōl'is) n. A contracted state of the neck muscles producing an unnatural position of the head. Also called wryneck [New Latin : Latin tortus, twisted, past participle of torquere, to twist; see terk^w- in Appendix + collum, neck; see k^wel¹ in Appendix.] —tor'ti-col'lar (-kōl'ər) adj.

tor-til-la (tôr-tē'yə) n. A thin disk of unleavened bread made from cornmeal or wheat flour, baked on a hot surface, and usually served topped with or rolled around beans, ground meat, or cheese. [American Spanish, diminutive of Spanish torta, cake, from Late Latin torta, a kind of bread.]

tor-toise (tôr'tis) n. 1. a. Any of various terrestrial turtles, especially one of the family Testudinidae, characteristically having thick clublike hind limbs and a high, rounded carapace. b. Chiefly British. A terrestrial or freshwater chelonian. 2. One that moves slowly; a laggard. [Alteration (influenced by PORPOISE), of Middle English tortuce, from Medieval Latin tortūca, alteration of Late Latin tartarūcha, feminine of tartarūchus, of the underworld. See TURTLE¹.]

tortoise beetle (tôr'tis bēt'l) n. Any of several small beetles of the subfamily Cassidinae, shaped somewhat like a tortoise and having soft, fleshy larvae that eat the leaves of trees.

tor-toise-shell also tor-toise-shell or tor-toise shell (tôr'tis-shēl') n.

1. a. The mottled, horny, translucent, brownish covering of the carapace of certain tortoises or turtles, especially the hawksbill, used to make combs, jewelry, and other articles. b. A synthetic imitation of natural tortoiseshell. 2. See hawksbill. 3. A domestic cat having fur with brown, black, and yellowish markings.

4. Any of several butterflies, chiefly of the genus Nymphalis, having wings with orange, black, and brown markings. —tor'toise-shell' adj.

Tor-to-la (tôr-tō'lə) An island of the West Indies east of Puerto Rico. It is the largest of the British Virgin Islands.

tor-tri-cid (tôr'trī-sīd) n. Any of various small, thick-bodied moths of the family Tortricidae, including the leaf rollers, having larvae that feed on the leaves of trees such as oak, pine, and larch. — adj. Of or belonging to the family Tortricidae. [From New Latin Tortricidae, family name, from Tortrix, Tortic-, type genus. See TORTRIX.]

tor-trix (tôr'trīks) n. A moth of the family Tortricidae; a tortricid. [New Latin Tortrix, genus name, from Latin tortus, past participle of torquēre, to twist. See TORTUOUS.]

Tor-tu-ga (tôr-tōō'gə) An island in the West Indies off northern Haiti. It was a pirate refuge in the 17th century.

tor-tu-os-i-ty (tôr'chōō-ōs'ī-tē) n. pl. tor-tu-os-i-ties. 1. The quality or condition of being tortuous; twistedness or crookedness. 2. A bent or twisted part, passage, or thing.

tor-tu-ous (tôr'chōō-əs) adj. 1. Having or marked by repeated turns or bends; winding or twisting: a tortuous road through the mountains. 2. Not straightforward; circuitous; devious: a tortuous plot; tortuous reasoning. 3. Highly involved; complex: tortuous legal procedures. [Middle English, from Anglo-Norman, from Latin tortuosus, from tortus, a twisting, from past participle of torquēre, to twist. See terk^w- in Appendix.] —tor'tu-ous-ly adv. —tor'tu-ous-ness n.

USAGE NOTE: Although tortuous and torturous both come from the Latin word torquēre, “to twist,” their primary meanings are distinct. Tortuous means “twisting” (a tortuous road) or by extension “complex” or “devious.” Torturous refers primarily to torture and the pain associated with it. However, torturous also can be used in the sense of “twisted” or “strained,” and tortured is an even stronger synonym: tortured reasoning.

tor-ture (tôr'chər) n. 1. a. Infliction of severe physical pain as a means of punishment or coercion. b. An instrument or a method for inflicting such pain.

2. Excruciating physical or mental pain; agony: the torture of waiting in suspense.

3. Something causing severe pain or anguish. — v. tr. tor-tured, tor-tur-ing, tor-tures. 1. To subject (a person or an animal) to torture. 2. To bring great physical or mental pain upon (another). See Synonyms at afflict. 3. To twist or turn abnormally; distort: torture a rule to make it fit a case. [Middle English, from Old French, from Late Latin tortūra, from Latin tortus, past participle of torquēre, to twist. See TORTUOUS.] —tor'tur-er n.

tor-tur-ous (tôr'chər-əs) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or causing torture. 2. Twisted; strained. See Usage Note at tortuous. —tor'tur-ous-ly adv.

tor-u-la (tôr'yə-lə, -ə-lə, tōr'-) n. pl. tor-u-lae (-lē', -lī') or tor-u-las. Any of a group of fungi similar to the yeasts but lacking asci, many of which ferment sugars and are commonly found in dairy products. Also called torula yeast [New Latin Torula, fungus genus, feminine diminutive of torus, bulge.]

To-ruń (tôr'ōn', -ōn'yə) A city of north-central Poland on the Vistula River northwest of Warsaw. Founded by the Teutonic Knights in 1231, it became part of the kingdom of Poland in 1454. Toruń was taken by Sweden (1703) and Prussia (1793 and 1815) before being returned to Poland in 1919. Population, 186,200.

to-rus (tôr'əs, tōr'-) n. pl. to-ri (tôr'ī, tōr'ī). 1. Architecture. A large convex molding, semicircular in cross section, located at the base of a classical column. 2. Anatomy. A bulging or rounded projection or swelling. 3. Botany. The receptacle of a flower. 4. Mathematics. A toroid generated by a circle; a surface having the shape of a doughnut. In this sense, also called *tore*² [Latin, bulge, knot, torus.]

To-ry (tôr'ē, tōr'ē) n. pl. To-ries. 1. a. A member of a British political party, founded in 1689, that was the opposition party to the Whigs and has been known as the Conservative Party since about 1832. b. A member of a Conservative Party, as in Canada. 2. An American who, during the period of the American Revolution, favored the British side. Also called Loyalist. 3. Often tory. A supporter of traditional political and social institutions against the forces of democratization or reform; a political conservative. [Irish Gaelic tóraidhe, robber, from Old Irish tōir, pursuit. See ret- in Appendix.] —To'ry adj. —To'ry-ism n.

Tos-ca-ni-ni (tōs'kə-nē'nē, tōs'kă-), Arturo. 1867-1957. Italian conductor of the Metropolitan Opera (1908-1921), the New York Philharmonic (1928-1936), and many other orchestras worldwide.

toss (tōs, tōs) v. tossed, toss-ing, toss-es. — v. tr. 1. To throw lightly or casually or with a sudden slight jerk: tossed the letter in the wastebasket. See Synonyms at throw. 2. To throw, fling, or heave continuously about; pitch to and fro: boats that were tossed by the storm. 3. To mix (a salad) lightly so as to cover with dressing. 4. To discuss informally; bandy: tossed the idea around. 5. To move or lift (the head) with a sudden motion: “tossing their heads in sprightly dance” (William Wordsworth). 6. To disturb or agitate; upset. 7. To throw to the ground: ducked the blow and tossed his opponent. 8. a. To flip (coins) in order to decide an issue. b. To flip coins with: I'll toss you to see who goes first. — v. intr. 1. To be thrown here and there; be flung to and fro. 2. To move about restlessly; twist and turn: toss in one's sleep. 3. To flip a coin to decide an issue. — n. 1. The act of tossing or the condition of being tossed. 2. The distance that something is or can be tossed. 3. An abrupt upward movement, as of the head. 4. A flipping of a coin to decide an issue: The home team won the toss and elected to kick off. —phrasal verbs. toss down. Informal. To drink in one draft by suddenly tilting. toss off. Informal. 2. To drink up in one draft. 3. To do or finish effortlessly or casually: “technicians who can toss off the Romantic blockbusters with stupendous speed and ease” (Annalyn Swan). [Middle English tossen, possibly of Scandinavian origin.] —toss'er n.

toss-pot (tôs'põt', töss'-) n. A drunkard.

toss-up (tôs'üp', töss'-) n. Informal. 1. An even chance or choice: It is a tossup whether we will win or lose. 2. The flipping of a coin to decide an issue.

tos-ta-da (tō-stä'də) or tos-ta-do (-dō) n. pl. tos-ta-das or tos-ta-dos. A tortilla or tortilla chip deep-fried until crisp. [American Spanish, from Spanish, feminine past participle of tostar, to toast, from Vulgar Latin tostāre*. See TOAST¹.]

tot¹ (tõt) n. 1. A small child. 2. A small amount, as of liquor. [Origin unknown.]

tot² (tõt) v. tr. tot-ted, tot-ting, tots. To total: totted up the bill.

to-tal (tōt'l) n. 1. Abbr. tot. An amount obtained by addition; a sum. 2. A whole quantity; an entirety. — adj. 1. Of, relating to, or constituting the whole; entire. See Synonyms at whole. 2. Complete; utter; absolute: total concentration; a total effort; a total fool. — v. to-taled or to-talled, to-tal-ing or to-tal-ling, to-tals or to-tals. — v. tr. 1. To determine the total of; add up. 2. To equal a total of; amount to. 3. Slang. To wreck completely; demolish: survived the crash but totaled the car. — v. intr. To add up; amount: It totals to three dollars. [Middle English, whole, from Old French, from Medieval Latin tōtālis, from Latin tōtus. See teutā- in Appendix.]

total eclipse (tōt'l ĭ-klĭps') n. An eclipse in which the entire surface of a celestial body is obscured.

to-tal-i-tar-i-an (tō-täl'ĭ-târ'ē-ən) adj. Of, relating to, being, or imposing a form of government in which the political authority exercises absolute and centralized control over all aspects of life, the individual is subordinated to the state, and opposing political and cultural expression is suppressed: “A totalitarian regime crushes all autonomous institutions in its drive to seize the human soul” (Arthur M. Schlesinger, Jr.). — n. A practitioner or supporter of such a government. [TOTAL + (AUTHOR)ITARIAN.] —to-tal'i-tar'i-an-ism n.

to-tal-i-ty (tō-täl'ĭ-tē) n. pl. to-tal-i-ties. 1. The quality or state of being total: appalled by the totality of the destruction. 2. An aggregate amount; a sum. 3. The phase of an eclipse when it is total.

to-tal-i-za-tor (tōt'l-ĭ-zā'tər) n. A machine for computing and showing totals, especially a pari-mutuel machine showing the total number and amounts of bets at a racetrack.

to-tal-ize (tōt'l-ĭz') v. tr. to-tal-ized, to-tal-iz-ing, to-tal-iz-es. To make or combine into a total. —to'tal-i-za'tion (-ĭ-zā'shən) n.

to-tal-iz-er (tōt'l-ĭ'zər) n. A pari-mutuel machine.

to-tal-ly (tōt'l-ē) adv. Entirely; wholly; completely.

tote¹ (tōt) v. tr. tot-ed, tot-ing, totes. Informal. 1. To haul; lug. 2. To have on one's person; pack: toting guns. — n. 1. Informal. A load; a burden. 2. A tote bag. [Perhaps (via Black West African English), of Bantu origin; akin to Kongo -tota, to pick up Swahili -tuta, to pile up, carry.] —tot/a-ble adj. —tot'er n.

tote² (tōt) v. tr. tot-ed, tot-ing, totes. Informal. 1. To determine the total of; add up. 2. To sum up; summarize.

tote³ (tōt) n. Informal. A pari-mutuel machine. [Short for TOTALIZATOR.]

tote bag (tōt bæg) n. A large handbag or shopping bag.

tote board (tōt bōrd) n. A large, usually electrically operated board that displays changing numerical information, such as betting payoffs or voting results.

to-tem (tō'təm) n. 1. a. An animal, a plant, or a natural object serving among certain tribal or traditional peoples as the emblem of a clan or family and sometimes revered as its founder, ancestor, or guardian. b. A representation of such an object. c. A social group having a common affiliation to such an object. 2. A venerated emblem or symbol: "grew up with the totems and taboos typical of an Irish Catholic kid in Boston" (Connie Paige). [Ojibwa nindoodem, my totem.]

—to-tem'ic (-tēm'ik) adj.

to-tem-ism (tō'tə-mīz'əm) n. 1. A belief in totems or in kinship through common affiliation to a totem. 2. A social system based on affiliations to totems.

—to'tem-ist n. —to'tem-is'tic adj.

totem pole (tō'təm pōl) n. 1. A post carved and painted with a series of totemic symbols and erected before a dwelling, as among certain Native American peoples of the northwest coast of North America. 2. Slang. A hierarchy: low on the totem pole.

toth-er or t'oth-er (tūth'ər) pron. & adj. Informal. The other. [From Middle English the tother, alteration of thet other, that other : thet, the (from Old English thæt); see THAT + other, other; see OTHER.]

to-ti-pal-mate (tō'tī-pāl'māt') adj. Having webbing that connects each of the four anterior toes, as in water birds such as pelicans and gannets. [Latin tōtus, whole; see TOTAL + PALMATE.] —to'ti-pal-ma'tion n.

to-tip-o-ten-cy (tō-tīp'ə-tən-sē, tō'tī-pōt'n-sē) also to-tip-o-tence (tō-tīp'ə-təns, tō'tī-pōt'ns) n. pl. to-tip-o-ten-cies also to-tip-o-ten-ces. The ability of a cell, such as an egg, to give rise to unlike cells and thus to develop into or generate a new organism or part. [Latin tōtus, whole; see TOTAL + POTENCY.]

—to-tip'o-tent adj.

tot-ter (tōt'ər) v. intr. tot-tered, tot-ter-ing, tot-ters. 1. a. To sway as if about to fall. b. To appear about to collapse: an empire that had begun to totter. 2. To walk unsteadily or feebly; stagger. [Middle English toteren, perhaps of Scandinavian origin.] —tot'ter n. —tot'ter-er n. —tot'ter-y adj.

tou-can (tōō'kän', -kän', tōō-kän', -kän') n. Any of various tropical American birds of the family Ramphastidae, having brightly colored plumage and a very large bill and feeding mainly on small fruits. [French, from Portuguese tucano, or Spanish tucán both from Tupi tucano, bird.]

tou-ca-net (tōō'kə-nĕt', tōō'kə-nĕt') n. Any of several small toucans of the genus Aulacorhynchus, that range from Mexico to Peru, especially at high altitudes along the Andes.

touch (tŭch) v. touched, touch-ing, touch-es. — v. tr. 1. To cause or permit a part of the body, especially the hand or fingers, to come in contact with so as to feel: reached out and touched the smooth stone. 2. a. To bring something into light contact with: touched the sore spot with a probe. b. To bring (one thing) into light contact with something else: grounded the radio by touching a wire to it; touching fire to a fuse. 3. To press or push lightly; tap: touched a control to improve the TV picture; touched 19 on the phone to get room service. 4. To lay hands on in violence: I never touched him! 5. To eat or drink; taste: She didn't touch her food. 6. To disturb or move by handling: Just don't touch anything in my room! 7. a. To meet without going beyond; adjoin: the ridge where his property touches mine. b. Mathematics. To be tangent to. c. To come up to; reach: when the thermometer touches 90°. d. To match in quality; equal: Rival artists can't touch her work at its best. 8. To deal with, especially in passing; treat briefly or allusively: some remarks touching recent events. 9. To be pertinent to; concern: environmental problems that touch us all. 10. To affect the emotions of; move to tender response: an appeal that touched us deeply. 11. To injure slightly: plants touched by frost. 12. To color slightly; tinge: a white petal touched with pink. 13. a. To draw with light strokes. b. To change or improve by adding fine lines or strokes. 14. To stamp (tested metal). 15. Slang. To wheedle a loan or hand-out from: touched a friend for five dollars. 16. a. Archaic. To strike or pluck the keys or strings of (a musical instrument). b. To play (a musical piece). — v. intr. 1. To touch someone or something. 2. To be or come into contact: Don't let the live wires touch. — n. 1. The act or an instance of touching. 2. The physiological sense by which external objects or forces are perceived through contact with the body. 3. A sensation experienced in touching something with a characteristic texture: felt the touch of snowflakes on her face. 4. A light push; a tap: an electric switch that requires just a touch. 5. A discernible mark or effect left by contact with something. 6. A small change or addition, or the effect achieved by it: Candlelight provided just the right touch. 7. A suggestion, hint, or tinge: a touch of jealousy. 8. A mild attack: a touch of the flu. 9. A small amount; a dash: a touch of paprika. 10. a. A manner or technique of striking the keys of a keyboard instrument: He types quickly, using a light touch. b. The resistance to pressure characteristic of the keys of a keyboard: an old piano with uneven touch. 11. A characteristic way of doing things: recognized my friend's touch in the choice of the card. 12. A facility; a knack: lose one's touch. 13. The state of being in contact or communication: kept in touch with several classmates; out of touch with current trends. 14. An official stamp indicating the quality of a metal product.

15. Slang. a. The act of approaching someone for a loan or handout. b. A prospect for a loan or handout: a generous person, a soft touch for beggars. 16. Sports.

The area just outside the sidelines in Rugby and soccer. —phrasal verbs.

touch down. To make contact with the ground; land: The spacecraft touched down on schedule. touch off. 2. To cause to explode; fire. 3. To initiate; trigger:

disclosures that touched off a public uproar. 4. To describe or portray with deft precision. touch on (or touch upon). 5. To deal with (a topic) in passing.

6. To pertain to; concern. 7. To approach being; verge on: frenzy that touched on clinical insanity. touch up. To improve by making minor corrections, changes, or additions. —idiom. touch base (or touch bases). Informal. To renew a line of communication: “He went out of his way to touch base with a broad cross section of... residents” (George B. Merry). [Middle English touchen, from Old French touchier, perhaps of imitative origin.] —touch/a-ble adj.

—touch/a-ble-ness n. —touch'er n.

SYNONYMS: touch, feel, finger, handle, palpate, paw. The central meaning shared by these verbs is “to bring the hands or fingers into contact with so as to give or receive a physical sensation”: gently touched my hand; felt the runner’s pulse; fingering his worry beads; handle a bolt of fabric; palpating the patient’s abdomen; fans pawing a celebrity’s arm. See also Synonyms at affect¹ touch-and-go (tŭch’ən-gō’) adj. Dangerous and uncertain in nature or outcome; precarious; delicate: major surgery followed by a touch-and-go recovery.

touch-back (tŭch’băk’) n. Football. A play in which the defensive team recovers and downs the ball behind its own goal line after the ball has been kicked or passed there by the team on offense. No points are scored, and the ball is put back in play by the recovering team on its own 20-yard line.

touch-down (tŭch’doun’) n. 1. Abbr. TD, td Football. An act of carrying, receiving, or gaining possession of the ball across the opponent’s goal line for a score of six points. 2. The contact, or moment of contact, of a landing aircraft or spacecraft with the landing surface. [From the earlier practice of touching the ball to the ground behind the goal line.]

tou·ché (tōō-shā’) interj. Used to acknowledge a hit in fencing or a successful criticism or an effective point in argument. [French, from past participle of toucher, to hit or wound in fencing, from Old French touchier, to touch. See TOUCH.]

touched (tŭcht) adj. 1. Emotionally affected; moved: very touched by the stranger’s kindness. 2. Somewhat demented or mentally unbalanced.

touch football (tŭch fōōt' bōl') n. Sports. A variety of football played without protective clothing usually on an improvised field, in which ball carriers are downed by touching instead of tackling.

touch-hole (tŭch' hōl') n. The opening in early firearms and cannons through which the powder was ignited.

touch-ing (tŭch' ɪŋ) adj. Eliciting or capable of eliciting sympathy or tenderness. See Synonyms at moving. — prep. Concerning; about.

—touch'ing-ly adv. —touch'ing-ness n.

touch-line (tŭch' līn') n. Sports. Either of the sidelines bordering the playing field in soccer and Rugby.

touch-me-not (tŭch' mē-nōt') n. 1. See jewelweed. 2. See sensitive plant (n., sense 1). [From the bursting of ripe seedpods when touched.]

touch-stone (tŭch' stōn') n. 1. A hard black stone, such as jasper or basalt, formerly used to test the quality of gold or silver by comparing the streak left on the stone by one of these metals with that of a standard alloy. 2. An excellent quality or example that is used to test the excellence or genuineness of others: “the qualities of courage and vision that are the touchstones of leadership” (Henry A. Kissinger). See Synonyms at standard.

touch-tone also touch-tone (tŭch' tōn') adj. Of, relating to, or being a telephone with which the user places calls by pressing push buttons that generate and transmit tones of differing pitch, these tones corresponding to the digits of the number being called. — n. A touch-tone telephone.

touch-type (tŭch' tīp') v. intr. tr. touch-typed, touch-typing, touch-types. To engage in typing or type (a document, for example) without having to look at the keyboard, the fingers having been trained to locate the keys by position. —touch'-typ'ist n.

touch-up (tŭch' ūp') n. The act or an instance of finishing or improving by small changes, corrections, or additions.

touch-wood (tŭch' wōōd') n. Material, such as decayed wood, that is used as tinder; punk. [From its being easy to ignite.]

touch-y (tŭch' ē) adj. touch-i-er, touch-i-est. 1. Tending to take offense with slight cause; oversensitive. 2. Requiring special tact or skill in handling; delicate: a touchy situation. 3. Highly sensitive to touch. Used of a body part. 4. Easily ignited; flammable. —touch'i-ly adv. —touch'i-ness n.

tough (tŭf) adj. tough-er, tough-est. 1. Able to withstand great strain without tearing or breaking; strong and resilient: a tough all-weather fabric. 2. Hard to cut or chew: tough meat. 3. Physically hardy; rugged: tough mountaineers; a tough cop. See Synonyms at strong. 4. Severe; harsh: a tough winter. 5. a. Aggressive; pugnacious. b. Inclined to violent or disruptive behavior; rowdy or rough: a tough street group. 6. Demanding or troubling; difficult: skip-ping the toughest questions. 7. Strong-minded; resolute: a tough negotiator.

8. Slang. Unfortunate; too bad: a tough break. 9. Slang. Fine; great. — n. A violent or rowdy person; a hoodlum or thug. — idiom. tough it out. Slang. To get through despite hardship; endure: “It helps if one was raised to tough it out” (Gail Sheehy). [Middle English, from Old English tōh.] — tough/ly adv.

—tough/ness n.

tough-en (tʊf'ən) v. tr. intr. tough-ened, tough-en-ing, tough-ens. To make or become tough. See Synonyms at harden. —tough/en-er n.

tough-ie (tʊf'ē) n. Informal. 1. A thug; a tough. 2. A difficult problem.

tough-mind-ed (tʊf'mɪn'dɪd) adj. Facing facts and difficulties with strength and determination; realistic and resolute. —tough/-mind/ed-ly adv.

—tough/-mind/ed-ness n.

Tou-lon (tō-lōn') A city of southeast France on the Mediterranean Sea east-southeast of Marseille. First mentioned in the third century A.D. as a Roman naval station, it became part of France in 1481. Population, 179,423.

Tou-louse (tō-lōz') A city of southern France on the Garonne River south-east of Bordeaux. Originally part of Roman Gaul, it was the capital of the Visigoths (419-507) and the Carolingian kingdom of Aquitaine (781-843). Toulouse was a cultural center of medieval Europe. Population, 347,995.

Tou-louse-Lau-trec (tō-lōs'lō-trɛk', tō-lōz'-), Henri de. 1864-1901.

French artist who portrayed the music halls and cafés of Montmartre in his paintings, lithographs, and posters, including La Goulue at the Moulin Rouge (1892).

tou-pee (tō-pā') n. 1. A partial wig or hairpiece worn to cover a bald spot.

2. A curl or lock of hair worn during the 18th century as a topknot on a periwig.

[French toupet, diminutive of Old French toupe, tuft of hair, from Frankish top*.]

tour (tūr) n. 1. A trip with visits to various places of interest for business, pleasure, or instruction. 2. A group organized for such a trip or for a shorter sightseeing excursion. 3. A brief trip to or through a place for the purpose of seeing it: a tour of the house. 4. A journey to fulfill a round of engagements in several places: a pianist on a concert tour. 5. A shift, as in a factory. 6. A period of duty at a single place or job. — v. toured, tour-ing, tours. — v. intr. 1. To travel from place to place, especially for pleasure. 2. To travel among various places while fulfilling engagements. — v. tr. 1. To make a tour of: toured Europe last summer; officials touring the scene of the disaster. 2. To present (a play, for example) on a tour. [Middle English, a turn, from Old French (influenced by tourner, to turn about), from Latin tornus, lathe. See TURN.] —tour'er n.

tou-ra-co also tu-ra-co (tūr'ə-kō') n. pl. tou-ra-cos. Any of various weak-flying, cuckoolike African birds of the family Musophagidae, many of which have brightly colored plumage and long tails. [French, perhaps of West African origin.]

Tou-raine (tōō-rān', -rĕn') A historical region and former province of west-central France. Taken by the English in 1152, it was recaptured by Philip II of France in 1204 and incorporated into the royal domain by Henry III.

Tou-rane (tōō-rān') See Da Nang.

tour-bil-lion (tōōr-bīl'yən) n. 1. a. A whirlwind. b. A vortex, as of a whirlwind or whirlpool. 2. A skyrocket that has a spiral flight. [Middle English turbilloun, from Old French torbeillon, ultimately from Latin turbō, from Greek turbē, noise, confusion. See TURBID.]

Tour-coing (tōōr-kwān') A city of northern France northeast of Lille near the Belgian border. It is an important textile center. Population, 96,908.

tour de force (tōōr' də fōrs', fōrs') n. pl. tours de force (tōōr'). A feat requiring great virtuosity or strength, often deliberately undertaken for its difficulty: "In an extraordinary structural tour de force the novel maintains a dual focus" (Julian Moynahan). [French : tour, turn, feat + de, of + force, strength.]

Tou-rette's syndrome (tōō-rĕts' sĭn'drōm') or Tou-rette syndrome (-rĕt') n. A severe neurological disorder characterized by multiple facial and other body tics, usually beginning in childhood or adolescence and often accompanied by grunts and compulsive utterances, as of interjections and obscenities. Also called Gilles de la Tourette syndrome [After Georges Gilles de la Tourette (1857-1904), French physician.]

tour-ing (tōōr'ĭng) n. Travel, as on a bicycle or on skis, for pleasure rather than competition.

touring car (tōōr'ĭng kār) n. A large open automobile for five or more people, popular in the 1920's.

tour-ism (tōōr'ĭz'əm) n. 1. The practice of traveling for pleasure. 2. The business of providing tours and services for tourists.

tour-ist (tōōr'ĭst) n. One who travels for pleasure. —tour-is'tic adj.
—tour'ist-y adj.

tourist class (tōōr'ĭst klās) n. The lowest class of accommodations on some passenger ships and airplanes.

tourist trap (tōōr'ĭst trāp) n. A place, such as a shop or resort area, that offers overpriced goods and services to tourists.

tour-ma-line also tur-ma-line (tōōr'mə-lĭn, -lĕn') n. A complex crystalline silicate containing aluminum, boron, and other elements, used in electronic instrumentation and, especially in its green, clear, and blue varieties, as a gemstone. [French, from Singhalese toramalli, carnelian.]

tour-na-ment (tōōr'nə-mənt, tūr'-) n. 1. A series of contests in which a number of contestants compete and the one that prevails through the final round or that finishes with the best record is declared the winner. 2. A medieval martial sport in which two groups of mounted and armored combatants fought against each other with blunted lances or swords. [Middle English tournement, a medieval sport, from Old French torneiment, from torneier, to tourney. See TOURNEY.]

tour·ne·dos (tōōr'nə-dō') n. pl. tour·ne·dos (-dō', -dōz'). A fillet of beef cut from the tenderloin, often bound in bacon or suet for cooking. [French : tourner, to turn (from Old French); see TURN + dos, the back (from Latin dorsum).]

Tour·neur (tûr'nər), Cyril. 1575?-1626. English playwright whose works include The Revenger's Tragedy (1607) and The Atheist's Tragedy (1611).

tour·ney (tōōr'nē, tûr'-) v. intr. tour·neyed, tour·ney·ing, tour·neys. To compete in a tournament. — n. pl. tour·neys. A tournament. [Middle English torneien, from Old French torneier, from Vulgar Latin tornizāre*, to turn around, from Latin tornāre, to turn in a lathe. See TURN.]

tour·ni·quet (tōōr'nī-kīt, tûr'-) n. A device, typically a tightly encircling bandage, used to check bleeding by temporarily stopping the flow of blood through a large artery in a limb. [French : tourner, to turn (from Old French); see TURN + -iquet, diminutive suff. (from Old French).]

Tours (tōōr) A city of west-central France on the Loire River. Dating to pre-Roman times, it was a prosperous silk-manufacturing town from the 15th century to the 17th century and a Huguenot stronghold until the revocation of the Edict of Nantes in 1685. Today it is a tourist center with varied industries. Population, 132,209.

tou·sle (tou'zəl) v. tr. tou·sled, tou·sling, tou·sles. To disarrange or rumple; dishevel. — n. A disheveled mass, as of hair. [Middle English touselen, frequentative of tousen, to pull roughly.]

Tous·saint L'Ou·ver·ture (tōō-săn' lōō-věr-tür'), François Dominique. 1743?-1803. Haitian revolutionary who with the help of the French led a force that expelled the British and Spanish from Haiti (1798).

tout (tout) v. tout·ed, tout·ing, touts. — v. intr. 1. To solicit customers, votes, or patronage, especially in a brazen way. 2. To obtain and deal in information on racehorses. — v. tr. 1. To solicit or importune: street vendors who were touting pedestrians. 2. To obtain or sell information on (a racehorse or stable) for the guidance of bettors. 3. To promote or praise energetically; publicize: "Projects for... construction of a deep-water route... to reach ports in the continent's industrial heartland had been widely touted" (Kenneth McNaught). — n. 1. One who obtains information on racehorses and their prospects and sells it to bettors. 2. One who solicits customers brazenly or persistently: "The administration of the nation's literary affairs falls naturally into the hands of touts and thieves" (Lewis H. Lapham). [Middle English tuten, to peer.] —tout'er n.

to·va·rich or to·va·rish (tə-vär'ich, -ish, -ishch) n. A comrade. [Russian tovarishch, from Old Russian tovarishchĭ, sing. of tovarishchi, business associates, from Old Turkic tavar ishchi, businessman, merchant : tavar, wealth, trade + ish-chi, one who works (from ish, work, business).]

tow¹ (tō) v. tr. towed, tow-ing, tows. To draw or pull behind by a chain or line: a tugboat towing a barge. See Synonyms at pull. — n. 1. a. The act or an instance of towing. b. The condition of being towed: a car with a trailer in tow. 2. Something, such as a tugboat, that tows. 3. Something, such as a barge or car, that is towed. 4. A rope or cable used in towing. — idiom. in tow. 1. Under close guidance; in one's charge: The new girl was taken in tow by an older student. 2. As a companion or follower: came to dinner with a friend in tow. [Middle English towen, from Old English togian. See deuk- in Appendix.] — tow'a-ble adj. — tow'er n.

tow² (tō) n. Coarse broken flax or hemp fiber prepared for spinning. See Regional note at gunnysack. [Middle English, possibly from Old English tōw-, spinning.]

tow-age (tō'ij) n. 1. The act or service of towing. 2. A charge for towing.

to-ward (tōrd, tōrd, tə-wōrd') prep. also to-wards (tōrdz, tōrdz, tə-wōrdz')

1. In the direction of: driving toward home. 2. In a position facing: had his back toward me. 3. Somewhat before in time: It began to rain toward morning.

4. With regard to; in relation to: an optimistic attitude toward the future. 5. In furtherance or partial fulfillment of: contributed five dollars toward the bill. 6. By way of achieving; with a view to: efforts toward peace. — adj. (tōrd, tōrd)

1. Favoring success or a good outcome; propitious. 2. Often towards. Happening soon; imminent. 3. Obsolete. Being quick to understand or learn. [Middle English, from Old English tōweard : tō, to; see TO + -weard, -ward.]

USAGE NOTE: Some critics have tried to discern a semantic distinction between toward and towards, but the difference is entirely dialectal. Toward is more common in American English; towards is the predominant form in British English.

to-ward-ly (tōrd'lē, tōrd'-) adj. Archaic. 1. Appearing likely to succeed; promising. 2. Advantageous; favorable. — to-ward/li-ness n.

to-wards (tōrdz, tōrdz, tə-wōrdz') prep. Variant of toward. — adj. Variant of toward (adj., sense 2).

tow-a-way zone (tō'ə-wā' zōn) n. A no-parking zone from which motor vehicles may be towed away.

tow bag (tō bǎg) n. Eastern North Carolina. See gunnysack. See Regional note at gunnysack.

tow-boat (tō'bōt') n. Nautical. 1. See tugboat. 2. A powerful, shallow-draft boat with a broad bow, intended to push barges on rivers and canals.

tow·el (tou'əl) n. A piece of absorbent cloth or paper used for wiping or drying.
— v. tow·eled or tow·elled, tow·el·ing or tow·el·ling, tow·els or tow·els. — v. tr. To wipe or rub dry with a towel. — v. intr. To dry oneself with a towel. [Middle English towaille, from Old French toaille, of Germanic origin.]

tow·el·ette (tou'ə-lět') n. A small, usually moistened piece of paper or cloth used for cleansing.

tow·el·ing also tow·el·ling (tou'ə-lĩng) n. Any of various fabrics of cotton or linen used for making towels.

tow·er (tou'ər) n. 1. A building or part of a building that is exceptionally high in proportion to its width and length. 2. A tall, slender structure used for observation, signaling, or pumping. 3. One that conspicuously embodies strength, firmness, or another virtue. — v. intr. tow·ered, tow·er·ing, tow·ers. 1. To appear at or rise to a conspicuous height; loom: “There he stood, grown suddenly tall, towering above them” (J.R.R. Tolkien). See Synonyms at rise. 2. To fly directly upward before swooping or falling. Used of certain birds. 3. To demonstrate great superiority; be preeminent: towers over other poets of the day. [Middle English tur, tour, towr, from Old English torr, and from Old French tur both from Latin turris, probably from Greek tursis, turris.]

tow·er·ing (tou'ər-ĩng) adj. 1. Of imposing height. See Synonyms at high. 2. Outstanding; preeminent: a towering intellect. 3. Very great or intense: a towering rage. —tow'er·ing·ly adv.

tow·head (tō'hěd') n. 1. a. A head of white-blond hair resembling tow. b. A person having such hair. 2. A sandbar or a low-lying alluvial island in a river, especially one with a stand of trees. —tow'head'ed adj.

tow·hee (tō'hē, tō-hē') n. 1. A North American bird (Pipilo erythrophthalmus) that ranges from southern Canada to Mexico and has black, white, and rust-colored plumage in the male. Also called chewink, ground robin. 2. Any of several finches of the genera Pipilo or Chlorura, found in the western United States. [Imitative of the song of some of these birds.]

tow·line (tō'līn') n. A line used in towing a vessel or vehicle.

town (toun) n. 1. a. Abbr. t., T., tn. A population center, often incorporated, larger than a village and usually smaller than a city. b. The residents of such a population center: The whole town disagreed with the mayor. 2. A township. 3. Informal. A city: New York is a big town. 4. Chiefly British. A rural village that has a market or fair periodically. 5. The commercial district or center of an area: going into town for shopping. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: town streets; town populations. —idiom. on the town. Informal. In spirited pursuit of the entertainment offered by a town or city. [Middle English, from Old English tūn, enclosed place, village. See dhū-no- in Appendix.]

Town (toun), Ithiel. 1784-1844. American architect particularly known for the design and construction of truss bridges.

town clerk (toun klûrk) n. A public official in charge of keeping the records of a town.

town crier (toun krī'ər) n. 1. A person formerly employed by a town to proclaim announcements in the streets. 2. Informal. A gossip.

Townes (tounz), Charles Hard. Born 1915. American physicist. He shared a 1964 Nobel Prize for developing the maser and laser principles of producing high-intensity radiation.

town hall (toun hôl) n. A building that contains the offices of the public officials of a town and that houses the town council and courts.

town-house or town house (toun'hous') n. 1. A residence in a city. 2. One of a row of houses connected by common side walls.

town-ie also town-y (tou'nē) n. pl. town-ies. Informal. A permanent resident of a town, especially a resident of a college town who is academically unaffiliated with the local college or university.

town manager (toun măn'ī-jər) n. An administrator appointed to manage the government of a town.

town meeting (toun mē'tīng) n. A legislative assembly of townspeople.

town-scape (toun'skāp') n. 1. The appearance of a town or city; an urban scene: "The high school... once dominated American townscapes the way the cathedral dominated medieval European cities" (Dennis A. Williams). 2. A depiction of an urban scene.

Town-send (toun'zənd), Francis Everett. 1867-1960. American physician and social reformer whose plan for a government-sponsored old-age pension was a precursor of the Social Security Act of 1935.

Town-send's solitaire (toun'zəndz söl'ī-târ') n. A long-tailed, short-billed thrush (Myadestes townsendi) of western North America, living mostly in woody mountainous areas and noted for its clear, ringing song. [After John Kirk Townsend (1809-1851), American ornithologist.]

towns-folk (tounz'fōk') pl.n. The people of a town.

Town-shend (toun'zənd), Charles. 1725-1767. British politician who as Chancellor of the Exchequer (1766) and acting prime minister sponsored the Townshend Acts (1767), which levied duties on many items imported to the American colonies. Strong resistance to the acts led to the repeal of all the duties, except for the tax on tea.

town-ship (toun'shīp') n. Abbr. t., T., twp., tp. 1. A subdivision of a county in most northeast and Midwest U.S. states, having the status of a unit of local government with varying governmental powers; a town. 2. A public land surveying unit of 36 sections or 36 square miles. 3. An ancient administrative division of a large parish in England. 4. A racially segregated area in South Africa established by the government as a residence for people of color.

towns·man (tounz/'mən) n. 1. A man who is a resident of a town. 2. A man who is a fellow resident of one's town.

towns·peo·ple (tounz/'pē'pəl) pl.n. The inhabitants or citizens of a town or city.

towns·wom·an (tounz/'wōm'ən) n. 1. A woman who is a resident of a town. 2. A woman who is a fellow resident of one's town.

town·y (tou/'nē) n. Informal. Variant of townie.

tow·path (tō/'pāth', -pāth') n. A path along a canal or river used by animals towing boats.

tow sack (tō sāk) n. Upper Southern U.S. See gunnysack. See Regional note at gunnysack.

Tow·son (tou/'sən) A city of northern Maryland, a residential and industrial suburb of Baltimore. Population, 49,445.

tox- pref. Variant of toxi-.

tox·al·bu·min (tōk'sāl-byōō'mīn) n. Any of various toxic proteins obtained from certain plants and bacterial cultures.

tox·a·phene (tōk'sə-fēn') n. A toxic solid compound, C₁₀H₁₀Cl₈, used as an insecticide. [TOX(I)- + (C)A(M)PHENE.]

tox·e·mi·a (tōk-sē'mē-ə) n. A condition in which the blood contains toxins produced by body cells at a local source of infection or derived from the growth of microorganisms. Also called blood poisoning —tox·e'mic adj.

toxi- or toxo- or tox- pref. Poison; poisonous: toxalbumin. [From Latin toxicum. See TOXIC.]

tox·ic (tōk'sīk) adj. 1. Of, relating to, or caused by a toxin or other poison: a toxic condition; toxic hepatitis. 2. Capable of causing injury or death, especially by chemical means; poisonous: food preservatives that are toxic in concentrated amounts; a dump for toxic industrial wastes. See Synonyms at poisonous. — n. A toxic chemical or other substance. [Late Latin toxicus, from Latin toxicum, poison, from Greek toxikon, poison for arrows, poison, from neuter of toxikos, of a bow, from toxon, bow, from Old Persian taxša-*, an arrow.] —tox'i·cal·ly adv.

toxic- pref. Variant of toxico-.

tox·i·cant (tōk'sī-kənt) n. A poison or poisonous agent. — adj. Poisonous; toxic.

tox·ic·i·ty (tōk-sīs'ī-tē) n. pl. tox·ic·i·ties. 1. The quality or condition of being toxic. 2. The degree to which a substance is toxic.

toxico- or toxic- pref. Poison: toxicosis. [From Latin toxicum. See TOXIC.]

tox·i·co·gen·ic (tōk'sī-kō-jěn'īk) adj. 1. Producing poison or toxic substances. 2. Derived from or containing toxic matter.

tox-i-col-o-gy (tɒk'si-kɒl'ə-jē) n. The study of the nature, effects, and detection of poisons and the treatment of poisoning. —tox'i-co-log'i-cal (-kə-lɒj'ɪ-kəl), tox'i-co-log'ic (-ɪk) adj. —tox'i-co-log'i-cal-ly adv. —tox'i-col'o-gist n.

tox-i-co-sis (tɒk'si-kō'sɪs) n. pl. tox-i-co-ses (-sēz). A diseased condition resulting from poisoning.

toxic shock syndrome (tɒk'sɪk shɒk sɪn'drɒm') n. Abbr. TSS An acute infection characterized by high fever, a sunburnlike rash, vomiting, and diarrhea, followed in severe cases by shock, that is caused by a toxin-producing strain of the common bacterium Staphylococcus aureus, occurring chiefly among young menstruating women who use vaginal tampons.

tox-i-gen-ic (tɒk'sə-jɛn'ɪk) adj. Producing poison; toxicogenic.
—tox'i-ge-nic'i-ty (-jə-nɪs'ɪ-tē) n.

tox-in (tɒk'sɪn) n. A poisonous substance, especially a protein, that is produced by living cells or organisms and is capable of causing disease when introduced into the body tissues but is often also capable of inducing neutralizing antibodies or antitoxins.

tox-in-an-ti-tox-in (tɒk'sɪn-ən'tɪ-tɒk'sɪn) n. A mixture of a toxin and its antitoxin with a slight excess of toxin, formerly used as a vaccine.

tox- pref. Variant of toxi-.

tox-oid (tɒk'sɔɪd') n. A substance that has been treated to destroy its toxic properties but retains the capacity to stimulate production of antitoxins, used in immunization.

tox-o-plas-ma (tɒk'sə-pləz'mə) n. Any of various parasitic sporozoans of the genus Toxoplasma, including some that cause disease in birds and mammals.

tox-o-plas-mo-sis (tɒk'sō-pləz-mō'sɪs) n. pl. tox-o-plas-mo-ses (-mō'sēz). A disease caused by the sporozoan Toxoplasma gondii, especially: a. A congenital disease characterized by lesions of the central nervous system that can cause blindness and brain damage. b. An acquired disease characterized by fever, swollen lymph nodes, and lesions in the liver, heart, lungs, and brain.

toy (toɪ) n. 1. An object for children to play with. 2. Something of little importance; a trifle. 3. An amusement; a pastime: thought of the business as a toy. 4. A small ornament; a bauble. 5. A diminutive thing or person. 6. A dog of a very small breed or of a variety smaller than the standard variety of its breed. 7. Scots. A loose covering for the head, formerly worn by women. 8. Chiefly Southern U.S. A shooter marble. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a toy truck; a toy stove; a toy chest. — v. intr. toyed, toy-ing, toys. 1. To amuse oneself idly; trifle: a cat toying with a mouse. 2. To treat something casually or without seriousness: toyed with the idea of writing a play. See Synonyms at flirt. [Middle English toye, amorous play, a piece of fun.]

To-ya·ma (tō-yä'mä) A city of west-central Honshu, Japan, on Toyama Bay, an inlet of the Sea of Japan. Toyama is noted for its patent medicine industry.

Population, 314,111.

toy line (toi līn) n. Chiefly Southern U.S. The line used in a game of marbles.

Toyn·bee (toin'bē), Arnold Joseph. 1889-1975. British historian and educator who studied cyclical patterns in the growth and decline of civilizations. His most famous work is the 12-volume Study of History (1934-1961).

To-yo·ha·shi (tô'yô-hä'shē) A city of south-central Honshu, Japan, on the Pacific Ocean southeast of Nagoya. It is a textile-manufacturing center. Population, 287,700.

toy-on (toi'ōn') n. An evergreen Californian shrub (Heteromeles arbutifolia), having leathery leaves, small white flowers in large panicles, and red, fleshy, berrylike fruit. Also called Christmas berry [Spanish tollon, from Greek tolon.]

To-yo·na·ka (tô'yô-nä'kä) A city of southern Honshu, Japan, a mainly residential suburb of Osaka. Population, 413,219.

To-yo·ta (toi-ō'tə, tô-yô'tä) A city of south-central Honshu, Japan, east-southeast of Nagoya. It is an industrial center. Population, 308,106.

tp. abbr. Township.

t.p. abbr. Printing. Title page.

TPA or tPA abbr. Tissue plasminogen activator.

tpk. abbr. Turnpike.

TR or T-R abbr. Transmit-receive.

tr. abbr. 1. Grammar. Transitive. 2. a. Translated. b. Translation; translator.

3. Transpose; transposition. 4. Treasurer. 5. Troop. 6. Law. Trust; trustee.

tra·be·at·ed (trā'bē-ā'tīd) also tra·be·ate (-bē-īt, -āt') adj. Architecture. Having horizontal beams or lintels rather than arches. [From Latin trabs, beam. See treb- in Appendix.] —tra'be-a'tion n.

tra·bec·u·la (trə-bĕk'yə-lə) n. pl. tra·bec·u·lae (-lē'). 1. A small supporting beam or bar. 2. a. Anatomy. Any of the supporting strands of connective tissue projecting into an organ and constituting part of the framework of that organ. b. Any of the fine spicules forming a network in cancellous bone. [Latin, diminutive of trabs, beam. See treb- in Appendix.] —tra·bec'u·lar adj.

Trab·zon (trāb-zōn', trāb-zōn') or Treb·i·zond (trĕb'ī-zōnd') A city of northeast Turkey on the Black Sea. Founded in the eighth century B.C., the city was part of the Roman, Byzantine, Trebizond, and Ottoman empires. Population, 108,403.

trace¹ (trās) n. 1. a. A visible mark, such as a footprint, made or left by the passage of a person, an animal, or a thing. b. Evidence or an indication of the former presence or existence of something; a vestige. 2. A barely perceivable indication; a touch: spoke with a trace of sarcasm. 3. a. An extremely small amount. b. A constituent, such as a chemical compound or element, present in quantities less than a standard limit. 4. A path or trail that has been beaten out by the passage of animals or people. 5. A way or route followed. 6. A line drawn by a recording instrument, such as a cardiograph. 7. Mathematics. a. The point at which a line, or the curve in which a surface, intersects a coordinate plane. b. The sum of the elements of the principal diagonal of a matrix. 8. An engram. — v. traced, trac-ing, trac-es. — v. tr. 1. To follow the course or trail of: trace a wounded deer; tracing missing persons. 2. To ascertain the successive stages in the development or progress of: tracing the life cycle of an insect; trace the history of a family. 3. To locate or discover by searching or researching evidence: trace the cause of a disease. 4. To draw (a line or figure); sketch; delineate. 5. To form (letters) with special concentration or care. 6. To copy by following lines seen through a sheet of transparent paper. 7. a. To imprint (a design) by pressure with an instrument on a superimposed pattern. b. To make a design or series of markings on (a surface) by such pressure on a pattern. 8. To record (a variable), as on a graph. — v. intr. 1. To make one's way along a trail or course: traced through the files. 2. To have origins; be traceable: linguistic features that trace to West Africa. [Middle English, track, from Old French, from tracier, to make one's way, from Vulgar Latin trāctiāre*, from Latin trāctus, a dragging, course, from past participle of trahere, to draw.] — trace'a·bil'i·ty, trace'a·ble·ness n. — trace'a·ble adj. — trace'a·bly adv.

SYNONYMS: trace, vestige, track, trail. These nouns denote a visible sign or perceptible indication of the passage or former presence of something. Trace applies to both physical and immaterial evidence: I immediately recognized the charred traces of a fire. Despite his excellent English, he still retains the faint trace of a French accent. Vestige refers to a surviving remnant of what once existed or is past: “long lines of edifices, vestiges of whose ruins may still be found” (William Hickling Prescott); “vestiges of a very universal custom” (Henry Hallam). Track usually denotes a mark or succession of marks, as footprints, left by something that has passed: Archaeologists excavated fossilized dinosaur tracks from the riverbed. Trail can refer to the tracks of a person or an animal, especially one being hunted: “We came across the recent trails of but two of the animals we were after” (Theodore Roosevelt).

trace² (trās) n. 1. One of two side straps or chains connecting a harnessed draft animal to a vehicle or whiffletree. 2. A bar or rod, hinged at either end to another part, that transfers movement from one part of a machine to another. [Middle English trais, from Old French, pl. of trait, a hauling, harness strap, from Latin trāctus, a hauling, from past participle of trahere, to haul.]

trace element (trās ěl'ə-mənt) n. 1. A chemical element required in minute quantities by an organism to maintain proper physical functioning. 2. A minute quantity or amount: “The trace elements of belief vanish when it becomes apparent that the... officer... never has suffered the indignity of combat” (Lewis H. Lapham).

trac·er (trā'sər) n. 1. a. One who is employed to locate missing goods or persons. b. An investigation or inquiry organized to trace missing goods or persons. 2. Any of several instruments used in making tracings or in imprinting designs by tracing. 3. A tracer bullet. 4. Chemistry. An identifiable substance, such as a dye or a radioactive isotope, that is introduced into a biological or mechanical system and can be followed through the course of a process, providing information on the pattern of events in the process or on the redistribution of the parts or elements involved. In this sense, also called label tracer bullet (trā'sər bōōl'it) n. A bullet that leaves a luminous or smoky trail.

trac·er·y (trā'sə-rē) n. pl. trac·er·ies. Ornamental work of interlaced and branching lines, especially the lacy openwork in a Gothic window. [From TRACE¹.] —trac'er·ied adj.

trache- pref. Variant of tracheo-.

tra·che·a (trā'kē-ə) n. pl. tra·che·ae (-kē-ē') or tra·che·as. 1. Anatomy. A thin-walled tube of cartilaginous and membranous tissue descending from the larynx to the bronchi and carrying air to the lungs. Also called windpipe. 2. Zoology. One of the internal respiratory tubes of insects and some other terrestrial arthropods. 3. Botany. One of the tubular conductive vessels in the xylem of vascular plants. [Middle English trache, from Medieval Latin trāchēa, from Late Latin trāchīa, from Greek (artēria) trakheia, rough (artery), trachea, from feminine of trakhus, rough.] —tra'che·al adj.

tra·che·ate (trā'kē-āt', -īt) adj. Having tracheae. Used of arthropods. — n. A tracheate arthropod.

tra·che·id (trā'kē-īd, -kēd') n. Botany. A cell in the xylem of vascular plants. —tra·che'i·dal (trā-kē'ī-dl, -kēd'l) adj.

tra·che·i·tis (trā'kē-ī'tis) n. Inflammation of the trachea.

tracheo- or trache- pref. Trachea: tracheid. [New Latin trāchēo-, from Medieval Latin trāchēa. See TRACHEA.]

tra·che·o·bron·chi·al (trā'kē-ō-brōng'kē-əl) adj. Of or relating to the trachea and the bronchi.

tra·che·o·e·soph·a·ge·al (trā'kē-ō'ī-sōf'ə-jē'əl) adj. Of or relating to the trachea and the esophagus.

tra·che·ole (trā'kē-ōl') n. One of the fine branching tubes of the trachea of an insect, which penetrates the tissues to provide oxygen. [TRACHE(A) + -ole, diminutive suff. (from French, from Latin -olus).] —tra·che'o·lar (-ə-lər) adj.

tra·che·o·phyte (trā'kē-ə-fit') n. Any of various vascular plants, including seed plants and ferns, having a conducting system of xylem and phloem. [From New Latin Tracheophyta, division name : TRACHEO- + Greek phuta, pl. of phuton, plant; see bheuə- in Appendix.]

tra·che·os·co·py (trā'kē-ōs'kə-pē) n. pl. tra·che·os·co·pies. Examination of the interior of the trachea, as with a laryngoscope. —tra'che·o·scop'ic (-ə-skōp'ik) adj.

tra·che·os·to·my (trā'kē-ōs'tə-mē) n. pl. tra·che·os·to·mies. 1. a. Surgical construction of a respiratory opening in the trachea. b. The opening so made. 2. A tracheotomy performed in order to insert a catheter or tube into the trachea, especially to facilitate breathing.

tra·che·ot·o·my (trā'kē-ōt'ə-mē) n. pl. tra·che·ot·o·mies. The act or procedure of cutting into the trachea through the neck, as to make an artificial opening for breathing.

tra·cho·ma (trə-kō'mə) n. A contagious disease of the conjunctiva and cornea, caused by the gram-negative bacterium Chlamydia trachomatis and characterized by inflammation, hypertrophy, and formation of granules of adenoid tissue. It is a major cause of blindness in Asia and Africa. [New Latin trachōma, from Greek trakhōma, from trakhus, rough.] —tra·cho'ma·tous (-kō'mə-təs) adj.

tra·chyte (trā'kīt', trāk'īt') n. A light-colored igneous rock consisting essentially of alkali feldspar. [French, from Greek trakhus, rough.] —tra·chy'tic (trə-kīt'ik) adj.

trac·ing (trā'sīng) n. 1. A reproduction made by superimposing a transparent sheet and copying the lines of the original on it. 2. A graphic record made by a recording instrument, such as a cardiograph or seismograph.

track (trāk) n. 1. a. A mark or succession of marks left by something that has passed. See Synonyms at trace¹. b. A path, route, or course indicated by such marks: an old wagon track through the mountains. 2. A path along which something moves; a course: following the track of an airplane on radar. 3. a. A course of action; a method of proceeding: on the right track for solving the puzzle. b. An intended or proper course: putting a stalled project back on track. 4. A succession of ideas; a train of thought. 5. Awareness of something occurring or passing: keeping track of the score; lost all track of time. 6. Sports. a. A course laid out for running or racing. b. Athletic competition on such a course; track events. c. Track and field. 7. A rail or set of parallel rails upon which railroad cars or other vehicles run. 8. A metal groove or ridge that holds, guides, and reduces friction for a moving device or apparatus. 9. Any of several courses of study to which students are assigned according to ability, achievement, or needs: academic, vocational, and general tracks. 10. a. A distinct path, as along a length of film or magnetic tape, on which sound or other information is recorded. b. A distinct selection from a sound recording, such as a phonograph record or compact disk, usually containing an individual work or part of a larger work: the title track of an album. c. One of the separate sound recordings that are combined so as to be heard simultaneously, as in stereophonic sound reproduction: mixed the vocal track and instrumental track. — v. tracked, track·ing, tracks. — v. tr.

1. To follow the tracks of; trail: tracking game through the forest. 2. To pursue successfully: “When, like a running grave, time tracks you down” (Dylan Thomas). 3. To move over or along; traverse. 4. To carry on the shoes and deposit: tracked mud on the rug. 5. To observe or monitor the course of (aircraft, for example), as by radar. 6. To observe the progress of; follow: tracking the company’s performance daily. 7. To equip with a track. 8. To assign (a student) to a curricular track. — v. intr. 1. To move along a track. 2. To follow a course; travel. 3. To keep a constant distance apart. Used of a pair of wheels. 4. To be in alignment. —idiom. in (one’s) tracks. Exactly where one is standing: stopped him right in his tracks. [Middle English trak, from Old French trac, perhaps of Germanic origin.] —track’able adj. —track’er n.

track-age (træk’ij) n. 1. Railway tracks. 2. a. The right of one railroad company to use the track system of another. b. The charge for this right.

track and field (træk ənd fēld) n. Sports. Athletic events performed on a running track and the field associated with it. —track’-and-field’ (træk’ən-fēld’) adj.

track-ball (træk’bôl’) n. Computer Science. A ball mounted in a stationary housing and rotated to control a pointer on a computer screen.

track event (træk ĭ-věnt’) n. Sports. A running event at a track meet as distinguished from a field event.

track-ing (træk’ĭng) n. The placing of students in any of several courses of study according to ability, achievement, or needs.

tracking poll (træk’ĭng pōl) n. An opinion poll in which the same sample, such as a small number of voters, is questioned periodically to measure shifts in opinion.

tracking shot (træk’ĭng shōt) n. A movie sequence made by a camera moving steadily on a track or dolly.

tracking station (træk’ĭng stā’shən) n. A station for observing the path of and maintaining contact with an object in the atmosphere or in space especially by means of radar or radio.

track-less (træk’līs) adj. 1. Not running on tracks or rails. 2. Unmarked by trails or paths.

trackless trolley (træk’līs trōl’ē) n. A trolley bus.

track light (træk līt) n. A light mounted on and movable along an electrified metal track. —track lighting n.

track-man (træk’mən) n. A worker employed to maintain or inspect railroad tracks.

track meet (træk mēt) n. Sports. A track-and-field competition between two or more teams.

track record (træk rĭ-kôrd’) n. Informal. A record of actual performance or accomplishment: a job applicant with an excellent track record.

track-side (trāk'sīd') n. The area near a track, especially a racetrack. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: trackside betting; trackside seats.

track-suit (trāk'sōōt') n. A loose-fitting jacket and pants worn by athletes and exercisers usually before and after workouts.

track-walk-er (trāk'wō'kər) n. A worker employed to inspect a section of railroad track.

tract¹ (trākt) n. 1. a. An expanse of land or water. b. A specified or limited area of land: developing a 30-acre tract. 2. Anatomy. a. A system of organs and tissues that together perform a specialized function: the alimentary tract. b. A bundle of nerve fibers having a common origin, termination, and function. 3. Archaic. A stretch or lapse of time. [Middle English, period of time, from Latin trāctus, course, space, period of time, from past participle of trahere, to draw.]

tract² (trākt) n. A leaflet or pamphlet containing a declaration or an appeal, especially one put out by a religious or political group. [Middle English tracte, treatise, probably short for Latin trāctātus, from past participle of trāctāre, to discuss frequentative of trahere, to draw.]

tract³ (trākt) n. The verses from Scripture sung during Lent or on Ember days after the gradual in the Roman Catholic Mass. [Middle English tracte, from Medieval Latin trāctus, from Latin, a drawing out (from its being an uninterrupted solo). See TRACT¹.]

trac-ta-ble (trāk'tə-bəl) adj. 1. Easily managed or controlled; governable. See Synonyms at obedient. 2. Easily handled or worked; malleable. [Latin trāctābilis, from trāctāre, to manage, frequentative of trahere, to draw.]

—trac'ta-bil'i-ty, trac'ta-ble-ness n. —trac'ta-bly adv.

Trac-tar-i-an-ism (trāk-târ'ē-ə-nīz'əm) n. The religious opinions and principles of the founders of the Oxford movement, put forth in a series of 90 pamphlets entitled Tracts for the Times, published at Oxford, England (1833-1841).

—Trac-tar'i-an adj. & n.

trac-tate (trāk'tāt') n. A treatise; an essay. [Latin trāctātus. See TRACT².]

tract house (trākt hous) n. One of numerous houses of similar or complementary design constructed on a tract of land. —tract housing n.

trac-tile (trāk'təl, -tīl') adj. Capable of being drawn out in length; ductile: a tractile metal. [From Latin tractus, past participle of trahere, to draw.]

—trac-til'i-ty (-tīl'ī-tē) n.

trac-tion (trāk'shən) n. 1. a. The act of drawing or pulling, especially the drawing of a vehicle or load over a surface by motor power. b. The condition of being drawn or pulled. 2. Pulling power, as of a draft animal or an engine.

3. Adhesive friction, as of a wheel on a track or a tire on a road. 4. Medicine. A sustained pull applied mechanically especially to the arm, leg, or neck so as to correct fractured or dislocated bones, overcome muscle spasms, or relieve pressure. [Medieval Latin trāctiō, trāctiōn-, from Latin tractus, past participle of trahere, to pull, draw.] —trac'tion·al adj.

trac·tive (trāk'tiv) adj. Serving to pull or draw; exerting traction. [From Latin tractus, past participle of trahere, to draw.]

trac·tor (trāk'tər) n. 1. A vehicle, powered by a gasoline or diesel motor, having large heavily treaded tires, and used in mowing, farming, or other applications. 2. A truck having a cab and no body, used for pulling large vehicles such as vans or trailers. 3. Something that pulls or draws. 4. a. An airplane propeller mounted in front of the supporting surfaces. b. An airplane having such a propeller. 5. A toothed mechanism that automatically advances perforated continuous-form paper through a computer printer. [From Latin trāctus, past participle of trahere, to draw.]

tractor feed (trāk'tər fēd) n. Computer Science. A mechanism for automatically advancing continuous-form paper through a printer by means of two or more toothed tractors that catch the perforations along the edges of the paper.

trac·tor·trail·er (trāk'tər-trā'lər) n. A truck consisting of a tractor attached to a semitrailer or trailer, used for transporting loads.

Tra·cy (trā'sē) A city of west-central California south-southwest of Stockton. It is a food-processing center. Population, 33,558.

Tra·cy (trā'sē), Spencer. 1900-1967. American actor known for his film partnership with Katharine Hepburn and his performances in Captains Courageous (1937) and Boys Town (1938), for which he won Academy Awards.

trade (trād) n. 1. The business of buying and selling commodities; commerce. See Synonyms at business. 2. The people working in or associated with a business or an industry: a textile-exporting publication for the trade. 3. The customers of a specified business or industry; clientele. 4. The act or an instance of buying or selling; transaction. 5. An exchange of one thing for another. 6. An occupation, especially one requiring skilled labor; craft: the building trades, including carpentry, masonry, plumbing, and electrical installation. 7. Often trades. The trade winds. Used with the. — v. trad·ed, trad·ing, trades. — v. intr. 1. To engage in buying and selling for profit. 2. To make an exchange of one thing for another. 3. To shop or buy regularly: trades at the local supermarket. — v. tr. 1. To give in exchange for something else: trade farm products for manufactured goods; will trade my ticket for yours. 2. To buy and sell (stock, for example). 3. To pass back and forth: We traded jokes. — phrasal verbs. trade down. To trade something in for something else of lower value or price: bought a new, smaller car, trading the old one down for economy. trade in. To surrender or sell (an old or used item), using the proceeds as partial payment on a new purchase. trade on. To put to calculated and often unscrupulous advantage; exploit: children of celebrities who trade on their family names. trade up. To trade something in for something else of greater value or price: The value of our house soared, enabling us to trade up to a larger place. [Middle English, course, from Middle Low German.] —trad/a·ble adj.

trade acceptance (trād äk-sĕp'təns) n. A bill of exchange for the amount of a purchase drawn by the seller on the purchaser, bearing the purchaser's signature and specifying time and place of payment.

trade book (trād böök) n. A book published for distribution to the general public through booksellers.

trade-craft (trād'kräft') n. The methods used in clandestine operations such as espionage.

trade discount (trād dĭs'kount') n. A discount on the list price granted by a manufacturer or wholesaler to buyers in the same trade.

trade edition (trād ĭ-dĭsh'ən) n. An edition of a book published for distribution to the general public through booksellers.

trade-in (trād'in') n. 1. Merchandise accepted as partial payment for a new purchase. 2. A transaction involving such merchandise.

trade language (trād lǎng'gwĭj) n. A language, especially a pidgin, used by speakers of different native languages for communication in commercial trade.

trade-last (trād'lăst') n. Informal. A favorable remark that one has overheard about another person and offers to repeat to that person in exchange for a compliment overheard about oneself.

trade-mark (trād'mărk') n. 1. Abbr. TM A name, symbol, or other device identifying a product, officially registered and legally restricted to the use of the owner or manufacturer. 2. A distinctive characteristic by which a person or thing comes to be known: the shuffle and snicker that became the comedian's trademark.

— v. tr. trade-marked, trade-mark-ing, trade-marks. 1. To label (a product) with proprietary identification. 2. To register (something) as a trademark.

trade name (trād nām) n. 1. A name used to identify a commercial product or service, which may or may not be registered as a trademark. Also called brand name 2. The name by which a commodity, service, or process is known to the trade. 3. The name under which a business firm operates.

trade-off or trade-off (trād'ôf', -ôf') n. An exchange of one thing in return for another, especially relinquishment of one benefit or advantage for another regarded as more desirable: "a fundamental trade-off between capitalist prosperity and economic security" (David A. Stockman).

trade paperback (trād pā'pər-băk') n. A paperback book that is typically of better production quality, larger size, and higher price than a mass-market edition, intended for sale in bookstores.

trad·er (trā'dər) n. 1. One that trades; a dealer: a gold trader; a trader in bonds. 2. Nautical. A ship employed in foreign trade.

trade rat (trād răt) n. See pack rat (n., sense 1).

trade route (trād rōōt) n. A route used by traveling traders or merchant ships.

trade school (trād skōōl) n. A secondary school that offers instruction in skilled trades; a vocational school.

trade secret (trād sē'krīt) n. A secret formula, method, or device that gives one an advantage over competitors.

trades·man (trādz'mən) n. 1. A man engaged in retail trade. 2. A craftsman.

trades·peo·ple (trādz'pē'pəl) pl.n. 1. People engaged in retail trade.

2. Skilled workers.

trade union (trād yōōn'yən) n. Abbr. T.U. A labor union, especially one limited in membership to people in the same trade. —trade unionism n.

—trade unionist n.

trade wind (trād wīnd) n. Any of a consistent system of prevailing winds occupying most of the tropics, constituting the major component of the general circulation of the atmosphere, and blowing northeasterly in the Northern Hemisphere and southeasterly in the Southern Hemisphere. Often used in the plural.

[From obsolete to blow trade, to blow in a regular course, from TRADE, regular course (obsolete).]

trad·ing card (trā'dīng kărd) n. A card with a picture or design printed on it, often one of a set collected and traded by children.

trading post (trā'dīng pōst) n. A station or store in a sparsely settled area established by traders to barter supplies for local products.

trading stamp (trā'dīng stămp) n. A stamp given by a retailer to a buyer for a purchase of a specified amount and intended to be redeemed in quantity for merchandise.

tra·di·tion (trə-dīsh'ən) n. 1. The passing down of elements of a culture from generation to generation, especially by oral communication. 2. a. A mode of thought or behavior followed by a people continuously from generation to generation; a custom or usage. b. A set of such customs and usages viewed as a coherent body of precedents influencing the present: followed family tradition in dress and manners. See Synonyms at heritage. 3. A body of unwritten religious precepts. 4. A time-honored practice or set of such practices. 5. Law. Transfer of property to another. [Middle English tradicion, from Old French, from Latin trāditiō, trāditiōn-, from trādītus, past participle of trādere, to hand over, deliver, entrust : trā-, trāns-, trans- + dare, to give; see dō- in Appendix.]

tra·di·tion·al (trə-dīsh'ə-nəl) adj. Of, relating to, or in accord with tradition: the traditional handshake; a traditional wedding ceremony. —tra·di'tion·al·ly adv.

tra·di·tion·al·ism (trə-dīsh'ə-nə-līz'əm) n. 1. Adherence to tradition, especially in cultural or religious practice. 2. Philosophy. A system holding that all knowledge is derived from original divine revelation and is transmitted by tradition. —tra·di'tion·al·ist adj., n. —tra·di'tion·al·is'tic adj.

tra·di·tion·al·ize (trə-dīsh'ə-nə-līz') v. tr. tra·di·tion·al·ized, tra·di·tion·al·iz·ing, tra·di·tion·al·iz·es. To make traditional.

trad·i·tor (träd'ī-tər) n. pl. trad·i·to·res (-tôr'ēz, -tôr'-). One of the early Christians who betrayed fellow Christians during the Roman persecutions.

[Middle English treditour, betrayer, from Latin trāditor, from trāditus past participle of trādere, to betray, hand over. See TRADITION.]

tra·duce (trə-dōos', -dyōos') v. tr. tra·duced, tra·duc·ing, tra·duc·es. To cause humiliation or disgrace to by making malicious and false statements. See Synonyms at malign. [Latin trādūcere, to lead as a spectacle, dishonor : trā-, trāns-, trans- + dūcere, to lead; see deuk- in Appendix.] —tra·duce'ment n. —tra·duc'er n. —tra·duc'ing·ly adv.

tra·du·cian·ism (trə-dōō'shə-nīz'əm, -dyōō'-) n. Theology. The belief that the soul is inherited from the parents along with the body. [From Late Latin trādūciānus, believer in traducianism, from trādux, trāduc-, inheritance, from Latin, vine-branch trained for propagation, from trādūcere, to lead across. See TRADUCE.] —tra·du'cian·ist adj., n. —tra·du'cian·is'tic adj.

Tra·fal·gar (trə-fäl'gər), Cape. A cape on the southwest coast of Spain northwest of the Strait of Gibraltar. The British navy under Adm. Horatio Nelson defeated the French and Spanish fleets off Cape Trafalgar in 1805.

traf·fic (träf'īk) n. 1. a. The commercial exchange of goods; trade. b. Illegal or improper commercial activity: drug traffic on city streets. 2. a. The business of moving passengers and cargo through a transportation system. See Synonyms at business. b. The amount of cargo or number of passengers conveyed.

3. a. The passage of people, vehicles, or messages along routes of transportation or communication. b. Vehicles or pedestrians in transit: heavy traffic on the turnpike; stopped oncoming traffic to let the children cross. 4. Social or verbal exchange; communication: Refused further traffic with the estranged friend. —

v. intr. traf·fick·ed, traf·fick·ing, traf·fics. To carry on trade or other dealings: trafficked in liquidation merchandise; traffic with gangsters. [French trafic, from Old French trafique, from Old Italian traffico, from trafficare, to trade, perhaps from Catalan trafegar, to decant, from Vulgar Latin trānsfaecāre* : trāns-, trans- + faex, faec-, dregs; see FECES.] —traf'fick·er n.

traffic circle (träf'īk sūr'kəl) n. A circular one-way road at a junction of thoroughfares, facilitating an uninterrupted flow of traffic.

traffic island (träf'īk ī'lənd) n. A raised area over which cars may not pass, placed at a junction of thoroughfares or between opposing traffic lanes.

traffic light (träf'īk līt) n. A road signal for directing vehicular traffic by means of colored lights, typically red for stop, green for go, and yellow for proceed with caution. Also called stoplight, traffic signal.

trag·a·canth (träg'ə-kānth', trāj'-) n. 1. Any of various thorny shrubs of the genus Astragalus, especially A. gummifer, of the Middle East, yielding a gum used in pharmacy, adhesives, and textile printing. 2. The gum of this plant. [Latin tragacantha, from Greek tragakantha : tragos, goat + akantha, thorn.]

tra·ge·di·an (trə-jē'dē-ən) n. 1. A writer of tragedies. 2. One who performs tragic roles in the theater.

tra·ge·di·enne (trə-jē'dē-ən') n. A woman who performs tragic roles in the theater. [French, feminine of tragédien, tragedian, from Old French tragedian, from tragedie, tragedy. See TRAGEDY.]

trag·e·dy (trăj'ī-dē) n. pl. trag·e·dies. 1. a. A drama or literary work in which the main character is brought to ruin or suffers extreme sorrow, especially as a consequence of a tragic flaw, a moral weakness, or an inability to cope with unfavorable circumstances. b. The genre made up of such works. c. The art or theory of writing or producing these works. 2. A play, film, television program, or other narrative work that portrays or depicts calamitous events and has an unhappy but meaningful ending. 3. A disastrous event, especially one involving distressing loss or injury to life: an expedition that ended in tragedy, with all hands lost at sea. 4. A tragic aspect or element. [Middle English tragedie, from Old French, from Latin tragoedia, from Greek tragōidia : tragos, goat + ōidē, song; see wed-² in Appendix.]

tra·gi (trā'gī, -jī) n. Plural of tragus.

trag·ic (trăj'ik) adj. 1. Relating to or characteristic of dramatic tragedy or tragedies: tragic plays; the tragic hero. 2. Writing or performing in tragedy: a tragic poet. 3. Having the elements of tragedy; involving death, grief, or destruction: a tragic accident. [Latin tragicus, from Greek tragikos, from tragos, goat.]

trag·i·cal (trăj'ī-kəl) adj. Tragic: “You take too tragical a view of matters” (John Fowles). “He assumes a sudden look of tragical sobriety” (Scott Turow).

—trag'i·cal·ly adv. —trag'i·cal·ness n.

tragic flaw (trăj'ik flô) n. A flaw in the character of the protagonist of a tragedy that brings the protagonist to ruin or sorrow.

tragic irony (trăj'ik ī'rə-nē) n. Dramatic irony in a tragedy.

trag·i·com·e·dy (trăj'ī-kôm'ī-dē) n. pl. trag·i·com·e·dies. 1. A drama combining elements of tragedy and comedy. 2. The genre made up of such works. 3. An incident or a situation having both comic and tragic elements. [French tragicomédie, from Italian tragicommedia, from Late Latin tragicōmoedia, short for Latin tragicocōmoedia : tragicus, tragic; see TRAGIC + cōmoedia, comedy; see COMEDY.] —trag'i·com'ic (-kôm'ik), trag'i·com'i·cal (-ī-kəl) adj.

—trag'i·com'i·cal·ly adv.

trag·o·pan (trăg'ə-păn') n. Any of several Asian pheasants of the genus Tragopan, the male of which has a brightly colored wattle and two blue hornlike appendages on the head. [Latin tragopān, fabulous bird, from Greek : tragos, goat + Pan, Pan; see PAN.]

tra·gus (trā'gəs) n. pl. tra·gi (-gī, -jī). 1. The projection of skin-covered cartilage in front of the meatus of the external ear. 2. Any of the hairs growing at the entrance to the meatus of the external ear. [New Latin, from Greek tragos, goat, hairy part of the ear.]

trail (trāl) v. trailed, trail·ing, trails. — v. tr. 1. To allow to drag or stream behind, as along the ground: The dog ran off, trailing its leash. 2. To drag (the body, for example) wearily or heavily. 3. a. To follow the traces or scent of, as in hunting; track. b. To follow the course taken by; pursue: trail a fugitive. 4. To follow behind: several cruisers trailed by an escorting destroyer. 5. To lag behind (an opponent): trailed the league leader by four games. — v. intr. 1. To drag or be dragged along, brushing the ground: The queen's long robe trailed behind. 2. To extend, grow, or droop loosely over a surface: vines trailing through the garden. 3. To drift in a thin stream: smoke trailing from a dying fire. 4. To become gradually fainter; dwindle: His voice trailed off in confusion. 5. To walk or proceed with dragging steps; trudge. 6. To be behind in competition; lag: trailing by two goals in the second period. — n. 1. Something that hangs loose and long: Trails of ticker tape floated down from office windows. 2. Something that is drawn along or follows behind; a train: the senator, followed by a trail of reporters. 3. A succession of things that come afterward or are left behind: left a trail of broken promises. 4. a. A mark or trace left by something that has moved or been dragged by. See Synonyms at trace¹. b. A succession of such marks indicating a course taken; a track: the trail of a hunted animal. 5. a. A marked or beaten path, as through woods or wilderness. b. An overland route: the pioneers' trail across the prairies. 6. The part of a gun carriage that rests or slides on the ground. 7. The act of trailing. [Middle English traillen, probably from Old French trailler, to hunt without a foreknown course, from Vulgar Latin trāgulāre*, to make a deer double back and forth, perhaps alteration (influenced by Latin trāgula, dragnet), of Latin trahere, to pull, draw.]

trail bike (trāl'bīk) n. A small motorcycle with rugged tires and suspension, designed for cross-country, off-road riding.

trail·blaz·er (trāl'blā'zər) n. 1. One that blazes a trail. 2. An innovative leader in a field; a pioneer.

trail·blaz·ing (trāl'blā'zīŋ) adj. Suggestive of one that blazes a trail; setting out in a promising new direction; pioneering or innovative: trailblazing research; a trailblazing new technique.

trail·break·er (trāl'brā'kər) n. A trailblazer.

trail·er (trāl'lər) n. 1. A large transport vehicle designed to be hauled by a truck or tractor. 2. A furnished van drawn by a truck or an automobile and used when parked as a dwelling or an office. 3. a. A short filmed advertisement for a movie. b. A short, blank strip of film at the end of a reel. — v. trail·ered, trail·er·ing, trail·ers. — v. tr. To transport by a trailer: trailed the boat to the beach. — v. intr. To travel or live in a trailer. — trail'er·a·ble adj.

trailer park (trā'lər pārk) n. An area in which parking space for house trailers is rented, usually providing utilities and services. Also called trailer camp trail·head (trāl'hēd') n. The place where a trail begins.

trail·ing arbutus (trā'ling ār-byō'təs) n. A low-growing evergreen shrub (Epigaea repens) of eastern North America, having leathery leaves and clusters of fragrant pink or white flowers. Also called mayflower trailing edge (trā'ling ěj) n. The rearmost edge of a structure that moves, as an airfoil.

trail·side (trāl'sīd') n. The area beside a trail. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a trailside picnic; a trailside condominium.

train (trān) n. 1. Abbr. tn. A series of connected railroad cars pulled or pushed by one or more locomotives. 2. A long line of moving people, animals, or vehicles. 3. The personnel, vehicles, and equipment following and providing supplies and services to a combat unit. 4. A part of a gown that trails behind the wearer. 5. A staff of people following in attendance; a retinue. 6. a. An orderly succession of related events or thoughts; a sequence. See Synonyms at series. b. A series of consequences wrought by an event; aftermath. 7. A set of linked mechanical parts: a train of gears. 8. A string of gunpowder that acts as a fuse for exploding a charge. — v. trained, train·ing, trains. — v. tr. 1. To coach in or accustom to a mode of behavior or performance. 2. To make proficient with specialized instruction and practice. See Synonyms at teach. 3. To prepare physically, as with a regimen: train athletes for track-and-field competition. 4. To cause (a plant or one's hair) to take a desired course or shape, as by manipulating. 5. To focus on or aim at (a goal, mark, or target); direct. See Synonyms at aim. 6. To let drag behind; trail. — v. intr. 1. To give or undergo a course of training: trained daily for the marathon. 2. To travel by railroad train. [Middle English, trailing part of a gown, from Old French, from trainer, to drag, from Vulgar Latin tragināre*, from tragere*, to pull, back-formation from trāctus, past participle of Latin trahere.] — train'a·bil'i·ty n. — train'a·ble adj.

train·band (trān'bānd') n. A company of trained militia in England or America from the 16th to the 18th century. [Contraction of trained band.]

train·bear·er (trān'bār'ər) n. An attendant who holds up the train of a robe or gown, as in a procession.

train·ee (trā-nē') n. One who is being trained. — train·ee'ship' n.

train·er (trā'nər) n. 1. One who trains, especially one who coaches athletes, racehorses, or show animals. 2. A contrivance or an apparatus used in training. 3. A member of a naval gun crew who trains cannons horizontally.

train·ing (trā'nĭng) n. Abbr. tng. 1. The process or routine of one who trains. 2. The state of being trained.

- training school (trā'ning skōōl) n. 1. A school that gives practical vocational and technical instruction. 2. A detention home that offers vocational training to juvenile offenders.
- training table (trā'ning tā'bəl) n. Sports. A table, as in a mess hall, providing planned meals for athletes in training.
- train-load (trān'lōd') n. The number of occupants or the amount of material that a passenger or freight train can hold.
- train-man (trān'mən) n. A member of the operating crew on a railroad train, especially the brakeman.
- train oil (trān oil) n. Oil obtained from the blubber of a whale or other marine animal. [Middle English trane, from Middle Dutch, tear, drop, train oil. See dakru- in Appendix.]
- traipse (trāps) v. intr. traipsed, traips-ing, traips-es. To walk or tramp about; gad. [Origin unknown.]
- trait (trāt) n. 1. A distinguishing feature, as of a person's character. See Synonyms at quality. 2. A genetically determined characteristic or condition: a recessive trait. 3. a. A stroke with or as if with a pencil. b. A slight degree or amount, as of a quality; a touch or trace: a sermon with a trait of humor. [Middle English, shot, from Old French, something drawn, shot, from Latin trāctus, a drawing out, line. See TRACT¹.]
- traitor (trā'tər) n. One who betrays one's country, a cause, or a trust, especially one who commits treason. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin trāditor, trāditōr-, from trādītus, past participle of trādere, to betray. See TRADITION.]
- traitor-ous (trā'tər-əs) adj. 1. Having the character of a traitor; disloyal. 2. Constituting treason: a traitorous act. See Synonyms at faithless. —traitor-ous-ly adv. —traitor-ous-ness n.
- Tra-jan (trā'jən), A.D. 53-117. Roman emperor (98-117) whose reign was marked by an extensive building program and compassionate treatment of the poor.
- tra-ject (trə-jěkt') v. tr. tra-ject-ed, tra-ject-ing, tra-jects. To transmit. [Latin trāiicere, trāiect-, to throw across : trā-, trāns-, trans- + iacere, to throw; see yē- in Appendix.] —tra-ject-ion n.
- tra-jec-to-ry (trə-jěk'tə-rē) n. pl. tra-jec-to-ries. 1. a. The path of a projectile or other moving body through space. b. A chosen course or a course taken: "a moral trajectory, a style of aspiration" (Lance Morrow). 2. Mathematics. A curve that cuts all of a given family of curves or surfaces at the same angle. [New Latin trāiectōria, feminine of trāiectōrius, from Latin trāiectus, past participle of trāiicere, to throw across. See TRAJECT.]

Tra·lee (trə-lē') An urban district of southwest Ireland at the head of Tralee Bay, an inlet of the Atlantic Ocean. Tralee is a seaport and manufacturing center. Population, 16,495.

tram¹ (trām) n. 1. Chiefly British. a. A streetcar. b. A streetcar line. 2. A cable car, especially one suspended from an overhead cable. 3. A four-wheeled, open, box-shaped wagon or iron car run on tracks in a coal mine. — v. tr. trammed, tram·ming, trams. To move or convey in a tram. [Scots, shaft of a barrow, probably from Middle Flemish.]

tram² (trām) n. 1. An instrument for gauging and adjusting machine parts; a trammel. 2. Accurate mechanical adjustment: The device is in tram. — v. tr. trammed, tram·ming, trams. To adjust or align (mechanical parts) with a trammel. [Short for TRAMMEL.]

tram³ (trām) n. A heavy silk thread used for the weft, or cross threads, in fine velvet or silk. [Middle English, contrivance, from Old French traime, contrivance, weft, from Latin trāma, weft, woof.]

tram·car (trām'kär') n. 1. Chiefly British. A streetcar. 2. A coal car in a mine.

tram·line (trām'līn') n. Chiefly British. A streetcar line.

tram·mel (trām'əl) n. 1. A shackle used to teach a horse to amble.

2. Something that restricts activity, expression, or progress; a restraint. 3. A vertically set fishing net of three layers, consisting of a finely meshed net between two nets of coarse mesh. 4. An instrument for describing ellipses. 5. An instrument for gauging and adjusting parts of a machine; a tram. 6. An arrangement of links and a hook in a fireplace for raising and lowering a kettle. — v. tr.

tram·meled or tram·melled, tram·mel·ing or tram·mel·ing, tram·mels or tram·mels. 1. To enmesh in or as if in a fishing net. See Synonyms at hamper¹. 2. To hinder the activity or free movement of. [Middle English tramale, a kind of net, from Old French tramail, from Late Latin trēmaculum: Latin trēs, three; see trei- in Appendix + Latin macula, mesh.] — tram'mel·er n.

tra·mon·tane (trə-mön'tān', trām'ən-tān') adj. 1. Dwelling beyond or coming from the far side of the mountains, especially the Alps as viewed from Italy.

2. From another country; foreign. — n. 1. A person who lives beyond the mountains. 2. A foreigner; a stranger. 3. A cold north wind in Italy. [Italian tramontano, from Latin trānsmontānus: trāns-, trans- + montānus, of a mountain; see MOUNTAIN.]

tramp (trämp) v. tramped, tramp·ing, tramps. — v. intr. 1. To walk with a firm, heavy step; trudge. 2. a. To travel on foot; hike. b. To wander about aimlessly. — v. tr. 1. To traverse on foot: tramp the fields. 2. To tread down; trample: tramp down snow. — n. 1. a. A heavy footfall. b. The sound produced by heavy walking or marching. 2. A walking trip; a hike. 3. One who travels aimlessly about on foot, doing odd jobs or begging for a living; a vagrant. 4. a. A prostitute. b. A person regarded as promiscuous. 5. Nautical. A tramp steamer.

6. A metal plate attached to the sole of a shoe for protection, as when spading ground. [Middle English trampen, to walk heavily, from Middle Low German.] —tramp'er n. —tramp'ish adj. —tramp'y adj.

tram·ple (trām'pəl) v. tram·pled, tram·pling, tram·ples. — v. tr. 1. To beat down with the feet so as to crush, bruise, or destroy; tramp on. 2. To treat harshly or ruthlessly: would trample anyone who got in their way. — v. intr.

1. To tread heavily or destructively: trampling on the flowers. 2. To inflict injury as if by treading heavily: "trampling on the feelings of those about you" (Thornton Wilder). — n. The action or sound of trampling. [Middle English trampelen, frequentative of trampen, to tramp. See TRAMP.] —tram'pler n.

tram·po·line (trām'pə-lēn', -līn) n. Sports. A strong, taut sheet, usually of canvas, attached with springs to a metal frame and used for gymnastic springing and tumbling. [Spanish trampolín, Italian trampolino (Italian, from Spanish) from trampoli, stilts, of Germanic origin.] —tram'po·lin'er, tram'po·lin'ist n.

tramp steamer (trāmp stē'mər) n. Nautical. A commercial vessel that has no regular schedule but takes on and discharges cargo whenever hired to do so.

tram·way (trām'wā') n. 1. A track or way for trams, as in a mine. 2. Chiefly British. A streetcar line. 3. A cable or system of cables for a cable car.

trance (trāns) n. 1. A hypnotic, cataleptic, or ecstatic state. 2. Detachment from one's physical surroundings, as in contemplation or daydreaming. 3. A semiconscious state, as between sleeping and waking; a daze. — v. tr. tranced, tranc·ing, tranc·es. To put into a trance; entrance. [Middle English traunce, from Old French transe, passage, fear, vision, from transir, to die, be numb with fear, from Latin trānsīre, to go over or across. See TRANSIENT.] —trance'like' adj.

trance channeling (trāns chān'ə-līng) n. Channeling. —trance chan·neler n.

tran·quil (trāng'kwəl, trān'-) adj. 1. Free from commotion or disturbance. See Synonyms at calm. 2. Free from anxiety, tension, or restlessness; composed. 3. Steady; even: a tranquil flame. [Middle English tranquill, from Latin tranquillus. See k^weiə- in Appendix.] —tran'quily adv. —tran'quill·ness n.

tran·quil·i·ty (trāng-kwīl'ī-tē, trān-) n. Variant of tranquillity.

tran·quil·ize also tran·quil·lize (trāng'kwə-līz', trān'-) v. tran·quil·ized also tran·quil·lized, tran·quil·iz·ing also tran·quil·liz·ing, tran·quil·iz·es also tran·quil·liz·es. — v. tr. 1. To make tranquil; pacify: "Nothing contributes so much to tranquilize the mind as a steady purpose" (Mary Wollstonecraft Shelley). 2. To sedate or relieve of anxiety or tension by the administration of a drug. — v. intr. 1. To become tranquil; relax. 2. To have a calming or soothing effect. —tran'quili·za'tion (-kwə-lī-zā'shən) n.

tran-quiet-iz-er (träŋg'kwə-līz'ər, trăn'-) n. 1. One that serves to tranquilize, as soothing music. 2. Any of various depressant drugs used to reduce tension or anxiety and to treat psychotic states.

tran-quiet-li-ty or tran-quiet-i-ty (träŋg-kwīl'ī-tē, trăn-) n. The quality or state of being tranquil; serenity.

tran-quiet-lize (träŋg'kwə-līz', trăn'-) v. Variant of tranquilize.

trans. abbr. 1. Transaction. 2. Transfer. 3. Grammar. Transitive.

4. a. Translated. b. Translation; translator. 5. Transportation. 6. Transpose; transposition. 7. Transverse.

trans- pref. 1. Across; on the other side; beyond: transpolar. 2. Through: transcontinental. 3. Change; transfer: transliterate. 4. Having a pair of identical atoms on opposite sides of two atoms linked by a double bond. Used of a geometric isomer: trans-butene. [From Latin trāns-, from trāns, across, beyond, through. See terə⁻² in Appendix.]

trans-act (trăn-săkt', -zăkt') v. trans-act-ed, trans-act-ing, trans-acts. — v. tr. To do, carry on, or conduct: transact business over the phone; transacting trade agreements. — v. intr. To conduct business: transacting with foreign leaders. [Latin trānsigere, trānsāct-: trāns-, trans- + agere, to drive, do; see ag- in Appendix.] — trans-ac'tor n.

trans-ac-ti-nide (trăn-săk'tə-nīd', -zăk') adj. Of or belonging to the series of elements whose atomic numbers are greater than 103.

trans-ac-tion (trăn-săk'shən, -zăk'-) n. Abbr. trans. 1. The act of transacting or the fact of being transacted. 2. Something transacted, especially a business agreement or exchange. 3. Communication involving two or more people that affects all those involved; personal interaction: “a rich sense of the transaction between writer and reader” (William Zinsser). 4. transactions. A record of business conducted at a meeting; proceedings. — trans-ac'tion-al adj.

transactional analysis (trăn-săk'shə-nəl ə-năl'ī-sīs) n. Abbr. TA A system of psychotherapy that analyzes personal relationships and interactions in terms of conflicting or complementary ego states that correspond to the roles of parent, child, and adult.

trans-ac-ti-vate (träns-ăk'tə-văt', tranz-) v. tr. trans-ac-ti-vat-ed, trans-ac-ti-vat-ing, trans-ac-ti-vates. To stimulate (a host cell) to replicate the genetic components of a virus. Used of a viral protein. — trans-ac-ti-va'tion n. — trans-ac'ti-va'tor n.

Trans A-lai (träns' ə-lī', trănz') A range of the Pamir Mountains in eastern Tadzhikistan and southern Kirghiz rising to 7,138.5 m (23,405 ft).

trans-al-pine (träns-ăl'pīn', trănz-) adj. Relating to, living on, or coming from the other side of the Alps, especially as viewed from Italy.

Trans-al-pine Gaul (träns-ăl'pīn' gôl', trănz-) The part of ancient Gaul northwest of the Alps, including modern France and Belgium.

trans-am-i-nase (trǎns-ǎm'ə-nās', -nāz', trǎnz-) n. Any of a group of enzymes that catalyze transamination.

trans-am-i-na-tion (trǎns-ǎm'ə-nā'shən, trǎnz-) n. 1. Transfer of an amino group from one chemical compound to another. 2. Transposition of an amino group within a chemical compound.

trans-at-lan-tic (trǎns'ət-lǎn'tik, trǎnz'-) adj. 1. Situated on or coming from the other side of the Atlantic Ocean. 2. Spanning or crossing the Atlantic Ocean.

trans-ax-le (trǎns-ǎk'səl, trǎnz-) n. An automotive part that combines the transmission and the differential and is used on vehicles with front-wheel drive. [TRANS(MISSION) + AXLE.]

Trans-cau-ca-sia (trǎns'kô-kā'zhə, -zhē-ə, trǎnz'-) A region of Georgia, Armenia, and Azerbaijan between the Caucasus Mountains and the borders of Turkey and Iran. —Trans'cau-ca'sian adj. & n.

trans-ceiv-er (trǎn-sē'vər) n. A transmitter and receiver housed together in a single unit and having some circuits in common, often for portable or mobile use. [TRANS(MITTER) + (RE)CEIVER.]

tran-scend (trǎn-sĕnd') v. tran-scend-ed, tran-scend-ing, tran-scends. — v. tr. 1. To pass beyond the limits of: emotions that transcend understanding. 2. To be greater than, as in intensity or power; surpass: love that transcends infatuation. See Synonyms at excel. 3. To exist above and independent of (material experience or the universe): “One never can see the thing in itself, because the mind does not transcend phenomena” (Hilaire Belloc). — v. intr. To be transcendent; excel. [Middle English transcenden, from Old French transcendre, from Latin trānscondere: trāns-, trans- + scandere, to climb; see skand- in Appendix.]

tran-scen-dent (trǎn-sĕn'dənt) adj. 1. Surpassing others; preeminent or supreme. 2. Lying beyond the ordinary range of perception: “fails to achieve a transcendent significance in suffering and squalor” (National Review). 3. Philosophy. a. Transcending the Aristotelian categories. b. In Kant's theory of knowledge, being beyond the limits of experience and hence unknowable. 4. Being above and independent of the material universe. Used of the Deity. —tran-scen'dence, tran-scen'den-cy n. —tran-scen'dent-ly adv.

tran-scen-den-tal (trǎn'sĕn-dĕn'tl) adj. 1. Philosophy. a. Concerned with the a priori or intuitive basis of knowledge as independent of experience. b. Asserting a fundamental irrationality or supernatural element in experience. 2. Surpassing all others; superior. 3. Beyond common thought or experience; mystical or supernatural. 4. Mathematics. a. Not capable of being determined by any combination of a finite number of equations with rational integral coefficients. b. Not expressible as an integer or as the root or quotient of integers. Used of numbers, especially nonrepeating infinite decimals. —tran'scen-den'tal-ly adv.

tran·scen·den·tal·ism (trăn'sĕn-dĕn'tl-ĭz'əm) n. 1. A philosophy associated with Kant, holding that one must transcend empiricism or what is experienced in order to ascertain the a priori principles of all knowledge. 2. A literary and philosophical movement, associated with Ralph Waldo Emerson and Margaret Fuller, asserting the existence of an ideal spiritual reality that transcends the empirical and scientific and is knowable through intuition. 3. The quality or state of being transcendental. —tran'scen·den'tal·ist n.

transcendental meditation (trăn'sĕn-dĕn'tl mĕd'ĭ-tā'shən) n. Abbr.

T.M. A technique of meditation derived from Hindu traditions that promotes deep relaxation through the use of a mantra.

trans·con·ti·nen·tal (trăns'kŏn-tə-nĕn'tl) adj. Spanning or crossing a continent.

tran·scribe (trăn-skrĭb') v. tr. tran·scribed, tran·scrib·ing, tran·scribes.

1. To make a full written or typewritten copy of (dictated material, for example). 2. Computer Science. To transfer (information) from one recording and storing system to another. 3. Music. To adapt or arrange (a composition) for a voice or an instrument other than the original. 4. To record, usually on tape, for broadcast at a later date. 5. Linguistics. To represent (speech sounds) by phonetic symbols. 6. To translate or transliterate. 7. Biology. To cause (DNA or RNA) to undergo transcription. [Latin trānscribere: trāns-, trans- + scribere, to write; see skrihb- in Appendix.] —tran·scrib'a·ble adj. —tran·scrib'er n.

tran·script (trăn'skrĭpt') n. 1. Something transcribed, especially a written, typewritten, or printed copy: the transcript of court testimony; an academic transcript. 2. Biology. A sequence of RNA produced by transcription. [Middle English, from Medieval Latin trānscriptum, from Latin, neuter past participle of trānscribere, to transcribe. See TRANSCRIBE.]

tran·scrip·tase (trăn-skrĭp'tās, -tāz) n. 1. A polymerase that catalyzes the formation of RNA from a DNA template in the process of transcription. 2. Reverse transcriptase.

tran·scrip·tion (trăn-skrĭp'shən) n. 1. The act or process of transcribing.

2. Something that has been transcribed, especially: a. Music. An adaptation of a composition. b. A recorded radio or television program. c. Linguistics. A representation of speech sounds in phonetic symbols. 3. Biology. The process by which messenger RNA is synthesized from a DNA template resulting in the transfer of genetic information from the DNA molecule to the messenger RNA.

—tran·scrip'tion·al adj. —tran·scrip'tion·al·ly adv. —tran·scrip'tion·ist n.

trans·cul·tu·ra·tion (trăns'kŭl-chə-rā'shən) n. Cultural change induced by introduction of elements of a foreign culture.

trans·cur·rent (trăns-kŭr'ənt, -kŭr'-) adj. Extending or running transversely.

trans·cu·ta·ne·ous (trăns'kyŏō-tā'nĕ-əs) adj. Transdermal.

trans-der-mal (trāns-dûr'məl, trānz-) n. Through or by way of the skin: transdermal inoculation; transdermal medication.

transdermal patch (trāns-dûr'məl päch) n. A medicated adhesive pad that is placed on the skin to deliver a time-release dose of medication through the skin into the bloodstream. Also called skin patch trans-duce (trāns-dōos', -dyōos', trānz-) v. tr. trans-duced, trans-duc-ing, trans-duc-es. 1. To convert (energy) from one form to another. 2. To transfer (genetic material or characteristics) from one bacterial cell to another. Used of a bacteriophage or plasmid. [Back-formation from TRANSDUCER.]

trans-duc-er (trāns-dōō'sər, -dyōō'-, trānz-) n. A substance or device, such as a piezoelectric crystal, microphone, or photoelectric cell, that converts input energy of one form into output energy of another. [From Latin trānsdūcere, to transfer : trāns-, trans- + dūcere, to lead; see deuk- in Appendix.]

trans-duc-tant (trāns-dūk'tənt, trānz-) n. A bacterial cell into which genetic material has been transduced.

trans-duc-tion (trāns-dūk'shən, trānz-) n. Genetics. Transfer of genetic material or characteristics from one bacterial cell to another by a bacteriophage or plasmid. [From Latin transductus, past participle of trānsdūcere, to transfer. See TRANSDUCER.] —trans-duc-tion-al adj.

tran-sect (trān-sěkt') v. tr. tran-sect-ed, tran-sect-ing, tran-sects. To divide by cutting transversely. [TRANS- + -SECT.] —tran-sec-tion n.

tran-sept (trān'sěpt') n. Architecture. 1. The transverse part of a cruciform church, crossing the nave at right angles. 2. Either of the two lateral arms of such a part. [New Latin trānseptum : Latin trāns-, trans- + Latin saeptum, partition; see SEPTUM.]

tran-se-unt (trān'sē-ənt) adj. Philosophy. Productive of effects outside the mind. [Latin trānsiēns, trānseunt- present participle of trānsīre, to go over. See TRANSIENT.]

transf. abbr. 1. Transfer. 2. Transferred.

trans-fec-tion (trāns-fěk'shən) n. Infection of a cell with purified viral nucleic acid, resulting in subsequent replication of the virus in the cell. [TRANS- + (IN)FECTION.] —trans-fect' v.

trans-fer (trāns-fûr', trāns'fər) v. trans-ferred, trans-fer-ring, trans-fers. — v. tr. 1. To convey or cause to pass from one place, person, or thing to another. 2. Law. To make over the possession or legal title of; convey. 3. To convey (a design, for example) from one surface to another, as by impression. — v. intr. 1. To move oneself from one location or job to another. 2. To withdraw from one educational institution or course of study and enroll in another. 3. To change from one public conveyance to another: transferred to another bus. — n. (trāns'fər) Abbr. trans., transf., tfr. 1. Also trans-fer-al (trāns-fûr'əl). The conveyance or removal of something from one place, person, or thing to another.

2. One who transfers or is transferred, as to a new school. 3. A design conveyed by contact from one surface to another. 4. a. A ticket entitling a passenger to change from one public conveyance to another as part of one trip. b. A place where such a change is made. 5. Also transferral. Law. A conveyance of title or property from one person to another. [Middle English transferren, from Old French transferer, from Latin trānsferre: trāns-, trans- + ferre, to carry; see bher-¹ in Appendix.] —trans-fer'a-bil'i-ty n. —trans-fer'a-ble, trans-fer'ra-ble adj. —trans-fer'rer n.

trans-fer-al (trāns-fûr'əl) n. 1. Variant of transfer (n., sense 1). 2. Law. Variant of transfer (n., sense 5).

trans-fer-ase (trāns'fə-rās', -rāz') n. Any of various enzymes that catalyze the transfer of a chemical group, such as a phosphate or an amine, from one molecule to another.

trans-fer-ee (trāns'fə-rē') n. 1. Law. One to whom a conveyance of title or property is made. 2. One who is transferred.

trans-fer-ence (trāns-fûr'əns, trāns'fər-əns) n. 1. a. The act or process of transferring. b. The fact of being transferred. 2. In psychoanalysis, the process by which emotions and desires originally associated with one person, such as a parent or sibling, are unconsciously shifted to another person, especially to the analyst. —trans'fer-en'tial (trāns'fə-rən'shəl) adj.

transfer factor (trāns-fûr' fāk'tər) n. A polypeptide secreted by lymphocytes that is capable of transferring immunity from one cell or individual to another.

trans-fer-or (trāns'fə-rôr') n. Law. One who conveys a title or property.

trans-fer-rin (trāns-fēr'ŷin) n. A beta globulin in blood serum that combines with and transports iron. [TRANS- + FERR(O)- + -IN.]

transfer RNA (trāns-fûr' är'ən-ā') n. One of a class of RNA molecules that transport amino acids to ribosomes for incorporation into a polypeptide undergoing synthesis. Also called tRNA trans-fig-u-ra-tion (trāns-fĭg'yə-rā'shən) n. 1. a. A marked change in form or appearance; a metamorphosis. b. A change that glorifies or exalts.

2. Transfiguration. a. The sudden emanation of radiance from the person of Jesus that occurred on the mountain. b. The Christian feast commemorating this event, observed on August 6 and, in the Eastern Orthodox Church, on August 19.

trans-fig-ure (trāns-fĭg'yər) v. tr. trans-fig-ured, trans-fig-ur-ing, trans-fig-ures. 1. To alter the outward appearance of; transform. See Synonyms at convert. 2. To exalt or glorify. [Middle English transfiguren, from Old French transfigurer, from Latin trānsfigūrāre: trāns-, trans- + figūra, form; see dheigh- in Appendix.] —trans-fig'ure-ment n.

trans-fi-nite (trāns-fĭ'nīt') adj. Going beyond the finite.

transfinite number (trǎns-fi'nīt' nüm'bər) n. Mathematics. A number that is greater than any finite number.

trans-fix (trǎns-fiks') v. tr. trans-fixed, trans-fix-ing, trans-fix-es. 1. To pierce with or as if with a pointed weapon. 2. To fix fast; impale. 3. To render motionless, as with terror, amazement, or awe. [Latin trānsfigere, trānsfix- : trāns-, trans- + figere, to pierce, fasten; see dhīg^w- in Appendix.]

—trans-fix'ion (-fik'shən) n.

trans-form (trǎns-fôrm') v. trans-formed, trans-form-ing, trans-forms.
— v. tr. 1. To change markedly the appearance or form of: “A thick, fibrous fog had transformed the trees into ghosts and the streetlights into soft, haloed moons” (David Michael Kaplan). 2. To change the nature, function, or condition of; convert. See Synonyms at convert. 3. Mathematics. To subject to a transformation. 4. Linguistics. To subject (a construction) to a transformation. 5. Electricity. To subject to the action of a transformer. 6. Genetics. To subject (a bacterial cell) to transformation. — v. intr. To undergo a transformation. — n. (trǎns'fôrm') The result, especially a mathematical quantity or linguistic construction, of a transformation. [Middle English transformen, from Old French transformer, from Latin trānsfōrmāre : trāns-, trans- + fōrma, form.] —trans-form'a-ble adj.

trans-for-ma-tion (trǎns'fər-mā'shən, -fôr-) n. 1. a. The act or an instance of transforming. b. The state of being transformed. 2. A marked change, as in appearance or character, usually for the better. 3. Mathematics. a. Replacement of the variables in an algebraic expression by their values in terms of another set of variables. b. A mapping of one space onto another or onto itself. 4. Linguistics. a. The process of converting a syntactic construction into a semantically equivalent construction according to the rules shown to generate the syntax of the language. b. A construction derived by such transformation; a transform. 5. Genetics. Alteration of a bacterial cell by introduction of DNA from another cell or from a virus. —trans-form'a-tive (-fôr'mə-tīv) adj.

trans-for-ma-tion-al grammar (trǎns'fər-mā'shə-nəl grām'ər, -fôr-) n. Abbr. TG Linguistics. A grammar that accounts for the constructions of a language by linguistic transformations and phrase structures, especially generative transformational grammar.

trans-form-er (trǎns-fôr'mər) n. A device used to transfer electric energy from one circuit to another, especially a pair of multiply wound, inductively coupled wire coils that effect such a transfer with a change in voltage, current, phase, or other electric characteristic.

trans-fuse (trǎns-fyōōz') v. tr. trans-fused, trans-fus-ing, trans-fus-es. 1. To pour (something) out of one vessel into another. 2. To cause to be instilled or imparted: transfused a love of learning to her children. 3. To diffuse through; permeate: a glade that was transfused with sunlight. 4. Medicine. To administer a transfusion of or to. [Middle English transfusen, to transmit, from Latin trānsfundere, trānsfūs-, to transfuse : trāns-, trans- + fundere, to pour; see gheu- in Appendix.] —trans-fus'er n. —trans-fus'i-ble, trans-fus'a-ble adj.

—trans-fu'sive (-fyōō'siv, -ziv) adj.

trans-fu-sion (trāns-fyōō'zhən) n. 1. The act or process of transfusing.

2. Medicine. The transfer of whole blood or blood products from one individual to another. —trans-fu'sion-al adj.

trans-gen-ic (trāns-jěn'ik, trānz-) adj. Carrying genes transferred from another species or breed: a transgenic animal; transgenic chickens.

trans-gress (trāns-grēs', trānz-) v. trans-gressed, trans-gress-ing, trans-gress-es. — v. tr. 1. To go beyond or over (a limit or boundary); exceed or overstep: “to make sure that her characters didn't transgress the parameters of ordinariness” (Ron Rosenbaum). 2. To act in violation of (the law, for example).

— v. intr. 1. To commit an offense by violating a law or command; sin. 2. To spread over land, especially over the land along a subsiding shoreline. Used of the sea. [Middle English transgressen, from Old French transgresser, from Latin trānsgradī, trānsgress-, to step across : trāns-, trans- + gradī, to go; see ghredh- in Appendix.] —trans-gress'i-ble adj. —trans-gres'sive adj. —trans-gres'-sive-ly adv. —trans-gres'sor n.

trans-gres-sion (trāns-grēsh'ən, trānz-) n. 1. A violation of a law, command, or duty: “The same transgressions should be visited with equal severity on both man and woman” (Elizabeth Cady Stanton). See Synonyms at breach. 2. The exceeding of due bounds or limits. 3. The spread of the sea over land along a subsiding shoreline.

tran-ship (trān-shīp') v. Variant of transship.

trans-hu-mance (trāns-hyōō'məns, trānz-) n. Transfer of livestock from one grazing ground to another, as from lowlands to highlands, with the changing of seasons. [French, from transhumer, to move livestock seasonally, from Spanish trashumar : Latin trāns-, trans- + Latin humus, ground; see dhghem- in Appendix.] —trans-hu'mant adj. & n.

tran-sience (trān'shəns, -zhəns, -zē-əns) also tran-sien-cy (-shən-sē, -zhən-, -zē-ən-) n. The state or quality of being transient.

tran-sient (trān'shənt, -zhənt, -zē-ənt) adj. 1. Passing with time; transitory: “the transient beauty of youth” (Lydia M. Child). 2. Remaining in a place only a brief time: transient laborers. 3. Physics. Decaying with time, especially as a simple exponential function of time. — n. 1. One that is transient, especially a hotel guest or boarder who stays for only a brief time. 2. Physics. A transient phenomenon or property, especially a transient electric current. [Alteration of Latin trānsiēns, trānseunt- present participle of trānsīre, to go over : trāns, over; see terə-² in Appendix + īre, to go; see ei- in Appendix.] —tran'sient-ly adv.

SYNONYMS: transient, transitory, ephemeral, fleeting, fugitive, momentary, evanescent. These adjectives mean lasting, existing, or staying for a short time. Transient usually refers to what remains only briefly: We stayed at the inn as transient guests. "The moods were many and transient" (W.H. Hudson). Transitory more often means inherently short-lived or impermanent: "This false world is but transitory" (William Dunbar). "Action is transitory—a step, a blow,/The motion of a muscle, this way or that—'Tis done" (William Wordsworth). Ephemeral, which in its original sense means living or lasting only for a day, implies conspicuously brief existence or duration: "the old universal truths lacking which any story is ephemeral and doomed" (William Faulkner). Fleeting is applied to what slips away swiftly, often more swiftly than one would wish: "Art is long, and Time is fleeting" (Henry Wadsworth Longfellow). Fugitive especially describes what is elusive or quickly fades: "I cannot praise a fugitive... virtue, unexercised and unbreathed, that never sallies out and sees her adversary" (John Milton). Momentary implies the brevity of or as if of a single moment: I had some momentary misgivings that were quickly resolved. Evanescent suggests that something disappears like vapor: "The incidents which give excellence to biography are of a volatile and evanescent kind" (Samuel Johnson).

transient ischemic attack (trănz'ishənt ĭ-skē'mĭk ə-tăk') n. A temporary blockage of the blood supply to the brain caused by a blood clot and usually lasting ten minutes or less, during which dizziness, blurring of vision, numbness on one side of the body, and other symptoms of a stroke may occur. Also called ministroke trans-il-lu-mi-na-tion (trănz'ĭ-lōō'mə-nā'shən, trănz'-) n. Medicine. The passing of a light through the walls of a body part or organ to facilitate medical inspection. —trans'il-lu'mi-nate' (-lōō'mə-nāt') v. —trans'il-lu'mi-na'tor n.

tran-sis-tor (trănz-ĭs'tər, -sĭs'-) n. 1. A small electronic device containing a semiconductor and having at least three electrical contacts, used in a circuit as an amplifier, a detector, or a switch. 2. A transistor radio. [TRANS(FER) + (RES)ISTOR.]

tran-sis-tor-ize (trănz-ĭs'tə-rĭz', -sĭs'-) v. tr. tran-sis-tor-ized, tran-sis-tor-iz-ing, tran-sis-tor-iz-es. To equip (an electronic circuit or device) with transistors.

transistor radio (trănz-ĭs'tər rā'dē-ō) n. A small portable radio using transistorized circuitry.

tran-sit (trănz'sĭt, -zĭt) n. Abbr. t. 1. The act of passing over, across, or through; passage. 2. Conveyance of people or goods from one place to another, especially on a local public transportation system. 3. A transition or change, as to a spiritual existence at death. 4. Astronomy. a. The passage of a celestial body across the observer's meridian. b. The passage of a smaller celestial body or its shadow across the disk of a larger celestial body. 5. A surveying instrument similar to a theodolite that measures horizontal and vertical angles. — v. tran-sit-ed, tran-sit-ing, tran-sits. — v. tr. 1. To pass over, across, or through: aircraft transiting the United States and Canada. 2. To revolve (the telescope of a surveying transit) about its horizontal transverse axis in order to reverse its direction. — v. intr. Astronomy. To make a transit. [Middle English transite, from Latin trānsitus, from past participle of trānsīre, to go across. See TRANSIENT.]

tran-si-tion (trăn-zîsh'ən, -sîsh'-) n. 1. Passage from one form, state, style, or place to another. 2. a. Passage from one subject to another in discourse. b. A word, phrase, sentence, or series of sentences connecting one part of a discourse to another. 3. Music. a. A modulation, especially a brief one. b. A passage connecting two themes. —tran-si'tion-al, tran-si'tion-ar'y (-zîsh'-ə-nēr'ē) adj. —tran-si'tion-al-ly adv.

transition element (trăn-zîsh'ən ěl'ə-mənt) n. Any of the metallic elements that have an incomplete inner electron shell and that serve as transitional links between the most and the least electropositive in a series of elements. They are characterized by multiple valences, colored compounds, and the ability to form stable complex ions.

transition metal (trăn-zîsh'ən mět'l) n. A transition element.

transition region (trăn-zîsh'ən rē'jən) n. A zone in a seed plant where the vascular tissue of the root changes into the vascular tissue of the stem.

tran-si-tive (trăn'sî-tîv, -zî-) adj. 1. Abbr. t., tr., trans. Grammar. Expressing an action that is carried from the subject to the object; requiring a direct object to complete meaning. Used of a verb or verb construction. 2. Characterized by or involving transition. — n. Abbr. t., tr., trans. Grammar. A transitive verb.

[Late Latin trānsitīvus, passing over, from trānsitus, past participle of trānsīre, to go over. See TRANSIENT.] —tran'si-tive-ly adv. —tran'si-tive-ness, tran'si-tiv'i-ty n.

transit lounge (trăn'sît lounj) n. A waiting room in an airport used typically by international travelers on layovers.

tran-si-to-ry (trăn'sî-tôr'ē, -tôr'ē, trăn'zî-) adj. Existing or lasting only a short time; short-lived or temporary: "the disorder of his life: the succession of cities, of transitory loves" (Carson McCullers). See Synonyms at transient. [Middle English transitorie, from Old French transitoire, from Late Latin trānsitōrius, from Latin, having a passageway, from trānsitus, passage. See TRANSIT.]

—tran'si-to'ri-ly adv. —tran'si-to'ri-ness n.

Trans-jor-dan (trăns'jôr'dn, trănz'-) See Jordan. —Trans'jor-da'ni-an (-jôr-dā'nē-ən) adj. & n.

Trans·kei (trăns-kā', -kī') An internally self-governing Black African homeland in southeast South Africa on the Indian Ocean coast. It was designated a semiautonomous territory in 1963 and granted nominal independence in 1976. Umtata is the capital. Population, 2,400,000. —Trans·kei'an adj. & n.

transl. abbr. 1. Translated. 2. Translation.

trans·late (trăns-lāt', trănz-, trăns'lāt', trănz'-) v. trans·lat·ed, trans·lat·ing, trans·lates. — v. tr. 1. To render in another language. 2. a. To put into simpler terms; explain or interpret. b. To express in different words; paraphrase. 3. a. To change from one form, function, or state to another; convert or transform: translate ideas into reality. b. To express in another medium.

4. To transfer from one place or condition to another. 5. To forward or retransmit (a telegraphic message). 6. a. Ecclesiastical. To transfer (a bishop) to another see. b. Theology. To convey to heaven without death. 7. Physics. To subject (a body) to translation. 8. Biology. To subject (messenger RNA) to translation.

9. Archaic. To enrapture. — v. intr. 1. a. To make a translation. b. To work as a translator. 2. To admit of translation. 3. To be changed or transformed in effect. Often used with into or to: "Today's low inflation and steady growth in household income translate into more purchasing power" (Thomas G. Exter).

[Middle English translaten, from Old French translater, from Latin trāns-lātus, past participle of trānsferre, to transfer : trāns-, trans- + lātus, brought; see tel- in Appendix.] —trans·lat'a·bil'i·ty, trans·lat'a·ble·ness n.

—trans·lat'a·ble adj.

trans·la·tion (trăns-lā'shən, trănz-) n. Abbr. tr., trans., transl. 1. a. The act or process of translating, especially from one language into another. b. The state of being translated. 2. A translated version of a text. 3. Physics. Motion of a body in which every point of the body moves parallel to and the same distance as every other point of the body; nonrotational displacement. 4. Biology. The process by which messenger RNA directs the amino acid sequence of a growing polypeptide during protein synthesis. —trans·la'tion·al adj.

trans·la·tor (trăns-lā'tər, trănz-, trăns'lā'tər, trănz'-) n. Abbr. tr., trans.

1. One that translates, especially one employed to render written works into another language. 2. An interpreter. —trans'la·to'ri·al (-lā-tôr'ē-əl, -tôr'-) adj.

trans·lit·er·ate (trăns-līt'ə-rāt', trănz-) v. tr. trans·lit·er·at·ed, trans·lit·er·at·ing, trans·lit·er·ates. To represent (letters or words) in the corresponding characters of another alphabet. [TRANS- + Latin littera, littera, letter + -ATE¹.] —trans·lit'er·a'tion n.

trans·lo·cate (trăns-lō'kāt', trănz-) v. tr. trans·lo·cat·ed, trans·lo·cat·ing, trans·lo·cates. 1. To cause to change from one place or position to another; displace. 2. To transfer (a chromosomal segment) to a new position; cause to undergo translocation.

trans-lo-ca-tion (trǎns'lō-kā'shən, trǎnz'-) n. 1. A change of location.

2. Genetics. a. A transfer of a chromosomal segment to a new position, especially on a nonhomologous chromosome. b. A chromosomal segment that is translocated.

trans-lu-cent (trǎns-lōō'sənt, trǎnz-) adj. 1. Transmitting light but causing sufficient diffusion to prevent perception of distinct images. 2. Clear; lucid.

[Latin trānslūcēns, trānslūcent- present participle of trānslūcēre, to shine through : trāns-, trans- + lūcēre, to shine; see leuk- in Appendix.] —trans-lu'cence, trans-lu'cen-cy n. —trans-lu'cent-ly adv.

trans-lu-nar (trǎns'lōō'nər, trǎnz'-, trǎns-lōō'-, trǎnz-) adj. Extending beyond the moon or the moon's orbit around Earth.

trans-ma-rine (trǎns'mə-rēn', trǎnz'-) adj. 1. Crossing the sea. 2. Beyond or coming from across the sea. [Latin trānsmarīnus : trāns-, trans- + marīnus, of the sea; see MARINE.]

trans-mem-brane (trǎns-mēm'brān, trǎnz-) adj. Passing or occurring across a membrane.

trans-mi-grant (trǎns-mī'grənt, trǎnz-) n. 1. One that transmigrates. 2. One in transit through a country on the way to the country in which one intends to settle.

trans-mi-grate (trǎns-mī'grāt', trǎnz-) v. intr. trans-mi-grat-ed, trans-mi-grat-ing, trans-mi-grates. 1. To migrate. 2. To pass into another body after death. Used of the soul. [Latin trānsmigrāre, trānsmigrāt- : trāns-, trans- + migrāre, to migrate; see MIGRATE.] —trans-mi'gra'tor n.

—trans-mi'gra-to'ry (-mī'grə-tōr'ē, -tōr'ē) adj.

trans-mi-gra-tion (trǎns'mī-grā'shən, trǎnz'-) n. 1. The act or process of transmigrating. 2. The passing of a soul into another body after death; reincarnation. —trans'mi-gra'tion-ism n.

trans-mis-si-ble (trǎns-mīs'ə-bəl, trǎnz-) adj. That can be transmitted: transmissible messages; transmissible signals. —trans-mis'si-bil'i-ty n.

trans-mis-sion (trǎns-mīsh'ən, trǎnz-) n. 1. a. The act or process of transmitting. b. The fact of being transmitted. 2. Something, such as a message, that is transmitted. 3. An automotive assembly of gears and associated parts by which power is transmitted from the engine to a driving axle. Also called gearbox. 4. The sending of a signal, picture, or other information from a transmitter. [Latin trānsmissiō, trānsmissiōn-, a sending across, from trānsmissus, past participle of trānsmittere, to transmit. See TRANSMIT.] —trans-mis'sive (-mīs'iv) adj.

trans-mis-som-e-ter (trǎns'mī-sōm'ī-tər, trǎnz'-) n. A device used to measure transmission of light through a medium. [TRANSMISS(ION) + -METER.]

—trans'mis-som'e-try n.

trans-mit (trǎns-mīt', trǎnz-) v. trans-mit-ted, trans-mit-ting, trans-mits.

— v. tr. 1. To send from one person, thing, or place to another; convey. See Syn- onyms at convey. See Synonyms at send¹. 2. To cause to spread; pass on: transmit an infection. 3. To impart or convey to others by heredity or inheritance; hand down. 4. To pass along (news or information); communicate.

5. a. Electronics. To send (a signal), as by wire or radio. b. Physics. To cause (a disturbance) to propagate through a medium. 6. To convey (force or energy) from one part of a mechanism to another. — v. intr. To send out a signal. [Middle English transmitten, from Latin trāsmittere: trāns-, trans- + mittere, to send.] —trans·mit'·ta·ble adj.

trans·mit·tal (trāns-mīt'əl, trānz-) n. The act or process of transmitting; a transmission.

trans·mit·tance (trāns-mīt'ns, trānz-) n. 1. A transmission. 2. Physics. The ratio of the radiant energy transmitted to the total radiant energy incident on a given body.

trans·mit·ter (trāns-mīt'ər, trānz-) n. 1. One that transmits: a transmitter of disease; a transmitter of tall tales. 2. a. An electronic device that generates and amplifies a carrier wave, modulates it with a meaningful signal derived from speech or other sources, and radiates the resulting signal from an antenna. b. The portion of a telephone that converts the incident sounds into electrical impulses that are conveyed to a remote receiver. c. A telegraphic sending instrument.

trans·mit·ter·re·ceiv·er (trāns-mīt'ər-rī-sē'vər, trānz-) n. An electronic device that both transmits and receives communications signals.

trans·mog·ri·fy (trāns-mög'rə-fī', trānz-) v. tr. trans·mog·ri·fied (-fīd'), trans·mog·ri·fy·ing, trans·mog·ri·fies (-fīz'). To change into a different shape or form, especially one that is fantastic or bizarre. See Synonyms at convert. [Origin unknown.] —trans·mog'ri·fi·ca'tion (-fī-kā'shən) n.

trans·mon·tane (trāns-mōn'tān', trānz-, trāns'mōn-tān', trānz'-) adj. Tramontane. [Latin trāsmontānus. See TRAMONTANE.]

trans·mun·dane (trāns'mūn-dān', trānz'-, trāns'mūn'dā', trānz-) adj. Existing or extending beyond the physical world.

trans·mu·ta·tion (trāns'myōō-tā'shən, trānz'-) n. 1. a. The act or an instance of transmuting; transformation. b. The state of being transmuted. 2. Physics. Transformation of one element into another by one or a series of nuclear reactions. 3. The supposed conversion of base metals into gold or silver in alchemy. —trans'mu·ta'tion·al, trans·mut'a·tive (-myōō'tə-tīv) adj.

trans·mute (trāns-myōōt', trānz-) v. trans·mut·ed, trans·mut·ing, trans·mutes. — v. tr. To change from one form, nature, substance, or state into another; transform: "the tendency to transmute what has become customary into what has been divinely ordained" (Suzanne LaFollette). See Synonyms at convert. — v. intr. To undergo transmutation. [Middle English transmuten, from Latin trāsmūtāre: trāns-, trans- + mūtāre, to change; see mei¹ in Appendix.] —trans-mut'a-bil'i-ty, trans-mut'a-ble-ness n. —trans-mut'a-ble adj. —trans-mut'a-bly adv. —trans-mut'er n.

trans-na-tion-al (trāns-nāsh'ə-nəl, trānz-) adj. 1. Reaching beyond or transcending national boundaries: “the transnational ramifications of terror networks” (Emanuel Litvinoff). 2. Relating to or involving several nations or nationalities: transnational organizations.

trans-o-ce-an-ic (trāns'ō-shē-ān'ik, trānz'-) adj. 1. Situated beyond or on the other side of the ocean. 2. Spanning or crossing the ocean.

tran-som (trān'səm) n. 1. a. A horizontal crosspiece over a door or between a door and a window above it. b. A small hinged window above a door or another window. 2. A horizontal dividing bar of wood or stone in a window. 3. A lintel. 4. Nautical. a. Any of several transverse beams affixed to the sternpost of a wooden ship and forming part of the stern. b. The aftermost transverse structural member in a steel ship, including the floor, frame, and beam assembly at the sternpost. c. The stern of a square-sterned boat when it is a structural member. 5. The horizontal beam on a cross or gallows. [Middle English traunsom, probably alteration of Latin trānstrum, cross-beam, from trāns, across. See TRANS-.]

tran-son-ic (trān-sōn'ik) adj. Of or relating to aerodynamic flow or flight conditions at speeds close to the speed of sound. [TRAN(S)- + SONIC.]

transp. abbr. Transportation.

trans-pa-cif-ic (trāns'pə-sif'ik, trānz'-) adj. 1. Situated on or coming from the other side of the Pacific Ocean. 2. Spanning or crossing the Pacific Ocean.

trans-par-en-cy (trāns-pār'ən-sē, -pār'-) n. pl. trans-par-en-cies. 1. A transparent object, especially a photographic slide that is viewed by light shining through it from behind or by projection. 2. Also trans-par-ence (-pār'əns, -pār'-). The quality or state of being transparent.

trans-par-ent (trāns-pār'ənt, -pār'-) adj. 1. Capable of transmitting light so that objects or images can be seen as if there were no intervening material. See Synonyms at clear. 2. Permeable to electromagnetic radiation of specified frequencies, as to visible light or radio waves. 3. So fine in texture that it can be seen through; sheer. See Synonyms at airy. 4. a. Easily seen through or detected; obvious: transparent lies. b. Free from guile; candid or open: transparent sincerity. 5. Obsolete. Shining through; luminous. [Middle English, from Old French, from Medieval Latin trānspārēns, trānspārent- present participle of trānspārēre, to show through : Latin trāns-, trans- + Latin pārēre, to show.] —trans-par'ent-ly adv. —trans-par'ent-ness n.

trans-per-son-al (trāns-pūr'sə-nəl, trānz-) adj. Transcending or reaching beyond the personal or individual.

tran-spic-u-ous (trān-spik'yōō-əs) adj. Easily understood or seen through: transpicuous motives. [From New Latin trānspiciuus, from Latin trānspicere, to see through : trāns-, trans- + specere, to look at; see spek- in Appendix.]

tran-spi-ra-tion (trăn'spə-rā'shən) n. The act or process of transpiring, especially through the stomata of plant tissue or the pores of the skin.

—tran'spi-ra'tion-al adj.

tran-spire (trăn-spīr') v. tran-spired, tran-spir-ing, tran-spires. — v. tr. To give off (vapor containing waste products) through the pores of the skin or the stomata of plant tissue. — v. intr. 1. To become known; come to light. 2. Usage Problem. To come about; happen or occur. 3. To give off vapor containing waste products, as through animal or plant pores. [French transpirer, from Medieval Latin trānspirāre: Latin trāns-, trans- + Latin spīrāre, to breathe.]

USAGE NOTE: Transpire has been used since the mid-18th century in the sense “leak out, become publicly known,” as in Despite efforts to hush the matter up, it soon transpired that the colonels had met with the rebel leaders. This usage was objected to as a Gallicism when it was first introduced but has long been standard. The more common use of transpire to mean “occur” or “happen” has had a more troubled history. Though it dates at least to the beginning of the 19th century, it has been the object of critical opprobrium for more than a hundred years, charged with being both pretentious and unetymological. There is some sign that resistance to this sense of transpire is abating, however. In a 1969 survey the usage was acceptable only to 38 percent of the Usage Panel; in the most recent survey it was acceptable to 58 percent in the sentence All of these events transpired after last week's announcement (though many of the Panelists who accepted the usage also remarked that it was pretentious or pompous).

trans-pla-cen-tal (trăns'plə-sĕn'tl) adj. Passing through or occurring across the placenta: a transplacental infection. —trans'pla-cen'tal-ly adv.

trans-plant (trăns-plănt') v. trans-plant-ed, trans-plant-ing, trans-plants. — v. tr. 1. To uproot and replant (a growing plant). 2. To transfer from one place or residence to another; resettle or relocate. 3. Medicine. To transfer (tissue or an organ) from one body or body part to another. — v. intr. To be capable of undergoing transplantation. — n. (trăns'plănt') 1. The act or process of transplanting. 2. Something transplanted. 3. Medicine. An operation in which tissue or an organ is transplanted: undergo a heart transplant; surgical transplant of a cornea. [Middle English transplaunten, from Old French transplanter, from Late Latin trānsplantāre: Latin trāns, trans- + Latin plantāre, to plant; see plat- in Appendix.] —trans-plant'a-ble adj. —trans'plan-ta'tion n. —trans-plant'er n.

trans-po-lar (trăns-pō'lər) adj. Extending across or crossing either of the Polar Regions.

tran-spond-er (trăn-spôn'dər) n. A radio or radar transmitter-receiver activated for transmission by reception of a predetermined signal. [TRAN(SMITTER) + (RE)SPONDER.]

trans-pon-tine (trăns-pôn'tîn') adj. 1. Situated on the other side of a bridge. 2. Similar to or characteristic of melodramas once performed in London theaters located south of the Thames River.

trans-port (trăns-pôrt', -pôrt') v. tr. trans-ported, trans-port-ing, trans-ports. 1. To carry from one place to another; convey. See Synonyms at convey. 2. To move to strong emotion; carry away; enrapture. See Synonyms at enrapture. 3. To send abroad to a penal colony; deport. See Synonyms at ban-ish. — n. (trăns'pôrt', -pôrt') 1. The act of transporting; conveyance. 2. The condition of being transported by emotion; rapture. See Synonyms at ecstasy. 3. A ship or an aircraft used to transport troops or military equipment. 4. A vehicle, such as an aircraft, used to transport passengers, mail, or freight. 5. A system for transporting passengers: public transport. 6. A deported convict. [Middle English transporten, from Old French transporter, from Latin trānsportāre: trāns-, trans- + portāre, to carry; see per-² in Appendix.] —trans-port'a-bil'i-ty n. —trans-port'a-ble adj. —trans-port'er n. —trans-por'tive adj.

trans-por-ta-tion (trăns'pər-tā'shən) n. Abbr. trans., transp. 1. a. The act or an instance of transporting. b. The state of being transported. 2. A means of conveyance. 3. The business of conveying passengers or goods. 4. A charge for public conveyance; fare. 5. Deportation to a penal colony.

trans-pose (trăns-pôz') v. trans-posed, trans-pos-ing, trans-pos-es. Abbr. tr., trans. — v. tr. 1. To reverse or transfer the order or place of; interchange. 2. To put into a different place or order: transpose the words of a sentence. See Synonyms at reverse. 3. Mathematics. To move (a term) from one side of an algebraic equation to the other side, reversing its sign to maintain equality. 4. Music. To write or perform (a composition) in a key other than the original or given key. 5. To render into another language. 6. To alter in form or nature; transform. — v. intr. 1. Music. To write or perform music in a different key. 2. To admit of being transposed. — n. Mathematics. A matrix formed by interchanging the rows and columns of a given matrix. [Middle English transposen, to transform, from Old French transposer, alteration (influenced by poser, to put, place); see POSE¹, of Latin trānsponere, to transfer: trāns-, trans- + pōnere, to place; see apo- in Appendix.] —trans-pos'a-ble adj.

trans-po-si-tion (trăns'pə-zīsh'ən) n. Abbr. tr., trans. 1. a. The act or an instance of transposing. b. The state of being transposed. 2. Something transposed. 3. Genetics. Transfer of a segment of DNA to a new position on the same or another chromosome, plasmid, or cell. —trans'po-si'tion-al adj.

trans-po-son (trāns-pō'zōn) n. A segment of DNA that is capable of moving to a new position within the same or another chromosome, plasmid, or cell and thereby transferring genetic properties such as resistance to antibiotics. [TRANS-POS(ITION) + -ON¹.]

trans-sex·u·al (trāns-sĕk'shōō-əl) n. 1. One whose primary sexual identification is with the opposite sex. 2. One who has undergone a sex change.

—trans-sex'u·al adj. —trans-sex'u·al·ism, trans-sex'u·al'i·ty (-əl'ī-tē) n.

trans-ship (trāns-shĭp') also tran-ship (trān-shĭp') v. tr. intr. trans-shipped, trans-ship-ping, trans-ships. To transfer or be transferred from one conveyance to another for reshipment. —trans-ship'ment n.

trans-tho·rac·ic (trāns'thə-rās'ĭk) adj. Across or through the thoracic cavity or chest wall. —trans'tho·rac'i·cal·ly adv.

tran-sub-stan-ti·ate (trān'səb-stān'shē-āt') v. tr. tran-sub-stan-ti-at-ed, tran-sub-stan-ti-at-ing, tran-sub-stan-ti-ates. 1. To change (one substance) into another; transmute. 2. Theology. To change the substance of (the Eucharistic bread and wine) into the body and blood of Jesus. [Medieval Latin trānssubstantiāre, trānssubstantiāt- : Latin trāns-, trans- + Latin substantia, substance; see SUBSTANCE.]

tran-sub-stan-ti·a·tion (trān'səb-stān'shē-ā'shən) n. 1. Conversion of one substance into another. 2. Theology. The doctrine holding that the bread and wine of the Eucharist are transformed into the body and blood of Jesus, although their appearances remain the same. —tran'sub-stan'ti·a'tion·al·ist n.

tran-su·date (trān-sōō'dāt', -syōō-, trān'sōō-dāt', -syōō-) also tran-su·da·tion (trān'sōō-dā'shən, -syōō-) n. 1. A product of the process of transuding. 2. A substance that transudes.

tran-sude (trān-sōōd', -syōōd', -zōōd', -zyōōd') v. intr. tran-sud-ed, tran-sud-ing, tran-sudes. To pass through pores or interstices in the manner of perspiration. [New Latin trānsūdāre : Latin trāns-, trans- + Latin sūdāre, to sweat; see sweid- in Appendix.] —tran-su'da-to'ry (trān-sōō'də-tōr'ē, -tōr'ē, -syōō'-) adj.

trans-u·ran·ic (trāns'yōō-rān'ĭk, -rā'nĭk, trānz'-) also trans-u·ra·ni·um (-rā'nĕ-əm) adj. Having an atomic number greater than 92. [TRANS- + URAN(IUM) + -IC.]

trans-u·re·thral (trāns'yōō-rē'thrəl, trānz'-) adj. Medicine. Performed through or by way of the urethra: a transurethral resection.

Trans-vaal (trāns-vāl', trānz-) A region of northeast South Africa. Inhabited by Bantu-speaking Black Africans, the area was settled by Boer farmers who formed an independent state, called the South African Republic, in the 1850's. Great Britain annexed the territory in 1877, but the discovery of gold in 1886 led to an influx of settlers, further tensions between the British and the Boers, and the eventual formation of the Transvaal as a crown colony (1900) after the Boer War. Transvaal became a part of South Africa in 1910.

trans-val·ue (trǎns-văl'yōō, trǎnz-) v. tr. trans-val·ued, trans-val·u·ing, trans-val·ues. To evaluate by a new standard or principle, especially by one that varies from conventional standards. —trans-val'u·a'tion n.

trans-ver·sal (trǎns-vûr'səl, trǎnz-) adj. Transverse. — n. Mathematics. A line that intersects a system of other lines.

trans·verse (trǎns-vûrs', trǎnz-, trǎns'vûrs', trǎnz'/-) adj. Abbr. trans. Situated or lying across; crosswise. — n. Abbr. trans. Something, such as a part or beam, that is transverse. [Latin trānsversus, from past participle of trānsvertere, to turn across : trāns-, trans- + vertere, to turn; see wer-² in Appendix.]

—trans·verse'ly adv. —trans·verse'ness n.

transverse colon (trǎns-vûrs' kō'lən) n. The part of the colon that lies across the upper part of the abdominal cavity.

transverse flute (trǎns-vûrs' flōōt) n. Music. See flute (n., sense 1a).

transverse process (trǎns-vûrs' prōs'ēs') n. A process projecting outward from the side of a vertebra.

trans·ves·tite (trǎns-vēs'tīt', trǎnz-) n. A person who dresses and acts in a style or manner traditionally associated with the opposite sex. [German Transvestit : Latin trāns-, trans- + Latin vestīre, to dress; see TRAVESTY.]

—trans·ves'tism (-tīz'əm), trans·ves'ti·tism (-tī-tīz'əm) n.

Tran·syl·va·nia (trǎn'sīl-vān'yə, -vā'nē-ə) A historical region of western Romania bounded by the Transylvanian Alps and the Carpathian Mountains. Part of the Roman province of Dacia after A.D. 107, it was later overrun by Germanic peoples and came under Hungarian rule in 1003. Transylvania passed to various powers over the following centuries and finally became part of modern-day Romania after World War II. —Tran'syl·va'ni·an adj. & n.

Transylvanian Alps (trǎn'sīl-vān'yən əlps) A range of the southern Carpathian Mountains extending across central Romania and rising to 2,544.6 m (8,343 ft).

trap¹ (trǎp) n. 1. A contrivance for catching and holding animals, as a concealed pit or a clamplike device that springs shut suddenly. 2. A stratagem for catching or tricking an unwary person. 3. A device for sealing a passage against the escape of gases, especially a U-shaped or S-shaped bend in a drainpipe that prevents the return flow of sewer gas by means of a water barrier. 4. Sports. a. A device that hurls clay pigeons into the air in trapshooting. b. A land hazard or bunker on a golf course; a sand trap. c. traps. A measured length of roadway over which electronic timers register the speed of a racing vehicle, such as a dragster. 5. A light two-wheeled carriage with springs. 6. A trap door. 7. traps. Music. Percussion instruments, such as snare drums and cymbals, especially in a jazz band.

8. Slang. The human mouth. — v. trapped, trap·ping, traps. — v. tr.

1. To catch in or as if in a trap; ensnare. See Synonyms at catch. 2. To place in a confining or embarrassing position. 3. To seal off (gases) by a trap. 4. To furnish with traps or a trap. — v. intr. 1. To set traps for game. 2. To engage in trapping furbearing animals. [Middle English, from Old English træppe.]

trap² (trăp) Informal. n. Personal belongings or household goods. Often used in the plural. — v. tr. trapped, trap-ping, traps. To furnish with trappings. [Middle English trap, trapping, perhaps alteration of Old French drap, cloth, from Late Latin drappus.]

trap³ (trăp) n. Any of several dark, fine-grained igneous rocks often used in making roads. [Swedish trapp, from trappa, step, from Middle Low German trappe.]

tra·pan (trə-păn') v. Variant of trepan².

Tra·pa·ni (tră'pə-nē, -pā-) A city of northwest Sicily, Italy, on the Mediterranean Sea west-southwest of Palermo. An important Carthaginian naval base, it fell to Rome in 241 B.C. Population, 61,900.

trap door (trăp dôr) n. A hinged or sliding door in a floor, roof, or ceiling.

trap-door spider (trăp'dôr' spī'dər, -dôr') n. Any of various insect-eating spiders of the family Ctenizidae, found in warm climates, that construct a silk-lined burrow concealed by a hinged lid.

tra·peze (tră-pēz', trə-) n. Sports. 1. A short horizontal bar suspended from two parallel ropes, used for exercises or for acrobatic stunts. 2. An article of women's clothing, such as a jacket, dress, or coat, that is cut so as to hang down from the shoulders and swing out and away around the hips and legs. [French trapèze, from Late Latin trapezium, trapezoid. See TRAPEZIUM.]

trapeze artist (tră-pēz' ār'tist) n. Sports. One that performs on a trapeze.

tra·pe·zi·a (trə-pē'zē-ə) n. A plural of trapezium.

tra·pe·zi·form (trə-pē'zə-fôrm') adj. Shaped like a trapezium: a trapeziform thorax.

tra·pe·zi·um (trə-pē'zē-əm) n. pl. tra·pe·zi·ums or tra·pe·zi·a (-zē-ə). 1. A quadrilateral having no parallel sides. 2. Chiefly British. A trapezoid. 3. A bone in the wrist at the base of the thumb. [Late Latin trapezium, trapezoid, from Greek trapezion, diminutive of trapeza, table : tra-, four; see k^wetwer- in Appendix + peza, foot; see ped- in Appendix.]

tra·pe·zi·us (trə-pē'zē-əs) n. pl. tra·pe·zi·us-es. Either of two large, flat, triangular muscles running from the base of the occiput to the middle of the back that support and make it possible to raise the head and shoulders. [New Latin, from Late Latin trapēzium, trapezium (from the shape of the muscles paired). See TRAPEZIUM.]

tra·pe·zo·he·dron (trə-pē'zō-hē'drən, trăp'ī-zō-) n. pl. tra·pe·zo·he·drons or tra·pe·zo·he·dra (-drə). Any of several forms of crystal with trapeziums as faces. [TRAPEZ(IUM) + -HEDRON.]

trap-e-zoid (trăp'ĭ-zoid') n. 1. A quadrilateral having two parallel sides. 2. A small bone in the wrist, situated near the base of the index finger. [New Latin trapezoidēs, from Greek trapezoidēs, trapezium-shaped : trapeza, table; see TRAPEZIUM + -oidēs, -oid.] —trap'e-zoid', trap'e-zoi'dal (-zoid'l) adj.

trap gun (trăp gŭn) n. Sports. A shotgun designed for trapshooting.

trap house (trăp hous) n. Sports. The enclosure housing the spring traps used in trapshooting and skeet.

trap-light (trăp'līt') n. Any of various devices using a light to trap insects.

trapper (trăp'ər) n. One who traps animals for their fur.

trap-ping (trăp'ĭng) n. 1. Often trappings. An ornamental covering or harness for a horse; a caparison. 2. trappings. a. Articles of dress or adornment, especially accessories. b. Characteristic or symbolic signs: all the trappings of power.

Trap-pist (trăp'ĭst) n. A member of the main, reformed branch of Cistercian monks, characterized by austerity and a vow of silence, established in 1664 at La Trappe Monastery in northwest France. —Trap'pist adj.

trap-shoot-ing (trăp'shōō'tĭng) n. Sports. Shooting at clay pigeons hurled into the air from spring traps. —trap'shoot'er n.

tra-pun-to (trə-pōōn'tō) n. pl. tra-pun-tos. Quilting in which the design is outlined with two or more rows of running stitches and then padded from the underside to achieve a raised effect. [Italian, from past participle of trapungere, to embroider : Latin trāns-, trans- + Latin pungere, to prick; see peuk- in Appendix.]

trash (trăsh) n. 1. a. Worthless or discarded material or objects; refuse or rubbish. b. Something broken off or removed to be discarded, especially plant trimmings. c. The refuse of sugar cane after extraction of the juice. 2. a. Empty words or ideas. b. Worthless or offensive literary or artistic material. 3. A person or group of people regarded as worthless or contemptible. — v. tr.

trashed, trash-ing, trash-es. 1. Slang. a. To throw away; discard: "Ideas and works of art... get bought and trashed as quickly as razor blades" (New York). b. To wreck or destroy by or as if by vandalism; reduce to trash or ruins. c. To beat up; assault. d. To subject to scathing criticism or abuse; attack verbally: "The... professor trashes conservative... proposals as well as liberal nostrums" (Michael Marien). 2. a. To remove twigs or branches from. b. To cut off the outer leaves of (growing sugar cane). [Probably of Scandinavian origin; akin to Norwegian dialectal trask.]

trash fish (trăsh fĭsh) n. A fish considered to have little value as a food fish and therefore typically discarded whenever caught.

trash-y (trăsh'ē) adj. trash-i-er, trash-i-est. 1. Resembling or containing trash; cheap or worthless: trashy merchandise. 2. In very poor taste or of very poor quality: “There was a special pathos... within... her trashy tales” (James Wolcott). —trash/i·ly adv. —trash/i·ness n.

Tra·si·me·no (tră'zə-mā'nō, -zē-mě'-), Lake. A lake in central Italy west of Perugia. Hannibal defeated a Roman force here in 217 B.C.

trass (trās) n. A light-colored tuff used in hydraulic cement. [Dutch tras, short for obsolete terras, tiras, possibly from Italian terrazzo, stone chips. See TERRAZZO.]

trat·to·ri·a (tră'tə-rē'ə, trăt'tô-rē'ä) n. pl. trat·to·ri·as or trat·to·ri·e (-rē'ë). An informal restaurant or tavern serving simple Italian dishes. [Italian, from trattore, host, from trattare, to treat, from Latin trāctāre. See TREAT.]

Trau·bel (trou'bəl), Helen. 1903-1972. American operatic soprano who performed with the New York Metropolitan Opera from 1939 to 1953.

trau·ma (trou'mə, trô'-) n. pl. trau·mas or trau·ma·ta (-mə-tə). 1. Medicine. A serious injury or shock to the body, as from violence or an accident.

2. Psychiatry. An emotional wound or shock that creates substantial, lasting damage to the psychological development of a person, often leading to neurosis. — n. attributive. Often used to modify another noun: a trauma center; a trauma team. [Greek. See terə¹ in Appendix.] —trau·mat'ic (-măt'ik) adj.

—trau·mat'i·cal·ly adv.

USAGE NOTE: The word trauma can be pronounced (trô'mə), with the first syllable rhyming with law, or (trou'mə), with the first syllable rhyming with cow. In a recent ballot, 56 percent of the Usage Panel preferred the former pronunciation, 41 percent preferred the latter, and a small percentage said they use both.

trau·ma·tism (trou'mə-tīz'əm, trô'-) n. 1. The physical or psychological condition produced by a trauma. 2. A wound or an injury.

trau·ma·tize (trou'mə-tīz', trô'-) v. tr. trau·ma·tized, trau·ma·tiz·ing, trau·ma·tiz·es. 1. To wound or injure (a tissue), as in a surgical operation.

2. To subject to psychological trauma.

trau·ma·tol·o·gy (trou'mə-tōl'ə-jē, trô'-) n. The branch of medicine that deals with the treatment of serious wounds, injuries, and disabilities.

—trau'ma-to-log'i·cal adj. —trau'ma-tol'o·gist n.

trav. abbr. 1. Traveler. 2. Travels.

tra·vail (trə-vāl', träv'al') n. 1. Work, especially when arduous or involving painful effort; toil. See Synonyms at work. 2. Tribulation or agony; anguish.

3. The labor of childbirth. — v. intr. tra·vailed, tra·vail·ing, tra·vails. 1. To work strenuously; toil. 2. To be in the labor of childbirth. [Middle English, from Old French, from travailler, to work hard, from Vulgar Latin tripāliāre*, to torture with a tripalium, from Late Latin tripālium, instrument of torture, probably from Latin tripālis, having three stakes : tri-, tri- + pālus, stake; see pag- in Appendix.]

trave (trāv) n. 1. Architecture. a. A crossbeam. b. A section, as of a ceiling, formed by crossbeams. 2. A wooden frame used to confine a horse being shod. [Middle English, from Old French, from Latin trabs, trab-. See treb- in Appendix.]

trav-el (trāv'əl) v. trav-eled or trav-elled, trav-el-ing or trav-el-ling, trav-els or trav-els. — v. intr. 1. To go from one place to another, as on a trip; journey. 2. To go from place to place as a salesperson or an agent. 3. To be transmitted, as light or sound; move or pass. 4. To advance or proceed. 5. To go about in the company of a particular group; associate: travels in wealthy circles. 6. To move along a course, as in a groove. 7. To admit of being transported without loss of quality: Some wines travel poorly. 8. Informal. To move swiftly. 9. Basketball. To walk or run illegally while holding the ball. — v. tr. To pass or journey over or through; traverse: travel the roads of Europe. — n. 1. The act or process of traveling; movement or passage from one place to another. 2. travels. a. A series of journeys. b. An account of one's journeys. 3. Activity or traffic along a route or through a given point. [Middle English travelen, alteration of travailen, to toil, from Old French travailler. See TRAVAIL.]

travel agency (trāv'əl ā'jən-sē) n. A business that attends to the details of transportation, itinerary, and accommodations for travelers. Also called travel bureau — travel agent n.

trav-eled or trav-elled (trāv'əld) adj. 1. Having made journeys; experienced in travel. 2. Frequented by travelers: a heavily traveled road.

trav-el-er or trav-el-ler (trāv'əl-ər, trāv'lər) n. Abbr. trav. 1. One who travels or has traveled, as to distant places. 2. Chiefly British. A traveling salesperson. 3. Nautical. a. A metal ring that moves freely back and forth on a rope, rod, or spar. b. The rope, rod, or spar on which such a ring moves.

trav-el-er's check (trāv'əl-ərz čĕk, trāv'lərz) n. pl. traveler's checks or travelers' checks. An internationally redeemable draft purchased in various denominations from a bank or traveler's aid company and valid only with the purchaser's endorsement against his or her original signature on the draft.

trav-el-ers' diarrhea also trav-el-er's diarrhea (trāv'əl-ərz dī'ə-rĕ'ə, trāv'lərz) n. Diarrhea and abdominal cramps occurring among travelers to foreign countries where sanitation is poor, commonly caused by a toxin-producing strain of the bacterium Escherichia coli.

trav-el-ing salesman (trāv'ə-lĭng sālz'mən, trāv'lĭng) n. A man who travels throughout a given territory to solicit business orders or sell merchandise.

trav-el-ler (trāv'əl-ər, trāv'lər) n. Variant of traveler.

trav-e-logue also trav-e-log (trāv'ə-lôg', -lôg') n. 1. A lecture illustrated by travel slides or films. 2. A narrated film about travels.

Traven (trā'vən), B. Probable original name Berick Traven Torsvan. 1890-1969. American-born writer who is best known for his novel The Treasure of the Sierra Madre (1935).

Travers (trāv'ərz), P(amela) L. 1906-1996. Australian-born British writer of children's stories, including Mary Poppins (1934).

tra·verse (trə-vûrs', trāv'ərs) v. tra·versed, tra·vers·ing, tra·vers·es. — v. tr. 1. To travel or pass across, over, or through. 2. To move to and fro over; cross and recross. 3. Sports. To go up, down, or across (a slope) diagonally, as in skiing. 4. To cause to move laterally on a pivot; swivel: traverse an artillery piece. 5. To extend across; cross: a bridge that traverses a river. 6. To look over carefully; examine. 7. To go counter to; thwart. 8. Law. a. To deny formally (an allegation of fact by the opposing party) in a suit. See Synonyms at deny. b. To join issue upon (an indictment). 9. To survey by traverse. 10. Nautical. To brace (a yard) fore and aft. — v. intr. 1. To move to the side or back and forth. 2. To turn laterally; swivel. 3. Sports. a. To go up, down, or across a slope diagonally or in a zigzag manner, as in skiing. b. To slide one's blade with pressure toward the hilt of the opponent's foil in fencing. — n. also trav·erse (trāv'ərs, trə-vûrs') 1. A passing across, over, or through. 2. A route or path across or over. 3. Something that lies across, especially: a. An intersecting line; a transversal. b. Architecture. A structural crosspiece; a transom. c. A gallery, deck, or loft crossing from one side of a building to the other. d. A railing, curtain, screen, or similar barrier. e. A defensive barrier across a rampart or trench, as a bank of earth thrown up to protect against enfilade fire. 4. Something that obstructs and thwarts; an obstacle. 5. Nautical. The zigzag route of a vessel forced by contrary winds to sail on different courses. 6. Sports. A zigzag or diagonal course on a steep slope, as in skiing. 7. a. A lateral movement, as of a lathe tool across a piece of wood. b. A part of a mechanism that moves in this manner. c. The lateral swivel of a mounted gun. 8. A line established by sighting in surveying a tract of land. 9. Law. A formal denial of the opposing party's allegation of fact in a suit. — adj. also trav·erse (trāv'ərs, trə-vûrs') Lying or extending across; transverse. [Middle English traversen, from Old French traverser, from Vulgar Latin trāversāre*, from Late Latin trānsversāre, from Latin trānsversus, transverse. See TRANSVERSE.] —tra·vers'a·ble adj. —tra·vers'al n. —tra·vers'er n.

Traverse City (trāv'ərs sīt'ē) A city of northwest Michigan on Grand Traverse Bay north of Grand Rapids. It is a trade center in a resort area. Population, 15,155.

trav·erse rod (trāv'ərs rōd) n. A horizontal rod having a mechanism by which attached draperies can be drawn with a pull cord.

trav·er·tine (trāv'ər-tēn', -tīn) n. 1. A light-colored porous calcite, CaCO₃, deposited from solution in ground or surface waters and forming, among other deposits, stalactites and stalagmites. 2. A compact calcium carbonate used as a facing material in construction. [French, from Italian travertino, alteration of tivertino, from Latin (lapis) tīburtīnus, (stone) of Tibur (Tivoli), an ancient city of central Italy.]

trav-es-ty (trāv'ī-stē) n. pl. trav-es-ties. 1. An exaggerated or grotesque imitation, such as a parody of a literary work. 2. A debased or grotesque likeness: a travesty of justice. See Synonyms at caricature. — v. tr. trav-es-tied (-ī-tēd), trav-es-ty-ing, trav-es-ties (-ī-stēz). To make a travesty of; parody or ridicule. [From obsolete, disguised, burlesqued, from French travesti, past participle of travestir, to disguise, parody, from Italian travestire: Latin trāns-, trans- + Latin vestīre, to dress (from vestis, garment); see wes-² in Appendix.]

Trav-is (trāv'is), William Barret. 1809-1836. American military leader who commanded the Texans who died in the defense of the Alamo (1836).

tra-vois (trə-voi', trāv'oi') also tra-voise (trə-voiz', trāv'oiz') n. pl. tra-vois (trə-voiz', trāv'oiz') also tra-vois-es (trə-voi'zīz, trāv'oi'zīz). A frame slung between trailing poles and pulled by a dog or horse, formerly used by Plains Indians as a conveyance for goods and belongings. [Canadian French, alteration of obsolete travoy, from travail, cart-shaft, from French, frame for restraining horses, alteration of Late Latin tripālium, device with three stakes, probably from Latin tripālis, having three stakes. See TRAVAIL.]

trawl (trôl) n. 1. A trawl net. 2. See setline. — v. trawled, trawl-ing, trawls. — v. tr. To catch (fish) with a trawl. — v. intr. 1. To fish with a trawl. 2. To troll. [Possibly Middle English trawelle, perhaps from Middle Dutch tragel, dragnet, possibly from Latin trāgula, from trahere, to drag.]

trawl-er (trô'lār) n. 1. Nautical. A vessel used for trawling. 2. One who trawls.

trawl line (trôl līn) n. See setline.

trawl net (trôl nēt) n. A large tapered fishing net that is towed along the sea bottom.

tray (trā) n. 1. A shallow, flat receptacle with a raised edge or rim, used for carrying, holding, or displaying articles. 2. A shallow, flat receptacle with its contents: took the patient a dinner tray. [Middle English, from Old English træg. See deru- in Appendix.]

tra-zo-done (trā'zə-dōn') n. A white, odorless, crystalline compound, C₁₉H₂₃Cl₂N₅O, used as an antidepressant. [TR(I)- + AZO- + (PYRI)D(INE) + -ONE.]

treach-er-ous (trēch'ər-əs) adj. 1. Marked by betrayal of fidelity, confidence, or trust; perfidious. See Synonyms at faithless. 2. Not to be relied on; not dependable or trustworthy. 3. Marked by unforeseen hazards; dangerous or deceptive: treacherous waters. —treach'er-ous-ly adv. —treach'er-ous-ness n.

treach-er-y (trēch'ər-rē) n. pl. treach-er-ies. 1. Willful betrayal of fidelity, confidence, or trust; perfidy. 2. The act or an instance of such betrayal. [Middle treacle (trē'kəl) n. 1. Cloying speech or sentiment. 2. Chiefly British. Molasses. 3. A medicinal compound formerly used as an antidote for poison. [Middle English triacle, antidote for poison, from Old French, from Latin thēriaca, from Greek thēriakē (antidotos), (antidote against) wild animals, feminine of thēriakos, of wild animals, from thērion, diminutive of thēr, beast. See ghwer- in Appendix.]

English treacherie, from Old French, from trichier, to trick, probably from Vulgar Latin triccāre*. See TRICK.]

treacly (trē'klē) adj. Cloyingly sweet or sentimental.

tread (trəd) v. trod (tröd), trod-den (tröd'n) or trod, tread-ing, treads.

— v. tr. 1. To walk on, over, or along. 2. To press beneath the feet; trample. 3. To subdue harshly or cruelly; crush. 4. To form by walking or trampling: tread a path. 5. To execute by walking or dancing: tread a measure. 6. To copulate with. Used of a male bird. — v. intr. 1. a. To go on foot; walk. b. To set down the foot; step. 2. To press, crush, or injure something by or as if by trampling. Often used with on or upon: trod on her feelings. 3. To copulate. Used of birds. — n. 1. a. The act, manner, or sound of treading. b. An instance of treading; a step. 2. The upper horizontal part of a step in a staircase. 3. a. The part of a wheel or tire that makes contact with the road or rails. b. The grooved face of a tire. 4. The part of a shoe sole that touches the ground. — idioms.

tread the boards. To act on the stage: “We who tread the boards are not the only players of parts in this world” (John Fowles). tread water. 2. To keep the head above water while in an upright position by pumping the legs. 3. To expend effort but make little or no progress to achievement of a goal or an end. [Middle English treden, from Old English tredan.] — tread'less adj.

treadle (trəd'l) n. A pedal or lever operated by the foot for circular drive, as in a potter's wheel or sewing machine. — v. intr. tread-led, tread-ling, tread-les. To work a treadle. [Middle English tredel, from Old English, step of a stair, from tredan, to tread.] — tread'ler n.

tread-mill (trəd'mil') n. 1. a. A mechanism rotated by people treading on the moving steps of a wheel. b. A similar device operated by an animal treading an endless sloping belt. 2. An exercise device consisting of an endless moving belt on which a person can walk or jog while remaining in one place. 3. A monotonous task or set of tasks seeming to have no end.

treas. abbr. Treasurer; treasury.

treason (trē'zən) n. 1. Violation of allegiance toward one's country or sovereign, especially the betrayal of one's country by waging war against it or by consciously and purposely acting to aid its enemies. 2. A betrayal of trust or confidence. [Middle English, from Anglo-Norman treson, from Latin trāditiō, trāditiōn-, a handing over. See TRADITION.]

treason·a·ble (trē'zə-nə-bəl) adj. Relating to, constituting, or involving treason: a treasonable act such as espionage. — treason·a·ble·ness n. — treason·a·bly adv.

treason·ous (trē'zə-nəs) adj. Treasonable. — treason·ous·ly adv.

treas·ure (trēzh'ər) n. 1. Accumulated or stored wealth in the form of money, jewels, or other valuables. 2. Valuable or precious possessions of any kind.

3. One considered especially precious or valuable. — v. tr. treas·ured, treas·ur·ing, treas·ures. 1. To keep or regard as precious; value highly. See Synonyms at appreciate. 2. To accumulate and store away, as for future use. [Middle English tresure, from Old French tresor, from Latin thēsauros, from Greek thēsauros.] — treas·ur·a·ble adj.

treasure house (trēzh'ər hous) n. A place where items of great value are stored or can be found.

treasure hunt (trēzh'ər hünt) n. Games. A game in which the players attempt to find hidden articles by means of a series of clues.

Treas·ure Island (trēzh'ər ī'lənd) An artificial island of San Francisco Bay in western California. Built for the Golden Gate International Exposition in 1939, it became a U.S. Navy base in 1941.

treas·ur·er (trēzh'ər-ər) n. Abbr. tr., treas. One who has charge of funds or revenues, especially the chief financial officer of a government, a corporation, or an association. [Middle English tresurer, from Anglo-Norman tresorer, from Late Latin thēsaurārius, from Latin, of treasure, from thēsauros, treasure. See TREASURE.]

treas·ure·trove (trēzh'ər-trōv') n. 1. Treasure found hidden. 2. Law. Silver or gold in the form of bullion, plate, or money that is found hidden and has no known owner. 3. A discovery of great value. [Anglo-Norman tresor trove: Old French tresor, treasure; see TREASURE + Old French trove, past participle of trover, to find; see TROVER.]

treas·ur·y (trēzh'ə-rē) n. pl. treas·ur·ies. Abbr. treas. 1. A place in which treasure is kept. 2. A place in which private or public funds are received, kept, managed, and disbursed. 3. Public funds or revenues. 4. A collection of literary or artistic treasures: a treasury of English verse. 5. Treasury. a. The department of a government in charge of the collection, management, and expenditure of the public revenue. b. A security, such as a note, issued by the U.S. Treasury. [Middle English tresorie, from Old French, from tresor, treasure. See TREASURE.]

Treasury bill (trēzh'ə-rē bīl) n. A short-term obligation of the U.S. Treasury having a maturity period of one year or less and sold at a discount from face value.

Treasury bond (trēzh'ə-rē bōnd) n. A long-term obligation of the U.S. Treasury having a maturity period of more than ten years and paying interest semiannually.

Treasury note (trēzh'ə-rē nōt) n. An intermediate-term obligation of the U.S. Treasury having a maturity period of one to ten years and paying interest semiannually.

treat (trēt) v. treat·ed, treat·ing, treats. — v. tr. 1. To act or behave in a specified manner toward. 2. To regard and handle in a certain way. Often used with as: treated the matter as a joke. 3. To deal with in writing or speech; discuss: a book that treats all aspects of health care. 4. To deal with or represent artistically in a specified manner or style: treats the subject poetically. 5. a. To provide with food, entertainment, or gifts at one's own expense: treated her sister to the theater. b. To give (someone or oneself) something pleasurable: treated herself to a day in the country. 6. To subject to a process, an action, or a change, especially to a chemical or physical process or application. 7. a. To give medical aid to (someone): treated many patients in the emergency room. b. To give medical aid to counteract (a disease or condition): treated malaria with quinine. — v. intr. 1. To deal with a subject or topic in writing or speech. Often used with of: The essay treats of courtly love. 2. To pay for another's entertainment, food, or drink. 3. To engage in negotiations, as to reach a settlement or agree on terms: "Both sides nonetheless are quite willing to treat with [the king]" (Gregory J. Wallance). — n. 1. Something, such as one's food or entertainment, that is paid for by someone else. 2. A source of a special delight or pleasure: A day in the country is a real treat for a city person. [Middle English tretien, from Old French traitier, from Latin trāctāre, frequentative of trahere, to draw.] —treat'er n.

SYNONYMS: treat, deal, handle. The central meaning shared by these verbs is "to act in a specified way with regard to someone or something": treats his guests with courtesy; dealt rationally with the problem; handling a case with discretion. See also Synonyms at confer treat·a·ble (trē'tə-bəl) adj. Possible to treat; responsive to treatment: a treatable disorder.

trea·tise (trē'tīs) n. 1. A systematic, usually extensive written discourse on a subject. 2. Obsolete. A tale or narrative. [Middle English treatis, from Anglo-Norman tretiz, alteration of treteiz, from Vulgar Latin trāctāticūs*, from Latin trāctātus, past participle of trāctāre, to drag about, deal with. See TREAT.]

